Strong principals

SANFORD — Seminole County School Superintendent Paul Hagerty has announced the appointments of two high school principals for the new school year. Transfers will be made at Lake Mary and Lake Howell high schools.

The appointments will become official following ratification of the two posts during Tuesday's School Board meeting.

Don Smith, currently principal of Lake Mary High School will be transferred to be principal of Lake Howell high school.

Ray Gaines, currently assistant principal at Lake Howell, will become principal of Lake Mary High School.

Hagerty said that the best match of talent and strength with the needs of the district would be made through these assignments.

Smith has been an administrator at Lake Mary for the past 13 years. Gaines has been a teacher and administrator at Lake Howell for the past 17 years.

Summer lightning strike

Summer thunderstorms dumped up to two inches of rain on Central Florida late Saturday afternoon.

A lightning strike in Sanford was reported by Charles Gonzalez, who said neighbors witnessed the blinding flash as it struck and split a tree in his neighbor's yard in the 1800 block of Palm Way.

Lake Mary adds employee

LAKE MARY — The City of Lake Mary has hired a new member of the planning department. Jodi Leigh O'Brien will begin her job on July 19.

The position became available earlier this year, when Associate Planner Mark Reggentin resigned to accept a job in Mt. Dora.

"Ms. O'Brien won't actually be taking over the position of associate planner," said City Planner Matt West. "She is more of a computer expert, and will be called a GIS Planning Coordinator."

GIS, or Geographical Information System, involves a great deal of mapping and planning on a computer, a system Lake Mary has been becoming more involved with since the beginning of this year.

West said O'Brien is coming to Lake Mary from Gwinnett County, Georgia (Savannah), where she has handled computerized 9-1-1 mapping systems. She has also had experience in DeCalb County Georgia, and in North Carolina.

Three injured in car accident

Three people involved in a two-car accident on Interstate-4 near the Lake Mary exit Friday night were treated at area hospitals and released.

According to Lake Mary Police, a car driven by Benjamin Russell Davis, 19, 599 South Country Club Road, Lake Mary was entering the westbound lanes on I-4 from the on-ramp, when the car skidded and spun across the traffic lanes and median, colliding with an eastbound vehicle. That vehicle was driven by Joseph Russell Owen, 34, 10033 Massey Street, Orlando. A passenger, Katrina K. Bell, 29, same address, was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she was released early Saturday morning.

Trial: Ex-cop ready

Defense lawyer says 93 counts of sex with boy can't be proved

Guy Brewster appeared in court Friday to hear 93 counts of sex actively with a boy read against him.

SANFORD — A former Sanford policeman is scheduled to go on trial Monday on 93 counts of sexual activity with a teen but an appeal of a pre-trial ruling in the case may delay the proceedings.

Guy Brewster, 37, was charged Friday with 85 counts of engaging in sexual activity with a child in custodial custody and eight counts of lewd and lascivious assaults. Originally, Brewster was charged in October 1991 with 12 sex-related counts involving alleged encounters over a two year period with a teen. The youth claims he met Brewster when the patrolman served as the school resource officer at Lakeview Middle School. The alleged victim claims he was 15 when the sexual acts began in 1987 and continued until 1989.

The amended information was filed by Seminole-Brevard assistant state attorney Meryl Allawas.

On July 1, Seminole Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey ruled the prosecution could only present evidence to the trial jury dealing with the 12 specific counts against Brewster. Allawas plans to appeal that decision claiming it, in effect, suppressed evidence in the case. Judge Dickey ruled jury selection for the trial will begin Monday unless the appeals court issues a stay. Allawas said she would file an emergency motion with the Fifth District Court of Appeals to delay the proceedings while the pre-trial ruling is reviewed. The 93-count information covers the period of time the state contends Brewster and the teen had an on-going relationship.

Brewster's attorney Jeff Deen immediately requested a speedy trial after the additional charges were filed.

"We are ready for trial," Deen said. When questioned by Judge Dickey, Brewster said he is ready for the trial, despite the last minute filings of so many additional charges. "I don't think they (the state) can prove it," Deen said referring to the amended information. "We think this is an incredible grandstand play on the part of the state on the eve of trial."

Allawas claimed the state had not questioned a See Brewster, Page 5A

Cops' drug program in schools may grow

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board and Sanford Police Department are joining together in asking for the assignment of an additional police officer to the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) Program.

The request will be presented during Monday night's Sanford City Commission meeting.

The suggestion was originally proposed by the school board. Early last month, Elementary Education Executive Director Nancy McNamara contacted police chief Ralph Russell.

"Dr. Hagerty has authorized me to contact you concerning the funding of one DARE officer to work at the three Sanford elementary schools — Hamilton, Goldsboro, and Pinecrest," she said.

McNamara told Russell that money had been allocated in the school board budget to fund half of See Drugs, Page 5A

It's Soapbox Derby race day!

Catspaw team hopes for purr-fect race

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Race day is here and winning is on the mind of 10-year-old Hamilton Elementary School alumna Shannon Brewer.

Her white car with magenta markings and "Catspaw Racing" carefully lettered on the rear, is making its second appearance in the local Soapbox Derby race. Shannon hopes to improve on her second-place finish from last year to bring home a victory and win a trip to the National Soapbox Derby August 7 in Akron, Ohio.

"I want to go to Akron so bad," the determined racer said, "and I will."

Competing for the second year in the stock model division, Shannon is looking forward to racing the new course in Derby Park.

"We have a chance to have almost an Akron-like hill to race on," she said.

The local race began five years ago with the contest held on the large hill on Highway 17-92 in front of the Winn-Dixie Plaza. This year, the race will be at the new park off Oregon Avenue. The race begins at 8:30 a.m. and continues until 4:00 p.m.

Truth sniffed out about lost dog tags

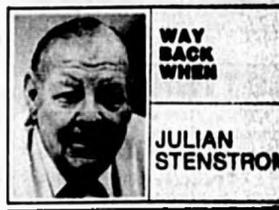

Good morning everybody! Have another serving of those good ol' buttered grits and warm up your coffee. Some weeks ago we told you the "dog tag" story — the yarn about the Lake Mary couple who decided to plant a garden. While they were tilling the soil they found an identification tag which apparently had been lost by a member of the U.S. Armed Forces.

The information was given to us and we put our efficient "staff of investigators" to work right away. It didn't take you readers long to gather a pile of information about the identification tag, who it belonged to plus a lot of other information.

Initially, the tag had been issued to Mary Lucille East.

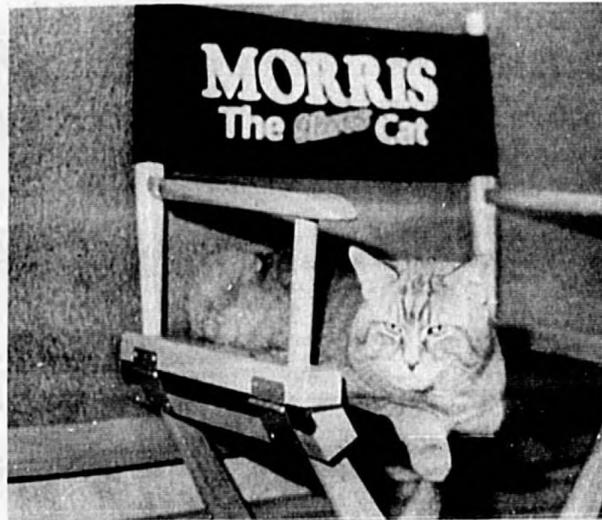

On the tag was her service number 745-92-61. We have been told that these particular numbers also indicated where she was inducted into the Navy. There was a "P" inscribed on the tag. We found out Mary Lucille was a Presbyterian but that had nothing to do with the letter in question. The "P" indicated she was a Protestant. We also were told that she was the daughter of a Presbyterian minister but at no time did he ever serve as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Mary.

The tag also carried the inscription "F5/44." The best information we have about that indicates it was the month and the year in which she received her last See Stenstrom, Page 2A

Superstar Morris the Cat

Morris lends his famous puss to aid local shelter's efforts

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — He sits with purr-rect posture. Front paws together. Head held in a very regal fashion. He looks poised, superior, well...finicky.

Morris the 9-Lives spokescat was in town Saturday to lend a helping hand, err, paw, to the rebuilding efforts of the Seminole County Humane Society and to promote animal adoptions. The Heinz Pet Products Company, which makes 9-Lives, donated $5,000 to the rebuilding fund and donated cans and bags of food to the shelter. In addition, the company is giving individuals who adopt a pet from the shelter between now and July 31, a month's supply of free dog or cat food.

A true example of a seasoned professional, Morris dutifully endured another interview and the stares of curious newspaper employees wanting to catch a glimpse of the famous feline.

If his attention seems to wander slightly, his handler, Bob Marwick takes a tiny piece of food, 9-Lives Dry Crunch, of course, from his pocket. He shows it to Morris, then quickly closes his hand and moves it wherever he wants the cat to look. Sure enough, Morris' big green eyes follow the hand. Click, perfect angle for yet another picture. ictanus shot.
We received a lot of calls about items we've published in this column but I've got to be honest with you and tell you that I received twice as many calls about this "dog tag" story than any other item I've written about.

There's just not enough room here to list all the folks who called to contribute information about this situation, but I would like to mention City Commissioner Mac McClanahan, a former Navy commander; Mrs. Margaret Wesley, Lake Mary historian; Etta Keogh, longtime Lake Mary resident; Ray Price, a retired Navy veteran with 22 years service, and Harry Kenny, a retired Navy veteran with 20 years service.

I want to make one more point so there will be no misunderstanding. When I first wrote about the finding of the "dog tag," I used the name and the street in Lake Mary where the finders resided. I probably should not have revealed the name of the finders since the husband involved is affiliated with a well known department store here in central Florida.

Are you like me? Do you wonder where Mary L. East is today? You do? Okay, I'll tell you!

Mary was a Wave in the Navy and was stationed in Memphis. She became a Navy chief and was involved in training pilots to fly Navy planes.

She married Navy Chief William B. Cook. He made a career of the Navy and retired in 1973. Her dad was not a Presbyterian minister. He was a man of the cloth, though. He was a retired Baptist minister and although he lived in Lake Mary he was a member of the Central Baptist Church of Sanford which at that time was located at Oak and Thirteenth.

Where did we get all this information? We keep telling you the Herald gets around. It seems that an old friend of Mary's - Mrs. Ralph (Shirley) Simmons of 2649 South Elm Avenue, Sanford, clipped our "Way Back When" column and sent it to Mary who now resides with her husband in Lineville, (Clay County) Ga. .

The other evening the phone rang. Guess who it was? None other than Mary L. (East) Cook. Not only did we find out all about her, we found her!

She and retired Chief Cook have two children, a boy and a girl. Mary said she didn't even know she had lost the dog tag until she read about it in the Herald. She said she was going to look for the dog tag because she needed to know her blood type. But, come to think of it, I don't believe her blood type was on this particular dog tag.

Now, you don't even have to wonder where former Wave Chief Mary L. East is today. Now, you know!

I ran into some information recently that gives a significant change in the 11-part Forrest Lake story we ran in the fall of 1992. And, it should be clarified although it doesn't change the outcome of the situation very much. You may remember I told you Forrest and Maude Lake did not have any sons but they had two daughters. I also told you they had two nephews. Both became lawyers. One, Paul Lake, graduated from a law school in Tennessee. The other, Bill Lake, graduated from the University of Florida Law School. Paul later practiced law in Tampa and Bill, in West Palm Beach.

From the time Lake was first convicted of mismanagement of the Seminole County bank, efforts were made to get the four charges against him thrown out of court. The Florida Supreme Court did toss out three charges against Lake. But on July 30, 1930, the court "affirmed" that one charge was valid and to it was attached a three-year term. After nearly five years of using every available legal tactic to escape jail, Lake went behind bars at Ralford. In 1932 almost 700 people asked the state pardon board to open the prison doors so Lake could return to Sanford. However, the board refused. He finished what was left of his three-year term and returned to Sanford, a broken man.

The point we wanted to make here is that Lake's 14-year sentence had been reduced by the Supreme Court to three years and he did serve that time in prison.

Finally, we do not know if Lake's nephews had anything to do with arguing the convicted banker's case before the state Supreme Court and getting those three charges against the former Sanford mayor thrown out.

receives the treat.

When they are not on the road doing publicity work for the pet food company, Morris lives with Martwick in a suburban Chicago home. They travel about 75,000 miles a year.

"We try not to let people know who he is," Martwick said. There was a time when Morris was named on airline passenger lists.

"First thing you know, the flight attendants would forget their jobs and bring out their wallets to show pictures of their cats. Then word gets around the plane and people want you to stay behind and take him out of the kennel so they could see him. Then my baggage is gone."

When he travels, it's not cargo or coach. This orange tiger goes first-class, riding in a small kennel.

Although nearly everyone who meets Morris can't seem to resist patting him on the back or giving his ear a scratch, contact at public appearances is not allowed.

"We learned that a long time ago," Martwick said. "One person gives him a pat. Then another and the first thing you know, someone is pulling his leg."

Now 15 years old and 14-pounds, Morris was adopted from a Massachusetts Humane Society Shelter and is actually the second "Morris" for 9-Lives. The first one was Martwick's pet before being tapped by a Midwest advertising agency to do television ads for the pet food. When the first Morris was "discovered", Martwick supplied animals for ads. The first Morris was 19 when he died.

As a former shelter cat, Morris tours the country promoting animal adoptions and spaying and neutering of pets to cut back on over-population. He had "the" operation when he was seven. Martwick said that Program produces skilled workers

BY MIKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

LAKE MARY — An innovative program based on a centuries-old German apprenticeship system is completing a successful first year at a Central Florida telecommunications plant.

A select group of 20 junior college electronics students is performing "at or above the level of their German counterparts," says Gary Garman, developer of the hands-on program for Siemens Stromberg-Carlson.

The students attend Seminole Community College 20 hours a week and train for another 20 hours at Siemens' new apprenticeship lab. They are coming up for a critical "midterm" test later this month.

This will be roughly midway through their 2½-year commitment with the company and SCC on the training process that guarantees them electronics-technician jobs upon successful completion.

"There are only two or three apprentices that are in trouble, but they may hang in there," said Garman, manager of training and development for Siemens in Florida. "The average grade for the most recent prep quiz was 88 percent."

The Siemens project is patterned on the German system, which is the outgrowth of guild training that began in Central Europe centuries ago. The Florida company is part of Siemens AG of Munich, Germany, one of the world's leading electronics manufacturers.

The youth-oriented apprenticeship system is considered the keystone of Germany's sustained economic progress.

The career-training system — which uses a mix of public and private financing — is designed to maintain a steady flow of trained workers. Hundreds of thousands of students in their middle teens are encouraged to choose a career path and apply for training for apprenticeship positions with companies of their choice. Those selected spend several years in the dual process of theory and practice.

Upon completion, they move into well-paying positions.

Such methods are being studied by various agencies and officials in the Clinton administration, which is trying to step up efforts to make American industry more competitive.

Clinton has proposed that more than $1 billion be spent in the next three years to teach high-tech skills to students who aren't on a track for college.

Government and industry leaders say that success in the world marketplace depends not only on low-cost production but on the quality of the product.

Siemens believes it has to take the time and spend the money "to train our people to make them the most skillful employees possible," said Larry McMillen, vice president of human resources.

Siemens Stromberg-Carlson, which employs some 2,000 workers at its Lake Mary plant, received a $250,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Labor earlier this year to help fund the partnership between education and industry.

Supporting this and similar apprenticeship efforts in other fields was "a step toward building a national youth apprenticeship system," said then-Labor Secretary Lynn Martin.

Garman, 49, a former community college teacher who has been with Siemens six years, visited Germany and other European countries to study their apprenticeship programs before developing the system here.

"We've taken the German system and made it better," he says. "We've adapted, not adopted the German system."

The local program has greater flexibility while the Germans have a more rigid curriculum. Students there don't get as much electronics theory or classwork. The techs here will earn 2-year college degrees and once they begin full-time work, they can choose to continue their education with the company's help.

For the first year, the student apprentices have been getting hands-on work in the company's customized lab under Peter Eckhardt, a German "meister" or expert.

Those passing the upcoming exam will move into on-the-job training in addition to their classroom work, rotating through designated departments in the manufacturing operation under special mentors for four months.

After that, it's back into the apprenticeship lab (in addition to their college work) for the final year of training. After a brief stint at field installation sites, they will receive their apprenticeship certificates and college degrees and become regular employees at one of the company's 60 manufacturing locations in this country.

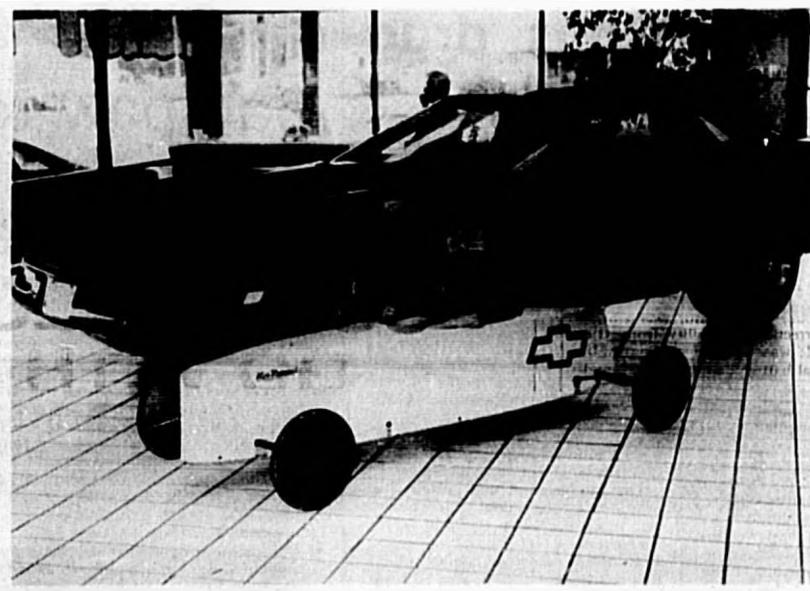

Garman says the American students are generally older, and they appear more motivated than their German counterparts because of the keen competition to get into the Siemens program here. The company had about 700 applicants for the program that began last August. Seventy qualified and 20 were selected.

It expects about 1,000 applicants for the second crop of apprentice-technicians, which begin training this fall.

Siemens also has started a pre-apprenticeship program for high school students, which this year has 20 juniors and seniors from Oviedo and Lyman High Schools. Garman expects this to become a screen-and-feeder process for the college-level program.

"I think we have to link the world of work and the world of education," Garman says.

"A wide gulf has developed between education and industry in this country. Success only comes from skilled workers."

Florida turnpike tolls will go up today

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Save those quarters. Tolls on Florida's Turnpike are going up starting at daybreak Sunday.

Higher tolls have been imposed from the Golden Glades interchange north of Miami to the Wildwood link to Interstate 75 northwest of Orlando. The increases, which make the 266-mile highway the most expensive long-haul state turnpike in the nation, are expected to raise $18 million a year for turnpike improvements.

Traveling on a turnpike ticket between Lantana in Palm Beach County to Wildwood will cost $13.10. A round-trip from Golden Glades to Walt Disney World will be $3.80 higher than before.

South of Lantana, most tollbooth charges are up a quarter. The Golden Glades and Cypress Creek plazas will cost 75 cents.

Transportation Secretary Ben Watts imposed the new tolls after a series of poorly attended public hearings across the state attracted fewer than 100 people.

Realizing people don't like to pay more for the same thing, the state will monitor traffic to see if motorists switch to free roads.

The turnpike extension from Miami to Homestead got a two-year break from a sympathetic governor and Legislature in this round of toll increases.

The delay is intended to give some relief to victims of Hurricane Andrew victims who were forced onto the 47-mile turnpike extension to commute from temporary homes or offices.

Abortion protesters peaceful

By The Associated Press

MELBOURNE — Clapping, singing and praying abortion protesters participating in a nationwide campaign picketed Saturday outside two Florida clinics in peaceful demonstrations that produced no arrests, police and organizers said.

Anti-abortion forces were met by pro-choice activists who lined the street outside the Aware Woman Clinic for Choice, said Margaret Thomas of the Feminist Majority Foundation.

"We had a nice little crowd out here today," said Thomas, who helped organize a pro-choice rally at the Aware Woman Clinic for Choice in anticipation of protests. "It was like a mini-pep rally. We told our people about the days to come."

Melbourne was selected by abortion opponents as one of seven U.S. cities for its 10-day "Cities of Refuge" campaign after Operation Rescue National ran a spring training session here to teach protest techniques.

Chris Jagos, spokeswoman for Operation Rescue in Melbourne, estimated 130 people showed up for the prayer vigil, while Thomas put the crowd size at 80.

"We will have a prayerful presence daily across from the clinic," Jagos said.

A police dispatcher who would not give her name said officers made no arrests and left the clinic by mid-afternoon.

Clinic supporters ran training sessions and drafted banners to blunt the effects of anti-abortion forces intent on changing the minds of women seeking abortions.

"We really mobilized very well. We had some onsite training," Thomas said. "We've got this long phone list that we're pulling names from, and we really have a lot of support in this community."

In nearby Port St. Lucie, Operation Rescue parked a motor home across the street from another Aware Woman clinic offering free pregnancy tests, said Operation Rescue National spokeswoman Wendy Wright.

"We sent one person over for a free pregnancy test and basically what it was was a home pregnancy test," said Todd Windle, the clinic's senior administrator. The motor home was accompanied by about 20 to 30 protesters.

No abortions were scheduled Saturday at either clinic, he said.

adding it had to do with doctor availability rather than the protests.

The campaign opened Friday night with a Melbourne church rally that attracted about 350 people, and a highlight of the Florida effort was to be Sunday's planned speech by Operation Rescue founder Randall Terry in Palm Bay.

Meanwhile, 38 abortion protesters arrested in April on contempt charges for entering a court-ordered buffer zone around the Melbourne clinic were convicted Friday. Among them was the Rev. Keith Tucci, Operation Rescue's executive director.

He was sentenced to six months in jail, with all but a month suspended, and posted bond while the case is on appeal.

Cops: Murder suspect may be 30-year serial rapist

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — A man charged in the 1989 slayings of three Ohio tourists is suspected in several rapes and abductions over the past 30 years, according to a crime "time line" created by police.

Oba Chandler is charged in the killings of Joan Rogers, 36, and her daughters, Michelle, 17, and Christie, 14, of Willshire, Ohio, whose partly clad bodies were found bound with duct tape and floating in Tampa Bay.

He also is charged in a 1989 rape in Madeira Beach — a case with similarities to the murders, including a threat to bind the victim with duct tape.

The time line put together by police officers and filed last week by the Pinellas-Pasco state attorney's office, implicates Chandler in a similar abduction and several unreported rapes dating to 1963. It suggests police and prosecutors suspect Chandler of being a serial rapist.

"They keep suggesting this, but I haven't seen the first bit of evidence to substantiate any of it," said defense attorney Tom McCoun, who would not discuss Chandler's case.

In the 1991 abduction of a 15-year-old girl in Daytona Beach, the girl "gave a positive response" upon seeing Chandler's picture in a photo lineup.

The girl told police that a man stopped her on the street, and she thought he wanted directions. When she approached his camper, he got out, grabbed her arm and dragged her into the van.

The man bound her wrists and ankles with duct tape as she struggled and screamed. At one point, she said, he choked her and put his hand over her mouth. Then he taped her mouth shut.

Before returning to the driver's seat, he fondled her breasts, she said. As he drove, she told police, she freed herself from the tape and jumped from the van window as it was moving, breaking her foot.

Other incidents on the list include a 1963 unreported Pinellas Park rape; sex with a young girl in Cincinnati in 1964, a case in which charges were dropped; a 1965 attempted rape in Cincinnati; a 1973 unreported rape in Daytona Beach in which the victim allegedly kept a photograph of Chandler; and a 1990 unreported rape in Pasco County.

You can lock in on crime

Burglaries to vehicles, sheds and homes are often listed in the daily Police Briefs reported in the Sanford Herald. Too often, police reports indicate they occurred when a door or window was left open or unlocked.

There may be few ways to prevent burglaries when a window or door is smashed open. But affording an opportunity for an unauthorized entry because no locks were used is foolish and must cease.

There is no question that burglaries against private citizens as well as businesses are increasing. Police say money from the selling of items taken during a theft often end up being used for drug purchases.

Thefts and burglaries can occur anywhere, and at any time. Several have occurred right in the downtown Sanford area recently, in broad daylight.

Police are willing to give suggestions on burglar-proofing a home. Classes are offered on home safety from time to time. Yet most people ignore the advice and continue to refrain from using locks.

Carrying a large number of keys may seem cumbersome. Having to unlock a door even when it has only been closed for a moment, may be time-consuming. But in comparison to the loss and/or damage that could result when a burglary takes place, they become minor inconveniences.

While maintaining a constant vigilance against a criminal attack and the on-going requirement of locking doors may seem difficult to adjust to at first, it will eventually become almost second-nature.

Exercise caution when leaving the house even for a moment to go to the mailbox. Think twice when parking your car and going into a store to pay for a gas purchase. Remember to lock the door, and be certain windows are closed.

After this practice is followed for a length of time, locking will become a standard operational procedure.

Then, and only then, can you pat yourself on the back. You have helped protect yourself and your valuables, and done a service in reducing crime.

Memorial Stadium

I see by the Herald it's possible the city wants to break its lease with Wes Rinker and regain responsibility for the local ball park, Seminole Memorial Stadium. This is because Rinker failed in making his "Pilot" payments to the county. In case some of you folks aren't familiar with the term "Pilot," it means payment in lieu of taxes. It seems somewhere down the line if a governmental agency leases property to a "for profit" organization, the group must pay whatever taxes would be assessed.

I have no argument with that. However, it must be remembered that the property in question is the Seminole Memorial Stadium. It was built by the citizens of Sanford as a memorial to the men and women of this county who gave their lives in service to this country during World War II.

This means that if the city of Sanford breaks its lease with Rinker, the city commission must be prepared to allocate necessary funds to maintain the facility. I say this because there was a time when the stadium was not leased and the city did not have the funds to maintain the facility in a manner appropriate to honor the people it was built to memorialize.

Mr. Rinker first leased the stadium back in the 1970s. I can recall, as a member of the city commission, the city manager highly complimenting Wes for the manner in which he maintained the stadium. So, if the city and the county want to eliminate Rinker and simply let the facility again "go to pot" they'll be in for some severe criticism and demands for expenditures to properly maintain it. If the city's Parks Department wants to take charge and maintain it, that will be quite satisfactory — just as long as the folks who didn't come home from World War II are well remembered for their sacrifices to make it possible for us to enjoy the lives we do today. Many of you editors and readers don't remember these fellows. Then again, a lot of us do. We miss them very much.

Students: Be prepared for challenge

President William Clinton is in Japan this week hoping to make some inroads in the terrific trade imbalance with Japan. The president envisions that Japan will permit us access to more of their markets. He has stressed the global nature of the recession. It seems apparent that worldwide, our destinies are entwined in resolving economic problems.

The one world that Wendell Wilkie spoke of many years ago is upon us. The message to our young people who are the future workers of America is to make school count. Remain in school and discipline yourselves to learn as much as possible. Don't just get by in school. Instead, consider the courses that will prepare you for the job market.

Believe in yourselves. It is generally accepted by psychologists that all people can learn. The normal curve of the distribution of intelligence affirms that there are few geniuses and about a like number of the population who have extreme difficulty learning. Thus the majority of us are capable of learning.

Information about career choices should be an integral part of the curriculum, as early as elementary school. This might serve as the foundation for their future career choices. When students reach middle and secondary school they will already be conversant with divergent careers and the prerequisite courses.

Avoidance of difficult courses has almost become an American tradition. Conversely, many foreign cultures insist that youth pursue the most rigorous courses. For example, four years of their native language and mathematics are standard. Proficiency in a foreign language is also expected. Computer technology is another must. It is the language of the present and future.

SEMINOLE OPINION

Attitude is a salient variable in the learning process. The student's attitude and the teacher's attitude are equally important. Acquiring a thirst for knowledge makes learning an exciting adventure. One's appetite for learning becomes insatiable. School must not be viewed as a necessary chore but an exploration into the future.

Teacher attitude and expectation that the majority of children can learn will translate into devising techniques to address the needs of all students. All students must learn because they will need to support themselves. Secondary students must remain in school and develop skills to become self-sustaining.

Change is everywhere, nothing remains the same. America is changing and we have an obligation to prepare our children to meet this change. Education needs to be taken very, very seriously.

Our young people should not view school as a necessary chore to be rid of as quickly as possible. They must be helped to understand that school is the key that unlocks their dreams of the future. Dreams do come true if one is willing to work hard.

Tomorrow and all of our tomorrows rest upon our children. We must maximize the advantages we have as Americans to maintain our position as world leaders.

Although there are always people who endeavor to maintain the status quo, this is impossible, change is continually occurring. President Clinton has been working diligently to bring about change. He will continue his efforts to open the foreign markets to offset the negative trade balance. As more jobs are created at home and abroad our youth must be prepared to step into the 21st century and confront the challenges with confidence.

Work to be done about violence

BOSTON — It's not that I am without sympathy for Hollywood. At times, the moguls of the entertainment world have, after all, been the innocent victims of false accusations.

Consider the man in Wichita, Kansas, who recently alerted the police after calling a video store and hearing these words in the background: "Everyone down on the floor!" When the cruiser arrived, the sound turned out to be a soundtrack. The scene of the crime was a scene from "Sister Act."

Nevertheless, I watched for years with morbid fascination as the entertainment industry denied any link between violent acts on the screen — big or small — and violent behavior in real life. Research piled up 3,000 studies high, showing that violence increases aggressiveness, fearfulness, callousness among young viewers. And so did the excuses.

Even the stars of the so-called capital of liberalism — the protectors of endangered species, the wearers of red ribbons, and the fund-raisers of humane causes — came to sound like the disinformation folk at the Tobacco Industry and the NRA:

"There is no absolute proof that violence begets violence."

"We live in a violent society; we didn't create it."

"Movies don't kill people; people kill people."

The same actors, producers and executives who talked at Emmy and Oscar time about the rich possibilities of promoting social change through their media threw up their hands at the very mention of violence. Suddenly, they were only the helpless products of their society. Indeed, anybody who suggested that they should temper their product would be instantly Gored — Tipper Gore-d — as an enemy of liberty and free speech.

But finally, grudgingly and belatedly, a klatch of powerful entertainment figures is openly admitting that an overdose of violent viewing is harmful for children and other living creatures. It's almost as if the tobacco companies had finally confessed that smoking caused lung cancer.

In a breakthrough or at least a slow, grinding turnaround, four television networks agreed last week under congressional pressure to put a warning label on violent programs.

Maybe these much-heralded warnings merit a laugh track more than applause. After all, in this two-year trial the labels will only go on programs that the networks' own standards (!) departments decide are violent. They will appear on exactly one program in the fall: "NYPD Blue." Moreover, the itty-bitty warning will merely flash on the screen before the program and during the break. And it will read — Wimp Alert! — "Due to some violent content, parental discretion advised."

But, in a phrase that will send chills down the mogul spine, this is a beginning. A beginning for the average American child who still sees 8,000 murders and 100,000 acts of violence on television before he or she is out of grammar school.

"One 'next step' that's been suggested for television is the so-called 'V-chip' which would allow the technologically non-phobic parent — you know who you are, both of you — to program violent shows off their set. Another step would follow the Europeans and relegate these shows for the late night hours.

The problem of violent entertainment is not only a problem of what appears on the networks, by no means the worst culprits, or even on television. Today's movie is on cable next year. Today's network show will be in reruns on independent stations until the year 2034. "Ambush in Waco" may have the half-life of nuclear waste. It's a problem of content, creativity and commitment that runs all across the industry.

The most dour, if not downright dismal, comment that accompanied the networks announcement was CBS's Howard Stringer's warning about the warnings: "We don't want to turn the vast wasteland into the dull wasteland." Are these our options: mayhem or boredom?

Violence is the easy way in and out of a story. It fitnesses plot and character development. It "travels well" to foreign markets. Is that all Hollywood offers now: cheap thrills or no thrills?

On August 2nd, there will be a meeting of the whole television industry to discuss this. And Jack Valenti of the Motion Picture Association of America will be meeting with what he calls the "creative community" about deglamorizing violence in film.

This is the time, no it's past time, for the star-studded names of Hollywood, the talent behind distant political causes and far-flung action committees, to change the world a bit closer to home. There is work to be done behind the scenes and against the acts...of violence.

The average American child still sees 8,000 murders and 100,000 acts of violence on TV before he or she is out of grammar school.

Senate Democrats brace for elections

WASHINGTON — The official postscript for the Democrats' lopsided loss in the Texas special election took place at a June 15 "training session," where Senate Democrats gathered to lick their wounds and focus on the future.

If this meeting is a primer for next year's midterm elections, 1994 will be a long year for the Democratic Party.

"There is a sort of spreading panic among the folks up for '94, and even '96," said one Democratic strategist familiar with the meeting. The final product, a memo drafted by the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee summarizing the "lessons learned," constitutes one of the most bizarre takes on the Texas fiasco, or any other recent election.

Senators gearing up for re-election are warned in the memo about the public's growing intolerance to "contextual bastardization" (fudging); they are warned that they are "being watched" by Republicans; and they are warned that "reporters would love to get your phone records."

Sen. Bob Krueger, who lost the seat, and Bill Clinton hardly figured in the Democrat's latest Texas review — almost as if they played cameo roles in the June 5 runoff campaign in which Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison trounced Krueger by a 2-1 margin. Taxes, spending cuts and Krueger's loss of dignity — he donned a "Terminator" costume for TV ads — are absent from the critique.

While the Democrats microanalyze their defeat, Republicans view the race in simpler terms. "Kay Bailey Hutchison won because she was a vastly superior candidate to Bob Krueger," a Hutchison campaign official told us. Hutchison's win, this official said, merely reflected the "total disenchantment of Texans with the Clinton economic plan," as well Clinton's loss of personal credibility with voters.

Democrats don't see it that way. "Most things in (DSCC) campaign seminars are reiterations," says Gail Stoltz, DSCC political director and one of the authors of the memo. Stoltz soft-pedals the memo as something that talks about the "technical lessons" of Texas, not the "grand strategy." Some Senate Democrats wonder about that line in an age when technique triumphs over theme, and mechanics over message.

"If you stretch the truth in your ads, you'll pay a price," states the memo. Almost ruefully, the DSCC memo explains that "the standards have shifted since you ran in 1988. The press and the public are less tolerant of claims that can't be supported, or even contextual bastardization."

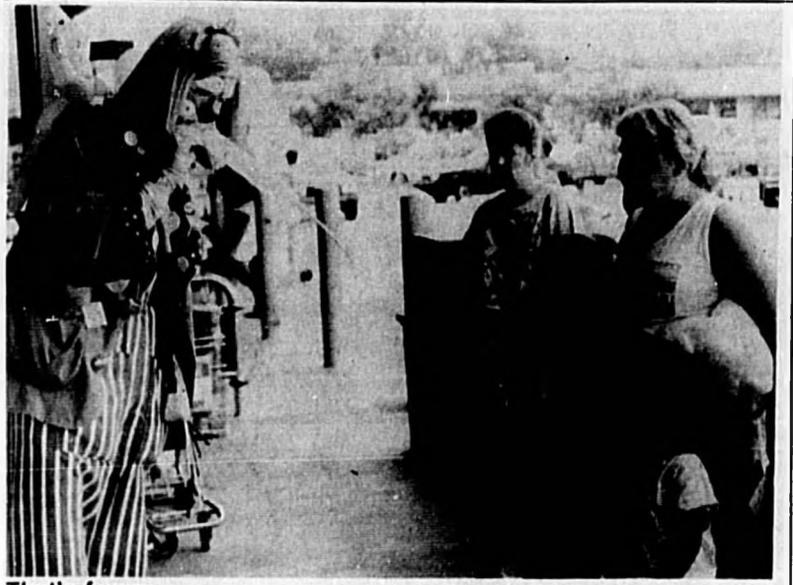

The Democrats were responding to the whipping dealt to Krueger by the Texas media after Krueger aired misleading ads about what various newspapers had written about Hutchison. The ads selectively quoted allegations that Hutchison misused her office as state treasurer, charges she denied. The DSCC drew two lessons from the episode: "Control your consultants" and "deviation from the trust carries a price."

The "siege" mentality of Democratic strategists preparing for 1994 reveals itself several times in the DSCC memo.

"The Democrats have everything now," one Senate Democratic strategist told us. "They have the presidency and the Congress. The question is, what are we going to lose in 1994? If this is the caliber of thinking and strategy, a lot of Republicans are going to be packing their bags and moving to Washington in 1994."

If this meeting is a primer for next year's midterm elections, 1994 will be a long year for the Democratic Party.

That's funny

Clowns, refreshments, animal acts and drawings for gifts donated by merchants kept Sanford shoppers such as Megan and Crystal Cason, ages 4 and 7, amused Saturday at Seminole Centre. Wal-Mart employee Karen Johnson said proceeds from the Mall-a-rama will benefit the Sanford branch of Father Flanagan's Boys Town.

Derby

Along with the thrill of competing, Shannon said she enjoys meeting new friends at the derby who have interests similar to hers. Conversation opens usually center around the soapbox racers.

"I look at their car and say 'I like your car. How did you do this or that,'" she said.

Looking forward to her July 23 birthday and starting to Sanford Middle School in the fall, Shannon clearly has August in Akron on her mind. She is already planning to build a new car and entering the kit division for the 1994 race.

There are three divisions in the derby: stock, kit and masters.

Derby-day preparations include bringing fans, lots to drink, tarpaulins or anything to create a little shade in order to cut down on the sweltering heat of a Central Florida afternoon, according to Shannon. However, drivers must watch how much they drink.

"You can't be over 206 pounds total weight (car and driver)," she explained. Weigh-ins are conducted before and after the elimination heats and before the winners leave at the end of the day. "A few ounces can make a difference," said the race-wise driver.

The only child of road rally enthusiasts, Sam and Edna Brewer, Shannon remembers seeing racing plaques on the walls of her home as she was growing up. A chance encounter with the running of a derby race a few years ago sparked her interest. She recalls thinking, "The Soapbox Derby is my chance to do it (race)."

When she was old enough to enter the race, she and her parents built the Catspaw Racing entry. Derby participants are from 9 to 16 years old.

Although right now she hopes to become a veterinarian, Shannon said she would like to keep racing as a hobby. "I'd like to race at the Indianapolis 500."

The owner of five cats, the Catspaw Racing name seems like a natural for Shannon. Negative and Positive, whose names are indicative of forces exerted on a race car, along with Whiskers, will probably be cheering Shannon on from her Sanford home. Hallo, an orange cat, and Ween, a black one, both who joined the Brewer family one Halloween night, will probably also be wishing the young driver a purrfect race.

defense witness during the pre-trial preparations and one defense witness now lives in Bermuda. Robert Fisher, Deen's partner told the court the defense doesn't plan to call the woman living out of the country. When Allawas discovered the Bermuda resident allegedly lived in Brewster's home during the period in question, she said she would like to question her.

Following the hearing, Deen downplayed the number of new counts filed against his client. "The state could file 500 counts or even 1,000 additional counts," Deen said, "but it is all a figment of someone's imagination." He claims there was never a sexual relationship between Brewster and the alleged victim.

Up until mid-June, Brewster was receiving a full salary from the Sanford Police Department. He was suspended with pay by former chief Steve Harriett in 1991 shortly before he was arrested on the sex-related charges. Current chief Ralph Russell fired Brewster after the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) division of standards and training found probable cause to revoke Brewster's police certification. Brewster plans to appeal his dismissal after the criminal case against him is resolved. During his 21-month suspension, Brewster was paid $53,236. Brewster joined the Sanford Police Department in 1980.

allowed the cat's face to broaden fully. Morris does not have any offspring. He still has his claws.

The spokescat stretches out on a cool metal filing cabinet, waiting for his fourth and last appearance of the day to be over so he can return to his hotel in the Disney resort area. Asked if Morris will visit the Disney Theme Parks, Martwick quips, "He might go over and see what he could do with those mice over there."

At ease around dogs, Martwick said Morris is not too sociable around other cats. "I think that's a territorial thing many cats have," he explained, "plus the fact he wants to be a big cheese."

In September, Morris will be featured on A Current Affair

Extra along with other pets that works like Lassie and possibly Benji.

Owned by 9-Lives, Morris doesn't draw a salary but receives free food and care. Martwick is paid an undisclosed animal handler's fee.

Despite all the travel and attention, Morris is just like any ordinary cat when it comes to dinner.

"He's like other cats. He lets me know when he's hungry," Martwick explains. "He sits and stares at the cabinet where the cat food is and if you don't hurry up, he comes over and bumps you. In the morning, he wakes me up, very gently, at first. He just sits by my head and kneads and purrs. That's the only time I hear him purr. And he waits for me to open my eyes," he said. "If I close my eyes. Bump."

Longwood Commission agenda

Therefore, since we have so great a cloud of witnesses surrounding us, let us also lay aside every encumbrance, and the sin which so easily entangles us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us.

Hebrews 12:1.

Because our brother, uncle, companion, "father", and friend insisted on living his life according to his own counsel, his death caught us, though certainly not him, unawares. In retrospect, we acknowledge Waldense "Pap" Refoe's high regard for independence, and we salute that firm resolve he held dear.

For your tremendous outpouring of care and concern during this extremely difficult time, we extend our heartfelt thank you. We are humbled by and appreciative of your thoughtfulness.

Let's

Ask Teena

DEAR TEENA:
My brother's friends are making me crazy.

I am a 13-year-old girl, but I look a lot older.

They are always trying to spy on me when I'm changing my clothes or taking a shower and they just stare at me all the time when I'm in the pool.

They're all about 12 and 13 (my brother is 12) and I don't like any of them.

Mostly, I'm uncomfortable being stared at, but then I don't like any of them either.

UNCOMFORTABLE, SANFORD

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE:

First things first.

It is very wrong for them to be spying on you when you are in private.

Talking to them about it probably won't do you any good. They are just discovering an interest in girls and they're not sure how to handle some of the physical changes they are going through themselves.

Talk to your parents. Maybe they can intervene and keep a closer eye on things when the boys are over at your house.

DEAR TEENA:

What's the big deal with not doing drugs?

I know all kinds of people who do drugs and it doesn't hurt them at all. And it's not just kids. I know teachers, friends of my parents, even a youth minister at a church who do some drugs. They aren't crazy or bad.

Why is everyone making a big deal out of this?

I've been smoking marijuana for a couple of years and I'm not a drug addict either.

CONFUSED, SANFORD

DEAR CONFUSED:

Some times the bad effects of doing drugs aren't something you can see right away, but they are there.

Some people do drugs for years and no one notices and then all of a sudden the effects become apparent. Don't let it fool you. Those little changes add up.

If, as you said, you're not addicted to the drug, put it down and quit using it today. If you can't do it, find someone who can help you do it.

DEAR TEENA:

I don't know what I want to do with my life.

I'm going to be a senior next year and I'm not sure what I want to do "when I grow up." I've got a couple of career ideas, but I haven't decided yet.

All my friends already have the rest of their lives figured out and I don't even know what I want for lunch today.

What's wrong with me?

SLOW TO PLAN, LAKE MARY

DEAR SLOW:

Don't worry. You're not alone. Some people get through college and don't know what they want to do. If you've got it narrowed down to a couple of alternatives, you're a step ahead of them.

But do begin to give it some serious thought this summer. When school starts in the fall, make an appointment with your guidance counselor to talk about some of your options.

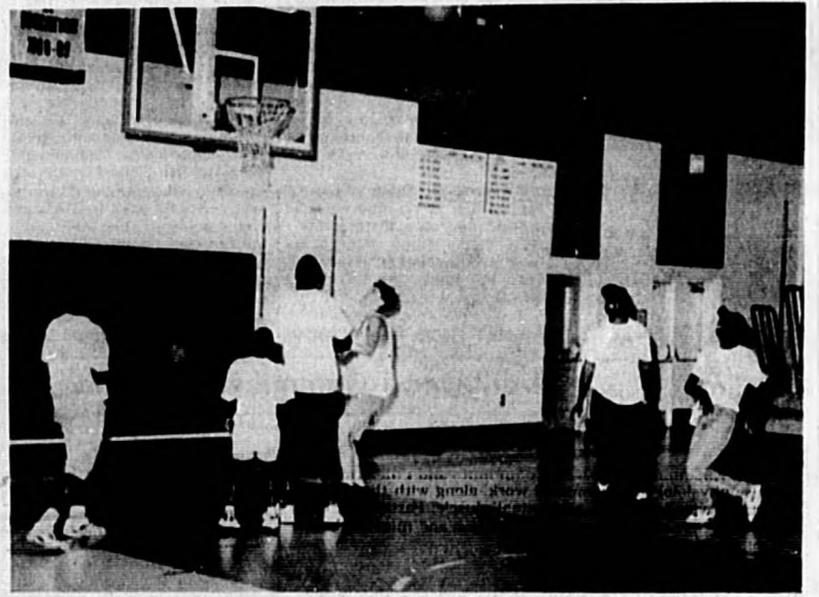

Don't panic. You'll be OK.

Spending summer days at camp

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office Youth Camp ended Friday with a picnic and some basketball court action at Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary. Even though one camp has ended, the Police Athletic League will continue providing a fun place for kids ages 10 to 17 at the PAL Summer Camp, held at Sanford Middle School in Sanford. The camp will continue over the next three weeks and is open to all kids at no charge. Above left: Kevin Grant helps Anthony Clayton up after an action-packed move in basketball. Above right: Kids take a break from activities to fill up on tasty summer fare: hamburgers and hot dogs. Below: It's back on the court at Greenwood Lakes for some last-day-of-camp practice shots.

WATER Magic

A Little Bit Of HUMOR

Take a clean, dry glass and pour water into it until it is as full as you can get it. Be careful not to spill any water on the outside of the glass while making sure that the glass has as much water as it will hold. Now, how many pennies do you think you can drop into the glass before the water overflows?

Take one penny at a time and slide it slowly into the water, then let it drop. Keep dropping pennies into the glass and you will be surprised at how many pennies can be added.

Jack: I'm studying to be a barber.
Kay: Will it take long?
Jack: No, I'm learning all the short cuts.

Visitor: What a glorious painting! I wish I could take all those colors home!
Artist: You will - you're sitting on my palette.

Lynne: What did you think of the new play that opened last night?
Oscar: Very refreshing - I felt like a new man when I woke up.

Nathan: I had to throw away my alarm clock last week.
Alan: Why? Was it broken?
Nathan: No. It kept going off while I was asleep.

Molly: What do you get if you cross a frog and a toaster?
Polly: I don't know. What?
Molly: A loadster!

Optical Illusions

An optical illusion is when something seems to be one way in appearance but in reality is not. For instance, as we look down a long, straight road, we see that it seems to be narrower in the distance but it isn't really. Try to answer the questions about these objects.

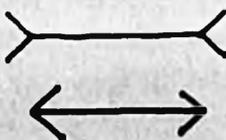

1. Is this book opening toward you or away from you?

2. Which is bigger?

3. Which line (excluding arrows) is longer?

Answers: 1 either way depending on how you look at it, 2 both the same, 3 both the same.

Having problems sleeping?

Tired of feeling tired? Having trouble sleeping? It is estimated that from 20 percent to 40 percent of all adults have trouble sleeping, and about 17 percent of them consider the problem serious.

Insomnia appears to be more prevalent in women, and the problem seems to increase with age and socio-economic conditions.

The American Journal of Psychiatry not too long ago reported an interesting study in which one group of insomniacs was treated with a tranquilizer drug, while another group of non-sleepers learned to do some muscle-relaxing exercises and underwent other behavior-training activities.

At first, the tranquilizer-taking group got more sleep, but by the second week, the other group had caught up. By the fifth week, the group that had undergone behavior training was falling asleep faster and sleeping better than the tranquilizer group.

So if you're chronically unable to get a good night's sleep, here are some tips for good snoozing:

- If you can't sleep because of worry or grief, correct what's bothering you. And if you can't, try confiding in a friend, join a support group or find a qualified counselor.
 - Don't drink alcohol before bedtime — and give up smoking. Alcohol can disrupt sleep patterns, and nicotine doesn't help.
 - Avoid heavy meals in the evening, and don't drink large amounts of liquid before retiring.
 - Eliminate caffeine-loaded beverages, except in the morning or early afternoon.
 - Avoid daytime naps, even when you are tired.
 - Relax for an hour before bedtime, such as reading, watching TV or taking a warm bath.
 - If you can't fall asleep after 20 minutes, try thinking about a happy event; it may lull you to sleep.
 - Finally, go to bed and get up on a regular schedule, no matter how much you have — or haven't — slept.
- If these tips don't do the trick for you the first night, don't stay up and worry about it. They may start working over a week's time.

Women's protection from heart disease

As men and women age, blood pressure usually goes up. But more women than men wind up suffering hypertension. Can hormones help?

It has already been shown that post-menopausal estrogen therapy keeps a woman's levels of "good" cholesterol high and provides protection against heart disease.

Now, researchers are finding that estrogen may also help prevent high blood pressure by dilating blood vessels.

Current animal research suggests that low-dose estrogens, such as those given to post-menopausal women, may prevent blood vessels from constricting too much.

At this stage, however, the research is still very preliminary. But if it's proven true, physicians may one day be telling women about an added benefit of hormone replacement therapy.

HOUSE CALL

Making backyard pools safe

Summer is here. The backyard swimming pools will be coming alive with a multitude of activities. Cool and sparkling water has a great attraction for adults, adolescents and young children alike. Swimming pools should be very safe and enjoyable. Utmost precaution has to be exercised when very young children are around swimming pools.

Unfortunately, though not often, this last part is often overlooked and the sad reality becomes a dreadful nightmare. Swimming pools are a great source of fun and enjoyment, however, they can become a source of disaster and devastation for the families.

For children under the age of five years, drowning now outranks motor vehicular occupant or pedestrian trauma as the single leading cause of injuries and death. On an annual basis in the United States there is an average of almost 1,500 deaths due to children drowning, age group 0-14 years. In some of the water oriented counties and states, drowning and near drowning in swimming pools account for 85 to 89 percent under the age of five. Not surprisingly, more than half of all these drownings occur in the child's own home pool, and the rest occur at the residence of a friend, relative, neighbor or at a public facility. Not even a week or two will pass wherein you have not heard, read or seen this preventable tragedy.

Death of a child due to drowning is a great, tragic event for the entire family. However, one has to remember that momentary lapses of supervision by a couple of minutes could result in a deadly mistake and cause the loss of a loved one. There is no substitute for the continuous supervision by a designated, responsible adult.

B. Four sided pool fencing securing the entire pool area from the house.

This is a major factor in prevention of swimming pool drownings and is ranked second to the continuous and intensified the medical/nursing care required for a near drowning victim may cost $200,000 annually and is not always covered by medical insurance.

Statistically, backyard swimming pools are even more dangerous than carelessly kept handguns around the house as far as injuries and deaths among young children are considered. It is important to note that county prosecutors are now looking into cases of childhood drownings very closely to find out whether a so-called supervising adult or a caretaker can be held responsible for these deaths. Preventive measures

What can be done to make swimming pools safe, enjoyable and a source of great fun for the entire family?

A. Continuous and intensified visual supervision over all young children by a responsible adult who is certified in the cardiopulmonary resuscitation of the young children.

One has to remember that momentary lapses of supervision by a couple of minutes could result in a deadly mistake and cause the loss of a loved one. There is no substitute for the continuous supervision by a designated, responsible adult.

visual supervision.

From the studies in Australia and New Zealand where there is a national pool fencing law, it is believed that 80 percent of these deaths occurred five years prior to the enactment of the law, and could have been prevented by complete pool fencing.

The cost of the complete fencing is around $750.00.

C. ● Availability of personal vests and/or floating devices for very young children.

● Instruction in swimming for young children by a certified instructor.

● Counseling the parents of young children and making them aware of the great dangers of backyard swimming pools

This could be beneficially achieved by pediatricians, physicians and other community leaders.

Fitness Factor

Active teens may reduce heart risks

By IRA DREYFUSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Being active may give pre-teens and teenagers more than good-looking muscles. A study indicates they may have a cholesterol profile that links up with a lower risk of heart disease in adults.

The study doesn't prove that active young people will face lower risks of heart disease when they get older, but it does indicate that they head into adulthood with a healthy head start, one researcher says.

It also indicates that hard work can pay off even for those who are not gifted with the ability to do well in fitness-oriented activities such as biking and running, according to the researcher, Michael R. Hawes of the University of Calgary.

Hawes and colleague Esther Suter looked at 39 boys and 58 girls, ages 10-15, at Strathcona Tweedmuir School, a private school in the Canadian city.

The researchers gathered data on what the students ate and how fat they were, so the study could statistically control for those factors while it examined exercise.

With parental help, the students listed their physical activity over seven days. Based on that, the researchers tallied how many calories the students burned, in multiples of resting metabolic rates. For instance, moderate activities such as softball rated 4 calories per minute, while very hard activities such as field hockey and tennis rated 9 calories per minute.

The students also were tested on an exercise bike to see how well they did at aerobic work.

The researchers then compared what they found with the results of blood tests. They published their findings in the American College of Sports Medicine's journal, Medicine and Science in Sports and Exercise.

Higher levels of HDL, a form of cholesterol that seems to help keep arteries clear, were found in the more physically active boys and girls, the report said. Also, HDL accounted for a larger proportion of total cholesterol in these students. Very low-density lipoprotein — VLDL, a form of cholesterol associated with a higher risk of heart disease — was at a lower level.

"The more activity the child participated in, the better their lipid profile looked," Hawes said.

Aerobic fitness was not directly linked to better cholesterol levels, although there was an indirect link because aerobically fit students did tend to be more active, the report said.

It might make more sense, therefore, to look at overall activity instead of focusing on the aerobic component in trying to get young people to exercise for their health. Hawes, a professor of anatomy and physical education, said.

The school in the study had an unusually high requirement for physical education; however, other research indicates that physical activity drops in the teen years, the study said.

Berenson doubted that good exercise habits could overpower a bad, high-fat diet. But coupling good exercise with good diet would work well in reducing the risk of heart attacks in later life.

Premenstrual disorder

Psychiatrists acknowledge problem, want more research

By RICHARD L. VERNACI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The new diagnostic manual for psychiatrists says a disabling premenstrual disorder marked by recurring depression and other bad moods is worthy of more research. But the book stops short of calling it a mental illness.

Still, women's groups already have protested the listing of carrying "premenstrual dysphoric disorder" in the manual used by mental health workers to diagnose mental illness.

It is in an appendix to the fourth edition of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, approved Friday by the American Psychiatric Association's board of trustees.

When the subject was discussed at the association's convention in May, the meeting hall was picketed. Sensitive to the criticism, the psychiatrists also went out of their way to make clear they are not classifying women who suffer from the more common premenstrual syndrome — known as PMS — as mentally ill.

In a statement Friday regarding premenstrual dysphoric disorder — known as PMDD — the board of trustees said, "Research indicates it is quite rare, found in approximately 3 to 5 percent of menstruating women."

PMS occurs more often but is far less severe than premenstrual dysphoric disorder.

The association defines PMDD as "a pattern of severe, recurrent symptoms of depression and other negative mood states, that occurs in the last week of the menstrual cycle and markedly interferes with daily living."

Even so, the manual does not list PMDD as a true diagnostic category, but as in the earlier edition, it calls for more research.

There already has been quite a bit.

A summary of the literature on the topic ran 150 pages, said Dr. Harold Pincus, director of the association's research office. The decision to list it as a topic for more research in the earlier edition "did generate a great deal of research, not only about PMDD, but about women's health," Pincus said.

Another disorder — "self-defeating personality disorder" — that had been in the same diagnostic category as premenstrual dysphoric disorder was dropped altogether from the new manual. Pincus said the earlier listing had not generated much research and the listing was not really necessary because it could be treated like any other personality disorder.

He described it as a state "where people snatch defeat out of the jaws of victory."

The new manual, which mental health workers call the DSM, replaces an edition that first came out in 1987 and has sold more than a million copies.

"It standardizes the definitions so that people understand what other people are talking about when they use certain terms," said Dr. Harold Pincus, director of research for the psychiatric association.

The new edition tries to make the definitions more precise and to offer easier access to the source material upon which they are based.

Teacher claiming $111 million winning ticket hides out, makes plans

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — A schoolteacher who claims to hold a lottery ticket worth $111 million is hiding out in Florida and making spending plans that have nothing to do with mansions and luxury cars.

"The particular school I was teaching at could use some improvements that I would like to help them make," Leslie Robins, 30, told the St. Petersburg Times in a story published Saturday. "And we would like to help out the hospital where my fiancée is."

Robins, a junior high school English teacher from Fond du Lac, Wis., plans to share the largest individual lottery prize in U.S. history with his fiancée, Colleen De Vries, 24, who works as a nurse in nearby Hartford, Wis.

After Robins' number came up in Wednesday's multi-state Powerball lottery, the couple flew to his parents' home in Tampa and then went to an undisclosed location on Florida's Gulf Coast to escape attention.

Hordes of reporters, well-wishers and opportunists have been dogging them since his ticket became famous, he said.

"The first two days we were probably more scared and intimidated than elated," Robins told a reporter at a restaurant Friday night. "Overall, things are beginning to die down enough where we feel comfortable."

De Vries said they have no plans to live lavishly. They may travel, but there won't be any "luxury cars or mansions or vacation homes that I can see right now."

"That's just how we are," said the Fond du Lac native. "Our main goal is to provide for friends and family, and be able to allow them to enjoy life with us."

Robins said he wanted to apologize to friends, family and past students who left messages on the couple's Wisconsin answering machine.

"We hope that people don't think we are rude by not coming forward," he said. "It's just not practical to return the calls."

Arring did not fare much better to start with as he walked the first man he faced and then gave up a grand slam, on the first pitch, to Bronso.

Shawn Kirsch walked and, after a pop up for the second out, Joe McCreight reached on an

RAINES GAUGE

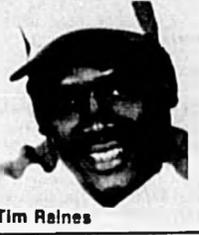

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1993 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1993 games) in the third column.

Raines was two-for-five, scored one run and drove in two more but the Baltimore Orioles came from behind to maul the White Sox 15-6 Friday night.

Things got worse Saturday as Raines went 0-for-four and the Sox lost 6-0.

Applications available for unique quota hunts

In addition to the regular nine-day and special quota hunt program that has been under way since June 1, the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission offers an assortment of unique quota hunts.

Applications for these hunts are available from the Commission's regional offices. They must be received by the Commission's Tallahassee office July 14-30 in order to be included in the random drawing.

At the Three Lakes Wildlife Management Area (WMA) in central Florida, hunters who have mobility impairments and who require special equipment have an opportunity to enjoy outdoor recreation. In addition, the Holton Creek WMA in northeast Florida has been set aside for the exclusive use of mobility-impaired hunters. These hunts are not intended for hunters who have the Florida disabled hunting and fishing license, but rather those persons permanently confined to a wheelchair, persons who require mechanical aids (crutches and walkers) to walk or persons with complete single leg amputations.

Interested sportsmen should ask for the Three Lakes and Holton Creek mobility-impaired persons hunt application. Another unique hunt the Commission offers is one established for young hunters

8-15 years old under adult supervision. Two WMAs in northeast Florida — Camp Blanding and Andrews — offer the opportunity for adults to take young hunters on a public hunting area where the number of hunters and the hunting areas are rigidly controlled to provide an optimum learning experience.

These hunts have been extremely popular and the number of applicants exceeds the number of spaces available each year. To apply, hunters should ask for the Camp Blanding and Andrews supervised youth hunt application.

FISHING FORECAST

The best bass fishing is in the Wekiva River. River bass move up into the Wekiva in the summer to escape the warmer river waters. Bass and catfish are your best bet in the river, as continue to shut down in the intense heat.

Sebastian Inlet is packed with spawning snook, but the fish must be released due to season closure. Live shrimp on the outgoing tide is the ticket for sure action. Some big tarpon are also present, and will provide some real thrills for anglers expecting something much smaller.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports calm seas and good offshore action with dolphin, wahoo, and king mackerel. Most of the fish are coming from 110-150 feet of water. Big grouper and snapper are being caught 27 miles offshore in the "steeples." A few dolphin and king mackerel are roaming Pelican Flats and 8-A reefs. Redfish are rated as good on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Ponce Inlet is still providing mixed action with redfish, whiting, drum, bluefish, jack crevalle, and sheepshead. Live or dead shrimp is the best bait for steady action. Use the lightest weight possible in order to detect bites. The best action is taking place around the north jetties, but plenty of fish are being caught from the south jetties as well.

New training home means no more bugs to Dolphins

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer

DAVIE — Cockroaches and cramped lockers are now just a bad memory to the Miami Dolphins, who hope that their new $8.5 million training site will provide the cornerstone for a championship season.

The Dolphins open camp July 19 in a glistening complex at Nova University. They've moved out of their home since 1970 at St. Thomas University north of Miami, where the bugs were too big and the accommodations too small.

"St. Thomas had its own ... character," linebacker David Griggs said with a chuckle. "Everything was old, and the weight room wasn't even air-conditioned. You'd go in there after practice and you couldn't get the energy to do good lifting."

St. Thomas also became infamous for insects. One former player called it Cockroach City.

"I won't miss the bugs," linebacker Bryan Cox said.

Team officials visited similar sites around the NFL while planning construction of their new two-story home. They designed a 5,800-square-foot weight room, about three times larger than the old one. The locker room is also much more spacious, and a team lounge is a new feature.

Players like the commute to Nova. Many live nearby, and it's no coincidence that the Dolphins decided to move to a campus where quarterback Dan Marino's 6-year-old son attends elementary school.

"Guys can spend the whole day here," Griggs said. "The team's going to be closer and in better shape. I'd say the difference is going to be two or three more wins."

That's a lot for a team that came within one game of the Super Bowl last season.

When the Dolphins set up headquarters at St. Thomas — then known as Biscayne College — they were one of the first NFL teams to have offices, practice fields and dormitories for players at the same site.

But in recent years, the run-down complex became something of a joke around the league. The move to Nova will make it easier for the Dolphins to lure players from other teams in this era of expanded free agency.

The Robbie family, forced by financial difficulties to sell most of the team this year, nonetheless agreed to spend $3.5 million on the Nova complex.

"It says something about their commitment to winning," Cox said.

"This is a good investment for the team," said Janet Robbie, the club's executive vice president. "We knew we had to have a new facility."

A $5 million bond issue covered the rest of the cost of the project. The Dolphins signed a 10-year lease, with an option for an additional 30 years.

Located in Broward County 15 miles north of Joe Robbie Stadium, the nine-acre complex has two grass practice fields with 2,000 seats in permanent bleachers. Training facilities include sauna and steam rooms, five whirlpools and a therapy swimming pool.

as they jumped to a 2-0 in the bottom of the first inning. But Pierson came back with three unearned runs in the second inning and a run in the third inning to take a 4-2 advantage.

But Sanford exploded for seven runs in the bottom of the third inning and added an insurance run in the fourth inning to put the game away.

With the lead in hand right hander Todd Braden cruised the rest of the way, not allowing a run after the third inning and finishing with a five-hitter. He struck out six and gave up just the one earned run.

Wilcox again paced the attack, competing a perfect day at the plate by going three-for-three. He now has 12 hits in his last 12 at bats.

Also going three-for-three in the nightcap was Meadows, while Youmans and Tony Hensley both went two-for-three with a double. Morgan clipped in with double and Ryan Hall added a single to the 12 hit Cyclones offense.

Sanford improved to 9-12 overall and 9-7 in American Legion play.

The Cyclones are scheduled to play nine games over the next three days, traveling to Ormond Beach for a 6 p.m. doubleheader tomorrow (Monday), and then playing home doubleheaders with Deltona Trinity Christian at 3 p.m. Tuesday and against DeLand Post 6 on Wednesday starting a 3 p.m. All Sanford home games are at Alumni Field in the Seminole High School Baseball Complex.

Gaines, Carey Hand join forces

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Frederic F. Gaines, Jr., owner of Gaines Funeral Home, has announced his firm has entered into an agreement with the Carey Hand Group of Funeral Homes.

In making the announcement, Gaines said, "We are pleased to now be affiliated with other premier funeral service establishments in the Central Florida area."

He added, "Our efforts to affiliate with a larger organization were based on our desire to build on the service we currently offer client families and to gain the ability to expand our business presence within the state."

Gaines Funeral Home was founded in 1975 when Fred Gaines and W.L. Gramkow became partners to establish Gramkow-Gaines Funeral Home. Gaines bought Gramkow's interest in the business in 1985 and the firm became Gaines Funeral Home.

"It was important to us to affiliate with a firm that would allow us to carry on the tradition of service and involvement in the community that we have so carefully nurtured over the past 18 years," Gaines said.

"In addition to satisfying our needs in these areas we chose Carey Hand because of their continuing high standards of professionalism, service and integrity," he said. "They can provide the resources for our staff to perform even better, and this is the best way to assure that we will be able to provide the highest quality service for generations to come."

"I will continue to manage the funeral home just as in the past," Gaines commented. "No personnel changes are anticipated in the local organization, so client families can continue to depend on the fine services they have learned to expect from our firm."

He concluded, "We will be moving to the Carey Hand location at 335 E. S.R. 434 in Longwood, which will give us a newer and larger facility with which to serve our families."

Gaines has been located at 150 Dogtrack Road in Longwood.

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Stenstrom Realty, Inc., of Lake Mary, has named to head the sales team at Timacuan, according to Bill Singleton, marketing director for the Neal Harris Company which manages Timacuan.

Timacuan is located east of Rinehart Road, south of highway 48-A, within the city limits of Lake Mary.

Singleton said that Stenstrom was chosen to oversee sales of some 800 homesites in the community because of its track record.

In making the announcement, Singleton said, "Stenstrom Realty was founded in the 50's. The principals have seen the area grow and change. They've experienced all of the cycles and trends and they have an outstanding record for success because of that experience."

During the past few years, Stenstrom Realty's total sales dollar volume exceeded $100 million, despite dire economic conditions. The firm has completed transactions for over 10,000 buyers and sellers in its 38 year history.

"We need an aggressive sales effort at Timacuan, yet we need sales professionals who are going to see to every detail, both to our benefit and to that of the homebuyer," Singleton said. "We're confident that we've found the perfect combination of those factors with Stenstrom."

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Simplimatic Engineering Company, headquartered in Lynchburg, Va., has announced the appointment of Michael A. Nallen as business manager-modular products. Nallen, who resides with his family in Forest, Va., will manage Simplimatic's Simpli-Flex modular conveyor system, comprising a family of pre-engineered components which can be mixed or matched to accommodate different product handling needs.

"The modular design dramatically reduces engineering and installation time and costs, allows off-the-shelf delivery, and facilitates reuse of standard components during line upgrades or other revisions," Nallen said.

Sanford is the home of Simplimatic's machinery division. Located at 2801 W. Airport Blvd., it employs approximately 95 persons.

The business started in Sanford in 1967 as Acme Conveyor, and was purchased in the mid-70's by Simplimatic. Steve Price is the general manager of the Sanford operation.

Before joining Simplimatic, Nallen was engineering manager at Thermatool Corp., in East Haven, Conn.

Home builder looks to Lake Mary

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — Ryland Homes has expanded sales operations in Lake Mary. The company is planning for a third village, in the Crystal Creek area.

The new development is to be called Forest Oaks, an area containing 33 patio homes, adjoining a heavily wooded conservation area and Crystal Creek's neighborhood park and recreation area with lighted tennis, basketball, tot lot, and shaded picnic area.

"We've saved the best for last," said Kelly Dempsey,

Ryland's sales and marketing manager, noting that nine homes have already been pre-sold to "...families which were attracted to this charming neighborhood setting and its proximity to Lake Mary's fine school system."

Seven three and four-bedroom Forest Oaks plans, with 1,312 to 2,059 square feet of living area are being offered at prices starting in the low $90's. Construction is scheduled to begin in the middle of this month, with first occupancy scheduled for September.

"To facilitate the purchase and move-in process," Dempsey said. "Ryland will pay all first-time buyers' closing costs and build a home in as little as 100 days for those who need to move in quickly."

Dempsey said Ryland Mortgage Company also has low-interest and below market bond rate mortgage financing available.

In addition to the Lake Mary project, Ryland is currently building single-family homes, patio homes and townhomes in twelve residential communities in Seminole as well as Orange Counties.

The value of each award ranges from $8,000 to $24,000 over the four years of college undergraduate study. The specific amount for Hicks was not immediately announced.

The scholarships are presented annually by the UPS Foundation, and are awarded to children of United Parcel Service employees. Supported by other grants from UPS, the foundation contributes to institutions and organizations engaged in charitable and educational activities.

The local winner is the son of Marcie Hicks of Longwood, and plans to attend the University of Florida in the fall. His mother is employed as a delivery driver at the UPS facility in Longwood.

Matthew was an active participant at Lyman High School. He was on the varsity football team for three years, a member of student government and the Key Club. He was one of the top three people in his senior class.

The James E. Casey scholarship is named for one of the founders of UPS who, along with several other teenagers, started a Seattle, Wash. messenger service in 1907 that was the forerunner of the nationwide small package delivery company.

Scholarship winners are determined through a competition conducted by the Independent National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Orlando Predators' games are graced by Sanford cheerleader

By ED KORQAN
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — A Sanford girl makes good as Orlando Predator cheerleader, dance director and choreographer.

Carla Grant, a city of Sanford employee for nine years, mother of two fine young daughters, and dance director and choreographer for the Orlando Arena football team, is so busy these days that the only thing that has been able to help her out is her appointment book which she carries with her everywhere she goes.

Grant, who has been involved in cheerleading since her high school days, has been with the dance team for the past three years and just this past year has taken over leadership of the team.

She said, "It is a lot of fun. There is a lot of advantages to cheerleading, especially in a semi-professional league. You meet a lot of nice people that you would not normally meet. It is just an act of displaying your personality. You can just put it out on the field or the basketball court and let it all hang out. And it's the real you. You are full of excitement and you just demonstrate it. The moves are a part of your personality and you keep the crowd in mind wanting to please them with every step or body movement you make."

She continued, "It is cheerleading, but right now it is more than just cheerleading. It's dancing, and when you put the cheerleading and dancing together, it is a sport. Just as intense and as strenuous as what is happening on the field or the court in front of you. The other girls on the team and myself love the excitement."

Every game that is played is full of excitement. The players are a championship team and the cheerleaders take their work just as seriously. Even the cheerleaders suffer the tenseness that comes with the importance of each game or the sadness that follows a close game.

Grant said, "We played the Detroit Drive last week and this game was very intense for me because I was there last season. Watching the ballplayers out there on the field, I could see the tenseness. I felt so bad for them. I just wanted to go out there and give them something, maybe give them a massage or something to ease their stress. The chills just ran up and down my arms because I remember nothing terribly sad happened to the team last year except losing to Detroit and we wanted to beat them this year. Detroit was 16-0 until last week and the Predators won."

She continued, "I remembered last year the look on those guys' faces when we lost to Detroit. Many of them were in tears. I felt it too because we are a part of that team. When they lose we lose. I, personally, have always felt I was a part of that team and I was on my knees in the artificial turf in tears. I knew those cameras were there watching us but it is hard to hide your feelings under such tense circumstances."

Every week is different and every home game new routines have to be choreographed, practiced and then put on in front of the home crowd. The cheerleading dance team puts everything they have into pleasing the crowd. The 13 lovely women, in their Predator black chiffon costumes, give to the crowd a rousing dance rendition that

'Hardee Bunch' throws surprise birthday bash

Ina Ratliff on her 88th birthday.

Vivacious Ina Ratliff calls herself a member of the "Hardee Bunch," a group who meet daily for breakfast and to pass the time of day at Hardee's in Sanford.

On June 22, several members of the "Bunch," spearheaded by Anne Hoolahan as hostess, surprised Ina with a breakfast party for 19 at Christo's on her 88th birthday complete with a birthday cake.

"We had a great time. It was a surprise," Ina said.

A former first grade school-teacher in Cedarville, Ohio, and also a former clerk at Wright-Patterson AFB in Dayton, Ohio, Ina chuckled when she talked about her move to Sanford. "We came to get away from snow and ice," she laughed. The family had friends who lived in Orange City and when they visited there several times, the road eventually led to Sanford. "I've loved it," Ina said.

Ina has one daughter, Roberta Montgomery, who lives in Fairborn, Ohio. There are two

She has lived in the same house for 25 years and said, "I love my friends. We go for coffee every morning." The Hardee Bunch members include Anne, Ina, Hazel Johnson, Edna Bowen, Amelia Le Fils and Bernice and Curtis Hughes. But, sometimes, as many as 15 join in the morning fun.

Ina was born June 22, 1902 in Kentucky. She is an active member of the First Baptist Church, Senior Citizens Club, Over 50 Club, Longwood Tourist

Mr. and Mrs. Michael (Deea) Henley

Prescott, Henley joined in double ring ceremony

SANFORD — Deea Lynn Prescott and Michael Stuart Henley are announcing their marriage today. They exchanged vows Feb. 13 at Westview Baptist Church, Sanford. The Rev. Floyd Blake Jr. performed the formal, double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Harold and Sharon Prescott of Longwood. The bridegroom is the son of Carlton and Peggy Henley of Lake Mary.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown of candlelight Dupioni silk and embroidered Alencon lace embellished with seed pearls and iridescents. The fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline. The Cinderella style sleeves extended to English points at the elbows and were accented with silk bows, rose buds, and crystals. The full skirt fell from a dropped Basque waist and was accented in the back with a large silk bow and crystals. The skirt flowed into a beautiful cathedral-length train bordered with scalloped Alencon lace and detailed with seed pearls and iridescents. Her fingertip illusion veil was held by a crown made of Alencon lace embellished with iridescents and seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of Catalaya orchids, white Dendrobium orchids, ivory roses, white astromeria and leatherleaf fern.

Joy Austin of Lake Mary served as maid of honor. She wore a two-piece formal gown of emerald green velvet with fitted bodice and slim skirt. The portrait neckline and shawl collar were accented with buttons of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a modified cascading bouquet of white Gerbera daisies, ivory roses, white astromeria, ivory mini-carnations, baby's breath, plumosa and leatherleaf fern.

Bridesmaids were Lesa Likens of Annapolis, Md. and Merideth Brock of Lake Mary. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

David Henley, brother of the groom, Charlotte, N.C. served as best man.

Ushers were James Prescott, brother of the bride, Lake Mary, and Rodger Carr of Lake Mary.

Groomsmen were Bill Caughell of Longwood and Sidney Brock of Lake Mary.

Laura Finch served as flower girl and Bryan Bennett was ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Westview Baptist Fellowship Hall. Assistants at the reception were Kathleen Carr, Lake Mary, Isabelle Brislenn of Orlando and Belle Warren, Longwood.

After a wedding trip to Beech Mountain, N.C., the newlyweds are making their home in Lake Mary.

...trees, draped with vines of wild grape and Virginia creeper, provided intermittent shade.

A description of some exotic tropical destination? No, just a typical day on a central Florida treasure — the Wekiwa River.

The Wekiwa River arises from a spring boil in Wekiwa Springs State Park and winds its way to its confluence with the St. Johns River, about 15 miles away. In this distance many recreational opportunities await. One of the more popular is canoeing. There are many reasons for this.

In our health-conscious age, canoeing provides enjoyable exercise. If the paddler tires, he can stop and go with the flow. A quiet and contemplative activity, paddling allows close observation of our natural world, including the plentiful wildlife attracted to a beautiful, unpolluted river. When steamy summer weather sets in, paddlers can hop out of the boat

• Katie's Wekiwa River Landing 322-4470

• King's Landing 886-0859
• Wekiwa Marina and Restaurant 862-1500
• Wekiwa Springs State Park 884-2009

for a refreshing dip in the water. The entire family can participate, strengthening bonds between members. Quite simply — canoeing is fun!

The river and its tributaries provide many varied trips, ranging from one or two hours to all day in length. Here are some suggestions, starting with short excursions and ending with longer expeditions.

Trip 1 — Rent a canoe from the concessionaire at Wekiwa Spring State Park and paddle downstream to Wekiwa Marina. At the marina you can visit the restaurant for a bite to eat and some liquid refreshment before heading back up the river to the state park. Total paddling time is about two-and-a-half hours.

Trip 2 — Rent a canoe at the Wekiwa Marina and paddle upstream to the state park, then take a refreshing swim in the spring boil. This trip has the advantage that you do all the work of paddling against the current first. On the return trip the current will help rather than hinder your progress. Paddling time is the same as Trip 1.

Trip 3 — Rent a canoe from King's Landing, then paddle down the Rock Springs. Run 11 miles to the Wekiwa Marina. Where the two streams converge, you could take a right and head upstream less than a mile to visit the Wekiwa Springs, too.

A shuttle service from the King's Landing picks you up at Wekiwa Marina and transports you back to your starting place. Although this is an all-day trip, it is my personal favorite.

Trip 4 — Rent a canoe and a ride upriver from Katie's Landing and take a 10 mile cruise down the Little Wekiwa River back to Katie's Landing. This is also a very nice trip, and also takes most of a day.

On any of these trips it would be disappointing not to see several species of wading birds, several species of fish, a raccoon or two, the occasional hawk or owl, and maybe even an otter.

Remember to bring your hat, sunglasses, and sunscreen, and for the longer trips, a picnic lunch. Plenty of liquids are advised as well, and be aware that the state park authorities frown on the use of alcoholic beverages in the park. Enjoy your trip!

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 11, 1993

In the year ahead you could be quite successful operating independently. Avoid joint ventures or partnership arrangements where possible and strike out on your own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be wary of partnership arrangements today, because you might select allies for the wrong reasons and acquire liabilities instead of assets owing to poor judgment. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Important career decisions should not be predicated upon hunches or assumptions today. Judgments based upon a flimsy, frail framework could collapse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid companions today you know from experience occasionally do things in a devious manner. If they pull their shenanigans today, you'll be tarred by the same brush that smears them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are indications you may have difficulty achieving your goals today, because your essential targets will not be well defined. How can you hit what you can't see?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a possibility you might get in a serious debate today with a person whose views diametrically oppose yours. Unfortunately, neither of you may be prepared to defend your issues.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your commercial dealings today verbal agreements aren't likely to count for anything significant. Protect yourself by getting it in writing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be on guard today or else you might be jockeyed into a position where you won't be able to bargain from your strengths. Negotiating from weakness could cause you to lose.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Listen to what co-workers have to say today, but also bear in mind they could propose some infeasible schemes. Draw the line when you feel their suggestions are foolish or anti-productive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Allocate time to pleasurable pursuits today, but don't let them cause you to neglect your real responsibilities. If you get too involved, this could happen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful how you conduct yourself today, because there are indications you could get involved in several sticky situations from which you might not be able to extricate yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This might not be the right day to talk to persons whose help you're seeking to further your interests. If they do make promises, they could lack substance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone who is a bit jealous of you because his/her material status is less attractive than yours could misuse what you tell them to bad mouth you. Be careful.

might present themselves today, but it isn't likely they'll defeat you. You're more than a match for any adversary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you'll thoroughly enjoy social involvements today, you're not apt to let them interfere with your responsibilities nor with how you efficiently handle your assignments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a good opener today, but your best asset is your ability to finalize situations to your satisfaction. Two of your efforts in particular could be outstanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Duty will take precedence over your nonessential activities today. You'll handle everything in stride and your self-esteem will be enhanced by your modus operandi.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your realistic, no-nonsense approach to your financial affairs makes this a good day to do your budgeting. If anyone can get blood from a turnip, it could be you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Focus your energies and efforts today on significant issues because this could be one of your better problem solving days. The answers should become more obvious the deeper you delve.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something to which you're entitled, but has thus far been denied you could finally come through for you in this cycle. Continue to be patient, but also be hopeful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An older or more experience person can be of great help to you today in dealing with a problem you've yet to resolve. Under his/her direction, you'll see a pathway to success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A major, ambitious objective can be fulfilled at this time if you continue to operate as you're presently doing. Just be careful with whom you discuss your intentions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Elevate your hopes and expectations at this time, because what you visualize is achievable is now within the realm of possibility. Think win, and move forward.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

One of the world's best bridge players is Sabine Zenkel. She comes from Germany but now lives in Chicago. She holds the record for becoming a life master in the United States in the shortest time: just six weeks.

Zenkel defended today's deal brilliantly. It occurred at the Gatlinburg, Tenn., Regional last April.

Finding the best play while looking at all 52 cards isn't easy, but if you really wish to test yourself, cover the West and South hands in the diagram. Defending against three hearts, your partner leads the diamond queen. Declarer wins with the ace, finessees dummy's club queen and tries to cash the club ace, but you ruff with the heart three. After your partner signals an even number of clubs, how do you continue?

South's jump to two hearts was weak: a standard agreement in the tournament world today.

After five minutes of thought, Zenkel found the only winning card: the heart 10.

If South had won in hand with the jack, eventually he would have lost five tricks: one spade, two hearts and two diamonds. So he won in the dummy with the ace and led a low club. But Zenkel defended correctly. She ruffed in with the heart queen, South discarding one diamond loser. She cashed the heart king and diamond king, and then exited with her last diamond to await the spade king as the setting trick.

Note that switching to the heart king isn't good enough. Declarer wins in the dummy, ruffs a club, ruffs a diamond, ruffs a club, plays a spade to dummy's ace and leads a winning club, discarding a loser.

Version of America's first car hits the road

TRUDY TYMAN
Associated Press Writer

WESTFIELD, Mass. — Dogs barked. Children yelped. And with its single cylinder firing "Bang, bang-BANG, BANG" a Duryea ricketed down a dirt lane, a century after the first one powered the U.S. automobile industry near here. "Yes!" shrieked master machinist Richard Coffin, who had spent more than 300 hours and hand-tooled the parts to 1893 specs. Then he ran up to exchange flubfunt high-fives with partner Richard Stevens atop the carriage seat.

Their recreation of the nation's first gasoline-powered car clanked and pattered through its first public road test Thursday.

The horseless carriage that brothers Charles and Frank Duryea first took out for a spin on Springfield streets on Sept. 21, 1893, chugged into history at a top speed of 8 mph.

On macadam, instead of cobblestones and dirt, and fueled with modern gasoline instead of the kerosene oil mix available to the Duryeas, the second model over built to their original specs was clocked at 15 mph on a downgrade by a Westfield police officer.

"Isn't that something?" said Stevens, a high school auto mechanics teacher who worked for eight years and spent $30,000 of his own money to bring the motorized dinosaur to life. "I had to pull into low going down the hill. It got going so fast."

"Frank was looking over us. That's the way I did it," said Coffin, whose bosses at the Whip City Mfg. Co., allowed him free use of their equipment to recreate the century-old flywheels and shafts.

The original model is now in storage at the Smithsonian Museum. Coffin and Stevens plan to donate theirs to the city so Springfield youngsters can touch a bit of their history.

And perhaps think of Charles, the bicycle maker, and Frank, the born mechanic who brought Charles' plans to life with a twist here and an extra little fitting there just like he kept the machinery going on the family farm.

A test engineer from Road & Track magazine was on hand Thursday to check the new car's performance.

"All the basic parts in a modern automobile are there. They are just different," said Jim Kohler, a process engineer at Digital Equipment Co., who helped out with the welding.

Fueled with a one-gallon tank, it has two speeds forward and one reverse. Bicycle chains turn the back carriage wheels, which like the front are wood shod with metal.

Like a lawn mower the single cylinder fires irregularly. Just often enough to maintain a constant speed, as fuel is sucked from the stream flowing from the upper to lower gas tank.

There are no brakes, but after he couldn't stop and smacked the wall of the garage with one of his first prototypes, Frank Duryea installed synchronized gears so the car could be slowed by shifting into reverse.

It smokes a bit and it shakes a lot. "Frank could never get out the vibration," Coffin said. And it gives new understanding to the doubts people had then about the future of the horseless carriage.

"Frank would only drive it at night, because it did scare the horses," said Stevens.

Loyalty, Camaraderie, Adventure At Its Best.

You're scaling a mountain, flumming cross-country in a tank, rappelling from a helicopter. Your fellow adventurers are a dedicated team — there's no one you'd rather have at your back — and they're trusting you to bring the mission off safely.

It's not the movies. It's the Army National Guard, and it's the most exciting part-time job in America.

To be part of the Guard, you need only commit about two days a month and two weeks a year. In return, you'll earn excellent benefits and a monthly paycheck while you tackle important challenges. Rescue missions, drug interdiction and the chance to serve your country in times of trouble.
