

Sanford Takes Series Against Reds With 2 To 1 Win

Jeter And Frank Hudson Pitch Good Ball To Match Haefner

Whitey Campbell Singles In Ninth To Drive Dale Alexander Across The Plate With Winning Run

Sanford staged a great rally in the ninth inning yesterday to score the winning run and defeat the Red Skippers in the decisive game of the preliminary Championship playoffs by a score of 2 to 1 before a crowd of 2247 persons.

With a score knotted at one-all the Lookouts went into their half of the ninth. With two men on base Whitey Campbell slipped into center to score the winning run. He was aided by the pitching of Jeter and Frank Hudson, who pitched well throughout the game.

The game finals between Sanford and Daytona Beach will be played this evening. The winner must win four out of seven games. Sanford's Dale Alexander said he would lead his team to the championship of the Lookouts. Tommy West indicated that he probably would use Johnny Herr or Wild Bill Colman.

Sanford again pitched for Daytona and came within an ace of winning its third game of the series. Frank Hudson started on the mound and Sanford pitched a most effective ball, permitting four hits and one run in five innings. After Hudson was relieved for a pinch hitter in the fifth, Cleo Jeter tossed Sanford and held the Reds to four hits.

collected ball under the strain of having to win to remain in the playoffs. Jeter got credit for winning the game on the books but Hudson also deserves unofficial credit for his fine work. Alexander proved a fine leader with the chips down. He personally scored both Lookout runs and got two hits out of three times at bat. Langston, Marion, and Gillespie also got two hits each. Valel and Smathers headed the Red attack with two bingles

The Daytona Series We heard a great deal of criticism over the play of the Lookouts during the early games of the series with Deland, the criticism usually being that the team had coasted too long and the pitchers hadn't pitched in such a long time that they didn't know what the plate looked like. It was the consensus that the team had lost its fire through lack of competition. Certainly no one can make that charge in the Daytona series now. If we were a team had to fight to win, the Lookouts had it to do in the Deland series. They should be back in the old winning stride again. We make this prediction: win or lose the Lookouts will appear to better advantage against the Islanders than they did against Deland. They couldn't show up worse than they did against the Reds.

Fishing His Lead Plenty of credit must go to plucky Milt Haefner for pitching three masterful games. But it wasn't wise on Don McShane's part to take a chance on ruining a fine hurler. Mac's friends probably would argue that he was justified in sending Haefner in again with the series at stake. Our opinion is that a manager can never be justified in sending a player into the game if he is likely that by doing so the player may be permanently disabled or injured. Tossing those three games might not hurt Haefner; but McShane was taking a long, long chance. Along this line, Larry Kelley, captain of Yale's 1938 football team and All-American end, charged recently in a magazine of national circulation that coaches of the "Ivey League" were more interested in winning games and holding their jobs than in the health of the boys on their teams.

Notes From The Press Box Willie Skeen proved a prophet. He said Sanford would win by taking all their home games. Deland had almost as many fans at the game yesterday as Sanford. Peter Scheidt, league statistician, says it is virtually certain now that the Lookouts will go to Miami to engage a Miami semi-pro for three games. Bob Hays, Orlando Sentinel sports editor, was almost as interested in those blondes as in the game. Bob, Orlando is YOUR territory. Quotable quote: Willie Skeen—"Boy, I'm glad we play the rest of these games at night." Mayo Langston—"There's always more pebbles on the beach." Frank Lamson really had a big smile yesterday.

14 Finns Killed As Mine Blast Sinks Bark Off Denmark

Allied Losses Total 17 Ships As Nazis Continue Warfare With Submarines

Four Neutral Ships Are Lost

London Ministry Reports Sinking Of Another Steamer

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Fourteen men were killed today when the Finnish bark Olivebank was blown up about 105 miles southwest of Esbjerg, southwestern Denmark.

Seven men, who were picked up by a Danish fishing boat, said the ship struck a mine.

The Olivebank was a 2,795-ton sailing vessel, Mariehamn, Finland, was her port registry.

In London the ministry of information announced the British steamer Teriffley had been sunk by a German submarine and the crew rescued by the American steamer R. G. Stewart. The position of the sunken ship was not disclosed.

The British Ministry of Information said four British ships had reported unsuccessful attacks by submarines. Since the war started, the Allies have lost 17 ships and one destroyer which was sunk by accident. Four neutral ships have been lost.

Rush Made On Food By Russians While Troops Are Massed

MOSCOW, Sept. 12.—(AP)—A rush on food stores and savings banks continued yesterday as the Soviet government mustered men and materials in its western border.

Indications that large numbers of reserves were being called up, as seen in yesterday's issue of the newspaper Red Star, which reported that the military preparations are tremendously increased by the readiness of the Red army. It is one of the most important defense measures of our state.

At the same time it was reported reliable but unofficially that Maxim Litvinoff, former commissar of foreign affairs, now is living at Spiridonovka house, which is the official residence of Vyacheslav Molotov, commissar for foreign affairs and premier.

Commenting on the war in Poland both in the Government organ, and Pravda, Communist party publication, reflected the official Soviet view that Poland cannot be expected to present further effective resistance to invading German armies.

The official publications insisted France and England had failed to give effective aid to Poland.

Yesterday's Soviet press references to "unfriendly actions of England in regard to the U. S. R. E." were followed by an assertion by Tass, official news agency, that England had violated friendly relations with the Soviet.

5,000 Seminole Students Return To Classrooms On Opening Day

Vacations were ended for an estimated 5,000 Seminole County students yesterday as opening bells marked the beginning of another nine months' term and the new year was launched with appropriate opening day activities.

"Don't get discouraged and above all don't give up," Superintendent T. W. Lawton told an estimated 500 students and many friends and patrons attending the opening day exercises at the Seminole High School, the County's largest school.

As one of the speakers on the opening day program for the school, Mr. Lawton quoted a "bit of philosophy" which he read in a story some 25 years ago: "Attack all different problems as they come, and attack all easy problems as so difficult."

Ministers of local churches also participated in the Seminole High School program.

Principal C. E. McKay reported that the first unofficial check of the enrollment at the high school disclosed the largest number of pupils in the history of the school. The tentative enrollment figure was placed at 505.

In the Junior High School, the Grammar School and the Primary schools of Sanford also were held appropriate opening day ceremonies in the schools in the rural sections.

The enrollment in all the schools was reported approximately the same as for last year so that no great increase in the number of students in the County's schools is expected.

Federal Judge Alexander Akerman To Retire On Seventieth Birthday

TAMPA, Sept. 12.—Federal Judge Alexander Akerman, at the close of 10 years of continuous service on the bench, will retire Oct. 9, his seventieth birthday.

All the speculation and mystery about his future plans, all the silent scrambling for the seat he is to vacate was cleared yesterday with an announcement by the Department of Justice at Washington that Judge Akerman had asked to be retired early.

His request will be granted, as a matter of course. He is entitled to retirement at full pay.

Rumania Sends Soldiers To Soviet Border

Plans For Evacuation Of Children Made; French Continue Attacks In West

BUCHAREST, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Rumania is hastily concentrating troops along the Russian border and digging trenches back of the Danube River. It was understood last night.

The concentration of troops was described as a protective measure. Heretofore this border has been left without any special protection while Rumania concentrated on defense of her western and northern frontiers.

Best news yesterday completed preparations for evacuation of children in case of emergency.

While the Russian border was strengthened as a precautionary measure the country anticipated a peaceful invasion from the Polish frontier, to which, according to reports which reached Bucharest last night, tens of thousands of Polish Jews are in panicky flight from the advance of German troops in Galicia.

Last Rites Are Conducted For Mrs. Hofmann

Funeral services were held in Eustis yesterday for Mrs. Mamie Alice Hofmann, 66, mother of W. D. Hofmann of this city, who died unexpectedly at her home there Saturday.

The rites were held in the funeral parlor with the Rev. Jones, pastor of the Eustis Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial was made in Eustis cemetery.

A student of Eustis for nearly a quarter of a century, Mrs. Hofmann was born in a small Indiana town on Nov. 28, 1872. She spent most of her life in Cincinnati, O., before coming to Florida in 1915.

Mrs. Hofmann was an active member of the Eustis Presbyterian Church and was a leader in the WCTU and participated in many of the social functions of the church.

Apartment Owners To Form Organization

Apartment house owners and agents met yesterday at 3:30 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce building to discuss the value of forming an organization for the purpose of standardizing service to tourists and winter visitors. Ralph Bagwell, secretary of the Chamber, announced this morning.

W. T. Langley was named temporary chairman of the group. The next meeting will be held Sept. 25.

Each member of the group will present a list at the meeting with a description of places owned together with prices charged.

FRENCH HIT GERMAN BORDER

The French-German Western front is becoming increasingly important as the key to late European war developments. The German Saar is center of the French attack. The larger Siegfried line forts swing back on the German side of the province. This left only first line machine gun nests and smaller pillboxes to combat the French at the border when they advanced toward the main line German defenses.

First Fight In Air Took Place 25 Years Ago

Contrasting sharply to the present day fighting in the air, in the story of the first actual "battle in the air" to take place over the battle fields of France 25 years ago today shortly after the outbreak of the World War.

A story of this first "battle in the air" was carried in some of the newspapers in the U. S. and a clipping from a Chicago paper dated Sept. 12, 1914 has been given The Herald by Mrs. E. P. Housholder.

The headlines of that paper were very much similar to those seen in current newspapers today. The streamer across the top of the 1914 issue told the world "The Allies Are Optimistic," "Success of Allies is Contingent," "The German Attack On High-Water-Mark Weakened For First Time," and "The French Fight Is Reported Advancing."

On the opposite side of the page a dispatch from Berlin gave a different story, these headlines say, "Capture of French Fort is Reported," "Claims Made by Germans That 40,000 Prisoners Have Been Captured," "Greatest Victory of War Thus Far Achieved."

Chamberlain And Daladier Meet "Somewhere In France" With Army Leaders

Hitler Hopes To End War In East

Fuehrer Is Joined By Goering On Polish Battle Front

PARIS, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain and Premier Daladier of France met today "somewhere in France" for a supreme French-British war council.

A communique issued by Daladier's office here said General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the French-British armies, and Lord Chatfield, British minister for co-ordinate of defense, also attended.

Meanwhile Germany reported sweeping advances today for her armies in Poland while a major battle on the Western Front seemed to be foreshadowed by the action of the British-French forces.

A German communique said the forces closing around Warsaw had crossed the railway due east of the capital. Another announcement said Poznan and other former German cities of Western Poland had been captured, cutting down the huge loop of encircled territory which had held out despite German penetration into further parts of Poland.

French dispatches reported their advance guards had driven a wedge into the fortifications of Germany's Siegfried Line east of Saarbrücken. Artillery pounded the German industrial city.

French reports said the city's industries had been "slightly damaged." German army field headquarters announced a three-day (Continued on Page Three)

Temperature Soars To Unprecedented High For September

Residents of Sanford and Seminole County sweltered yesterday as the mercury soared to an unprecedented September high of 96 degrees to climax an abnormal heat wave which started on Sept. 5 when the temperature reached a maximum of 94 degrees.

The heat wave has replaced the almost daily showers which normally fall in September. Precipitation so far this month has totaled only .66 of an inch, 23 of which fell on the first day of the month.

The unusually warm weather has adversely affected the growth of celery and other plants which are now being grown in seedbeds on Seminole County farms. Considerable damage to the tender plants has been reported in some instances.

Some celery plants have been set in the fields and these too have been adversely affected by the heat.

Daily temperatures for the usually mild month of September are as follows:

WHAT DADDY DID IN THE WAR

"What did you do in the war, daddy?"
 A soldier's daughter asked.
 And her laughing eyes and childhood smile in evidence.
 "What daddy's job was?"
 "Did you work for the government, daddy?"
 "Did you serve your Uncle Sam?"
 "Did you fight the foe in an office as a dollar-per-annum man?"
 "Why didn't you profiteer, daddy, as a thoughtful father should?"
 "Why didn't you save for these dark days?"
 "Why didn't you get neither jobs nor food?"
 "The patriots are glad, daddy, they've invested in copper and steel."
 "And their little girls needn't cry, daddy."
 "At the sorrow of missing a meal, that all you've got is a cough."
 "And we see you smile no more;
 what terrible things have you done, daddy?"
 "Oh, what did you do in the war?"
 "Turned his head and his eyes away from the slaughter of battle."
 "And the profiteers' coffers of gold."
 "And his face burned with shame
 as he answered:
 'Forgive me, my daughter, you're right.
 I have neglected my duty,
 but all I did was—fight.'"

Look Out For School Children

With millions of school children throughout this country ending their holidays and starting back to school, the time is ripe to call attention again to the importance of careful driving in the vicinity of school houses. There are 400,000 school children in the State of Florida alone who will be starting a new year in school this week.

In this connection the Florida Safety Council issues a warning to automobile drivers to look out for school children. Drivers should be unusually careful in the neighborhood of school grounds where children going to or from school are apt to be crossing streets or dashing into the road from behind trees or hedges to retrieve a ball or other plaything.

The Safety Council reminds us that it is against the law to drive an automobile past a school bus which is loading or unloading school children. There was only one fatality resulting from an automobile accident involving school children last year, and that happened while a school bus was unloading school children. A child was run over and killed when a car failed to stop.

The Safety Council further warns parents to be careful to let children out of their automobiles on the sidewalk next to the school and to pick them up in a similar place. There is no need to incur the additional risks of having children cross the street in order to reach their own car. You can avoid this unnecessary danger for them simply by coming up on the right side of the street.

If parents and other adults will be careful themselves, there will be little danger to school children. Don't depend on their being careful; they have got too many other things to think about. Be careful yourself. Don't run over a child.

The Florida Avocado

Commenting on the value of the avocado as a food product, the Fort Myers News Press says that their cost here is about one-third what it is in northern markets and though they are grown extensively in this state their real merit is apt to be less widely appreciated here than in more distant centers of population. Incidentally the avocado can be grown as far north as Sanford where a few old bearing trees can already be found.

"The avocado is a complete food, being unique in the vegetable world, inasmuch as it is able to sustain life indefinitely, with the addition of water alone," says the Fort Myers paper. "Other remarkable advantages are: It is easily digested by children and invalids; it is slightly laxative; it is especially valuable to diabetics because it has the lowest sugar content of any known fruit; it requires no cooking or other complex preparation; it comes in nature's own package, thus avoiding all danger of contamination; and it contains every vitamin from A to E."

"Doctor John Harvey Kellogg, recognized health authority, has said that the avocado is perhaps the most remarkable fruit in existence. It contains all the necessary food elements, although it is so rich in fats that, like cream and other fat-rich foods, it should be used in suitable combinations with other foods. The fats of the avocado are not only superior in flavor but much more digestible than ordinary fats. Its food value is equal to that of average meat and double that of fish and more than four times that of oysters."

"Because the avocado has so many health-giving qualities and is so frequently recommended by physicians, and further because it contains so great a percentage of real food value, the impression might be gained that the avocado is a dull and uninspiring food. Nothing could be more diametrically opposed to the truth. The Florida avocado is a luscious, natural, salad food with a characteristically rich, nutty flavor which is enjoyed by everyone."

"All housewives, cooks, and chefs are familiar with the general method of preparing the ordinary avocado salad, either by cutting it in half and filling the cavity with minced lettuce, celery, and onion and adding Persian lime juice or French dressing made with Persian lime juice; or by dicing the avocado and mixing it in various proportions with the above ingredients."

"The avocado is an amazing fruit, and, all characteristics considered, probably the most wonderful fruit grown. The highly-cultured avocado grown in Florida is among the most perfect avocados produced any place in the world. It deserves more appreciation and popularity in its home state."

WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

By JOE HENDRICKS

Navy Department
 The Navy Department was established by Congress as an executive department of the Federal Government in 1799, or six years after the establishment of the War Department. Prior to this date naval affairs were handled by the Marine Committee of Congress, and later by the Secretary of War.

Benjamin Stoddard of Maryland was the first Secretary of the Navy, and served under both President Adams and President Jefferson.

Similar to the War Department, the President of the United States exercises the authority as commander in chief of the Navy through his Secretary of the Navy, and his Secretary is a civil and not a military officer.

Under the provisions of the Constitution, the President may appoint and remove officers, and may also exercise the power of pardon.

The Navy Department is responsible for the accurate determination of time.

The governments of Guam and American Samoa in the Pacific are administered by the Navy Department, and the naval petroleum reserves or lands containing oil deposits are also under its jurisdiction.

The Navy does not merely fight in the water, for it maintains a large fleet of airplanes and a force of marines who are specially trained for land fighting.

The 70th Congress this year appropriated about $ billion dollars for both the Army and the Navy, with the Navy receiving a little less than half the sum. This is a record percentage of appropriations, but recent events have shown that our defense needs are growing rapidly.

 Dear Mr. Dean,

I do not want to be harsh, or unfair, but it seems to me that the word "intelligent" is a little strange, considering the fact that some of our leading isolationists are responsible for our Neutrality Act, and refuses to revise it.

It will allow Italy to stay neutral, but anti-Britain. The first Act were to keep us out of foreign wars, and to promote peace by preventing the sale of War materials to nations at war. It decried its own purpose. It favors the gangster nations that wage the wars without declaring them, and label them "punitive measures." It will allow Italy to stay neutral, but anti-Britain. DISPELLING THE FOG
 BY CHARLES MICHELSON

Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

It would be a wonderful thing if politics could be adjourned during this horrible war period. That would be a little too much to hope for, I suppose, for wars may come and wars may pass but government goes on, and government is politics with us.

The President advised us in the emergency of the European struggle that the Government must be neutral but that we could order nobody to be neutral in his individual thoughts.

Why may we not apply a similar formula to our domestic difficulties—that is to effect accord among all the branches of our Government without abandoning our right to retain our individual political views, ideas, prejudices, or predilections.

Great decisions must be made by Congress and by the President, for with such a conflagration as is now raging, no nation can be sure that the fire will not involve it. The President has voiced his hope that we can keep out of it and his belief that we will be able to keep out of it. In that hope he voiced the prayer of all America.

Naturally the powers which know where our sympathy lies would like to have us fighting beside them, if for no better reason than that the greater the shorter the war will be. On our side we know that a quarrelling government in Washington means encouragement to the forces of disorder and violence. Contrary to the spectacle of a great democracy united in the best insurance possible against our being forced into the fray. During the last session of Congress some measure of superlative importance to the nation failed of passing and some measures of the reverse complexion went through because of partisanship by the minority and in the line of reprisal by a fraction of the majority.

Now we must forego the luxury of political feuding. The issues are too grave to permit of controversy and delay.

Unfortunately the hostilities abroad are not merely the concern of Europe. It is a conflict between democracies and despots, and such desperate expedients to which the contending powers may feel themselves driven, rights of neutrals do not count. For such—why do we count at all against the danger that threatens a greater danger to the encroaching states than toleration of the feelings and interest of the neutral.

It was so in the World War when the Kaiser launched the peril of adding the United States to his foes against the disadvantage, due to his navy lack, of being unable to get munitions and other commodities from America. He guessed wrong and we went to war. The question is being asked, what we gained by that war? Well, for one thing, we gained at least twenty years of peace. What else were we warring for? We took no indemnity; we refused any territory. Our associates in the war defaulted on their debts, but does anybody suppose our money losses would have been less had England and France been conquered by Germany? Let it be Different This Time.

We tried to keep out of that war and were only dragged in because of affronts that no self-respecting nation could accept.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—(AP)—The government yesterday ordered all Jews to leave the city streets at 8 P. M. The Jewish community was advised privately of the curfew order and told to inform all Jews.

First Fight In Air Took Place 25 Years Ago

at each other with pistols as follows:

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (Via The Hague)—The chief actor in the first aerial battle in the air was a German aviator corps, who piloted Lieutenant Von Helden in the latter's passage over Paris, told me his story. It is a remarkable tale of adventure, capturing those of fiction writers. Attacked by a powerful British biplane and a 90-mile-and-hour Beloit Werner only escaped through a narrow passage—a combination of circumstances which led him to pilot inside of the German lines.

"The men who hold the reserved seats in the theatre of war who see the battle as not even the general can see them are the German air men," said Werner to me when I saw him at Liege just before I started for Berlin. "That I am alive today is due to providence, not to my own efforts."

"I had received orders to locate the English forces and to determine their exact battle lines and those of their French supporters. Accompanied by Lieutenant Von Helden, who was detailed as an observer, we headed directly south in the general direction of Paris, although on this trip we did not go across the city. Previously on Sunday we flew across Paris and dropped three bombs. One failed to explode. Another dropped on the roof of a house and set fire to it and the third fell in a boulevard and made a big hole. But we flew back to our lines that time without being molested and we were so high that rifle fire did not reach us."

"On this trip to locate the enemy we flew directly south from Paris following a broad and plainly marked road. En route we passed over the edge of a magnificent forest in which more than 40,000 inhabitants of the surrounding country had taken refuge. Forest in which more than an hour we passed directly over the English headquarters and I was able to locate the positions of the commander-in-chief and his staff. We accurately mapped this position and then swept across the French position paying special attention to the locations of their artillery, much of which was masked in places of woods and behind buildings and hedges."

Lieut. Von Helden made rough sketches of everything. I was intently watching the country when suddenly the lieutenant pointed upward. At that time we were nearly 2,000 feet in the air. I looked and there fully 1,000 feet below us we were coming in full speed directly towards us was a big Bristol biplane.

"It was evident from the start that he was far speedier than we were. I tried to climb upward, realizing that when he got over me he would drop a bomb and we would be blown to pieces. But the effort was vain. The Bristol held me for speed. I could not get on a level with him. Soon the Bristol was directly over our heads."

"My God, man, I was not afraid, but this was a moment of suspense that took years out of my life. I was sure the bomb was coming."

"The Bristol had reduced her speed until she was keeping pace with us. She was slowly coming down. Sweeping lower and lower, the Bristol came. At last I knew how a bird feels when an eagle or a hawk is swooping down upon it. I thought every minute was to be our last. I was certain that what the British were trying to do was to get so close that their bomb would not miss. My nerves were truly unstrung and it was all that I could do to keep my monoplane on an even keel."

"Suddenly I saw a flash along side of me. For a moment I thought the expected bomb had struck. Then I realized that the lieutenant was shooting with his automatic pistol. The Englishman had his propeller in front of him so they could not shoot from that position. It was now certain they carried no bombs as they veered off some 500 feet to the side, at the same time keeping 50 feet above us."

"All this time we were headed northward again toward the German lines. The plunging of the compass made accurate shooting difficult, although one shot struck my plane. It was very evident that the Englishman was shooting to disable our motor and we were doing the same thing on our part. The noise of the discharge of the automatics was drowned in the whir of our propeller."

"There was a feeling of utter freedom as far as we were concerned. Our machine was far slower and much more unwieldy than the Bristol. I kept figuring on what the next move would be and how to handle it. The lieutenant was pointing his automatics at the German lines. The noise of the discharge of the automatics was drowned in the whir of our propeller."

Rumania Begins Soviet Border Fortifications

others, the women and children hugging their belongings, were expected to seek refuge in Rumania. Rumania was reluctant to admit them because of all refugees, Jews were least likely to leave Rumanian soil, since other countries do not want to admit them. Small border traffic between Poland and Rumania was closed at present. Foreigners were not permitted to stay near the frontier and preparations were being made in case units of the Polish Army and other non-Jewish refugees might cross the frontier.

The troops naturally will be disarmed and interned in conformity with Rumania's obligations as a neutral. Should the Polish Government or members of it come to Rumania measures doubtless will be taken to prevent them from exercising political activities.

Meanwhile, on the other side of Europe the French infantry led by massed tanks was reported to have driven two to four miles deeper into German territory yesterday through intense enemy artillery fire in an assault on two towns planned separately along the Siegfried line fortifications.

French war communique No. 18 last night told of "important progress" along a front extending about 12 1/2 miles east of the Saar River on the northern crook of the western front.

It was stated authoritatively, in elaboration of the communique, that the French had driven in large force across the no-man's-land between the frontier and the Siegfried line.

The operations occurred along a curving front from the Saar River eastward to the Vosges Mountains, which run parallel to the Rhine River.

All the action occurred on German soil. It was stated, and the German defenders fought back desperately in an effort to prevent the French from establishing their line at the foot of the Siegfried fortifications.

Battalions of French infantry were thrown into the attack behind tanks and motorized units. The "important progress" of the French forces, spreading along the front from east to west, was said to have carried them closer to the German towns of Bilsenkastel and Pirmasens.

Bilsenkastel and Pirmasens, 12 and 26 miles east of Saarbruecken and important communication points, lie directly along the first fortifications of Germany's "west wall."

These outer "west wall" defenses consist of barbed wire entanglement—dragged down by "flaws" attached to the French tanks—and anti-tank dumps of concrete looking like big, broken cogwheels.

Last night it was reported, the French held a large saw-tooth salient well behind the German frontier close to Bilsenkastel, Pirmasens and also toward Saarbruecken, 16 miles east of Saarbruecken.

At the extreme northern end of the western front near Sierck the French forces were reported to have cut down columns of German troops in withering fire from the Siegfried line fortresses and to have shattered Goerring's first counter-offensive of the war.

The German counter-offensive extended through most of Sunday night and was halted early yesterday.

Unofficial reports from the front indicated that the German general staff, suffering heavy casualties in its first offensive action, had ordered the German forces to retreat to trench positions within German territory along the Siegfried line.

French observers said the entire German counter-offensive plan appeared to have been suspended temporarily.

The German counter-offensive moved through several villages but all of them were on the German side of the frontier and the French held all their gains, according to an analysis in tomorrow's Petit Parisien.

French losses were small, the Petit Parisien said, and "many German prisoners" were taken.

"The French are at the point of taking the first works of the Siegfried line which, once in their hands, will permit an intensive artillery drive on the main fortifications," the newspaper's analysis added.

(The German counter-attack in the Sierck sector were said to have ended early yesterday.)

Last night's war communique No. 18, said, "Despite enemy resistance our attack continued to progress."

realize important progress over a front about 20 kilometers (12 1/2 miles) east of the Saar River.

The communique referred to assaults on advance positions of the German Siegfried line in the vicinity of Saarbruecken, 16 miles east of Saarbruecken opposite France's Bitch fortress of the Maginot line.

At no point along the 90-mile northern front from Lauterbourg on the Rhine west to Sierck on the frontier of the Duchy of Luxembourg are the Germans on French soil, it was continued.

The German attack was so violent at times, dispatches said, that French and German soldiers fought hand-to-hand with bayonets in the open farmlands along the Sierck-Saarburg road in German territory.

The Germans were thrust back at Sierck point, it was reported, and the French troops followed them as far as to German soil as the German highway town of Buschdorf.

With the German counter-attacks repulsed, the French claimed to be holding all their gains in the no-man's-land between the two fortified lines—estimated at about 250 square miles—and to be moving steadily forward in preparation for a direct assault on the German fortifications.

Il Duce May Step Into Conflict In Peacemaker Role

most daily conversations at the Nazi foreign office. Within a day or two, it was reported, he might go to the Polish front to talk directly with Hitler.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goerring, No. 2 Nazi who on Saturday held out a tentative offer of peace to Britain and France, was in consultation with the Italians and then left for the front.

The Berlin dispatches, following Goerring's guarded offer of peace, show that the German armistice have bitten off more than one-third of Poland, seemed to indicate that Hitler may believe that the time has come for his brother-in-arms to step into the picture as the messenger of European peace—repeating his role of a year ago when Il Duce brought about the Munich four-power conference.

But if the offer of peace is Hitler's—even though it may be extended by Mussolini—it seems doomed to curt rejection.

Monday announced that Britain refused to conclude to peace with any government headed by Adolf Hitler. While Hitler rules Germany, "no country is safe, and Hitlerism must be crushed," the British said.

"Britain does not want another Versailles as Goering alleges, or any collapse of Germany, but a just and enduring peace with any honorable German government," the British said.

France echoed Britain's words and it was reported that a formal proposal would be made today that the two allies pledge themselves not to conclude any separate peace with Hitler. This proposal, it was contended in Paris, would draw an effective reply to Goerring's Saturday statement that Germany has no quarrel with France.

If Fascist Italy, with her great mobilized fighting strength, could be "neutralized" in this war it would be to the great advantage of Britain and France. The allied fleets would be relieved of the Italian menace in the Mediterranean and the French could withdraw probably 200,000 troops from their southeastern Alpine border and divert them to the western front.

Keep your conscience free of motor vehicle deaths — Kids are important!

Children scurrying to school and playfully romping home again present new hazards to motorists. Chamberlain Tells Commons Two Nations Are Agreed On Finish Fight

New Thrusts By Nazis Reported

Hitler May Drive To Soviet Border In Answer To British

PARIS, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Premier Chamberlain announced tonight he had formed a new cabinet to prosecute the war against Germany. After consulting with leading statesmen of France, Chamberlain left the war ministry at 8:30 P. M. (2:30 P. S. T.) for Elisee Palace where he said he would discuss the new ministry to President Albert Lebrun.

Germany reported new thrusts into Poland as Prime Minister Chamberlain pledged war "until the menace of Hitlerism has been finally removed." Britain and France are agreed on this, Chamberlain told the Parliament.

A German communique said air "enormous numbers" of Poles have been captured in sweeping out of Polish resistance south of Radom, part of the sweeping German offensive to encircle Warsaw. Germans said they believed the Polish capital's existing defenses were crumbling.

Chamberlain's statement in the House of Commons said British troops in France had not gone into action yet. But French soldiers in Italy, he reported, a "great number" of well-equipped British troops have already joined in combat against the Germans on the western front.

Warsaw radio reports asserted the German crime of bombing the Polish capital had been pushed back six days but the Germans denied this. The German "enormous capture" have been looking for some only behind Polish lines, Warsaw broadcast warned Poland.

France and Germany exchanged heavy artillery fire on the western front where opposing forces have done little but continually feel out one another's strength.

In Paris it was reported the advanced French units yesterday reached the suburbs of Saar and Metz, which is about seven miles outside the Reich's "west wall."

The French tactics in the drive against Saarbrücken were typical of those they have used up to date.

Recapture of Binberg, a hill four miles southeast of Saarbrücken, was announced in a German report which said advanced fighting on the west.
