...the latter figure would be reduced, should the government find it necessary to pay more than 50 cents an ounce for the bulk of silver it purchases, and increased if the silver equivalent of the dollar were raised above its present $1.35 an ounce level.

The "marginage" is the difference between purchase price and the statutory value of the silver. As currency is based against the total this profit is credited to the general receipts of the government.

Secretary Morgenthau's statement that in working at the cost of the New Deal the increase in the Treasury's cash balance, the gold profit, and the rise in value of assets of government-financed agencies should be deducted from the rise in the national debt received since study.

His inference that the cost of the New Deal was but a little more than half a billion dollars promised to become the target of some political sharpshooting. Republicans snarled and statements will follow.

The only public assertion of the subject came from Henry H. Curran, director of the National Economy League. He said Mr. Morgenthau had "done a great service in making clear some of the aspects of the financial Chinese puzzle into which the fiscal affairs of the federal government have developed in the eyes of the ordinary observer."

He called for a reduction in government expenditures and a balanced budget at the earliest possible time if a perilous situation is to be avoided.

"The present danger lies in the difficulty of radically reducing the present rate of government expenditures," he said. "There will have to be deep cuts in many of the alphabetical agencies which spend the most emergency money. I know a bit about government and I know that nobody cuts just for the fun of it. They have to be told to do it and the American people must tell them."

dirty work in Austria," Winkler said.

"The first 'Judea money' given by Mussolini to von Starhemberg was split at the time with the notorious German Major Pabst, (once Heimwehr leader who was expelled Austria in 1930) von Starhemberg also received from Chancellor Schusner, of Austria, for a period of two years $5,000 monthly from a fund put up by Austrian bankers to fight Communism.

"Von Starhemberg also drew large sums from funds contributed to Dollfus, the late Chancellor, by Viennese Jews and the Vatican, and he used it to maintain Heimwehr troops.

"Step by step Italy has secured ever-increasing control of Austria through von Starhemberg, Dollfus was brought under the hypnotic influence of Mussolini.

"For instance, take the case of 50,000 Hitlerberg rifles sent to Austria by Italy in 1933 which excited the whole of Europe.

"The then Austrian Minister of Defense Karl Vaugin wanted to give these rifles to the Austrian army. Mussolini, however, decided to give them to von Starhemberg.

Vaugin resigned in disgust. "I would not stand for such foreign dictation so I resigned also."

"Dispatches to America at the time said Winkler were dropped when Dollfus reorganized the cabinet along Fascist lines. Winkler was a member of the Democratic Agrarian party and was opposed by Fascists and Nazis alike."

tribunal.

The union says "Reactionary" employers have "flouted the economic and humane provisions" of NIRA.

The employers reply that they have observed the law; that the NRA code has boosted labor costs; that any more wage boosts or shortening of hours is impossible to carry; that raw materials have jumped 100 percent; that the demand for cotton goods has fallen off; and that the strike will "put a premium on force and violence as instruments of lawmaking" in amending codes.

A temporary paralysis of the nation's cotton textile industry became inevitable last night when efforts to avert a general strike collapsed.

Textile manufacturers spurned a federal offer to attend a peace meeting here with labor leaders. A union strike committee at once prepared to dispatch before noon today formal orders for a walkout of nearly half a million workers.

Work in the cotton textile mills probably will cease Friday night. The strike call likely will be for next Tuesday morning, the first working day after the Labor Day week-end.

Hints of violence increased, particularly in the South. A company of National Guardsmen was ordered to duty at the Litchfield mill in Seneca, S. C., where a strike has been in progress.

"We are prepared for planned violence," said Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee. Gorman declared every precaution would be taken to conduct an orderly strike, but asserted:

"We are prepared for trickery and violence. We have reports which indicate planned violence. I refer to reports from our representatives about the stocking of arms and tear gas. Private detectives also are hovering over the field like vultures."

An upheaval also was threatened in another great industry.

The "Synchrotax"

The State of California is not only preparing to experiment with the luxury of Socialism under the guiding genius of Upton Sinclair, but strangely enough at the same time is considering a proposal to abolish all forms of taxation save one. This one tax, upon which the people will vote in November, is known as the "synchrotax" and has already been endorsed by over half a million voters who placed their signatures on petitions asking for the necessary constitutional amendment.

Now the "synchrotax," as described in a recent editorial in the Tampa Times, is a percentage tax on the gross income of every man and woman in California. The rate of taxation, as suggested at the present time, is two percent, but it is presumed that if the tax collections should exceed expectations the rate could be lowered and if they were not sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of city, county, and state governments, it could be increased.

The Times explains that a man with an income of $200 a month would under this plan pay a tax of $4 a month and would not be bothered with any other taxes in the various local taxing units. He would be relieved of all taxes on any real estate he might own. He would not have to pay any gasoline taxes, or property tax on his automobile. Further, the sales tax, which is now being tried in California and which is said to be rather unpopular there, would be abolished.

We presume, further, that if a man had an income of $100,000 a year, he would have to pay $2,000 a year; and if he had an income of only $1,000 a year, he would have to pay a tax of $20. Those with incomes in between these two figures would be taxed proportionately, $100 on a $5,000 income; $500 on a $25,000 income and so on. Only those with no incomes at all, such as poverty-stricken people, and the unemployed, would escape taxation.

The plan is hailed by its proponents as something akin to the mellenium. It is said that taxes on real estate would be reduced by at least 90 percent, and that consequently real estate values would be vastly enhanced. Closed banks would be re-opened and rehabilitated through the increased value of the real estate and mortgage holdings, and new construction would be undertaken putting thousands to work. It is further boasted that motorists would save over $40,000,000 a year in gasoline and automobile taxes.

But if motorists and real estate owners are going to save such a huge sum on their annual tax bill, it is only reasonable to assume that the savings will have to be made up somewhere else, as it is not contemplated that the costs of government shall be reduced. If one examines the groups which the "synchrotax" proposes to cover, it can easily be seen where this deficiency will be recouped.

Those with incomes of $1,000 a year would have to pay a tax of $20. Now they pay no tax at all. Those with incomes of less than $1,000 a year would also have to pay a 2 percent tax. Now they pay nothing at all. The vast majority of the people of California have incomes of less than $1,000 a year, just as they do in every other state in the union. Hence the "synchrotax" would make up on the small incomes of the poor what it loses on the large incomes of the rich.

Those with incomes of $5,000 and over, even those we presume with incomes of $100,000 a year, would have to pay a tax of only 2 percent, the same rate as that paid by the very poor. Thus a man with an income of $1,000,000 a year would pay a tax of only $20,000. Obviously this would be a great saving to him. No matter from what form of wealth his present income is derived, he is probably paying considerably better than $100,000 a year in taxes to the city, county, and state governments. It is not unlikely that he is paying more than half of his present income in taxes.

It plainly is not fair to tax the gross income of the little fellow on the same basis as the very rich. Further it is not fair to tax the "gross" income at all. It is the "net" income which should be taxed. It is quite conceivable that one man might have a gross income of $20,000 a year, paying under the "synchrotax" system a tax of $400, and yet have a net income, which is the only part he can use for his living expenses and the enjoyment of life, of only $1,000 a year, simply because he has to put the other $19,000 a year back into his business, which is losing money, and which must continue to operate, unless unemployment is going to be increased.

While another man who has a gross income of $10,000 a year, would pay a tax of only $200, but because he has no losses or other "deducts," his gross income may be his net income and he would have $10,000 a year for the enjoyment of life as compared with the $1,000 of the other man who has to pay twice as big a tax.

Tuberculosis Sanatoria

According to Dr. M. Jay Filipe, chairman of the tuberculosis committee of the Florida Medical Association, a number of good sanatoria, well located throughout the state, is one of the things most needed in Florida's public health program. "The need for such institutions is paramount," Dr. Filipe declared in outlining a plan for five district sanatoria which have been recently approved by the Florida Advisory and Planning Board of the FEPA.

A sanatorium should be equipped to care for all types of tuberculous patients in Dr. Filipe's opinion. It should include the patient in the last stages of the disease who is succumbing to the germ to children who are easily susceptible and who form the next generation of tuberculous patients and should also be prepared to treat the patient with the early case who has an opportunity of recovery.

"With treatment and education, these early cases may become assets to the community," he pointed out. "They are in a position to train their families and friends in the proper care in order to avoid this disease. In addition to these purposes, the tuberculous sanatorium is a weapon from which a disseminated information on tuberculosis to physicians, nurses and others in the community. It offers possibilities for social and medical research and unbiased study for the prevention and control of this most insidious of maladies."

BY ROOSEVELT

No One Shall Go Hungry
Under Heavy Attack

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The "very unfortunate official commitment, 'no one shall go hungry in this country,'" was attacked as one of the causes of the proposed textile strike, in a statement recently from John H. Edgerton, president of the Southern Textile Industrial Council.

Referring to the promise that no one should go hungry, Edgerton said that "if it should be authoritatively announced that the government of the United States is not going to finance the strike by supplying assistance to the strikers, it will probably not last for more than one week."

"Except for two things," the statement asserted, "this strike would never be considered." Edgerton said one was the "one-sided, wholly partisan, unjust" Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act, and the other was the "commonly accepted, blanket assurance that 'nobody shall go hungry.'"

He declared that "even God almighty, infinite in love, mercy and justice, the eternal champion of all 'human relief' and the recognized source in this country of everything good, never promised anybody that he should not suffer from hunger."

The deity, Edgerton continued, "warned us that 'whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.'"

"He did not say that man can now eliminate violence, distrust and hatred and from this sowing reap eternally higher wages, shorter hours and the privilege of running the other fellow's business," the statement said.

"It is a small, blind and bull-headed group of labor leaders who represent in their authority less than ten percent of the wage-earning masses, yet who are endeavoring to force their unwelcome and selfish will upon the peace-loving majority in most all of the plants and establishments in this country," the statement added.

out a slash in existing wages. Employers generally declined to follow the suggestion.

Presidential action probably will be employed under the new plan, as was done in cutting work hours in the cotton garment industry from 40 to 36. Employers have defied this order and a test is pending.

Green in his unemployment statement yesterday directly challenged Donald Richberg's summary of the unemployment situation as incomplete.

The figures the Emergency Council chief handed President Roosevelt this week—a survey of the New Deal's results so far—Green called correct as far as they went.

"Mr. Richberg pointed out a few days ago," Green said, "that 2,300,000 persons had gone back to work from June, 1933, to June, 1934. Our figures correspond exactly with his and show the same number returning to their jobs. For this re-employment we are grateful indeed."

"Mr. Richberg did not, however, discuss the present unemployment problem, or suggest methods for putting the unemployed to work. Two important facts should be considered in reviewing the achievements of NRA in re-employment:

"First, practically all of those who went back to work were re-employed between June and October, 1933; there have been no significant employment gains since. From June to October 1933, 2,300,000 were re-employed; from October to June, 1934, only 100,000.

"Secondly, there is a constant growth in the population seeking gainful work, because the number of young people coming of age for work is larger than the number leaving their jobs because of old age or death.

"This increase in gainful workers according to our estimates, approximates 440,000 a year. When this group is accounted for, we find that although 2,300,000 went back to work from June, 1933, to June, 1934, the decrease in unemployment was less than 1,900,000."

Green said he felt that "unless the fall season puts these men and women to work again, we shall find ourselves with a worse problem of unemployment this winter than we had last year."

"We cannot indefinitely support one-sixth of our population on money borrowed against future taxes," he said. "Ordinary businessmen have no solution to offer. The situation is a challenge to the government to give us a plan which will finish the task so well begun last summer and put the rest of the unemployed to work."

Green figured that while 100,000 persons were re-employed from last October to June, the increase in those seeking work was about 300,000.

"We cannot ignore the significance of these figures," he said. "They show that we have made no headway whatever this year in putting the unemployed back to work in industry. Unless industry re-employs a substantial number this fall, we shall even be losing ground."

Green praised the federation's unemployment figures, recently challenged by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as too high by 3,000,000.

"Our figures correspond closely with those of the Cleveland Trust Company, with several unpublished estimates compiled by the most competent authorities, and with those just published by Mr. Richberg," he said.

Gatchel Contest To End Tomorrow Night

For nearly two months contestants of Forrest Gatchel's Grocery have been estimating the number of beans in a jar on display in the store's window and now the management, believing that nearly all persons who are interested in the contest have made their guesses, has decided to bring the event to a close tomorrow night.

All persons who have not guessed the number of beans in the jar are urged to do so by tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock, when the contest officially closes.

O. P. Herndon, Judge S. A. E. Wilkinson, and a representative of The Sanford Herald have been appointed to count the beans Saturday night. The winners will receive either a wagon or scooter.

Howell Predicts
Key's Re-Election
As Atlanta Mayor

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Re-election of Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, was predicted Tuesday by Clark Howell, chairman of the new American aviation commission and publisher of the Atlanta Constitution.

Howell predicted Key's re-election because of his courageous stand against prohibition.

"Atlanta people admire a man who is willing to uphold his personal beliefs regardless of opposition," said Howell. "Mayor Key voted the dry ticket. He saw the damage wrought by prohibition, so he sprang to modification. He believes in admitting and remedy-

Economic Situation
In Europe Held As Greatly Improved

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP)—A generally improved economic situation in Europe but one still "critical" in Germany was reported to President Roosevelt Tuesday by Alfred J. Pearson, Drake University economist who has just Returned from abroad.

Mr. Pearson, who is a former minister to Ireland, interviewed Adolf Hitler as "sincere." He said the German leader has a "critical industrial situation which probably will reach a crisis next spring."

Mr. Roosevelt listened intently to Pearson's report before sitting down to luncheon with Governor Lehman.

Pearson said Sweden was in the best condition of any European nation and was making a success of planned economy.

"France is going along quietly and improving," he continued. "I was anti-Communist but I must say that Russia has made big strides forward."

The President offered no comment on the European report.

The "lost world" of southern Venezuela is being explored by a scientific expedition.

Pro Football Faces Big Test In Tilt With College Heroes In Chicago Tonight

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Professional football will face the greatest challenge ever witnessed by college football players as the Chicago Bears tonight when the Chicago Bears meet with the Chicago All-Stars of 1933 under the lights before a throng of 75,000 spectators.

The game will be the first preview of the 1934 season. The professional football season will be devoted to clarity.

During the last few years, the professional have consistently faced back the college forces to convince fans that the professional brand of play is the stronger of the two. Defeat for the Bears, champions of the National Professional Football League, tonight would give the college team a big boost and a big talking point in their favor.

The tilt-off is scheduled for 8:00 P. M. If it rains this afternoon or in the evening, however, the game will be postponed until Saturday night.

A picked squad of 36 college players, selected in a nation-wide

Annual Citrus Inspection To Start Saturday

will continue until Nov. 2, will be changed down on business changes and language, which do not meet the state's marketing plan, to prevent their shipment.

Shipments of oranges and lemons which have been treated with arsenic sprays also will be prohibited, but this will not be extended to grapefruit, the department said.

An injunction granted by Judge H. C. Peterson of the Palm county circuit court restrained the combination of agriculture or its agents from interfering with shipment of grapefruit from trees sprayed with arsenic.

Because of this injunction, during the past citrus season, Commissioner Hays announced the Department of Agriculture would not enforce the state's anti-arsenic law against grapefruit from other sections not included in the injunction. His office yesterday said the same policy would be followed this season.

"My hands are tied by the court injunction in the Palm county court, and there is nothing I can do about the arsenic-sprayed grapefruit," Commissioner Hays said last week.

A temporary injunction which Judge Peterson granted was obtained by the growers' court in an evenly-divided opinion. A majority of the court was necessary to overturn it.

After this decision by the supreme court, the Palm county circuit court granted a motion to make the injunction permanent.

This order has been appealed to the supreme court and will be awaiting decision.

The inspection will extend approximately 200 miles when the citrus shipments reach a peak, said S. Taylor, supervising inspector.

Taylor said some shipments from this year's crop already are under way from the lower peninsula.

A state law requiring the citrus inspection service provided for its enforcement from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1 of each year.

A bumper crop of citrus has been forecast for this year. In 1933, citrus growers placed the crop at $4,000,000 worth of oranges, $2,000,000 worth of grapefruit and $1,000,000 worth of lemons.

Veterans' Aide Is Visitor At Local Employment Office

Gen. E. England, Veterans' Representative of the U. S. Employment Service for the State of Florida, visited Sanford and the local National Employment office at 200 Magnolia Avenue yesterday in the interest of the Veterans' placement with private employers as well as in local work projects.

Veterans' registration at the local Employment office total 250 active and inactive, white and colored, and Mr. England had a good word for the work being done by this office in having been able to place 100 or over 20 percent of the total Veterans' registration, in regular and improved private employment during the past 12 months.

The high point was reached last January when employment was found for 25 veterans and again in June with the placement of 14.

As the best available figures show a total of 1435 Veterans' registered at U. S. E. S. office in Florida, and that of this number over 5,700 or 30 percent were listed as employed, it is seen that the local office is keeping step with placements over the state as a whole. Mr. England expressed the hope that local employers would continue to call on the Employment office here for employment information or the opportunity presented and that improved labor conditions would mean about a greater number of the veterans still remaining unemployed in this section.

Total Of New Deal Laws Exceeds All Since Revolution

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—New Deal laws in Washington have put out more legislation in one year than previously had gone into the federal statute book since the Revolutionary War, the American Bar Association's committee on administrative law points out in a report to be submitted to the 50th-anniversary annual convention of the association in Milwaukee next week.

A review of the committee findings was made public by William E. Miller, Chicago, lawyer and chairman of the committee's committee on publicity. The report objects to the sheer bulk of the laws put in force since President Roosevelt took office, and they object more specifically to the "mass of provisions leaving the effect of law" which President Roosevelt has been empowered to make.

"Under these circumstances," the committee reported, referring to the large mass of regulations, executive orders and new legislation, "even lawyers are unable to ascertain the law applicable in a given state of facts, and the professional that every citizen knows that law becomes, to him it will be, more than void."

Great doubt is expressed in the report as to the wisdom of authorizing the President of "will to create and administer administrative agencies, and attention is called to the fact that under Title No. 1 of the N. E. A. when thirteen agencies and four corporations already have been created by executive order.

The mass of laws and executive orders put into effect during the year led the committee to express the opinion that the judicial branch of the federal government "is being rapidly and actively undermined."

"On committee expresses apprehension," the report states, "that federal administrative agencies' exercising judicial in combination with legislative and executive powers are substituting a hybrid in which the rights of individuals, while preserved in form, may easily be nullified in practice."

It is estimated that one federal administrative agency alone, the N. E. A., has been responsible for 20,000 or more pages of regulations, supposedly having the effect of law, in the past year, a total which all of the other agencies of the federal government are in effect.

"Administrative tribunals with judicial powers are courts in fact," the report stated in discussing the "proceedings" of the President. "Without adequate judicial review of their decisions they are, potentially at least, courts controlled by the executive or by the legislature."

Florida GARDEN TRUCK for AMERICA'S TABLE

Florida's fresh fruits have produced garden truck crops averaging $200,000,000 in value for the past five years. When more people realize the importance of winter vegetable production in Florida, and marketing methods are perfected, thousands of new life acres will pay a profitable return.

Florida ships ten per cent of all fresh fruit and vegetables of the United States from between 200,000 acres—yet this state's total land area is 21,000,000 acres, of which 1,000,000 acres are cultivated for farm purposes.

Vegetable growing, winter, properly handled, being sold and marketed Federal agents credit Palm Beach county with over $1,000,000 worth of crop beans in a single season, Graham county with $2,500,000 worth of celery and Dale county with tomatoes valued at $1,000,000.

Florida leads the nation in the production of celery, cucumbers, snap beans, eggplant, sweet corn, peppers and high potatoes.

Florida has demonstrated that she has the climate, the soil, the facilities, the leadership in details of agricultural crop production. Our resources must be developed—by bringing more people here, increasing our summer vacation and college vacation volume of trade. We need the business... and we can get it by selling the world on our ability to serve and to produce. A unified national advertising campaign will tell our story, convincingly, to a hundred million people who have never seen Florida. Let's advertise — by MERCH.

The All Florida Committee is a non-profit organization for the promotion of Florida's winter vegetable production. It is a national organization with headquarters in Florida. Its members are the growers of Florida winter vegetables.
