New Deal Has Definitely Recognized Woman's Right To Place In Government

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The new deal has definitely recognized woman's right to a place in the government. While previous administrations recognized the woman voter to some degree, notably President Hoover's naming Mabel Willebrandt as assistant attorney general, President Roosevelt's appointments of women to important posts already exceeds the total of his predecessors with the probability of the rapidly growing list of feminine government officials.

AN ANCIENT HATRED

The knowing crow looks down at me And lists me as his enemy, But I have never raised a gun Or thrown a stone at him in fun.

Now sits a sentry on a tree With eye alert to watch for me. "Caw! Caw!" he cries as I appear.

"Here is another man to fear! And thus am I compelled to face An ancient hatred of my race.

Talk of Soviet recognition is bringing out the fact that they have many strange things in Russia.

Another thing that has got the local N. R. A. officials stumped is whether a man who wears a blue shirt belongs to the white collar class.

We have no particular objection to rising prices but we hope this recovery program will not result in some business concerns trying to recover in a few weeks all they have lost in the past three years.

One thing which is back of this drive to increase purchasing is a Federal Reserve statement which shows that business activity is only seven percent under the 1924-25 level.

However, the figures speak for the country as a whole and do not necessarily indicate the situation in particular isolated communities.

It may never become a law but some of our friends are discussing the possibility of a lottery scheme such as they have in Cuba and France to take the place of the proposed sales tax.

There is said to be a bitter feud existing between Secretary of State Hull and his assistant secretary Moley.

Senator Fletcher

Florida's most distinguished citizen is Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Jacksonville. Outstanding leader in the United States Senate also is Senator Fletcher, chairman of the banking and currency committee which has been conducting the investigations into private banking houses and various questionable Wall Street transactions.

This week Senator Fletcher was honored—and the University of Florida was proud to honor—when the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon him in the presence of a record graduating class at the University and thousands of admirers from all parts of the state who came to pay their respects to the venerable gentleman.

We are honored by the presence of Florida's distinguished citizen as our guest, one who has held public office and trust without spot or blemish for 40 years. Like the Grecian patriot, he too has accomplished much for his people, and long has he aroused the youth of Florida to emulation.

In awarding the honorary degree of doctor of laws, President Tigert declared "Senator Duncan Upshaw Fletcher, for more than 50 years a citizen of Florida, a faithful and life-long public servant, five times elevated by the people of this state to the United States Senate, author of wise and beneficent legislative acts without number, eloquent orator, devoted Democrat, alumnus of Vanderbilt and Stetson Universities, the University of Florida is honored in the acceptance by you of this degree here in the midst of the people who love you and believe you to be our most distinguished citizen."

Such tributes as these are well deserved by Senator Fletcher who has devoted his entire life to the service of his people. No state can boast a finer character or one who has done more for his country in acting wisely on the mass of legislation which has passed through his hands.

A New Use For Tear Gas

The New York Stock Exchange, anathema to the American public whenever business is off, but not quite so bad when dividends are being paid, has not had so much excitement since the fatal crash of 1929.

It appears that someone with a sense of humor or a real or fancied grievance against this great trading market let loose some tear gas yesterday into the circulatory system of the huge exchange quarters.

The stock market is particularly susceptible to "nerves." It is always on edge in expectation either for a bit of news that will send the price skyrocketing or cascading to the lower depths.

What they had forgotten to contemplate, however, was that the exchange would be deserted a few seconds after the first fumes were discovered and that there would be nobody left to buy or sell.

MARTIAL LAW IS THREAT MADE BY CUBAN PRESIDENT

Machado Says He May Call Troops To End Transportation Jam

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 5.—(AP)—President Machado threatened striking Cuba with martial law yesterday.

Almost simultaneously Clenfos, in Santa Clara Province, flared into violence. Demonstrating hundreds shattered shop windows, battled police who sought to dissolve them, wounded three and sharply resisted rural guards called to disperse them.

Machado declared he would call out troops if necessary to end transportation and allied strikes threatening Havana's sources of food and general commerce throughout the island.

A presidential edict asserted that reports from police indicated "perpetration of deeds really seditious by striking workers," and declared that the purpose of the movement was "to produce general paralysis of the nation's mercantile and ordinary life."

The president threatened to suspend constitutional guarantees and to declare martial law and a state of war unless the strike is brought to a quick end.

The word "seditious" in the edict was regarded by many Cubans as official confirmation of their view that the strike is a "passive resistance revolutionary movement."

From the protest 10 days ago of a few omnibus employers against what they called exorbitant fees for operating permits, the movement has increased so swiftly that today many transportation arteries as far east as Camaguey Province were blocked. It was estimated 20,000 workers in various lines of activities were on strike.

These included taxi drivers, demanding an increase in fares and lower gasoline prices; busmen, making new protests after their original demands were met, and street car men, who have extended a 24-hour sympathy strike. A definite movement also was under way to enlist railroad men and a new organization of railway workers declared for the strike in principle.

Closing of the foodstuffs market in Havana was announced and truckmen distributing bread, milk, beer and food staples said they were quitting work. Unhindered meat dealers announced they would handle no more meat from the "trust." Dairy men prepared to strike and bakers discussed joining the movement.

Laundry workers discussed the question of joining and a poll was taken by the union of retail men.

Dock workers also quit and there were no launches or ferries operating in Havana Harbor. Filling stations ceased selling gasoline in support of the transportation workers.

Publication of Havana newspapers also was expected to cease after a decision by printers, stereotypers, engravers and typesetting machine operators to quit work. Editorial workers planned to begin a strike against a new dress law.

Workers in Marianao (loggers) bricks from a construction job and built a barricade across the main street which soldiers later demolished. Many small stores in Vedado were closed but police forced them to reopen.

The communication pointed out that it was believed "the steel code is the first code which has been submitted to the President under the national industrial recovery act that contains definite and detailed provisions designed to remove from the industry to which it relates unfair and destructive competitive practices which have prevailed in the past, by regulating the manner in which members of the industry shall establish the prices for, and sell, their products."

The code, it was said, with an exception does not make any attempt to fix prices or to provide for any agreement or control of prices. The exception, Lamont noted, would give the board of directors power, when it was found that any base price was unfair, to require the member of the code which filed the list showing such unfair base price to file a new list showing a fair base price for such product at the hearing point on which the unfair price was based. If the offending member refused to file a new list, the board of directors would have the power to fix a fair base price.

Modified Pacts For Industries Are Authorized

The retail lumber and building materials dealers obtained a 40-hour week with exceptions for emergency and seasonal employment and with a minimum wage set by states or zones ranging from 30 cents in Alabama, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia to 45 cents in California, Illinois, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and upper peninsula of Michigan and the larger cities in several states. Wages of 35 and 40 cents an hour were provided in the rest of the territory.

An average 35-hour week was set up by the oil burner industry with a range from 32 to 40 hours, wages being set at 45 cents.

The fluid milk and ice cream industries were given a 45-hour week for factory and pasteurized plant workers and a 40-hour week for accounting, clerical and office help, subject to a 10 percent tolerance monthly.

A three hour a day work period was provided for minors between 13 and 14 years old.

Minimum wages were set at $7 to $12 a week depending on the population of the city, as in the president's re-employment agreement scale.

The printing industry agreement fixed a 40-hour work week for all mechanical employes with provision for overtime wages. The Printers' League section of New York employing Printers' Association, Inc., was given an eight-hour day with a maximum of 40 hours a week and time and one-half for overtime.

The toy industry also has a 40-hour week with exception for seasonal peaks and minimum wages of 30 cents an hour, or $12 a week for all except learners. The optical industry was given a 40-hour week with seasonal exceptions and with wages running from 25 to 40 cents an hour, depending on class of work done.

The paint industry obtained a maximum of 1088 hours for each 28-week period, the equivalent of 40 hours for 20 weeks and a maximum of 48 hours a week for six weeks.

PROVINCE FOR MANY WILD BIRDS

Establishment Of 10 Sanctuaries Has Resulted In Increase

OTTAWA—It is hard to believe that there is a vast untracked, almost unknown country east of the city of Quebec, inhabited by travelers although the ships of the world sail up and down its coast. It is familiar and appropriately known as "the North Shore"—the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence stretching for 1000 miles northward to the Strait of Belle Isle and the Labrador coast.

It is a wild and rock-bound coast, peopled at far-flung points by groups of British, French and Indian stock, who subsist as did their ancestors on fish and venison and the stores of the fur traders, who know naught of radio and motion pictures but can tell you at a glance if a boat is seaworthy or a sledge dog is worth the price asked for it.

But if this is "the great lone land" to the cities "down east," to the sea birds it is an earthly paradise where, uncollected by hunters, they can fill their rockeries with eggs and rear their young with ease and grace, gorge themselves with capelin, and fill the air with trailing clouds of snow.

No less than 10 sanctuaries, most of them islands or groups of islands, were set aside by the Canadian Government under authority of the Migratory Bird Convention Act, in 1925, for the purpose of insuring secure nesting sites in perpetuity. Since then the feathered population has increased steadily until, in 1929, when a census was taken by Harrison F. Lewis, chief bird warden for the district, it numbered more than 100,000.

Although this year a passenger steamer runs up the coast, the most satisfactory way to visit the bird sanctuaries is by small motor-boat or canoe. From Birch Islands to Bradore Bay every preserve has its own distinctions of topography and bird life and is worth a personal call, preferably under the guidance of an ornithologist. Watchshow for instance is but a straggling series of small, bare islets and yet this is the chief home of the famous elder duck, warmer of countless beds.

Fog Island is the nesting ground for excellence of the common murre and double-crested cormorant. On Wolf Bay sanctuary the majority of the population consists of puffins and razor-billed nuzz. On the two small islands, Ferris and Greenly, which make up the land area of Bradore Bay bird sanctuary, at the western end of the Strait of Belle Isle, there are more nesting seabirds in the proper season than in all the rest of these sanctuaries combined.

The latter island, by the way, enjoyed a blaze of glory for the first and probably the last time in 1928 when the German trans-Atlantic airplane Bremen landed on its pond, no doubt startling the grotesquely dignified little puffins out of their innumerable burrows.

Of all the webbed tribes perhaps the big dark-backed, white-breasted cormorants appeal most to the stranger's imagination. Going ashore on Wapitagan (Indian name for cormorant) one finds every foot of the rock covered by the birds and their bulky nests. While the parents step clumsily out of arm's reach the youngsters scream vociferously for food, thrusting out their long snake-like necks and small heads.

It was at Cape Whittle, opposite the island, that the naturalist Audubon "had the pleasure of coming immediately upon a cormorant's nest. . . The mother bird was on her nest with three young; I was unobserved by her

Search For Rare Poisons Kept Gives Excitement

MIAMI, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A far-flung search for a rare poison that developed into a wild drive reminiscent of gold rush, and the myriad human types of a Dutch Guiana city were the thrills of 21,000-mile jaunt brought to Clayton Knight, war filer and illustrator, and Forrest Wilson, author of several books.

The men arrived here last night by Pan-American airways plane to end aerial wanderings that began in Miami Apr. 20 and took them to every country south of the United States with the exception of Colombia and Bolivia.

"The rush" for the poison was watched by Knight and Wilson at Para, Brazil, after they had needed for several days men equipped for the jungles unobtrusively drifting from the city into the back lands.

Then, suddenly, a wild rush began.

First, believing gold had been discovered, the visitors learned later that the numbers of plants with a root from which a rare poison is extracted had been found in the back lands. Wilson said they were told the poison supplies a medicinal spray for citrus fruits and is harmless to humans although deadly to cold-blooded animals and insects.

More Achieved Than Ever Before By Use Of Atomic Energy

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—By orderly process, a greater change has taken place in government than has ever been achieved before in history by force of arms.

Senator James F. Byrnes declared in an address before the South Carolina Bar Association.

Judge John J. Farner, of Charlotte, judge of the Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals, also spoke before the association on "Liberty Under the Law," in which he cited the growth of socialistic thought, centralization of governmental powers and attacks on the judicial branches of state and nation as the greatest dangers of constitutional government.

Senator Byrnes outlined the policies of the Roosevelt Administration since the inauguration. He called attention to the emergency acts necessitated by the bank holiday and other other acts of Congress in furthering a program of restoration.

The Senator praised the temper of the people, warning that in all history the people have demonstrated that they are fundamentally law-abiding. From now on, he said the nation will be a changed nation.

"We are going through a crisis in the history of our country," said Judge Farner. "On every hand voices are raised demanding new and untried things of government. Those who are hostile to our institutions are loud in proclaiming these have failed; and even those who are friendly are insisting that government afford relief for the evils under which the social order is suffering the ashes or pains. He will advise us to what also with and type of shoe each person should wear, and will answer any question put to him in regard to foot pain the social structure which

LAUREL LESSONS

It has been common to hear "If I were asked to designate in one phrase that which may possibly be called the genius of the American people, I would without hesitation reply that it is their passion for what is termed 'constitutional liberty,' the belief in individual freedom, in the freedom, in the sovereignty of the individual soul. . . We have recognized, of course, the necessity for social organization and that true liberty is to be found only in conforming to the laws of civilized society; but we have held that the function of the state is not to control or direct the development but to provide social conditions under which the individual can achieve his own development and work out his own destiny."

Important changes designed to expedite justice in the criminal courts of South Carolina were proposed by William G. Sirrine, Greenville attorney, in his address before the convention.

The proposed reforms provided that: Circuit judges be permitted to comment upon testimony in charging the jury 12 or 12 jurors may convict and thus prevent mistrials; solicitors may present defendants without grand jury indictment; defendants may waive trial, plead guilty between terms of court and begin immediately to serve their sentences; the Supreme Court be not obligated to grant new trials in cases of error by the court except where the error amounts to a denial of justice; all cases shall be subject to jury duty.

FLOORWALKERS- IN - PRINT

SUAVE . . . courteous . . . inviting you to "Step this way, please," the advertisements in this paper are floorwalkers-in-print. They show you the way to merchandise that serves your needs, and saves your money.

Do you read these advertisements every day? Make it a regular habit. Do not skip a day or an advertisement, lest some priceless opportunity be lost. Read even the smallest advertisements and the smallest print. Gems of rare worth are often buried where you have to dig for them! Size alone is not an infallible guide to value.

Read the advertisements every day, with pencil and paper at hand, to list those things you wish to look up when you start to the stores. It is true but true, that this method saves time and saves money.

Read the advertisements. Read them and heed them

Mrs. Roosevelt To Lead Campaign In Welfare Efforts

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has accepted the chairmanship of the national committee of the Mobilization for Human Needs, which directs the annual relief drive of 32 national welfare organizations.

Mrs. Roosevelt, whose appointment was announced yesterday by Tom D. Baker, chairman of the national committee, will be the first President's wife to head actively a national committee devoted to welfare activities.

"I have accepted the chairmanship because of my conviction that the support of our community welfare services throughout the country is an essential factor in the recovery and maintenance of our normal American life," said Mrs. Roosevelt in a statement.

"With the assumption by local state and national governments of such large responsibility for purely material relief of distress, it is important to make perfectly clear the exact limitation of these government services and the very large and indispensable function of our voluntary social services in such community work."

"Our national women's committees plan to secure an organization in each community to co-operate with the local fund raising bodies in a preparatory campaign of education and interpretation as to the imperative necessity for maintaining our usual voluntary welfare organizations."

The campaign will take place in 400 communities which obtain funds for welfare work through community chest organizations.

BILLY'S UNCLE

OMGOSH BILLY - I'LL HAVE TO RUSH RIGHT BACK TO TOWN!

WHATSA MATTER - Y'GETTIN' SEASICK?

WONDER WHAT TIME THE NEXT TRAIN GOES?

I THINK IT'S GONE!

WHAT'S THE RUSH ABOUT ANYHOW?

WHY I BELIEVE I FORGOT TO TURN OFF THE ELECTRIC IRON - THE HOUSE MAY BE ON FIRE!

WE'LL DON'T WORRY! - THE FIRE COULDN'T GET VERY FAR BECAUSE I FORGOT TO TURN OFF THE WATER IN THE BATHTUB!

HERE, BILLY - IF I GIVE YOU A QUARTER WILL YOU WATCH MY BABY WHILE I'M IN THE STORE!

SAY I'D BEAR A QUARTER TO WATCH HIM FOR A WEEK!

WOW!

SH-SH! SH-SH-SH-SH!

THERE, THERE! WHAT MADE HIM CRY LIKE THAT! - PROBABLY HE'S HUNGRY!

I DON'T THINK HE CAN BE HUNGRY BECAUSE -

- HE JUST ATE THE RIBBONS OF HIS BONNET AN' A BANANA!

TUBBY

He Knows Runt's Financial Standing.

HEY, D'YA WANNA SEE SOMETHIN' SWELL? - LOOK! THE DANDY 'CORDON I GOT, I MADE THIRTY-FIVE CENTS WITH IT ALREADY - TEN CENTS FOR PLAYIN' AN' TWENTY-FIVE FOR STOOPIN'!

GEE, D'YA WANNA SELL IT, TUBBY? - I'LL GIVE YA A QUARTER FOR IT.

AWRIGHT.

I ONLY GOT A NICKEL NOW - I'LL OWE YA THE REST.

WELL, GIMMIE IT AN' I'LL SELL IT TO YOU FOR A NICKEL, THEN.

WHAT DIDJA SELL IT TO HIM FOR A NICKEL FOR, WHEN HE OFFERED YOU A QUARTER FOR IT?

HE WOULD'NT FOND ME THE THEASY CENTS ANYWAY - AN I'AUT GONNA GIVE ANYBODY A CHANCE TO BEAT ME OUTTA MY MONEY.

TUBBY

Isn't Runt the Old Fox.

COME ON ALONG TO THE CANDY STORE TUBBY, MY UNCLE GAVE ME ANOTHER NICKEL.

IT'S A GOOD JOKE ON MY UNCLE, HE THINKS I DON'T KNOW MONEY AN' WHEN HE GIVES ME SOME HE HOLDS OUT A NICKEL AN' A DIME AN' ASKS ME WHICH ONE I'D RATHER HAVE - I ALWAYS TAKE THE NICKEL.

WHY YOU BIG DUMBBELL! DONCHA KNOW A DIME IS TWICE AS MUCH AS A NICKEL?

SURE I KNOW IT - BUT IF I TOOK THE DIME HE'D STOP OFFERIN' THEM TO ME.
