all times in the Bay of Florida east of a line running in a south-easterly direction from a point three miles west of Northwest Cape Sabie to Little Pine Key. During hours of darkness no vessel may approach any bridge or conduct on the Overseas (Miami-Key West) highway nearer than one mile.

In the Gulf of Mexico fishing will be permitted only during daylight hours, except that night fishing will be permitted in the following areas:

1. A strip extending northward from Northwest Cape Sabie, Monroe county, to the northern tip of Longboat Key, outside Sarasota bay, not more than three miles from the coastline at any point.
2. A similar three-mile strip extending northward from East-Cricle to Deer Island, near New Port Richey.
3. A five-mile wide strip extending northward from Deer Island to Horseshoe point, just above the town of Cedar Key.
4. Another three-mile strip extending northward from Horsehoe point to the St. Marks range front light, the St. Marks range being the northern limit of this area.

To permit fishermen to take full advantage of daylight in areas where night operations are prohibited, 11 previously designated overnight anchorage points have been retained at Flagler Beach, Cape Canaveral, Manatee keys, Dry Tortugas, Sarasota, Egmont key, Big Hank key (15 miles northwest of Anclote key), an area 12 miles west of Chassabowitaka point, an area nine miles west of Horseshoe point. St. George sound.

Operators of fishing craft must obtain from Coast Guard captains of ports official identification cards to be carried at all times, but which do not constitute a license to fish.

Before proceeding to sea through an inlet or waterway or entering from sea, fishing vessels must report to Coast Guard examination vessels, announce the areas to which they are proceeding and obtain permission to depart or enter. Except in cases of extreme necessity, vessels must not enter or leave ports without a permit and survey except by special permission.

Symon Gould Says Meat Rationing Is Meat To Him

Meat rationing, says Symon Gould, Secretary of the Vegetarian Society of New York, is "heaven-sent."

"We vegetarians are annoyed by all the fuss over the lack of meat," says Mr. Gould. "You won't starve on a diet of vegetables, fruits, milk, cheese and butter. Supplemented by proteins from the bean and nut families, that's about all your body needs."

Anyway, that's what the true vegetarian eats. And says Mr. Gould, some of the foremost men of our times, including George Bernard Shaw, Gandhi, H.G. Wells and Maeterlinck, are vegetarians.

Americans are considered the greatest meat eaters in the world—that is, all except the 100,000 Vegetarian Society members of the same.

"But right to our own country," continues Mr. Gould, "we have a perfect example of the effects of wrong diet. Heart trouble, bad teeth and rheumatism are prevalent, even in the young."

Vegetarians use the experience of Great Britain as a talking point. Since consumption of meat has been reduced to a fraction there, Mr. Gould asserts, the people are healthier and statistics indicate that decrease in mortality has more than offset the loss of lives by bombing.

"Many people," says Mr. Gould, "feel that it is important to eat large quantities of meat to maintain strength. Actually, however, the majority of the human race are vegetarians. Some have exceptional strength and endurance. The Chinese soldier can march 35 miles a day on a handful of rice. The Manchukuo farmer tills from dawn to dusk living mainly on thosy bean."

Farm Tools Repair Class Inaugurated

A class in farm machinery repair, limited to 15 members, which farmers may attend in order to learn more fully how to keep their tractors, tractors and other farm equipment in repair, will be formed to meet two nights a week at the Seminole High School farm building, Alex R. Johnson, director of the local Rural War Production Program, stated today.

James S. Webb, who owns a repair shop on the West Side, will instruct the class which will be held from 8:00 until 11:00 o'clock on Monday and Friday evenings, starting on Friday, Apr. 16.

"All persons in this class," said Mr. Johnson, "will be privileged to bring machinery to the school farm and repair it. Full equipment for welding and machine shop work will be provided."

Mr. Johnson pointed out that this course would be of special value to farmers in that there is no farm machinery, and replacements are hard to get.

Babcock Aircraft Takes Local Trainees

Recent calls by the Babcock Aircraft Corporation at DeLand for trainees in aircraft woodworkings have resulted in a number of vacancies in both the day and the evening class at the Sanford School for War Production Workers, according to H. A. Speir, instructor.

Most of the trainees who have accepted positions, have gone to the Babcock plant, Mr. Speir said, but he added that other calls had come from Tampa, West Palm Beach, and Jacksonville. Civil service inquiries offering salaried positions had been received, he stated, but for this there had been no trainees available.

"Persons between the ages of 18 and 30, are preferable for training in aircraft woodworking."

Housewives Are Asked To Salvage Tin Cans

"Tin cans are going to war," was the assertion today of C. G. Campbell, associate executive secretary for Florida of the War Production Board, who with H. O. Burkman, also of the WPB, conferred this morning with the Salvage Committee of the Seminole County Defense Council, in the office of the chairman, C. R. Dawson.

"Conservation of tin is one of the most vital needs of the war effort," said Mr. Campbell. "Housewives in this county are urged by the WPB to save all tin cans, fill and paint correctly. These should be washed, labels removed, tops and bottoms bent in, and cans flattened by stepping on them."

"Take these cans to your grocer," he concluded. Members of the Salvage Committee attending the meeting were Mr. Dawson, Mrs. Daisy Knox, chairman of Home and Community Services, R. C. Williams, Nod Smith of the American Legion, and Mrs. Guida Wilson, county home demonstration agent.

Nursery School Need Investigated Here

Mrs. Marion C. Doloy, nursery school specialist of the State Board of Education, today investigated the results of the county survey made by block leaders, in regard to the needs of nursery care for children of working mothers.

"While results of the survey are slow in coming in, I believe that on the basis of what we have, I will write application for a small number of units to be established by means of the Latham fund in Washington," she said.

"It is very important that children of working mothers be cared for," she said and addressing a vocational school program for school age children during the summer months.

Supt. T. W. Lawton, with whom Mrs. Doloy conferred this morning, urged that mothers who wished to have their children placed in nursery school, confer with him at once.

There are 679 windows in the Capitol at Washington.

he stated, but added that due consideration would be given to those younger (if of serious temperament) and to those past that age limit if their health will warrant the training and the service.

This vocational training, he said, is free, and designed for but one purpose: war production. However, he added this training in mechanics would be of value after the war.

Canning Kitchen Turns Out 7,734 Pints Of Food

More than 7,734 pints of food have been canned at the Sanford Canning Kitchen at 114 West Second Street during the period from Jan. 20 to Apr. 1, thus breaking all its previous records, Mrs. Guida Wilson, county home demonstration agent, stated today.

"Mrs. B.A. Howard, supervisor of the kitchen, has used her equipment to the best of advantage, and taken care of the needs of all who wanted to can food there," she added.

"New equipment," she pointed out, "inspired to meet the demand for canning, which has resulted in making all the canning kitchens of the County very busy."

"Mrs. Willie Mae McConaha, supervisor of the Orlando Canning Kitchen, has reported that 3,000 pints of food have been canned there. Mrs. Wilson stated:

"The Lake Monroe Kitchen which opened Feb. 22, also added, has canned 786 pints. Mrs. Edna Sealy is the volunteer supervisor for this kitchen. No salary is paid to her."

"The Geneva Kitchen," is located at the Community Hall and serves the whole community. This kitchen is different from all the others. There is no supervisor, but anyone can go to the kitchen and can. This community has been carrying on this program for eight years, and during that time not one piece of equipment has been lost. A group will get together and go there for a day's work. They have a good time, and accomplish a lot, having during April, canned 910 pints."

Stinnett Insists South's Senators Rule The Roost

Whenever Southern Democrats Agree, They Are Powerful

WASHINGTON.—The other day I received a letter from a... Why can't you explain why many Washington commentators consider the "rebellion" of Southern Democrats so important in making legislation?

That certainly is a legitimate question. The south, even with its Democratic states, is the most potent single force in the legislative branch of government today.

Given any one issue which Southern Democrats oppose, such as anti-lynch legislation, and there isn't a cmg; cmfw mfn through. Given any other issue which they will string along...

There is more to this than party voting. The root of it, in my opinion, goes back to three things: (1) Our legislative branch of government is primarily a committee form of government; (2) Control of committees is based on seniority; and (3) The south, either through political wisdom or force of habit, sends many of its Representatives and Senators "in perpetuity."

Five of the first seven ranking Senators come from the south. In the House, seven of the 11 oldest members in point of service come from the same area. With two exceptions in the House and three in the Senate, all these men are Democrats.

I don't know one of these Democrats in either chamber who isn't chairman of some important committee or otherwise a respectable leader in the majority ranks.

Of the 33 standing committees of the Senate, 19 have southern Democratic chairmen. These include such powerful committees as Rules (Byrd of Virginia); Appropriations (Cannon of Missouri); Finance (Cannon of Missouri); Foreign Relations (Connally of Texas); Military Affairs (Reynolds of North Carolina); Naval Affairs (Cannon of Missouri); and Appropriations (Cannon of Missouri).

These are some of the key men who carry the sledges when it comes to hammering out legislation sponsored by the Administration or any of its departments or agencies.

These also are the men who, if they are not in the majority, can carry the sledges when it comes to hammering out legislation sponsored by the Administration or any of its departments or agencies.

Japanese Follow Example Set By Ancient Mongols

They Killed All Enemies In Their Plan To Rule The World

AP Features—Let Japan stand as a symbol of the Good Little Man; let the United States stand as a symbol of the Good Big Man; and the burning international question simmers down to this—Can a Good Little Man beat a Good Big Man? The answer is YES—if the place to get that answer is your history book. You can get it again and again if you want. Take the case of the Mongols. The Mongols, like the Japanese, were Asiatics. They had natural resources that were pitifully small. They lived on the flat grasslands of Central Asia—a lonely, half group of fighting, quarrelsome clans. Their chief assets were their own hardihood and their ponies.

Like the Japanese, they were bold and rascally. In the Thirteenth century, into a compact, fanatical, purposeful body of fighting men and women. The untaught genius who did it was Genghis Khan, greatest of conquerors. Like the Japanese, they considered that their destiny was to rule all peoples. And they started out to do it.

Partly by chance, partly by active intellectual effort, they evolved a fighting machine simply beyond comparison for the time. It consisted entirely of cavalry, which provided maximum mobility. It got devastating fire power by accurate bombardment in an era when the other fellows were using bows and arrows.

A khan died, the princes in the field went back home with their generals to choose a new one. There was so far away that a journey there meant calling off guards—guards—China was saved perhaps by a wise administrator who tempered Genghis Khan's passion for mass murder, and by the more enlightened policies of some of the later khans. Gradually the fervor of the Mongols died. In Egypt the resurgent Turks routed them. On the Pacific an expedition against Japan was aborted into the sea. In Russia and in China after long centuries the natives stamped down the hordes.

Congress Wants Share In Post-War Planning | Probing Committees Seen As Brake on White House

By CHARLES F. STEWART, Central Press Columnist

CONGRESS IS growing obviously jealous of executive planning of national and international reconstruction after the war. It generally is agreed that current decisions, more or less of a military nature, have to be arrived at in too much of a hurry to permit administrative consultation with the country's legislature. It is argued on Capitol Hill, however, that this does not apply to the adoption of post-war policies. Republican lawmakers practically are a unit on the subject and enough Democrats concur with them to make it a reasonable guess that the two groups, added together, amount to a majority—on that issue, anyway.

The legislative element doesn't exactly accuse the executive one of trying, deliberately and intentionally, to encroach upon the former's authority.

The theory is, rather, that the executive folk, somewhat absentmindedly, are taking advantage of wartime conditions to establish a rule of their own, that will lap over into peacetime, and make a totalitarianism of the country without our realization of it.

To guard against such a development, if possible, congressional committees are being created at a tremendous rate—probing and probing executive activities.

Senator Walter F. George of Georgia is chairman of one—to dig into post-war economies. Senator Harry F. Byrd and Carter Glass are chairmen of similar committees. In a fashion these chairmen are pro-administration, because the label is Democratic, and so is theirs.

But how much does a label, as currently translated, count for? The latest controversy is over food allocation among the Allied democracies.

It applies to now and next winter and spring, if the war lasts that long, and it will apply to some time subsequently.

England will have to be fed from the U. S. A., naturally. Russia is adequately productive. So is China. Yet both will be badly disorganized.

The overrun nations can't be left to starve, either. Neither can the Italians or Spanish. It simply wouldn't do to let them die of starvation.

Late in April there is to be an international conference to discuss this problem. The prospective beneficiaries realize in advance that they have GOT to be fed. The enemy realizes the same thing, from THEIR standpoint. If they are in the soup by that time, it will be up to us to provide for them. We can spare them all we like in the meantime, but we know darned well that it is up to us to attend to it—assuming that they admit they are beaten.

That probably is a little too soon, but it is due to follow. And when it does, ours will be the breadbasket—for both of them.

The question up to congress is—Production, distribution and finance. Production is simple. Can we get away with it? Distribution, for local purposes.

Consumption is the answer. And Finance AND—economic—plan means! Add appetites! We've got production, distribution and finance. Executive-men want to regulate production, distribution and finance. Legislation also wants to regulate all three of them. They are pretty intimate rules of economic life and a lot of folk don't believe they should be legislated.

It is the old "production" story. It is an a broader case, though. It isn't merely moral; it's economic.

An almost indefinite number of new regulations are being imposed quite regardless of consumer opinion. It makes the lawmakers or They don't like them even temporarily, but they are afraid to say so.

Your Part in the Meat and Fats Rationing Program

OFFICIAL OPA INFORMATION

Rationed foods include: fresh, frozen, cured, smoked and canned beef, veal, pork, lamb, mutton and all meat products derived from them including all variety meats such as liver, heart, kidney, brains, sweetbreads and all sausage. All canned fish, in glass or tin. All cheese and its derivatives except cheeses such as cottage, cream, bleu, and liederkranz. All butter, lard, margarine, shortening, salad and cooking oils, except mayonnaise and salad dressings.

HERE'S HOW YOU SHOP WITH RED STAMPS to get meat... cheese... butter shortening... and other foods rationed under this program

These foods are also rationed by the "point" system. They may be obtained only with the red stamps in War Ration Book Two. You may use the red stamps from all War Ration Books Two issued to your household.

"A" stamps became valid March 29, and a new row of stamps becomes good each week on Sunday. "B" the second week, "C" the third, and "D" the fourth. Stamps A, B, C, and D will expire April 30.

The official going value chart—posted in stores and published in newspapers—will give point values per pound for all these foods. A point value table in ounces is included in this chart.

These foods will be available in small quantities per pound by the Government. You may obtain any of them with any valid red stamps of the right value. Dealers can give "change" in 1 point red stamps only.

The farmer's position in the Red Stamp rationing program is unique. In a sense, he is a consumer, but he may also be a slaughterer, a wholesaler and a retailer. Each classification and activity is governed by special regulations. You will be expected to know what these regulations are so read carefully the information given below.

FARMERS WHO SLAUGHTER their own livestock for their own consumption, or for sale to other consumers (in an essentially unregulated market), do not have to surrender ration stamps. Farmers who purchase rationed foods must give up stamps, just as any other consumer.

FARMERS WHO SELL or trade their own livestock must surrender ration stamps for the amount of the rationed food they sell or trade.

YOU MUST COLLECT STAMPS for all rationed foods sold by you. These stamps must be turned in to the local Ration Board with an official report form after the sale or to a person.

FOOD VALUE CHARTS are available in all War Ration Books. These charts will show you the point value of each food item and the amount of stamps you must give up for each item.

Four Wise Men Give Good Advice On How To Live

Dr. Butler Says You Can Do 12 Months Work In 10, Not 12

Do you want to live to be useful and effective after 80? Then consider these tips from four wise old men:

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, credits his effectiveness at 80 to a program he follows faithfully. It was given him by a physician after hard work left the educator in his early thirties.

"He said you best was of the opinion that if I went on as I was going, I would use up my strength in less than 10 years and I'd need my nervous system," Dr. Butler recalled recently. "Then he gave me the following definite advice which I have followed as scrupulously as possible for nearly half a century:

"I do not get up before 8:30 in the morning, dress and have your breakfast slowly, read the morning newspaper, walk for fifteen or twenty minutes in the open air and reach your office about 10:15 or 10:30. Then work as hard as you please until five o'clock; whether you stop for lunch or not is unimportant. At five o'clock return home, undress and lie down for an hour. Go to bed, psychologically as well as physically, do this in a darkened room. If you do not sleep, never mind. Eat your dinner slowly and then pass the evening as you like. This will mean going up to your work by an inclined plane and coming down from an inclined plane, instead of getting up and hitting it in the face, or jumping from work to dinner."

Insect and Disease Control for the Victory Garden

By JACK C. RUSSELL

Many of the Spring vegetable crops in this part of the state require continuous close observation and an occasional insecticide application for protection against the ravages of the ever increasing insect pests. The importance of close daily observation to detect insect infestations cannot be over emphasized. The sooner control is started after an insect makes its appearance in your garden, the easier it is to bring it under control with a minimum of damage. In this respect the control of plant ailments is analogous to the control of diseases in animals in that the earlier the diagnosis and treatment started, the better the prognosis. The presence of a vegetable crop in the garden is a constant invitation to the pest. Insect pests of food crops may be divided into three primary groups according to the way they damage the plant or fruit. These groups are: (a) leaf feeding or chewing insects, (b) sucking or puncturing insects, and (c) boring or tunneling insects.

In general the leaf feeding insects may be controlled by applying a stomach poison such as arsenate of lead to the plant so that during the process of feeding, the insect will swallow enough of the poison to kill it. This is a dangerous practice, however, where the exposed plants are to be used for human consumption as many of the stomach poisons are also poisonous to man. This makes the use of non-poisonous contact insecticides, such as those containing pyrethrum, necessary on certain plants where chewing insects are feeding.

The leaf feeding insects described in this article are the ones that the Victory Gardeners of Central Florida will most likely have to contend with this Spring. Insects damaging the plants by sucking the plant juices or boring into the fruit or plant parts will be discussed at a later date.

BEAN LEAF ROLLER—This caterpillar will roll up the edges of the bean leaves after cutting a slit in them. The presence of this pest is easily detected by the rolled edges of the leaves. From these shelters the caterpillar eats the leaves, leaving large areas of leaf surface where the plant has made considerable growth. Their characteristic habit of cutting plants off at the surface of the ground is troublesome only when the plants are small. Control—Some of the cabbage worms. Also the poison bait recommended last issue.

TOMATO HORN WORM—When mature this caterpillar is about three inches long, bright green in color and has a red horn on the posterior extremity. These are usually located in the garden by the large eaten patches on the tomato plant. Control—The most efficient means of control in the home garden is by hand picking. Methods of Termites and Related Insects.

There are several species of caterpillars that attack turnips and mustard crops during the Spring and Summer months. Some are the same species that attack cabbage. Their presence is made known by the partly eaten leaves.

Control—Because both turnip and mustard tops are eaten as soon as they are young, it is not possible to spray them at any time. Very good control will result in weekly applications of some commercial pyrethrum contact spray.

They Give Their Lives

Beginning today the Treasury Department, together with the active sponsorship of the American newspapers, is undertaking the most colossal financial deal ever transacted in the history of the world.

This is almost as much money as has been raised through the sale of War Bonds and Stamps since before Pearl Harbor and it is hoped to put this drive over in the next three weeks.

But great as it is, only enough will be raised to carry on this war for a little less than three months.

Italian Allies?

The story of the two Britons in Tunisia, mere medical orderlies, who captured 98 Italian enlisted men and a major without firing a shot, is funny, of course.

And it wasn't the first time, by a long shot. Probably tens of thousands of Italians have surrendered to the British in the same spirit.

It is unnecessary, and probably wrong, to assume that the surrendering Italians are cowards.

Instead of ridiculing them, it might be much wiser if the British and Americans would deliberately invite their cooperation before the war lasts much longer.

Another moron - in - the - swimming - pool story. This time, when the hero starts a dive and a bystander calls his attention to the fact that there's no water in the tank, he says: "It's all right. I can't swim anyway."

And there's the gal who thinks that lowering the draft age is just like putting money in the bank for the government. Every time they lower it, she says: "Uncle Sam gets a couple million more bucks."

From here to Victory, everyone has vital tasks to perform.

"With a soldier, it's fighting. With a civilian, it's backing him up in every conceivable way.

Gubbins-Wathen Team Wins Dance Contest

After watching three "rounds" of pep live and rag-cutting, the Gubbins-Wathen team selected Betty Wathen and Seaman Alan Gubbins as the jitterbug Friday night. Runners up were Lillian Walsh and Seaman Sam Story. Both are attached to the Naval Air Station and are members of the "U.S. Navy" and "U.S. Marine" style jitterbug figures.

About 150 people attended the dance and after the judges eliminated three of the six couples who entered, the contest spectators made such a din of noise with their applause as the Gubbins-Wathen team danced their way to the judges' mind as to be winners.

Miss Wathen, Defense Council secretary, wore a yellow flowered chiton that swished and swung as she twirled, with her feet hardly touching the floor. Miss Walsh, a high school student, wore a white blouse and a yellow skirt. She was a shining bliss of color as she danced in the role rhythm of the USO orchestra composed of high school students.

Public Is Invited To Pan-American Day

BEAUTY HINTS

By BETTY CLARK
AP Beauty Editor

Dear Housewives:
Make the most of everything. You hear that all around, as it strikes at beauty too.

Times have changed. No more afternoons at the beauty salon. You're buckling down to your own housework, cooking, gardening, washing, ironing and so on.

But don't let it tell on you. Poor sleep, furrowed forehead, tense mouth, skin prematurely dry and wrinkled from a bad case of war nerves can make you old before your time. Be on the alert for them as the beauty salons they are. Give more thought to facial maintenance, daily habit and posture. Deep breathing which brightens the skin, is largely dependent on straight shoulders and head held high.

Always, all make the most of your bath for relaxation. Don't think of it as just a quick way to get clean. It can be so much more. Yes, a beauty bath, if you please!

First tuck your curls up and go to work on your face. Warm water and a soap that has refreshing, deep-pore cleansing qualities and a fragrance of lavender (going back to granny's remembrance of lavender is never beauty aid!) Lather your face as you do, sans washcloth. Rinse and dry thoroughly, then smooth on generously a night

Connie Mack Is Looking Great But Team Isn't

Their Pitching Isn't Good, Catching Fair, Batting Poor

AP Features Sports Editor WILMINGTON, Del. — Connie Mack, baseball's octogenarian manager, is looking fine this spring, and it's too bad you can't say the same about his ball club.

The tall straight tutor of the Philadelphia Athletics doesn't appear to be past 80, an old man starting his 14th season in the American league. His hair is snow white, yes, but you'd take him to be maybe 15 years younger. He has good color, and there's a bright twinkle in the keen blue eyes that sit well back in his face.

Connie Mack is a good conversationalist and, as he sits in the dugout at the A's practice field here, he keeps up a running stream of talk with the players and baseball writers, remembering something that happened for a year, and then quickly jumping 30 years back to tell about a spring training trip through Texas, or a funny anecdote about the unprintable left-hander Rube Waddell.

Mr. Mack sits on a pillow on the rough board bench of the dugout. You glance at his straight back and notice your own curved posture and admire the old gentleman's erect carriage. Mr. Mack, that's what everyone calls him. Connie seems to like that name for a man with Mr. Mack's age and quiet dignity and extreme courtesy.

He likes a joke, even if it's on him. One of the writers in the dugout was saying that Roberto Estalella, the Cuban outfielder obtained from Washington, had never played on a first division team. Roberto says he's always in the "second or third division."

Mr. Mack chuckled quietly and remarked: "Well, he's come to the right place to keep that record intact."

Mr. Mack seldom moves from his dugout seat but he keeps a close watch on the field. He'll lean forward at the crack of a bat to see how far one of his players blasted one. Or he'll motion to Earl, his son, to do this or that. Earl is in uniform and actually directs the team's drills.

The long, lean manager is a much more interesting subject than his ball club, which seems doomed for another eighth place finish. In fact, the war probably will remove Mack's lingering hopes for another pennant winner before he leaves baseball. It would take the better part of another decade to build the A's into a pennant contender.

The A's have a young chap, Irving Hall, from Wilmington, Pa., at shortstop. Pete Suder, last year's shortstop, is at second. Dick Siebert, perhaps the club's best performer, is at first and Eddie Mayo at third. Mayo had previous unsuccessful trials with the Giants and Braves.

Bob Johnson, the A's best hitter and outfielder for the last decade, has been traded to Washington for infielder Jimmy Fofahl and outfielder Estalella. The Cuban, an inconsistent batter who raps a long ball when he connects, probably will handle one outfield spot. There are five other flycatchers—Jo Jo White, back to the majors from Seattle; John Weis, up from Buffalo; Elmer Valo, who played regularly a year ago; James Tyack from Little Rock; and Felix Mackiewicz from Wilmington.

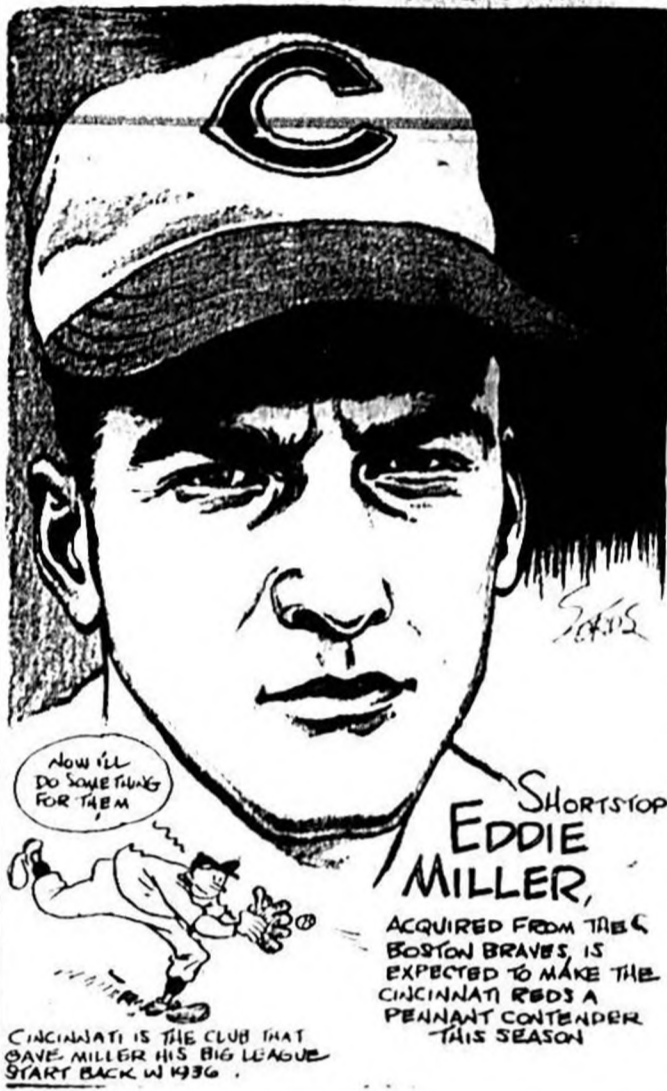

The catching will be handled by Hal Wagner, assisted by Earle Brucker and Bob Swift. Three tossers from last year—Luman Harris and Roger Wolf—are on deck. No one knows what help may come from the promising group of new twirlers. These include Jesse Flores, from Los Angeles; John Burrows, a Wilmington lefty; Don Black, from Petersburg, Va., and Sam Lowry, and Talmadge Abernathy from Wilmington.

Frankly, the A's may be just pushovers for the other American league clubs. It's a tough break for a grand old man like Connie.

DFC Award Is Presented To Lieut. Coley

The permanent citation of the Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded Lieut. Vernon J. Coley, Jr., U.S.N., in recognition of heroism and extraordinary achievement during a raid on enemy Japanese shipping the night of Oct. 22, 1942.

Signed by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, the citation and the Distinguished Flying Cross were presented Lieut. Coley by Commander F. M. Hughes following inspection of the station personnel March 29.

Lieut. Coley was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross "For heroism and extraordinary achievement as Commander of a Patrol Plane during a raid on enemy Japanese shipping on the night of Oct. 22, 1942. By skillful planning and bold execution, Lieut. Coley launched an assembly of long-range torpedoes and bombs, and secured a direct hit on an enemy battleship and a very large Japanese transport, resulting in the destruction of these vessels and the capture of a large amount of enemy property."

Lieut. Coley's record of devotion to duty maintained with utter regard of personal safety was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Navy.

Yanks And Cards Are Selected As Pennant Winners

But Dodgers And Indians Given Chance To Steal The Show

By DILLON GRAHAM AP Features Sports Editor NEW YORK — With the draft winds blowing furiously this spring, it's really a stab in the dark to try to pick the major league baseball pennant winners.

Nothing won't decide the races this year. Neither will pitching or fielding finesse. The draft boards will.

The majors have already been hard hit by Army and Navy call, and many more players will drop the khaki or the blue before fall. Every team has some key men who are IA now and may be beckoned anytime. The two teams that best weather these draft summons will win the championships.

On the basis of all-round strength as the 1943 season opens, your correspondent, the only professional sports writer to visit all 16 major league training camps, likes the Yankees and the Cardinals.

The Yanks look like a sure thing in the American league but the Cardinals might be tripped in the National by the Dodgers. (Cincinnati) may develop into a threat, too.

As I see it, this is the way the teams shape up: American League — Cardinals, Dodgers, Reds, Cubs, Giants, Pirates, Braves, Phils. National League — Yankees, Indians, Red Sox, Tigers, Browns, Senators, White Sox, Athletics. Excellent Pitching.

Both the Dodgers and the Cardinals have excellent pitching. Brooklyn seems to have an edge in power but St. Louis has a big margin in speed. There's not much gallop in the Brooklyn roster. The older Brooklyn players may survive the draft longer than St. Louis' youngsters and this might swing the pennant to Flatbush.

The Dodgers will miss Reiser and Reese. Reiser and Reese while the Cardinals will find the going more difficult without Slaughter and Moore and Beasley. Service calls will not do much damage at Cincinnati. The Reds still have crack pitching, with Bucky Walters, Johnny Vander Meer, Ray Starr and Elmer Fiddle. Eddie Sawyer, shortstop will tighten the infield, but Manager Bill McKechnie is wondering where he's going to get power.

The Cubs may nose out the Giants for a first division berth. Paul Derringer should aid the hurling corps which with Claude Passeau, Bill Lee, Lon Warneke and several good recruits, stacks up as better than the Giants' group topped by Cliff Melton, Cagie Ebbell and Bill Lohman. Lou Novikoff, who found the range late last year, may develop into one of the loop's better hitters.

Hans Becker and Eddie Sanky from Milwaukee give the Cubs a better infield. The Giants could surprise but you can't expect too much of a club that lost Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall, Babe Young, Hank Danning, Harold Schumacher and Bob Carpenter. Experiences may help Pirates' outfielders, Huck Geary may strengthen the infield and the pitching may show improvement, even though Ken Heintzleman was lost, but I can't see the Pirates finishing in front of the other five.

The Yankees have better pitching but there's little other improvement. On the other hand, Casey Stengel has lost Max West, Nanny Pappas and batting champion Ernie Lombardi. He'll still have enough to keep the Phils in the cellar despite favorable efforts of new owner Bill Cox to climb out.

The Yankees have entirely too much pitching talent to be headed. Furthermore, the team has two of the league's best distance hitters in Charley Keller and Joe Judge. Bill Johnson and George Stirmweis, if the army doesn't nab him, should team up well with Gordon and Max Lee. The infield Joe DiMaggio will be missed, definitely, but Roy Weatherly is not a sorry substitute.

The Red Sox, who lost a complete outfield, a star shortstop, and two good pitchers, probably won't be able to stand the runner-up race against Cleveland. The Sox do have fine pitching, almost as good as New York's, but Joe Cronin's gang hasn't the punch of the Yankees. The Sox are short on power. They may be better than last year.

Second Group Of Gunners Is Graduated Here

The second group of aerial gunners was detached from the station last week, having completed several weeks of rigorous training in the art of "making every shot count" while the pilot cuts a "crazy-quit" pattern in the sky. The group was transferred to government aircraft which will take some of them into combat zones where they will be able to practice on enemy targets.

Included in the graduating class was the first outfit of Marines to receive training here. They were all granted 10 days leave before reporting to their new stations.

At the same time that the graduates were departing from the station, another group was beginning instruction, having arrived only a couple of days previously.

Allied Spearheads Near Tunis-Bizerte

73 Axis Planes Are Destroyed In Two Raids Against Air Fields In Sicily

(By Associated Press)
Allied spearheads were reported driving into Marshal Rommel's main defense line in the narrow Axis-held corridor in northern Tunisia as American and British aircraft destroyed 84 more Axis planes.

The British eighth army, continuing to press the African Corps to northward from Boussas, ran into Rommel's "prepared positions" as the French also advanced, according to the British staff, apparently referring to the mountain defense ringed Tunis and Bizerte and running west from Medenine, 50 miles south of Tunis.

The British first army pushed the Germans back in the Medenine-Bah-Dahar sector and in between from Home and Marcelline. The Algerians said Rommel already had started evacuating German technicians from the North African map and other reports had the British fleet in the southern and central Tunisian campaigns, and they now seemed down temporarily to the Tunisian map.

After helping the Americans take Kairouan, the first army units which moved down from the Bou Arada area sent fast tanks and armored cars on a wheeling northward and now are attacking the collapsing Axis line. By yesterday it had carried 30 miles.
