

Shcharansky Guilty, Sentenced To 13 Years

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet court today found Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky guilty on charges of spying for the United States and sentenced him to 13 years in prison.

The verdict came on the fifth day of Shcharansky's trial on treason and espionage charges, which President Carter has denounced as "patently false."

Another Soviet Court Thursday sentenced dissident Alexander Ginzburg to eight years in a "special regime" labor camp as part of its crackdown on dissidents.

State prosecutor P. Solonin told the court that Shcharansky was guilty of espionage and deserved to die — but because he was young and a first offender he only asked for 15 years — three in prison and 12 in a hard labor camp.

The court ruled that the 30-year-old Shcharansky must serve three years in a close-confinement prison and 10 years in a forced labor camp.

In remarks before the Shcharansky sentence was handed down, Carter said: "It's obvious to us that the courageous dissidents in the Soviet Union, Shcharansky and Ginzburg, have been accused and tried and punished or will be punished because they have supported those who have sought the basic freedoms that were guaranteed in the final act of the Helsinki agreement that was signed by the Soviet Union itself.

"We deplore this action on the part of the Soviet authorities," he said.

The United States had repeatedly warned the Soviets Carter, Schmidt criticise Soviet trial during economic summit, page 2-A that harsh sentences against Shcharansky and Ginzburg could seriously damage Soviet-American relations.

The three-man Moscow court actually levied a 13-year prison sentence on the espionage charges against Shcharansky plus a seven-year sentence on charges that he committed anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda—but under Soviet law he will serve only the larger of the two sentences.

A crowd of Shcharansky's dissident friends shouted "Tolja, Tolja, Tolja" — Shcharansky's nickname — as the blue prison bus hauled him away from the courthouse.

His mother, Mrs. Ida P. Milgrom, and other women in the crowd broke into tears and cried out in sorrow.

Minutes after Shcharansky was taken away, a young boy and an older woman turned to the Soviet volunteer militiamen lining the steel barricades sealing off the courthouse and shouted:

"Think it over. It's not too late. Your children will be ashamed of you if you let this happen. Think it over."

Shcharansky's mother was again refused admission into the courtroom for the trial, but she read a letter of thanks to Carter. About 50 Jewish activists, friends and Western reporters stood by.

"Mr. President, in a few hours this disgraceful trial is going to be over. The verdict which was made beforehand will be announced," she said.

"My son is not guilty. He is convicted because he could not be indifferent to the suffering and injury of other people."

"He was pressing for his own right and the rights of all Jews who want to live with their Jewish people in Israel."

"Throughout the difficult days at this trial I am standing before the iron bars and the walls of KGB men and militiamen hoping to see from far away my son, my child."

"All of these days I can hear your authoritative voice in support of innocent men. Please accept our deepest and most sincere gratitude."

Ginzburg, 41, whose blood pressure shot so high during his four-day trial in Kaluga, 110 miles southwest of Moscow, that he had to be medicated, was hauled away in a van Thursday as supporters shouted his name and others urged that he be shot.

Shcharansky was accused of passing state secrets to the United States through former Los Angeles Times Moscow correspondent Robert Tolt, who the Soviets accused of being a spy.

Tolt has denied any espionage activity and Carter has repeatedly said Shcharansky had no connection with American intelligence.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met with Shcharansky's wife Avital on Thursday in Geneva following his arms limitation talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"Mr. Vance said that the trial of my husband is a violation of all human rights and commitments," Mrs. Shcharansky said after their 35-minute meeting.

Vice President Walter Mondale will meet Mrs. Shcharansky Monday at his White House office.

Budget For Seminole Schools: $47 Million?

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County school budget for the coming fiscal year could reach $47 million, a $3 million increase over this year's budget.

However, the anticipated increase will not mean a tax rate increase because the school district is already at the required cap of $8 per $1,000 assessed valuation, according to Roger Harris, assistant superintendent for business and finance.

The difference will be made up through increased state revenue and some carry over from the current school budget which totaled $44,683,501.45, Harris said.

The exact amount of the state allocation and other revenue sources is expected to be determined today or early next week, according to Harris.

At the board's regular meeting this week a July 26 date was chosen for the members to get their first look at the budget in a workshop session. The public will get an opportunity to give input Aug. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at a public hearing.

For the past several months the six-member budget committee has been reviewing budget requests from school district department heads.

According to state law the superintendent has to present the budget to the board no later than Aug. 15 and the board has

JOHN YOUNG OF FPC REPLACES TRANSFORMER DAMAGED DURING STORM

Storm Kills Power For Thousands Here

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County was inundated with more than two inches of rain and jolted by lightning Thursday night in what was termed by Florida Power Corporation (FPC) spokesman as the "worst storm so far this year."

Thousands of FPC customers were without power for 15 minutes to several hours after several transformers and a major line were struck by lightning, Joe High of FPC said today. Power was restored in most of the areas by 7 a.m., but repair crews were still working in two or three isolated areas where burned-out transformers were not discovered until early this morning, High said today.

The major storm moved to the western part of the county through Forest City, Weliva, Sweetwater Oaks, Altamonte Springs and Casselberry around 7 p.m. A major power line was burned down on the Weliva Springs Road, High said.

"It was a psychedelic experience," said a resident of the Tiffany Apartments in Fern Park. He said he witnessed a five-minute barrage of lightning, which exploded a transformer on Oxford Road near Fernwood Boulevard.

There were blue and red sparks, and a glow the size of a large billboard lasted for five seconds when the transformer exploded, the man said.

Not far away from that location, lightning struck

Longwood Man One Of 4 Arrested In Marijuana Bust

By MAX EKILETIAN
Herald Staff Writer

A Longwood man is among four persons being held in Orange County Jail today in connection with what Orlando Police are calling a "significant" marijuana arrest.

James A. Costello, Longwood, was arrested along with three other men who allegedly transported a large quantity of marijuana to Hartsfield Airport in east Orlando Wednesday night.

Arrested with Costello were: Fred F. Haus, Ft. Lauderdale; Leonard B. Stovle, Atlanta, Ga. and a man who identified himself as Harold E. Bowling of Nashville, Tenn.

Orlando Police report Bowling is not the correct name of the fourth individual. An investigation is underway to determine Bowling's true identity, according to a police spokesman.

All four were charged with possession of more than 100 pounds of cannabis, both felonies. The man who identified himself as Bowling also was charged with possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony and aggravated assault. He reportedly struck a police officer during the arrest.

Costello and the other three men allegedly transported 1,750 pounds of marijuana to the airport in a rented U-Haul truck, according to the spokesman.

At the airport the four men were to sell the marijuana to men who were going to transport it by airplane. However, the men with the airplane were Orlando Police undercover officers.

The undercover officers had been working on the case for about one month, according to the spokesman, trying to gain the groups' confidence.

"The story was that our people had an airplane there, which they did not, and that they were going to fly the marijuana out," said the spokesman.

About 30 officers were on hand at the airport to make the arrest, according to the spokesman. Eight to 10 officers had been working directly on the case from its inception.

The marijuana was packaged in 24½ bales, neatly wrapped, according to the spokesman.

Former Official Denies Role In Winter Springs Recall

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Ex-Councilman Claude Ash denied today any involvement in the recall effort against Winter Springs Councilmen John Daniels and Laurent Pellerin.

"I signed the petition, but I did not circulate the petition and contacted no one to sign it," said Ash.

Meanwhile, Mayor Troy Piland, who may be the subject of a recall himself, termed the move against the two councilmen "a hell of a lot of bother."

"If Larry (Pellerin) and John (Daniels) wanted to, they could challenge the recall," the mayor said. "We have only two-year terms of office in the city and the people have the right to show their feelings at the ballot box."

Ash was reported as one of the circulators of the petitions for the Daniels-Pellerin recalls and was singled out in prepared statements by the two councilmen and accused of being a member of a group behind their proposed removal from office.

Daniels described Ash as an "embittered ex-councilman who was defeated fairly and squarely at the polls by Pellerin."

Pellerin said that the recall petitions were "drummed up by a group of individuals" including Piland, former City apartment project in Gary, Ind. and is building homes in Winter Springs and Tusculum. "I don't care who they have on the city council. I want to be left alone," he said.

"Recall is not good. It disrupts everything in the city government," he said, adding, however, if he had it to do over again he would still sign the petitions to recall the two councilmen.

"I'm too busy to get involved in this petty politics," he said.

Piland said that he does not support the recall effort, did not sign the initial petition and will not sign the second petition yet to be circulated.

"One of the men, Daniels, is us for election in November and the people can do their thing at the ballot box," said the mayor.

"The city had begun to get a fairly decent reputation in the county for its quality of government and the fragility of which the mayor and council handled tax funds," said Piland. "Now the city has taken on a carnival atmosphere and become a spectacle," he said.

Daniels and Pellerin were served with certified copies of the recall petition and charges against them Tuesday. The charges are malfeasance, misfeasance and neglect of duty. The men have five days to respond to the charges with defensive statements containing no more than 200 words.

After The Zag, Another Zig?

The nation's foreign policy took another lurch — when President Carter told his news conference that Leonid I. Brezhnev "...wants peace, and wants to have better friendship."

Mr. Carter described U.S.-Soviet relations as "stable," and said, "There is no present threat to peace... They (the Russians) are proceeding in good faith..."

The President expressed his hope for increased trade and an early agreement on the SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation) treaty — even that he and Mr. Brezhnev might meet to formalize it. In fact, Mr. Carter all but tugged his forelock for the Kremlin by denying anti-Soviet motives behind improved U.S.-Soviet ties and American attitudes on trade and SALT.

This is almost 180 degrees from Mr. Carter's speech on June 7 at Annapolis when he accused the Soviet Union of an offensive military buildup, of repressing human rights, and of exploiting detente for nationalistic advantage.

Why the sudden change? Why such ambiguity, when the Kremlin has denounced Mr. Carter and this country in the most savage terms and manifestly continued every policy that disturbs the peace of the world? Indeed, just recently, a pro-Moscow Liberation Front ousted the more moderate Marxist rulers of South Yemen, a strategic outpost in the oil-rich Middle East, and Soviet authorities ordered two American correspondents to appear in a Moscow court on unspecified criminal charges.

We think the reason for our meandering foreign-policy course is that the Carter administration simply doesn't know where it wants the United States to go. Without sustained goals, the President is blown hither and yon. At the moment, he seems to be propelled by the liberal faction within his party. The Americans for Democratic Action, led by its outgoing president, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has attacked Mr. Carter for being too tough toward Moscow and warned of dire consequences from a renewal of the Cold War; the left fears any sign of confrontation.

As disarming as our faltering foreign policy is, it should come as no surprise. A few years back, Henry Kissinger warned by way of reply to criticism over his policy of detente: "In two years, you will see that the softness I am accused of will look tough by comparison with the actions of the new administration."

And because the Russians are the first to perceive this softness, there is danger that their contempt may lead them into adventures and confrontations far more dangerous than the realism that U.S. liberals fear now.

Searching Questions

Congress and several state legislatures have shown an admirable interest in writing legislation that would protect newspapers and television stations from the kind of police searches for criminal evidence that a May 31 U.S. Supreme Court decision authorized. Lawmakers would be compensating a mistake, however, if they look upon this issue strictly as one between law enforcement agencies and the news media.

True, it would inhibit newsgathering if police needed only a search warrant to go poking into a journalist's files for evidence they only guess might be there. The broader impact of the recent ruling — and the point made by Justice John Paul Stevens in his dissent — is that any citizen now becomes subject to such a search.

The case taken to the Supreme Court, which involved a police search of the offices of the Stanford (Calif.) Daily, involved both the First Amendment, which protects freedom of the press, and the Fourth Amendment, which protects the rights of privacy of all citizens. It is the Fourth Amendment which the lawmakers should be considering.

The files of a doctor or a lawyer may contain the same kind of material of interest to police as that found in the files of a reporter. The law should require that a subpoena be issued for any documents which police believe might be in the possession of such third parties. Persons not suspected of a crime should be protected from the fishing expeditions via search warrant which the Supreme Court decision would allow.

Around

The Clock

By LEONARD KRANSDORF

Everything nowadays seems to have a sequel. If you look around and especially at the movies this column is a sequel of one several weeks ago.

Well, in the spirit of keeping up with the times this column is a sequel of one several weeks ago. Avid readers of Around the Clock will remember a fellow reporter's column about the trials and tribulations during an excursion to the beach. It can now be told that I was the unnamed friend who accompanied him and worried more about my watch not being stolen than about his keys which were stolen.

However, be that as it may, due to the increased demands for a sequel from publishers and editors around the country (and even one underground editor in Nablia) we decided to make yet another excursion.

Because there were many who disbelieved our first story we even brought along a third person just in case we needed verification of any perilous adventures.

While our first trip was to Daytona, this time we became ambitious and traveled to Ocala. After arriving at the city and embarking down a side street, we followed a map in search of the road that was to lead to a hidden campground. But, as the day lingered on we soon gave up hope.

However, we were fortunate enough to find another campsite and thus proceeded to pitch a tent. As we soon discovered, the best way to put up a tent is to not follow the directions but just do it and hope it gets up.

The first night luckily ended without any trouble and our hopes were sky high. We came down to earth the following day as the ants worked their way into the cereal, the canoe tipped over in the lake and while at a local bar I missed a step and nearly landed on my face.

These times you want to forget however are overcome by the events that remain with you a lifetime.

These thoughts include the cooking of meals on an open fire, roasting marshmallows and drinking wine under the stars and simply just having a good feeling about being where you are.

Even if just for a couple of days, it does feel good to get away from the hustle and bustle of the daily grind, the traffic and the lines and instead feel the serenity of the untouched wilderness.

And while traveling back to Sanford we knew that while we may not have any wild adventures to report we could say that without a doubt we had in our own way one helluva time.

ANGLE-WALTERS

Justice Doesn't Prevail

WASHINGTON (NEA) — On the scales of justice, two lives equal two strawberries.

That was the message spelled out in black and white on the front pages of the New York Times and the Washington Star of June 29, 1978. Unless you happen to get both newspapers, you probably missed it.

First, the Times story. A 15-year-old Harlem youth who shot and killed two subway passengers and wounded a subway motorman, all within an eight-day period last March, was sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison.

"Under terms of the sentence imposed by Judge Edith Miller in Family Court — it was the maximum she could impose under state law the youth will be required to spend at least 18 months in a 'secure facility,'" reported the Times.

Two lives. Eighteen months in a "security facility."

Now, the Star story. On the same day "justice" was meted out to the 15-year-old killer in New York, a 33-year-old Washington woman was convicted in a suburban Prince Georges County, Md., courtroom on a shoplifting charge.

Her crime? According to testimony of a store detective, she slipped two strawberries from a cellophane-wrapped container in the produce section of a local supermarket and ate them.

That, in the eyes of the law, was shoplifting — removing or concealing goods "with the intent of depriving the owner of said goods of their use or value."

When the convicted criminal, a secretary at the nearby hospital, comes up for sentencing next month she faces a possible 18 months in prison for the heinous offense of depriving a supermarket chain store of the "use or value" of two strawberries.

And there you have it — 18 months for the murders, 18 months for the strawberries. Never mind the fact that no judge in his right mind would require the strawberry thief to serve a maximum sentence. The point is that it could happen, however remote the prospect that it will.

Cases like these two serve as a useful reminder of the inevitable footnotes beneath the popular slogan, "Equal Justice Under the Law," which adorns the majestic portals of the Supreme Court building here.

Footnote 1 might read: When the law itself is inadequate, justice shall remain unattainable.

And Footnote 2 should add: An equitable law can be unreasonably applied.

The laws of New York, like those of most states, simply do not provide for cold-blooded killers under the age of 18. In the eyes of the law, these "children" cannot be held to the same standards of responsibility as adults.

There are occasions when such protection for juvenile offenders seems both warranted and wise. But there are other times when it makes a mockery of "justice."

There is nothing inherently wrong with the shoplifting laws of the state of Maryland, on the other hand, but it is hard to see how justice was served by the full-scale prosecution and trial of the strawberry fancier.

JACK ANDERSON

Thurmond Changed Mind In Ad Fight

WASHINGTON — Stern, ramrod-straight Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the very model of a conservative politician, marched up down Capitol Hill as if he were leading an unseen parade. Neither rain, sleet nor hail can turn him back once he is in full stride.

Yet a gaggle of lobbyists, upholding the right of candy and cereal makers to their many food spots upon small children, have caused Thurmond to do a rare about-face.

The battle lines were drawn by the Federal Trade Commission, which sought to ban TV advertising aimed at children. The 75-year-old senator, his hair as white as his, rushed at first to the side of the little children.

He fired off a militant private note to Chairman Michael Pertschuk, congratulating him on his efforts "to clamp down on television ads for sugary foods directed at children. It is personally glad to see this proposed ruling, and hope the commission has the courage to continue to abide by its decision."

But it was Thurmond, not the commission, who lost courage when the lobbyists began to use his name in their petitions. With only a year at stake, the lobbyist demanded children's commercials with heavy artillery.

Suddenly, the two-star senator accepted a 180-degree turn-around and began marching off in the opposite direction. He wrote another letter to the commission, explaining that he has changed his mind and now opposes any restrictions on children's advertising.

THE PRESIDENCY HASN'T CHANGED ME A BIT. AHM STILL THE SAME OL' JIMMY!

THE LIGHTER SIDE The Towncrier's Bleeper

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the First Amendment was adopted in 1791, neither radio stations nor record albums had been invented and George Carlin wasn't born yet.

Nevertheless, the Supreme Court has been able to perceive that the Constitution upholds the government's right to warn a station about broadcasting one of Carlin's records.

The court's decision in the famous "seven dirty words" case has precipitated a public debate that appears likely to continue all summer. All of which started me to wondering what mind the framers of that document had been like if the framers of that document had been confronted with a similar issue.

Somewhat like the following, do you suppose? George Washington, who presided: "Very well, gentlemen. I'd say we've been making good progress. According to the preamble and seven articles that provide for two houses of Congress, an executive branch headed by a president and vice president, a judiciary system and diverse and sundry federal processes."

And Footnote 2 should add: We have under consideration today a proposed draft of Article VIII. Here with all the details is Governor Morris.

Morris: "Thankie, sire. The genesis of Article VIII is a letter we received from a woman in Upper Middlesex, Connecticut, complaining that the town crier in her village used offensive language."

"This article gives the government power to regulate public communications and establish rules governing the propriety of their utterances."

Ben Franklin: "Hold on there, Gov. I'll be hanged if I want a bunch of bureaucratic busybodies telling me what words I can or can't put in the magazine I'm trying to publish on Saturday evenings."

Morris: "Now, now, Ben. Nobody's talking about the printed word. This part of the Constitution would only apply to the use of public streets for oral dissensions."

Alexander Hamilton: "What are the offensive words you are proposing to ban?"

Morris: "It is reported that in recounting the latest tidings in Upper Middlesex the town crier used the words 'bloody,' 'zounds' and 'gad-zooks.'"

James Madison: "Oh, stop blushing, Gouverneur. Maybe so, Jim, but we're talking about a town crier making his rounds at a hour when children are listening."

Franklin: "What if the offensive words are part of a direct quotation from Shakespeare or some other distinguished personage?"

Morris: "That situation is covered in the proposed draft of Article IX. It requires that under the Constitution all town criers must be equipped with bleepers."

VIEWPOINT

Short People's Longevity

By DON GRAFF

Short people may be getting the short end of it in popular music of late, but they have something going for them in another area — longevity.

We have this on the authority of a study, reported in Science Digest magazine, which took the measure of some 750 individuals who had made their marks in history — presidents, boxers, baseball players and successful businessmen.

In every category, the researchers found, the average lifespan of those notables measuring under 5 feet 8 inches exceeded those topping 6 feet. The shortest averaged 11 percent longer lives than the lanky types.

In short, to be short means being able to look forward to a longer life — at least if you happen to be a business success, boxer, ballplayer or president.

Being of average height, on the other hand, means being in a minority.

According to Department of Health, Education and Welfare statisticians, the average for American men currently is 5 feet 9 inches. However, only 14.2 percent of the male population actually measures up — or down, depending upon the personal elevation from which you're viewing it. The largest single category of males is the 4-foot-and-over crowd — 15 percent.

For women, it's just a bit less confusing. The average is 5 feet 3.6 inches and that takes in 15.2 percent of them, the largest grouping. But it still means the overwhelming majority, 84.8 percent, is shorter or taller.

In short, when it comes to height, it appears that being average is not the average situation, or being non-average is average, or ... Forget it.

The average man, it appears, is no longer in at the White House. At least as an image for the head of the household.

Reports from Washington have it that President Carter's newly recruited public relations specialists are laying plans to shore up his sagging popularity by restoring a bit of pomp to the presidency.

"Plain old Jimmy" is going to be soft-pedaled and the volume turned up on "Hall to the Chief."

Not that the president will be going about accompanied by a permanent honor guard, marching band or anything like that, but he will be striking a more publicly visible presidential pose in motion to come.

Some means to that end are said to include stepping up his domestic travel schedule, scheduling more town meeting-type sessions with the citizenry during his road tours, an early "retiree chat" television address, appearance and possibly another call-in radio session.

Just about everything but a raffle — and don't think it might never come to that.

Hopes To Be Housewife 'Just Like My Mother'

Model Training For Olympics

By ELDA NICHOLS
Herald Correspondent

Jennifer Lander hit Red Book Magazine when she was only six years old. Today, at the ripe old age of eleven, (twelve, this month), she is a seasoned veteran of TV commercials.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lander, Oviedo, Jennifer is a very charming youngster whose modesty and naturalness seem to come through in her photographs.

"I like the commercials best where there aren't any lines to say. It's more fun just doing the action ones," she said.

Several of her recent commercials, with some on TV at the present time, include: Burger King, Lucky Charms for General Mills, and the National Bank of Virginia.

"I guess I enjoyed making the commercial for the National Bank of Virginia the most. We did it at the Bradley-McIntyre House, in Longwood. I just loved the old house, and the people making the commercial were the nicest I ever worked with. We just had so much fun together," she said.

Going into seventh grade at Jackson Heights Middle School, Oviedo, Jennifer will be the smallest girl in her class.

"I'm sure her small stature is in her favor, as far as commercials go," said her mother, Cynthia. She herself is under five feet tall and attractive enough to be a model, also.

Missing a few school days to pursue her craft hasn't stopped Jennifer from being on the "B" Honor Roll — "And almost made the 'A' list, she commented.

Now registered with the Camelot Talent Agency, in Oviedo, Jennifer is also a full-fledged member of the Screen Actors' Guild, having joined recently. Money earned by her endeavors is tucked away in her own saving account.

"I also have a checking account for current expenses. We've made five trips to Miami, since April, trying out for parts," she said.

Jennifer isn't the only star in her family. Just her five-year-old sister, is coming on strong, and will be seen in her first commercial for Circus World in August.

Jennifer, proud of her sister, said, "She really did very well. I think her black hair does it!"

Both sisters have been in several beauty pageants.

Sun Cause Skin Cancer?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I'm 17, and I sunbathe every chance I get because I like the way I look with a suntan.

Nearly everyone who meets me comments on my "beautiful" suntan, but they spoil it immediately by adding, "But if you don't stop doing that to your skin, you'll look like an old lady by the time you're 30!"

Some have even told me that too much exposure to the sun can give me skin cancer. (Is that true?)

Abbey, I think it's very rude of you to make such remarks. Please print this. Maybe it will shut up people who offer advice when it's not asked for. Thank you.

LIKES A SUNTAN
Abbey, I think it's very rude of you to make such remarks. Please print this. Maybe it will shut up people who offer advice when it's not asked for. Thank you.

DEAR LIKES: Although unsolicited advice is seldom appreciated, you'd be wise to heed it. Excessive exposure to sun "ages" the skin prematurely, and it can cause skin cancer.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter just told me that she's been intimate with her boyfriend. He is her first and only. My daughter and I are very close, and she has always told me everything, but I'm shocked by this news. She thinks there's nothing wrong with it because she "loves" him.

Should I tell the boy's parents what is going on and ask them to tell their son not to see our daughter anymore? Knowing the boy, he would respect their wishes, but then my daughter would know I told them and it would ruin our good relationship.

Or should I ask the boy to stop seeing our daughter, and threaten to tell his parents if he doesn't comply? I'm sure if we broke them up the chances for the same thing happening with another boy would be greatly reduced since she is quite picky about whom she associates with. In the meantime, she may mature more. Please tell me what to do.

WORRIED MOM
DEAR WORRIED: Please don't call the boy's parents. Your daughter would feel betrayed and may close the door on future confidences. She needs your understanding and mature guidance more than ever now.

Parents rarely succeed in breaking up their children's love affairs. They usually drive them underground. Rather, it's a plea for facing reality and handling the situation sensibly and unemotionally.

DEAR ABBY: I recently telephoned a friend and asked her if she was going to be home that evening because I wanted to visit her. She said, "Yes, I'll be home, watching my favorite television program. If you want to come over and watch it with me, you are welcome. Otherwise, let's make it some other time."

Mrs. Joseph Lander, Oviedo, Jennifer is a very charming youngster whose modesty and naturalness seem to come through in her photographs.

"I like the commercials best where there aren't any lines to say. It's more fun just doing the action ones," she said.

Several of her recent commercials, with some on TV at the present time, include: Burger King, Lucky Charms for General Mills, and the National Bank of Virginia.

"I guess I enjoyed making the commercial for the National Bank of Virginia the most. We did it at the Bradley-McIntyre House, in Longwood. I just loved the old house, and the people making the commercial were the nicest I ever worked with. We just had so much fun together," she said.

Going into seventh grade at Jackson Heights Middle School, Oviedo, Jennifer will be the smallest girl in her class.

"I'm sure her small stature is in her favor, as far as commercials go," said her mother, Cynthia. She herself is under five feet tall and attractive enough to be a model, also.

Missing a few school days to pursue her craft hasn't stopped Jennifer from being on the "B" Honor Roll — "And almost made the 'A' list, she commented.

Now registered with the Camelot Talent Agency, in Oviedo, Jennifer is also a full-fledged member of the Screen Actors' Guild, having joined recently. Money earned by her endeavors is tucked away in her own saving account.

"I also have a checking account for current expenses. We've made five trips to Miami, since April, trying out for parts," she said.

Jennifer isn't the only star in her family. Just her five-year-old sister, is coming on strong, and will be seen in her first commercial for Circus World in August.

Jennifer, proud of her sister, said, "She really did very well. I think her black hair does it!"

Both sisters have been in several beauty pageants.

Life Is A Key Bible Word

By LEO F. KING. First United Methodist Church. The word, "life," is a key word in the Bible. Jesus said, "I am the life of the world. He who does not have me will die, but he who has me will have life, and have it more abundantly." Do people resent the suggestion that they are like sheep which cannot really live unless they are utterly dependent upon their shepherd? "I am the Good Shepherd," said Christ, "the Good Shepherd gives his life for the sheep."

Life is back of all health, healing, help and happiness. Life is not measured by duration, but by donation. It is not so important what God has taken from you as what you will do with that which remains with which you can work. We must learn to let go and let God. He will hold of our lives. One of the great merchandisers of our time has been J. C. Penney. He made considerable money and was about to retire when the depression came and wiped away every cent he had. At 58 years of age he lost $7 million. He was desolated and felt life's pressures were too great to bear. He was sent to a sanitarium for treatment. One day he heard an old familiar hymn from the chapel. "Be not dismayed, what'er you bid, God will take care of you." All you may need, He will provide, God will take care of you. He entered the chapel, sank into a seat and heard the minister read: "Come unto me, all you that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Suddenly Mr. Penney groaned, "Lord, I can do nothing, will you take care of me?" This one word proved to be the key. He was not to sit around telling yourself what you cannot do, but believe by God's help you can do it. As you let your life be lived with Christ directing you, then others will be helped to live better. You can influence your life by the influence you give to others. Life was meant to be enjoyed, not endured. You have longings to be accepted, approved, and appreciated. Take this step of faith for life at its best through Christ and He will lead you into a larger, abundant life.

QUARTET SINGS AT CHURCHES. The Good News Quartet of Sanford will present a program of gospel music, Wednesday, at 7 p.m., at First Baptist Church of Osteen. The group will also sing this Sunday at 9:45 a.m. for Adult III Sunday School at First Baptist Church, Sanford. Group includes David Beverly, director-pianist; Ralph Foley, lead singer; Alvin Beverly, second tenor; Victor Riechberg, bass; Gary Beverly, first tenor; Ron Beverly, bass guitar; Anna and Myndra Beverly, featured singers; and Richard Casmala, speaker.

Not Too Late For Old Cynic

QUESTION: All my life I have resisted anything that has to do with God. I've always found some excuse not to go to church, and I've refused to listen when my wife has tried to tell me about what God had done for her. Now I'm suffering from heart disease. I've already had two heart attacks, and frankly I'm scared. Do you think God would ever consider healing an old cynic like me? ANSWER: Of course, God cares for anyone who is sick or hurting, even if that person has been fighting against Him, but I believe that He loves us in spite of it. The Bible says, "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Roman 5: 8). Your question reminds me of the man in the Bible named Malchus. He was one of the mob that came storming up to the church that morning on July 23, 1978, at 7:30 a.m., Sundays, in the Winter Springs Adventist Church on Moss Road. Raised in Hialeah, he graduated from Rollins College, Winter Park in 1976 majoring in Philosophy and Religion.

Even though Jesus knew Malchus' intentions were evil, He didn't see him as an enemy. Jesus saw him as one of God's children who was hurt and bleeding. He saw him as a person who would be scarred the rest of his life because of the rash act of one of his disciples. And out of love and concern, He reached out His hand and touched him, restoring his ear completely. (See Luke 22: 50, 51). Jesus cares when you hurt. He cares whether you care anything about Him or not. He cares whether you are good or bad. It doesn't matter if you are sick, if you are physically, mentally or spiritually. Jesus wants to take the hurting away to restore you to wholeness and health in every part of your being.

Church Plans Youth Week

July 17-23 will be Youth Week at Community United Methodist Church of Casselberry. Monday's events will include a day at River Country. Youth will meet at the church at 7:30 p.m. with Jim Goode as speaker. A picnic supper will follow at the church at 6 p.m. with seminars on witnessing at 7:30 p.m. On Tuesday events will include skating at 12:30 p.m. meet at church and a movie, "Just Last Summer" at 7:30 p.m. On Wednesday, there will be an "Olympics" at 2 p.m. with class from FTU. Lockpick supper the rest of his life because of the rash act of one of his disciples. And out of love and concern, He reached out His hand and touched him, restoring his ear completely. (See Luke 22: 50, 51). Jesus cares when you hurt. He cares whether you care anything about Him or not. He cares whether you are good or bad. It doesn't matter if you are sick, if you are physically, mentally or spiritually. Jesus wants to take the hurting away to restore you to wholeness and health in every part of your being.

Calorie Usage Different For Each

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — How much variation is there in two people the same size in terms of the number of calories they can eat and still lose weight? Is there any way to find out what one's personal calorie needs are besides experimenting?
DEAR READER — Two individuals the same size sitting at a desk will use different amounts of calories. Why? Habits have a lot to do with it. One may be moving the legs and the other one may be absolutely quiet. The amount of physical activity in little continuous efforts and in larger ways is extremely important in determining how many calories a person might use in any one day.
 Another factor is what percentage of your body is fat. Individuals who have more muscle and less fat tend to use more calories even while they are sitting still than do individuals of the same weight who have a higher percentage of body fat. Fat tissue doesn't use many calories but muscle cells use considerably more. To illustrate, we cut away and the skin brought together with the new fine line scar resulting. As far as increasing the size of the lower legs, I presume you're referring to the calf area. The best exercises for this are those requiring raising up on your toes. First stand flat-footed on one foot and then raise up on your toes and then let your heels sink back to the floor. This exercises the calf muscle and helps build up its strength.
 In a similar fashion you can set and raise the toes upward toward the shin bone to exercise the muscles over the front of the shin. If you want to do this under some load to hold the muscles grow more rapidly, you might want to go to one of your local health clubs. See if they have some equipment that you can use to help build up the muscles in your legs.
DEAR DR. LAMB — You have helped my mother with her problems and my grandmother with hers. I hope you can help me with mine. When I was born my feet were turned inward I had to have several operations which left ugly scars. I had to have several casts on them. Is there something that can remove the scars? Is there some exercise I can do to flatten up the bottom part of my legs?
DEAR READER — Many unsightly scars can be improved by cosmetic surgery. Since you are concerned about it, go to a plastic surgeon and see if something could be done to decrease the obvious appearance of the scars. Sometimes the scars can literally be cut away and the skin brought together with the new fine line scar resulting.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
 For Saturday, July 15, 1978

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 July 14, 1978

A great deal of the material strain you recently experienced looks like it will be alleviated this coming year. Romantically and socially, things will be getting a lot better, too.

CANCER (June 21-July 21)
 The old adage, "the best things in life are free," holds true for you today. Pleasurable pursuits that slim down your bankroll could be disappointing. Find out to whom you're romantically suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 For someone who usually appreciates life to the fullest you may fail to get fully immersed today. Your day could be just so-so.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Unfortunately, today you may not hold yourself in the same high regard your friends do. Trust their opinions and not yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 There will be persons today who will help advance your interests and others who are not in a position to do so. Regardless, you should avoid any preferential treatment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Because your influence over your peer group is markedly pronounced today, someone with selfish motives may try to use you to serve his or her purposes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Overall conditions are promising today, especially in joint ventures. Your doubts regarding your own capabilities are the only fly in the ointment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 You're a welcome addition to any social gathering today. You'll be warmly received on that basis. Don't use the occasion as a platform for personal ambitions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Persons in positions to give you a boost see nothing but good in you today. The fault-finders will be those who couldn't help you anyway.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Lady Luck is your ally today as long as you keep up a full head of steam. If you start to put on the brakes, she's likely to do the same.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 You have an ingenious knack for sorting out situations for others today, provided you don't take small but foolish risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Do things you find pleasurable both today and this evening, yet know when to leave the ball. Recall what happened to Cinderella and the pumpkin.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Possibilities for personal gain appear favorable today. Others will help, but if you fail to show proper gratitude they won't assist you again.

WIN AT BRIDGE

do about his heart and club losers?"
 Finally, he found a solution provided East held the right number of cards in the red suit.
 He led a diamond and continued with the other two high diamonds in order to get rid of the four of hearts and deuce of clubs. Then, since West had shown out on the third diamond, he was able to lead another diamond and ruff with a low trump.
 The ace, king and jack of hearts were played next with the jack being ruffed in dummy.
 South was left with king-jack-104 of spades. East with queen-9-7. It was a simple matter for South to lead from dummy overruff the nine of spades with the 10, lead the four of spades and win the last two tricks.

Bee Gees: Stayin' On Top

THE GIBB BROTHERS — THE BEE GEES

In the nine years since subterranean financial pressures helped break up the original band, the Bee Gees have bounced back, collapsed, recovered and finally, on the wings of Saturday Night Fever, have soared to unimaginable heights. In the August issue of Crawdad, Greg Mitchell interviews the Bee Gees and observes how celebrityhood is affecting the brothers in different ways. "Despite staggering good fortune," writes Mitchell, "Barry Gibb claims he hasn't the faintest idea what to do with his riches (I'm not a gambler). Wary of public scrutiny, he surrounds himself with family, friends and electric protection in a Gibb enclave on Miami's Biscayne Bay. "And in of overdue critical approval, he remains unconvinced of the Bee Gees' access to success. We're scared of the next album," Barry admits. "We're scared of whatever we do. We're the same desperate, worried, insecure songwriters we've always been."

The article also notes several small curiosities concerning the Gibb boys. "Robin (Gibb) has what Barry terms an 'idiosyncrasy' — he takes lots of baths. Whenever something good happens to the group, Robin jumps in the tub to soak in the significance. At one point last spring, the Bee Gees were No. 1 in Billboard, Andy Gibb (baby brother) ruled Record World and Samantha Sang topped Cashbox. That week, Barry recalls, 'Robin was as clean as a whistle.' These days Robin must be a little grey around the edges — Saturday Night Fever just dropped to No. 2 in Billboard.

DAVID VINCENT CALLS THE LUCKY NUMBERS

MARIA HALLOWAY CHECKS HER 15 CARDS

'You Can Get Hooked On Bingo'

"Under the G-56... 1-17... B-10..." "Bingo!!!" shouts a lucky winner, holding the card high over her head. A hundred other players start clearing their boards for the next game. A few grumble about their luck and vow never to return. "It sort of gets 'em... sort of a bug," says Paul Dzielinski of Sanford. "They'll say if they don't win tonight they're not coming any more, but you see them next week." About 100 people sat at long tables in the social hall at All Souls Catholic Church quickly scanning 18, 19 or more cards for those lucky numbers that would make them 625 winners.

On Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:15 the ping-pong balls with the bingo numbers printed on them start bouncing around in a box that looks like a popcorn popper one sees at the movies. One at a time they pop through a hole in the top boards for games of regular bingo, diagonal, single or double bingo, black out — three in one, or roulette double bingo — no corners. Non-profit organizations can hold two games per week and many people make the rounds to most of them. "I can't find a game on Friday afternoon," complained one player. "You can get hooked on bingo," says Maria Halloway of Winter Springs. "and I'm hooked!" "I signed a paper I wouldn't play bingo for two weeks. I signed it yesterday," she said continuing to check her cards. "It's better than staying home and watching TV," said Sanford's Virginia Greene. "Where else can a married woman go?" asked one. "Where else can a single woman go?" asked another. "I'm a widow," said Helen Luszczynski of Casselberry, "and I've got nothing else to do. What am I going to do... go drinking?"

What People Are Saying ...

"They just took another little part out of the First Amendment."
—Conservative George Carlin, responding to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling involving one of his recordings. The court held that the Federal Communications Commission can restrict the public broadcast of certain "offensive words."
"From the day the Declaration of Independence was agreed upon until the present, we have indeed been hypocrites about equality."
—Patricia Roberts Harris, secretary of housing and urban development, speaking at a NAACP convention about the U.S. government's fight to reduce poverty.

GEORGE CARLIN

"Finally, it got to the point where I just couldn't live with myself doing dope anymore... I was sure it was going to kill me."
—Johnny Winter, a rock singer (Direct News).

"As in a lot of things, the fun is associated with increased hazards."
—Nancy Johnston, director of the National Injury Information Clearinghouse, warning that skateboards — becoming increasingly popular — rank high on the list of dangerous commercial products.

"We're here because some white men are still under the impression that they can violate women — especially black women — and get away with it."
—Aldi Al-Jundi, speaking at a rally in Flint, Ga. (President Carter's hometown), to protest that state's imprisonment of Denise Woods, a black woman convicted of slaying a white man she claims tried to rape her.

RICHARD NIXON

between anti-Moslem rights and Syrian trace forces.
"The situation is not too pleasant. But it's not impossible. Maybe we'll make a miraculous recovery."
—Cedric Tallie, general manager of the New York Yankees, talking about the effort by the defuncting baseball champions to catch the front-running Boston Red Sox in this season's pennant race.

"What I plan to do is not to participate, of course, in any partisan political activity. But when I think the occasion requires it, where I think it can be helpful, I will continue to make statements... about policies I think the United States should follow."
—Former President Richard Nixon.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I am a big fan of "Gone With the Wind," and I would like to know if it's planning on coming to TV again. If so, when? C.R. LEE, Lawton, Mich.

Good news, all you Scarlett and Rhett fans. CBS bought the film from MGM in a very big deal, and, in fact, acquired the rights to show it for the next 20 years on TV. The first telecast under the new pact will be, they tell me, sometime this fall. And then, they believe, once a year until 1998. After that, we'll all be tired of it.

DEAR DICK: Recently, on "The Gong Show," I noticed Chuck Barris had a black eye. Can you please tell me what happened? My mom said he was beat up; I disagree. D.H., Tucson, Ariz.

Good for you, D. Tell your mom that good old Chuck has a good ole sense of humor, and the black eye was just a gag, applied with make-up. He wasn't beat up, even a little.

DEAR DICK: Could you give us the real name of the movie actress, Anne Francis, and what is her mother's name? CHARLES AND MARY CHESHIER, Greybull, Wyo.

Anne Francis is really Anne Francis. And she asks me to ask you why you wanted to know? DEAR DICK: I would like to know the name of the theme song they play on "The Newlywed Game." ROBERT HUDEMA, Victoria, B.C., Can.

It is called (surprise!) "The Newlywed Game Theme Song." The surprising thing is that it was written by Chuck Barris himself. You may not know I didn't that he used to be a song writer, and has a hit to his credit — "Palisades Park," the big one recorded by Freddie "Boom-Boom" Cannon.

DEAR DICK: My friend and I are having an argument. She says there has been only one dog playing Max on "The Bionic Woman." I disagree. Please help us. SITTING AND WAITING, Kalamazoo, Mich.

You are extremely correct. There have been a whole pack of Maxes. In first place, they switched dog trainers in mid-season, and each trainer worked with his own dogs. Each used three and four identical dogs — one is a good growler, another a good snarler, another a good tailwagger, and so on. So each trainer had three or four dogs, which means that, during the season, there were six or eight dogs on the show.

DEAR DICK: My wife and I wonder about the attractive, dark-haired girl on "Hee Haw." Her name is Lisa Todd. What relation, if any, is she to Elizabeth Taylor and the late Mike Todd? FLOYD W. SMITH, Redwood City, Calif.

None.
DEAR DICK: I would like to know if Norma Zimmer and Jimmy Roberts of "The Lawrence Welk Show" are brother and sister or any relation at all. MRS. E.J., Winona Lake, Ind.

None.
DEAR DICK: Can you please tell me what Preston Foster is doing these days? He hasn't made a movie in some time, and he should — a fine, uncomplicated actor. A. BROWN, Covina, Ca.

It's hard to write parts for him now. He died in 1970.
DEAR DICK: Will you tell me, please — is Dick Martin's wife, Dolly, really Dan Rowan's daughter? I said no. Also are Ted Knight and Georgette man and wife in real life. I said yes. Who is right? B.L. OLIVER, Kalamazoo, Mich.

You're batting .500. Dolly Martin is not Dan Rowan's daughter. OK on that one. But Ted Knight and Georgia Engel, who plays Georgette, are not married.

'Forget I Kissed Tatum'

HOLLYWOOD — It's the kiss of death for an actor to be remembered because he gave a leading child star her first screen kiss. So Jeff Byron hopes that people soon forget he gave Tatum O'Neal her first screen kiss in "International Velvet."
"It's no big deal," he says. "It's pretty much just a peck on the cheek. She's supposed to be 18 in the movie, but actually she is only 14 and everybody knows it, so it wouldn't be right to have it very physical."
Byron, a very handsome young man who looks like a male version of his beautiful mother, Anna Lee, goes from the not-very-physical love scenes in "International Velvet" to the much sexier scenes of his next, "The Seniors." He thinks that will be a good thing for him, so he doesn't get typed as a G-rated leading man.

Actually, this is Byron's second movie career. He was a child star from ages 5 to 13. He starred in many TV shows and movies — "Donny's Reef" and "Marnie" and "The Caretakers" and even "International Velvet" to the much sexier scenes of his next, "The Seniors." He thinks that will be a good thing for him, so he doesn't get typed as a G-rated leading man.

At 13, though, he was big into sports, so he quit. He almost made pro basketball a career until he realized he wasn't quite good enough. He didn't go to college, because of that realization. And also because his stepfather, novelist Robert Nathan, a Harvard graduate, said that unless he had a specific goal, college was a waste of time. Instead, he got a job with the Los Angeles Rams, winding up as owner Carroll Rosenbloom's assistant with promises of a good career and solid future in the pro football business. But then he decided he wanted to be an actor, after all. So at 19, he got back in the acting business and it was tough. It was starting all over. "I had thought I could walk in and pick up where I left off," he says, "but I couldn't."

Top 10 Cities For Women

Go east, young woman. That seems to be the advice of a recent Redbook magazine study that found Washington D.C. is the best city in the nation for women.

In comparing the nation's 30 largest cities, the survey used eight criteria: jobs for women, women officeholders, personal safety, medical care, concern for children, income, legislation and character of the population.

The top 10 cities were:
 1. Washington D.C.
 2. San Jose, Calif.
 3. Denver
 4. Minneapolis
 5. Milwaukee

6. Boston
 7. San Francisco
 8. Cleveland
 9. Seattle
 10. Chicago

According to the survey the five worst cities for women were St. Louis, Miami, Atlanta, Tampa, Fla., and Kansas City.

Trying His Luck In The U.S.

Demis Roussos is the latest in a long line of singers, huge hits in their home continent, who have tried to invade America and the American music industry. Good luck.

Mercury. And he thinks he has a fighting chance to make America as Roussos-conscious as is much of the rest of the world.

He's an Egyptian-born son of a Greek father and a Greek-Jewish mother. The family was wealthy, until Nasser came along and expropriated their holdings and they fled to Athens. Demis was 15. To earn some money, he began playing trumpet in small bands and gradually began singing, as well.

He was on his way to England, when his train was stopped in Paris by the student riots. So he got off there and his first big success was in France. He believes it was his fate.

He grew and grew — both in stature and in fame. He is now a burly, 260-pounder who looks bigger, because of his black beard and thick black

Female Country Crooners Fashionable

By ROB PATTERSON
If it's no longer a man's world, nowhere is it more evident than in country music. Once a bastion of musical macho (after all, the good ol' boy's "cheatin' song" is a country tradition), Nashville has seen the walls fall to the tune of controversial songs like Loretta Lynn's

"The Pill" and Tammy Wynette's "D-I-V-O-R-C-E." Now with Dolly Parton, Linda Ronstadt and Emmylou Harris topping both the country and pop charts, female country crooners are finally welcome, if not downright fashionable.

One woman who shows all the talent, spunk and personality to join the above ranks is Katy Moffat, a Fort Worth songwriter with a singing voice as big as her native Texas. Moffat is an emotive, exhilarating singer with a knack for composing tunes both smart and sexy, and she's won scores of new fans on her recent tour with the godfather of modern country, Willie Nelson.

"Unfortunately," explains the soft-spoken redhead, "the ravens of what I do has not been put on disc yet. But everytime I get on stage, that's where it's at for me. On record, the essence of what I do has been passed by."

But that won't last forever, if Moffat's Determination is any gauge. She started playing at 16 ("that means a lot of gigs at fashion shows and rest homes"), and while in college in New Mexico she was featured briefly singing in the movie "Billy Jack."

Moffat knew since that first show at age 16 that she wanted to be a performer, and so she soon fled academia. She played in "a horrible blue band" in Galveston, later moving into the Austin country scene. Finally, she flew the coop of Texas and landed in Denver, Colo., where she met club owner Chuck Morris. Morris now manages Moffat and brought her to Columbia Records.

But getting that great big voice onto a little slab of vinyl wasn't easy. Her first album, Moffat, was recorded with veteran Nashville hit-maker Billy Sherrill, and though it showcased Moffat in the heart of country traditions, the LP contained not one of her original songs.

"I have endless respect for Billy, I really do love him," Moffat explains, "but I think at that time Billy was freakin' out, because the progressive country things had suddenly been taking higher numbers than the old stand-bys. He'd been the king for so long, and the sound that he'd created had dominated the country charts. And then along comes Willie Nelson who has a number one hit with a record that Billy thought sounded like a bad demo."

Sherrill's tactic was to cut Moffat live in the old Nashville style. The result was an appealing "singer's record," if not altogether representative of Moffat's talent. Her next move was to record her own material in Macon, Ga., with producer Johnny Sandlin. The sessions produced a minor masterpiece in progressive country, but Columbia scrapped the album in favor of a more pop oriented sound. The result is Sun," a mix of Moffat's own tunes and sultry soul, which displays her in a refined pop setting. And it still doesn't do justice to her talents. Nonetheless, it's a fine record that has garnered high praise.

Despite such frustrations, Moffat is determined that her talent will win out. And when you hear the lady sing, it's hard not to agree. That voice, which seems to embody all the cowboy funk which Texas is famous for, is irresistible. As they say in racing circles, this is one bet that's a sure thing.

Discovered by Billy Sherrill a few years back, 16-year-old Tanya Tucker looked like the next sure thing in country. The little girl with the woman's voice and moves was touring Nashville on its own terms in country. She has since been in "Delta Dawn" and "Would You Lay With Me In A Field of Stone" like a female Elvis.

But a change of contract from Columbia to MCA took Tucker away from Sherrill, and the hits stopped coming. "I really love Billy and am still good friends with him," says Tanya of the notoriously autocratic producer, "but I really wanted to start developing my own thing."

"I really felt like I was outgrowing him," explains Tanya, who has grown from a very little teenager into a pretty, intelligent 19-year-old. In fact, growth was something that Tanya Tucker didn't face easily, at one period being unsure about just how to mix rock and country, while her manager-father began to realize that she needed the aid and experience of true professional management.

After a search, Tucker joined the Far Out Management stable of artists (War, Ronnie Laws, Alton). She has since been in the studio with producer Jerry Goldstein recording for the first time with her own band, and surprise, with songs by her own hand.

Tucker's first release under new wings is a very special project for her. As the honorary chairperson of the Save The Seals campaign, she has just released a self-penned single that calls right through to the tragedy of baby harp seals being clubbed to death for their hides — "Save Me."

It's a perfect reintroduction, a song that reflects her love for animals of all kinds.

Cartoons For Adults

Will grown ups, like their little ones, curl in front of the TV for a dose of serious cartoon watching? NBC thinks there are enough aging Peter Pans out there, and so when they move their hit late night news show, "Weekend Update," to prime time this fall, they're taking the cartoon cast along, too.

"Weekend Update" producer Neelon Frank contends "You can say things in that form that you can't say in any other." In fact, the animated lower known as Mr. Hip has become the most popular segment of the 60-minute show. Says Frank, "Like me, Mr. Hip was born 30 years too late for the sexual revolution; he's the aging hipster who always ends up a loser."

Proposition 13-Inspired

Williams To Propose Spending Cap Vote

By MAX ERKILETIAN
 Herald Staff Writer

In a move inspired by the passage of California's Proposition 13, Seminole County Commission Chairman Dick Williams will propose Monday a county government spending limit to be put to a referendum in November.

If passed by county voters, the cap on county government spending would go into effect with the beginning of fiscal 1979, which would start Oct. 1 of that year.

Williams prepared a memo that will be distributed to the full commission Monday outlining the proposal. The memo calls for input from other commissioners and noted that County Attorney Harry Stewart and County Administrator Roger Neiswender have been notified of the proposal.

Williams declined to name a figure for the cap, saying he wants input from local taxpayers. However, he noted the spending limit could be much lower than the 10 mill cap permitted by state law.

"I'm hesitant to impose my own will without hearing from the people who will have to live with it," stated Williams.

He said he did not feel public hearings will be necessary for the commission to gain that public input.

"I think we'll hear from the public by telephone, and then we're also out among them and we get input all the time," said Williams.

Seminole County has a millage rate of $6.90 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

"Obviously, I think our cap can be lower than the state's," declared Williams. "It might be a cut in the current rate up to 25 percent."

The spending limit might call for a reduction in funding for county departments, according to Williams.

"It sort of depends on what the cap is," noted Williams.

"I'm not sure in my own mind what that cap should be," Williams said he and other members of the commission will have to obtain comments from taxpayers about the kinds of services they feel the county should offer its citizens and at what levels those services should be offered.

"A lot depends on the services people want and what priorities they put on those services," said Williams. "If we decide to set a cap on spending, it would impose some harder decisions on those priorities, because if there is no way we can go beyond a limited amount, those priorities will become very significant."

A lighter financial line would make county officials more conservative in determining what programs should be undertaken by the county, according to Williams.

"There always is a certain amount of fat in any county's budget," declared Williams. "I think a spending limit would trim that. If people start talking about big cuts, then you're talking about eliminating some of the things we're currently doing."

Two factors other than public input to be considered in setting a spending limit for the county are inflation and spending mandated by the state, according to Williams.

"The expenditures imposed by the state will make some difference," said Williams. "As an example, they have increased the amount of money we are required to spend for the retirement fund, unemployment and all sorts of things. Those are expenditures that will come right off the top of our budget."

With the passage of Proposition 13, California allowed for a two percent inflation annually.

Williams said there will have to be some allowance made to deal with inflation in a county-wide spending limit. However, he did not feel spending limits should be tied to the rise in the local median income, as suggested in California by that state's governor.

"I really don't have any faith in figures for the average level of income," said Williams. "I think it should be in line with something like that, but I don't know what yet. This is only a proposal at this point and will require a lot more work for the specifics."

Williams views the proposal as part of what he termed Seminole County's "leadership" in central Florida.

He noted that Seminole County was one of the first counties in the state to consolidate its five districts and adopt a comprehensive land plan.

"Seminole County will now be the leader in central Florida and maybe the entire state in new ways and ideas of keeping waste out of the government's provision of service," he said.

Migrant Doc's Claim:

Big City Physicians Need More Poor-Patient Contact

By LEN KRANSDORF
 Herald Staff Writer

Too often young doctors fresh out of medical school intern in big city hospitals getting to see as patients only those medium to upper income level people... but there's a Sanford doctor who says he may have an answer to the problem.

"We are trying to provide the resource for economically deprived people that is first class and make sure those people get as good care as a millionaire," Dr. Charles Carter believes.

Dr. Carter is attached to the Central Florida Migrant and Health Clinic Inc., in Sanford.

The Sanford clinic is located at 214 South Oak Ave., and another clinic at Oviedo is at 98 Division St.

And Dr. Carter, a pediatrician at the clinic, believes other doctors should be exposed to the migrant and low-income families who go to the clinic as patients.

"I think it's important to give doctors an exposure to a facet of life they might normally not see," said Carter, who has been working at the clinic since April, 1977.

"What we will try to do is get doctors who are in the family practice program at Florida Hospital and Orlando Regional Medical Center and get them to come here as part of their training," Dr. Carter said.

He believes the experiences the doctors get at the clinic will "provide better medical care in the future because doctors will see there is a need for another type of medical care."

And, it is precisely for this reason that Dr. Carter, 41, decided to join the clinic staff.

"I had wanted to be a medical missionary in a foreign country," said Dr. Carter, who for 27 years worked for the state Health and Rehabilitative Services. "But I was told I was too old, so I decided to come here because in a sense this is a type of missionary work."

And Carter believes that this training will be gained during the peak months of January through March.

During 1977 alone, 8,000 patients passed through the Sanford clinic with about 900 of those during the peak months, according to Clinic Executive Director Anita Montgomery.

The majority of the clinic's patients fall into or are on the border of the poverty level and are charged a maximum of $4, according to Miss Montgomery.

In addition to Dr. Carter's expanded doctor program, the clinic also is planning in October to expand the services it offers to patients.

The Sanford clinic has been in operation for 12 years and became a non-profit organization in July of 1977. It is funded by grants from the Health Education and Welfare (HEW). This year it operated with a $400,000 HEW grant.

High On Marriage: Hold Ceremony In Sky

George S. Simpson, 44, Fern Park, and Mary Lou Bogges, 44, Daytona Beach were married at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, 10,000 feet above sunny Sanford, Florida aboard a Cessna Skymaster. The marriage got off to a flying start from a romance that began seven months ago at the Central Florida Airport in Sanford.

The bride wore a blue pants suit and her spouse an orange jumpsuit, the same outfits the two were wearing the first time they flew together in January.

She Believed He'd Live

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors wanted to "pull the plug" on Peter Saraceno two years ago. But he is healthy enough to walk down the aisle at his wedding Sunday.

Saraceno had been critically injured in an auto crash in suburban Bellwood. His head was cracked open.

A doctor pronounced him dead on arrival at Westlake Hospital in Melrose Park. Then — in trying one last time to find a pulse — the doctor found a faint one.

"After he had been in a coma for 12 days, the doctors told me: 'Pull the plug. Pull the plug,'" said Saraceno's widowed mother Louise.

Saraceno was in a coma for 3 1/2 months. He contracted double pneumonia.

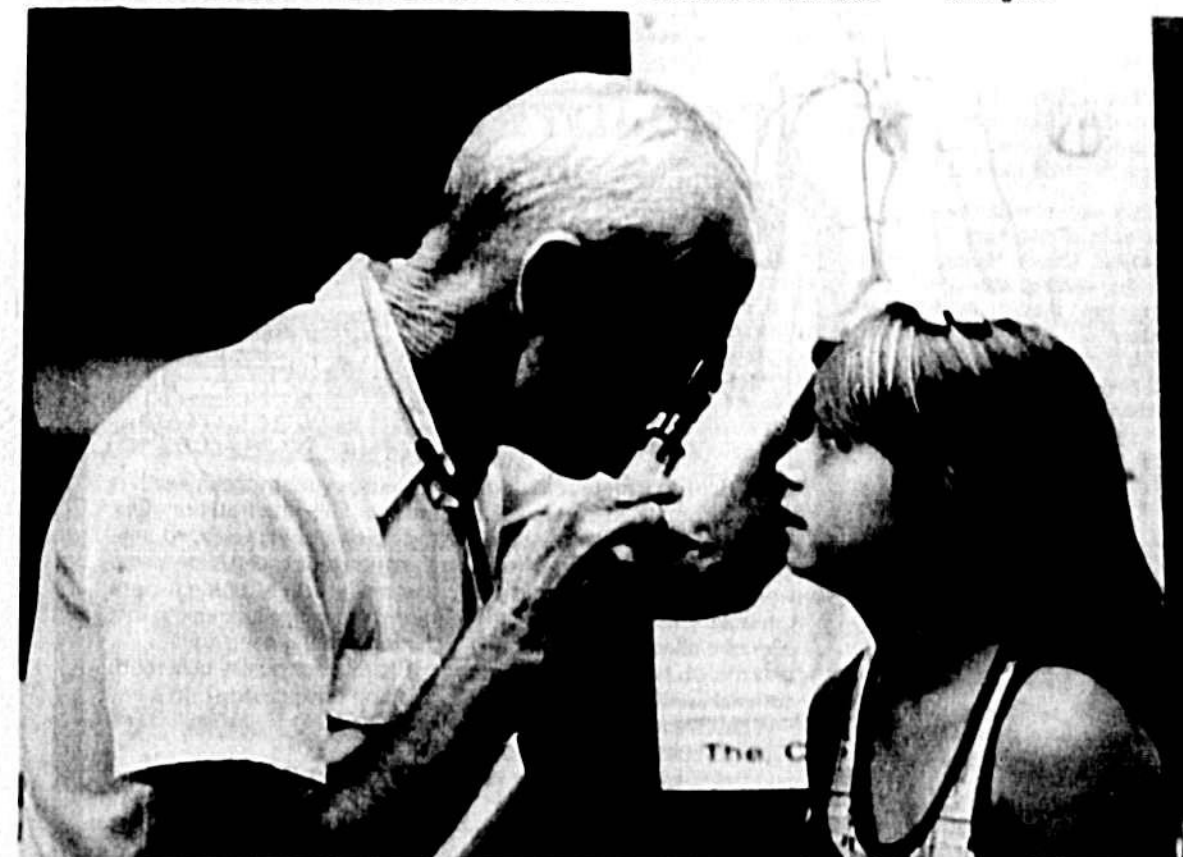

"There, four times they told us he had just a few hours left," Mrs. Saraceno said. "But I didn't believe it. And neither did Linda."

The rest of the story lies with Linda Franchella, 23, Saraceno's fiancée who would not believe he would die.

Saraceno, 21, was in good condition because he had just left the Marines. He and Linda had planned to marry soon.

Instead, Miss Franchella went to her fiancé's bedside every night, talking to him as if he were alive, as if he were still here.

U.S. Considering Swap For Soviet's Shcharansky

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The United States is considering a swap involving Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky and two Soviet officials being held in the United States on charges of espionage, administration officials said today.

To emphasize U.S. opposition to the 13-year sentence imposed on Shcharansky for allegedly spying for the United States, the administration is also considering economic sanctions against the Soviet Union, the officials said.

The idea has caused a rift within the administration, with the State Department opposing sanctions on the grounds they would be ineffective.

Presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski favors strong action against the Soviets, including restricting business travel and contacts, U.S. officials said.

But Secretary of State Cyrus Vance opposes business sanctions because the Soviets could turn to other business sources and not be hurt.

U.S. officials said several options were under consideration, and that a swap was one of them. However, they said negotiations were in a "delicate state" and no details could be divulged now.

U.S. officials confirmed the United States has been in contact with the Soviets. President Carter denounced Shcharansky's conviction while on a state visit to West Germany and White House officials said Carter would "take steps" to try to secure the Soviet dissident's release or reduction of sentence.

Soviet officials in Geneva had told newsmen the Kremlin was interested in securing the release of two U.N. employees of Soviet nationality who are being held in New Jersey on spying charges.

Both men are being held on the unusually high bond of $2 million dollars each.

Carter flew to Bonn today along one of the corridors of the airlift 20 years ago and pledged in German to an emotional crowd: "No matter what happens, Berlin will stay free."

"Was immer sei," said the president in a major address, "Berlin bleibt frei."

As part of his two-day state visit preceding the economic summit meeting starting Sunday, Carter also visited the Berlin Wall, to demonstrate by his presence there that West Berlin will remain a free city, Carter, relaxed after friendly receptions in Frankfurt and two nearby military installations, laid a wreath at the airlift memorial while a bugler played "Taps" to honor the 64 allied airmen and Germans who died in the airlift.

In Frankfurt he told a cheering throng of West Germans for the second time in as many days, "Any attack on your soil will be the same as an attack on the soil of our country."
