The pealmist says, "I will lift up mine eyes t hills, from whence cometh my help." (Psalms 121:1) A cartoon pictures a harried man standing before a vending machine selling tranquilizing pills. At the top it carries the lettering, "Get through the Day." Below it offers four choices of pills by means of which to attain this objective.

Getting through the day is serious business and we need any legitimate help that is available. The psalmist sees help as suggested by the hills. Thinking of resources that he was convinced were available for him he set down what we know as the 121st Psalm. Supposedly, he was far from home looking across the plains of Mesopotamia toward the hills on the horizon. He exclaimed, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills." He seemed to sense that the lower down one is in mond and morals the higher must be the source of help to be sought. I suggest that out of the lowlands of our moods and morals we need to look up. Let me remind you of some hills to look to for help.

There is an interesting series of mountains associated with very significant experiences as recorded in the Bible. We can look again at Mount Sinal, the Sermon on the Mount, the mount of transfiguration, and most of all to the mount of Calvary. A look at the instruction and inspiration of either of thete will help one through any day.

In addition to the hill tops of heritage to which we may look there are mountain-type persons all of us have known. To get through any day it might be helpful to look up to United Church Women this missionary to New Guines, those persons for whom we still have reason to have great | week respect and honor. SHORT OF A MIRACLE

Rome's Colliscum, partly tumbled into rain, is considered one of the wonder of the world. It was built in 80 A. D .- and that is a long time ago, to be sure. Yet it is but a second when measured against the ages that have passed since

The Coliseum-wonder that it is-is also visible proof of the limit of man's accomplishments. We consider it nothing short of a miracle that something built by man has endured that long. Yet those things created by God remain endless and eternal awe, and with gratitude. We tend to take them all too much for granted. We tend, at times, to forget them-and even to forget Him-entirely. Discover God again, in the church of your choice and in the process, rediscover yourself.
