By REV. BILL PICKETT

Being a very practical people we are often prone to evaluate our possessions for their material significance. Our favorite phrases includes such things as "how much does it cost?" "Can I afford it?" "What's it worth in dollars and cents?" So often when we count our blessings we evaluate them in this vein also. Our Thanksgiving becomes simply an enumeration of the things we have.

Real thanksgiving, however, is a matter of the spirit. It is a grateful attitude not a recitation of things possessed. For example, our bodies are worth only a couple of dollars from the material standpoint, but the spiritual significance is invaluable. Our homes may be worth thousands of dollars, but who can value the family living within? Magnificent structures we call our churches, but the spirit in the lives of people is what the church is all about. Yes, Thanksgiving should be spiritual. We can not be grateful until our hearts are grateful as well as our minds. Let us think of some of the great benefits during this Holiday Season. First, we have the spiritual benefit of being a people selected by God. What a blessing to be made in His own image! What a comfort to hear His Words "you have not chosen me, but I have chosen you." How consoling that in His infinite love God planned for us, creating us a "little lower than the angels." The word meaning "beloved" appears 55 times in the New Testament. Did not God demonstrate this love through the gift of His Son? We, indeed, are a "chosen people, royal priesthood." Who could ask for a greater blessing than this in time or eternity? Secondly, we have the blessing of a secure people. His own words tell us that "I will never forsake you or leave you." How people today seek security. Those who don't have are insecure until they get. Those who get are insecure fearing they will lose what they bave. The Christian can say "in whatsoever state I am, then I am content." How often the world counts its blessings only in property. The Christian counts his blessings whatever transpires, knowing that even though he "walks through the valley of the shadow of death" he is secure. What a blessing to know that a man's wealth does not consist of the abundance of the things he possesses. but that he is secure for eternity in the Hands of God. Lastly our spiritual blessing is a matter of the sufficiency which God has promised to us... "be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." He backed this up with His life, His death, and His resurrection. In life, this means we shall over come. This means a sufficiency in daily living when things go wrong. In death it means that it is not the end, but a victory which insures eternal life.

There are "many things" for which we rightfully should be thankful in America, but let our Thanksgiving of the Spirit not be overshadowed by an enumeration of what we possess in material things. May during this season of Thanksgiving and Christmas, we recognize our spiritual blessings, too.

religion and law

The continuing shame of Watergate brings home to every thoughtful citizen the importance of personal ethics, the pursuit of law and order and the primary meaning of morality.

Here is a parade of high government officials, leading political operators, and petty bag-men who became corrupted by power and persuasion. Their ethical and moral sensibilities creded and collapsed. Their ultimate vision was no further than the next wiretap.

Surely we are not so numb or indecent to neglect the brutal ethical system of those persons who will do anything for their political leaders. Dr. Alfred Freedman, president of the American Psychiatric Assn., put it most clearly when he

'To hear John Ehrlichman parade nis ignorance of psychiatry and to justify the burglarizing of a psychiatrist's office on the grounds of national security; to ponder his gross insult in implying that physicians and nurses and aides could be prevailed upon to reveal patient's records; to contemplate his icy indifference to the erosion of democratic institutions. including doctor-patient relationships - all this boggles the mind and suggests a moral insensitivity at the highest levels

Watergate is putting the American judicial system to the test: Will the laws of this nation (and the religious morality which was inherent to their creation) be strong and sharp enough to cleanse our government of this massive corrup-tion? All true religion begins in mysticism and ends in poli-tics — that is, is fulfilled in the political encounter. Lawyers and jurists will now have a full exercise of that concept.

Perhaps it is more than appropriate that this month (Sunday, Aug. 26) is the international observance of "World Law Day." The theme of that day is Religion and the Law, part of the Sixth World Conference on World Peace Through Law. This gathering of some 2,500 lawyers, justices, jurists and religious leaders will meet at Abidjan, Ivory Coast in western Africa. During the week they will discuss pressing world problems that have been close to the hearts of religious communities everywhere: prison reform, international protection of refugees, population control, legal protection of minorities, dangerous drug controls, pollution of air and water and a revitalization of the United Nations.

In preparation of this major law-religion event, the World Peace Through Law Center at 400 Hill Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20006 has an attractive brochure tracing the world's major religions and the legal systems, which have evolved from ancient faiths. Americans taking leadership in the African conference include Charles S. Rhyne, former President of the American Bar Association, Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, Ret., and Mrs. Marion Dentzel.

A favorite passage from the Psalms for many readers is Blessed is the man who walks not in the counsel of the wicked, nor stands in the way of sinners, nor sits in the seat of the scornful; but his delight is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he meditates day and night." The present hour gives tresh emphasis to the meaning of law and religion, to

Presidential Powers

How Long Should Emergency Last?

WASHINGTON - A little-noticed amendment written into the emergency energy act now moving through Congress is a symbolic clap of thunder challenging an accumulated body of presidential powers.

The change, added by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, during processing in the Senate Interior Committee, provides that any emergency powers granted the president by the bill will automatically expire in one year.

That is the indicated route Congress will pursue in the future to prevent the type of indefinite delegation of special authority to the chief executive it has indulged in the past.

Few Americans realize that since 1933 they have been living under a completely legal declaration of national emergency. In fact they have been living under four separate and entirely valid declarations of emergency that have never been dissolved.

The other three were declared in 1950, 1970 and 1971. Two others that were delcared in 1939 and 1941 were terminated in 1952.

There is even less public knowledge that these declarations give the president authority to tap 470 statutes passed by Congress granting him extraordinary powers as long as the emergency continues.

The powers include the right to seize property, organize and control the means of production, assign military forces abroad, call up reserves, seize commodities, institute martial law, regulate private enterprise, control all means of transportation and restrict travel. At least this is the contention of the special

Senate committee on the termination of the national emergency, headed by Co-Chairman Church and Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr. In an extensive report issued Sept. 30, the committee outlined the origins of the accumulated emergency powers and promised to seek remedial legislation. An omnibus bill is now being written that would terminate all four emergencies and set up procedures for placing a time limit on any new emergencies that might be declared later. That is precisely what has happened this time with the Church amendment to the energy

There has been little visible opposition to what the committee is attempting to do. It has had full cooperation from both the executive branch and the Justice Department in compiling the background information desired.

But there are some misgivings in the administration because emergency powers are essential during times of stress. Irresponsible rejection of them might prevent effective government handling of crisis situations.

those powers while simultaneously establishing a procedure that will require periodic congressional review. At the end of the year the powers can be extended again if need be. The granting of special powers to the president during a crisis is deeply embedded in

Letter To the Editor

It is stated in this article that I was "dropped" from the board. This is definitely not true, as borne out by mailed to Mr. Sidney Vihlen Jr., a letter from me, stating that I did not desire to be considered for reappointment to the Electrical Board. A copy of my letter is enclosed. I certainly believe that in all fairness to me as an electrical contractor in Sanford for over 48 years, with a reputation I am proud of, that you print in a conspicuous

I have been a member of the Seminole County Electrical Board for many, many years. However, according to the Grand Jury and numerous newspaper headlines, there should be a very limited number of electrical contractors on the board for recommending interpretations of the code. I agree with this.

Surprises

From Loeb

By JACK ANDERSON AND LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - Every few months, the nation's most erratic publisher, William Loeb, jolts the country with some fantastic story in his Manchester (N.H.) Union-Leader, As often as not, the revelation is the work of his rambunctious star reporter, Arthur Egan.

Last week, Egan's "Mission: Impossible" Watergate stories put him behind closed doors at the Senate Watergate committee for one of its most colorful sessions. Dumbfounded committee sleuths are still trying to weed the fancy from the fact in Egan's astonishing secret statement, all of it given under oath and with a straight face. What brought him to the committee was his claim that Teamster vice presidents and other Teamster bigwigs were ordered to kick in $1,000 each toward a $175,000 war chest for President Nixon's 1972 campaign. Las Vegas casinos with Teamsters' loans came up with another $400,000, he said.

As it turns out, the alleged custodian of the war chest is suing Egan and his paper, and has already caught Egan in a glaring departure from the truth. However, Newsweek, even as we were writing this story, quoted former Teamsters chief James Hoffa telling of a $60,000 to $175,000 war chest collected from the union's leaders at $1,000 a clip.

The committee also heard a sizzling tale of how the then Attorney General John Mitchell, irked at Egan's criticism of the Justice Department, was "going to put some agents on me and wattle me silly." "Wattles" are rods of woven wood. The "wattling," Egan said under oath, was ordered by Mitchell personally "to shut me up" about stories demanding Hoffa's release from prison. Mitchell, said Egan, used misleading old records to try to get Egan indicted on gun charges. "Geez, right away I am John Dillinger," Egan

In view of the Nixon Administration's hassling of the press via wiretaps, arrests and tax auditis, Egan's charge sounded plausible. Besides, Egan claimed that both the then U.S. attorney for New Hampshire, David Brock, and the state's attorney general, Warren Rudman, would back him up. We contacted both Brock, who said the yarn was 'completely erroneous," and Rudman, who snorted it was

'HOOVER' MURDERED'

Egan's credibility dropped even further when I testified that the late J. Edgar Hoover was "murdered." As his questioners gasped, he went on, "Everyone on hearing that says I am nuts, but somebody in the Watergate thing murdered . . . J. Edgar Hoover."

When his interrogators recovered enough to query him he admitted his statement was "just my own hunch." All available evidence indicates it is a false hunch. Yet, as credibility of the Union-Leader's star seemed eady to ulm, he told how federal pardon and parole officials confided to him that Hoffa's prison commutation papers left their offices with no restrictions on Hoffa's future Teamsters The final papers banned Hoffa from Teamsters activities until 1980. If Egan is right, the White House quietly skewered Hoffa even as it publicly courted him. Egan's commutation story was backed forcefully by the Union-Leader's lawyer Ralph Sullivan, who told the committee he heard the pardon and parole official's words. The parole official, however, told us the story was not true. OTHER 'LEADS'

The committee is still checking these other wild leads - That a famous singer movie-star coughed up 40 tickets to her performance after a union lawyer threatened "either ! get (the tickets) or you don't open." The singer and union lawyer vehemently deny it. - That Hoffa's son and Egan were bugged at the Watergate, even as the Democrats were. The accused ougger convincingly denies it. Egan denied that he once suggested a reporter on Loeb's paper wrote one of the letters quoting Sen. Edmund Muskie in an alleged racial slur on "Canucks." But Egan, according to other statements to the committee, has taken two different positions on his colleague's suspected letter-

At one point, Egan proved he was his credibility's own worst enemy when he described some of his own newspapering "dirty tricks." "Dirty tricks," he philosophized under oath, "is a new phrase that has been coined, but it is now new to political campaigns. Hell, we have seen this in the newspaper "If you want to get a candidate defeated, just start a little whispering campaign. Start a rumor. I have done it just to sit back and see reactions . . . Is this a dirty-trick? I don't FOOTNOTE: In our talks with Egan, he stuck to the story he told the committee. His "wattling" by the Administration, he said, included questions on his tax returns Board since its inception, I would for five consecutive years.

POLLY'S POINTERS White wool knit

is now a gray

By POLLY CRAMER

—Polly's Problem— DEAR POLLY - My expensive white wool double unit suit has always been sent to a reliable clearner ouv now looks very gray. Could I wash it in cold water and will this whiten it? My seamstress used a hot iron to press the hem and side seams to a navy blue synhetic knit skirt. Can anything be done to dull them. Also, I do hope some readers can tell me if there is a roduct on the market or a home remedy that will darken faded real cork tile floors. Thanks for any help I may get. -MRS.R.F.S.

DEAR POLLY - I am one of those who try all brands of nylons to find which give the longest wear and are the best looking. After wearing them a while I lose track of which is which and do wish more manufacturers would put labels on them for identification and eliminate my Pet Peeve. -DEE DEE.

DEAR POLLY - Jan's letter was not the first complaint have heard from people who object to the safety features on late model cars. They feel science should correct the problem but they will not be inconvenienced. The REAL problem is that there are more safety features that could and would be incorporated in new cars if the automobile industry was not intimidated by people like Jan who have not thought of a simple answer to their problem Instead of disconnecting the seat belt warning buzzer al she has to do is to buckle up the belt on the front seat when there is no other passenger. It is a simple quick answer and I will bet some future passenger in the "death seat" will appreciate having that reminder to buckle up. Jan has obviously never had any experience where someone has been injured or killed because they had not fastened a seat belt.

igment. Thank you for your column as it is a good forum. DEAR POLLY - Tell Jan to just buckle up that seat belt that annoys her. It is easier to snap them closed than to remove them. Doesn't she know how handy it is to strap bundles on that seat and prevent the driver from involuntarily reaching for them when a quick stop is made. I personally think that anything manufacturers can put on cars to make them safer and that will alert drivers to danger is an improvement. That life saved may be yours or mine.

Flag Show Cancelled

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon quietly called of one of its periodic "show-the-flag" voyages into the Soviet-bordered Black Sea in the midst of the Middle East crisis last month. Officials said the cancellation was due o "operational requirements," but observers said it likely was done largely out of concern that a U.S. naval presence then might be taken as a provocation.

Kennedy Mulls Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, his brother and political heir, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, faces increasing political and family pressure to stay out of the 1976 White House race. Many Democratic leaders say the lingering effects of the Chappaquiddick incident could offset gains expected from the Watergate affair, Kennedy has acknowledged that relatives oppose a presidential bid because of his family responsibilities

Kennedy, who was assassinated in 1968.

Poll On Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pollster Louis Harris said a survey taken earlier this month showed 47 per cent of those questioned say President Nixon should not resign because of Watergate allegations, but 43 per cent favor his departure. The gap between the two opinions continued to narrow from earlier surveys.

Bork Job Illegal?

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., says acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork is holding his jo illegally and wants President Nixon to take "appropriate action" to comply with the law.

The Wisconsin Democrat said in a letter to Nixon released today that Bork's "lawful tenure as acting attorney general is limited to 30 days and the 30 days was up this past Monday, Nov. 19."

IRA Strikes

BELFAST (AP) - Irish Republican Army guerillas struck in Northern Ireland after vowing to smash the new coalition cabinet that gives Roman Catholics their first significant share of government in Ulster history. Army headquarters said raiders blew up tracks and bombed a bridge on the Belfast-Londonderry line; set off a land mine near Omagh wounding two soldiers and a civilian, and ambushed and wounded a militiaman in Strabane. By J Richards Herald Sports Editor

I can remember Thanksgiving when all I was stuffed with was turkey, but this is actually my first real "Turkey Day" back in the fold of sportswriting since leaving the comforts of military life. I never knew you civilians had it so good. Actually, the few Thanksgivings I had in service life weren't too bad. Got up at five, went to work at seven .... found a convenient place to nap until lunch....went back to work at two.....again into a invisible hole to sleep some more...and finally shuffled away sometime into the wee hours, tired because of all the effort expanded.

Well, this time I wasn't going to fall victim to that. No siree. I am now a responsible member of the community, and, by golly, I was going to play the part to the hilt. First of all, I had my plans well laid...get plenty of rest the day before and unload as much work as I can on the rest of the staff Friday to recuperate.

Foiled Again

I guess I'll never know what went wrong this time. It's like being on an endless roller-coaster. Once you get up, you've got to go back down. It's an old maxim, but then, all maxims are old, aren't they?

With commendable plans well-made and my best suit of intentions laid out, I completely blow it again. Attaboy. I always knew you had the stuff.

With visions of turkey and giblet gravy, cranberries and sweet potatoes still dancing in my head I awoke that fateful morning of Thanksgiving. The clock that sits silently ticking away or not ticking away as it its went was working fine, which is unusual in itself, but I welcome this manifestation that all would be well this day of days.

6 P.M., Not A.M.

It read six o'clock. Fine. A great time to start the day. While it was still dark, I knew it would be a fine day. The sun would shine, birds would sing, and there'd be a slight breeze to give just a hint of autumn in the air-a real northern autumn, slightly brisk, yet comfortable.

Only, something grew progressively wrong with my calculations. After an invigorating shower, a light breakfast with dreams of a more substantial dinner to come, I turned on the television to catch the morning news.

Football! At 6 a.m.? Ridiculous! What's wrong now? I looked eastward. No brightening in the sky did I spy. Nothing. Only blackness that matched what I saw on TV. e's going to pay dearly for this, I fumed. Cancelli Thanksgiving like that without telling me. It's a plot, I yelled Only, no one answered.

I had slept through Thanksgiving. I wasn't even sure it was still 1973. If this were New England, I'd have rushed to the mirror to see if my beard had grown long and white, only I was too stunned to move. I was crushed. Speechless, and unable to move, I sat in front of the television set weeping. All I had in the refrigerator was some more cold milk and a piece of last week's apple pie, which I admit wasn't so good (explaining why it lasted a week without being devoured).

What To Do?

Oh, what now I mouned. What cow? Not only had nissed a feast that aurely would have sent me contented! away from the board, but at last I realized my greatest suffering of the whole day. I had missed fully six hours of professional and college football, with only LSU-Alabama yet to come. What a miserable state of affairs.

But, at least I had 'Bama to watch. That, in no small way, was some consolation. I would sit right down, grab a glass of ice cold milk and begin a belated oktoberfest of my own. I watched contentedly throughout the first quarter. reclining on the couch so as not to disturb any of this bliss. I could not afford to waste anything now. All I had was just a few short moments left on this day of gratefulness, and I

But, alas, my mind grew heavy, my eyelids drooped What was happening? What is all this? I was falling asleep again. Oh, why, oh why me, great pumpkin? Why me? I never did find out what happened. I awoke bright and refreshed at 5:30 a.m., cleaned up, and ate a morsel to break my long fast. That's about as long as it took to become miserable again. What had I missed?

So they I came to the realization this was all my sins of military sleeping throughout holidays coming home to roost. I fell victim to habit. I fell deeper into despondency. Nothing could ever help me again. I'm doomed like some figure out of Greek mythology to always wonder about asking what was the score of the LSU-Alabama game. No one at work will tell

A thermometer is indispensable in the home . . . even though it can't cure a thing. Its first function is to prove that someone is sick so that diagnosis and therapy can begin. Then it keeps tabs on the patient's progress. Ultimately it can suggest, though not absolutely, that the crucial stages of illness or infection are over.

You hear people call ours a "sick" society. Is anyone taking its temperature? Yes, the media is doing a thorough job reporting the A more crucial question: Is anyone striving to heal society? The Church is! It has always been quick to diagnose men's spiritual ills and ready to make available the remedies God has prescribed

Obviously, however, society isn't one person but many, its cure will progress as we get the patients and the doctor together.

that should we dispose of the APC valves, this country could save 5 billion (B as in Boy and not M as in Millions) gallons of gasoline annually! So, why do we wait?

Why ????? Are we still going to export 53.3 million gallons of oil in 1973, a 284 per cent increase over 1972? I'll tell you why . . . because
