BENEFIT SHOW AT THEATER PROVES DECIDED SUCCESS

Nearly $360 Received In Drive To Raise Unemployment Sum

That representatives of numerous Sanford welfare and relief organizations did not work in vain in the interests of the unemployed of this locality is revealed in a statement by Arthur Branan, treasurer of the Sanford branch of President Herbert Hoover's Emergency Committee for the Unemployed who today said that nearly $360 had been raised from donations and the sale of tickets to the benefit performance at the Milano Theater Wednesday night.

This sum is particularly gratifying to leaders in the movement to aid funds for the local unemployed, and members of each of several groups are today congratulating each other upon the success of the campaign.

Speaking as head of the Hoover Emergency Committee in Sanford, Harry M. Papworth today said "We wish to extend our thanks to the good people of Sanford for their generous donations and their attendance at the fine entertainment of Wednesday night. It was a splendid response to a nationwide appeal and I am sure that Sanford's reputation as a charitable city was enhanced by the size of the fund raised. The committee will meet today or tomorrow morning and make a distribution of the money to the various relief organizations of the community. Every dollar will be accounted for in the report of Arthur Branan, secretary of the committee. The committee particularly desires to express its thanks to J. L. Marquette, manager of the Milano, not only for the use of his concern's theater, but his earnest and consistent efforts employed in behalf of the cause."

Members of the Hoover Committee here are: H. M. Papworth, chairman; Arthur Branan, treasurer; Mrs. Helen T. Morse, of the Seminole County Welfare Board; Mrs. L. M. Leinhardt, of the American Legion Auxiliary, and D. J. Garrett of the Sanford Elks Club. Organizational and their active representatives were: Eastern Star, Mrs. Eugene Higgins, Mrs. H. F. Greenhaw, and Mrs. J. E. Courrier; Woman's Club, Mrs. James Huff, Mrs. J. O. Lamer, Mrs. J. C. Bennett, and Mrs. W. T. Langley; American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. J. C. Benson, Mrs. H. C. DEMOCRATS IN HOUSE PLAN TO TAKE CONTROL

Representative Gar- ner And Rainey Ap- pear To Have Sewed Up Important Posts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — (A.P.)—In accord with their organization program, the Democrats have laid plans to assume control of the incoming House.

Representative Garner of Texas has the unanimous support of the party membership of 214 for speaker. Representative Rainey of Illinois appears to have clinched the second most important post, floor leadership. Representative O'Connor of New York is Rainey's only opponent.

The powerful appropriations committee is slated to be headed by Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, while Ways and Means committee is to go to Representative Collier of Mississippi. Representative Fog of North Carolina, dean of Democrats, will head the Rules committee, which guides the legislative program.

The chairmanships of the other major committees are expected to go to the ranking Democrats in the last Congress, except where changes are desired by the individuals affected. The northern states are to have about 20 chairmanships, the southern and border states about 26.

While the Democrats gained more confidence after capturing the Fourteenth Texas district Tuesday at a special election, the Republicans are split over their speaker nomination contest. Representatives Tilton of Connecticut and Snell of New York, the outstanding contenders, both are claiming the nomination. (Continued on Page Two)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 27. — (A.P.)—Bert Hinkler, who once held the speed record for a flight from England to Australia, probably was out over the South Atlantic today on his way from Natal to Africa alone.

First word that the flight had started came in an Aero Postal message from Natal that he had taken off there Wednesday for Dakar, Senegal, French West Africa, and had not been heard from since the start.

Captain Hinkler made the American flight in 35 days three years ago, and the mark stood as it until Charles Kingsford-Smith covered the distance in 10 days last year.

The distance in his present flight is more than 10,000 miles. Dakar is at the west end of Cape Verde in the Atlantic.

He pointed out that Italy, "all our strength and all our heart" at the Geneva disarmament conference in February, "is most of American efforts to reduce the dangers of war."

JAPS ATTACK CITY DESPITE CABINET STAND

Premier Had Said He Would Quit If Army Attacked Chinchow; 20 Die At Tientsin

PARIS, Nov. 27. — (A.P.)—The League council, meeting briefly this evening, declined to adopt the Manchurian resolution which has been under discussion several days on the ground it first should receive the endorsement of the Chinese.

An Exchange Telegraph message to London from Tokyo said the city of Chinchow, Manchuria. At Paris a League council committee, drafting a formal Manchurian peace proposal, completed its work today and the council is considering it in private session before submitting it to Japanese and Chinese delegates. It is believed the document hadn't undergone any fundamental change from the form in which it was approved in principle by Ambassador Iwano of the United States.

From Tokyo the Japanese government announced tonight that the Chinese proposal to withdraw troops from Chinchow creating a neutral zone is acceptable. The announcement followed closely a statement by the government spokesman that the Premier Wakatsuki's cabinet would resign if the Japanese army attacked Chinchow. Twenty Chinese were reported killed at Tientsin last night in severe fighting and Japanese reinforcements are reported on the way to relieve the situation.

Young Fascists Of Italy Form Spear- Point For Duce

ROME, Nov. 27. — (A.P.)—With almost two-thirds of a million members enrolled in its first year of existence, the "Young Fascists of Combat" have become the party's spear point of action and a vast reservoir of enthusiasm for Mussolini.

For these black-shirted youths are the same age today that members of the "action squads" were when they made Italy-fascist history in 1921. Then they rode into the industrial towns of the north and fought the Communists in the streets.

Bombs, revolvers and clubs were their weapons and "A noi" to us — was their cry.

Today their bombs and guns are less prominently displayed and their activities are less picturesque. But their organization is stronger and so is their faith in the Duce.

In every community of the country are one or more "squads" which include mounted, motor-cyclists, bicycle, alpine and motor truck groups.

As a military organization they leave something to be desired. Only two of the usual qualifications of a soldier are insisted on. They must learn to obey and to shoot.

Their organization however is not intended to usurp the place of the fascist militia. That is the swordarm of the Duce. The young Fascists' position in the ranks of fascism is more civil, political and educational.

CRYSTAL MOMENT

Once or twice this side of death things can make one hold his breath.

From my boyhood I remember a crystal moment of September.

A wooded island, ring with sounds of church bells in the throats of hounds.

A buck leaped out and took the tide with jewels flowing past each side.

With his high head like a tree, he swam within a yard of me.

I saw the golden drop of light in his eyes turned dark with fright.

I saw the forest's holiness on him like a fierce cazona.

Fear made him lovely past belief, leaf.

My heart was trembling like a leaf.

He leaned toward the land and life with need above him like a knife.

In his wake the hot hounds churned, they stretched their muscles out and yearned.

They cried no more, but swam and thrummed, hunger drove them till they subbed.

Pursued, pursued reached the shore and vanished, I saw nothing more.

So they passed, a pagan such as only gods could witness such.

Life and death upon one tether and running beautiful together.

Another noble experiment, Mary Noble's, in liberty.

Then too, you should be thankful you are not a turkey.

Miami seems to be suffering from city manageritis, it has had three already this year.

It won't be long until most of the football teams will be referring to it as the late lamented season of 1931.

It looks as if the gubernatorial campaign will be mainly between the X-governors, the X standing for the unknown quantity.

New York investigator finds that college girls lag behind other girls in both love and business, in business perhaps, but in old jockey nose ever met Betty Coed?

The Atlanta fire chief says more water and less water will solve the nation's fire problems, but the latter is much more abundant than the former.

Head of Fernandus Tigers Found in California Rocks—Headlines with nothing, we've got some tigers down here too, but they're blind.

Concentration

If he happens to be your friend you will say of him that he has a remarkable power of concentration.

Ability to concentrate on a given problem is one of the greatest assets a personality may have.

Senator Walsh of Montana tells a story about a prominent Mid-Western manufacturer who stands today at the top of his field.

One is inclined to ask how this man can know so much about collar buttons and so little about anything else.

The man in the essay who was to have built a better mousetrap than anyone else could build, didn't undertake to do it simply by working in his spare moments.

The Southern Market

One has only to look over an incomplete list of the major items forming the South's income to be convinced of the importance of this section as a market for the manufactured products of the world.

The income from transportation, other public utilities, professional and commercial lines, in the aggregate forms an enormous additional buying power for supplies and equipment of practically every description.

The South's 47,400 wholesale and 438,700 retail establishments did a gross business in excess of $26,900,000,000 in 1929.

The 46,500 manufacturing establishments listed in the South, according to the last Census, spent $6,626,000,000 for materials, fuel and power.

Railroad expenditures, and expenditures for the operation and expansion of public electric power and gas and oil systems, aggregate more than $1,000,000,000 a year in the South.

More than $500,000,000 is being spent annually by the South on highway maintenance and development.

More than $400,000,000 is spent on public education each year in the South, about one-fifth of which is for new buildings and equipment.

About $1,000,000,000 a year is spent by the South for food and feed, mainly processed products, from other sections of the country.

The 1929 Census showed that the South's manufactured output that year was valued at more than $11,700,000,000.

Each year, some 4000 mines and quarries of the South produce in the aggregate more than $1,000,000,000 of new wealth.

In normal times the South's 3,400,000 farms produce annually more than $3,000,000,000 of new wealth from the soil.

JAPS ATTACK CITY DESPITE CABINET STAND

(Continued from Page One) cided this morning it was necessary to rush reinforcements to Tientsin, China, and the cabinet went into extraordinary session to pass the decision.

Information received by the war office and from other sources indicated heavy fighting was going on at Tientsin.

The Rengo (Japanese) news agency received a dispatch saying that after the Chinese had attacked the Japanese concession they had laid down a bombardment on the Italian concession, and the Italian garrison was responding.

The Rengo correspondent declared the Japanese concession was being raked by fire from machine guns and rifles together with some artillery shells.

The war office charged the Chinese had started the attack. Commanding Officer Kashi, in charge of the Tientsin garrison, reported the Japanese violated the truce of November 15 by launching an assault on the Japanese garrison exercised its right of self-defense, affording protection to the Japanese residents in the settlement," Kashi said in a message to the war office.

Tokyo was greatly stirred by news of the Tientsin fighting. It came, it was said in official circles, after hope was greatest that a solution of the Manchurian question had been found.

PEIPING, Nov. 27.—(A.P.)—Japanese troops were in action at Tientsin again yesterday evening when gunner reappeared near the foreign concessions.

HEAD OF SOVIET FOREIGN AFFAIRS IMITATES BRITISH

Litvinoff Has Communitistic Ideology But Manners Of English

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—(A.P.)—The head of soviet Russia's foreign affairs bureau is known among his colleagues as a man with communitistic ideology but English manners.

Before the bolshevik revolution Maxim Litvinoff lived for many years in England, where he absorbed Anglo-Saxon habits which are apparent in his daily life.

His wife is a vivacious English woman with a talent for writing detective stories. His two sons are being educated by a British tutor, except that their father sees personally to their schooling in communism and politics.

English is the language in his house, one of the most imposing in Moscow, and even the servants must speak that tongue.

Moreover the foreign minister orders his days by a set schedule, arriving at his office at a regular hour, leaving on the dot and spending most of his leisure hours back in his family circle.

His colleagues in the communist party and government make allowances for these tastes, explaining that a man dealing with foreigners ought to adopt their speech, manners and customs.

The son of a bourgeois family, Litvinoff was one of the founders of the communist party. He was the first soviet ambassador to London, where he figured in an episode that started his reputation of being one of the stormy petrels of European diplomacy.

When he had been at his post 10 months, Lenin asked him to return to Russia. But just at that time the soviet government had refused to permit a Mr. Urquhart, a British concessionaire, to leave Russia. In retaliation the British government withheld an exit visa for Litvinoff, virtually holding the ambassador as a hostage.

Prolonged negotiations and the intervention of a third government finally resulted in an exchange of the two men.

Upon his return Litvinoff was made first assistant to the G. V. Tchitcherin, then commissar of foreign affairs. When his chief resigned because of ill health in 1930, Litvinoff was promoted to the post, a reward for service to the revolutionary cause which began in 1908.

A short, sturdily built man, whose 55 years are no burden to him, Litvinoff at his desk might be taken for an American or European business man. He affects the habiliments of blond Stork, wears neither the customary Russian beard nor mustache and looks at his callers through American made spectacles.

He is better known abroad than at home, for his duties chain him to the capital, and he has had little opportunity to travel within the wide confines of his country.

A round-about way, and doubtless originated before Japan accepted the League of Nations' plan for settlement of the Manchurian dispute. The League proposal calls first of all for Japanese evacuation of Manchuria, and Japanese troops yesterday began withdrawing from Tientsin, capital of the northern province.

The Chinese legation in said Chang Hsueh-Liang had reported to Nanking that General Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, had returned to Tokyo last week and received the emperor's approval to dispatch more troops to complete the occupation of Manchuria.

Tom Mix Holds His Own In Game Fight Against Sickness

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 22. (A.P.)—A cheering report of improvement, slight but noticeable, in the condition of Tom Mix, star of the screen and circus, came yesterday from the hospital where the famous cowboy has recuperated to all eyes.

An attending physician said today that he had been interested to relieve the pressure and that "some improvement resulted." However, the three surgeons at the hospital reported Mix yet had to pass the crisis, which, they believed, would come Friday night or Saturday morning.

A bulletin issued shortly after 11 P. M. read:

"Taking into consideration the pain, temperature, respiration and other changes, we feel that Mr. Mix is still a most dangerously ill patient."

Although all visitors have been denied, news came to the hospital in early evening and through the gates of the hospital that the patient was still in a most dangerous condition.

The physician said Mix was in a semi-conscious condition. His fall at Monday night, his leg broken but it was not broken before an emergency operation was performed. Late Tuesday pneumonia set in and twice a special serum was brought here by airplane from San Francisco to combat the spread of the germ.

TWOMEN HELD FOR DEATH OF W. G. MCINTYRE

who are prepared to connect them with the death of McIntyre, who is the father-in-law of O'Leary. According to several bits of evidence which Sheriff McClelland had gathered today the story of the killing may be related as follows: Mr. McIntyre left his fishing camp near Osteen at about 7:30 o'clock Wednesday and went down the river to the Grassy Point camp of his son-in-law. At about 7:30 he arrived there, and engaged in a conversation relating to a $2,500 debt. A dispute arose, the sheriff said, which resulted in McIntyre's death.

The shot, fired from a distance of about 20 feet, entered Mr. McIntyre's chest. Witnesses said he fell to the ground into a pile of wooden building chips. Later the body was placed in the vault in which it was found. The pile of chips were collected, burned, and all evidence of blood on the ground and chips were covered with sand. A clear trail leads from the spot Mr. McIntyre fell to the point where the boat was hidden, Sheriff McClelland said.

Sheriff McClelland said that O'Leary and Sharp and their families came to Sanford later that morning, returned home and pulled in a boat of fish from nets they maintain near their camp, and that they went hunting yesterday.

Mr. McIntyre was buried this afternoon in Lakeside Cemetery. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas O'Leary, a native of Kentucky, he had resided in this section for the past 15 years.

Jury Hearing Case Of Pantages In Midst Of Deadlock

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22. (A.P.)—A number of the jury considering the charge of criminal attack made against Alvin Karpis, unshakable impervious, indicated to the court yesterday that the jurors were deadlocked on the question of the credibility of witnesses.

Shortly after the jurors went to their chambers they asked permission to return to court and to fresh their memories on the testimony of certain witnesses. The court consented.

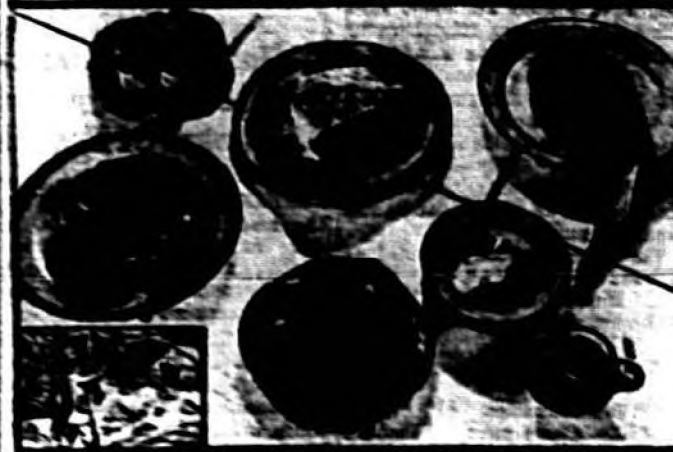

Asked what testimony they wished to hear, Sheriff J. McLaughlin agreed and said: "All we really want is to have read the evidence surrounding the testimony of proceeding and the evidence of proceeding the testimony of the defendant."

In the three hours that followed, a court reporter read to the jurors testimony bearing on these points. The jurors received the case Tuesday night at 6 o'clock.

Pantages was accused of attacking Eunice Pringle, youthful dancer, when she went to his office in an effort to sell an art. The alleged attack occurred on Aug. 3, 1933, the first trial. Pringle was convicted but obtained a retrial from the state supreme court, which declared the trial court had erred in prohibiting testimony concerning Miss Pringle's character.

The state millionaire claimed the case was a sham, resulting from his refusal to purchase the art.

In cold winter days, a hot pudding is a "whale" of an appetizer, which stands up and cheers in the sight of a plate of steaming good, topped by a good old-fashioned pudding. But the puddings are "old-fashioned" only in the sense that they bear the name of the huge puddings of old which our good Saxon forefathers brought up to their shores in track, and back. How they boiled in their wooden waggons, those puddings—and how thoroughly indispensable they were!

Let us in a romantic haze see the old customs and recipes associated with the making of puddings. Today's puddings, whether baked, boiled, chilled or frozen, have lost none of their old-time flavor, but are cooked with better powder to make them light and elastic, and carry a subtle blending of fine ingredients, flavors and scents. A modern "old-fashioned" pudding is the Flanation Pudding.

KILLING STRAY CATS WILL HELP PROTECT GAME AND SONG BIRDS

Kill the stray cat and help protect game and songbirds is the suggestion of Carlyle Carr of the U. S. Biological Survey and the Florida Agricultural Extension Service. He also urges city residents who have housecats they wish to get rid of to kill them or have them killed, rather than turn them loose in the country, where they become a menace to birds.

"J. M. Loughborough, secretary of the International Cat Society, estimates that there are 1,500,000 cats in Florida, of which 1,000,000 are strays and without homes," says Mr. Carr. "One cannot travel at night in any section of the state without observing them roaming the country where they are foraging for a livelihood.

"It is estimated that these cats destroy as many quail each year as are shot by hunters. They are a serious menace to ground-nesting song and game birds, which are absolutely helpless against them at night.

Mr. Carr urges the destruction, particularly by hunters, of stray cats already in existence, and the prevention of straying by tame cats.

"Most of these cats are made homeless when they are half grown kittens," he says. "Usually city people, not knowing they are jeopardizing the bird life of the state, dispose of kittens by dumping them to shift for themselves on the outskirts of a city or in the country. They soon learn the bird killing habit. It is better to dispose of surplus kittens by drowning, preferably before their eyes are open. No doubt conservation organizations, such as the Isaac Walton League, the animal rescue league, the local pound, or any hunter would be glad to assist in disposing of the animals humanely, instead of forcing them to prey on the valuable bird life of the state or perish."

from WRUF.

This pest, which is likely to mince over our foodstuff, eat our stored grains, spread diseases, startle fires, and do much other damage, is highly migratory, he explained. Thus a farmer may poison all the rats on his place and in a short while have plenty of rats from nearby farms. This problem is, therefore, one that can best be controlled by all the individuals over a large area poisoning at the same time.

Red squill is a powder, recently developed by the U. S. Biological Survey which is deadly to rats but harmless to domestic animals. Thus, it can be used with safety about the poultry plant and barns frequented by animals. It may also be used at the city dump yards without danger to dogs and cats.

As another good method of killing rats he suggested pumping calcium cyanide dust into the burrows or other places in which the rats hide. This dust when exposed to the air generates an extremely poisonous gas. It should not be used inside the buildings, but intelligent persons can use it out-of-doors with safety and effectiveness.

The killing of rats alone will never solve the problem, he asserted. The conditions responsible for the rats must be removed. Rats require food and shelter, and where these are lacking they cannot persist. Rat-proof buildings and destroying all garbage and trash about the place are two suggestions that will aid in keeping rats off the premises.

should be expected but "we for our part, will be satisfied if the conference succeeds in stopping the competition of armaments and in making a first start toward reduction."

He referred to the long standing naval differences between France and Italy, saying he is "still waiting and hoping for a final settlement." This, he indicated, must be based on Italy's demand for theoretical parity, but at the lowest possible level.

Grandi gave three points as the guideposts of Italian policy along the disarmament road "towards progress." They were:

1. Nations signing the peace treaties or the League covenant made a "solemn pledge" to disarm, definitely implied in the preliminary disarmament of the vanquished powers.

2. Security for a nation is possible only through disarmament and arbitration. Security through military strength would mean a nation must be as strong as all others combined.

3. Only by disarmament can there be quieted the widespread disquietude as to world peace, especially in Europe.

The coming disarmament conference was described by the foreign minister as "a great test in which the nations of the world and

It appeared yesterday that the two-day gathering of state-wide democracy would tax the housing and feeding facilities of this city to the limit.
