Another choice, TV-65

Central Florida's newest full-power television station, WRBW-TV signed on the air yesterday at 11:50 a.m. It is being broadcast on Channel 65.

The station is initially planning to telecast from 7 a.m. until midnight, seven days a week.

Later this summer, the station plans to expand broadcasting to 24 hours a day from Universal Studios' back lot, making it the first commercial television station to be located at a major studio.

The locally owned and operated 5-million watt independent station will be carried on all cable television systems. Cable operators have up to 90 days to designate a fixed position for Channel 65 on their respective systems.

The Federal Communications Commission, FCC, has designated Channel 65 a "must-carry" channel for nearly 40 cable television systems serving the primary coverage area which includes Seminole, Brevard, Orange and Osceola counties, as well as portions of Lake, Volusia and Polk counties.

While the World Cup is still a couple of weeks away, the Irish national team has begun their training at the Seminole Soccer Club near Lake Mary.

The team, which will play matches in the Meadowlands in New Jersey and at the Citrus Bowl in Orlando, arrived in Seminole County yesterday. Their training schedule calls for workouts at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. each day.

The team is based out of the Orlando North Hilton in Altamonte Springs for the duration of their stay in the United States.

The Irish will play Mexico at the Citrus Bowl in June 24.

According to Seminole Soccer Club officials, there will be plenty of parking available to the public who wish to attend practices.

There is no admission charge to view the practice sessions.

Next mayor tapped

Miller will succeed Lovestrand in Longwood

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The timing of the vote came as a surprise Monday night when Commissioner Steve Miller was selected to succeed Longwood Mayor Paul Lovestrand June 30.

The question of who would succeed Lovestrand was on the June 20 meeting agenda. Lovestrand is resigning as mayor but will complete his term as commissioner. He plans to run for state representative and was stepping down as mayor to devote time to the campaign. Lovestrand's term as commissioner expires this year.

"It appears to have been planned," Lovestrand commented, about the earlier than scheduled vote to pick his replacement.

Commissioner Annamarie Vacca started the ball rolling at the end of the commission meeting complimenting Lovestrand on his service. Vacca was absent the night Lovestrand submitted his letter of resignation. She added that to wait until the next meeting to name a replacement would not give the new mayor or city officials ample time to prepare for the transition. She cited the need to order a signature stamp and to study Roberts Rules of Order as reasons to advance the selection date.

"Let's do it tonight," Vacca said, of the selection date.

Rescue 9-1-1

An unidentified man was working under his car at 103 Mayfair Circle in Sanford when the mechanism supporting the vehicle collapsed, sending the car crashing onto the man. Sanford Police, Seminole County Fire Rescue and Sanford Fire Rescue operators were called to the scene to extricate the victim from his trap. Above, rescue workers hurried to stabilize the injured man while, below, officers arranged for the helicopter which landed at nearby Farmer's Furniture on 25th Street and French Avenue and took him to Orlando Regional Medical Center where he was treated for the trauma to his head. Information about his condition was not available this morning.

Murder trial

Prosecution: Engels dead; Defense: Girl a runaway

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A close friend of Kathy Engels testified Monday she has not heard anything from the girl she considered a sister since she disappeared seven years ago.

Her voice breaking with emotion, Amy Davis said she has not received any letter, note, visit or telephone call from Engels since she vanished without a trace over Memorial Day weekend in 1987. Davis said she believes Engels is dead because "she would not hurt her family or friends like that," by running away and never contacting anyone.

In 1986, Davis lived near Engels in a Lake Mary condominium complex where they often visited one another. Davis gave Engels a pair of tennis shoes which the prosecution hopes to link to a mark on the torso of Anton Daryl Meyers. Police took photographs of Meyers shortly after Engels' vanished.

Davis and her mother purchased identical shoes. The teen gave her shoes to Engels and police used the mother's shoes to compare to the mark on Meyers' body.

The prosecution is attempting to prove Meyers killed Engels during an attempted sexual assault. The defense is attempting to show Engels is a runaway.

Meyers is on trial for first degree

Public Safety Complex plans unveiled

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners got their first look at what two architectural firms plan for the county's $10 million Public Safety Complex nearly a month after they were scheduled to select one of them.

Commissioners will decide June 14 whether to proceed with either of the firms. Commissioners expressed little change in their previous support for either team, although commissioner Larry Furlong said he was more receptive to the number two firm, Spillis Candela & Partners Inc.

Furlong, along with commissioner Daryl McLain, supported the number one firm Architects Design Group Inc. May 10. The other three commissioners supported Spillis Candela, the firm ranked second by a staff selection committee.

Commissioners were scheduled to choose the winner of the $1 million design contract May 10, but they could not agree on one of the firms. The division arose following the receipt of an anonymous letter critical of ADG, based in Winter Park. County staff investigated the allegations

High school seniors graduate this week

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — More than 2,700 young men and women will walk across the stages this week to accept their high school diplomas and move on to the next stages in their lives.

Graduations, seen by some students as the end of one part of their lives are, to others, merely a stepping stone to greater educational opportunities.

All the district's high school graduations will take place on June 8 or June 9 at various locations in Seminole and Orange counties.

The school board agreed earlier this year that starting in the 1994-95 school year graduations must be held indoors to avoid problems with heat for those who attend.

All but Seminole High and Lyman High have already moved their ceremonies indoors. Lake Mary and Lake Brantley will host their graduations at the Orlando Arena and Lake Howell and Oviedo high schools will have their ceremonies at the University of Central Florida Arena.

No facility in Seminole County is large enough to accommodate the expected crowds at any of the graduations.

Seminole and Lyman will hold their ceremonies at their respective stadia, but they will have them early in the morning, as they have in the past.

Seminole's ceremony will begin at 8 a.m. on June 9; Lake Mary's will begin at 8 p.m.; Lyman's graduation will get underway at 8:30 a.m.; Lake Brantley's ceremony will start at 3 p.m.; Oviedo's will start at 2 p.m.; and Lake Howell's graduation will start at 8 p.m.

Most of the graduates from Seminole County schools will be going on to post secondary education institutions. Many are planning military careers.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Tar balls found on beaches

PENSACOLA BEACH — Authorities are uncertain what caused tar balls, some as large as softballs, that have been washing up on Florida Panhandle beaches.

The tar balls began appearing last week as far east as Gulf County, about 150 miles from here, and started washing up in the Pensacola Beach area over the weekend.

National Park Service rangers combed seven miles of the Gulf Islands National Seashore to clean the gooey mess Sunday.

"There's enough so that you can't walk down the beach without seeing it. Some of it's 12 inches or larger," said National Seashore spokesman Riley Hoggard. "People step on it, lie in it, smudge and smear it and get it all over their feet."

The tar can be a hazard to sea turtles if they swallow it and shore birds if they get the sticky material in their feathers.

It is not considered a health hazard to people but can be unpleasant, said Bay County Public Safety Director David Miller in a news release from his Panama City office.

"It is very, very difficult to get off of you," said Cecil Dykes, manager of St. Andrews State Recreation Area near Panama City. "I got some on me ... and it was a nightmare."

Skin cancer vaccine shows promise

TAMPA — A Tampa doctor helping test a vaccine with a potential to fight skin cancer says the project shows promise.

The vaccine, made from someone else's cancer cells, can treat about 80 percent of all skin cancer sufferers, said Douglas Reintgen, an oncologist at H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center.

He's using the vaccine on about 20 Florida patients as part of a Duke University project.

Melanoma cells differ from other cancerous cells and don't respond well to traditional chemotherapy. That makes it difficult to fight recurrence of the disease after tumors have been removed surgically.

selection. "I believe it's unfair," Lovestrand said. "It's too short of notice. It doesn't really matter to me because I'm getting out anyway," adding it was unfair to the other commissioners to make a choice on such short notice.

"I think everybody has decided who they are going to vote for," Miller commented, noting that Lovestrand had given notice weeks ago that he was stepping down.

The commissioners continued with their reports as the clock ticked past the 10 p.m. meeting cutoff time. Miller called for a 20 minute meeting extension. Commissioner Ron Sargent, Iris Benney Vacca and Miller by voice vote voted to extend the session.

"No, I guess I lost," Lovestrand said, with an implish grin. "Just joking."

Vacca nominated Miller for mayor based on his experience and knowledge. Lovestrand nominated Sargent and Benson nominated herself.

Miller is completing his first term as commissioner and said after the meeting he will seek re-election in November.

Taken in order of nomination, Miller was selected after he voted for himself and got the votes of Vacca and Sargent.

Miller said he hopes to foster a good working relationship with the county on projects which will benefit Longwood. The city must address the sewer system and annexation of commercial and residential enclaves within the city limits which are not part of the city.

Earlier in the evening, Miller said there are 80 enclaves in Longwood which should be annexed. He estimated the city is not collecting over $41,000 in taxes from the enclaves while providing city services to them. Miller said he thinks the city limits should be squared off. He plans to consult neighboring cities about annexations they have successfully undertaken.

In other business, the commissioners approved a real estate appraisal for property near fire station #15. The city will make an offer to buy the property to be used for department operations and living quarters. After a lengthy discussion, the commissioners agreed to try to purchase the property paying for it in one year, rather than seeking a referendum and bond issue to finance it.

Lovestrand, who helped amend the charter concerning property acquisitions, said the requirement applies to all real estate either rented, purchased or built. The mayor cast the only "no" vote.

Expansion of the fire department including better living accommodations, office and meeting space has been discussed although adding a second story to the existing building is not practical due to poor soil conditions at the site and structural limitations.

The commissioners also requested a poll of residents in the Lake Oaks area on a proposed annexation. A group opposed to annexation appeared Monday night. Late last year, another group seeking annexation into the city with the hope of getting improved drainage and paving approached the commission. Before proceeding with the expense of a referendum on the annexation, the commission wants the preliminary head count.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Battle lines drawn on session

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The latest Republican reception of Gov. Lawton Chiles' proposed health care reforms points to a tough battle over his plan to subsidize insurance for needy Floridians.

A special Senate committee, established to consider health care reform, took testimony but no action Monday as Chiles visited Miami and urged people to let GOP senators know they want health care reform.

"The opposition has referred to our plan as welfare for the middle class," said Chiles. "That makes me sick. This is to help working people."

Since the 40-member Senate is evenly split between Democrats and the GOP, the fate of Chiles' proposal remains as unclear as it was two months ago when the Legislature ended its regular 60-day session without passing the plan.

Meanwhile, in Miami's Little Havana neighborhood, the governor asked people to put pressure on Republican Sen. Alberto Gutman because up to 40,000 of his constituents would benefit from the plan.

"There's so much reason that Republican senators in Miami should be voting for this plan, and I'm counting on them to help me push it through," Chiles said.

The governor wants to help hundreds of thousands of poor- and near-poor Floridians buy private health insurance. The money would come from making all welfare recipients on Medicaid enroll in health maintenance organizations or other kinds of managed care.

This week's special session, scheduled by the governor, was scheduled to begin today at 2 p.m. Senate Republicans scheduled a caucus meeting for this morning to talk about health care.

At Monday's meeting, Republicans asked Doug Cook, Chiles' top health care aide, a lot of questions about the concept and the details of the subsidy plan, which requires federal approval.

"You're asking us to pass a significant, comprehensive plan on the hopes ... that it will save money and ... hopefully that the federal government will give us the waiver so the program can go," Sen. James Scott of Fort Lauderdale, a leading Republican, told Cook.

"I think that's a little speculative," Scott said.

Cook said lawmakers would not be forced into doing something by the federal government.

"You're not committing to anything," he said. "If the feds don't approve it, this program goes away."

Cook wasn't the only one to field critical questions by Republicans.

Jim Brainerd, a longtime representative of the Florida Chamber of Commerce, had to defend his organization's support of Chiles' plan to Scott and Sen. John McKay, R-Bradenton.

Another highlight of Monday's meeting was testimony by Tom Foley, who works for Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher, a GOP gubernatorial candidate.

Foley told the committee that Cook's figure of $116 per month in average premiums was "woefully inadequate."

Cook, however, defended the figure, which he said was calculated by two insurance companies doing business in the state.

In any case, if the premium does turn out to be too low, the shortfall will not be made up by either the federal or state government, but by the policyholder, Cook said.

Sen. Kenneth Jenne II, a Fort Lauderdale Democrat who supports Chiles' plan, questioned the timing of Foley's comments.

"If I did not know, it would almost seem like a public ambush," Jenne said.

Earlier in the day, Gallagher called a news conference to release a letter he sent Chiles calling the subsidy plan "yet another government program with shaky financing that will increase medical costs."

5 hurricanes, nine named storms forecast

By Associated Press

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Noted hurricane forecaster William Gray predicts a below-average five hurricanes and nine named storms this hurricane season, but it will be more active than the last three years.

One of this season's hurricanes will be severe, the Colorado State University hurricane expert said Monday.

El Nino, a warm-weather pattern in the Pacific Ocean, will not be a factor this year, he said. Last year, El Nino was stronger than expected, resulting in the formation of fewer hurricanes in the Atlantic Basin. It had a similar effect on hurricane activity there in 1991 and 1992, said Gray.

"We expect the El Nino in the Pacific will weaken this summer, causing it to be a neutral influence on this year's hurricane activity," Gray said.

He also said there will be 15 hurricane days — four six-hour periods with hurricane-force winds of 74 mph or more — and one intense hurricane day, when winds surpass 110 mph.

During an average hurricane season — the season runs from June through November — there are 5.7 hurricanes and between four and five intense hurricane days.

In 1993, there were four hurricanes, one of them intense; eight named storms; 10 hurricane days, and one intense hurricane day.

Gray predicted a Hurricane Destruction Potential of 40 during this hurricane season. The HDP, a rating of wind- and ocean-surge destruction potential, is 68 during an average year, he said. During 1993, the HDP was 23.

Man attacked by 'flesh eating bacteria' now recovering

By Associated Press

CORAL SPRINGS — Steve Hillman thought all he had was a pimple. About 36 hours later, the area where the pimple had taken root turned black and excruciatingly painful.

Now, Hillman is recovering from surgery and intensive antibiotics to stop ravaging "flesh-eating" bacteria. Doctors say Hillman nearly lost his life.

They are quick to dispel fears of an epidemic, though they say the type of bacterium that attacked Hillman — group A streptococcal — is probably the same that killed 10 people in England.

The bacteria attacked Hillman's right buttock four weeks ago. The 37-year-old owner of a dry-cleaning delivery service noticed a pimple. His wife Peggy said Monday.

Binge drinking rampant on campuses

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — America's college campuses are inundated with an epidemic of binge drinking, fueled in part by growing numbers of women just as eager as men to get plastered, a private commission said today.

The panel urged colleges to stop accepting binge drinking as "a harmless rite of passage" and attack it as a problem causing most of the violent crime on campuses and many academic woes as well.

The problem is no longer restricted to Saturday nights, said the Rev. Edward A. Malloy, president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the Commission on Substance Abuse at Colleges and Universities.

Many students are "drinking every day or three or four times a week instead of just on the weekends," said Malloy.

He said the problem is acute in fraternities and sororities, where students down three times as much beer and booze as their peers.

The panel cited this "startling" statistic: the percentage of college women who drink to get drunk has more than tripled in the past 15 years, from 10 percent to 35 percent.

Sixty percent of college women who acquire sexually transmitted diseases, including herpes and AIDS, were drunk at the time of infection, said the panel, which completed a two-year study under the auspices of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University.

"Drinking alcohol has long been a part of the college experience," from tailgate parties outside football stadiums to BYOB mixers, the commission noted in its report. It is "too often accepted as a 'rite of passage,' thus nurturing a behavior that is destroying lives and endangering our country's future."

Malloy, Penn State football coach Joe Paterno, Sens. Nancy L. Kassebaum, R-Kan., and Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., and the other commissioners appealed to colleges to change the culture that encourages students to go on a bender.

Among its findings from surveys and other studies:

—Ninety percent of campus rapes occur when either the assailant, the victim or both used alcohol.

—At least one out of five college students abandons safe sex practices when drunk.

—The average college student imbibes 34 gallons of beer, wine or liquor a year.

—The $5.5 billion that students spend on alcohol each year exceeds what they spend on all other beverages and their books combined.

—Forty-two percent of students reported binge drinking (five or more drinks at a sitting) in the last two weeks.

—White men drink far more than any other group, averaging nine-plus drinks a week, twice the rate of white women. Black men consume 3.6 drinks per week and black women only one drink per week.

Programs for black males: Hard time getting funds

By SONYA ROSE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In his first week on the job, Keith Givens was robbed by a young gang member at the St. Louis recreation program he runs.

Instead of pressing charges, Givens helped the robber move away from gangs and today, the young man at 18 has a general equivalency diploma. Givens is scrambling for grants, donations and federal funds to stay afloat.

He is among thousands of black men who give time and energy to saving wayward black males through programs that, though successful, are often neglected by philanthropies and government.

According to a six-city analysis by the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, 74 percent of black male-only programs had annual budgets of less than $25,000. The median annual budget for black male-only programs was $10,000, the study said, while the median budget for programs serving both black males and females was seven times higher: $72,000.

"I have to go out there to beg, plead, borrow, whatever, to get the money," Givens said. "It's been a long, hard struggle."

Youth programs are not, however, hurting for black male volunteers. The study found 4,600 black male volunteers working with 204 programs in the six cities; about half are professionals, and most are involved for at least a year.

"Adult black males are volunteering to work in youth programs in large numbers," the study said. "Having professional black men volunteering to work with disadvantaged children sends a very powerful message about responsibility, success and adulthood."

The study was based on responses to mailed questionnaires from 251 programs that serve black youth up to 15 years of age in six cities: Atlanta, Boston, Cleveland, New Orleans, St. Louis and Oakland, Calif.

Programs in the sample served 35,000 youngsters. About 25,000 of the children were black, and 14,000 were black males.

Black male-only programs rely mainly on individual donations, and raise only about $1,900 each, the study found. Those that relied on foundations obtained a median grant of $6,100, and membership fees yielded about $1,050 each.

By comparison, programs affiliated with national youth development organizations had a combined budget of $8.6 million, researchers said; 94 percent of that money was provided by the private sector. "We found that success didn't always dictate the ability to access funds," said Oliver Thomas, a New Orleans city councilman and founder of Boys to Men, a mentoring and tutorial program at a local middle school that stresses black history and culture.

Fifty-two percent of the children in Boys to Men went from borderline classroom performance to the honor roll, Thomas said. One student, who joined Boys to Men with a 0.46 grade point average, earned a 3.7 GPA this year.

Be a nosy neighbor

No one wants a nosy neighbor. There are times however, when a few words of caution to that person next door can save them from a financial disaster.

Florida's Business and Professional Regulation Secretary George Stuart has held a news conference cautioning people about using unlicensed contractors for their home repairs.

He warned that if a non-licensed contractor takes your money and leaves before the work is done, you can call anyone you like, but will not have any way of getting reimbursement.

By obtaining a contractor's license, a business person is identified with the state, and can be traced should a rip-off occur. In such a way, a homeowner who loses money to an unscrupulous contractor may be able to get some of the money returned. The run-away contractor may also be prosecuted.

We see it often. A pickup truck driving through a neighborhood with a ladder and tools in the back. Someone goes up to a door and tells a home owner they are in the neighborhood, and will do certain construction work at a reduced price.

This may sound like a scam, but it is surprising how many people buy it. The so-called contractor says they need to buy some paint or roofing tar. You give them money with which to make the purchases, and that may be the last you see of them.

Another method is to phone your home and tell you that a crew will be in your neighborhood at some particular time. The voice on the phone asks if you would like some work done at a lower-than-normal price.

At times, the phone caller doesn't have any idea where you live or your neighborhood. How then could they be "in your neighborhood."

There are many good contracting firms. They are licensed and carry insurance. Many are recommended by local building supply firms or others.

There are also others however, who only seek to get money from the unsuspecting.

If there is someone in your neighborhood whom you have befriended and you see they are about to launch into some home improvement project, butt in. If you know a good licensed contractor whose work you have been pleased with, share the information with your neighbor.

Certainly, it's none of your business what they do, but it's all of our business to insure our fellow citizens that they don't get swindled.

This is a case where being nosy can help your neighbor avoid a scam.

Garbage plan

No surprise that the result of the Seminole County Commission public hearing would result in mandatory garbage collection. Again demonstrated was that the opinion and needs of unincorporated areas of the county would have poor representation. The focus of those who objected should have been:

- What is the ultimate cost to taxpayers to collect money for a private business? How many new employees to implement the program? How long before home taxes are raised to meet this cost? A check at the courthouse revealed that the cost of the first mailing was $32,000.

Should a homeowner be unable to pay the assessment for cost of obtaining money to satisfy a lien, the solution is not as simple as indicated at the hearing by two who should know better, Seminole County Attorney Bob McMillan and Tax Collector Ray Valdes. Obtaining a second mortgage is sometimes difficult and interest rates are always high. The cost of the tax certificate adds to the total.

- Now that the garbage collectors have a captive payroll they do not have to compete. How high will their rates go?

To those who object to this forced intrusion of government, I suggest that they vote, and work to get out the vote. Perhaps it is time to get a referendum on the ballot for single-member districts in order to obtain fair representation.

Punishment should fit crime, not age

I read the news this week, oh boy.

In Cleveland, Tenn., 17-year-old Shannon Haylock went on trial for the rape and robbery of his former foster mother. She was stripped, bound, burned with cigarettes, repeatedly raped and shot in the leg. In Griffin, Ga., six boys, ages 11 to 14, appeared before a juvenile court judge on charges of raping a 9-year-old girl. She was picking berries when she was attacked.

In Murietta, Calif., two 19-year-olds, Khamchan Ketkouvannasane and Xou Yang, were named prime suspects in a recent brutal attack that left a German tourist dead and her husband seriously wounded.

It might be something of a comfort if these depraved acts were an aberration. If the juveniles involved were unusually bad seeds. But youth violence is occurring with increasing frequency throughout the country. America has an epidemic on its hands.

FBI statistics bear this out. Between 1987 and 1991, the number of juveniles arrested for such violent crimes as rape, robbery, aggravated assault and homicide increased 50 percent.

This ominous trend owes to a number of factors, the most significant of which are that more and more kids are packing firearms -- viewing their weapons almost as fashion accessories -- and more are involved with drugs. Indeed, over the past decade, the number of juveniles arrested for gun-related murder increased by 80 percent. The youth arrest rate for sale or use of such hard drugs as heroin and cocaine skyrocketed 700 percent.

Lawmakers in both Washington and state capitals have fallen all over themselves this election year to pass legislation proving to voters that they are getting tougher on crime. But neither the federal crime bill nor the various "three strikes" and related bills that assorted state legislatures have ginned up will make a dent in juvenile crime.

That's because youthful offenders rarely pass through the adult criminal justice system. Most are tried in juvenile courts, which treat even the most hardened, unrepentant, inveterate young criminals as though they are reclamation projects for some latter-day Father Flanagan.

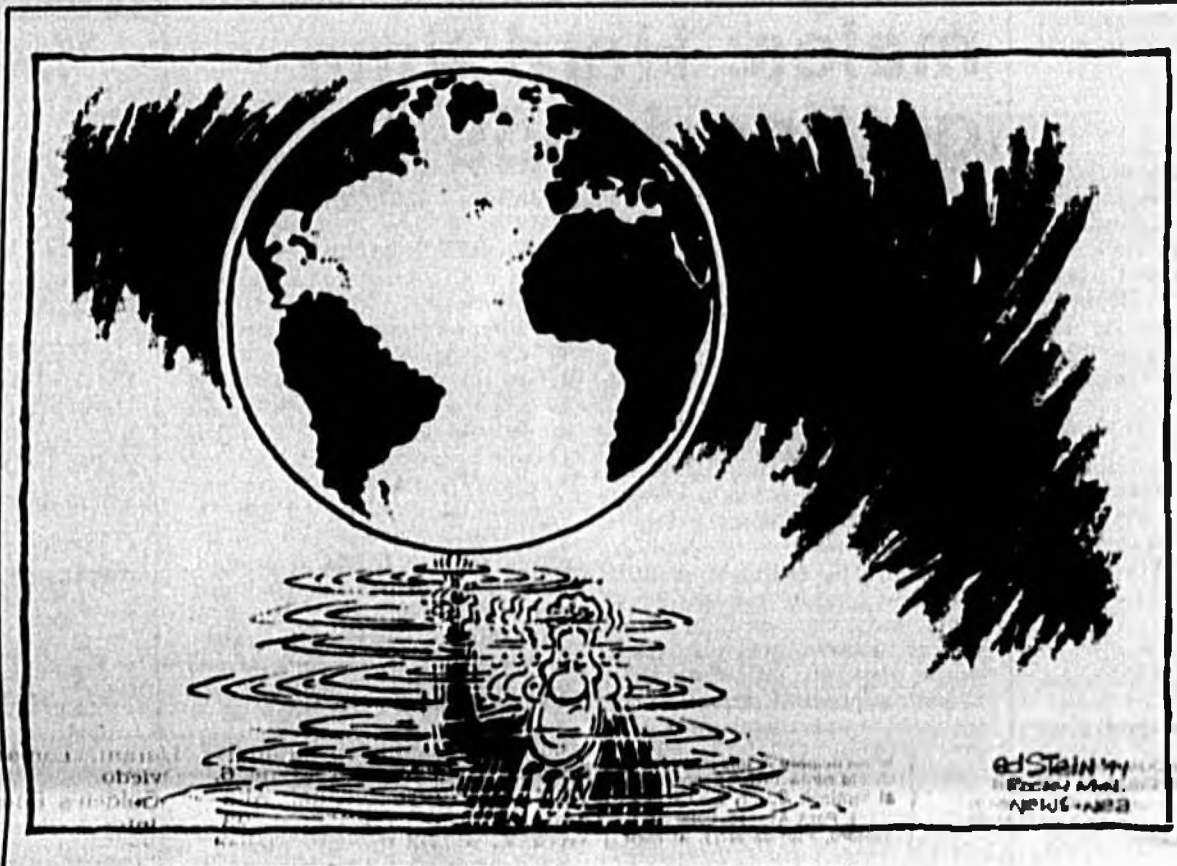

But that's old think. Juvenile delinquency today is not about fist fights or joy rides in stolen cars or vandalizing property. It's about drive-by shootings and carjackings and gang rapes and murdered tourists. The juvenile justice system has yet to evolve to reflect these changes in the severity of youth crimes.

About the only "get tough" measure federal and state lawmakers have taken to address youth crime is the creation of boot camps. If a kid is underage and malna or even kills someone, he's sentenced to push-ups at 5 o'clock in the morning. Sorry, but that hardly seems a deterrent to youth violence.

If lawmakers insist on throwing money at boot camps, they need to target the right juveniles. It does little good to send violent young offenders to a camp. They require stronger punishment.

America has an epidemic on its hands.

DONNA BRITT

We are linked by humanity

WASHINGTON — What, really, can I say to Don? How do I reach him? Why even try?

Funny, Don seldom seems at a loss about what to say to me. Neither do my other regulars: the 60-ish, self-celebrating African American diva whose energy electrifies the phone line; my supportive, self-proclaimed "Irish grandmother"; and even the white ex-teacher who is malevolently contemptuous of all things black, and who enjoys writing me about the "inherent promiscuity" of all black women -- including me.

Such readers treat the column like a local bar -- they pull up a stool, check out the day's opinion and offer commentary, positive and otherwise.

Always, Don's comments are "otherwise." Always, he informs me -- often nastily -- of black people's many crimes and my inadequacy at addressing them.

Recently, he said he's waiting for me and other black columnists to write that we're "embarrassed" by the killings perpetrated by some black men. He cited local murders that affected people he knows and has heard about. Why waste his time, he asked, with "piffle" -- like my recent piece about a hairstylist who was denied the right to use a black model in competition.

White people, he said, "are tired of the killing." So am I. So are the young black men, many of them innocent, who are five times more likely to die violently than their white counterparts. Why would he assume blacks aren't as weary as whites, or more so?

He said he's buying a gun. Why not? He already has set aside a much more powerful weapon -- his mind. Or is it his heart?

Consider the arrogance of his assumption: that I should feel personally embarrassed for acts of people I've never met, so embarrassed that I'll write about black criminals to the exclusion of the law-abiding majority of black (and white) Americans and the "piffle" that concerns them.

Why does he assume that young black men who behave violently belong to me and not to him? I neither raised them nor created the conditions that bred them. Are they mine because of a resemblance in hair, skin and features? Because I grew up in their neighborhood?

Few Dons would argue that I could righteously expect anybody white to feel personally embarrassed about white cops who mishandle public money or white criminals executed for raping and killing little boys or white ballplayers who brawl on baseball fields or white Ku Kluxers or cops who've murdered black men, women and children. That would be foolish and unfair, because not all white people did those things. But somehow, all blacks are to blame for what youngsters they don't know are doing.

But wait -- I'm being hypocritical. I do feel responsible for these kids; it's why I try to reach them to write about changing the environment -- economic, moral, spiritual -- that creates all violent kids. I feel responsible for black people who kill.

My real point is that Don should too.

Not because of something as arbitrary as skin color or culture. Ultimately, there is one race -- the human one. And though it is natural and convenient to feel we are more related to people who look like us, whose language, customs, religion and histories resemble ours, that is not why we're here.

Funny thing about a column -- if you're honest, you'll write stuff that's corny or ugly or pretty damned uncomfortable.

Funny thing about life -- if you approach it spiritually, it will take you where you have no conscious wish to go. Mine has brought me to where all I can see is that my purpose is to transcend what's natural, to recognize that each of us is bound to the other.

I fail, often -- and that is embarrassing. But it doesn't change that we belong to each other. Yesterday's murderer and murderer, whatever their color, belong to me, to Don -- to us all. What outrages blacks is the perception that we are somehow separate. Different. It's a perception that allowed slavery to flourish; one that continues in slums, jails, offices and most everywhere else.

Even so, there is nothing righteous, nothing true, about black people responding with their own hateful assumptions about whites. Sometimes, Don reminds me of that, for which I am grateful.

He and I are linked, too, not by color, ideology or even our status as Americans. We are joined, forever, by our shared humanity.

He may not like being connected to a willfully blind, misguided, race-obsessed columnist. It drives me nuts, knowing I'm linked to a pigheaded, seemingly racist suburbanite. But there it is.

We may never quite see it. But at some point, we both must deal with it.

Funny, Don seldom seems at a loss about what to say to me.

SARAH OVERSTREET

Is gender barrier to education?

As the sister, aunt, godmother and girlfriend of wonderful men, the cry of "What else do women want?" by a Citadel alumnus tugs at my heart.

Discussing Shannon Faulkner's lawsuit to gain admission to the South Carolina all-male military college, Rafael Contreras complained to a New York Times reporter, "If women come here things will change... This is like the last thing we have. I would just like to keep it for ourselves."

I understand completely how Contreras feels; there are some all-female activities, organizations and even colleges I hope will stay all-female, and I wish the same for a lot of exclusive men's enclaves. I believe wholeheartedly in our right to associate with whom we please and to educate ourselves as we believe is appropriate, just as long as our government doesn't pay for us to exclude others, on the basis of class, from the benefits we receive. That's why Shannon Faulkner should be admitted to The Citadel.

Put simply, Shannon Faulkner wants the best military-college education she can receive, our Constitution guarantees her right to get it, and she believes The Citadel offers her the best education. Title IX, enacted over 20 years ago, forbids schools which receive federal funds from discriminating on the basis of gender.

Faulkner wants to become part of the network that helps young military-college trained men succeed in business and careers related to military management. Commentators and editorial writers all over the country have portrayed this lawsuit as the clash that will decide if the same sauce applies to the gender as well as the goose.

Some have tried to draw an analogy to Mills College, an all-female college in Oakland, Calif., which resisted its Board of Trustees' directive to become coed four years ago when enrollment was declining. Since its decision to remain single-sex, Mills has thrived with a renewed emphasis on the positive benefits of all-female colleges. The question editorialists are asking now is, "If colleges such as Mills can remain single-sex, why can't The Citadel?"

Those who would draw that analogy point to the reason both Mills and The Citadel want to remain single-sex: the belief that single-sex education is the best environment in which to educate their particular students. But there are several major differences between the two institutions which kill this popular comparison:

First, as opposed to The Citadel, which is a publicly funded institution, Mills President Dr. Janet Holmgren McKay tells me that Mills is primarily a privately funded college, with its only government money coming from some federal research grants and students with Pell Grants.

Second, Title IX mandates that an institution cannot exclude a class if its exclusion damages that class' chances for workplace success. Since the workplace Faulkner has chosen is the military, to deny her access to taxpayer-supported education when she qualifies by academic and citizenship standards -- and she does, having been admitted to The Citadel before administrators discovered she was a woman -- should be against the law.

And third, the course of study Faulkner wants to pursue isn't available to women in other institutions. She can't go to a coed college to get it. In comparison, Mills is a liberal-arts college. As Mills President McKay put it in a telephone interview from her office, "Liberal-arts educations are quite available to men elsewhere." Indeed they are.

That's why Shannon Faulkner should be admitted to The Citadel.

and found them untrue. The letter concluded with a recommendation for Spillia Candela, headquartered in Miami but with offices in Orlando.

Commissioners want to bring the Sheriff's Office and Public Safety Department together at a central location around a joint communications center. The site tentatively selected for the center is at Five Points in an open area between the Holiday House restaurant and Juvenile Justice Center.

Teams from both firms unveiled distinctly different presentations Monday. ADG president Keith Reeves focused on examples of their work, including six emergency operations centers and 22 law enforcement facilities. Spillia Candela project manager Mohammad Alai and other team members focused on the design process and handholding they'll offer the county.

In keeping with the highly-politicized nature the selection has become, ADG planted former Seminole County administrator Roger Nelwender in the front row in the conference room. Nelwender, now with Transportation Consulting Group in Winter Park, said he will study the access problems to the site, which he helped buy for the county.

Reeves said ADG projects include the St. Lucie County Emergency Operations Center, a bunker-style structure designed to withstand a nuclear blast at the nearby power plant. ADG also designed the Volusia County EOC and medical communications center. ADG also designed the 33rd Street jail in Orlando and the Longwood Police Department offices.

Reeves said ADG also prepared the "Copper Penny" proposal in 1990 for the late Sheriff John Polk. The penny sales tax was intended to raise the money needed to replace the cramped sheriff's headquarters at Sanford's airport. But an ailing Polk and a lack of city interest contributed to the defeat of the proposal.

Reeves criticized Spillia Candela, saying they lack the experience needed for the project. ADG has studied other public safety centers throughout the country and government buildings affected by Hurricane Andrew. Reeves said ADG can obtain state and electric company grants for energy-saving features in their buildings. Their firm was selected to design the new Florida Solar Energy Center in Melbourne, he said.

Reeves unveiled a two- to three-story stacked building, which he said could be positioned close to U.S. Highway 17-92 behind a landscaped pond. The sheriff and public safety wings would be separate, with the public safety wing designed to withstand a major hurricane and operate independently of all outside utilities.

Reeves said the design wasn't firm and suggested the commissioners might consider dividing the facility into two buildings using two design firms.

Spillia Candela principal Larry Adams and team leader Mohammad Alai focused instead on the process of design, including surveys of staffers, bi-weekly meetings of team members and regular day-long "user group" meetings.

Adams said their firm will offer Seminole County a "public-friendly" structure which will become the new standard for all future civic buildings in the county to follow.

Spillia Candela design leader John Cunningham unveiled a sketch of a Spanish-flavored multi-story building facing U.S.

17-92. The sketch resembled Lakeland, Fla.'s new police station, designed by the firm, incorporated into the turn-of-the-century Spanish-designed Lakeland City Hall.

Cunningham said the sketch was only intended to offer a contrast to the high-tech "slick and corporate" look of the American Automobile Association headquarters at Heathrow, also designed by the firm. Adams noted the AAA building uses state of the art energy-efficient design, discounting Reeves' Solar Energy Center ties.

"By the way, Florida Power will work with anybody," said Adams, responding to Reeves' grant-seeking proposal.

Commissioners gave little indication of changing their minds after the presentations. Commissioner Carlton Henley said he was "extremely impressed" with Lakeland's police station and the city's EOC. Henley, along with commissioners Dick Van Der Weide and Pat Warren favored Spillia Candela over ADG. Van Der Weide said he did not plan to change his position.

Warren said she is undecided, but leaning towards one firm she refused to disclose.

Only commissioners Furlong and McLain have supported staff-recommended ADG.

Furlong said he was impressed by both presentations and now believes both firms are capable of producing a quality design for the county. McLain agreed, but said he will continue to support the selection committee's recommendation.

murder in Engels' disappearance. Her body has not been found. Chris White, Jim Braedyn and Mark Arias are the prosecution team.

Davis said Engels was happy in her grandparents home and did not seem to have any problems, other than ones normally faced by teenagers, which might have prompted her to run away. Davis said she never saw Engels consume marijuana or beer.

Davis, who moved to Osteen the year before Engels disappeared, said Engels seemed more aggressive after becoming friends with Lorna Brown. She said it seemed Engels and Brown acted like the "big girls on campus at their school" who "didn't take crap from anyone." Engels was completing eighth grade at Lakeview Middle School and would have been a freshman at Seminole High School in the fall.

In other testimony Monday, Jimmy Fisher, who once shared a house with Meyers and others, testified he saw Meyers' hands, thumbs and fingers were "crapped up" on May 26 when Meyers visited Fisher's house.

When questioned about the injuries, Meyers told Fisher he had been in a bad fight with a bum and the police might be looking for him. He said he might have killed the bum.

"He wanted an alibi but I told him 'no,'" Fisher testified. However, under cross examination by defense attorney Ed Leinster, Fisher said he was never directly asked to provide an alibi. Fisher said it was his impression Meyers wanted an alibi. Fisher gave four statements over the years about the case and was even wired with a body mike in an attempt to get information from Meyers.

Fisher's brother, attorney Bob Fisher was an assistant state attorney about the time of the Engels' disappearance. Leinster said the only statement gleaned from the body mike was Meyers saying, "she's got to turn up."

The policeman answering a call about a missing teen testified it was several years before anyone questioned him about the incident or what he had observed.

Sanford Police Officer Frank Hilton was on road patrol when he was sent to Carriage Cove Mobile Home park in reference to the missing teenager.

Engels' grandmother, Marie Hooper, said police were called after she and her husband, Charles, learned the 14-year old left a friend's home about 2:30 a.m. that morning and had not been seen since. While traveling with the Hoopers to the Lake Mary Police station to give statements, Mrs. Hooper said Meyers made general conversation about how the town had changed and he pointed out the route he took to drop Engels off at a convenience store.

During his testimony, Hilton said when he observed injuries and scratches on Meyers he took it for granted he had been in a fight. "I didn't want to be rude and ask him who won the fight," the officer testified. When he asked Meyers about the scratches, he said he got them doing "tree work."

"So I took him at his word," Hilton said.

While Mrs. Hooper testified, Meyers stood at the defense table thumbing through a box of file folders. At other times during the proceedings, Meyers took notes and conferred quietly with his attorney.

Testimony in the case continues today.

The next day, Hillman developed a fever, headaches and nausea. Within 36 hours, he was in the emergency room at Coral Springs Medical Center.

"I touched him and he almost jumped off the table," said Dr. Mel Kohan, an infectious disease specialist. "When I saw it, I knew it was time for surgery."

Within minutes, Hillman began to go into shock — his pulse dropped, and his kidneys and lungs began to fail. The infection could have killed him if he had waited a little longer, doctors say.

Sanford Mobil offers full-service treatment: pay the same price for cash or credit gas purchases.

Full-Service Stations: Not Just A Thing Of The Past

Do you remember the friendly neighborhood gas station in your hometown? It was probably on a tree-lined street, and you knew the station manager by his first name. He took care of your car like it was his own - filled it with gas, checked the oil, and cleaned the windshields. He also gave you the advice of a home grown car expert when your car made a funny noise or leaked too much water.

The same corner gas station existed in hundreds of towns and cities in America for years, but it is not very common today. Over the past several years, most oil companies have converted their stations to convenient stores, with self-service islands. There is a trend in the major oil companies back to opening service bays, but full service stations remain unique and uncommon.

Sanford Mobil Service has been owned and operated by Sylvester Chang for the past 13 years. Sanford Gulf changed to Sanford Mobil in 1989. Sanford Mobil is located at 2518 French Ave. Sylvester feels that being a locally-owned station, he has more of an opportunity to support and give something back to his community. He serves on several local & state advisory committees and is involved in many community projects. Over the past several years to a greater extent, cars require far more knowledge of computer systems than they did just a few years ago. Quite often it is more difficult and time-consuming to diagnose a problem than it is to repair it. Even a simple procedure such as a "tune-up" is best defined as drivability problems that can crop up at any moment.

Sanford Mobil can diagnose simple mechanical problems to the most complex and time-consuming. Sanford Mobil's mechanics are ASE certified. Re-certification is required every five years.

The roles of service station dealers have increased dramatically over the past few decades, from being mere sellers of petroleum products to being independent business people offering a variety of products and services to customers who rely heavily on them.

While there are specialty outlets in the market for basic automotive services, drivers often don't have time to shop around for the best deal and don't always know who to turn to. Sanford Mobil Service takes care of the continual needs, and repairs normal problems, all in one place.

Today, because many customers still want and need full service, Sanford Mobil Service is committed to high quality, professional automotive service. Stop by anytime or call 322-4924 for an appointment.

Welcome to Taylor's Natural Foods!

Linda Maliczowski, owner, displays some of the natural food products that can be purchased at Taylor's.

The Natural Choice... Taylor's Natural Foods

If you could look beyond the walls and shelves that make up Taylor's Natural Foods, you would discover many of the unseen aspects that make Taylor's more than just a health food store. You would get a glimpse of the family tradition of the customer oriented grocery store that has been passed from one generation to the next since 1910. You would envision the pride behind every product and the desire to satisfy every customer. You would reveal the bonds of friendship that tie customers and employees alike to the store. Most of all, you'll see a woman who is dedicated to helping others and advancing the health food industry.

If this small, dark haired person looks familiar, that's probably because Linda Maliczowski, owner of Taylor's Natural Foods, grew up in Sanford and worked here during high school and college. After graduating from the University of South Florida, she moved to Gainesville where she began her venture into the health foods business working at a natural foods restaurant. Linda returned to Sanford in March of 1976 and began working for Winnie and Jim Taylor at Taylor's Natural Foods. In 1986, Linda and her husband, Doug, purchased Taylor's Natural Foods and vowed to continue the high standard the Taylors had set. Linda is assisted by two part-time employees who add 5 and 18 years of experience to the staff. Owning and operating the store is more than a full time job, but Linda always finds time to instill the importance of a healthy and active life-style on son Joshua, 5.

Whether you're looking for a specific product or the answer to a question, you're bound to discover what you're looking for at Taylor's Natural Foods. Eighteen years of experience in the health foods business at Taylor's Natural Foods has taught Linda how important it is to cater to her customers' needs. "We carry only quality vitamins and natural foods and cosmetics and stand behind our products", Linda proudly explains. The products she refers to include vitamins, herbs, natural foods, specialty diet items, cosmetics, books and pet food & supplies. If you can't find what you're looking for in the array of goods, take a moment to ask if they can order it for you. Taylor's Natural Foods will gladly special order those items that are hard to find.

By truly helping and caring for her customers, Linda is able to promote business in a positive manner. She maintains a close relationship with her customers in an effort to better understand their needs and how she can serve them better. "Our customers are our friends," she is happy to say. "We now have second generation members of families shopping with us". Linda describes Taylor's Natural Foods as a "neighborhood type store" where customers can find a large selection of products as well as counseling on vitamins, diet, and life-style changes.

Taylor's Natural Foods moved to 3107 Orlando Drive in the K-mart and Food Lion Plaza at Airport Blvd. and 17-92 in October of 1992. Taylor's Natural Foods is open Monday through Saturday from 9:30 AM to 5:30 PM.

If you're looking for a honest, friendly health food store that has been in Sanford for over 20 years, stop by Taylor's or give them a call at 323-6760.

CASSELBERRY — It took nine innings, but the PDS-Hackers softball team has been eliminated from title contention in the Monday Night Women's Spring Slowpitch Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park.

Playing in a steady rain, the Oviedo based squad fell behind league-leading Pretzels 1-0 and the game was almost stopped in the fifth inning. But the game was allowed to continue and Pretzels took a 4-2 lead in the top of the sixth, before the Hackers rallied in the bottom of the inning to tie the game at 4-4.

The score remained tied until Pretzels came up with a pair of runs in the top of the ninth inning. The Hackers got one run back in the bottom of the ninth, but could not score again as Pretzels held on, 6-5.

Doing the hitting for PDS, which had its three game winning streak snapped despite outhitting Pretzels 15-12, were Jackie Janowiak and Denise Levinson (three hits each), Phyllis Baynes (two hits, two RBI), Jaudon Mariette (two hits, RBI), Terri Mann (two hits) and Theresa Walburger (triple, RBI).

Daub honored for 45 years of service

At the recent installation of officers of the VFW Post 10108 and auxiliary, outgoing auxiliary president Nina Crouse made a special presentation to Marguerite Daub, who has been a member of the Veterans of Foreign War organization for 45 years.

Daub was originally a member of Massachusetts Post 990, under her son, George Daub, who served in the Army's 63rd Division in Europe, in World War II, in 1943-46. The VFW is a fraternal organization with membership limited to those who have served in the Armed Forces of the United States.

Daub moved to Florida 12 years ago after her husband died. According to Crouse, Daub visited many VFW organizations before joining the Sanford post. Crouse says she was present the day Daub first visited the Sanford post. She said that Daub said, "she fell in love with my smile, that's why she joined." Crouse says it was a special joy to present Daub with her 45-year pin.

Mom's bank account is the loser in contests

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from visiting my mother in a small Midwestern town where the whole family gathered to celebrate her 85th birthday.

Mom is a lovely person, independent and full of fun, but she has one flaw — she's hooked on those mail sweepstakes. She's convinced that one day she is going to win big. Meanwhile all she "wins" is a lot of cheap jewelry and coupon books, which she gives to her grandkids. Recently, for the money she spent trying to win a cheap TV, she could have bought a good one.

I keep telling her she is throwing her money away, but she still believes she'll win the sweepstakes.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

One day she got a telephone call saying that her chances for winning a car were excellent if she put up $2,000. I called the local police, and they said they could do nothing unless my mother filed a complaint which, of course, she refused to do.

Meanwhile, Mom keeps writing checks for these contests she enters. She lives in an independent retirement home and has her own locked mailbox. The junk mail she gets is unbelievable! Mom has enough money to live comfortably but, at this rate, she'll end up in the poorhouse. How can I help her?

HER DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If you really think your mother is out of control, you can help her by taking over her checkbook and putting her on an allowance. (Do it now while there's still something left to handle.) Ask your lawyer how to accomplish this without upsetting your mother. However, if this is simply a harmless pleasure, leave your mother alone, no matter how much her behavior irritates you. Perhaps you can persuade her to budget a modest amount every month to play the contests.

DEAR ABBY: Please respond to the following: Recently we had a death in the family. Our relatives let it be known that money would be acceptable in lieu of flowers, contributions, Mass cards, etc.

I am appalled. Is money really appropriate?

FLORIDIAN: Money is always appropriate and very much appreciated if the family is destitute and needs help to pay for the funeral.

DEAR READERS: Although Mother's Day has come and gone, may I share this letter with you?

MY DEAR ABBY: With Mother's Day approaching, I was reminded of that old ballad that recites a mother's many virtues creating the acronym of "Mother." A few years ago, I rewrote the lyrics to describe the vision my stepdaughters apparently have of their mother:

M is for the many things she gave us.

O is for the other things we took.

N is for the nothing that we gave her.

E's 'cause she's an easygoing snook.

Y is for the questions that she asked us.

Like: "why won't you get up and look for work?"

Put them all together, they spell MOTHER!

A child-indulgent, masochistic jerk.

Abby, if you print this, please omit my name so as to avoid adding embarrassment at my hand to the anguish my wife has already suffered at theirs.

NAME WITHHELD
HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR READERS: Thought for today: The best safety device for an automobile is a rearview mirror with a cop in it.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Simple operation may be necessary

DEAR DR. GOTT: Should an adult male who is otherwise completely healthy sexually be concerned about one testicle that has ascended out of the scrotum and into the body?

DEAR READER: Possibly. Nature has provided a unique method to safeguard the testicles from injury and cold. When stimulated, two tiny muscles draw the testicles out of the scrotum and up into the body to avoid injury. Called the "cremasteric response," this reaction is normal and in no way affects health, sexuality or fertility.

Sometimes, however, one or both testicles may permanently reside out of the scrotum. Such undescended testicles are usually present from birth. This condition is abnormal and may affect fertility, because body heat is higher than the scrotal temperature.

More important, malignancies are more common in undescended testicles, which should be surgically repositioned, preferably before puberty, using a simple and safe operation.

Thus, the answer to your question depends on how long the testicle has been undescended and whether it periodically (or permanently) ascends out of the scrotum. If it moves normally, it can be ignored. If it always stays in the body, it should be repaired. A doctor can diagnose the condition and advise therapy, if needed.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 46 and have been going through the change of life for a year and a half. Coincidentally (I think), I've gained 40 pounds and have experienced numbness in my fingers. I have no insurance and am therefore restricted in seeking help.

DEAR READER: Weight gain and numb fingers do not usually result from menopause. These symptoms are more likely to be associated with a circulatory deficiency, overeating, or diseases such as diabetes.

You should be examined by a doctor. I believe that the examination should not be too expensive, and most doctors

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In his final broadcast from the Winter Olympics last February, Charles Kuralt asked, "How could a place so unfamiliar feel so much like home?" It is because the Norwegians are so friendly.

Bridge generates the same feelings. Almost wherever you go on the globe, you will find a bridge club. If you go in, you will be greeted warmly and made to feel welcome. It is perhaps the best aspect of the game.

Today's deal occurred in a country that competes with Norway in the friendliness stakes: New Zealand.

South opened with the so-called Multi, which usually hides a weak two-bid in hearts or spades, but the hand may be much stronger. The Multi enjoys considerable popularity in the tournament world outside North America. (Here its use is severely restricted.) North asked for extra information with two no-trump, and South showed a maximum weak two-bid in spades.

Declarer won West's heart lead with dummy's ace and cashed the two top trumps, finding out that East had a trick there. It seemed that South stood no chance now. But keeping an even demeanor, declarer played a heart to his king and led the spade jack. West wasn't going to break the second-hand-low rule of a lifetime. So dummy's club 10 disappeared. Then the club king went away on the spade ace: six diamonds bid and made.

After congratulating his partner, North observed: "I don't know what to say, partner. You opened and rebid the suit. I gave you nine-card support and still you had a trump loser." Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY June 8, 1994

Your chart shows you could develop greater proficiency in the year ahead where your work or career is concerned. Situations might later develop offering rewards and advancement for competency.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you hope to accomplish today might be beyond your scope, because there's a probability you will compound problems by doing things the hard way. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Usually when things go awry, you're capable of mending what occurs. Today, however, negative developments might occur too fast for you to take them in stride.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be judged today by the company you keep. If someone in your clique does something he or she shouldn't, everyone involved could look bad.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might discover that you've made a decision that doesn't really serve your best interests. If this is true, don't be afraid to admit your mistake and start anew.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Deviating from your original blueprint could get you off course today, and you might have to go back and do over everything you did previously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even you have your limitations, so don't try to do something for another today that you aren't able to handle. No one can be an expert in all areas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might prove wiser to make minor concessions today in order to appease your mate rather than take a rigid position that will intensify existing opposition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless you have something nice to say about others today, it's best to keep your thoughts to yourself. You will be identified as the author of any criticism you generate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be a prudent shopper today. Forgo making impulsive purchases, which could later lead to buyer's remorse when you discover you bought something you'll never use.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you spend too much time today dwelling on what might go wrong, you could lose your initiative and incentive, and accomplish nothing. Sometimes it's necessary to take a chance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to let an unpleasant past experience between you and an associate affect the way you treat this person today. You need this individual more than he or she needs you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be equally as generous with friends now who have treated you graciously in the past. They might not be there when you need them a second time, if you fail to be kind now.
