

At The Capitol

TALLAHASSEE, May 7.—There was a great deal of debate and discussion in the Senate today on the Workmen's Compensation Act and the Congressional Re-districting bill.

The Compensation act was in the process of being read for the third time and put upon the calendar when 12:00 o'clock arrived, when was the time set for consideration of the Congressional bill.

Then some fireworks began. An amendment offered by Mr. McKemie, speaker pro-tem, and I, providing for a Central Florida District was being discussed, and after many motions to table, postpone, amend etc. had been offered, the time for adjournment arrived, and the bill will come up again tomorrow.

There was no session this afternoon on account of Finance and Taxation Committee of the House and Senate meeting in joint session, and hearing many opponents of several of the proposed tax measures.

I was in there a few minutes and the room was so crowded one could hardly move. There were about 25 feet square.

Commissioner Lehman, ex-mayor of Sanford, and City Attorney Fred M. Wilson arrived today in Sanford for the purpose of looking after the matter of Gillin being allowed to take certain business to tax in the past.

The House actually refused to supply any additional help today, when a report of the Efficiency Committee was laid on the table rather than adopted, and it provided for the employment of only one stenographer. If this action had been taken earlier in the session, the taxpayers would have been saved several thousand dollars.

Speaker Lewis was in bed with a bad cold and fever today, and Speaker Pro-tem McKemie presided during the session.

Those hoping we can finally dispose of the Workmen's Compensation act tomorrow. It has been made a special order of business for 11:00 o'clock. The opponents claim they will defeat it by 10 votes.

The American Legion is showing their appreciation of the patriotism of the Legislators by giving an invitation supper dance in the same tonight.

TROOPS READY TO KEEP ORDER IN MINING AREA

Kentucky Guardsmen Are Instructed To Maintain Peace In Strife-Torn Town

HARLAN, May 7.—(AP)—Kentucky national guardsmen camped on their arms today prepared to take over the Avonite mining section while a special grand jury convened to investigate disorders in the country. A military unit composed of more than 200 soldiers was instructed to restore law and order in the strife-torn community, the scene of several recent strikes, while the grand jury investigated the trouble.

The streets were crowded as the troops moved in by bus, automobile and special trains from 15 miles. Reports here said all the women had left Harlan and grim miners were perched on buildings prominently ready to fight.

Five men were recently killed in disorders. A number of stores were looted and 10 houses burned. The military movement is the largest in the state in 10 years. Military leaders spent the morning conferring with civil authorities on plans for the occupation of Harlan.

The first detachments of approximately 325 Kentucky National Guardsmen began moving into Harlan coal fields late yesterday as a result of pleas from Sheriff J. H. Blair and other county officials that they could not control disorder there.

After ordering out the troops Governor Sampson declared "a reign of terror has been precipitated by some interlopers, communists from outside the state who have taken advantage of the discontent resulting from unemployment."

Children, women, babies and mine guards and groups of disarmed men have resulted in five deaths near Harlan, the center of the disturbance. Four were killed Tuesday morning in a fight in which rifles and machine guns were used. Commissaries and stores have been robbed, and 16 unoccupied miners' houses burned. There are approximately 20,000 miners in the county.

Governor Sampson said a petition for troops was signed by all Harlan county officers, union leaders and about 200 union workers. Labor leaders petitioning for troops, the governor said including William Turnbull, Jellico, Tenn., president of the Nine.

Mortimer Schiff Is Elected President Of Boy Scout Body

MEMPHIS, May 7.—(AP)—Mortimer I. Schiff, New York banker, was elected president of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the close of its annual meeting here yesterday. The council will meet next year in New York, following its biennial custom.

Mr. Schiff's election followed the voluntary withdrawal of Walter W. Head, Chicago banker. He was named first vice president. Mr. Schiff remained international commissioner, handling the American organization's relations with scouting throughout the world.

Since the Boy Scouts of America was founded in 1910, the new president has been one of its principal contributors and enthusiasts. He says it is one of the chief interests of his life.

A new decoration, to be given men who distinguish themselves in local activities, was authorized by the council. It is "the beaver" designed to go for local scouting work, the silver buffalo, national award, goes for service meriting large consideration. Local councils were empowered to award it at their discretion.

Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth, chairman of the women's division of President Hoover's unemployment commission, said she represented Mrs. Hoover in praising Scouts for "strengthening the morale of scouting and the country as a whole by maintaining their usual activities" during the business depression.

Speaking on the lower side of the world was described by Paul H. Jones, who accompanied Mrs. Admiral Byrd's South Polar expedition.

Cannon Sends Protest To Probe Committee Against Continuation Of Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Chairman Nye of the Senate campaign funds committee said today that he intended to file Miss Ada Barrough's resignation in the Senate for contempt after her refusal to testify to the committee. Miss Barrough was formerly treasurer of the Cannon Anti-Smith organization in Virginia.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—A formal protest was sent to the Senate campaign funds committee last night by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., against the inquiry it will resume today into his use of anti-Smith funds in the 1928 campaign.

Chairman Nye when informed of the letter of the Southern Methodist churchman, said the committee "will go ahead." Two witnesses have been called and will be heard. Bishop Cannon challenged not only the legality of the resolution authorizing the committee inquiry into his activities but also said the federal corrupt practices act—which he has been charged with violating by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts—was unconstitutional.

DELRAY BEACH — $500,000 will be spent in improvements to Boca Raton Club.

POLICEMEN SEEK SLAYER WANTED FOR 2 DEATHS

Also Hold Fears For Safety Of Girl Who Has Been Missing

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Police in every borough of New York set out yesterday to capture Francis Crowley, 20, who posed as a "big shot" gunman in the cheap dance halls of Manhattan. They wanted him to answer for two killings within a fortnight, but even more they wanted to protect a 16-year-old girl who has been missing since his disappearance.

Russia Again Tops World In Field Of Wheat Production

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Russia again is the world's leading producer of wheat. Figures supporting that unexpected and highly significant statement were expected yesterday to be released about May 20 by the United States department of agriculture.

It was said that Russian production for 1930 likely would be announced at 1,087,000,000 bushels, which is 248,000,000 bushels more than was produced in the United States—when growing champion since Russia left the export picture during the war.

That figure would show Russia to have exceeded her greatest production mark since she dominated the world export trade. That mark, established in 1913, of 1,023,000,000 bushels. It was credited Russia with a production the first time Russia reached the billion-bushel mark.

The significance of the situation, market experts said, was that it might present to the international wheat conference in London on May 19 the question of re-allocating world wheat areas.

During the war and for several years after, great expansion of wheat acreage occurred in the United States, Canada, Argentina, India and Australia to make up for the deficiency in Europe.

The non-European countries, however, did not reduce production as it increased in Europe after the war, and in 1930 produced 509,000,000 bushels more than in 1913 when Europe was fairly able to feed herself.

Suspected Slayer Identified As Man Near Crime Scene

HAN DIEGO, Calif., May 7.—(AP)—M. E. Garrison, railway clerk and admirer of Hazel Bradshaw, 22-year-old telephone operator, yesterday was said by police to have been identified as a man seen leaving Balboa park late Saturday night a few hours before the girl's body was found nearby, mutilated by knife wounds.

A man and a woman whose names were not made public, told officers they were sitting in a parked automobile not far from an Indian village in the park where the young woman's corpse was discovered.

Before viewing Garrison, who is under arrest, the couple was said to have described the man they observed. This description, police asserted, fitted the prisoner, who said he was with the girl Saturday night but took her home.

Action to free Garrison is expected to be taken today. Attorney Fairchild, employed by the suspect, said he would seek a writ of habeas corpus, thus forcing the authorities either to free Garrison or place a definite charge against him.

Reputed bloodstains on bed clothing in Garrison's apartment were found yesterday. An analysis of the stain was ordered to determine if it corresponded to that from Miss Bradshaw's body. An inquest into the girl's death has been set for next Monday.

ECONOMIST SEES HIGH TARIFF AS U.S. REQUIREMENT

Business School Dean Calls Restriction Industrial Exigency

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—The effort of the international chamber of commerce to find ways to promote a resumption of prosperity focused yesterday on regularization of employment, wage and mass production questions.

Wallace B. Donham, dean of the Harvard university graduate school of business administration, said it was imperative for industry here to have the home market on which to concentrate.

Formulations of numerous resolutions, to be acted on Friday by the congress, went ahead in the various national committees and the resolutions committee. There were no meetings yesterday afternoon, the delegates visiting Mount Vernon.

Gerard Swepe, president of General Electric company, climaxed his morning address with the sentiment that industry here has begun to recognize it is a detriment.

Cotton Cloth Will Occupy Important Place In Fashions

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Cotton, transformed by the needs of the season and a modish cut, is demanding attention along the smartest boulevards this summer.

And summer's fickle temperament of weeping skies and brightly smiling sun will not send the fashionably-dressed in dogs or under cover during the next few months. For the new wardrobe is non-fading, non-running and washable.

Morning will see ginghams, piques, linens, and broadcloth, in crisply tailored street frocks and suits.

Afternoon will find ensembles of voile, fine linen, smart cotton meshes, and organdie.

Evening will be made the smarter by gowns of eyelet embroidery, point d'esprit, lace, organdie and nets.

Cotton will be equally popular at the beaches and watering places, even on the water itself, for it is being used as the moment demands for swimming suits and yachting costumes.

Pajamas, still in vogue for every occasion, will be created of a variety of cotton stuffs, a multitude of colorful patterns.

Accessories that add a debonair dash to the summer ensemble are also of cotton. Summer shoes with rather large bows to match are made of coarse cotton mesh. Usually they come in a number of new pastel colors and are smart with short sleeved frocks.

Even millinery has "gone" cotton. Sports hats are most generally of pique and broadcloth and a number of those pert little turbans which have worn on the back of the head are of a cotton mesh. Beams and flowers of organdie and cotton lace are being used to adorn the more formal headgear also.

REDUCTION OF STATE WAGES URGED IN BILL

Measure Provides For Average Cut Of 25 Percent In Salaries Of Every Official

TALLAHASSEE, May 7.—(AP)—Sweeping reductions of state salaries was advocated in the Senate today at the House heard a stirring defense of the proposed workmen's compensation act bill by Senator Turner of Cedar Key.

It would provide an average reduction of approximately 25 percent in salaries from the governor down through many subsidiary offices.

The Senate also received a bill to tax chain stores on a graduated scale while a bill to tax corporation revenue at the rate of 25 to 1500 yearly was introduced in the House.

The House heard Representative Robineau defend the workmen's compensation bill as he spoke against the amendment offered by 51 representatives to eliminate the compensation commission and leave the matter of adjusting injury cases to the courts. The House voted, however, against his motion to kill the amendment. The Senate in executive session voted confirmation of the appointment of Mark Quinn as judge of the criminal court of record. Poll closed.

Mayer Walker Hits Back At Attackers Of School System

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Mayor Walker hit back at school system of the New York school system, attacking them of "sabotage" on the eve of the 1931 campaign to divert attention from national economic issues.

The mayor's statements were in reply to a report of the city affairs committee of the National Republican Club, which was forwarded to Governor Roosevelt "by way of information" by Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the club.

Referring to the report's charge that he was indifferent to political abuses in the school system in acquiring of building sites, Mayor Walker said he had directed Leonard Wallstein to investigate the purchase of sites by any and all city departments.

"This was done without the advice or knowledge of the National Republican Club," he said, "which approaches a presidential election in 1932 while we are in the midst of a terrible economic depression resulting in an army of unemployed which is admitted to be about 7,000,000 with about 20,000,000 hungry people in the country."

"This is not a pleasant prospect for the Republican Party. They can not or have not done anything to relieve their terrible responsibility growing out of their campaign promises in 1928 to keep good times and prosperity in the country. So they fall back on the old fashioned but much-abetted idea of concentrating attacks upon alleged or trumped up mistakes of the democratic administration of the City of New York."

PARTY HINTS

By RUTH HUBBARD
Here are some games for the Mother's "poem" party. The first might be a game of poetics. Each one must get up in turn and try to set out her favorite poem. The best actress should get five points for her tally, and one should be awarded the person who can guess most of the poems dramatized.

After this have a "hunt." This one, while quite unlike those to which your guests are probably accustomed, is very amusing. The guests should look about the room until they find objects that have some hidden meaning in nursery rhymes. To make the game easier, write the rhymes on the objects with white chalk. When the players find something, they must all write and write the name of the object and the rhyme which contains it. Thirty of paper should be prepared.

Turner Home Scene Of Circle Meeting

A DISH A DAY

By Karen Hollis
Caring
It is an uncommon thing, these days to see a carver who is a real artist. For one thing, this generation has improved its dietary habits to the point where the great joints and roasts which made carving a necessary accomplishment twenty years ago, have fortunately largely disappeared—except from the windows of roastsellers.

Yet there are still occasions where a skillful carver is necessary. While grandfather may do the Thanksgiving or Christmas turkey very nicely now, every newlywed husband faces the possibility of being a grandfather himself some day. And it is a pleasure to see a real artist at carving curl up slices from a roast of beef or slice easily through the joints of a duck or goose.

The first essential of carving is a well-sharpened carving knife. Unless the blade is keen and dependable the most expert welder is certain to do a haggling job. A good steel will put the proper edge on a knife and the little sets of steel discs, turning against each other, which have come into common use lately, are also satisfactory, though the knife may require resharpening before the carving is completed.

The second implement necessary is a two-pronged fork. For wild duck and some other kinds of game, game shears are needed to cut through the breast.

Roast beef and other boned roasts should always be sliced across the grain—i.e., across the ends of the muscle fibers. If the roast is tied and skewered into shape the string should be removed before bringing the roast to the table, leaving the skewers to hold the roast in the proper shape.

With chicken or turkey, place the fork with one prong through the "drumstick" and one through the thigh. The roast should rest on its back and a very slight movement of the fork will show where the joint is. Remove both "drum stick" and thigh and then, Dinner

With the knife between the prongs of the fork take off the "drumstick" in the same manner. The wings are removed next in much the same way.

Slice white meat from the sides, beginning close to the peak of the "wishbone" and finish by taking the white meat from the breast with the knife sliding along the length of the wishbone.

If he host becomes too proud of his accomplishments with chicken and turkey, try him with a duck or goose.

There will always lower the pride of the prematurely confident. They are raised, precisely like chicken or turkey, but the joints are located farther back than in the other fowls. Only a trial or two will teach the carver where to locate them.

Leg of lamb is quite easily carved if the carver knows where to make his approach. With the fork over the bone and at the top of the roast, well above the center toward the large end, slice straight to the bone on the curved side, a little behind the fork. Continue slicing at intervals of a little less than one-half inch until you have cut enough slices for the company.

Then detach by running the knife along the bone at right angles to the first cuts.

There is no good reason for having leg of lamb boned by the butcher except cowardice, but if you do mistreat the carver of the household, prepare your roast with onion and sage stuffing.

Peel six large onions and boil them until tender, then chop them fine. Add one tablespoon of powdered sage, one-half teaspoon of poultry seasoning, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two cups of bread which has been soaked in milk in cold water, then squeezed off. Mix thoroughly. Leg of lamb should be thoroughly soaked about twenty minutes to the pound and twenty minutes over.

Expert Will Lecture Upon Refrigeration

During the talks by both Mr. and Mrs. Hawks, refreshments will be served to each woman present. Mrs. Hawks, as a food economist, has prepared a short, instructive, and humorous talk on food and its relation to the icebox.

consideration by various lines, which promise to doll up future trains as brightly as airplanes, with speeds to compete and attractive comforts.

"This is the first time in railroad history," said a statement by F. X. Millholland, assistant to the senior vice president, "that an entire train has been air-conditioned."

"Air conditioning, now made practicable after more than a century since the beginning of railroads, overcomes the heat annoyance entirely and adds something of its own—the pleasure of breathing clean, fresh air from which all dirt and soot have been removed.

"The air is circulated without creating drafts. Humidity is controlled, a thermostat which functions both while the train is running and when standing still."

Along with the reds, blues and greens which several railroads have given their trains with recently discovered paints and lacquers comes the possibility of all-white trains for hot weather travel.

The new color schemes are due to paints capable for the first time of resisting the extra hard wear of weathering upon rolling stock. The latest of these is a cure of rusty noses of locomotives placed on exhibition this week. Locomotives usually have their fronts repainted once a week, or once a trip.

The new paint, a bituminous product, lasts two months.

The most recent move for speed and safety is a new 152-pound rail ordered by the Pennsylvania railroad and designed for speeds of 90 miles an hour.

last shooting scrape. They fear he, too, may have been killed. Patrolman Frederick Hirsch of the Nassau county force was the victim of the latest killing which police ascribed to Crowley. He died early yesterday with eight bullets in his chest and arms—shot down before he had a chance to defend himself.

Since Virginia Brannen, a "taxi-dancer," was killed 10 days ago and her body thrown behind a hedge in Yonkers, Crowley has been a fugitive. Yesterday a half dozen of his companions were rounded up and their accounts of his activities filled in a background of youthful crime.

Tuesday night, according to the police pieced together, Crowley and his crowd went out for a "party." The group included Clinton Davis, 19, and Helen Walsh, 16. They piled into a stolen car and drove into a dark lane not far from their homes.

Crowley decided there were too many in the machine and ordered them out—all but Helen Walsh, who remained with him. The others moved 300 feet down the lane and waited.

Not long afterward Patrolman Hirsch and Patrolman Joseph Yodice turned into the lane. Hirsch turned his flashlight on the couple sitting there.

"You're Crowley," he exclaimed. Crowley pulled a gun from his pocket and opened fire. He fired two more shots at Yodice and made his escape in the car.

The abandoned car was found about noon. Its cushions splashed with blood. Police said the slaying might be taken as an indication that some of the shots Yodice fired had taken more shooting after the car left the lane. They were concerned particularly with two bullet holes in the upholstery.

The bullets apparently fired from the driver's seat, had spent so much of their force they had failed to penetrate the outside metal. This condition, police said, might be explained if the bullets had first rased through a body.

The killing of Virginia Brannen, the dance hall hostess, occurred 10 days ago. Her body was found behind a stone fence surrounding a seminary in Yonkers, and her friends told of an automobile ride which ended in a shooting. They accused Crowley of the killing.

Facts Sought On Alleged Track Lobbying Funds

and the exchange clerk of the Barnett National bank at Jacksonville, to appear at the first hearing Friday night. At the same time James J. Hackney, a public accountant at St. Petersburg, will appear as a witness at his own request.

Representative Horne, of Madison, chief examiner of the lobbying committee, who stated on the floor of the House Tuesday that he hoped to ascertain through the investigation whether the $50,000, as widely reported, had been paid, reiterated yesterday that he would go to the bottom of that charge.

There was no explanation as to the nature of the testimony the committee expected to get from Crawford and the man from the bank or what it was Hackney wanted to tell. It was made clear, however, that the inquiry would deal strictly with lobbying for or against pending legislation to permit the lawful operation of race tracks, with pari-mutuel betting, the big profits of which would go to the state.

Meanwhile there was much speculation as to the effect the sudden ending of the House investigation of conditions during the last two years, might have on bills to legalize racing.

Proponents of these bills feel the sidetracking of the inquiry into the Wolfe-Hazard certificate system has cleared the way for immediate consideration of their measures, explaining that the public amusement committee of the House, and the Senate committee on miscellaneous legislation, could not report the bills on either floor as long as the House investigation was in progress.

The opposite view was taken, however, by the anti-race track crowd. They construed the action of the House as a deliberate pigeon-holing of an investigation that had been started in an attempt to disclose irregularities existing at the tracks, in spite of the law prohibiting wagering.

The neutral group in both House and Senate, comprising legislators to whom the question of legalizing pari-mutuels has always been a minor issue, believe the situation has not been affected one way or the other, that the dropping of a single convert to either side and that the roll calls will be the same as if the bills had been reported out on the first day of the session.

Out of the mass of opinion, however, three certain predictions can be made regarding the forth-
