

THE LINDS: STEPHEN AND JACKIE WITH 'BABY'

Lind: Veteran Of World Travel

Stephen Lind, the son of a military family, happened to be born in Topeka, Kan., because his mother was there briefly awaiting their transfer to Tampa. When only three weeks old, his parents moved to Florida and he hasn't been back to Kansas since.

The family went around the world as Lind's father, an officer on General Douglas MacArthur's staff, was transferred from place to place.

As the Korean War broke out, the Linds were one of the few American families who stayed in Japan. "Everyone was afraid of the Chinese hordes invading Japan," Lind said. "When my mother bundled my brother and me up to go to Japan, other American military families were coming back to the states."

Lind, who with his brother attended elementary school on the military base in Japan, remembers as a child the bomb craters in the streets of Tokyo left from World War II.

During the Vietnam War, he served a tour of duty himself in the military and while on a rest-and-recuperation leave in Japan was impressed with the tremendous masses of humanity on the streets. "The Japanese men would sooner be turned out in their underwear as he seen without a three-piece suit," he said.

— THE RACE —

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A three-man race will appear on the Winter Springs ballot Dec. 7, for Seat 1 on the city council, currently held by Donald Sines. The winner will be determined by plurality — the highest number of votes. A majority is not necessary. The only way a runoff would be held is if two candidates received an identical number of votes.

Challenging Sines, 49, who was appointed to the city council in July to fill an unexpired term, are Rev. Robert Clark, 41, and Stephen Lind, 32.

The man elected to seat 1 two years ago, Irwin Hunter, resigned earlier this year to accept a job in Atlanta. Former Councilman John Booth, appointed to the vacancy, resigned two weeks later, and then Sines was appointed.

Sines and Lind are both residents of the Tuscuwilla area, Lind at 51 Partridge Circle and Sines at 1304 Deer Run. Rev. Clark, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Winter Springs, lives at 608 Murphy Rd.

The city council has designated two polling places for the election. The first, which includes those city voters residing in precincts 13 and 24, is the firehouse at 103 M. N. Moss Road; the second is at the firehouse at Tuscuwilla for those city voters residing in precinct 50.

Poll officials at the Moss Road firehouse are: Helen Green, clerk; Louise Owens, Norma Lang and Ruth Layo while the officials at the Tuscuwilla polling place are: Mrs. Patricia Lombardy, clerk; Mrs. Marge Williams, Mrs. Mary Williams and Mrs. Reet Elliott.

Sines: A Mixture Of Army, Campus

Donald Sines' 20-year career in the military was interrupted between World War II and the Vietnam war briefly with his college education at Ohio University.

He received his degree in political science after only two years and four months, paying his expenses and supporting his family with assistance from the G.I. Bill and part-time work as a bartender.

While pursuing his higher education, there was not a single semester in which he took fewer than 21 credits of study and his grade average for the period was one-tenth of a point below a B.

Sines was born in Pt. Pleasant, Ohio.

He and his wife, Sheila, have two children, John Edward, a lay minister in the Baptist Church in Hampton, Va., married and the father of a girl, Abigail; and a daughter, Connie Sue, married recently and residing in Bergen, N.J.

The younger Sines devote a great deal of time to working with girls at a drug rehabilitation center.

Mrs. Sines' mother, Mary Long, well-known at the Tuscuwilla golf course, makes her home with the Sines family in Tuscuwilla.

Sines completed his service with the military 11 years ago in Hampton, Va., then moving to Florida. He served three years as an enlisted man before separating from the service following World War II and reenlisting after receiving his college degree. During his tours of duty, he served in Morocco twice and is a veteran of Vietnam.

Separating from the military with the rank of major, Sines said service life provides a good life and many interesting experiences.

He is seven years into a new career as a financial representative of the Burroughs Corp. to banks and savings and loan institutions in Orange and Volusia counties. In Winter Springs, Sines has

THE CLARKS: ROBERT, ROBBY AND NEDDA

Clark: Sports Keep Him Busy

Rev. Robert Clark is interested in a number of sports activities and hobbies, including soccer, guns, animals of all descriptions — particularly horses and dogs. He enjoys bowling, golf and swimming.

A resident of Winter Springs for nearly two years, he was born in Pontiac, Mich. He is a graduate of Bob Jones Academy in Greenville, S.C., and attended Bob Jones University and Mid-Western Baptist College in Michigan. He was ordained a Baptist minister and is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Winter Springs, an independent church.

Active in sports in college, he played soccer in a small college league. The church located at Hays and Bahama is in its first phase of construction and facing Bahama Road. Future construction plans include a day-care center and a Christian school.

If he had not received a calling to the ministry, he would have liked to become an attorney, Clark said, adding that in college he took political science and has long been interested in the political process.

It is not unheard of for a minister to run for public office or to be involved in public affairs, Rev. Clark said, noting that John Witherspoon, who signed the Declaration of Independence, was a Presbyterian minister. He and his wife of nine years, Nedda, expecting the couple's second child, met in Indianapolis, when Clark was associate pastor of a church. Their only son, Robby, 7, is a student at the Altamonte Christian School.

Mrs. Clark is a beautician. When Clark came to the Orlando area from Knoxville where he had been an associate pastor, he became an associate at a large Orlando church and then pastor of the Beuena Vista Baptist Temple.

The Baptist Church in Winter Springs currently has 16 families as members. He had

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL. For Friday, November 26, 1976. ARIES (March 21-April 19) An excellent day to discuss ideas, but keep it on a high plane. Light socializing or an attempt to push romance will fail on its face. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Get into that flat project or clean out the garage today, but do it on your own. Don't expect help from the family. You'll be better off without it. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In any mental endeavors today, let the other person hold the reins. Though you feel lucky, you tend to strain too hard for achievement. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Put your plans for projects down on paper, but hold off buying materials to carry them out. It's a bad day to shop for bargains. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's a good day for affairs of the heart or social get-togethers, as long as you don't insist on being the top banana. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Concentrate on togetherness in the family today and let others in the circle have their say. Being a lender will only lead to frustration. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

WIN AT BRIDGE

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY. Obviously, Mr. Haddad thought he had a little more than his two-heart bid had indicated. Hence, his jump to six hearts over four notrump. This put matters squarely up to Mr. Wester. He decided that his partner, who was bidding without the ace of hearts, had the rest of the high cards in hearts plus both missing aces. So, Mr. Wester went to seven. He selected hearts for the final contract because he assumed that his partner held a hundred honors. In 1929 honors were counted in duplicate bidding so that seven hearts bid and made counted 210 notrump would only have counted 245. Remember, in 1929 notrump scored at 35 points a trick.

Ask the Jacobys. A California reader wants to know the correct response to partner's one-clove opening bid with: A K X X X Q J K X X X. The correct response is one heart. Your hand also qualifies for two notrump, but it is far better not to conceal your good four-card suit. You probably will wind up in notrump in any event. (Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox. The first contract tournament of the American Bridge League was held in Chicago in November, 1929. It was won by the Chicago team of Nils Wester, Louis Haddad, Robert Halpin and Max Cohen. Here is one of the hands that contributed to their victory, as described by Mr. Wester who sat North. The bidding included one forcing bid — Mr. Wester's four notrump. In accordance with their system, a jump to four notrump forced to a slam and showed general strength. Here is Mr. Wester's analysis of the bidding. Haddad's opening bid of two hearts showed a good heart suit and side strength. Needless to say it was not forcing.

Turkey For All At Bram Towers

By JEAN PATESON Women's Editor. For the first time in her adult life, Miss Mary Bousfield won't be cooking her own Thanksgiving turkey this year. Someone else will be doing it for her, and she says it's a good feeling. Like so many persons in the retirement community, Mrs. Arndt lost her spouse recently. Her family — five children, two of whom are still living, and several grandchildren — are widely scattered. Thanksgiving is supposed to be a happy occasion, and now it certainly will be for Mrs. Arndt, who now plans to prepare two special dishes for the dinner, sweet potatoes with marshmallows and creamed pearl onions. Mrs. Kibler, who also lost her husband recently, had made plans to eat Thanksgiving dinner at a local restaurant. "But I ditched that idea when the invitation came in to dinner here. It'll be much nicer to be with people I know better," she said, adding that the dinner was an "extra special treat." She will be making up a batch of cranberry sauce for the turkeys, as well as a vegetable dish. Miss Bousfield, for the first time in her life, has been feeling poorly lately. A bout of the flu has left her without much energy, and she is relieved that someone else will be preparing her Thanksgiving turkey. She will be contributing two mince pies to the celebration however. Always ready to help anyone in need, Miss Bousfield this Thanksgiving will be repaid in part for the devotion she has shown to family and friends throughout her lifetime. This will be the first Thanksgiving dinner to be held at Bram Towers. The residents there hope it will be the start of a tradition.

Ten Good Reasons For Giving Thanks

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN DEAR READERS: It's Thanksgiving again. (So soon?) A few years ago I wrote a column especially for Thanksgiving. It was so well received that I was asked to repeat it, and now it's become almost a tradition. And here it is again, with a few minor changes.

On this Thanksgiving day, take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for. Freedom rings! Look and listen. You can still worship at the church of your choice, cast a secret ballot and even criticize your government without fearing a knock on the door or a knock on the door at midnight! And if you want to live under a different system, you are free to go. There are no walls or fences — nothing to keep you here. As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving Prayer: O, heavenly Father: We thank Thee for food and remember the hungry. We thank Thee for health and remember the sick. We thank Thee for freedom and remember the enslaved. We thank Thee for peace and remember the war-torn. We thank Thee for justice and remember the oppressed. We thank Thee for love and remember the lonely. We thank Thee for hope and remember the despairing. We thank Thee for life and remember the dying. We thank Thee for all that Thou hast done for us, O God, our Father, our Redeemer, our Lord, our King, our God, our Father, Amen.

RSVP Plans Christmas Shopping Spree For Kids

By ELDA NICHOLS Herald Correspondent. A gala shopping tour is in the planning stages at the Seminole County graders in the Compensatory Program. The tour will be held at the Bradlee-McIntyre House, Longwood, in December. The residents there hope it will be the start of a tradition.

David S. Feinberg and Marion Aaronson, RSVP members, ready with gifts in the Bradlee-McIntyre House shopping spree.

Longwood Police Chief Douglas Keller has assigned an officer to help with the young shoppers. The trip will include a tour of the fire and police stations. They will eat a bag lunch and visit with Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus. Only 10 youngsters at a time will enter the store, and gifts will be selected with a volunteer helping each child. The shopping tour was originated by Sanford Grammar School PTA president several years ago. The RSVPs became interested in the project and decided to make it countywide, with this year's attempt to be the first of many. "If the community would support the idea, we would like to include more children in the plan," explained Ms. Edelman. The Historical Society for the Bradlee-McIntyre House has donated the use of the house for the event. The house is being decorated as a traditional Christmas fantasyland. Many hours of hard work have gone into the exciting undertaking, with the volunteers' only reward being the happy young faces beaming their thanks.

Miss Irene Hinton, chaplain, led the ritual, the Pledge to the American Flag and the American's Creed. Routine business was transacted, and an interesting talk and tour of the Park was given by Ed Posey, general curator. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Belle Jennings with Mrs. Leahy as co-hostess, on Dec. 10.

Commission Supports ERA

Support of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) has been declared by the Central Florida Commission on the Status of Women. Commission Chairman Marilyn Crotty has announced that support of the ERA was approved by the Commission at its November meeting in Orlando. Following a series of public hearings, members of the Commission felt that the status of women is directly dependent upon achieving full equality under the law, as proposed by the ERA. The Commission agreed that a statement of support for the ERA should precede its local efforts to define the status of women in Florida.

Family Unites To Give Thanks

About 46 members of the John Huston family will gather at the Glen Ellen, Geneva, grove home of Mr. and Mrs. Frances H. Yerkes today for a combined family reunion and Thanksgiving celebration.

DAR Holds Zoo Meet

Sallie Harrison Chapter, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Friday at the Central Florida Zoological Park, with the Regent, Mrs. T. K. Wiley, presiding, and hostess for the meeting. Miss Irene Hinton, chaplain, led the ritual, the Pledge to the American Flag and the American's Creed. Routine business was transacted, and an interesting talk and tour of the Park was given by Ed Posey, general curator. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Belle Jennings with Mrs. Leahy as co-hostess, on Dec. 10.

A County Insurance Snafu

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County government has hit a legal snafu on a new self-insurance plan adopted recently by county commissioners.

"I'm getting unhappy about it," Exec. Asst. Roger Neiswender said of the delay. On Nov. 15, commissioners had readied an ordinance which would allow agent Gallager Bassett Service Co. to make cash payments.

But Circuit Court Clerk Art Beckwith says he cannot find any "legal authorization for the county to turn county funds over to a non-county agency."

Neiswender will meet Monday with Asst. County Atty. Robert Pierce and Beckwith to try and work out a solution.

Neiswender said all that is needed is a mechanism which will allow Gallager Bassett of Orlando to make payments without direct approval from the board on each and every claim.

Beckwith said he was conducting a study to determine how the county can legally turn over funds to the Orlando agent.

Beckwith said the commission has the right to pay only legal obligations against Seminole County.

And an insurance claim before it goes to court might not be considered a legal obligation until a ruling has been made, Beckwith said.

Neiswender said state officials have an appointive agent who pays claims on his own initiative.

Beckwith said he'll check with state officials. The clerk said he will research the matter and bring his findings to Monday's meeting.

In August, the county was without liability insurance after Foremost Insurance Co. of Grand Rapids canceled the county's policy. Shortly thereafter, Bob Ellis, director of administrative services, decided to try the new self-insurance plan.

Neiswender said county employees are covered under the present self-insurance plan. All that is lacking is a method to allow the county's designated agent to make disbursements.

John Dean: Trying To Write Wrongs At Typewriter

By DICK KLEINER
The Herald Services

LOS ANGELES — "It troubles me terribly," says John Dean, "that it will happen again."

The "it" he's referring to is, of course, the Watergate affair. He sees a parallel between what happened in 1972 — the Watergate investigation was tabled until after the election — and this year.

Dean has recently stated that Dick Cook, a White House staff member in 1972, approached President Ford, then an influential congressman, and asked him to try to block the Patman Committee inquiry into Watergate.

But nothing came of Dean's statement. He says no one in an official capacity has approached him for amplification. And he says he and some media friends are "having nightmares" of a new outbreak of Watergate investigations — now that the '76 election is over.

He says Cook first denied having spoken to him about Ford's complicity in the move to impede the Patman inquiry. But later, Dean says, Cook changed his story and currently says he is "unsure" whether or not he spoke to Dean.

"At first," Dean says, "Cook said he was at Lockheed at the time of the Patman inquiry. Now he admits that was wrong, and he says his memory was off by two years."

Dean says many TV and newspaper reporters have indicated to him they wanted to write more about the Ford-Cook incident, before the election. But, he says, they were told by their producers and editors not to touch the story.

With the election over, Dean believes the shackles will be off and that the probe into Ford's connection with the story will begin in earnest.

Dean, one of the leading figures in the Watergate scandal, is now a writer. He does interviews for Rolling Stone magazine, and his book about his connection with Watergate, "Blind Ambition," is on the best seller list.

He feels now that his future is in writing. It can't be in law. He was disbarred and says now that he believes his disbarment was "a right decision." "I made bad judgments," he says. "I don't deserve to practice law."

He says he was "uncomfortable" during his years as President Nixon's counsel, "uncomfortable" doing the things he had to do. "I know right from wrong," he says. "I rationalized my way by having others handle things for me. I saved myself, I thought."

Dean's parents, he says, keep telling him now that what he went through was a good lesson for him. They tell him he was moving too fast and had gotten "Too big for his britches."

"And I guess I can be grateful," he says, "that I learned my lesson at this age, rather than when I was older."

Dean's book, which almost like a novel, includes a great deal of dialogue. He relies on his memory for that, a memory first made famous when he testified before the Ervin committee and was able to recreate entire conversations.

"I've always been a listener," he says. "My memory is eclectic. I can still hear those people talking. When (Leon) Jaworski first heard the Nixon tapes, he compared them with my testimony."

"John, it's frightening," he said to me. "You used the exact language and phrases that they did."

Curiously, John Dean started out to be a writer. He was an English major, first at Colgate and then at the College of Wooster in Ohio. In his junior year, he became a dual English-political science major. His senior thesis was called "Verstimmtheit in Political Novels."

He says it is strange, but that the thesis has been lost. The college, he says, claims they can no longer find it, despite the fact that all these are kept on file.

So Watergate, which changed so many things, turned him back from politics to writing.

"When I was in the White House," he says, "I was very ambitious. I enjoyed being in the inner power, where the movers and the shakers lived. It was that that excited me, not the money, not the public recognition."

"Today, I'm generally in Lewis, working at the typewriter. I look at things differently now. When I was covering the Kansas City convention, I realized that I was happier being an observer than a participant."

"My biggest problem now is public recognition. I'm uncomfortable being recognized. I've lost my privacy. I miss my anonymity. I become uncomfortable in restaurants. People turn around to watch me eat. But I'm hoping my anonymity will one day return."

He would like to get into screenplay writing. At one point, during the height of the Watergate crisis, he wrote a treatment for a screenplay (about a black woman nominated to be a Supreme Court justice) and had a "handson" offer for it.

"I showed it to Lowell Weicker (the Republican senator from Connecticut). He said I might someday be involved in an impeachment hearing and that the screenplay wouldn't win me any friends. So I dropped it."

But now he says he's reading ten screenplays a week to familiarize himself with the technique. He calls it "a beautiful craft."

Dean looks ahead these days, although he's forced often to look back. He has regrets over what he did, or didn't do.

"The most troublesome thing to me," he says, "is the way I had the opportunity to do so many things right — and I abused that opportunity. Since then, I've tried to right the wrongs. It sounds much, but it's true."

JOHN DEAN

He predicts new, intensive probe into Gerald Ford's role in Watergate.

MOSHE DAYAN

... 'what is the future of our people?'

Dayan: Elder Statesman

The Herald Services

SAN FRANCISCO — He was almost an anachronism sitting there in a chair being interviewed in a hotel hallway across the world from his familiar turf.

Moshe Dayan belonged to the young Israel, carved almost a generation ago out of a pocket of the Arab domain, the Israel that unchained itself from the British, that pulverized the Arabs in the quick blitz Six-Day War of 1967.

He was a pioneer sabra. He remembers his parents fleeing from their kibbutz, which had been set on fire by Arab marauders, when he was 6 years old. He bore arms in the Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, when he was 14. He experienced his first real war when he fought with the Australians against Vichy France in Syria in 1941 — and lost an eye in combat.

So now he still wears that black eye patch over his left eye, and his face is still lean, the baldness — Yul Brynner-style — masking the fact he is 61 years old and no longer a warrior.

Moshe Dayan has been on tour in the United States, ostensibly to peddle his first memoirs, "Moshe Dayan: Story of My Life," but also to learn.

"I know more about Arabs and Russian weapons," he says in his precise, accented English, "than I do about Jews. I'd like to know what being Jewish is, not in Israel, but in all corners of the world. What is the future of our people?"

He wears a grey suit and yellow shirt and black wing-tipped shoes and none look very stylish on this man we're used to seeing in battle regalia. He is addressed as General.

Dayan does not travel the world as an official emissary of Israel, which has struggled through diplomatic hard times in recent years, though he is one of the most glamorous figures produced by that young nation. He calls himself simply a member of the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, a representative of the Labor party, without any pretensions for molding public opinion. He professes no regrets at not having progressed politically as far as he did militarily — he was minister of Defense until after the traumatic Yom Kippur War of 1973.

"I'm very happy that I was never No. 1 in our country," he says. "I'm happy to have served under two of the three greatest leaders in our nation's history — David Ben Gurion and Golda Meir."

The third was Chaim Weizman, a leader of modern Zionism and the country's first president.

"I don't want to hold office," he claims. "I simply have political views and want to express them."

So Dayan has become and sounds like an elder statesman, though in his homeland he has been a controversial figure, often criticized, and not especially charismatic. He leads a fairly sedate life in a suburb of Tel Aviv. He spent the last two years devoting nights to his memoirs, getting up at 3 a.m. and writing, in longhand, until 7 a.m., after which a secretary came in to transcribe his manuscript.

"Hebrew," he says, "is a nice language to write with."

He is conscious of his image as a war hero who led in the fight for the foundation of Israel, but he separates it from his real self.

"I feel people praise me," he says, "for what I stand for and symbolize. I always look at it as a kind of a symbol. But it's not the real me."

How then does Dayan see himself?

"When I look in the mirror in the morning, I see somebody who has to shave."

He feels generally bullish about the prospects for his tiny nation. "It's not the same Middle East," he says, "that we think of 20 years ago. Egypt is different. So is Syria, with Lebanon. We Israelis are always being criticized. We are trying something very difficult, to establish a Jewish state within an Arab zone of the world."

His part in the attempt has been well chronicled, by others and now by himself in his book.
