Teachers strike in two states

Students were treated to an extended summer vacation as teachers struck five school districts in Pennsylvania and Michigan, where walkout threats loomed at two state universities.

Michigan's only school strike entered its third day in Stockbridge Wednesday.

No talks were scheduled in Stockbridge until Friday, when both sides will meet with a mediator.

In Pennsylvania, teachers in the West Shore and Forest Hills school districts in Cumberland and Cambria counties Wednesday joined striking teachers in the Mechanicsburg and Moshannon Valley school districts who walked off the job on Tuesday.

Union officials representing the 502 West Shore teachers voted overwhelmingly late Tuesday to strike, extending summer vacation for some 7,500 students. Officials said wages and benefits were the stumbling blocks in negotiations.

Officials probe jet crash

GRAPEVINE, Texas — Federal investigators were giving a "hard look" to the wrecked engines as the possible cause of the crash of Delta Air Lines Flight 1141 in which 13 people died, but are equally interested in learning how 94 people managed to escape from the burning wreck.

Lee Dickinson, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, said the "black box" flight recorders from the Boeing 727-200 would be examined today in Washington, D.C.

So far, Dickinson said, the only suggested cause of Wednesday's crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport was a problem with the jetliner's three Pratt & Whitney engines.

Viola wins No. 20

In lieu of gaining ground in the standings, the Minnesota Twins took Frank Viola's personal accomplishment as compensation. Viola became the major leagues' first 20-game winner Wednesday night, coasting to a 10-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"It's nice to be the first to get to 20 this year," said Viola, 20-6. "I won't lie to you. But I want to be the first to get to 21 and 22. I don't want to stop here."

"The main thing is that we won. As long as we still have a chance to catch Oakland (for the American League West crown), we have to keep trying."

Clerk releases files

Berrien's financial records made public

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Clerk of Court David Berrien will release cancelled personal checks, monthly statements and applications for credit cards issued to himself and two assistants this morning.

Berrien had balked at releasing the materials, questioning whether they were actually available for public review since they included personal checks. Chief Deputy Clerk Bill Jacobs said Fred Baggett, attorney for court clerks in the state, said Wednesday the information should be released since the cancelled checks and statements were in the clerk's office for observation by auditors hired by Berrien last week.

County Administrator Ken Hooper said Jacobs called to say the records would be made available after he sent a second memo requesting the records be made available to county auditors under the Florida Public Records Law.

A controversy has arisen over Berrien's, Jacobs' and county finance director Brad Lang's use of the cards, issued in 1985 by two banks in each of them.

The Mastercards, two of which were issued to Berrien, Jacobs and Lang, apparently using the clerk's office credit, resulted in over $60,000 in personal charges on the cards. Each card carried a credit limit of $5,000.

An audit completed for Berrien last week showed no public funds were used to pay for the cards, other than apparent legitimate reimbursements for official expenses. But Hooper said one of the county's main concerns was not revealed in Berrien's audit — whether public funds were used in obtaining the cards.

Commissioner Bill Kirelthoff suggests the use of public funds, the county's credit, to obtain the cards for personal use might represent an illegal conversion of public credit for private use.

The Benchmark building is one of the oldest structures in the downtown area.

New HRS home to get facelift

By WAYNE NIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — One of the oldest buildings in the downtown area will soon get a facelift and become the new home of the city's HRS operation.

The Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) offices, now located at 107 1/2 N. Oak in the Welaka building, will move into the Benchmark building at 200 S. Oak by next April.

The Benchmark building, once the home of Chase & Co. and built around the turn of the century, will undergo extensive renovation to accommodate HRS.

General Land Development (GLD) Corporation of Tampa was recently awarded the HRS contract as low bidder. GLD was able to underbid Irving Feinberg, owner of the Crown Square complex on Elm Avenue, among several others for the contract.

GLD is currently in the process of purchasing the Benchmark building, which was contingent on the securing of the HRS contract, according to official sources.

"It is a unique building and quite a structure inside," said John Stewart, general services manager for the HRS in Orlando. "With the plan they've (GLD) come up with, it will certainly enhance downtown Sanford."

Dave Farr, executive director for the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, believes the renovation of the building will benefit the downtown area for years.

"That (Benchmark) has got to be one of the oldest buildings in downtown," said Farr. "To have that historic building restored will mean a lot for downtown Sanford for many, many years."

GLD will provide 95 HRS employees with 23,000 square feet of office space and 120 exclusive parking spaces on adjacent vacant property.

The HRS will lease the building for the first year for

The great alligator hunt is on

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The great Florida alligator hunt of 1988 gets under way tonight with hunters, picked from a lottery, taking to targeted waterways to harvest a species that has been state-protected for 26 years.

The 236 licensed gator hunters can choose an agent to assist them. All of the hunters are authorized to take alligators throughout the month of September and have attended a state school on how to safely stalk and kill the animals.

Despite the six-hour course, state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officials admit it's difficult to learn everything one needs to know about alligator hunting in six hours. They're hoping agents and hunters have learned enough to be safe and to respect their quarry.

Five Seminole County men were selected in the hunt lottery with four being assigned to the St. Johns River and the other to Lake Harney.

Nick Buttitta of Oviedo, who will try his luck on Lake Harney, has authorized Jim Logue, 42, of Oviedo, as his agent. Logue, who grew up in Oviedo, is an experienced hunter of other game and has waited since 1962 to legally tangle with an alligator.

Logue is also an agent for two other hunters and said he is sure that during the month-long hunt he will safely kill 45 of the animals. He said the cost of the hunt, including the boats needed to carry out the kills as he plans, is about $20,000.

Buttitta said he will be on the sidelines during the hunt, hiding in a steel barrel but he said he is confident that Logue will safely bring in his gators. Both Buttitta and Logue expressed concern for the safety of inexperienced hunters who may try to make a beer party out of the hunt. Logue said he hopes to help the state create a professional image for gator hunters in what he sees as a new industry for the state.

During the years the animals were a protected species, gators determined to be a nuisance have been captured and moved or killed by about 50 licensed hunters who work on commission and profit from the sale of hides and meat.

The hunting is done by night, and Junior Whidden of Osteen, who has been a gator hunter for the state for 10 years, said it takes a gator from one to four hours to die after it has been mortally wounded. A gator, once hooked or speared, must be played like a fish, sometimes for hours, before being pulled in for the kill.

Whidden, who 99 percent of the time captures his gators alive, said alligators are "unpredictable." Gators are hunters themselves, Whidden said, and are capable of seriously injuring or killing an inexperienced hunter.

The new crop of gator hunters, who are authorized to bag no more than 15 animals each,

A HUNTING WE WILL GO

- ☐ HUNTERS: 236 individuals statewide received licenses through a lottery drawing.
- ☐ SEASON: Hunters may begin taking alligators tonight and continue to do so throughout the month of September.
- ☐ LIMIT: Each hunter may legally take 15 of the animals.
- ☐ COST: Hunters paid $250 for a license and $30 for each tag that must accompany each animal that is processed through the game checking stations. Hunters who chose to be accompanied by agents paid an additional $50.
- ☐ PROFIT: The most recent wholesale prices available on alligator products indicates the animals' hides are worth approximately $40 a foot and meat sells for about $5 a pound.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Castor forms school safety task force

TALLAHASSEE — Education Commissioner Betty Castor has announced the membership of a new Florida Safe Schools Task Force, a group charged with finding ways to deal with drugs, crime and other on-campus safety concerns.

The 20-member task force will also discuss the presence of police officers on campus, how to deal with trespassers, student activities that might affect student safety and the possibility of training school employees in dealing with violent situations.

"We must ensure that our schools are a safe haven from the increasing pressure of an uncertain and sometimes violent world," Castor said Wednesday. "Our children must feel safe and secure if they are to benefit from our schools' instruction."

Members of the task force include Castor, Attorney General Bob Butterworth, Dade County State Attorney Janet Reno, Pinellas County Superintendent Scott Rose and other education and law enforcement officials.

Martinez urges protection for Tampa Bay

TAMPA — Gov. Bob Martinez, following a boat tour of Tampa Bay, has called for federal protection of the endangered estuary and said $500,000 in state funds have been pledged to the effort.

Martinez announced Wednesday that he has written to the Environmental Protection Agency to nominate the bay for protection under the National Estuary Program.

The federal Clean Water Act designates 12 estuaries and bays, including Sarasota Bay in Florida, for special protection.

"The (Tampa) Bay has long been known for the richness of its marine resources — a richness that has long been threatened by its intensive use," Martinez said in a letter mailed Tuesday to EPA Administrator Lee Thomas.

"It is also home to one of the busiest ports in the nation and is a popular recreation spot. It's environmental health is the key to maintaining Tampa Bay's value to Florida's environment and its economy."

Martinez said $500,000 from the Pollution Recovery Fund has been earmarked for Tampa Bay restoration projects. The fund's were collected through fines imposed on polluters in the three counties bordering the bay.

A plan is being developed under the state Surface Water Improvement and Management, or SWIM, Act to clean up waters in the Tampa Bay watershed.

Eight indicted on firearms purchases

TAMPA — A federal grand jury indicted eight men Wednesday — seven of them convicted felons — on charges of violating federal firearms laws by lying to gun and pawn shops to illegally obtain weapons.

Convicted felons are prohibited from buying, receiving or possessing firearms.

Indicted were Eldridge Lee Cephas, 52, of Bartow; Robert James Davis, 39; Anthony Larry Gullite, 33; Patrick Emmanuel Johns, 29, Miami; Christopher Lee Johnson, 25, St. Petersburg; Kolja M. Luigjura, 28, Detroit; John Jairo Loaliza, 29, Colombia, South America; and George Lorenzo Thomas, 47.

No home towns were available for Davis, Gullite, and Thomas.

Fingers did walking to the vice squad

TALLAHASSEE — A man who solicited sexual encounters by dialing random telephone numbers was arrested after he unwittingly called a sheriff's department vice squad and made a date with a deputy, officials said.

"Yeah, it was great," Dick Simpson, spokesman for the Leon County Sheriff's Department, said Wednesday. "I can't think of this ever happening before."

Robert Samuel Crough, 37, was arrested Tuesday and charged with solicitation for prostitution and making obscene phone calls, Simpson said.

Simpson said Crough called random numbers and struck up conversations with men who answered the phone. The number he called Monday was the private line of the sheriff's Special Investigations office, which handles vice-related crimes.

Poll shows Gunter leads Senate race

TALLAHASSEE — Bill Gunter has maintained his lead in the Democratic primary for U.S. Senate despite heavy attacks by his opponents, but will likely face a runoff for the nomination, according to a new poll.

The survey by Mason-Dixon Opinion Research indicated it was too early to call the race between U.S. Reps. Buddy MacKay and Dan Mica for second place in the Senate primary and a chance to face Gunter in an October runoff.

The survey, released Thursday, showed Gunter supported by 39 percent of the voters likely to participate in next week's primary.

Paul: Sales going into orbit

$52 million payoff to set new record

By ROCKY SCOTT
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Sizzling ticket sales have pushed the Florida Lotto jackpot to a record $52 million, and Lottery Director Rebecca Paul says there is no way to estimate how much the prize might be at week's end.

"Our sales are going into orbit," Paul said Wednesday after lottery officials decided to raise the jackpot from $50 million to an estimated $52 million, smashing the previous prize record of $51.4 million set by California's game in June.

Paul said sales for the day Wednesday at 9 a.m. were 34 percent ahead of the same day a week ago and 36 percent ahead by 2 p.m.

"That 36 percent, if it holds — and we're on an upward trend right now — will pay $43.2 million and we need $40 million to pay a $52 million jackpot," Paul said.

"We've held all week at a level that will do it (produce the $52 million jackpot)," she said, adding she boosted the prize to "make sure people have enough time to buy tickets."

Paul said sales to date this week were "up 31 percent (overall) from last week" when the prize was $32 million. The $1 Lotto ticket sales last week set daily and weekly sales marks for the game, which began the first week in May.

The biggest prize awarded thus far in Florida's weekly Lotto game, which began the first week in May, was a $26 million jackpot won Aug. 6. There have been no winners since that time.

Paul said she was "comfortable" with the new figure and added that lottery officials always work with low jackpot estimates. She said there is no way to predict where this week's jackpot might end up because a $52 million prize is "unprecedented" in the history of Lotto games.

Paul also said breaking the record was not involved in the decision to raise the jackpot, then joked, "I thought about going up to $51.5 million, but I can't put $51.5 million on a billboard. There isn't enough room."

The drawing for the winning numbers will be broadcast live in Florida Saturday night and that may make things a bit difficult for local television stations carrying a nationally televised football game that has intense Florida interest.

Paul said the winning ticket will be drawn in the middle of the game between top-ranked Florida State University and the University of Miami, ranked No. 2 in most polls.

Paul said if the number is drawn during a lull in the game, she expects local CBS affiliates to use an audio feed supplied from the drawing. CBS is broadcasting the game nationally.

She said if it occurs during a play, the stations might go to a split-screen to show the winning numbers.

"Our show is the highest rated minute of broadcast in Florida," she said, "and you've got a lot of people playing for a $52 million jackpot who will be watching the game. It will be interesting to see what happens."

Paul will be at the Orange Bowl because the Lottery Department is one of the contest's sponsors.

Vogt proposes option to collision coverage

TALLAHASSEE — Senate President John Vogt says if he is elected insurance commissioner, he will push a cheaper alternative to costly collision coverage for owners of older or inexpensive cars.

Vogt said Wednesday he would send the Legislature a bill allowing certain motorists to buy uninsured motorist property damage coverage instead of the more expensive collision insurance.

Vogt said his proposal would benefit mainly people who own older vehicles free and clear, such as elderly drivers, working people and people who use a vehicle only for hunting or fishing or similar occasional uses.

The policies would pay for repairs only when the other driver is at fault, but lacks insurance. Drivers who buy the cheaper coverage would have to pay their own repair costs if they cause an accident.

If the other driver has property coverage, Vogt's proposed coverage would handle any repair costs above the other driver's limits of coverage.

Vogt said his "fair guess" is that such policies could cost half as much as full collision coverage.

"You pay for it if you tear it up," he said of his proposal. "If somebody else tears it up and you'd like them to pay for it then this would be an attractive proposal."

A new state law requires motorists to carry property damage liability insurance effective Oct. 1, 1989. A task force is considering whether other types of coverage, including bodily injury coverage, should be required.

It is estimated one-third of Florida motorists carry no insurance, meaning drivers not held at fault in an accident must often pay for their own repairs. In Dade County, an estimated two-thirds of the drivers lack coverage.

Vogt acknowledged his proposal will appeal to fewer drivers when the new law takes effect, but even with stringent enforcement, an estimated 10 percent of drivers will still lack the mandatory property coverage.

Mack attack untrue, MacKay aide says

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Senate candidate Rep. Connie Mack was not telling the truth when he charged Rep. Buddy MacKay had tried to mislead the voters, a MacKay aide says.

MacKay campaign manager Greg Farmer said Mack knew he was playing fast and loose with the truth when he said MacKay had voted for congressional pay raises.

"What's he's saying is totally untrue. Connie knows that," Farmer said Wednesday. "To say Buddy MacKay supports congressional pay raises is just absurd."

In a morning news conference, Mack, a Republican, attacked an ad in which the Democrat MacKay said he voted against the last congressional pay raise.

"That TV commercial is misleading," Mack said. "In the six years Buddy MacKay and I have been in Congress together there have been seven separate bills on congressional pay.

"Buddy voted against a pay raise one time," Mack said, adding MacKay voted on six other occasions "for six separate bills calling for increases in congressional pay."

"The only thing he could possibly be talking about is an omnibus bill that included (raises for) social security, veterans and all federal employees," said Farmer. "We have never, never voted directly for a congressional pay raise."

Mack said he voted against all seven bills, largely because he believes Congress should not get a raise until it balances the federal budget.

Mack attacked Democratic Senate candidate Rep. Dan Mica on a similar issue last week. He said he believed congressional pay raises are an important issue and that it was not unusual for him to be attacking potential opponents before the Democrats have selected their candidate.

One Navy case draws to close, another begins

PENSACOLA — Two Navy men blamed in the drowning death of a recruit were expected in military court today, one to hear closing arguments in his court-martial and the other to hear the opening salvo in his.

Closing arguments in the weeklong trial of Lt. Thomas Torchia were scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. CDT at Pensacola Naval Air Station. Some additional matters in Torchia's case were to be handled at a morning session.

Meanwhile, Petty Officer Michael Combe was expected to learn today the decision of a military judge concerning motions filed in his case Wednesday. One was to dismiss on grounds the convening admiral was not impartial.

A similar motion was put before the court in Torchia's case, but was denied.

Combe, 28, of Tempe, Ariz., is accused of involuntary manslaughter, battery, and conspiracy to commit battery. He is the instructor who allegedly pushed the recruit under water while teaching him a training technique.

Like Torchia, he has opted for trial by jury.

In Torchia's case Wednesday, prosecutors produced two rebuttal witnesses.

Torchia, 32, of Princeton, Ill., is accused of failing to make clear to instructors that it is against the Uniform Code of Military Justice to use force to train recruits. He is also accused of failing to let Lee Mirecki drop the course upon request.

Mirecki, 19, of Appleton, Wis., had a panic-induced heart attack and drowned March 2 after instructors allegedly yanked him from an equipment rack and tossed him in a pool during a routine called sharks and daisies, where instructors act like survivors and try to pull students under water.

Prosecutors claim Torchia should have known Mirecki had a fear of water.

Defense attorneys claim Torchia was using the same teaching techniques used since 1983 and was not at pool side when Mirecki died.

After Mirecki's death the Navy closed the school and re-evaluated its procedures.

A lieutenant commander who helped revise a Navy swimming school's techniques after Mirecki's death testified Wednesday that a study showed that having instructors act aggressively is not a useful training tool.

"The use of force has absolutely no value or merit in water survival or rescue swimmer training," said Lt. Cmdr. Steve Matthews.

Matthews, a training specialist and water survival expert, said a review of rescues by the Navy over a five-year period showed that of more than 300 rescues only 17 victims were not able to assist in their own rescue.

Six panicked or acted in some manner that made rescue more difficult.

POLICE BRIEFS

Accused of rape

SANFORD — A 25-year-old man who allegedly raped a woman in Sanford Monday was arrested Wednesday on a complaint of aggravated sexual battery.

Cecil Lorenzo Daniels, of 1206 W. 15th St., Sanford, is jailed without bond. He was arrested at 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Sanford police station after the victim reportedly identified him in a police photo line up.

The woman told police she was grabbed from behind at about 9:30 p.m. Monday as she walked on railroad tracks near Crooms School of Choice. The woman passed out and when she regained consciousness she said she was raped, the arrest report said.

Woman turns in her brother

SANFORD — A man who allegedly told his sister that he robbed a Sanford convenience store Monday is jailed today on complaints of armed robbery and aggravated battery. The sister reported the suspect's claim to police.

William Dale Postema, 28, of no address, was arrested at 12:20 a.m. today at 116 E. 17th St., Sanford.

Postema, who is held on $4,500 bond is accused of robbing the Handy Way at 301 E. 25th St., at 10:59 p.m. Monday. The store clerk told police she was injured when the knife-wielding robber pushed her away from the cash register.

CCIB arrests 3 after search of house

SANFORD — City County Investigative Bureau agents arrested Timothy Kevin McLaughlin, 27, on complaints of trafficking in more than 150 grams of cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia and marijuana after searching his house about 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The agents armed with a warrant, searched McLaughlin's house at 180 Pinecrest Drive and report finding two empty kilo-sized cocaine packages. They said indications are that the packages held 4.4 pounds of cocaine with an estimated wholesale value of $50,000.

Also arrested at the scene on complaints of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana were James Michael McLaughlin, 30, of 2765 Richmond Ave., Sanford, and Richard E. Erb, 28, of 649 Cypress Lane, Winter Springs.

Timothy McLaughlin is held without bond and the other suspects are held in lieu of $500 bond each.

Man arrested in wife beating incident

SANFORD — A man who allegedly pulled his wife from bed and battered her at about 1:50 a.m. today was arrested on a complaint of battery-spouse abuse.

Anthony Oliver Moore, 31, of 417 W. Third St., #4, was arrested at home. Police said he admitted he attacked Carolyn Moore and allegedly threatened to kill her when he is released from jail.

Suspected drug dealer arrested

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man who allegedly sold marijuana to an undercover Altamonte Springs policeman twice Tuesday was arrested when the agent returned to his house for a third buy at about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Thomas Casey McNamara, 22, of 976 Leward Place, Altamonte Springs, was booked on two counts of sale of marijuana, three counts of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. He is held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Burglary suspect arrested

WINTER SPRINGS — Winter Springs police report a juvenile co-defendant in one case led them to arrest an 18-year-old man reportedly involved in two burglaries.

Kelsey K. Gabbard, of 55 S. Edgemon Ave., Winter Springs, was arrested at home at 11:43 a.m. Wednesday on a complaint of burglary. He and the boy are accused of stealing a purse from a car at 617 Pearl Road, Winter Springs on Aug. 18. The boy was arrested shortly after that incident and reportedly implicated Gabbard, who is also accused in a July 26 burglary to the Missing Children's Center, State Road 434, Winter Springs. Complaints of burglary and theft in that case were added against him following his earlier arrest Wednesday. He is free on $2,000 bond.

Accused of stealing guns

SANFORD — A man who allegedly sold three rifles stolen in Volusia County was arrested after one of the guns was recovered from a Sanford pawn shop.

Russell Lee Wilcox, 18, of Orange City, was arrested after questioning at the Seminole County sheriff's office Tuesday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies reported the three guns stolen Aug. 2 were pawned at J.D. Pawn Shop the next day. Wilcox is held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Cited with driving under the influence

SANFORD — The following persons were arrested on counts of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

• Donald Allen Bradfute, 26, of 80 Lancelot Court, Casselberry, was arrested at 11:11 p.m. Wednesday after another motorist with a pickup truck pulled Bradfute's vehicle off of railroad tracks near State Street and State Road 436, Longwood. Police report Bradfute told them he thought the railroad track was a road when he turned his car onto it and the vehicle got stuck.

• Robert James Conley, 46, of 725 Mahoney Drive, Casselberry, at 2:41 p.m. Wednesday after he was found passed out in his car with the key in the ignition at Grace Church, 1111 Tuskawilla Road, Winter Springs.

• Jennifer Lynn Angle Wright, 26, of 854-D Orienta Ave., Altamonte Springs, at 1:12 a.m. today after her car was in an accident on Lake Mary Boulevard at Interstate 4, Lake Mary. She was also booked on a count of careless driving.

Burglaries and thefts reported

SANFORD — A rubber armed with a knife stole $233 from the Amoco station, 8000 U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, at about 8:40 p.m. Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

David Armito of Orlando reported to sheriff's deputies Wednesday that tools valued at about $800 were stolen from his car on Aug. 26 while it was parked at the Red Bull Restaurant, U.S. Highway 17-92, Maitland.

• David Scott Woods, 615 S. Park Ave., reported to police the theft of rings, watches, a necklace and cash, total value $411, from his residence sometime Tuesday.

• John James, 318H Palmetto Ave., reported to police the theft of a television, value $210, from his residence sometime Tuesday.

Hughes leads opponent in campaign contributions

By CAROL RUMSEY
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Schools Superintendent Bob Hughes leads opponent Duane L. Doddington in campaign contributions for the July 30 through Aug. 12 reporting period.

The superintendent added $315 in cash contributions this reporting period to the $1,135 already collected. Together with $1,400 in loans, Hughes has a total of $2,855 in contributions. He has spent $2,262.52 on the campaign.

Hughes will be seeking his third term as superintendent of Seminole County's 27 elementary, nine middle and six high schools, plus two exceptional education centers and one alternative education center.

Doddington, a Casselberry resident and teacher at Altamonte Elementary, reports a total of $2,500 in contributions, with no funds received during this reporting period. Doddington has so far spent $2,031.47 on his campaign.

Board member Nancy Warren, District 2, is also seeking her third term, and is leading opponent Dan Ellis in campaign contributions. Warren received $450 this period in addition to the $150 she had previously received. The cash contributions, together with $650 in loans, give Warren a total of $1,250 in campaign funds. She has spent $550.98.

Ellis, an Orange County high school teacher, was not required to file a report because he has neither received or spent funds during this reporting period.

Wesley W. Pennington, who is challenging Board Chairman Joe Williams for the District 3 seat, took the lead with a total of $800 in campaign contributions. Pennington received no campaign funds during this period, and has so far spent $550.98 on his campaign. This is Pennington's first run for a school board seat. He has his own business, Designer Services Group in Orlando, and has served on the national board of directors for STRAIT, a drug-abuse program for young people.

Williams, received $125 in cash contributions this reporting period. Together with $600 in loans, Williams has received a total of $725 in campaign contributions, and has spent $550.98 on the campaign. Williams is currently serving his first term on the board.

Accused of exposure to cheerleaders

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A 24-year-old Altamonte Springs man was arrested by Longwood police Wednesday after he allegedly exposed his sexual organs to five Lyman High School cheerleaders.

Donald Lorenzo Thomas of 311 Salina Drive was arrested about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday after police, who had the suspect under surveillance, chased Thomas from the school.

He was captured on County Road 427 at Charlotte Avenue and brought back to the school, where five cheerleaders, ages 14 and 15, reportedly identified him as the suspect who exposed himself to them about 45 minutes earlier.

Thomas is was booked on five counts of committing a lewd and lascivious act in the presence of a child, battery on a policeman and resisting arrest, without violence.

Police were called to the school about 3:30 p.m. by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy who reported that at about 1:30 p.m. a man had watched the cheerleaders practice and exposed his sexual organs.

Police watched as Thomas allegedly approached the girls a second time and confronted him in a school auditorium. Thomas reportedly refused police orders to "freeze," and ran after hitting a policeman in the chest.

Capt. Terry Baker said Longwood Police have been working with Lyman High School officials because of complaints that on previous occasions a man had been exposing himself in front of the cheerleaders as they practiced between the school buildings.

Discovery astronauts say they're ready for action

United Press International

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The shuttle Discovery crew is ready for action after successfully finishing a 56-hour simulated space flight exercise, complete with problems to test the astronauts' skills, the flight director says.

"The team's ready to go," Milt Hefflin said. "We'd like to do it tomorrow, yesterday if we could."

The computer exercise, completed Wednesday, was aimed at preparing the astronauts for the first post-Challenger shuttle mission. It included a mock space walk to free a troubled satellite, a stubborn hatch lock and a landing gear tire leak.

The Discovery and its five-man crew is expected to lift off for a four-day mission in late September to launch the $100-million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite and conduct other scientific experiments.

"The pace of this simulation appears to be a much more confident, relaxed pace," Hefflin said. "I think that's just a sign of the fact that these folks are ready to fly, and they're feeling very good about what they're doing. They're ready to go."

During Wednesday's walk in a swimming pool at the Johnson Space Center, astronauts George "Pinky" Nelson and John "Mike" Lounge fixed a tilt table, used to aim and launch the satellite from the shuttle cargo bay. The pool is used to simulate weightlessness.

The high-tech drill, which ends today, marked a final chance for the astronauts and flight controllers to practice in such detail.

A computer failure contrived by NASA engineers sent the TDRS satellite tumbling out of control shortly after it left the shuttle. Ground controllers later repaired the computer and regained control of the satellite, settling it into a proper orbit.

The TDRS satellite will be used to track and communicate with shuttles and satellites in Earth orbit. It is identical to one destroyed aboard the shuttle Challenger when it exploded Jan. 28, 1986, killing seven astronauts.

Nelson and Lounge were also confronted with a troublesome latch that locked them out of the crew cabin after they spent nearly four hours working to launch TDRS.

The other three astronauts participating in the longest simulation to date are Discovery Commander Frederick Hauck, co-pilot Richard Covey and astronaut David Hilmer.

Another less crucial problem with a galley heater kept the astronauts from preparing a hot meal. But a leak from a water tank fitting and a slow air leak in a landing gear tire were of more concern, and the astronauts and mission control workers were exploring ways to fix the problems.

Nelson and Lounge entered the pool at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday — after the first attempt to launch the TDRS satellite failed Tuesday.

"They manually tilted the table, went back into the airlock, the payload was deployed, and then they went back out of the airlock and secured the table back into the stowed position," said Kyle Herring, a space center spokesman.

A latch on the airlock hatch then failed, preventing Nelson and Lounge from immediately rejoining the other three shuttle astronauts. They remained in the airlock for some time trying to repair the latch.

Flight controllers later decided to increase air pressure to hold the hatch tight while the shuttle is in space. But the astronauts eventually will have to fix or secure the hatch to prevent it from popping open during the simulated return to earth Thursday, a NASA spokeswoman said.

A firm launch date for the first post-Challenger mission will not be announced until a flight readiness review Sept. 13 and 14, but NASA hopes to get Discovery off the ground between Sept. 26 and Sept. 29.

The crew plans to fly to Florida next Tuesday to participate in the three-hour test Sept. 8 at launch pad 29B, where the Challenger lifted off on its ill-fated mission.

Carlucci rejects proposals to correct Pentagon fraud

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci today rejected congressional proposals to correct abuses uncovered in the Pentagon fraud scandal, saying lawmakers should put their own house in order first.

"The last thing we need is a legislative rush to reform that produces not solutions but simply new and different problems — and deprives us of some of the strengths of the current system," Carlucci told the Baltimore Council on Foreign Affairs in a prepared speech released by the Pentagon.

The defense chief proposed five ways for Congress to streamline its committee structure and its process for approving military budgets in order to reduce the chances that lobbyists could change weapons programs to their benefit.

Carlucci balked at "reform proposals now circulating on Capitol Hill" that would create a weapons agency and an inspector general independent of the Pentagon in addition to trying to close a revolving door of officials moving between private industry and the Defense Department.

Pedestrian killed when struck by car

LONGWOOD — A woman was killed Wednesday morning when she was struck by a car as she walked in the roadway of State Road 434.

A Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said the woman, whose name was not available this morning, was walking on the road near Champion Avenue when she was struck by Janet Conchelon, 43, of Longwood, who was driving west. The pedestrian died later at Orlando Regional Medical Center after life-saving efforts failed, the spokesman said. No charges have been filed.

The woman was identified by her husband this morning, the spokesman said.

Buck passing must stop now

The quest for an answer as to why William Clark Court was allowed to deteriorate to its present condition has evoked responses likened unto the fairy tale characters who repetitiously state "No, not I." However, regardless of the responsibility for the present condition, the challenge lies in remedies for the future.

We must reject totally the concept cited by Elliot Smith, executive director of the Sanford Housing Authority who said with reference to William Clark Court, "I don't think people who need public housing have a problem living there." This is a biased, elitist attitude that adds to the problem rather than contributes to a solution.

The city of Sanford has six public housing projects. The fact that a citizen lives in a project should not be a demeaning experience and certainly should not be interpreted as acceptance of living conditions that are unsafe or unhealthy within homes described as dilapidated. William Clark Court is the oldest of the projects, dating back 34 years. This age has been used as an excuse for some of the conditions. Yet there are many private homes in Sanford that are much older, yet through proper maintenance, are in excellent condition. Most of the adverse criticism directed toward that housing project was based on conditions wrought by neglect, not age.

The property is owned by Sanford, operated by the Sanford Housing Authority, and partially funded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, a federal agency. Maintenance is the responsibility of the housing authority but this does not abrogate the city of its obligations in the matter.

Perhaps the residents need liaison with the housing authority through established lines of communications. Perhaps city commissioners need to take closer looks at the property and personnel responsible for maintenance. Perhaps the residents need to do more on their own. Certainly the drug situation in the areas must be addressed and effectively dealt with immediately.

A series of "perhapes" does not offer a solution but merely raises more questions. But this is necessitated by the lack of definitive answers to certain "whys" of the past.

Residents of the six housing projects have a need to take pride in their homes and their neighborhoods. This is difficult at the present time. Residents need the assistance given by government through such projects but need not be treated as people lacking in dignity and pride.

The time has come for Sanford city commissioners to take direct action in this matter. Acting in concert with the city manager, an analysis can be made of the conditions of the projects, then goals and objectives can be set. If a clearly defined program of action is established requiring the cooperation of all parties — Sanford, the housing authority, HUD and residents — then progress can and will be made.

It's time for "We can," not "No, not I."

How competent is George Bush's staff?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — To seasoned political operatives from both parties, the Dan Quayle affair seriously calls into question the competence of George Bush's campaign staff.

According to campaign sources, Bush and his senior advisers sat down only the week before the convention to discuss his No. 2 choice. Bush listened and took notes, but did not participate in the discussion. His staffers ranked the half-dozen or so potential choices from what had become Bush's "short list."

By some accounts, Quayle ended up third on the list of vice presidential prospects. No one is saying who Nos. 1 and 2 were, but it is generally accepted that they were Sen. Bob Dole and Rep. Jack Kemp.

Not choosing Dole was reportedly Bush's decision and one that surprised many close to him. Most Bush aides came away from the pre-convention selection meeting sure that the choice would be Dole.

Campaign insiders say that one of those high on the list of potential running mates was finally dropped because of something discovered in the background investigation that might cause trouble. Although the campaign has said publicly that nothing adverse was discovered about Kemp, it is widely believed Bush dropped him for this reason.

There has also been widespread criticism of the way Bush went about checking the backgrounds of those who were in consideration.

The job was given to Robert Kimmitt, a 35-year-old former National Security Council lawyer and protégé of James Baker, now the campaign chairman. Critics say Kimmitt's background checks were superficial and that he was too inexperienced to recognize potential political pitfalls, such as Quayle's National Guard service.

Others charge that more experienced hands in the Bush camp should have been able to forecast the problem. But some on the campaign say the real fault lies with Bush's last-minute decision and sudden announcement, which surprised many.

Not choosing Dole was reportedly Bush's decision and one that surprised many.

Bush's advisers had been split for months over the timing of the announcement. Some argued the announcement should be made the week after the Democratic convention to take the spotlight away from Dukakis. Others argued that the announcement should be made at the last minute to build up interest in the convention.

Bush chose to go with the latter advice, saying he would delay his announcement to the third or fourth day of the convention. Then a debate broke out among Bush's advisers as to whether this would result in Bush's critical acceptance speech being overshadowed by his No. 2 choice.

The result was that Bush, sweating in the hot midday New Orleans sun — useless, in short sleeves and looking very un-presidential — suddenly made the announcement, and a dazed, nervous Dan Quayle bounded up from the audience looking, as one commentator put it, like a winner on "Let's Make A Deal." Next morning Quayle was rushed into a news conference for which he was totally unprepared.

Lee Atwater, who served as Bush's campaign chief until Baker took over after the convention, has reportedly told friends that he welcomes the addition of Baker because Bush has often been loath to accept staff advice.

GEORGE F. WILL

Be good, or be gone

WASHINGTON—Being a Democrat, pollster Peter Hart understandably relishes describing George Bush's "mildewed" running mate, around whom there hangs, Hart says, an irremediable odor. However, a campaign is in crisis not when criticism of it is savage but when defenses of it are as weird as New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu's. He says the Quayle controversy will be a "net plus" for Bush because it will generate a pro-military backlash against Democrats.

The Dukakis campaign, which knows not to speak unless speaking will improve the silence, says not a syllable about Quayle, whose defense is handled by Bob Dole: "I assume you could find better qualified people, but Dan Quayle is—I think as you've indicated, he's a young man. He's a quick study."

But enough testimonials. Republican effectiveness in recent presidential elections has derived from the party's ideological clarity, its ability to put to the country an easily comprehensible message. The Quayle controversy is erasing that advantage.

Furthermore, the role of a Bush running mate must be to attack Michael Dukakis. Quayle's week on banana peels has blunted his lance.

He is particularly diminished as a spokesman on defense issues. Will he be reduced to talking about the worker-retraining legislation he co-authored with Ted Kennedy?

Since 1900, 38.6 percent of the presidential nominees have previously been Vice Presidents or vice-presidential nominees. Since 1960, the figure is 57 percent. Six of the last 15 Presidents were Vice Presidents first. Hence the growing insistence that running mates show reassuring substance. Bush, perhaps divulging a hitherto secret Republican criterion for vice-presidential aspirants, boasted to the Veterans of Foreign Wars that Quayle has never, not once, burned an American flag. But even with that virtue attested, Quayle should do two things.

First, he should deliver a "Checkers speech." It need not be as mawkish as the one by which Nixon saved his place as Eisenhower's running mate in 1952. However, it should be equally personal. It should reveal the quality of the inner life beneath the candidate's comely surface. The issue is no longer just his National Guard episode. He—his sensibility and gravity—is the issue.

The confused and passionate nature of the controversy, and the number of men now in middle age whose lives were touched by the questions involved, make the moment ripe for a thoughtful talk. It should explore the moral ambiguities that proliferate when a democracy with much less than universal conscription gradually enters a limited war in which the very idea of victory is problematic and policy ("graduated response" and all that) suggests that the war might not be important enough to be worth winning.

Such a speech could serve the second task that the Bush campaign must accomplish quickly. Quayle needs a stature transfusion. They should get him away from state fairs, which are odd venues for shouting enthusiasm about strategic-defense technologies. He should be put into more sedate settings, such as the Economic Club of Chicago or the Los Angeles World Affairs Council. There, he should take advantage of his new advantage—the low expectations for him—and deliver himself of serious thoughts.

He is young and looks younger than he is. He has an easy manner that suggest he might have come far on social graces alone and that almost everything, not just a position in the National Guard, has come with too little hard work. However, he has serious accomplishments.

Some of his critics, some of whom are not noticeably heavier than helium, say he is a lightweight. They should sample the work he did in mounting sustained, complex, technical criticism of the INF Treaty—the one Bush rhapsodized over before reading or understanding it. Although in the end he was not one of the five senators who voted against the treaty, he did much to slow the reckless rush toward an ill-considered START agreement. That rush was—fueled by a simplistic notion that any large cut in arsenals makes the world safer. Quayle knows better.

His reward was to receive the wrath of President Reagan, who said critics like Quayle were ignorant of the facts and accept nuclear war as inevitable. The next day Quayle delivered a scalding reply, terming Reagan's remarks appalling "nonsense." Quayle can bite.

But neither Bush nor Quayle can do anything positive until the wound in their campaign is cauterized. Between now and Labor Day, Quayle must accept the rule with which Bear Bryant greeted his football players at the beginning of autumn: Be good or be gone.

Handicapped needs ignored

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has shamelessly ignored the needs of handicapped students in America, despite a law protecting their right to equal education. The Department of Education knows that handicapped students are slipping through the cracks of the nation's classrooms. But complaints from parents are not answered, regulations are not enforced and violators are not punished.

In 1975, Congress passed the Education of the Handicapped Act. It was landmark legislation and envisioned a public school system in which handicapped students could sit side by side with their peers, not isolated, bused or ignored.

With the act came more than $1 billion a year to be distributed to state education agencies to meet the needs of the nation's 8 million handicapped children — ramps, elevators, special curriculums and teaching aids.

For the last three years, the federal Office of Special Education has monitored programs for handicapped students in 24 states. Every state was deficient, but the federal government took no corrective action. And no state ever lost federal funds for failure to comply with the act.

When those findings were unveiled at a congressional hearing, Rep. Major Owens, D-N.Y., chairman of the select subcommittee on education, said federal officials should "face fines or imprisonment for the lackadaisical, criminal way in which they just don't enforce the law."

While the federal government is sitting on the facts, parents across the country are raising their voices. Their litany says that the treatment of their children reflects the Reagan administration's attitude toward civil rights in general.

In 1982, the administration's task force on deregulation tried to weaken the regulations of the Education of the Handicapped Act. A massive protest from worried parents forced the task force to drop the issue. But, as one staffer on the House Select Education Subcommittee put it, the administration "failed to weaken the regulations so, instead, they have just failed to enforce them."

When Reagan took office, he gutted the federal staff that monitors special education programs. In 1980, there were 45 staffers. Today there are 20 positions, but many of those are not filled.

David Rostetter worked on the monitoring staff until he resigned in 1986. He told Rep. Owens' subcommittee that the program was plagued by incompetence and apathy. Staff members were "reprimanded" when they raised concerns about the efficiency of monitoring programs. Rostetter said, in five years, there have been six directors and seven deputy directors of the Office of Special Education Programs.

But Michael Herrel, executive administrator of the Office of Special Education Programs, told us his office has made great strides in creating job programs for handicapped students. He also defended the office's efforts to monitor state compliance.

The parents tell a different story. One told us that filing a complaint with a state or federal agency is like dropping a letter in a black hole.

Our associate, Jim Lynch, visited that black hole in the Department of Education and read the recent complaints. Most of those filed between October 1987 and March 1988 were from parents pleading with the federal government to investigate a complaint that a state agency had ignored.

Market moderate, prices dip

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 6.58 Wednesday, was down 11.56 to 2020.09 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 583-197 among the 1,242 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,510,000 shares.

Stock prices weakened Wednesday after the market failed to sustain an early advance that analysts attributed to a stronger dollar and bond market.

The Dow jumped about 12 points in the early going and then started to turn lower around midday. It managed to trim a 10-point deficit to less than two points before a small wave of selling took place in the final minutes.

"The bond market was a little more favorable as we started the day," said Jim Andrews, first vice president in charge of institutional trading at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia.

"In addition, when volume is this light, those people who hang around are generally a bit more positive than those who have decided to pack it in," Andrews said, adding that the Dow "ran up against some resistance at the 2040 area."

Dollar opens mixed, gold mostly higher

United Press International

The dollar was mixed today in light trading on major foreign currency markets after closing at a nine-month high in Tokyo. Gold was mostly higher.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar climbed to a nine-month high against the Japanese yen, closing up 1.73 at 136.70 yen, its highest level since Nov. 16 when it closed at 136.85 yen.

Dealers said the rise was due in part to remarks by Japan's Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa suggesting that Japan would not intervene to stop the current rise of the dollar.

The wide gap between U.S. and Japanese interest rates was also cited as a factor.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8785 West German marks, up slightly from Wednesday's close of 1.878.

The dollar opened in Paris at 6.3765 French francs, up from 6.365, and in Milan, the dollar opened at 1.393.50 lire, up from 1.392.00.

Labor productivity drops

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Non-farm labor productivity dropped 1.4 percent in the second quarter, the largest decline since the third quarter of 1986, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The revised figures for the second quarter show American workers produced 5.2 percent more goods than in the first three months of the year but they worked 6.6 percent longer hours to do so, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The decrease was the largest in more than a year, since a 1.5 percent decline in the third quarter of 1986, the bureau said.

Inflation also picked up smartly in the second quarter, jumping 3.7 percent as measured by the bureau's price deflator, following a modest 0.6 percent increase for non-farm business in the first quarter, the bureau said.

Hourly wages for nonfarm workers rose 4.2 percent in the second quarter but fell 0.6 percent when price increases were taken into account. That was the first decline in real hourly compensation since the second quarter of 1987, the bureau said.

Pacemaker manufacturer pleads guilty

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A Miami heart pacemaker company will pay $264,000 for selling defective devices and lying to the government, and four of its former executives face more than $1.8 million in fines and almost 300 years in jail.

A 43-count indictment charges the four men with conspiracy to misrepresent the quality of the pacemakers, the battery-powered devices that mean life or death to many people by regulating the heartbeat with electrical impulses.

The indictment was described by the Justice Department Wednesday as federal officials announced that Cordis Corp., as a business, had pleaded guilty to 24 criminal counts for selling defective devices and misleading the government. The government stressed that the pacemakers "involved in the case have long since been the subject of notification from Cordis to implanting physicians ... and are no longer on the market." Officials added that even among models found to be defective, "the vast majority did not fail in actual use."

Still, the indictment alleges that the four men sought to sell the devices "notwithstanding the fact that thousands ... were subject to the significant defect of the sudden loss of the ability to cause the heart to beat."

The four ex-executives are Harold Hershenson of San Carlos, Calif., executive vice president of Cordis during the period of alleged conspiracy from January 1980 to December 1985; John Pagonis of Coral Gables, Fla., vice president for corporate product assurance; and Dean Ciporkin of Miami and Stephen Vadas of Homestead, Fla., both of whom worked for Pagonis in 1984 and 1985.

differing description of the event charged. For example:

● On a charge he euthanized a dog not due for euthanization in retribution against an employee who spoke out at an Animal Control Board meeting, McIntosh wrote he did not recall euthanizing the animal, that it was the responsibility of then-shelter manager Cheryl Lauterback to euthanize animals.

● On the allegation that he described in gory detail an accident victim he saw to an employee whose husband had recently been killed in an auto accident, McIntosh wrote he did not give a gory description of an auto accident, but only said a person's eyes dilate similar to an animal's when they die. He wrote he was not aware the employee was disturbed by the description.

● On a charge he assigned an employee to clean cat cages, knowing she was allergic to cats and knowing she could work in another section of the shelter, McIntosh wrote he had made special provisions for her, including assigning her to the dog section until the summer heat began to aggravate her condition. He then moved her to the air-conditioned cat section where her condition improved, he wrote.

● On the allegation he reportedly told an employee her position would be eliminated, McIntosh wrote when he heard the position might be eliminated, he fought to keep her employed.

● To the charge he mismanaged the department's finances, McIntosh wrote he made efforts to collect funds owed the department from license fees collected by veterinarians and said the rebate program was not working because thousands of dollars in rebates were being paid out to people with $45 group licenses.

McIntosh's resignation ends nine months of turmoil that erupted in April with a series of resignations, including McIntosh's two top assistants, the animal shelter manager and the chief animal control officer. The resigned employees charged McIntosh was unfair to them and often contradicted the supervisor's orders.

McIntosh had previously worked for the county as animal control director and left under a cloud of allegations he discriminated against women in the department in promotions and had sexually harassed female employees.

The county conducted a review of the complaints and found no basis for them.

$189,750 or $8.25 per square foot.

The current lease agreement with Carriage Realty of Orlando for the present HRS location expires March 31, 1989, according to Stewart. "We will be moving out at the end of March and take occupancy the first of April," said Stewart.

Stewart said before taking occupancy of the Benchmark building, HRS will help design the office layout with architects for GLD, as part of the contract agreement.

HRS has 13,000 square feet of space at its present location.

are the first to be selected in what is expected to become an annual gator harvest.

The hunters, each of whom paid a license fee of $250, plus $50 if they chose an agent, will pay another $30 fee for each gator harvested. While those prices may seem a bit exorbitant, the successful hunter stands to make a tidy profit.

Current wholesale value of alligator meat is about $5 per pound and the hides sell for about $40 a foot. The animals are capable of growing to a weight of 500 pounds in some instances.

Gator meat spoils within four hours if not refrigerated and only state-authorized packing houses, of which there are a limited number, are capable of safely processing the kills. Therefore, hunters who bring in gators will have to rush to salvage their profits.

The average hunters' equipment is basic — a boat and a bangstick. The bangstick, a device often used by shark fishermen, is a hand-held rod loaded at the tip with a shotgun cartridge. The hunter strikes the animal sharply, normally at the top of its spine, to discharge the weapon.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Couple granted guardianship of Indian

TUHA CITY, Ariz. — A Navajo judge awarded an Indian baby to the white couple who adopted the infant from her mother, apparently ending a legal battle over whether the child should be raised in its native culture or white society.

Navajo Nation Children's Court Judge Manuel Watchman ruled Wednesday that a San Jose, Calif., couple be given permanent guardianship of little Allyssa Kristian Keetso because of the "true love and bonding between the child and the petitioners."

"The best interests of the child have been met," the judge said in granting the request of Rick and Cheryl Pitts.

Michael Nelson, lawyer for the Pitts and the 1-year-old child's Navajo mother, Patricia Keetso, said the couple were relieved at the decision, which grants Keetso visitation rights.

Keetso, 21, responded to an ad last year placed in the Navajo Hopi Observer by a San Francisco Bay agency that was soliciting babies for adoption.

She was put in touch with the Pitts and lived with them while she was pregnant. After giving birth to Allyssa on the Navajo Reservation, she gave the baby to the Pitts.

Weather conditions encourage firefighters

Despite improved weather conditions that encouraged firefighters struggling against major forest fires in or near Yellowstone National Park, at least two of the fires merged into a single inferno.

Spreading flames and new outbreaks pushed the total acreage ablaze today past the 1 million acre mark — greater than the size of the state of Rhode Island — in the tinder-dry American West.

In Oregon, the state's biggest fire will be allowed to grow until it reaches containment lines, while vast areas of the state have been closed to Labor Day campers, and hundreds of recruits are being trained to relieve weary firefighters.

With two new fires Wednesday in Montana and another in Washington, 65 major blazes were aflame over 1,055,410 acres in Western states outside Alaska, where more than 2 million acres of desolate scrub land was being allowed to burn harmlessly in the parched interior.

Study links psoriasis, brain tumors

WASHINGTON — Researchers are trying to figure out why people treated for severe psoriasis seem to have a much greater chance of developing brain cancer than the general population.

As many as 4 million Americans suffer from some type of psoriasis, a chronic skin disorder characterized by red, scaly patches with an unknown cause.

Now an 11-year study, sponsored by the National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases, has shown people with severe psoriasis to be five times more likely to develop brain tumors than others their age.

The study released Wednesday tracked about 1,300 people treated for severe psoriasis, defined as an affliction of more than 30 percent of the body.

"The number of CNS (brain) tumors in these subjects has developed at a far higher rate than should be expected," reported Dr. Robert Stern, the Boston dermatologist who led the investigation.

All the subjects had undergone at least one session of a combination of drug and ultraviolet light therapy, called PUVA, and most also had used topical tar shampoos and lotions to treat their discomfort, Stern noted.

Redgrave loses appeal to Symphony

BOSTON — The Boston Symphony Orchestra had the right to cancel a performance with actress Vanessa Redgrave to avoid protests by groups opposed to her support for the Palestine Liberation Organization, a federal appeals court ruled.

The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, overturning a ruling by a three-member panel of the same court, decided Wednesday that Redgrave may not seek civil rights damages for the cancellation of her contract to narrate Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex" in 1982.

The controversial British actress wanted to collect damages from the orchestra under the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act, but in a 3-2 ruling, the court found "that the ISO should not be held liable ... for exercising its free speech right not to perform."

Arts organizations had been concerned over the financial implications if they were forced to pay damages to performers whose contracts were canceled.

"We're gratified by the decision that has come today from the court of appeals on the suit brought against the Boston Symphony six years ago by Miss Redgrave," said George Kidder, president of the orchestra's board of trustees.

"This decision, we trust, will bring to a close a long and unhappy chapter for all concerned," Kidder said. "We are pleased that the decision appears to uphold the constitutional propriety of the difficult choice that the symphony felt itself obliged to make in concluding not to proceed with the performances of 'Oedipus Rex.'"

Genetics plays role in colon cancer

BOSTON — A finding that genetics may play a major role in colon and rectal cancer gives new support for screening for the second-deadliest form of the disease, researchers say.

Based on a study of 670 people from 34 families, researchers at the University of Utah estimated that an inherited susceptibility is involved in 50 percent to 100 percent of all colon and rectal cancers. Until now it was believed that only 5 percent to 10 percent of those cancers had a genetic component.

There are about 147,000 new cases of the cancer, called colorectal cancer, every year in the United States and more than 61,000 deaths, making it the second most common and deadly form of cancer after lung cancer.

"The evidence strongly suggests that an inherited susceptibility to ... colorectal cancer is common," the researchers wrote in reporting their findings Wednesday in The New England Journal of Medicine.

"Our study suggests that an underlying genetic susceptibility is present in the majority of persons with common colonic adenomatous polyps and colorectal cancers," they wrote.

The findings reinforce the recommendation that people from families with a history of this type of cancer undergo frequent examinations in an effort to diagnose the cancer in its earliest, most treatable stages.

NTSB will study possible engine failure in Delta airliner crash

United Press International

GRAPEVINE, Texas — Federal investigators were giving a "hard look" to the wrecked engines as the possible cause of the crash of Delta Air Lines Flight 1141 in which 13 people died, but are equally interested in learning how 94 people managed to escape from the burning wreck.

Lee Dickinson, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, said the "black box" flight recorders from the Boeing 727-200 would be examined today in Washington, D.C.

So far, Dickinson said, the only suggested cause of Wednesday's crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport was a problem with the jetliner's three Pratt & Whitney engines.

"We're obviously going to be taking a hard look at the power plants (engines), but we're not going to look at them any more or any less than any other facet of the plane," Dickinson said. "Our investigation will be a slow and tedious process, but we'll get the job done."

Thirteen people aboard the jetliner bound for Salt Lake City were killed in Wednesday morning's crash, among them three members of one family, two other couples and two flight attendants, but 94 survived.

Dickinson said that unlike the last Delta crash at the airport — Flight 191 in which 137 people were killed on Aug. 2, 1985 — investigators will be able to question flight crew members and dozens of survivors.

"One thing we're very interested in is why so many survivors got out. It's quite unusual," the NTSB spokesman said. "Hopefully the crew can tell us about what they did and how they felt and help us fit the pieces together."

"Hell, there must be a God," said incredulous paramedic Bob Downey who saw most of the survivors flee the burning wreck. "Nobody lives from something like this. But people did live. There were survivors. Amazing."

One of the survivors, Bernard Glim, 69, of North Port, Fla., said many passengers were injured by touching the searing hot fuselage as they leaped to earth.

The crash came three years after the Federal Aviation Administration ordered an investigation into Pratt & Whitney's JT8D engines because of reports that cracks in the combustion chambers of one engine contributed to a crash in Manchester, England, in August 1985 that killed 55 people.

Pratt & Whitney, after meetings with the FAA and NTSB, drew up a revamped list of service procedures and maintenance recommendations for the engines.

Flight 1141 was powered by a modified version of the JT8D engine. In Atlanta, a Delta spokesman said the three engines on the plane, which was built in 1973, were "fairly new" and not original equipment.

Flight 1141, which originated in Jackson, Miss., tried to take off at 9:03 a.m. Wednesday but crashed 1,000 feet south of the end of runway 18-Left.

Airport spokesman Joe Dealey Jr. said the pilot, Capt. Larry

Davis, 48, of Greenville, Texas, told the control tower by radio there was smoke and fire inside the plane and he was trying to abort the takeoff.

Witnesses on the ground said the front of the plane lifted up and the craft barely rose off the ground, then appeared to stall and slide back down tail-first. The tail exploded and the front fuselage slammed to earth, snapping the craft into three parts.

Some passengers escaped through emergency exits on one side of the plane. Others crawled out of a giant gash in the fuselage where the wings had been and dropped about 10 feet to the fuel-soaked ground, then moved as far as possible from the burning wreckage.

"When we got here, survivors were popping out of the wreckage like jackrabbits," said Ned Thurmond, an Irving police officer. "People were running scared and screaming off to the woods."

Surrogate parenting becomes illegal

United Press International

LANSING, Mich. — The country's first ban on surrogate parenting for pay became law today with the Michigan attorney general vowing to prosecute any violators even though the act still faces challenges to its constitutionality.

"If someone violates the law, they will be caught and charged," said Chris DeWitt, a spokesman for Attorney General Frank Kelley.

The law, approved by the Legislature June 9 and signed by Gov. James J. Blanchard June 26, makes it a felony to arrange a surrogate contract for profit and a misdemeanor for a mother or couples seeking a child to participate in one.

Under the act, all surrogate parenting contracts for profit would be unenforceable, although people who have negotiated and signed contracts before today will not be subject to prosecution.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed suit Aug. 4 to block the ban, contending it discriminates against men and violates the right of procreation. A Wayne County circuit judge will hold a hearing on the law Sept. 19.

The executive director of the ACLU's Michigan branch, Howard Simon, said he expected the attorney general's office would not prosecute anyone under the act until the judge rules on the suit.

"I presume the attorney general's office would refrain from any prosecutions," Simon said. "It would be a waste of his time and a waste of any court's time. And I think it would be unfair to anybody he prosecutes."

But DeWitt said the attorney general's office will press charges against anyone who breaks the law as long as it is on the books.

"The law goes into effect as of Sept. 1, and anyone who violates that law could face legal action," DeWitt said. "Obviously it's a situation that will be decided within the next couple of weeks, but as it stands now the law will be on the books."

Under the law, a couple can arrange to have a surrogate mother bear a child, but may not pay her for her services. The couple is allowed to reimburse her for medical expenses and other costs involved in bearing a child, such as maternity clothes, special foods and possibly even housing.

People arranging contracts, usually lawyers or physicians, can be charged with a felony and subject to a $50,000 fine and five years in jail.

Couples or surrogate mothers participating in a surrogate arrangement for profit can be charged with a misdemeanor and subject to one year in jail or a $10,000 fine.

Michigan is the first state in the nation to criminalize surrogate arrangements for profit.

Proponents of the law have said it was needed to protect the rights of children and that surrogate parenting is basically baby selling. Sen. Connie Binsfeld, the statute's sponsor, has called surrogate parenting contracts the commercialization of the birth process.

Opponents say the law is an infringement on a couple's constitutional rights.

"Surrogate parenting arrangements are often the last option left open to an infertile couple to have a child," Simon said. "I think it's wrong for the state of Michigan to come in with its heavy hand and prevent these people from having a family. I don't think the state has a right to ban it."

WORLD BRIEFS

Marcos has 10 days to answer petition

MANILA, Philippines — A court today granted Ferdinand Marcos, the exiled ruler seeking to return to the Philippines, 10 days to answer a state motion that would dismiss his petition to come home and defend himself in a graft case.

The government motion, filed at the opening of a hearing on Marcos's request to come home after 30 months exile in Hawaii, argued that the former president's petition raised foreign policy and national security issues that were beyond the court's competence.

Judge Romeo Escobar of the Sandiganbayan, or anti-graft court, said it was "premature" to rule on the motion since Marcos was not able to be present and granted him 10 days "to file a written opposition or comment" on the government's request.

Marcos filed his petition last week through his sister Fortuna Marcos Barba, seeking permission to attend a special proceeding Nov. 7 when former highways minister Baltazar Aquino is expected to testify about kickbacks allegedly paid to Marcos from 1978 to 1981.

The government has not yet filed criminal charges, which would give Marcos a constitutional right to return, but requested the November hearing to "perpetuate" the testimony of Aquino, who is in ill health. Aquino is not related to President Corazon Aquino.

Workers vow to defy Walesa

GDANSK, Poland — Angry workers at the strikebound Lenin shipyard accused Solidarity founder Lech Walesa of selling out to the government after he called on them to end their walkout today without achieving their primary goal — legalization of the outlawed union.

A fired Walesa, saying, "I would like this strike to be my last," asked the workers to end their strike after winning a concession from the Polish leadership Wednesday to discuss the revival of Solidarity.

Walesa said he would be at the sprawling Lenin shipyard, birthplace of the Soviet bloc's first free trade union in 1980, at 8 a.m. today (2 a.m. EDT) to lead some 2,900 strikers out of the facility.

But shipyard workers, who demanded that Solidarity be legalized before ending their strike, reacted bitterly to the news. They accused Walesa of selling out and vowed to defy his call.

Israeli accidentally shoots soldiers

JERUSALEM — A Jewish settler traveling along an unlit West Bank roadway mistakenly shot and wounded two Israeli soldiers chasing Palestinians suspected of throwing a Molotov cocktail, the army said.

The accidental shooting Wednesday night came a day after Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said regulations should be eased to allow Israeli civilians to open fire on Palestinian stone-throwers.

In the occupied territories Wednesday, three Palestinians died after clashes with Israeli troops and at least 16 were wounded by army gunfire, Palestinian sources said. The army confined more than 100,000 Palestinians to their homes under military imposed curfews scattered across the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The two soldiers were shot on an unlit road between the Israeli settlements of Efrat and Teqoa about 8:30 p.m. as they chased Arabs suspected of throwing a firebomb, an army spokesman said.

General strike shuts down Rangoon

RANGOON, Burma — A half-million Rangoon residents took to the streets today in support of a general strike aimed at ousting the authoritarian regime that shows no sign of yielding power despite three weeks of massive protests.

Government troops massed on the outskirts of the city but did not interfere with the protesters who chanted "Democracy now" and "We want our rights." The general strike shut down nearly all transport and commercial activity.

From United Press International reports

At least 17 feared dead in plane crash

United Press International

MEXICO CITY — A small passenger plane crashed in heavy rain along the rugged Pacific coastline, and officials fear as many as 20 people may have died aboard the twin-engine craft.

Officials called off rescue operations because of heavy rain late Wednesday at the wreckage of the Brazilian-made airplane some 12 miles from the Pacific Ocean near Cerro de la Calera in Michoacan state.

Jose Alberto Zamora, commander of Uruapan airport, said the twin-turbo prop plane left Uruapan, 140 miles east of Mexico City, at 9:54 a.m. Wednesday.

He said authorities found the plane, a Bandeirante class craft of the Embraer company which seats from six to 21 passengers, about nine hours after it left Uruapan.

The plane operated by the recently formed state-run Transporte Aero Federal was heading to Lazaro Cardenas, a port city 100 miles south of Uruapan. The company was formed in late May from Aeromexico, which went bankrupt in April.

"We don't know if there are any survivors," Zamora told United Press International in a telephone interview.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known, he said.

Ricardo Pantoja, a state policeman, said people near to where the plane went down reported hearing a loud explosion when the plane crashed, which has led police to believe there were no survivors.

Zamora said there were 17 passengers on the craft but a reporter from the Mexico City Novedades newspaper quoted government officials saying as many as 20 were aboard the plane. All people aboard were feared dead, Zamora and the newspaper report said.

The military and transport police rushed to the scene but heavy rain that fell throughout the day impeded rescuers from landing near the crash site in the rugged Sierra Madre del Sur range.

"Police have not yet started rescue operations because of bad weather in the area," the Novedades reporter said.

It was the worst crash in Mexico since a cargo plane carrying an equestrian team crashed July 30, 1987, on a busy highway outside of Mexico City, killing 54 people, all but one on the ground. On March 31, 1986, 166 people died when a Mexicana flight destined for Los Angeles crashed in eastern Michoacan.

Canadian House passes trade treaty

United Press International

OTTAWA — The House of Commons approved legislation implementing the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement but the opposition-dominated Senate vowed to delay a vote on the bill until after a general election.

The elected House of Commons, where the Conservatives have 212 of 282 seats, easily passed the legislation Wednesday in a 177-64 vote but only after the Liberals interrupted the proceedings, waving the Canadian flag, singing the national anthem "Oh Canada" and angrily demanding an election.

It was one of the wildest displays in the past four years in Parliament, where a leader in the Liberal-dominated Senate predicted the treaty would win speedy passage if Conservative Prime Minister Brian Mulroney is returned to power.

The Senate, which has the power to amend or kill the legislation, agreed to a request from Liberal leader John Turner to delay its vote until after a general election. Mulroney is expected to announce a general election on or shortly after Sept. 17, the fourth anniversary of his party taking power.

Allan MacEachen, another Liberal Senate leader, said the free trade legislation was "very important" to Canada and the Senate "ought to have a mandate from the Canadian people."

The agreement, which took two years to negotiate, would dramatically alter the way Canada and the United States do business with each other. The two countries exchanged $160 billion in goods and services last year, the largest trading partnership in the world.

The agreement, which must be ratified by the U.S. Congress and the Canadian Parliament before it can take effect Jan. 1, would eliminate most tariffs on bilateral trade within 10 years. Canada will lose about $1.6 billion in tariffs. Canadian tariffs are two to three times higher than American tariffs on Canadian products.

Dukakis questions Bush's environmental record

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Michael Dukakis, calling George Bush part of the Reagan administration's "environmental wrecking crew," criticized the Republican's environmental record, particularly on offshore oil drilling in California.

Arriving late Wednesday to begin a four-day mostly West Coast campaign swing, the Democratic presidential nominee lashed out at Bush's claim in a Michigan speech that he had been an environmentalist all his life.

"Coming from somebody who was one of the charter members of the environmental wrecking crew which went to Washington in 1981, that's very strange indeed," Dukakis said.

One day after unveiling his environmental agenda for the presidential race, Vice President Bush scheduled a visit today to polluted Boston Harbor on the home turf of Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor.

Wednesday in Michigan, Bush told an audience on the shore of Lake Erie, "I am an environmentalist. Always have been, from my earliest days as a congressman ... and I always will be, to my last days as president."

The Republican candidate endorsed the idea of a world conference on environmental hazards such as acid rain, global warming and ocean pollution.

Dukakis ridiculed the "election-year conversion" of his White House rival after almost eight years of serving with President Reagan in "doing everything they could to kill the Clean Water Act."

Speaking to reporters at Los Angeles International Airport before heading Wednesday night to a $5,000-per-person fund-raiser in exclusive Bel Air, Dukakis said he was "particularly concerned" about his opponent's position on offshore oil drilling — a subject of great importance to voters in California, which is expected to be a key battleground in the fall campaign.

"I remember after months and months he (Bush) finally said in California that he'd oppose it," Dukakis said. "Last week in Texas, he said he was for it. He's going to Boston tomorrow — I'm not sure what his position is going to be."

Dukakis, who during the last two weeks has found himself continually responding to Bush's campaign offensive, said the nation needs a president "who understands how important our environment is, how important our quality of life is, a president whose environmental policy doesn't change with the time zones."

"I have a record — on clean water, on clean air, on expanding open space and recreation," said Dukakis, who opposes additional oil drilling off the California coast. "I've fought the fight on offshore oil for a long time, and I want to be a president who can ... make sure all of us live in a clean, safe environment."

Bush takes environment issue to rival turf

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush, taking a new campaign issue to his opponent's turf today, is trying to break from the administration's record by promising to pursue an aggressive environmental agenda as president.

One day after unveiling his agenda on the Michigan shore of Lake Erie, Bush decided to leave from the nation's capital this morning for an appearance at polluted Boston Harbor — a photographic opportunity to parlay his new stance into criticism of opponent Michael Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor.

Dukakis, beginning a West Coast campaign swing, ridiculed the "election-year conversion" of his White House rival after almost eight years of serving with President Reagan in "doing everything they could to kill the Clean Water Act."

But Bush, clearly trying to divorce the Reagan record, outlined some specific ideas in the Michigan campaign appearance Wednesday, his first major statement on the environment since his Republican presidential nomination last month.

"I am an environmentalist," he asserted. "Always have been, from my earliest days as a congressman ... and I always will be, to my last days as president."

Noting that many major environmental problems require international effort, Bush took a page from this year's Democratic Party platform and pledged that in his first year as president he would convene a "global conference" at the White House to map strategy for cooperation.

It will include the Soviets, the Chinese, the developing world as well as the developed. All nations will be welcome," he said, "and indeed, all nations will be needed."

We will talk about global warming. We will talk about acid rain. We will talk about saving our oceans and preventing the loss of tropical forests. And we will act," he vowed.

Pressed by reporters to acknowledge he was proposing "stronger policies than the Reagan administration policies," Bush said only, "These are George Bush's policies. This is what I'll do when I'm elected president."

On the key subject of acid rain, however, Reagan's loyal deputy indisputably rejected current policy. The president has been hounded by environmentalists for insisting more studies are needed before working to curb the industrial sources of acid rain — but Bush declared "The time for study has passed."

We know enough now to begin taking steps to limit future damage," he said flatly. "Action we take today, even as scientific inquiry continues, is an immediate policy against future disaster. ... I as president, will be ready to move."

Bush said he would seek a national program "to cut millions of tons of sulfur dioxide emissions by the year 2000 and to significantly reduce nitrogen oxide emissions as well." He added, "No one region or group should be hit unfairly with the cost of addressing a problem that affects all of us."

IN BRIEF

FOOTBALL

NFL suspends Seattle's Taylor

SEATTLE — Starting Seattle Seahawks cornerback Terry Taylor will not start Sunday against Denver because he has been suspended for 30 days for violating NFL drug abuse rules for the second time, the Seahawks announced Wednesday.

President and General Manager Mike McCormack announced the club's first drug suspension and 12th overall in the National Football League, coming on the heels of New York Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor's suspension earlier this week.

"Terry Taylor has been notified that he has been placed on the club's non-football illness list for a period of 30 days effective today," McCormack said. "The action was taken after Terry Taylor violated provisions of the NFL's substance abuse policy. He has been instructed to remain out of the Seahawks' training facility until Sept. 30."

BASEBALL

Arbitrator confirms collusion

NEW YORK — An arbitrator ruled Wednesday major league baseball owners conspired in 1986 to restrict free agents from plying their trade on the open market.

Arbitrator George Nicolou, in an 81-page decision, agreed with the Major League Baseball Players' Association's charge that owners violated the basic agreement in dealing with free agents in 1986.

Included in the group of 1986 free agents were Jack Morris, Tim Lincecum, Andre Dawson, Ron Guidry, Willie Randolph, Rich Gedman and Doyle Alexander. Dawson was the only player to change teams and his contract with the Chicago Cubs was far below market value.

BASKETBALL

Capers transfers to Jax

JACKSONVILLE — Forward Chris Capers, who played three seasons at Florida, has enrolled at Jacksonville University. It was announced Wednesday.

Capers, 6-foot-6, 190 pounds, will be forced to sit out this year under NCAA transfer rules, but will play the 1989-90 season with the Dolphins, said JU Coach Rich Haddad.

"We're all very happy that another outstanding local player will be performing at Jacksonville University," Haddad said. "Chris has proven that he is an excellent collegiate player and should make an immediate impact for us when he becomes eligible to play."

Capers is a graduate of Ribault High in Jacksonville. He averaged 3.6 points and 3.3 rebounds last season, and led the Southeastern Conference in field goal percentage (.629) his sophomore year.

"I look forward to coming home," Capers said. "My main goals right now are to concentrate on my studies this year so that I can help JU get back into the NCAA (tournament) one more time."

OLYMPICS

Middleweight box-off set

COLORADO SPRINGS — An arbitrator Wednesday ruled to lift the disqualification of middleweight boxer William Guthrie, who failed a drug test while attempting to win a place on the U.S. Olympic team.

Arbitrator Neal Bernstein of the American Arbitration Association ordered a bout between Guthrie and Anthony Hembrick, the current Olympic team member at 165 pounds.

The decision was rendered after a day of testimony and presentations in St. Louis.

The Guthrie-Hembrick fight is scheduled for Thursday at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs. If Hembrick wins, he remains on the team. If Guthrie wins, the two box again Friday, the final day for submitting rosters for the Seoul Olympics.

Lang: UF's man at strong safety

Lake Howell grad earns starting spot for Gators

Bill Lang

By MIKE DAME
 Herald sports editor

GAINESVILLE — On a typical Saturday afternoon this fall, Florida free safety and All-America candidate Louis Oliver will be greeted by hordes of reporters in the locker room following Gator gridiron contests.

Off in the corner, however, will sit Florida's other starting safety, a quiet fellow who simply gets his job done without all the hoopla surrounding his secondary sidekick.

That man is Bill Lang.

"It (the attention Oliver is getting) doesn't bother me at all," Lang said in his usual low-key manner. "Louis has been there, he's proven himself to be a great player. He deserves it. I still have to prove myself."

The fifth-year senior has more than paid his dues. Following an impressive prep career at Lake Howell High School, Lang arrived at UF in 1984 and was redshirted. The 6-0, 194-pounder then spent the next two seasons as a backup to strong safety Adrian White, now a New York Giant. When White graduated, Lang appeared to be in position to inherit the starting role in 1987, but coaches opted to switch former Gator Jarvis Williams from cornerback to strong safety — leaving Lang as a backup once again.

"It made me lose some confidence in myself," Lang said. "I had to keep going out and realize that I still had to make a contribution to the team in a backup role and just do my best."

The two-year letterman was an integral part of special teams last season, however, as he was the second-leading tackler on the unit with 19 tackles. Fifteen of those were solo, ranking him first in that category and earning him a reputation as a hard hitter.

"I tried to be more reckless, just to prove myself to the coaches," Lang said. "I just wanted to fly around and make something happen."

Evidently, Lang did make an impression on the coaches, for they awarded him his first start at strong safety vs. Florida State and moved Williams back to cornerback.

"They were working me in first team that week, but I didn't really think I was going to start," Lang said. "They told me in the locker room before the game, I didn't feel any pressure. More than anything, I was on cloud nine — I was really pumped up."

That excited energy was evident on the field, where Lang registered nine tackles (five solo).

The performance in the FSU game and Lang's play this past spring and in fall practices have given first-year defensive coordinator Gary Darnell confidence in his starting strong safety.

"For what we ask Bill Lang to do, I think he's going to do a fine job," Darnell said. "He's an edge player — he's a guy that winds up on outside passes."

"He's not the inside-out guy that Jarvis (Williams) had the opportunity to be last year, but I know this: I think if we asked Bill to do that, I'm sure he'd do it."

Lang's primary role in Darnell's defensive scheme will be containment on the run, an assignment which the bruising safety relishes.

"I like contact," said Lang, who meshes 4.5 speed in the 40 with an 830-pound leg press. "I look to get that really good shot in on somebody in the coverage we're in now."

There can be little doubt that Lang is prepared for the upcoming season. As Lang puts it, "I've been ready for over a year now."

As for those young and inexperienced Gators on the roster, Lang

Young but determined

Lady Hawks bank on athletic talent in '88

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

CASSELBERRY — Lake Howell High School, a team that played mostly seniors all of last year, will hope to overcome its lack of experience with athletic talent and determination in the 1988 season.

Lake Howell will have just three returning varsity members from last year, only one of which was as starter, and will have four seniors on the squad. Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano is looking for last year's junior varsity players to step up and play well at the varsity level. The Lady Hawks graduated seven seniors from last year's squad.

"We're counting on last year's junior varsity players to make the transition to varsity competition," Luciano said. "That's the majority of the players so we're hoping they can come together fast and be playing well together by the end of the season."

Returning to the Silver Hawks this season will be juniors Heather Brann, probably the team's best athlete, and Dana Boyesen along with senior Debbie McDonough.

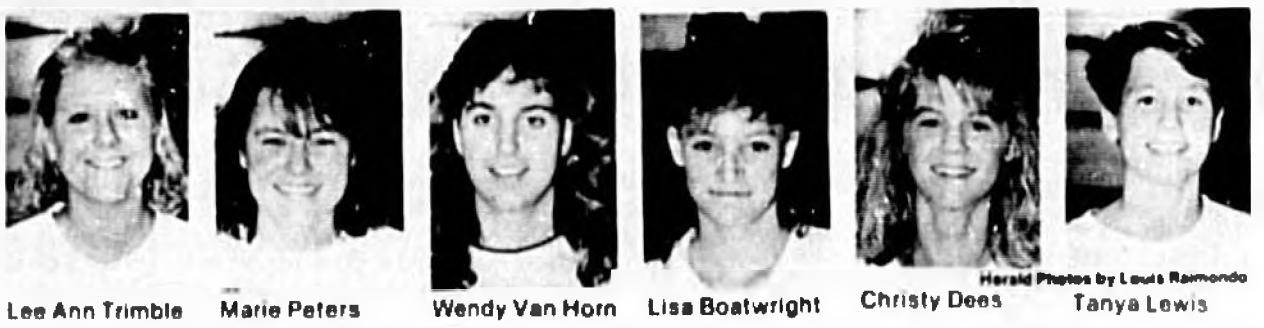

McDonough will be the team leader on the floor with Brann and Boyesen adding experience and power. Carolyn Dewar, Leslie Barton and Raquel Ortiz are the teams other two seniors and they will also be counted on to set leadership roles.

"Both Brann and Boyesen should do a lot for our team this year," Luciano said. "We'll need to have them set the examples and hope the others will follow."

Sophomores Christy Dees and Lisa Boatwright will also make strong contributions to the Silver Hawks attack this season along with juniors Marie Peters and Lee Ann Trimble and transfer student Windy Van Horn from North Carolina.

Lendl needs 5 sets to upend Mansdorf

United Press International

NEW YORK — For a night, talk of Steffi Graf's Grand Slam chances was supplanted by the spectre of a not-so-grand exit by defending U.S. Open champion Ivan Lendl.

The three-time titlist needed 3 hours and 47 minutes Wednesday night to overcome stubborn Amos Mansdorf 6-2, 6-7 (3-7), 6-4, 5-7, 6-0 in the first round. This marked the first time in 10 years at the Open that Lendl had lost an opening-round set.

Mansdorf, ranked No. 24, switched from a baseline game to an attacking strategy after losing the first set and won the second. Tiring, he did not come to net as much in the third set. Aggressive again in the fourth, Mansdorf led 4-0 before the more physically fit Czechoslovakian rallied.

"I let him off the hook a little bit and I was exhausted by the end of the fourth set," said Mansdorf. "Maybe, if I had more power for the fifth set..."

"We practice together a lot," said Lendl. "I know how long he can last. The longer it goes, the better my chances are."

"He's quick, but he's not fit enough. I think that's why I won the match," said Lendl, who had not been extended to five sets at the Open in three years.

The last time a top seed was eliminated in the first round was 1971, when John Newcombe lost to Jan Kodes. In the 20-year history of the open era, no defending champion has lost his first match.

Graf required just 42 minutes to dispatch Australia's Elizabeth Minter 6-1, 6-1 and extend to 29 her streak for consecutive match victories.

Minter admitted she had no hope of beating the reigning Australian, French and Wimbledon champion.

"I was just going to go out and have a good time," she said. "I wasn't going out expecting to win."

"It wasn't a good match," said the 19-year-old West German. "You could see the way she was intimidated."

Graf's record in 1988 is an imposing 55-2. She has lost just one set in 22 matches at the Grand Slam tournaments.

Two former champions, Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors, advanced with straight-set victories, as did Andre Agassi, the 18-year-old fourth seed who gained his first-ever victory at the Open.

A first-round loser the past two years, Agassi won his 19th straight match by eliminating qualifier Philip Johnson 7-6 (7-5), 6-3, 6-3. The crowd-pleasing teenager then admitted to an early case of nerves.

"This was a lot tougher for me than people realize," said Agassi. "In the sense that I haven't won a match here and being the American hope."

But he said his first match on the massive stadium court was a bit disorienting because "it's like trying to play at the Forum. You've got people doing their own thing. The match is kind of a sideshow."

Evert, a six-time champion playing in her 19th consecutive Open, took a few games to study first-time opponent Conchita Martinez of Spain, then dispatched her 6-4, 6-1.

"I had never seen Conchita play before, so going into the match I had nothing to base anything upon," said the third seed about the 16-year-old Martinez. "That is always dangerous."

Connors, a five-time champion appearing in his 19th Open, disposed of Agustin Moreno of Mexico, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, to the pleasure of the highly partisan fans.

New Spanish mackerel rules take effect Oct. 1

The Governor and the Cabinet voted unanimously to approve Marine Fisheries Commission rules for Spanish mackerel. These new rules will take effect October 1, 1988.

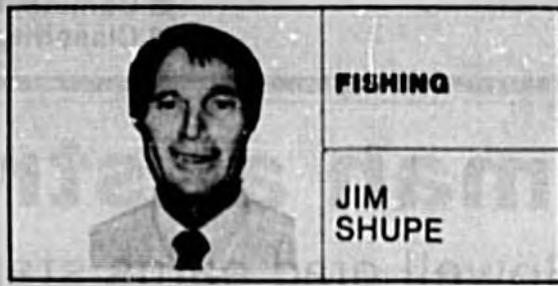

—Changing the season starting date to April 1 on the Atlantic coast (the current starting date is November 1).

—Eliminating the distinction between large and small boats and replacing it with daily limits of 1,500 pounds. Under the proposed rule, east coast fishermen would be restricted by 1,500 pound daily limits from April 1 through January 14, then allowed unlimited harvest until 90% of the quota was captured.

—Retention of the current recreational daily bag limit of four fish per person. However, the bag limit will be applied as a possession limit without regard for where the fish were caught, instead of the current rule that applies only to Spanish mackerel caught in state waters. An allowance to charterboat operators to temporarily possess more than the bag limit under certain conditions is included.

—Setting a statewide minimum gill net mesh size at 3 1/2 inches stretched mesh.

—Removal of bycatch exceptions given to nets having a stretched mesh size greater than 4 inches, and for gill net catches not exceeding 15 percent of the total whole weight of the species lawfully in possession of harvesters. The allowance for up to 500 pounds of Spanish mackerel as a bycatch of other lawfully harvested species is retained.

—Delaying the opening of the east coast large scale fishery to January 15 (this fishery currently opens December 15), then returning to 1,500 pound daily limits until the full quota was captured, and then going to 500 pound daily limits through March 31. West coast fishermen would be allowed unlimited harvest from July 1 until 85% (Southwest Coast) or 90% (Northwest Coast) of the quota was captured, then restricted to 1,500 pound daily limits until the full quota was captured, and then going to 500 pound daily limits through June 30.

—Retention of the current weekend closure to gill netting with certain exceptions.

—Requiring that Spanish mackerel be landed with heads and tails intact.

FISHING FORECAST

Word from Lemon Bluff is that the best action is with bream in Lake Harney. Bass fishing is slow due to extreme heat. Catfish continue to bite well in the bends and deep holes.

Steve Gard from Osteen Bridge reports that the specks have finally stopped biting around the pilings of the new bridge. They continued to bite well months after the "season" was over. Bream and catfish are the best bets, while Steve said that not too many anglers have been after bass.

September 1 looms very near for anxious snook anglers and one can expect shoulder-to-shoulder crowds at Sebastian Inlet when the season opens on that date. In the meantime, anglers have been catching and releasing good numbers of snook in the 8-15 pound class on jigs and lures.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports excellent fishing for snook and dolphin in 120'-240' of water. A few small kings are still being caught on Pelican Flats and SA. The buoy line is slow, with only a few barracuda and tripletail. Guides Troy Perez and Dennis Hammond report plenty of reds and trout on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

You can count on plenty of action at the New Smyrna jetties this weekend if the seas are calm. Sheepshead, flounder, bluefish, drum, and redfish are being caught in good numbers (the reds must be released) on both live and dead shrimp. The north side of the north jetties is one of the better spots to fish as it is out of the main current.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Fresh water fishing will be on the slow side until cooler weather makes the water temperature drop. In the meantime, the best fishing will be early in the morning or late in the afternoon.

Sutcliffe surprises Astros with homer

United Press International

Rick Sutcliffe employed the element of surprise against the Houston Astros Wednesday.

The Chicago pitcher belted a two-run home run and fired a six-hitter to spark the Cubs to a 3-1 victory over Houston.

"Obviously, it was a big surprise," said Sutcliffe of his homer. "I was as shocked as anyone in the park."

Sutcliffe's homer, his first of the season, fourth lifetime and first since April 24, 1986, came off Jim Deshaies, 9-11, and gave Chicago a 3-0 edge in the fifth inning. The right-hander also hit his fourth double of the season.

Sutcliffe, 11-11, struck out five and walked one in his 10th complete game. He retired 13 consecutive Astros from the third to seventh innings.

"I was real disappointed with my last outing (against Atlanta)," said Sutcliffe, the 1984 National League Cy Young Award winner. "I don't know what it is about that club. I just haven't fared well against them. Today I just wanted to be more consistent."

Deshaies surrendered three runs on five hits over six innings, and struck out seven. Deshaies, who came within six outs of a no-hitter in his last start Tuesday, has received only four Houston runs in his last five starts.

"We're just not being consistent offensively," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "Jim pitched a good game except for one pitch. Sutcliffe is a good hitter. It's a shame because Jim worked so hard to get two outs in that inning."

"What we need is to have more consistency on offense. It's going to take good pitching down the stretch and everyone up and down the lineup has to help us score more runs."

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the second on Damon Berryhill's RBI groundout.

WEDNESDAY'S BEST

NATIONAL LEAGUE
 ● Rick Sutcliffe, Cubs, 6-hitter, 2 for 3, homer, 2 RBIs
 ● Benito Santiago, Padres, 3 for 4, 2 runs
 ● Curt Ford, Cardinals, 3 for 4, 2 doubles, 2 RBIs
 ● Kal Daniels, Reds, 3 for 4, homer, 3 RBIs

The Cubs went ahead 3-0 in the fifth. Palmeiro opened with a double and stole third. Deshaies struck out the next two batters before Sutcliffe lifted the first pitch over the right-field fence.

"He (Lanier) had two situations — he could've put Darrin Jackson on base to get to me and he didn't," Sutcliffe said. "You just don't outmanage Hal Lanier."

Deshaies said he simply let a slider get away.

"It's real frustrating," he said. "I'm throwing as well as I have and don't have anything to show for it. I threw him a bad pitch. I tried to aim it instead of throwing it."

Elsewhere in the National League, San Diego defeated New York 6-3. St. Louis stopped Atlanta 6-4. San Francisco edged Philadelphia 3-2 in 11 innings. Montreal slipped by Los Angeles 4-3, and Cincinnati outpowered Pittsburgh 4-1.

In the American League, it was Milwaukee 4, Toronto 2, Oakland 7, Boston 2, Detroit 9, Chicago 3, Kansas City 1, Cleveland 0, Minnesota 10, Texas 1, New York 4, Seattle 1, California 7, Baltimore 5.

Padres 6, Mets 3

At New York, Roberto Alomar drove in two runs, including the tie-breaker with a sixth-inning double, to pace San Diego. Andy Hawkins, 13-10, allowed five hits and three runs over 6 1/3 innings. Mark Davis gained his 24th save. Terry Leach, 6-2, relieved Mets starter injured Sid Fernandez in the second.

St. Louis 6, Atlanta 4

At Atlanta, Curt Ford and Tony Pena each drove in two Dale Murphy had three hits, including a home run, but it wasn't enough as the Braves dropped a 6-4 decision to the Cardinals Wednesday night.

runs and St. Louis turned four double plays. Scott Terry, 6-3, allowed seven hits over seven innings, struck out one and walked two. Ken Dayley pitched one-plus inning, and Todd Worrell finished for his 27th save. Pete Smith, 7-13, was the loser.

Giants 3, Phillies 2, 11 innings

At Philadelphia, Ernest Riles drove in the winning run with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 11th. Bruce Ruffin, 6-10, came on in the 11th and walked Bob Brenly, who was forced at second. Ruffin walked Will Clark and Brett Butler. Kent Tekulve relieved and surrendered Riles' sacrifice fly. Scott Garrels, 5-7, struck out four in three hitless innings for the victory.

Expos 4, Dodgers 3

At Montreal, Tim Wallach singled home pinch runner Pascual Perez from second base with two out in the ninth inning to halt the Dodgers' five-game winning streak. Jeff Parrett, 11-3, was the winner. Alejandro Pena, 5-6, suffered the defeat.

Reds 4, Pirates 1

At Cincinnati, Kal Daniels hit a three-run homer to snap an eight-inning tie to lift the Reds. Daniels' homer came off Jim Gott, 6-5, and followed singles by pinch hitter Herm Winingham and Chris Sabo. Norm Charlton, 1-2, gained his first major league win. John Franco earned his 29th save.

Viola notches 20th victory

United Press International

In lieu of gaining ground in the standings, the Minnesota Twins took Frank Viola's personal accomplishment as compensation. Viola became the major leagues' first 20-game winner Wednesday night, coasting to a 10-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"It's nice to be the first to get to 20 this year," said Viola, 20-6. "I won't lie to you. But I want to be the first to get to 21 and 22. I don't want to stop here."

The left-hander had failed in his first two attempts at his 20th victory, but Texas proved an easy mark. The Twins scored five times in the second inning off Paul Kilgus, 11-12, who in his last start had retired the first 19 men he faced.

"We didn't do much to challenge them tonight," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said. "Viola is tough to deal with when he gets one or two runs ahead, much less the way it was tonight."

Viola allowed five hits over seven innings before giving way in the warm, humid weather to German Gonzalez. The only run scored off Viola was unearned, and he lowered his ERA to 2.36.

"He had some long innings and he got tired so out he came," Twins Manager Tom Kelly said. "It was the same old thing. He had his fastball, his curveball, and he was getting the ball over."

"When he first came to the majors he was throwing 100 pitches in five innings and couldn't do anything. Now he has command of his pitches and he is a tremendous pitcher. Throwing strikes is what it is all about in this league."

Athletics 7, Red Sox 2

At Oakland, Calif., Mark McGwire and Dave Henderson each homered to help the A's complete a three-game series sweep and win all six home games against the Red Sox for the first time. Storm Davis, 14-4, gave up two runs over 5 2/3 innings to pick up his ninth straight victory to tie the league

Brewers 4, Blue Jays 2

At Milwaukee, Don August, 8-6, and two relievers combined on a nine-hitter and Robin Yount drove in two runs with a single and a home run. Mike Flanagan, 11-12, allowed four runs on nine hits in seven innings. The left-hander has lost four straight starts and six of his last seven.

Royals 1, Indians 0

At Kansas City, Mo., Bill Pecota scored Danny Tartabull with a seventh-inning suicide squeeze, and Charlie Leibrant outdueled Greg Swindell. Leibrant, 10-11, earned his fifth straight victory. Swindell, 14-13, held the Royals hitless for 4 2/3 innings and finished with a four-hitter.

Tigers 9, White Sox 0

At Chicago, Jack Morris allowed five hits over eight innings and Lou Whitaker drove in three runs, helping the Tigers snap a four-game losing streak. Morris, 12-12, who had a one-hit shutout entering the sixth, struck out two and walked one. John Davis fell to 2-5.

Angels 7, Orioles 5

At Anaheim, Calif., Tony Armas doubled home Wally Joyner from third base with one out in the eighth inning, lifting the Angels. Bryan Harvey improved to 6-4 despite giving up a single that tied the score in the eighth. California won a season series against Baltimore for the first time since 1978, 7-5.

Yankees 4, Mariners 1

At Seattle, Rick Rhoden scattered six hits and Dave Winfield drove in three runs, helping New York Yankees snap its season-high six-game losing streak. Rhoden, 8-10, struck out five and walked two in his third complete game of the season, ending the Mariners' five-game domination of the Yankees.

FSU looks to erase memory of '87

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden has avoided nearly any mention of revenge in preparing his top-ranked Seminoles for No. 5 Miami. He realizes the memory of last year's heart-breaking defeat to the Hurricanes is quite vivid in his players' minds.

Anyone associated with the Seminole athletic program knows precisely the cost of the 26-25 loss to Miami in Doak Campbell Stadium. For the Seminoles, who blew a 19-3 lead in the game, it was their lone blemish and likely prevented them from competing for their first national championship.

Instead, the Hurricanes went on to a perfect 12-0 season and their second national championship of the decade.

"I haven't mentioned last year's game that much with our players, except from a mistake standpoint, (such as) if we make that mistake again, it will beat you," said Bowden, whose club plays Miami Saturday. "As far as making this a game of revenge, that's not my style. I don't believe in that. I think you can revenge yourself right out of a ballgame."

"It's inside their brains. I don't even have to bring that (last year's game) up."

His players agree. "Last year's game has got to be in our minds," nose guard Odell Haggins said. "We feel like when we lost by one point it cost us the national championship. It's going to be in our minds for a lifetime. Ever since the fourth game of last year, we've been ready for this season to start."

All-America cornerback Deion Sanders, a normally brash talker who has been unusually diplomatic before this game, said the Seminoles believed they were better than Miami a year ago.

Sammie Smith gained 189 yards rushing against the Hurricanes last year. Saturday's showdown represents the junior's first — and perhaps with a national TV audience in primetime, his best — opportunity to prove he belongs in consideration for the Heisman Trophy.

"Miami's always one of the biggest games of the year," he said. "Even if there was not so much at stake on a national level, intensity and pride would make it important."

Howell

"The best way to sum up our team is that we lack experience," Luciano said. "We're looking for good things to happen in the second half of the season."

Luciano's teams have had a history of turning in strong late season surges and with the group of athletes she has this season it should be no different.

Lake Howell has been one of Seminole County's most successful teams during the 1980s, and Luciano is hoping her squad can come together by mid season and finish strong.

"I just hope our playing skills keep improving and our overall play keeps improving," Luciano said. "With most of the girls on the team being good athletes I think we will improve and become a much better team by the second half of the season."

The Silver Hawks have relied on a power attack over the past few seasons and will hope Brann, Bovesen and Barton can provide the fireworks this season. Peters will be the team's quarterback along with Dewar and Ortiz.

"Leslie (Barton) and Heather (Brann) will have to provide our power with help for Trimble and Christy Dees," Luciano said. "Most of them are strong players but inexperienced. We're hoping Marie (Peters) and Carolyn (Dewar) can help out by setting things up."

Lake Howell will open its season at home against Evans on Tuesday, Sept. 6 with only the varsity team in action.

"We'll need to put things together quickly to be competitive," Luciano said. "This group has been able to pick up everything quickly so far and I hope that continues throughout the year."

Lang

feels they will be ready as well.

"Young really doesn't have much to do with it," Lang said. "If they have the heart and the desire, they'll go out and be winners."

Lang already has the heart, and even if he doesn't make the headlines, he's still a winner.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A neurologist diagnosed my condition as benign fasciculation about three months ago and said there was no need for me to return to him unless it got worse. It's bothersome but has not gotten worse. Do you agree with his treatment?

Harvard Medical Letter is one of the best. For an overview of diseases and treatments, I've found the Merck Manual (published by Merck Sharp and Dohme Research Laboratories) to be particularly useful.

(C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: Fasciculations are little, uncontrollable, wormlike movements of muscle fibers. They cause slight twitching and often are associated with neurological disorders. If the neurologist has been able, through testing, to document that your fasciculations are not due to a nerve disease, you can follow his advice. I cannot comment on his treatment, because he has not appeared to give you any.

Frankly, I worry about fasciculations: I have seen them as the first sign of serious nerve conditions, such as multiple sclerosis. Therefore, to be on the safe side, I suggest that you obtain a second opinion from an independent physician, preferably another neurologist. It can't hurt to be overly cautious, and I'm sure your first neurologist would welcome the second specialist's observations.

For more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Multiple Sclerosis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to: P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What medical books are available that should be in home libraries?

DEAR READER: To a large extent, this depends on a person's level of sophistication. Any general medical textbook is available for those who can understand the technical language in which it is written. Many medical schools publish regular medical reports that subscribers can order. The

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

There are different opinions as to the correct opening bid when you hold five spades and five clubs. Some players bid the stronger suit; others bid one spade with a strong hand and one club with minimum values. I prefer one club, since that always seems to leave the opener positioned to bid spades later. It's also true that when you open with one club, you frequently have the opportunity to tell partner that you have a five-card spade suit without getting too high in the bidding.

would have been pleasant against normal defense. But West had something better to do than lead the king of hearts. He felt that declarer would try to ruff clubs in dummy, so he led a low trump. Declarer had to give up a club trick, and back came another trump. Now South could ruff only one club in dummy and had to lose an extra club trick to go with his two diamond losers for down one. If the defense fails to lead trumps, South will be able to ruff clubs twice with the seven and eight of spades in dummy to make 10 tricks.

That's the way it happened with today's deal. South opened one club, rebid one spade and then bid spades again after North bid one over-trump. North optimistically invited game with his three-card spade support, and South accepted. Nice scientific bidding, and the result

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 2, 1988

Your possibilities for fulfilling several secret ambitions look very good in the year ahead. What you will accomplish will be due to the efforts of others as well as yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Possibilities for achieving your objectives are good today, provided you don't get in your own way. Look for smooth roads instead of rocky paths. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Disappointments can be avoided today if you are realistic about your goals. Don't aim above or below your mark. Stick to your target.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Business conditions are a trifle tricky today, so don't take anything for granted. A deal isn't closed until it's signed, sealed and delivered.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Nothing to speak of is likely to be accomplished if you only cruise the avenues of least resistance. It will take effort to win rewards today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If people with whom you're working today are unable to keep pace with your efforts, it's best for you to go it on your own. You'll be more productive without the slowpokes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your behavior in financial affairs could be ambivalent today. In some cases you'll be prudent and cautious; in others you may be extravagant and impulsive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) How you conclude matters today will be far more important than how you begin them. When finalizing anything of consequence, follow through.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This may not be a good day to bring a proposal you're endorsing to the attention of your friends, especially if it will cost them money. Set it aside temporarily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be on guard today so that you're not drawn into the problems of family members or in-laws that they should be working out for themselves.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with companions today, keep all you do out in the open. You're not apt to be successful if you use guile to mask your intentions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Hurt feelings could result today if an old friend feels you're showing greater concern for a new acquaintance than you are for him or her.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

What you do today will be done with good intentions for everyone concerned. However, there is a possibility that your methods might not win approval.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This may not be a good day to bring a proposal you're endorsing to the attention of your friends, especially if it will cost them money. Set it aside temporarily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be on guard today so that you're not drawn into the problems of family members or in-laws that they should be working out for themselves.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with companions today, keep all you do out in the open. You're not apt to be successful if you use guile to mask your intentions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Hurt feelings could result today if an old friend feels you're showing greater concern for a new acquaintance than you are for him or her.

Gift-giving can't be legislated

DEAR ABBY: This is about the letter from the reader who was concerned that a grandmother's annual gift of money might become mandatory, because he had read that a court ruled that a company's gift of a free Thanksgiving turkey to its employees became mandatory, even though the company had fallen on hard times, and decided one year not to give its employees this "gift."

Obviously, neither you nor your writer has the proper knowledge of labor law to evaluate the Thanksgiving turkey case, which is a labor law matter and deals with a concept known as "unilateral changes."

In a very simple manner, when the employees of a company are represented by a union, the company generally is not permitted to unilaterally make changes in the wages, hours or terms and conditions of employment (including fringe benefits, which the Thanksgiving turkey was) without first notifying the union and giving the union the opportunity to bargain about the change. Collective bargaining between company and union is what union representation is all about.

The case your reader referred to did not hold that the giving of the Thanksgiving turkey was now a mandatory matter that the company could never cease. What it held was that the company had an obligation to notify the union and give the union the opportunity to bargain about the change before the company actually implemented the new policy; this the company had not done.

So, as you can see from the above explanation, since the federal labor laws do not apply to the grandmother, she has no worries about her gifts becoming a mandatory obligation.

Well, I am sure this is much more than you ever wanted to know about labor law. Believe

DEAR MS. BULLOCK: Sorry, my answer was a turkey. Thanks for the short course in labor law. Whew! The things I learn through writing this column.

DEAR ABBY: Just read the letter signed "No Vacancies in Florida," the person who was tired of having friends who came to visit only "during the season."

I was reminded of friends who retired to Carmel, Calif., with the same problem. The mister advised all their friends: "You can have your headquarters here, but put your headquarters someplace else."

Young gymnasts would flip over own place to practice

SANFORD — Since 1977, youngsters involved in the Sanford Gymnastics Association have been on the nomadic move from place to place to practice. Workouts were held at a skating rink, the Salvation Army building, the Sanford airport, an old spa building, a warehouse and even on some lawns when no buildings were available.

The association is attempting to change all that in its quest to build a new training facility. It is asking for donations from friends, families and businesses.

Necessary expenses include insulation (at $10 a roll), four wheelchair-accessible toilets, and various plumbing and electrical supplies.

Donations to the association's building fund can be sent to: —Jeannette Stifley, association president, 401 Beth Drive, Sanford, Fla. 32771.

—Eugene Petty, coach, 102 Ellen Place, Sanford, Fla. 32771.
 —Wayne Keeling, Sanford Gymnastics Building Fund, Sun Bank, 3000 Orlando Drive, Sanford, Fla. 32773.

Stifley is asking for help in putting up a metal building in the next two weeks for practice. To volunteer a helping hand, call Stifley at 322-8234, or Robert Whitaker Construction at 321-

0100. Since the contractor is willing for others to help build, this will save money and labor hours, Stifley said.

New and former students may register in three weeks. The association accepts girls and boys aged 4 and older.

The six current coaches are registered with the United States Gymnastics Federation, and most coaches will be hired as new students are registered. The teacher-student ratio is to be kept at 10 students per teacher. Special Olympics instruction also is available through the association.
