

Those War Debts Again

When Gabriel over the White House first made his appearance at about the time of President Hoover's inauguration, the people of this country had a notion that the war debts were going to be collected. There was an almost universal belief that a single note dictated by the President to the defaulting nations and expressed in no uncertain terms would get results and the debts would be promptly paid.

Gabriel over the White House went even further and made a most dramatic suggestion to the President. We can see the result now. The President of the United States has a crowd of pudgy faced foreign diplomats on an American battleship, and the look of astonishment on their faces as the American fleet passed. He reviewed hundreds of fighting planes and dirigibles sailed overhead.

Evidently they did not know that the United States had a fleet and they had forgotten their even more powerful fleet and larger standing armies at home. They were terrified at the spectacle. And when the President referred to the debts, "Those debts have got to be paid," what else could they do but take out their little check books and scribble in the proper amounts.

But more than a year has passed and nothing has been done about the debts yet. We believe England has contributed to make what that country calls a "token" payment. As we get it, a "token" payment is where one of the contracting parties get taken. And out of about ten or eleven foreign nations which owe the United States account of war loans, we believe there is one, little Finland, which has continued to pay on account according to schedule.

Now, we read that Speaker Rainey is hinting that a new schedule of war debt payments is about to be worked out. The way is being paved, not for the collection of these debts, but for their scaling down, and in fact, for their eventual cancellation. A settlement with Finland will lead the way. Then similar arrangements will be made with the "token" payment nations, and finally with those who have defaulted outright.

This will not be the first "graceful gesture" we have made toward our former allies. When the debts were first amortized after the war, reductions were made in the interest rate amounting to fifty percent in the case of England and to an even greater extent in the case of the other countries; until Italy's rate of interest was practically eliminated altogether. Last Fall, when the dollar was devaluated, our foreign debtors received a forty percent reduction on both principal and interest.

So it should be evident by this time that Uncle Sam is trying to collect on a dead horse. The war has been fought and "won." The United States "won," and having been accorded that privilege by unanimous consent, it can now pay for it. After we have reconciled ourselves to this fact, perhaps we will go more slowly which it comes to financing the next foreign war. At least, let's not kid ourselves that war debts will be repaid.

A Big Estate

When George E. Baker, for many years president of the First National Bank of New York City, died in 1931, he left an estate which, according to an official appraisal made for transfer tax purposes, and only recently announced, had a net worth of $73,309,383. This was one of the largest estates ever left by a single individual in the United States. Only those of Payne Whitney, Thomas Fortune Ryan, Anna M. Harkness, Henry C. Frick, John Jacob Astor, and J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, were larger.

In view of the fact that Mr. Baker died when the depression had just gotten well under way, it should be interesting to analyze his estate and see just what has happened to it since his death and how well it has stood up under the ravages of the depression. As a complete accounting of the estate was published in the larger New York papers, it should be easy to do this.

We find, first, that the present value of the estate, which in 1931 was worth $73,309,383, is now $41,000,000, representing a shrinkage in value of more than $30,000,000. The vast majority of Mr. Baker's holdings were in "blue-chip" industrial stocks. He owned, for instance, 47,000 shares of United States Steel stock, which in 1931 had a valuation of $5,363,874. The present value of this block of stock is $2,191,375.

There were also 14,000 shares of First National Bank stock, and 14,000 shares of First Security stock, which had shrunk in value from $40,400,000 to $23,250,000, or 75,000 shares of New York Central had declined from $6,666,380 to $2,250,000, while his 54,833 shares of American T&E and T&E had only dropped from $5,623,191 to $3,141,292. He had $2,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds which had not depreciated at all.

But the net decline in the value of his estate had cost him more than $30,000,000 and they had to pay a transfer tax on the valuation at the time of his death. This tax amounted to $11,150,768, and when deducted from the present value of the estate cuts the amount to be distributed among the heirs from $73,309,383, the value at the time of Mr. Baker's death, to approximately $30,000,000.

Another interesting feature in connection with Mr. Baker's estate is the fact that at the time of his death the actual money which he possessed amounted to only about $2,000,000. He had $23,823 on deposit in the First National Bank, $5,039 in the Guarantee Trust Company, and $2,704 in the Tuxedo National Bank. He owned three automobiles: one a 1925 Cadillac valued at $450, and a 1928 Buick Roadster valued at $400, and a 1929 Buick Roadster valued at $450.

This appraisal also shows that Mr. Baker had given $4,750,000 to charity during the two years immediately preceding his death, while his public benefactions throughout his life time amounted to over $10,000,000.

HIGHER TAXES INEVITABLE

The existence of the lowest percentage levied in the history of the American Treasury has brought to the American people a realization that they may expect increased taxes. There is no more than other people, like paying taxes and, indeed, the prejudice against the practice has been so strong that the American tax level is sensibly low as compared with other principal nations.

The only sound method of measuring taxation is not in terms of the sums exacted from the taxpayers but in relation to income. It is true that the American tax figures mount higher than the figures of some other nations, but in relation to national wealth and national income, they are lower. The point is that when Americans have paid their taxes they have more left over than the peoples of many other countries.

Briefly summarized by Frederick J. Haak, the situation of four of the greatest nations is as follows:

The latest comparable figures are for 1932 and show that United States taxes paid aggregated eight billions, including both federal and local imposts. Next come the United Kingdom taxes which amounted to $4,400,000,000; next Germany, $2,400,000,000; and the huge American collection is only 20.3 percent of national income while the British is 28 percent; the German, 21.9 percent; and the French, 25.2 percent.

The national income of the United States fell much more drastically between 1929 and 1932 than did more stable national incomes of the other countries. On a predepression basis, the low American ratio of tax collections to national income is more striking. Then the American children, Robert and Ruth, of Cameron City have all been ill with mumps.

Mr. Mulrhead has bought the place adjoining his place known as the Lovely farm near Brisons crossing and is remodeling and improving the house for a home. S. P. Smith and J. W. David of Geveva will be ready to open up their new blacksmith shop in Cameron City a few days.

RAIL SITUATION RELATING TO CITRUS AILED

equipped to ship by rail. Their packing houses are located on the railroads. They would prefer to ship by rail if charges for rail transportation were more comparable with the charges by water and by truck," Mr. Robinson declared.

Since the advent of the citrus committee the quantities to be shipped to the auction markets is now being regulated. This will unquestionably bring better returns for the entire crop another year, but it will also offer new problems in distribution for our shippers to overcome," he said.

Mr. Robinson asserted that "it would be fortunate if our rates and minimums could be standardized on a proper basis where they would not be subjected to change with each new season," adding that "another handicap under which Florida shippers operate in distributing citrus is the rules and regulations, adopted by the railroads, which prevent the shipment of Florida citrus on 'through rates' to destinations west of an imaginary line which is drawn from Buffalo, through Pittsburgh and into West Virginia, after cars have reached as far north as Washington."

"Likewise cars that have been sent toward Western markets may not be diverted on through rates to destinations east of this imaginary line. Such restrictions are a great handicap in distributing Florida citrus and I believe we have reached a time in the evolution of our transportation where such barriers should be removed," the league executive commented.

"I venture to suggest that one way to return more of our traffic to the rail lines and return to them ultimately more net revenue, is to make still further reduction in the rates to southeastern territory, extend the territory to which the truck competitive rates are published to the Ohio River on the north—and at least to the Mississippi on the west. I believe it would be good for the growers and good business for the railroads if they would reduce the carload minimum to 200 boxes, when in ventilated box cars and to 300 or not to exceed 360 boxes, when in refrigerator cars.

"Some such reduction would be an inducement to shippers to return again to the use of the rails, instead of the trucks.

"Unless the rates and minimums are lowered, I look to see still greater movement by truck. The trucker, who buy in Florida and who distribute bulk fruit in small markets in competition with our fruit shipped in carload lots into Southern markets by rail, would also find the competition keener and I believe it would result in betterment for the citrus industry and for the rail carriers as well," Mr. Robinson concluded.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

The first automobile in Sanford was a 1908 Buick Roadster, owned by Mr. J. W. David. It was used for both business and pleasure. The car was a four-cylinder model and was considered a luxury item at the time. It was driven by Mr. David, who was a prominent citizen of Sanford. The car was used for many years and was well-maintained. It was a symbol of the progress and modernization of Sanford at the time.

Commander Says Sholtz Had Chance To Help Citrus Men Last Year But Did Nothing

ORLANDO, May 8.—C. C. Commander, of Tampa, commenting at yesterday's meeting of the Florida Citrus Control Committee on Governor Sholtz' recent ultimatum to the citrus industry in which he said he would present a program of citrus legislation to the Legislature unless the industry comes forward with a "sound program," said "last year the committee spent considerable money at Tallahassee to put through proper citrus legislation, and I am sorry to say we didn't get to first base even with the Governor."

He termed the announcement from the Governor good news and declared that in his mind there is no question but that some sort of legislation is needed.

Declaring that the operations of the citrus marketing agreement this season had saved Florida growers "millions of dollars," Commander suggested a number of improvements for next year. One was that the United States secretary of agriculture be requested to authorize publication each week of bulletins showing how much fruit each shipper has under control and also detailed information regarding each shipper's past record.

Preparations are being made for the national stabilization meeting on oranges at Washington, June 18.

Restrictions on the movement of grapefruit from Florida to the 10 leading auction markets of the country were continued for another week at yesterday's meeting.

This action was taken as meaning that the committee is likely to continue prorating grapefruit "right up to the last two cars" in order to realize highest possible returns from the balance of the crop.

Allotments for the 10 markets were not changed from the previous week either in oranges or grapefruit. The figures for the week of May 10-16, inclusive, are as follows:

	Oranges	Grapefruit
New York	225	10
Philadelphia	20	10
Baltimore	20	10
Boston	20	10
Cincinnati	20	10
Pittsburgh	20	10
Cleveland	20	10

FEDERAL JURY REFUSES TO INDICT MELLON

checks, yesterday began consideration of government charges that Andrew W. Mellon, master of millions, has evaded income tax payments.

Immediately after the fifth witness concluded his testimony the room was ordered cleared of all officials connected with the case, and procedure continued in the utmost secrecy.

A decision may be reached soon as Judge Gibson earlier had instructed the jury it might withhold its word until the end of the session.

The government claimed the 79-year-old former secretary of the treasury and ambassador to the Court of St. James, failed to pay income taxes amounting to $1,319,000 for 1931 and also maintains an additional $650,540 is due in penalties.

The internationally known banker, replying last Friday to statements by Attorney General Homer B. Cummings who announced the action, said he had "overpaid" rather than underpaid, and that he will seek a refund.

Perhaps never before in the history of government prosecution has so wealthy a man become under scrutiny, and cross-section of artisans and crafts never before has such a tradesman been called to officiate in such a deliberation.

The foreman of the jury was William B. Beeson, a Uniontown bank clerk and listed among the other 20 jurors were five laborers, two mechanics, two farmers, two clerks, two engineers, one carpenter, one plumber. Among the others are a writer, a lumber dealer and a banker. The others are "retired."

Lionel Barrymore To Be At Milane Theater

With an impressive array of talent in an all-star cast, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's early contribution to the 1934 motion picture year—"This Side of Heaven"—opened today at the Milane Theatre.

The picture, laid in modern settings, tells the story of a typical family with all their troubles, tragedies, romances and disappointments, deftly woven into a picture that maintains interest and suspense from beginning to ending.

Lionel Barrymore plays the head of the family. Fay Bainter, a newcomer to the screen but one of America's best loved stage actresses, makes her screen picture debut as Barrymore's wife.

Mac Clarke is seen this time as a charming school marim, whose difficulties rest upon the love that the two men, one, Eddie Nugent, and the other, Onslow Stevens, have for her.

Mary Carlisle plays the younger co-ed daughter and Tom Brown is the son, Beth, who believes that life hangs on a fraternity pin.

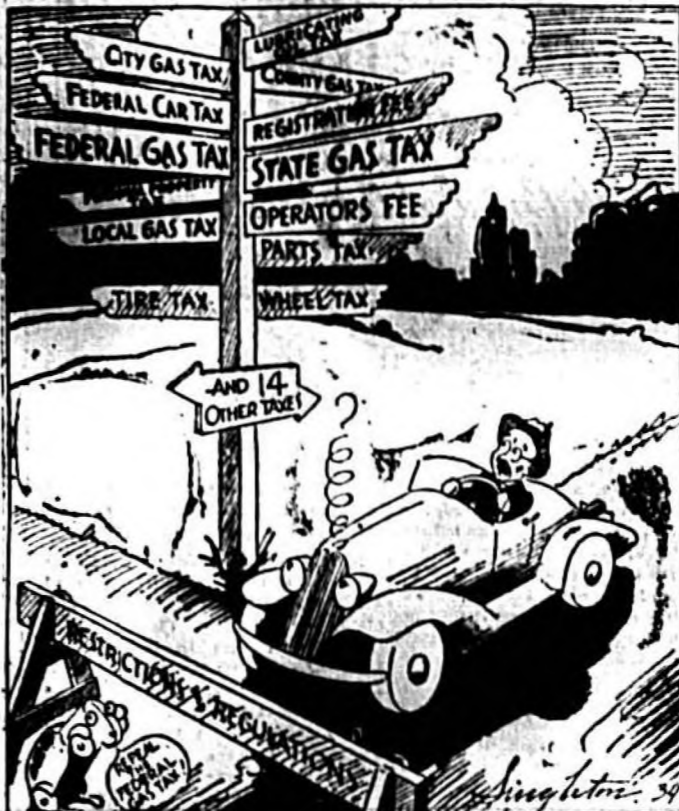

Una Merkle serves this typical family as the housemaid, "Birdie," and C. Henry Gordon lays his villainy aside long enough to give an excellent performance as the boss who threatens Barrymore with imprisonment for a forty thousand dollar embezzlement.

Potato Season At Hastings Ends As Best In Some Time

PALATKA, May 8.—Harvesting of the Irish potato crop will practically be brought to a close on Saturday night of this week, the weather being favorable, according to announcement yesterday of Harvey H. Tanner, president of the Hastings Potato Growers Association. Of the 750 carloads still in the ground, 500 will be dug during the week, leaving a straggling 250 carloads to come out later, he stated.

With the close of the season near, Mr. Tanner asserted that it had been the most successful of recent years, the yield being larger, the price fair and the cost of production low.

The 5,000 carload crop, 90 percent of which was grown within a radius of 30 miles of Palatka, will bring in approximately $4,000,000, he said, "as the average price will be around $4 per barrel. Of this vast sum, some $2,000,000 should represent the profits of the grower. The good farmer—and I am not including myself, as I am a desk farmer and do not get as good results as does the man who works at potato growing alone—could not have spent more than $100 per acre for seeds, fertilizer, barrels and cultivation, and will realize $200 per acre. This will leave him a net profit of $100 per acre."

STATE ADVISORY BODY CONSIDERS BROAD PROGRAM

Social, Industrial, Economic Improvement Is Object Of Group

By JAMES A. HODGES

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 8.—(AP)—A broad program of social, economic and industrial improvement extending over the next ten years or more is the work out for the Florida advisory and planning board.

One of its studies during the next few months will concern recommendations for various forms of public works construction and adjustment to benefit the people.

The board's functions will be to plan and suggest. It must look to federal or state financial agencies to supply money for the actual accomplishments.

Rural rehabilitation, schools, highways, parks, public health, taxation, airways and public works will figure in the planning.

The advisory and planning board is a combination of the original federal relief administration advisory board and the state planning board, named to co-operate and co-ordinate its studies with the national planning board. Consolidation of the boards was approved by Governor Dave Sholtz in an executive order.

Heading the combined group is Chester B. Treadway of Tallahassee. Julius F. Stone, Jr., state FERA administrator, is an ex-officio member.

An outline of the board's widespread field of activities was given today by Secretary M. I. Montgomery.

Sub-committees will study various possibilities of long-term improvement, providing, at the same time, employment and benefits conforming to a general plan for the future.

Problems of rehabilitating the rural population now on relief rolls, through education toward self-help, distribution and marketing of farm products, land use and subsistence homesteads, will be studied by one committee.

Another will look into the state's school system, looking about for places where changes may be needed for improvements in the renovation of buildings, acquisition of new lands, modern methods of education and administration.

A state-wide system of parks, providing planned beauty for the people, will be considered by another group.

Highway construction, possibly leading to parallel roads, or roads with three and four traffic lanes, will be studied by the sub-committee. This committee will seek to have the Legislature establish a base system of roads, and would provide for designation of state roads only in conformity with this system.

A uniform plan for public buildings throughout the state, with each properly planned to allow for additions in the future, also will be studied, with consideration given to needs for construction of public buildings at this time.

Possible improvements in the state's taxation structure, betterment of public health, and extending and controlling the state's airways, together with other fields of activities that

Housekeeping in the Dark!

LITTLE AMERICA ANTARCTIC CLUB, April 17 (Via Mackay Radio).—Now we are getting some real Antarctic weather. And, oh boy! I never knew what winter was before. You should see one of these blizzards! Everything will be calm and peaceful but grey, because we are getting practically no sunshine now. The temperature will be around 20 below zero. And for a few minutes we'll be engulfed in a howling blizzard with blankets of snow swirling through the air before striking 30 miles an hour and the thermometer will go way up to ten or 15 above. Only to drop again when the storm is over.

The visibility during these blizzards is practically nil and it's impossible to travel even between the buildings in Little America without support and guidance. At present we have a life line strung up between all the buildings and the mess hall. You should see this crowd going to mess during a blizzard. The men come crawling up like furry animals on top of the snow. Had several cases of frozen noses, ears, fingers and toes. Annoying, itchy and painful, but no serious cases—yet.

During these blizzards all our buildings become snowed in and our tunnels are the only answer. These are being completed rapidly. We are digging a lot of new cues

Palatka Azalea Plot Closed Until Dec. 31

PALATKA, May 7.—(AP)—Palatka, landscape artist who brought the Bayview Azalea gardens to its present state of perfection and is in active charge of the project, announced Saturday that the gardens would remain closed until Dec. 1.

The statement was made prior to his departure for Columbia, S. C., where he is to confer with Alan Johnson, regional director of emergency relief for 10 Southeastern States.

Curtailed finances, which makes it impossible for funds to be employed Sundays and extensive construction and plantings being completed the week are responsible for this action being taken, he declared.

Net Railway Income Far Ahead Of 1932

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The bureau of railway economics, an organization maintained by the carriers, reported yesterday the net railway operating income of class one railroads for the first three months of this year was more than three times that of the same period last year.

The figures for the first quarter of 1934 were $112,276,896, representing a return on property investment at the annual rate of 2.23 percent as compared to $34,651,646 for the first three months of 1933, or a return of .48 percent.

Death Threatens Man Who Gambled For Life

CANNON CITY, Colo., May 8.—(AP)—The death against which Colorado convict number 2817 gambled in the cause of science threatened to overtake him last night.

He was seriously ill from the first of a series of injections of serum which he volunteered to take in a "human test tube" experiment to determine if a new tuberculosis preventive would be successful.

Dr. H. J. Cooper of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver, who has been experimenting with the serum for 15 years and Mike Schmidt, 63, the convict, is seriously ill, but his condition is not considered critical.

I have just returned by radio that 104 school and college teachers have enrolled their names in our club, and have received personal radio messages from Admiral Byrd welcoming them and their pupils. All these young people have been sent the beautiful Byrd 2 1/2 inch waxing map of the Antarctic and their membership cards. All free. Evidently they will also receive lapel buttons with the club name on them. The teachers must send the home addresses of pupils so our New York staff can

CARDINALS RAN ROUGH SHOD OVER NINES LAST WEEK

Red Birds Win 7 Tilts In Row To Move Out Of Last Place Tie

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, who managed to win only two of their first nine games as they got off to a wobbly start in the National League pennant race, ran roughshod over three different rivals last week to win seven contests in a row and outshine every other major league club in practically every department of the game.

The seven triumphs moved the cards out of a tie for the cellar berth in the standing a week ago into undisturbed possession of fourth place after last Saturday's games. Not only did they achieve that fine advance but for the seven-day period they led both big leagues in scoring, hitting, fielding, and the pitching defense. The only department in which they were not tied was that of swatting home runs. The New York Yankees, whose supremacy in the American League was almost as marked as that of St. Louis in the National, duplicated the Cardinal total of eight circuit drives.

The marks the Cards established were 44 runs, 78 hits, five errors, and 22 opponents' runs. The next best performance, chosen from 15 rival teams, were the Boston Red Sox's runs, which topped the American League, 76 hits by the Pittsburgh Pirates, the 23 runs which the Yankees' hurlers allowed the opposition in six games, and

ROOSEVELT IS GETTING RESULTS AS 'MR. FIXIT'

Policy Of Tackling All Problems Arising In Mails Is Interesting

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, first president to tackle as a "psychological problem" all that the mail man brings, is getting some amazing results.

He saved a life by getting an anemic, rural 10-year-old girl in touch with an insulin supply. He found a lost trunk for a World War veteran who went from Chicago to California.

He got a life-time printing job for a young paralytic.

The examples are but by-products to the mightiest mail mill ever set up in this capital city. It turns out each week a detailed analysis of the volunteered thought of the people, particularly about unemployment and relief.

Over the mail mill, Jasper J. Mayer, president, in a room that always sounds alive with clicking typewriters. Each worker is instructed to handle each letter as though it were the one important matter in the world.

Upon a map of the United States, Mayer has projected an analysis, proportioned as to population, all of the advice the citizenry has given the President on the economic situation and the Civil Works program from Jan. 10 to Mar. 31 inclusive.

A dark blue line in each state tells how many people thought the Civil Works jobs went to loafers, and to the "rich" who didn't need them. Only the state of Nevada is minus such a line.

By glancing at this map, the President can see, among many other things, the relative written demand for subsistence homesteads, the comparative number of graft charges.

What was learned from the mail is going to help a lot on a summer move for education camps and residences for unattached women. But so far the President hasn't solved the problem of one of their number who pleaded: "Please, Mr. President, send me a man."

A few summarizing figures were given by Mayer. About a half million pieces of mail have been handled since Dec. 15. The largest number of people working on it at one time was 82. The present staff is 68. The top day on telegrams was 7000 the day the Civil Works was discontinued. The maximum on postcards was 19,432 in one day, all celebrating the Chicago school teachers' public utterance, like the Wirt controversy, move the mail tides like waves breaking on the seashore.

President Roosevelt himself reads as many as 50 relief case letters a day.

"The finest piece of personal thoughtfulness any president has ever done," Mayer said of Roosevelt's handling of the mail problem.

Thirty of 40 letters a day, which might be termed "neediest cases" mail, come to Mayer from the White House, with notation from the President's secretaries, Mrs. Roosevelt, or her daughter, Anna Dull.

It's Mayer's job to start the relief investigation and aid machinery in motion, and he says it's amazing the number of times something really constructive is done about these cases. "Thank you" letters come pouring in. "One man respectfully wrote in this thank you: 'I assure you, if it wasn't compulsory for me to get some compensation, I would never have written to our honorable President Franklin D. Roosevelt nor to his secretary, the honorable Marvin McIntyre.'"

One woman reported receiving a $2.93 grocery order and a $3.85 cloth order, saying: "I told you when I first wrote you that when I started getting help I would let you know."

Another reported local relief people had been "running things with a high hand" but "changed

Frisco-Newark Speed Mark Broken Again

NEWARK, May 8.—(AP)—Ernest R. Quesada, flying a new Martin bomber, broke the speed record from San Francisco to Newark, yesterday, setting his plane down at Newark airport at 11:28, Eastern Standard time, 13 hours and 58 minutes after he left the coast.

The elapsed time record was 13 hours and two minutes, established by Transcontinental Airways, army officials said. Quesada made stops at Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Cleveland. Army officials said they had not determined the exact flying time for the trip but indicated it would probably establish another record.

Mid-Western Crops Still Parched For Want Of Showers

DES MOINES, May 8.—(AP)—Mother nature continued her program of involuntary crop reduction yesterday under a flaming sun.

Farmers bemoaned the lack of moisture as they saw their hay fields and pastures seared brown. Their wives lamented a general absence of spring showers as their flower and vegetable gardens wilted.

Observers throughout the region from Ohio to Colorado reported record-breaking temperatures and an almost universal dearth of rain. A high mark of 101 degrees was recorded at Norfolk, Neb., followed closely by 100 at Sioux City, Iowa, and Austin, Minn. A reading of 98 at LaCrosse was highest in Wisconsin for the hottest May day in years.

Forecasters were evasive in their predictions with slight, if any, relief coming up.

As the aridity continued farmers hauled water for their stock and in several instances clipped an embargo on municipal water supplies.

Lake Erie was the lowest since 1902. At Creton and Packwood

Father Admits Giving Family Rat Poison

SAPULA, Okla., May 8.—(AP)—County authorities held yesterday the signed confession of Chester Barrett, 32-year-old unemployed painter, that he poisoned his wife and seven of his eight children, to prevent their starving. Three children died.

"I just thought that if we could all go to sleep and never wake up God would forgive," read the statement of Barrett who is held on a charge of murder.

The fatal doses were administered in the guise of medicine after Barrett had made two unsuccessful attempts to kill his family and commit suicide, the confession said.

Iowa, in widely separated parts of the state, stringent measures were in force to conserve water. Lake Ploumington, which supplies Bloomington, Ill., was below the sillway. Mississippi River residents were down from Dubuque to Memphis.

Keeping Cut Flowers Fresh

By Ann Pryor

Nothing adds more to the attractiveness of the home than tastefully arranged cut flowers. To make your cut flowers last longer, add sugar to the water in the vases. The proportions are about a level teaspoonful of sugar to a pint of water. Every third day cut off about a quarter of an inch from the ends of the stems, using a very sharp knife or razor blade.

Flier Seeks Pay For Hunting Redfern

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—The mystery of Paul Redfern, the aviator who disappeared while making a solo flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro in August, 1927, came up yesterday in Bronx supreme court.

Justice Albert Cohn reserved decision on a motion for a change of venue in the suit brought by Thomas Smith to recover $1,121.77 which he alleges he expended for equipment after being hired by Richard S. Redfern, late Rochester, N. Y., real estate man, to lead an expedition into the Brazilian jungles in search of the missing flier his nephew.

Mooney Again Seeks Freedom From Jail

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—(AP)—Thomas J. Mooney carried to the federal courts yesterday his 17-year fight for exoneration of the slaying of 10 persons in the Preparedness Day parade bombings here in 1914.

He filed application for his release from San Quentin prison on a writ of habeas corpus, alleging he was convicted on perjured testimony. Mooney is serving a life sentence.

The petition stressed the famous photographs of Market Street with the marching paraders and with two persons atop a building identified by captions as Mooney and his wife, Rena. ### 30 Suffocated Dead In Blazing Mine Pit

MUELLHEIM, Baden, Germany, May 8.—(AP)—The clang of steel plates closing over the mouth of the blazing Buggingen Potash Mine formed a sad dirge last night for 80 miners who were given up as dead after being trapped in the inferno.

The shaft was sealed as all hope for the victims was abandoned after a vain 10-hour combat against the flames and deadly gases inside.

The fire, caused by an electrical short circuit, started late yesterday morning but news of it was withheld until rescue work was suspended and authorities agreed there was no possibility of reaching the victims.

BRITAIN BEGINS OPEN TRADE WAR AGAINST JAPAN

LONDON, May 8.—(AP)—An open trade war with Japan was declared yesterday as the British government announced an "intensification" of commerce within the empire.

"The House of Commons applauded as Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, outlined concisely his government's decision to take whatever action 'the government believes necessary' to halt Japanese competition with British goods, particularly textiles, within the British empire.

He hinted that the "battle" might be waged in other parts of the world as well.

In the debate following Mr. Runciman's announcement, J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, replied to attacks by Sir Herbert Samuel, liberal leader, by reiterating the government's empire free trade policy and declaring that every effort will be made to intensify the exchange of products among dominions and colonies.

Mr. Thomas sharply attacked American economic defense policies. Sir Herbert had praised Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for their efforts "to break down world tariff armaments."

"Yes, I have heard about Secretary Hull and other statesmen making such efforts," Thomas retorted, "but this does not prevent them from going ahead with tariff armaments."

Emphasizing that Britain is ready to receive any suggestions for a trade pact from Japan, Mr. Runciman nevertheless declared that Tokyo's 12-months' delay in meeting British requests for an adjustment of Nippon's "rapidly expanding" textile trade necessitated the steps enunciated yesterday.

He said restrictions on Japan's exports to crown colonies would start Wednesday, indicated that new duties and other limitations would be placed on Japanese exports to the British Isles, and hinted strongly that the dominions will be urged to take similar action.

A new British trade offensive, world wide, against Japan will then follow, Runciman plainly implied.

Very Much Improved After Taking Cardui

"I have suffered a great deal from cramping," writes Mrs. W. A. Sewell, of Waco, Texas. "I would chill and have to go to bed for about three days at a time.
