WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congressional investigators have launched an inquiry to find out if the government is heckling the public with a lot of repetitious questions. The investigation, conducted by the House Civil Service Committee, is aimed at the government's big statistics collecting business. The investigators are trying to find out how many different agencies are asking the same people for identical or similar information. They suspect there is considerable duplication in the gathering of official statistics.

Ike Asks Congress For School Funds

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower sends Congress today his plan to give the nation more classrooms, probably by spending federal money to help needy school districts and colleges pay off their construction bonds. Arthur B. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, will unveil the program at a news conference shortly before it is submitted to the House and Senate. Flemming said in advance there was "no question" that schools needed federal aid. He said the President's plan would provide that help. But he gave no details. However, other sources indicated Eisenhower would ask Congress to let the government assume part of the debt for classroom construction where school districts and colleges could not carry the full burden. The program would last five years. The outlays would be reviewed each year. They would be cut off when no longer needed. The states would be required to match, at least in part, the federal contributions. One official said the cost of the program would be about the same as that of Eisenhower's earlier school construction proposals. The President's direct construction aid bill, which died in Congress last year, would have cost about one billion dollars over four years. Another $60 million dollars would have been put up to buy construction bonds of school districts which could not market them through regular channels.

Debre In Algiers; Trouble Is Feared

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—Strong police forces were mobilized today as a precaution against possible disorders by French extremists during the first public appearance of Premier Michel Debre in the capital city of revolt-torn Algeria. Officials feared trouble, when Debre lays a wreath at the Algiers War Memorial, from extremist French settlers disillusioned with the policies of President Charles de Gaulle. It was at the war memorial that fighting settlers pelled for Premier Guy Mollet, with stones, eggs and vegetables during a similar wreathlaying ceremony two years ago. The visit was Debre's first to Algeria since he was named premier Jan. 8. He arrived Sunday by plane and was driven to Government House from the airport by back streets to avoid any disorders in view of the extremists' bias. They would give him a rough welcome.

national Economic Committee summoned spokesmen for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and the AFL-CIO to hear their views on the state of the nation's economic health. Airport: The House Commerce Committee launched hearings on President Eisenhower's 400 million dollar airport aid bill and a rival $65 million dollar Democratic measure which the Senate approved. Farm: Chairman Alan J. Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee said President Eisenhower's new farm program did not stand "a ghost of a chance" of winning congressional approval. He said the plan to permit lower price supports would cut farmers' prices and income. But Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson defended the President's proposal as a "realistic" move away from "unsound" programs. Civil Rights: Arthur B. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, said he hoped Congress would turn down sweeping civil rights proposals and approve the President's plan. Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn.), who will cosponsor the Eisenhower program, said he wished the Chief Executive had proposed curbs on racial and religious discrimination in labor unions.

The general statement of Bryan Willis, state auditor, on the accounts and records of Mrs. Mary Earle Walker, county tax assessor, reveals that tax rolls were neat and appeared to be mechanically correct. Excess income shown on the report was promptly remitted, with an over-remission of $15.20. Willis stated that tax rolls were well prepared, "as evidenced by the relatively few assessor errors on the list of errors, insolvencies and double assessments filed by the tax collector." To insure that all property was included on assessment rolls, Willis said the assessor used personal field trips, municipal building permits, plats of all county property and recordings in the office of the County Clerk. A card system had been started showing the buildings located on each property.

Transportation Snarled By Ice, Fog

United Press International
Freezing rain and fog combined to snarl transportation across a vast section of the Midlands today. The ice storm began Sunday night, glazing highways from west and north Kansas through Iowa, northern Missouri, south-east Nebraska, northern Illinois, southern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan and northern Indiana and Ohio. Weathermen posted hazardous driving advisories and warned the treacherous ice storm was expected to continue during the day from Kansas and Missouri through the southern and lower Great Lakes region. South of the freezing rain, dense fog blanketed much of the area from southern Illinois across Missouri and into parts of Kansas and Oklahoma, reducing visibility to zero at some points. Fog also was widespread in the Gulf and South Atlantic states. The weather bureau at St. Louis reported visibility in fog at one-fourth mile Sunday night, and occasional periods of zero visibility. In Chicago, ice coated electrical lines, stalled rapid transit facilities for periods during the night. Cars and buses crept over icy streets. Up to four inches of snow fell from northern Arizona and Utah into Wyoming, while lighter amounts swept South Dakota, Nebraska and the northern Great Lakes. Major mowslides in the Rockies blocked U.S. 30 at Red Mountain Pass, which connects all of southwestern Colorado with the corners of New Mexico, Utah and Arizona. Thunderstorms broke out in the Southeast from the lower Mississippi Valley to the South Atlantic. Amounts of around half an inch were reported at numerous points, including Memphis, Jackson, Miss., and Jacksonville, Fla. A cold wave overspread the Northeast, dropping overnight readings below zero from northern New York into New England. The arctic air chased a brief taste of spring-like weather that had sent temperatures into the 60s as far north as Virginia Sunday.

Iraq's Premier Is 'Man In Middle'

United Press International ABDEL KARIM KASSEM Premier of Iraq Premier Abdel Karim Kassem of Iraq is the man in the middle in a dramatic struggle between two opposing political forces for control of the strategic Middle East country. The forces involved are the Communists and the pro-Nasser Arab nationalists. Kassem, who led the revolt that overthrew the monarchy last July, stands in the struggle in a quiet man who modestly insisted on sharing his revolutionary glory. He was born in Baghdad in 1911, the son of a middle class landowner. By the time he graduated from Baghdad Military College in 1934, he had already begun to lay the revolutionary plans which would take nearly a quarter of a century to mature. What makes a young officer decide so early in his career to overthrow his government? "I was convinced that public life in Iraq was going from bad to worse," he said a few days after last year's revolution. "I decided that a revolution was the only way to end the corruption and tyranny of the government. Does it Like Violence? "If there had been any other way we would have taken it. I don't like violence—but we had no choice." Even though Iraq became a constitutional monarchy with a parliamentary form of government in 1925, "the governing classes still pursued their evil ways, despoiling the country," he said. Kassem fought in the war against Israel in 1948, and later attended a senior officers' course in England. His career was more orthodox than brilliant, but he had risen to command of a brigade by the time of the revolution. He is a non-smoker and a devout Muslim who could find no room for marriage in the revolutionary plans which occupied his mind since his youth.

Comedienne Drops Assault Charges, But Love Is Gone

PALESTINE, Calif. (UPI)—Comedienne Juan Davis, 46, has dropped assault and battery charges against 30-year-old Harvey Stock but says she has no intention of renewing her romance with Stock. Miss Davis dropped the charges Monday, just one day before Stock, a real estate salesman, was scheduled for court arraignment. "I had everything to lose and nothing to gain," Miss Davis said. "The engagement, however, is definitely off." Police indicated Miss Davis brought the charges last month against her former fiance after he allegedly knocked her down during an argument over a $25 loan she had made to him.

Homeowners Told To Know 'Experts'

Seminole County homeowners were warned today by John Krider, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, to be on guard against self-styled termite control "experts" and quacks who annually bilk the public of an estimated $100 million. Emphasizing that there are many termite control firms which offer honest and competent service, Krider stated that public ignorance of termite control and their control has made it easy for swindlers to get away with their worthless treatments. "Everyone must be concerned about the possibility of termite infestation in his home," he said. "Termites are a menace, but there is no reason for alarm. Quack operators frequently use the fear appeal to scare homeowners into using their services before any check of their reliability can be made. They create the impression that the house is apt to fall down unless treatment is started at once. "Take time to investigate the company. Reliable firms welcome investigation. Beware of itinerant swindlers who go from door to door offering free inspections and attempt to frighten you into an immediate job." The quack may quote cheaper prices than a legitimate operator and may offer more comprehensive guarantees but he doesn't care whether you have termites or not, Krider added. The Chamber of Commerce will assist local residents in checking on firms offering such services.

Italy Cuts Lead Of U. S. Team In Bridge Tournament

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. bridge team led the Italian team by only one international match point today in entering the fourth day of the 1959 team-of-four world championship competition. Monday night's session completed one-third of the total boards to be played by the two teams during the nine-day tourney. The U.S. outscored Italy by 25-23 in the 20 boards played Monday. This left the overall U.S.-Italian score 70-69 in a total of 32 boards. The U.S. team added slightly to its advantage by outpointing Argentina 21 to 8 Monday afternoon. The Italian players outscored the Argentines 34 to 15 in their third meeting. One match point equals about 100 points as scored in rubber bridge.

Here's an engine that always seems able to coast extra miles out of a tank of regular-grade gas. In fact, if you're one of those drivers who keep tab on things like gas mileage, you'll soon see for yourself that this new Hi-Thrift 6 gets up to 10% more miles a gallon. Another thing you'll like about this 135-h.p. 6 is the extra pep it gives you for passing and climbing hills. This is due to higher torque at normal speeds. It may be hard to believe anything that looks and moves like this '59 Chevy can be such a stickler for economy. But—whether you pick the Hi-Thrift 6 or a v6-packed V8—this is just one more reason Chevy's the car that's wanted for all its worth. Stop by your dealer's and see. The smart switch is to the '59 Chevy!

Labels Are Important

MURTH WILSON
Home Demonstration Agent
Mrs. Gladys Kendall, Home Instructress and Marketing Specialist says: "With more and more of the food we buy in cans and packages, it pays to read labels. It's the only way to know what you're getting for your money."
Did you know that all food shipped interstate is required by federal law to show on the label the name of the product, name and address of the manufacturer, packer, distributor and net weight or contents? This type of information identifies the product, places responsibility for its distribution and indicates to the consumer how much food the package contains.
Most product labels also contain information of interest to the shopper, such as size of can, number of servings, style and size of vegetable or fruit used, and recipe. If you fail to read the label, you may not get what you wish. For example, corn is canned with cream style or whole kernel about Mexican style with green peppers. Beans are canned whole, sliced or diced. Asparagus comes in spears, tips or cut pieces.
The label can help you figure and compare costs. You can find out the number of servings and divide them into the cost per can or package to get the cost per serving. Comparisons will indicate the best buy.
To be a smart shopper, you may need to read more than just the name of the product on the label. Let your eye go a little further and find out just what the package offers for the price. This kind of shopping adds up to better food for less money, says Mrs. Kendall.

Deviled Chops Are Economical

It's the forgotten homemaker who knows a good recipe when she sees one. Generally, she'll be almost 100 per cent correct when judging the merits of a recipe through the eyes of her family.
If your hungry crew complains, here's just the meat dish you've been looking for. It's called Deviled Lamb Chops.
This is a dish perfect for cool weather and economical too. Many homemakers are interested in keeping a couple of economy recipes available during the holidays.
Meat expert Heba Stages comments that lamb shoulder chops are called for in this creation. This meat cut is more economical than the more demanded lamb loin chops, so turn your head toward planning next Saturday's dinner. There is no time like the present to experiment with this recipe.

Nurses' Goal: Better Health

Three public health nurses serve Seminole County.

Like Gaul, the county is divided into three parts. Also like Gaul, the nurses are far too few, with one serving every 13,000, rather than the desired figure of 5,000.

Most of their time is spent in the schools. Routine visits frequently uncover mental and physical defects that are referred to nurses by teachers. Regular checks of eyes, teeth and ears can catch remedial defects before they become too serious.

Once recommendations have been made to parents, the nurses follow through by seeing that examinations have been made.

Work in the schools includes checking student health records to see that required immunizations and health examinations have been fulfilled. Nurses take to heart the health of every school child. When they follow up the recuperative period of a child with communicable diseases, they are doing a service to the child as well as to others in the school.

Mrs. Grace Fisher gave an example of a child who returned to school too soon after a siege of mumps. The student was hospitalized with complications resulting from another infection, which he did not have the strength to evade.

The nurses, Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Mabel S. Brown and Mrs. Hulda Kibbe are well-known to school children. They decide who deserves free lunches by determining the welfare of the family. They work closely with lunchroom personnel and frequently give talks to students on health and health practices.

By recognizing a case of hepatitis in a school child last year nurses were able to trace the cause to a shallow well that had infected an entire family. This was done through the sanitarian, who found that a septic tank close by was leaking into the well.

When the nurses aren't in the schools they give immunizations in the health unit, or assist doctors as they provide pre-natal care.

Indigent mothers are checked every two weeks before their babies are born. Since many are born at home, nurses supervise midwives and visit the family immediately after birth. At this time they give mothers counseling about food and care, including formula, washing instructions and other information.

"Our biggest problem with expectant mothers is that they don't come in soon enough," Dr. John Thurmond, county health director explained during an interview. "They should come in at least within three months after the start of pregnancy. Many serious problems can be avoided by early diagnosis."

In an informal discussion, the nurses and doctor revealed that one of the greatest needs is the proposed health center, and more help. At present, they must check the mother and baby at the same time, in a room inadequate for either.

More than 25 examinations are given daily in the pre-natal clinic, held every two weeks. Shot clinics dispense 120 immunizations a week.

Communicable diseases are all under the care of the Health Department, whether patients are indigent or not. Those suffering

58 Students Make Junior Honor Roll

Fifty-eight students in the Sanford Junior High School earned a "B" average or better in all subjects in the past six weeks and have been placed on the honor roll.

The highest scholastic averages during the period were made by Johnny Phillips and Loretta Dyess, who earned the Pilot Club Award for exhibiting leadership and dependability in class work. Achieving honor roll distinction were:

with tuberculosis must be checked constantly to see that they are not living with small children or working where food is served.

Worms are another problem delegated to the nurses. A child whose health is under par is always suspect. Hookworm is frequently found in children who have gone without shoes.

Clinics for venereal disease, a large factor in Seminole County, are held frequently. Education is also attempted in these cases, which often are among the young.

The county health department stands squarely against the money given by the state to mothers with illegitimate children. Many of their patients have the idea that the state is paying them to have the children, and actually wants them to reproduce for the sake of the state.

As liaison between health agencies, civic clubs and other charitable organizations, nurses enjoy their most gratifying experiences. Here they may obtain a hearing aid for a child who cannot respond to the world around him, or an artificial leg for another who cannot walk.

When teeth need to be pulled, there is the pleasure of referring the child or indigent adult to the proper agency or club for treatment.

With the promise of the new health unit, the three nurses see renewed interest in X-ray clinics and better care for mothers and babies. Immunizations then may be given to everybody, not just the few who insist on them. As Dr. Thurmond recently told the County Commission, "Then we will have a building that people won't be ashamed to come to."

Spanish Town Not Really In Spain

LIVIA, Spain (UPI) — This Spanish town is actually located in France, about a mile from the Spanish border.

When the frontier between the two countries was realigned in 1833, several Spanish villages were ceded to France but Livia refused to be given away.

This year, Livia is celebrating her 300th anniversary as a Spanish town completely surrounded by France. An "international" road leads from Livia to the Spanish border.

they will be proud of it."

Recent surveys show that many Seminole County school children have not had their polio shots, although they are given free to those under 16.

The nurses comment on their work: "We make up the department of items too numerous to mention."

Top Young Farmer In State Contest

Joe E. Baker, Sanford dairyman and member of the City Commission, has been named Seminole County's Outstanding Young Farmer.

A judging panel of agricultural leaders selected Baker over four others nominated by the public. Judging was based on progress in agricultural career, soil and resource conservation practices and contribution to the community. The project is sponsored by the Jaycees and the Florida Ford Tractor Co. in cooperation with the American Petroleum Institute.

Baker will be entered in the state contest and is eligible to compete for many awards including an all-expense trip at the National Awards Program in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, April 6-8.

The co-owner of Green Valley Dairy, Baker is a native of Sanford. The dairy is the producer-director of Perfection Dairies. Baker was elected to the Sanford City Commission last December.

The "Outstanding Young Farmer" is a deacon in the First Methodist Church, a member of the Cattlemen's Association, the Central Florida's Milk Producer's Association and the Jaycees. He is married and has three children.

Children Starved, Chained, Unloved

United Press International — An infant dies of starvation. Police find three children chained in their home. A man is charged with trying to hang his 3-year-old son.

Police were investigating these weekend developments today, and Georgia authorities were making a renewed effort to find a 7-year-old girl whose parents have refused to let doctors treat her for tuberculosis.

Mrs. Opal Moore, 26, was held on a manslaughter charge in Mobile, Ala. in connection with the death of her 10-month-old daughter, Sybil Linn. Authorities said an autopsy showed the child died of severe malnutrition and dehydration.

"There was no blood, or even water, in her body," Asst. Coroner Dr. Ernest L. Brown said. "She looked like she had been in a concentration camp."

Police said extreme poverty figured in the death, which occurred Jan. 24. They said the mother, with five other children and two other adults, lived "in extreme squalor."

Police in Lillington, N.C., reported Saturday they found three Negro children, ragged and hungry, shackled to chains which ran through a hole in the wall and were fastened to a log outside. Welfare officials took custody of the youngsters.

Investigators quoted the children—Mary Lee Allen, 12, Geraldine Allen 10 and Jerry Allen, 8—as saying their father had made them prisoner and that they had gone without food from Monday to Friday of last week.

Their only meal during that period, the children related, was given them by a neighbor Friday when they managed to free themselves and leave the house. The father later tied them up again, they said.

Officers arrested the father, Russell Allen, 35, and said charges would be filed when the investigation was complete.

Attempt at Hanging — Authorities in Walhalla, S.C., today held A. J. Eller, 35, on charges he tried to hang his 3-year-old son with a wire and burned him with cartridge casings heated on a stove. The formal charge was assault and battery with intent to kill.

Deputies said Eller had recently completed an 18-month jail term for beating the boy.

Georgia health authorities and lawmen reported they still were without a clue as to the whereabouts of Patsy Gillespie, whose serious illness last year was diagnosed as tuberculosis of the bone.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otha Gillespie of Atlanta, refused to have Patsy treated on grounds this would violate the beliefs of a religious sect to which they belong. The parents and child disappeared after legal steps were taken to provide medical care, and since November authorities have tried without success to locate Patsy.

Negro Tells India About Integration — NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Rev. Martin Luther King, of Montgomery, Ala., has arrived here to begin a month-long speaking tour during which he will tell Indians about his efforts to end segregation in the American South.

A government spokesman said King will meet President Rajendra Prasad and Premier Jawaharlal Nehru while he is in this country.

King, a Negro Baptist, was the leader of the Montgomery bus boycott which led to a federal court order outlawing segregation on public buses in the Alabama capital.

Girls Get Prettier As Men Get Older

By FRANK ELIZABER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Every House member can hire eight helpers, and in some cases nine. Seniors usually can hire about twice that many. Most of these turn out to be female, and the outnumbered male staffers claim the girls are getting prettier.

There has been a theory that this judgment results simply from the fact the men are getting older. It also has been widely assumed that every living doll on Capitol Hill, in addition to her other good points, also could take shorthand and type.

For a few days here recently both these beliefs were rudely opened to question when a local model agency, charm school and employment service ran this help wanted ad in a local newspaper:

Receptionist: Congressional work lively, charming girl in office front office, show visitors around, handle appointments, shorthand and typing not needed. But will mean salary increase. This is more "fun" than job. Salary open.

Reaction: A short-tempered one House member said, "It sounds like a senator's office." The initial reaction among qualified observers on Capitol Hill was a snort.

"Baloney!" snorted Lacey Sharp, one such qualified observer. Sharp is secretary, male, to Rep. W. R. Poage (D-Texas), and during the recent election turnover acted as unofficial one-man employment agency for some 500 displaced congressional helpers. "Being beautiful never hurt anybody around here," Sharp opined. "But all the girls I know have to work. When the applicants answer that ad I bet they are told, 'sorry, that job has been filled. But how about signing up for a course in our charm school to be ready when something else opens up?'"

"No such thing," said the lovely, charming voice gracing the phone at the model agency. "It's a sure-enough job offer. We've had a number of girls in to talk about it and have picked two or three very desirable candidates who will be sent to see the congressman shortly."

Well-Trained Voice — The voice naturally was too well trained to name the member involved. It dropped only the nearest hint, which Rep. Seymour Halpern (R-N.Y.) promptly denied.

All he did, said Halpern, speaking through a secretary, male, was make a casual inquiry of the agency, at the suggestion of a friend, and when he found it dealt more in models than secretaries he said he dropped the whole thing.

Anyway, girls, Halpern's payroll now is filled, and with people who can type and take shorthand. The lovely, charming voice naturally wasn't too happy at the way things turned out. However, it said filling congressional jobs was nothing new for the agency. Previous requests, it conceded, tended to put office skills first and charm second.

At congressional pay scales, of course, there is no reason why our lawmakers can't have both. House members can pay up to $13,344.62. The top pay in a senator's office is $16,350.

For that kind of dough, where is the beauty who can't learn to take shorthand?

Bull Market Declining; Experts Aren't Worried

By ELMER C. WALZER

UPI Financial Editor — NEW YORK (UPI)—The bull market—aged 18 months or 19 years according to who does the calculating—has had a 5 per cent decline.

Instead of being worried, the Wall Street experts appear happy about it. They hold the drop is healthy for the market. Some think the decline ought to be carried further—to 10 per cent or more.

The market had been in an almost straight line rise since it touched 420 in the Dow Jones industrial average in October of 1957. To the 1959 high of 600 plus, the gain has been 180 points or 43 per cent.

The average that crossed 600 in 1959 was down to 523.92 on April 29, 1962, and hasn't been that low since. Hence the 17-year age for the bull.

According to the chart experts who plot the future of the market by what it has done in the past, a prolonged rise ought to have a correction of 20-15 to 40 per cent of the rise. One-third of the rise is 200 points and that's 10 per cent of the average. If it went that low the average would go to 541, lowest since Nov. 25, 1958.

The current decline of 5 per cent to an intraday low Monday of around 571 is considered a minor correction, and one that might bring in some new buying.

If the correction should go to 40 per cent of the 180 point rise it would bring the average down to around 525.

At each of these levels the market has met support in the past, and hence it is believed it could meet it again. The 525 figure is one that has produced great support. The market touched that figure last on Sept. 25, 1958. It also hit it twice in 1956 and once in June, 1957. It was a tough figure to penetrate and it will produce strong resistance on the way down, it is held.

This isn't to indicate that there will be a drop of that scope. But it does demonstrate that Wall Street isn't worrying about the market's health.

Not For The Birds — COPENHAGEN, DENMARK (UPI)—Pet shop owners have banded together in a campaign against the manufacturers of bird cages.

The shop owners have complained that the new bird cages are so small the birds can't turn around in them.
