CAPE CANAVERAL. (UPI) - Spacewalker Bruce McCandless severed his link with the mother ship Challenger and flew across space today, becoming the first human satellite soaring 17,500 mph around Earth with a "Buck Rogers" jetpack on his back.

With nothing between him and the bluish-white planet 175 miles below, the 46-year-old gray-haired astronaut maneuvered cautiously at first, then turned on the gas and seared up to 150 feet away from the space shuttle.

"This is neat," he exclaimed, looking down at the world below. "Looks like Florida. It is Florida! It is the Cape." he said, referring to the Cape Canaveral launch site where the shuttle is to land Saturday.

McCandless looked like a ghostly figure moving away from the shuttle, keeping the 122-foot-long spaceship in view at all times. Television showed the globe far below his booted feet.

Fellow spacewalker Robert Stewart remained tethered to the right side of the open cargo bay, keeping a close watch on McCandless.

"You may get the name of the world's fastest human being, going along there at 4 miles a second.

'This is neat'

Bruce," said Jerry Ross In mission control.

The 24 nitrogen gas jets in the $10 million backpack, which had the American flag emblazoned on its right side, had the capability of propelling McCandless up to 1.5 mph in relation to the shuttle. Both were traveling at the 17,500 mph orbital speed.

McCandless had no trouble stopping and returning to the shuttle.

"That may have been one small step for Neil but it's a heck of a big leap for me," McCandless said, when he first started flying free. He was referring to Neil Armstrong's first words when he stepped on the moon in 1969. McCandless has been preparing to fly the manned maneuvering unit for 10 years.

Shuitle commander Vance Brand, co-pilot Robert "Hoot" Gibson and mission specialist Ronald McNair watched the show through the windows of Challenger's cabin. They were prepared to rescue the spacewalkers if something went wrong with the jetpacks.

'He's outside our window here," Brand said, "He looks great."

It was dark over the Pacific Ocean when McCandless first starting flying the manned maneuvering unit. He had a headlight on his helmet and blinking white lights on the back of his jetpack, and the payload bay was illuminated by floodlights.

A television camera on the end of the shuttle's mechanical arm beamed the spectacle back to mission control in Houston. McCandless was clearly shown testing the various maneuvering systems of the boxy backpack

He tilted right and then left, rolled slowly and pitched back and forth. He said everything appeared to be working normally,

The untethered portions of the spacewalks were a bold demonstration of man's ability to work outside his ship for future space station construction work. rescue missions, spacecraft servicing and even satellite inspection.

The five hour spacewalks began with both astronauts, wearing white pressure suits, linked by lifelines to the open payload bay of the shuttle Challenger. They left the ship's airlock at 7:25 a.m.

Freeze Threatens Budding Citrus

Although the official low recorded this morning by the National Weather Service at Orlando's International Jetport was 39 degrees. unofficial temperatures in Seminole County dipped in the 20s in some

Frank Jasa, Seminole County agriculture extension agent, said the low at the Agri-Center was 34 degrees this morning, but ice formed where sprinklers were left running.

Jasa said the main concern for citrus growers is the young tender growth which the warm weather recently brought out.

"I don't think it got cold enough to hurt the bark, and I can't tell for a few hours yet if it froze the new growth," Jasa said this morning. "If it had gotten down in the teens, I don't think we would have had any citrus trees left north of Highway

But National Weather Service agriculture forecaster Bill Sieler said: "This second shock wave may just be enough to kill the trees down into the trunk."

Virginia Lommerse said the temperature at the Dutch Mill Nursery on Upsala Road went down to 28 this morning. The plants there, such as gerantums and annuals, are in a heated greenhouse to protect them from the cold. She said they fired up their heaters at midnight.

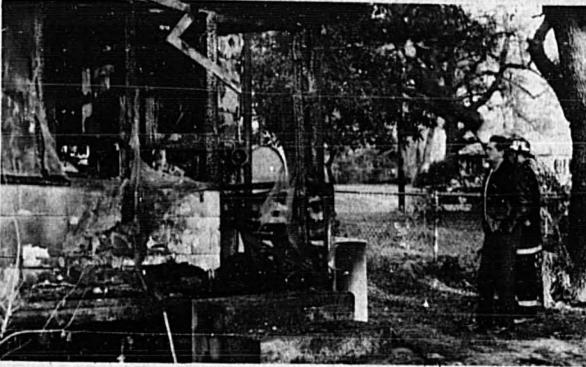

As for the vegetable crops, Jasa said, "there wasn't much there to get hurt after damage caused in the December freeze. Most of the cabbage farmers were unable to get small plants to replace the frozen crop, but some had planted the seed in the fields and they may have started to come up. Warm weather crops won't be planted until the last of this month or the first part of next month.

"If we get by the full moon on the 17th without a hard freeze, we will be all right. Although we have had frost in March and April, the further into February we get the safer it gets for growers."

Temperatures were expected to fall steadily today as the Arctic cold continues to move into Florida from the Midwest, threatening to do even more harm to the state's freezedamaged ettrus crop.

Industry officials say the damage could be bad enough to inhibit production for a decade.

Speaking To School Board Will Wait If Kroll Has Way

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

If you wish to speak before the Seminole County School Board about a specific matter, it will take longer to get your name on a meeting agenda, if new policy recommendations from Chairman Bill Kroll are adopted.

Kroll, serving his second term on the board, sees the delay in a positive light. "It will give us a better chance to respond to problems," he said. But, member Jean Bryant said Kroll's limiting the public access to the board

"I don't like surprises either, but if a parent has a complaint and perhaps a child is being kept out of school until that complaint is answered, the delay may be too long," Mrs. Bryant said.

She added, however, that she is anxious to hear Kroll's proposal Wed-

Kroll is recommending a change in the board's procedures for placing items on the agenda to require those wishing to speak to the board to file a written or verbal request "at least 11 working days or two weeks prior to the board meet-

"I don't feel we need quite that much time," Mrs. Bryant said.

Policy riow calls for a verbai or written request to be made "at least eight working days prior to a meeting."

And, while policy now calls for School Superintendent Bob Hughes to investigate the subject matter of the request and report his findings and recommendations in time to allow ample time for review prior to a meeting. Kroll's change would have Hughes investigate the matter and furnish each board member with a written report of his findings and a recommendation one week prior to a meeting.

Lebanon Violence Intensifies

West Beirut Falls; U.S. Embassy Evacuated

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Navy helicopters airlifted members of the U.S. Embassy staff and their families to American warships today after the Lebanese army surrendered west Beirut to Moslem rebels.

The evacuation of 41 non-essential staff and family members was ordered after Moslem militiamen seized the government radio and television stations at the Ministry of Information. The fighting had trapped many of the diplomats in the British Embassy, which has been used by the U.S. mission since the American Embassy was bombed by CH-16 helicopters swooped down on the seafront boulevard under a heavy guard of U.S. Marines and took nonessential diplomats and their families to a Navy warship, said Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks.

American forces were drawn into the civil warfare for the second straight day with the battleship USS New Jersey firing 5-inch shells at anti-government militia positions after a mortar seriously wounded one Marine.

Three Italian soldiers in the multinational peace-keeping force were also wounded by cross fire as heavy artillery barrages raged at the "Green Line" separating the Christian and Moslem sectors of Belrut.

Rescue workers took advantage of a relative calm with ambulances racing through deserted streets getting wounded to hospitals. At least 100 people were killed and 300 wounded Monday. About 275 people have died and 785 wounded in the last week.

A Lebanese government spokesman confirmed the rebels, who are seeking to topple the U.S.-backed government of President Amin Gemayel, took over the Ministry of Information building, which houses state-run Belrut Radio and Lebanon Television.

Top officials, including Minister of Information Roger Sheikhani, fled the building.

The seizure of the building, the major government installation in west Beirut. was the first government installation taken by the rebels. Most government buildings are in Christian east Beirut. Witnesses said the rebels walked into the building without firing and were seen guarding the building afterward. The rebels did not broadcast news of the takeover. Beirut Radio played traditional Lebanese songs and emphasized developments in fighting in west Beirut. News broadcasts usually emphasize east Belrut.

The broadcasts continued to call Gemayel the president of Lebanon.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said a Marine was seriously wounded by a large caliber round that fell on the Marine positions at the Beirut airport. Another Marine, Lance Cpl. Richard Delgado of Gary, Ind., received a shrapnel wound Monday and was taken to the helicopter carrier Guam where he was diagnosed in good condition, the Pentagon said.

Brooks earlier said the Americans did not fire back since it was believed the mortar was a stray

Witnesses said they could see armed civilians riding around the perimeter of the U.S. base, where Marines were on the highest alert. A French soldier was killed and eight Italian members of the force were wounded in Monday's fighting.

The witnesses also said the Lebanese. army handed over the key Khalde junction to Moslem militiainen. The junction is barely 50 yards from the Marines and controls access to southern Lebanon from Betrut.

U.S. Hockey Team On Thin Ice After 4-2 Loss To Canada

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (UPI) - The United States hockey team was placed in a precarious position today following a 4-2 loss to Canada, but Coach Lou Vairo isn't ready to count out the defending Olympic gold medalists.

Right wing Carey Wilson scored three goals for Canada and assisted on another, more than offsetting two goals by David A. Jensen of the United States.

With his team now in a weak position to take a medal. Vairo decided to give credit to the victors. Bee earlier story, page 5A.

- 2967984199 - A new-strictly-contradicting Padings of a preside the sign sion, says hunger in America is everywhere and blames recent government cuts in welfare, food stamps and school-lunch programs.

"If stated in medical terms, the hunger we saw exists in epidemic proportions," said Dr. J. Larry Brown of the Harvard School of Public Health in releasing the study Monday.

"Our nation generally recognizes that if tens of thousands of Americans contracted a disease, which threatened health and well being, it would be a crisis.

"Today, hunger in America represents such a crisis," he said.

The 110-page report by the Harvard school and the Citizens Commission on Hunger in New England called for an increase of 25 to 30 percent in the federal food-stamp program and expanded welfare and nutrition programs.

Hunger is not the result of a shortage of food or money but "the direct result of a series of governmental actions over the past decade or so, actions which have been the most dramatic in the past several years," the report said.

'We have found serious hunger in our land, and we have found it relatively easily," Brown said. "We saw hunger in every state, every town and each rural area we looked. We went into no region without finding hunger."

Filmmakers' Defense Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Attorneys defending five filmmakers against charges their actions contributed to the Twilight Zone movie set deaths of three actors insist the fatal helicopter crash was an unforeseeable tragedy.

The defense began its case Monday after prosecutors summarized their case and presented another screening of gruesome footage showing a helicopter crashing down on actor Vic Morrow and two children.

The defense was expected to conclude its case this week in the preliminary hearing to decide if director John Landis and four associates should face a manslaughter trial for negligence in the

After the defense presentation, the hearing will recess for several weeks while attorneys prepare written arguments to present to Municipal Court Judge Brian Crahan.

The defendants' lawyers called a metals expert as their first witness. Gary Fowler testified in support of the filmmakers' contention that the crash was unforesceable and not the result of negligence.

Landis bowed his head and refused to watch the 25-minute videotape of the fatal scene. He had done the same thing when the tape was played by defense attorneys on the hearing's

NATIONAL REPORT: A Western winter storm smashed across Dixle Monday, shocking North Carolina with 7 inches of snow and Icing Florida orange groves. The storm - which began as an "instant blizzard" across the High Plains -- was blamed for 44 deaths. At least a dozen low temperature records were broken or tied across the Gulf states. North Carolina forecasters predicted only a light dusting, but heavy snows put most of the state on skids Monday, with accumulations of 4 to 7 inches reported from Raleigh to Charlotte. The snowfail forced officials to close schools over much of North Carolina because buses could not travel on alushy and icy roads. A 13-year-old boy died in a Tarboro, N.C., trailer fire blamed on a makeshift fuel heater. Other northwesterly 20 to 25 knots becoming northerly deaths included 16 in Minnesota, nine in North Dakota, four in Alabama, three each in Tennessee and Wisconsin, two in Illinois and Maine, and one each in dumped up to 5 inches of anow on eastern Tennessee, closing schools. Up to 5 inches of snow in Alabama and Georgia closed schools and snarled traffic. The storm mid 60s to near 70.

Shultz Leaves Brazil On Flight To Grenada

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz left Brazil for Grenada today to review what the administration considers a major foreign policy success - the ouster of Cliba from the thay is an Shultz left brazil's Contemporary high rise capital of Brasilia for the flight to Grenada at dawn. He plans to visit with provisional government officials and American medical school students on the Caribbean Island.

The administration had long been concerned about the Soviet- and Cuban-backed government on Grenada, particularly because of Havana's construction of a 10,000-foot runway capable of handling long-range bombers and troop transports.

Shultz wrapped up his Brasilia visit Monday by signing documents setting the framework for Improved cooperation between Washington and Brasilia in such areas as nuclear energy. weapons manufacture, space exploration and economic investment.

But much of his time and public statements concerned the renewed fighting in Lebanon and the political disintegration of the government of President Amin Gemayel.

Nicaragua Elections Set

MANAGUA. Nicaragua (UPI) - Nicaragua's leftist leaders say elections will be held as planned in 1985 unless U.S.-backed rebels continue attacks against government forces.

There had been speculation the elections would be delayed because the government said Saturday it would postpone introduction of a law regulating election procedures

But the Council of State said Monday the rough draft of the law will be presented Wednesday, a day late.

The ruling Sandinista Front said it will announce on Feb. 21 details of the presidential, vice presidential and Constituent Assembly

The junta said, however, U.S. Interference could postpone the elections.

Priests' Trial Delayed

KABANKALAN, Philippines (UPI) - A judge today delayed the murder trial of two foreign priests when a mob of Filipino peasants and journalists packed the tiny, sweltering courtroom where the proceedings were set to begin.

Sugar plantation workers spilled onto the balcony of the second-floor courtroom and lined the stairwell to watch the trial of the two foreign priests, a local priest and six others charged with the 1982 ambush-slaying of local town mayor Pablo Sola and four aides.

Judge Emilio Legaspi delayed the proceedings while defense attorneys prepared a motion to move the trial to a larger courtroom in Bacolod. the provincial capital of Negros Occidental, 45

Father Brian Gore of Perth, Australia, and Father Niall O'Brien of Dublin, Ireland, a Filipino priest and six lay workers are charged in the case. The nine defendants could be publicly executed if convicted.

IN BRIEF

Adam Walsh's Father Urges Child Law Changes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) - The father of a Broward County boy who was kidnapped and murdered two and a half years ago wants mandatory prison sentences for child molesters.

John Walsh, the founder of the Adam Walsh Child Resource Center, also told state legislators Monday there should be routine background checks run on school teachers. He said elementary schools should have a "Safety With Strangers" program to teach students what to look out for, in case their parents are too embarassed or unaware of the dangers.

Adam Walsh was the 6-year-old boy kidnapped from Hollywood Mall July 27, 1981. His head was found in a canal near Vero Beach two weeks later, but his body was never found. Ottis Toole, a transient who confessed to the killing, later led police to the site where a skeleton was found, but the bones were too large to be the Walsh child's.

Rosy Economy?

$300 Billion Deficit, Steady Interest Rates Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The nation's budget deficit will be more than $300 billion a year by the end of the decade if changes are not made in federal budget policy, the Congressional Budget Office

In its annual regramic outlook, the artisan CRO said the overall economic picture is a rosy one, marred only by high interest rates. The report said the high interest rates apparently come from "huge current and prospective federal deficits and the anti-inflationary policies of the Federal Reserve.

The CBO projected the fiscal 1985 deficit at $208 billion, compared to President Reagan's estimate of $180 billion in his fiscal 1985 budget.

The CBO forecast the deficit to rise in steps - $230 billion in fiscal 1986, $262 fiscal 1988 and $339 billion in fiscal

By contrast, Reagan's budget projects the deficit dropping slightly in fiscal 1986 to $1.7 billion, at $100 million in fiscal 1987, $152 billion in fiscal 1988 and down to $123 billion in fiscal 1989. in interest rates, especially those paid to finance the debt.

"That would take the budget deficit at the end of the decade over $300 billion," Feldstein replied. "We would in effect be using up 75 percent of our personal income and savings, ... There would be very little private hirestment.

At another forum, Republican and Democratic senators warned Menday that Reagan's request for a 13 percent after-inflation increase in the military budget never will be accepted by Con-

Brantley Says 'Gain Time' Too Lenient

State Rep. Bobby Brantley has prefiled a bill in the state House of Representatives to reduce the amount of "gain time." — commonly known as time off for good behavior — state prisoners can receive.

As a means of encouraging satisfactory behavior, the state Department of Corrections grants prisoners time off their sentences - gain time or good time for good behavior.

A prisoner can earn basic gain time of 10 days out of each month of his sentence plus 20 days per month of "incentive gain time" for working diligently, participating in training and using time constructively or otherwise engaging in positive activities. Brantley said.

Under Brantley's bill, the basic and incentive gain time would be reduced to five days per month each. the Longwood Republican said.

"I recognize the importance of gain time to the Department of Corrections as a tool to encourage good behavior thereby protecting the lives and safety of the correctional officers," Brantley said. "However, it appears that when gain time is applied to the recently passed sentencing guidelines, the resulting sentence is too lenient."

Brantley, chairman of the House subcommittee on prison overcrowding, said the guidelines have been widely criticized by the courts because they are perceived to be too lenient.

"Perhaps my bill will help alleviate this perception," he said. - Donna Estes

Midwest Must Not Bear Burden

The long-festering issue of acid rain has erupted into an interstate conflict so intense that it can only be resolved by a strong national policy. But what Congress must be on guard against is a policy that would be unduly harsh upon the

The most encouraging news to surface in recent months came in Presient Reagan's State of the Union address. Rather than push for an immediate control program that would penalize the Midwest, the president proposed doubling research into causes of acid rain, providing grants to states to restock damaged lakes and add lime to offset the acidity, and developing new technology to reduce the sulfur dioxide emissions from coal.

For several months attempts in Congress to address the issue have failed because the problem is so comiex nobody has been able to reach a satisfactory compromise. Recently governors of northeastern states advanced a proposal that could cost the Midwest $5 billion. And four norhteastern groups are threatening legal action to force the Federal Environmental Protection agency to act on the matter.

Gov. James Thompson, serving as chairman of the National Governors' Association, has taken the lead in attempting to get a federal policy that will not put a "disproportionate share of the financial burden" on the Midwestern states.

President Reagan's recommendations for technological development and counteracting of acidity in lakes are closely patterned after proposals Thompson has made. Hopefully, the governors will give these their support at their winter meeting in Washington Feb. 26-28.

Just what is the problem? Acid rain is a form of air pollution generally agreed by scientists to be caused primarily by sulfur dioxide. When the United States became environmentally conscious in the 1970s and enacted clean air legislation, utilities were encouraged to erect tall smokestacks to keep particles in the smoke from falling locally. However, the prevailing winds carry the particles, especially sulfate dust, hundreds of miles where ultimately they mix with rain, snow, dew, fog or hall and become sulfuric acid, a principal ingredient of acid rain.

One environmental group, the Natural Resources Defense Council, says 212 Adirondack lakes in New York and 9,000 lakes and 60,000 miles of streams elsewhere in the East are threatened. Canada claims it has 4,000 dead lakes and 48,000 threatened ones as a result of acid rain. And now, the U.S. Geological Survey reports that the acid rain problem may be worsening in the South and West as well.

The most convincing evidence came last June when the prestigious National Academy of Sciences issued a report linking coal-burning bollers with acid rain over the Northeast and Canada. The academy's 18-year study showed that the amount of acid rain was directly tied to changes in the emissions of sulfur dioxide in both the local and upwind regions from the forest that was the site of testing.

Consequently, few dispute that most of the acid rain results from burning coal. Even Gov. Thompson accepts that conclusion. Yet, there is no definite proof that the Midwest is the sole cause. The National Academy of Science admitted that there was a way to tell whether local industries or power plants in the Ohio Vailey and Midwest were responsible for the problem.

Under current proposals, it would be the Midwest utility user who would pay the cost of implementing reductions of sulfur dioxide emissions.

One concern for Illinois is the impact such laws would have on the high-sulfur coal production. As Thompson said: "One basis of the compromise has to be a guarantee to the Midwest that its coal economy will not be disadvantaged - that we are not simply, under the guise of solving acid rain. opening the doors to Western coal interests coming in and snatching all the coal contracts held by the Midwest states."

As the showdown comes governors and members of Congress must stand firm on the position that acid rain is a national problem - not a Midwest-Northeast issue. Thus the solution must be a national one and its cost must be equitably distributed nationwide.

The lady choir leader would discard hymns the pastor selected and substitute others without consulting him. When he remonstrated with her, she replied, "No one ever pays any attention to the words anyway and the other music is so much

Shortly thereafter, the lady's oldest daughter was to be married and her mother consulted with the pastor about the music to be sung. He suggested, "Hark Tom the Tomb a Doielal Sound" and when the mother protested he replied, "You knew no-one ever pays alleghous to the words, and where would you find a grander tune?" It was not sung at the wedding and the preacher's selections were used afterwards in the church

Lobbying Effort For Japan

Why is it Congress and the Executive Branch have been so slow to do anything about Japan's unfair trade practices?

The answer to that question is highly effective lobbying for Japan by American insiders. The New York Times Magazine recently published a very detailed and informative account of the powerful presence Japan Inc. has in Washington, it should be "must" reading for American businessmen and their employees who have lost profits and jobs because of Japan's successful economic offensives in this country.

One rarely hears anything about Japan's paid lobbyists, but they are in the capital in large numbers. More individuals and firms are registered with the Justice Department as agents for Japanese industry than for industries anywhere else in the world. Furthermore, many lobbyists work for American subsidiaries of Japanese corporations, and thus are exempt from registration requirements.

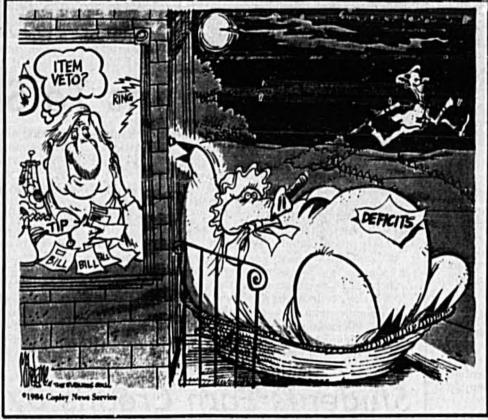

More significant than numbers is the political influence of the spokesmen for Japanese Industry. According to The Times, the lobbyists have included William E. Colby, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency; John Sears, former campaign directors for a Ronald Reagan; former Sen. Sank Church of Idaho; Brock Adams, former secretary of Transportation under Pres ldent Carter, and Richard B. Allen, former National Security Adviser to President Reagan.

Japan is a beneficiary of Washington's revolving door system whereby people who hold sensitive positions in government are able to leave government service and earn huge salaries in industries affected by their expertise and experience. The Times cited the case of an official of the Office of the United States Trade Representative who negotiated a $300,000 a year contract with members of the Electronics Industries Assn. of Japan.

The Japanese are very savvy in their Washington operations. They not only have influential lobbyists who are close to the Reagan administration, but other lobbyists who are close to Mr. Reagan's principal political opponents. They have all the bases covered.

Not only do the Japanese rely on individual lobbyists and firms, but they know how to use organizations that appear to be public interest groups. The Times notes that in 1980 Toyota contributed thousands of dollars to a free trade organization called Consumers for World Trade. Who would suspect Japanese involvement in that? According to The Times, Subaru the American subsidiary of the Japanese auto company, paid $15 membership fees for 1.500 of its own employees "nearly doubling CWT membership."

None of this lobbying activity is

WILLIAM RUSHER A Reader Responds

NEW YORK (NEA) - A few weeks ago in this space I discussed the problem of illegal immigration - especially illegal Mexican immigration - into this country. I predicted that the Simpson Mazzoli bill now before Congress would not solve the problem unless Congress reinforced the Immigration and Naturalization Service, both legally and financially, and "put real teeth in the laws against employing fliegal allens."

to that column, expressing some provocative views of her own on the subject, and I think they may interest you as much as they did me. I will have a few comments on them, but first, here

"I would like to point out some things myself concerning immigration. First, you could fund the INS an unlimited amount of money, and it still would not halt immigration. Especially in the border states where Latinos blend in so well with Mexican Americans, the INS would be hard pressed to apprehend all of them unless it resorted to picking up all brown-skinned people off the streets. The problem, then, would involve discrimination towards a specific group of people. Since most Mexican Americans no longer tolerate violations of their civil rights, the INS would probably find itself embroiled in one legal entanglement after another, making it even more ineffective than it currently is.

"Also, I doubt that Congress would vote to penalize employers who hire undocumented workers. Let's face it: Many businesses have become accustomed to paying cheap wages, and they are not about to sit idly by and let Congress tell them that they now must start paying decent wages. They will lobby strongly against the Simpson-Mazzoli Bill and, at the risk of sounding cynical, will in all probability influence key congressmen to their point of view. Even should Simpson-Mazzoli pass. however, employers will find a way to circumvent the law. You can't legislate greed, Mr. Rusher.

The main reason that neither Simpson-Mazzoli nor any other bill designed to prevent immigration will work, however, is that people on both sides of the border will not be influenced by any legislation. This has nothing to do with loyalty to the United States or Mexico. It is just a fact. The ties between Mexican Americans and Mexicans are too strong; no piece of paper drawn up and approved in Washington D.C. is going to affect the cultural and familial ties which bind the people on this side of the border to those on the other side.

What man would report a distant cousin who has a hungry family in Mexico to feed? What woman would turn in a young girl who she knows needs a job just to survive? Mexican Americans crossed no ocean to get to the United States: they just walked a few miles up the road. Others were here before this region became a part of the United States. In either case, they retained their loyalty to their loved ones. What is Simpson to us? Or Mazzoli?

"Legislate if you must. But please keep in mind that 'illegals' will not cease to come simply because some law says that they can't. To 'stem the flow' (your term), economic conditions in Mexico and the Central American countries would have to improve."

Now for those comments. Note, first. the writer's cool contempt for mere laws. She doubts, for starters, that the Simpson-Mazzoli bill will ever be passed, basing her confidence on the greed of employers, who will, she predicts, successfully lobby Congress to let them keep on hiring wetbacks at substandard wages. But even if the bill is passed, it will simply be ignored. "What is Simpson to us? Or Mazzoli?"

Nor is she worried about the INS. however much money Congress appropriates for it. Here, she puts her faith in civil rights suits that will embroil the INS "in one legal entanglement after another, making it even more ineffective than it currently

The program, which has included more than 200 patients over the last 18 months with no untoward effects, was described in an interview with Dr. Grant V.S. Parr, clinical associate professor of

The early exercise program is only for persons who have had elective coronary bypass surgery with no complications and whose hearts, as a result of the operation, have an adequate supply of blood. "It is our goal that by the time the patient leaves the hospital, that patient is ready to take care of himself or herself at home," Parr said. They should be able to put their clothes on in the morning and take a walk outside when they get home."

The first post-op day, patients walk around in their rooms, accompanied by a physical therapist. Transmitters they wear give off heart beat signals. These are picked up by an untering in the hospital room ceiling and relayed to the heart monitoring station in the intensive care unit.

The second post-op day, wearing the monitoring gear and guided by physical therapists, patients shuffle down 50 feet of the hallway and back, and also do bending exercises.

The third day, arm-raising and armextending exercises are added. The fourth or fifth post-op day recovering heart surgery patients are guided over harder courses, which have included an unloaded exercise bike and a set of stairs — six ateps up, six steps down.

An unloaded bike is one with no resistance set on the pedals.

"We first did a pilot study and looked at 27 patients versus 25 control patients," Parr said.

"We found, first, that there was no difference in the two groups as far as what we did in surgery, how long the surgery took or how sick they were before the surgery."

Parr's group also found patients who exercised had shorter hospital stays and fewer lung complications, such as collapsed lungs.

Patients became quite independent 2.7 days after surgery. They got themselves up around the room and to the bathroom, and they fed and shaved themselves.

"In the control group it took almost five days for people to reach this level," Parr said.

"We also looked to see if there were any complications of this early exercise program and we found none."

insiders are betting that Volcker will emerge from his appearance before the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee with his mystique intact, as he has in the past.

For one thing, the House's self-Imposed five-minute limit on each question and answer puts the members pretty much at Volcker's mercy.

"Any politician worth his salt can talk for five minutes, and Paul Volcker is a consummate politician." an administration official explained to my

WASHINGTON - The semiannual associate Michael Binstein. "For most (committee) members, money is a mystery. And Volcker is the keeper of the mystery."

Congressional Irritation over the Fed's cherished secrecy is not just a case of bruised egos. The decisions the Federal Reserve Board make behind closed doors dictate the direction the nation's economy will take. The Fed decides whether you'll be able to afford a home. expand your business, get a raise or find a job. It can have a crucial influence on who gets elected to Congress and the presidency.

Yet the Fed insists on keeping its operations secret - at least from Congress and the public. The last time Volcker appeared before the House committee, his testimony leaked to some financial houses the day before. leading some to suspect that there was some insider trading as a result. Committee chairman Ferdnand St. Germain. D-R.I., ordered an investigation of the leak by the General Accounting Office.

The Fed's disdainful attitude toward Congress is also reflected in its opposition to submitting to congressional control of its budget, as other federally funded agencies must. Congress regularly threatens to seize this persuasive power - but never quite gets around to doing it.

Current congressional unhappiness with the Fed involves its stubborn insistence on keeping the growth of the money supply to a trickle. Robert Davis, senior economist for the Joint Economic Committee, believes this will doom the recovery and bring on another recession by the end of the year.

In a recent private letter to Volcker, Rcp. Jack Kemp. R-N.Y., put the case bluntly: "Should the current policy continue much longer, several forecasters are predicting, the current (Federal Reserve) Board will have earned the dublous distinction of presiding over three recessions in four years. As usual, the Fed would recognize what it had done too late."

The day before President Reagan's State of the Union address, Kemp called together 20 fellow Republicans for a secret strategy session. A source who was present said Kemp argued that GOP candidates in 1984 should campaign against Fed policies, which he said are keeping interest rates high.

There are some in Congress who resent not just the Fed's policies, but its very existence. "The Fed has been a complete disaster for this country," said Rep. Bill Patman, D.Tex. Hearings Patman held showed that the cost of the recent recession, in lost output and increased welfare payments, was nearly $1 trillion. And Patman believes the severity of the recession was induced needlessly - by the Fed.

It's hard to imagine things getting worse for a team with a 1-18 record, but they did for the Lady Hawks of Spruce Creek High as two of their seven players were lost to ineligibility, and it was their two best players.

Spruce Creek went into Monday's matchup with Sanford's Lady Seminoles with just five players and only one of them scored in double figures. On the other hand, five players scored in double figures for Seminole as the Lady Tribe rolled to a 86-23 victory in Five Star Conference basketball action at Seminole High.

Mona Benton took high-scoring honors with 19 points while Catherine Anderson tossed in a career-high 18 points. Dieidre Hillery tossed in 17, Tammy Pringle netted a career-high 13 points and Sherry Carpenter added 11. Hillery also pulled down a game-high 12 rebounds (she played only two and a half quarters) and Anderson ripped down 11 boards. Cathy Moriarty scored 10 points for Spruce Creek before fouling out.

Seminole improved its record to 21-4 overall and clinched the top seed in the district and a tie for the conference champtonship. The Tribe's conference record stands at 15-1 and a victory over Lake Brantley Friday would clinch Seminole's first-ever outright Five Star Conference title. Seminole, which tied for the conference title two years ago with Mainland, is back in action Wednesday night as it tries to knock off Orlando Evans, which gave Seminole one of its four losses this season.

"We'll be ready for Evans," Seminole coach Ron Merthie said. "We hope to have a good day of practice (Tuesday) and come out firing Wednesday."

Open Olympics Is Coming Soon

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (UPI) -By the 1992 Winter Games, or even possibly by the very next ones in Calgary. Canada. you're going to see something no one has ever seen before. An Open Olympics. Open to everyone, amateurs and professionals alike.

And if you ask me, that will constitute a decisive step in the right direction because it automatically will eliminate much of the sham going on among all of the competing nations, including the United States, and will do away with the kind of controversy detracting from these games at the moment over hockey's Olympic eligibility rules.

Alan Eagleson, who wields more control over amateur and professional hockey than anyone else in North America as promoter of International contests and executive powerful.

director of the NHL's Players Association, called for an Open Ice Hockey Olympics Monday.

He said he would've had Wayne Gretzky playing here right now had these Olympics been open to professionals. Gretzky is playing with the Edmonton Oilers at the moment, but Eagleson would've gotten him and a representative collection of NHL All-Stars here to participate as Team Canada. Eagleson is that

But he said he wasn't going to waste his time bringing Gretzky and other NHL professionals to the Olympics when the Games were beset with the sort of "confused circumstances" they are at present.

He's taiking about the problems they're having regarding what constitutes an amateur player as defined by the Olympic rules.

The whole thing is a big joke now. In Europe, all first division ice hockey leagues in Sweden, Finland, Czechoslovakia and West Germany pay their players. Silly Sports Controversy Ceases, U.S. Begins Gold-Medal Defense

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (UPI) - The American hockey team, amid the silliest sports controversy since George Brett used too much pine tar, was scheduled today to begin defense of its 1980 gold medal.

At 7:30 a.m. EST, rink-length rushes replaced the zig-zagging of the IOC, with the United States and Canada Joined in competition after weeks of being linked by controversy.

That debate caused seven players to be dropped from Olympic competition, as the IOC finally ruled Monday on a protest lodged by Finland regarding the amateur status of players on Canada's roster.

The ruling eventually moved Canada to drop forward Mark Morrison, who played nine games for the New York Rangers, and defenseman Don Dietrich, who played five games for the Chicago Black Hawks.

Italy withdrew Rick Bragnolo, who has played with the Washington Capitals, and goalie Jim Corsi, formerly of the Edmonton Otlers; Austria cut Greg Holat, formerly of the Rangers; West Germany deleted Udo Kieseling, who played with the Minnesota North Stars; and Norway chopped defenseman Bjorn Skaare.

"Whoever is out there when they drop the puck is who we'll play," 17-year-old forward Ed Olczyk of Chicago said, summarizing the attitude toward an issue that has plagued the Winter Olympics before their official opening.

If the controversy over Olympic hockey eligibility had caused weariness before Monday, the day's events produced battle fatigue. After Finland's protest, the IOC hemmed, hawed, then finally issued a vague statement that did little to separate amateurs from professionals.

"The Eligibility Committee ... states as of today, that players are not eligible when they have or have had a contract with the National Hockey League," the statement said. Sounds fairly clear, right? But the IOC clouded its own ruling by allowing each national organizing committee to produce its own definition of an amateur. Now here comes Canada, like Brett charging out of the dugout, submitting a roster including goalie Mario Gosselin, who has signed a contract with the Quebec "The United States made the anowball and Finland threw it," said Canadian hockey czar Alan Eagleson. All that was missing was umpire Nick Bremigan.

American League president Lee MacPhail, and somebody to write a folk song about it. And don't forget, the

Olympic Hockey

Pine Tar incident didn't exactly help the New York Yankees in the pennant race.

"This controversy will not affect us like the Yankee" Pine Tar thing," said forward David A. Jensen of Needham. Mass. "The team and the players are just here to play."

Team USA needs no distractions. Super center Pat LaFontaine of Pontiac, Mich., is bothered by allergies and a touch of the flu. Defenseman Mark Fusco of Burlington, Mass., missed practice with a virus. Both were expected to play.

Coach Lou Vairo did his best to avoid the debate. concentrating instead on the festive air that has managed to push its head above the red tape.

"I like the people here, they smile a lot, they're happy," said Vairo. "This seems to be a happy country and that rubs off on the team and helps them, except f or the normal edginess of the days before the big game. which is healthy."

Only two teams will escape the Blue Division and advance to the medal round and Canada, Czechoslovakia and Finland all represent serious challenges to the Americans. A loss to Canada would virtually force the U.S. to win all their remaining games in the division. In 1980, Team USA began its journey to the gold with a 2-2 tie against Sweden.

"I consider (Canada) not a must game mathematically, but emotionally," said Vairo, "We've beaten them. rather badly in the past and I hope the guys are confident but not cocky.

"I hope Canada is not going to put six months of training together and beat us. I consider the game a fifty-fifty proposition."

Nearly lost in the controversy was the maga of Bill

Johnson. The all-or-nothing 23-year-old from Van Nuys. Calif., continued to establish himself as a leading contender for a medal in the downhill competition. He turned in the second fastest training time Monday behind Pin in Zurbriggen of Switzerland after registering the top time Sunday.

Although Johnson is guaranteed a start Thursday, he was eager to prove his ability and show a consistency he is not normally known for."

Alabama's Upset Of Kentucky Was No Fluke

Maybe some people will believe me now when I tell them the University of Alabama has a basketball team too. Saturday's victory by the Crimson Tide over third-ranked (now eighth-ranked) Kentucky was no fluke. Alabama has beaten the Wildcats at least once a year since the 1978-79 season.

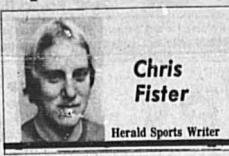

I don't have to look it up, because I was there for some of those victories. In the 1978-79 season. Alabama (my alma mater), coache was led by senior center Reggie "Mule" King while Kentucky had freshman flash Dwight Anderson and plastic-haired guard Kyle Macy."

The two teamers in d. season and then met in the Southeastern Conference tournament semi-finals. Anderson broke his wrist in the early going of that game so I figured Alabama had a good chance. But, Macy started mitting free throws down the sucreti and Kentucky finally came out on top. 104-102

The next season, 1979-80, Alabama didn't have that good of a team while Kentucky was again ranked in the top 10. Eddie Phillips was about all the Crimson Tide had and the Wildcats were led by Sam Bowle who was in his freshman season.

Still, Alabama somehow managed to upset the Wildcats, and at Lexington (Ky.) yet. We needed a police escort to get out of Lexington that night. But, Kentucky came back to beat the Tide at Tuscaloosa as Jim Master popped in about five straight 20-footers in the fourth quarter.

It was pretty easy to overlook those two years in Alabama basketball, because Bear Bryant's football team won the National Championship both years. At that time, a lot of people thought that basketball was just a sport the football team played in intramurals during the

I could tell that basketball was on the upswing that year because our champion intramural team was hammered by the Alabama women's team, 105-58, in an exhibition game, despite a 21-point effort by a guy named Fister.

Again. Alabama and Kem icky split during the regular season, but they didn't get to face off again in the tournament. After predicting it in the last week of the regular season. Ole Miss won the SEC tournament that year and I won a bundle of money.

Alabama wound up getting a bid to the National Invitational Tournament (NIT) at Madison Square Garden in New York City. The student newspaper sports editor and I took the sports budget for the entire Spring Semester and went to see the Tide in the NIT. Alabama lost to Rutgers in the second round, but we stayed for the entire tournament and it was worthwhile, beacause the Virginia Cavallers won the NIT in 1981 led by 7-4 freshman Ralph Sampson.

C.R. Smith Receives Sertoma Service Award

Once a year, the Longwood area Sertoma Club searches the Central Florida area for a recipient worthy to receive its most distinguished award, the Service To Mankind Award.

The recipient must be someone who has been active in giving of themselves, their time and talents to the betterment of the community.

During a luncheon held at Duff's restaurant, Sertoma members, officers, and guests met to officially present the Service To Mankind Award to Clarence Randolph Smith. (C.R.), founder and president of Frontline Outreach, 3000 West Carter Street, Orlando.

What had started back in the late 1960 with an Orlando business man's deep love and concern for the future of the young black youths involved in five of Orlando's street gangs, blossomed into a full time ministry for C.R., his wife Estelle. and their children.

Starting out by driving into the black areas of town where the youth gangs congregated, C.R. began to witness and minister the love of God, while at first receiving back from the youths anger, hate, and sometimes violence..

He slowly won many of these gang members over. Bringing at times as many as 120 of the youths home to hold bible study meetings. C.R. knew he had to find a larger meeting place. Struggling not only to minister to the lost, C.R. came to battle many white's who would not let him hold his meetings at their meeting halls. C.R. prayed and agonized deep within his heart before God, and was soon able to open a club, then called the Tom Skinner Club, in a small converted storefront, by 1983, the Smiths were ministering to over 450 youths, and over 200 adults each week. What was started by C.R.'s vision, love and dedication, now ministers not only Christ, but food, clothing, job placement and financial assistance to those in need.

In January of this year, C.R.'s long awaited dream came true. Frontline Outreach, (formerly Tom Skinner Clubs), with strong community support, was able to purchase and renovate a large facility in the heart of Orlando's black community to use as their home base. C.R.'s vision continues with plans to expand the present program to meet the needs of 1000 to 1500 youths each week, thus filling the void in many other areas of community need. Due to one mans love for God and man, there are no longer any street gangs in Orlando, now ex-gang members are being trained by C.R.'s example to reach out into their communities and continue the work of ministering to their fellowman.

At a recent Longwood Rotary Club meeting, Dr. Ronald Holman, local dentist, spoke to members regarding the practice of dentistry past, present and future. Emphisis was on the proper preventive care one should take to keep his mouth and teeth healthy. The key word for the meeting was "Floss." Dr. Holman said that "care doesn't cost, but neglect does"

The Longwood Rotary meets every Tuesday. at 7:30 a.m., at Cassidy's Restaurant, highway 434 and Markham Woods Road.

The Longwood/Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce has announced the start of its annual membership drive. Heading up the membership drive committee are Andy Amoroso, Gary BeMiller, Catherine Daucher, Richard Eggers and Don Terry. The drive began on Feb. 1 and ends on March 12. This year's goal is 668 members, doubling last year's membership.

Special guest at the chamber's Jan. 23 luncheon meeting was Mr. Robert Whitehill, senior vicepresident of Barnett Bank. Mr. Whitehill spoke on the changes in the banking industry brough about by deregulation and investment opportunities available in the Central Florida area.

Our home has approximately eight bedrooms. Two rooms are filled with textbooks because our children all graduated from college with Ph.D.s and master's degrees. One room is filled with old radios, games, sports equipment and trophies. All the bureau drawers are filled with children's things.

The cellar is filled with old furniture, which I plan to restore when I get old (I am 78 now.) My wife still has all the letters, Christmas, Easter and birthday cards received over the last 50 years - plus thousands of snapshots of our seven children and 18 grandchildren.

We are savers, so much so that our children know

Hypoglycemia Moves Adrenalin

DEAR DR. LAMB - 1 Just turned 30 a few months ago. During my yearly physical I told my doctor about my excessive fatigue. I was dizay and at times extremely irritable. which wasn't normal for me. I had a six-hour glucose tolerance test and It showed I was most people talk about. hypoglycemic.

I try to follow my diet. and when I slip I really feel the effects.

hypoglycemia during a glucose tolerance test and really be a diabetic? Does having hypoglycemia mean that eventually one will become a diabetic? Whenhavinga hypoglycemic reaction should I eat something with sugar? I think people are confused about hypoglycemia.

DEAR READER - AL least I can agree with your last statement. I recently received a letter from a young man who had a problem with anxiety, and some people would attribute his symptoms to hypoglycemia. The reason is that both anxiety and hypoglycemia stimulate the release of adrenaline.

The only proof of hypoglycemia is to demonstrate a low glucose level at the time symptoms occur. A glucose tolerance test. whether it's two or eight hours, that shows low values but is not accompanied with any symptoms, doesn't establish the diagnosis of hypoglycemia.

If a person has hypoglycemia, it doesn't mean he'll become a diabetic. A very small percentage of people who have hypoglycemia may become diabetic, but most do not. It's not the same disease. Unless the diabetic is taking insulin or oral hypoglycemic medicine, there is no way a hypoglycemic response can occur during a glucose tolerance test.

Reactive hypoglycemia is the common form that

It's a mistake to use sugar if you have this form. There are other forms of hypoglycemia caused by Can a person have tumors of the pancreas and other disorders.

Inreactive hypoglycemia, the low blood glucose level only occurs after eating. It will not occur in the morning. even if you don't eat until noon. Eating something sweet because you feel low merely sets you up for cyclical rises and falls in the blood glucose levels.

To help eliminate some of your confusion, I am sending you The Health Letter 18.8, Hypoglycemia. The Low Blood Sugar Problem, in which I summarize the view of most medical authorities about hypoglycemia.

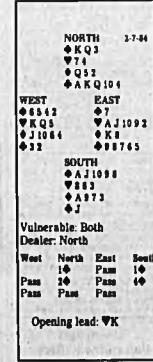

With the proper diet and lifestyle, most people who havereactive hypoglycemia can eliminate their symptoms. The diet should cut out concentrated sweets, although recent studies have shown that sweet potatoes, not Irish potatoes, are OK. Rice is better than bread as a carbohydrate source and small, frequent meals also are helpful.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551. Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

hearts in order to lead his nine of clubs. South was in with the jack. The average player would simply play three rounds of trumps. and the hand would collapse after West ruffed the third club later on in the

This South started to pull trumps in the classic manner. He took his jack. led to dummy's queen and stopped to see how he could guard against that 4-1 break.

It wasn't really a difficult play. He simply led a club and was careful to discard his heart so that he could ruff any heart lead in his own hand and keep that trump entry in dummy.

After that play, West was helpless. South was sure of four clubs, one diamond and his five trumps.

Note that, if East had led a third heart, South would have ruffed in dummy. drawn trumps and made five-odd since he would collect one ruff in dummy, his own five spades, the ace of diamonds and four club tricks.
