Dr. William H. Kadel, president-elect of the new four-year liberal arts educational college, said the committee hoped to announce its final selection of a site before the target date of Oct. 25 set by the Board of Trustees.

Retirement Plan Problems, Steps Topic Of Leaflet

GAINESVILLE—A survey of problems and steps in planning retirement programs for small municipalities is the topic of the Economic Leaflet for June, published by the Bureau of Economic and Business Research at the University of Florida.

The leaflet, written by Dr. William M. Howard, professor of insurance and consultant on retirement plans, is sent free to Florida residents requesting their name on the mailing list.

According to Dr. Howard there are only two basic types of problems regarding retirement plans that affect differently the small and large municipalities. These are: lack of skilled legal and administrative assistance, and the difficulty of figuring costs with small groups. Neither of these problems are considered serious.

"The major deterrent to retirement plans for small municipalities," Dr. Howard says, "is the absence of organized effort in getting plans established."

Though no comprehensive study has been made of municipal retirement plans in Florida, Dr. Howard outlines observations gained through reading published plans, and discussion with municipal officials and members of the state legislature.

Dr. Howard reports that appropriate legislation has been passed enabling Florida municipalities to participate in the federal Social Security program. This allows the smaller cities and towns to use the federal retirement funds as a foundation on which to build retirement programs.

According to the leaflet, a rough rule of thumb for age retirement benefits is that retirement annuity plus the "primary" Social Security benefit should total about 80 percent of the pre-retirement pay.

Dr. Howard describes advantages and disadvantages of contributory and noncontributory plans and discusses funding and costs at some length.

"Progressive municipalities must provide suitable retirement benefits for their employees," Dr. Howard concludes, "both to discharge their social obligations and to assure efficient performance of essential municipal services."

Zanuck Adjusting Self To French Moviemaking

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

PARIS (UPI)—There was a time when Darryl F. Zanuck, movie mogul extraordinaire, merely pushed a button in his palatial Hollywood office and things happened, wheels turned, mountains moved. But in Paris Mr. Z. is a working stiff who perspires with the troops.

In the wild confusion of the studio De Rouloz the mustachioed Zanuck has adjusted himself to the rigors of moviemaking, French style.

The studio itself is small and cluttered. There are no guards at the gates, allowing independent Frenchmen to wander in and out at random, tracking mud into the sound stages.

Because sex bomb Brigitte Bardot is working in an adjoining sound stage traffic is heavy.

"I can get used to anything after 11 weeks of location shooting in Africa," Zanuck said over a beaker of excellent French wine. It was noon, and the day's filming had not yet begun.

The producer was interrupted by a crew member who wanted to know the status of Mr. Zanuck's health. In the old days in Hollywood it took an act of Congress to reach the omnipotent executive. "I'm fine," Zanuck said. "But my leading lady, Juliette Greco, has been terribly ill and we're doing our best to shoot around her scenes until she recovers."

Juliette became sick in Africa and hasn't been the same since."

Zanuck has invested more than 2 million dollars in "Roots of Heaven" for 20th Century-Fox and is anxious to complete the picture. His galle employees, however, cannot be rushed.

"You have to adhere to the customs in this part of the world," Zanuck said patiently. "There's no push-button magic here."

Make Some Adjustments
"We made the same adjustments in French equatorial Africa. I guess I could have shot the location footage in Mexico, but we would never have captured the grandeur we found in Africa. Besides, the natives play such an important part in the picture we never could have substituted for them."

Zanuck began picking his way carefully back to the set, avoiding chuk holes filled with muddy water. His surroundings were reminiscent of bombed out sets on the back lot at 20th Century-Fox. Inside the sound stage his international crew still had not rigged the scene for action.

"Guess we'd better knock off lunch," he grinned resignedly. "Lunch is never on the schedule, but somehow these people always seem to find time for it."

TODAY'S THOUGHT
"This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you."

Political Changes In Evidence As Political Campaigns Begin

On the national political scene the fall campaigns will, as usual, get going only after the heat of summer has waned. As the nation sinks into a seasonal decline of political interest, all indications — and this appears to be the candid judgment of shrewd observers in both parties — continue to point toward a Democratic trend.

However, on the local political level, there seems to be a sudden spurt in interest as local contests are announced and as candidates begin their hand shaking tour of the county via the "attendance at all functions" route. Wherever a group of people gather for various occasions the candidates are there vying for the possible votes that might be garnered.

Most interest at present, according to observations throughout the county, is centered on the two seats for the Board of Seminole County Commissioners. Already one of the incumbents has made his announcement that he will, in the near future, announce his candidacy for reelection. It is fairly certain that the other one will make his announcement for reelection.

There are indications, however, that both candidates for reelection will have opposition. These are just rumblings which have not terminated into full-fledged announcements. It is predicted that these are the campaigns to watch closely.

Statewide, the upcoming political match between Senator Sponsard Holland and Claude Pepper will bear watching. More than likely these two candidates, with an early fall primary, will not wait for the heat of summer to subside before getting into an all-out campaign.

Back to the nationwide political scene, the usual decline of the party in power between presidential elections is heightened this time by several factors, including most notably the slump. The Democrats seem to be in a position to make sizeable gains in the November election. It is interesting to speculate on the possible effects of such victories.

Broad-scale triumphs would mean the beginning of a new Democratic party, in a sense; that is, it would bring a shift in leadership. Democratic successes would not only strengthen the new young liberals, it would also bring the Northwest into great prominence. Democratic strength from the Pacific coast may become a strong permanent factor in national politics.

Sentiment from the Northwest might easily spread, cross the mountains and deserts, and influence the middle West. For instance, growing Democratic strength in the Northwest might well influence the Minnesota elections. That would tend to link up Minnesota with the Northwest in Democratic party councils.

At any rate, it is clear that American national politics are in a period of change. Here is one possible change which could be of very great significance.

As for local politics — there, too, could be some changes. However, the impact of interest and strength of candidates would be hard to predict until it is known who the candidates will be and what their platforms will include.

It is even possible that the outcome of the studies made by the Advisory Committee to the Board of Seminole County Commissioners may have some bearing on the forthcoming race for the seats on the Board of Seminole County Commissioners.

Wheels Of Industry Turning

The right words to use would be "business is booming in Seminole County." More than ever before, the wheels of industry are turning here in Sanford and Seminole County, creating employment and spending dollars.

Frankly, the list of new industries, and revitalized ones, is amazing.

Already underway and sending labels bearing "Sanford, Florida" on manufactured items to the four corners of America are HarCar Aluminum Products Co.; Johnson Electronics; Allen of Orlando; Brookfield Mills, Inc.; York Manufacturing Co.; Sanford Manufacturing Co.; and Chase and Company.

Word has been received that a giant shopping center for Sanford is all ready to get underway just as soon as the "on your mark, get set, go" sign is given.

At the same time, a new industry for

French Ave. is expected to get underway in the near future with a new building and familiar signs.

Right now a spanking new printing plant building is under construction on 18th St. and a brand new packing house for the Longwood area is expected to get underway in the very near future so as to be set for the fall citrus season.

Allied Chemical and Dye Co. has already installed six giant aluminum storage tanks just off Seminole Boulevard and its operations building as well as docks for pumping from plant new barges are under construction at the present time.

The economic barometer for the Sanford and Seminole County area is rising as new plans and specifications for additional new industry begin peeling off the drawing boards of draftsmen and architects.

In the agricultural field, the flower industry is expanding by leaps and bounds in the Sanford-Seminole County area. Growers are extending their planting areas as well as hot houses and shipping facilities.

The Central Florida Experiment Station, with Ben Whitner's tomato plant experiments turning out types of tomatoes for this area, will be a "shot in the arm" for truck farmers here.

Chase and Company's entry into new and bigger fields of fertilizer sales and packaging puts the Sanford area in a top spot for attention. The huge new plant just off 17-92 at Five Points is operating and adding new wheels to the industrial picture here.

All in all, the "business is booming" statement isn't a far-fetched one. It's plain to see that it is actually here.

Look Ahead At Top World News

By United Press International
United Press International correspondents around the world look ahead at the news that will make headlines.

Atomic Conference

The on-again-off-again nuclear tests talks at Geneva appear to be on again with the Soviets at the conference table. The West scored a victory forcing the Russians to go to Geneva, but it doesn't hold out much hope for real progress at the meeting. Western diplomats do not believe the Russians are ready to negotiate a serious agreement on suspension of nuclear tests. They say the Soviets decided to show up for the conference because a boycott would make them look bad. Expectations are that instead they will try to sabotage the talks when they get underway tomorrow.

Geneva

Western experts believe Soviet premier Nikita S. Khrushchev really turned the heat on to get Communist Party Leader Winston Churchill to open up against Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito and accused Hungarian freedom fighter László Nagy Saturday. His speech apparently was a compromise by Khrushchev to hang on to his own position and the retention of lead of Communism he has brought to Poland. Russia still has thousands of troops in Poland, but a question remains as to whether the Polish people will accept Gomulka's new bow to apparent pressure from the Kremlin. The situation could lead to trouble.

Defiance

New troubles may be brewing in the revolutionary atmosphere of Algeria. Reports reaching Paris indicated the rightist rebels who provoked the May 18th explosion that eventually helped bring Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power again are unhappy. This time, however, they feel bitterness toward De Gaulle for filling his cabinet and associating with members of the former government they helped bring down. Some observers predict a showdown in the next two weeks that may decide the fate of France and De Gaulle.

Cyprus

Top-level talks on Cyprus, both publicly and behind the scenes, are a certainty. Britain has shown little inclination to drop the controversial island, an "internal problem" for the colonial office. Greece and Turkey both rejected the British compromise plan for a partnership arrangement on the island, but the rejections were neither harsh nor bitter. The heads were in both apparently are ready to take the British plan as a starting point for further negotiations.

REBEL LEADER CONVICTED

ALGIERS (UPI) — Handsome rebel leader Yacoub Saadi, captured in the Casbah with his mistress last Sept. 24, was convicted Wednesday of seven bomb and gun attacks and condemned to the guillotine. His alleged accomplice Hamadi Amar also was sentenced to death. Saadi, 30, an ex-baker, had been convicted and sentenced to death in absentia before his capture but under French law he had to be retried in person.

Every Person In U. S. Is $1,540 In Debt

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — The average American makes an annual salary of between $2,000 and $3,000 a year and has around $1,270 in cash savings. However, he also is $1,540 in debt.

Some people owe more money than others, but the fact is that every single American, including every baby born today, is in debt to some extent.

The total public and private debt in the United States at the end of 1957 amounted to almost 726 billion dollars, an increase of 26 billion dollars over 1956.

Broken down further, the total private debt, including mortgages and installment debt, came to a whopping 425 billion dollars, an increase of 26 billion dollars over 1956. The public debt at $31 billion dollars was a 3 billion dollar increase over the previous year. Figuring a population of 170 million, the public debt alone works out to around $1,840 every man, woman and child in the nation. That is what you personally owe.

Since 1945, the private debt, of course, also includes the $17 billion dollars that corporations owe. The private debt has risen at a much faster pace than the public debt, climbing from $250,000,000,000 in 1950 to 425 billion dollars in 1957.

Individual and non-corporate borrowers increased their debt by some $14,400,000,000 last year, while the corporate debt rose only $5,600,000,000. Both increases were smaller than in 1956.

The corporate debt affects consumers. A company must pay the principal and interest on its loans, and this is figured as a cost of doing business which is reflected in the prices that firms charge for their products.

Anyway you look at it, the total public and private debt in the United States is something to be reckoned with.

Savings Larger

While what we owe has been increasing, so has the amount we have been saving away in the form of savings.

In the first quarter of 1958, cash savings — savings accounts, government savings bonds and life insurance — rose by $5,800,000,000 to an all-time high of $209,232,000,000. That topped even the wartime peak hit in 1944.

The installment debt incurred in purchasing cars, appliances and other durable goods is being paid off at a healthy rate. Defaults and repossessions are a low level. In addition, personal incomes have continued to top a year ago despite layoffs in the hard goods industries and the outlook is for further increases in the months ahead.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES H. MCCANN

UPI Foreign News Analyst
Relations between Soviet Russian leaders and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic seem to be entering a cooling-off period.

Nasser called Saturday for a visit to President Tito of Yugoslavia.

Russia has made Nasser its chief instrument in its campaign of penetration into the Middle East.

Russia's relations with Tito, at the same time, are near the breaking point.

Dispatches from Cairo say that Nasser hopes to make his visit to Tito without antagonizing Russia.

Now that can happen, it is difficult to see. It is more likely that the Russians will regard Nasser's visit as a diplomatic slap-which it seems to be.

A brief Belgrade dispatch June 18 quoted an official spokesman as saying that Nasser would make the visit.

At that time, the Russian and Chinese Communist regimes were bitterly attacking Tito as a renegade, and the announcement caused some surprise.

Relations Between Soviet Russian-Yugoslav relations became even worse when it was announced on June 17 that Hungarian revolt leaders Imre Nagy and Pal Malotk had been executed.

Nagy had been arrested after the Russians induced him to leave the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest, promising him safe conduct. Later Tito had promised that Nagy would not be tried. The Russian treasury naturally outraged him.

Because of the increased bitterness between Tito and the Kremlin, it seemed possible that Nasser's visit might be called off.

But it was officially disclosed in Cairo on June 18 that Nasser would go through with his plan. Cairo dispatches say that Nasser will try to draw Tito toward the "neutralist" bloc. This, Cairo argues, would be more preferable from the Soviet viewpoint than a move by Tito toward closer relations with the allies.

Any such hope seems over-optimistic. Since Tito broke with the late Josef Stalin in 1948, he has shown a determination to follow his own course and not to tie himself to any bloc.

If any "pulling" is done as the result of Nasser's visit, Tito is likely to do it.

Is Getting Anxious
It is pretty certain that Nasser is, as reported, getting somewhat anxious over the extent to which he has tied Egypt's economy to Russia.

It is pretty certain also that his visit to Russia in May was a most limited success. Nasser did not seem to be much impressed by what he saw and heard.

Tito is sure to point out to Nasser, emphatically, that Soviet Russia is a dangerous and treacherous friend. He is sure to remind Nasser that Russia cancelled a $75 million dollar credit to Yugoslavia when his current dispute with the Kremlin started.

One angle of the situation is that Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Nasser's fellow

Blindness in Diabetic May Be His Own Fault

By HERMAN H. GROSSMAN, M. D.

FOURTY years ago when a doctor told a patient that he had diabetes, the first thing he would say was "I have lost my sight."

Today, because of improved insulin and our more recent therapeutic developments, a diabetic can look forward to years of near normal life.

But this tremendous victory which in 1918 science has scored, has in turn created another grave problem.

Diabetic Cornea
Because diabetes no longer is the serious threat to life it once was, many patients tend to ignore much of the physician's advice, and in some cases, they even ignore the physician.

While many diabetics rigidly carry out insulin therapy, they completely neglect a prescribed diet.

Such disregard for medical advice can—and, in many cases, does—lead to blindness.

Major Cause
According to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, only glaucoma and cataract lead diabetes as a major cause of blindness in this country.

It is proper management and regular, consistent treatment for the diabetic condition is maintained, many of these sight-threatening eye conditions can be prevented.

Right from the very beginning, the diabetic patient should visit his doctor more often. If you are such a patient, be sure to ask your physician to send reports on the blood sugar condition, your general condition and particularly your eye condition to your eye specialist.

Diabetic Blindness
Dr. I. E. Thomson, attending surgeon at the Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia, reports that it is in the duration of the diabetes, not so much the severity, that is the critical time, that affects the retina of the eye.

Since diabetics are living longer these days, he points out, they are more prone to retinal damage, cataract and blindness than non-diabetics of the same age group.

Other Factors
We think that emotional stress and strain also play an important role in the development of an eye condition by a diabetic.

About 1,000,000 Americans are known to have diabetes. Probably about 1,000,000 more have it but don't know it. All in all, an estimated 4,700,000 persons alive today will develop diabetes during their lifetime. Conceivably, you could be one of them.

So just remember what I said about following the doctor's advice.

Miss Dawn Walker, Ray Fore Take Marriage Vows June 27

Friday evening at 8 p. m. Miss Dawn Walker and Ray Fore exchanged marriage vows at the Chuluota Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. B. H. Walker, postmistress at Chuluota, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Fore.

The Rev. B. G. Brown, of Lake Monroe, officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place before a background of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and baby's breath. The pews roped off with white satin ribbon and tied with bouquets of white flowers added to the church decorations.

Prior to the beginning of the service, the soloist, Mrs. William H. Martin, sang the traditional "I Love You Truly"; she was accompanied by her husband, W. H. Martin.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Walter Walker, was radiant in a floor length gown of nylon net over bridal satin. The gown was designed with a scalloped neckline, brief sleeves and a bouffant skirt of hand made lace panels. Her fingertip veil of imported handmade lace is a Walker family heirloom and was held in place with a diamond and seed pearl coronet. The bride carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid which was framed with feathered mums and stepomats.

Miss Pat Walker, her sister's maid-of-honor, wore a ballerina length dress of pink crystalatite which featured a baquet waist and full skirt. Her head piece was a

Cosmeticians Go Wild With Color

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Our language is sprinkled with clichés concerning people who turn green with envy or purple with rage. But I never thought I'd see the day when we women would turn either color with cosmetics.

Yet, a new group of makeup shades includes emerald, amethyst, and amber. They're all the brainchild of Charles of the Ritz cosmetics, who announces that we are in "for an age of adornment."

Recommended only for evening, and "for the girl with the camelia complexion and dark hair," the green makeup includes grained-face powder, made a little paler by blending with buff if the wearer doesn't have the courage to look like a sprig of mint; eyes shadowed with a shade called "Fern"; lids outlined with green—a dash of black mascara for what the manufacturer called "the heavy lidded look"; and, finally, a dusting of the green powder applied in streaks through the hair to match the rest of the makeup.

Ready for the purple combo? This is for the fair skin with red hair, and begins with a mauve face powder, continues on through a "fine mist of silver eye shadow," charcoal liner for the lids, and blue mascara. Mauve powder is dusted through the hair.

For daytime, and especially recommended for the sun-tanned blonde, is the amber look. This includes gold-colored powder, a streak of china blue eyeshadow, and blue to outline the lids.

Stork Shower Given For Mrs. R. King

Those invited to enjoy the party with Mrs. Ronald King were: Mrs. G. W. Alford, Mrs. Bill Usery, Mrs. Roy Alford, Mrs. Kenneth Malcolm, Mrs. Charlie Dishman, Mrs. John Lundy, Mrs. Emmett Priest, Mrs. Irving Malcolm, Mrs. Harriet Terrell, Mrs. W. A. Ward Jr., Mrs. J. W. Teensers Hep To World Problems

By SHERRI GILES United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO—(UPI)—Adults who are confused about the state of the Union should read a seventh grader's essay.

Young teens-agers have developed serious and well-thought-out viewpoints about world problems, an essay contest showed.

The contest, sponsored by the Independence Hall Association of Chicago, was held to find out what independence Hall means to the city's seventh and eighth graders. Many of the youngsters added intellectual discussions on Communism and government policy.

"The North and South should be honest with each other," said a 12-year-old girl. "Then we would solve the integration problem."

"If the Soviets say personal profit is so unnecessary," wrote another youngster, "then why do they reserve the best food, houses, cars, and most recognition for the scientist, teacher, and party leader? Why not reward the peasant farmer?"

Taken For Granted

"The Soviets claim capitalist ingenuity is doomed to extinction. Then why do they put personal profit to work to achieve their Sputniks and missiles?"

"Because the Russians have learned that men try to excel; because they want more than those who just loaf along."

Another entry came out for a "get tough" policy.

"We shouldn't get too kind, soft-hearted or agreeable with any nation," the writer said.

Many teens-agers bemoaned a listless attitude in the United States with phrases such as these: "We have it made in this country" and "We take our liberty for granted."

One young scholar settled for a problem at hand. He said being an American was important to him "because we have the right to stay in school as long as we want without having to go to work."

Decorating Tips On How To Hide Air Conditioner

By MARY PRINKE United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(UPI)—Conceal the air conditioner if you want your room to look as cool as it feels.

So advises William Gulden, a prominent decorator who contends there is nothing cooling to the eye about an air conditioner standing unconcealed in a window.

But how do you hide it, and still get its full benefit? That's a problem Gulden has been solving for apartment dwellers in Manhattan. Gulden is a former president of the New York chapter of the American Institute of Decorators and teaches a course in interior decorating at Queen's College.

Gulden prefers screens to conceal conditioners. These you can make if you want.

Rattan, reed or cane makes good sliding or folding screens which let air through. Or try a lattice-work screen. Screens can conceal the whole end of a room, or just the part near the air conditioner.

Plastic screens with the design molded in also work, but they must be staggered because they do not provide ventilation.

Bamboo shades also camouflage conditioners. So do louvered shutters which fold back like phone booth doors. Gulden recommends building a frame out from the windows, then attaching the shutters or shades.

Several tiers of cafe curtains also do the trick, he said. Or bring out draperies from the wall and draw them across the window. Gulden said it's better to put the conditioner on one side rather than in the middle if you have several windows.

For amateur decorators on a low budget, Gulden suggested using plants to camouflage the unit. Any built in plant holder, movable modern type or an antique stand will work.

Gulden said the ideal conditioner is the one with removable panels which can be covered with fabrics or wallpaper to match the color scheme.

They also are covered in veneer

All-Star Game Turns Into Battle Of Brains

By NELSON RICHMAN
United Press International

Nothing personal, you understand, but suddenly Casey Stengel and Fred Haney are trying to out-guess each other with a pair of stratagems that promise to convert the All-Star game from just another exhibition to a World Series-style battle of brains.

Stengel struck the first blow when he placed the American League team with seven of his own Yankees to augment two other Yanks named as starters for the game at Baltimore, July 8.

Haney, whose Milwaukee Braves beat the Yankees in the World Series last fall, promptly retaliated with the unprecedented declaration, "If we get out in front, the starting lineup will stay in the game until we win."

Silver Spurs Rodeo Opens July 4 In Kissimmee

KISSIMMEE—Two sections of bareback bronc riding and bull riding, and one section each of calf roping, saddle bronc riding, and steer wrestling are programmed for the fourteenth annual Silver Spurs rodeo, which opens here Friday afternoon, July 4th.

Prior to the show—beginning at 11 a. m.—a sale parade of floats and mounted rodeo personnel will be presented to the general public in downtown Kissimmee.

The program for the show, which opens at 8:30 p. m. Friday and Sunday, and 8 p. m. Saturday, begins with the grand entry of officials by announcer Chip Morris, a calf scramble for boys under 15 years of age will precede the first major attraction, the Silver Spurs quadrille on horseback.

This "dance of the range," widely known for its speed and precision, features familiar square dance figures done on horseback by sixteen horses and riders.

The first section of bareback bronc riding will be followed by the clown act, after which the calf roping contest will be held. In this, the cowboy has no more than two chances to rope a running calf from the back of a trained cow-horse, throw the calf on its side and tie him securely.

The second section of bareback bronc riding precedes the barrel race for girl contestants under 15 years of age, followed by the saddle bronc riding contest.

Another clown act will be followed by the bulldozing or steer wrestling contest, with bull riding and relay racing for boys, bringing the program to a conclusion.

Awards. Name of the institution must be submitted with the award and should be nominated in accordance with the amount of cooperation it gave to the local program.

COMEBACK KID By Alan Meyer

MIN BOYER, OF THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS, COULD BE ONE OF THE COMEBACK STARS OF 1968. HIS HITTING STRIKES ARE PROMISING ENOUGH.

That being the case, the eight NL starters may be in the game from beginning to end. The starters are outfielders Hank Aaron of the Braves, Willie Mays of the Giants and Bob Skinner of the Pirates; first baseman Stan Musial of the Cardinals, second baseman Bill Mazeroski and third baseman Frank Thomas of the Pirates; shortstop Ernie Banks of the Cubs and catcher Del Crandall of the Braves.

In picking the remainder of the team, Haney selected two of his own Braves — third baseman Eddie Mathews and shortstop Johnny Logan — along with catchers John Roseboro of the Dodgers and Bob Schmidt of the Giants; infielders Don Blasingame of the Cards and George Crowe of the Redlegs; and outfielders Richie Ashburn of the Phillies and Walt Moryn and Lee Walls of the Cubs.

Haney's team boasts 13 first-timers. Missing are such perennials as Duke Snider, Gil Hodges, Red Schoendienst, Ted Kuszawski and Robin Roberts. The two All-Star "graybeards" are Musial, making his 19th appearance, and Williams, appearing for the 14th time.

Today's Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press International

EAST NORWICH, N.Y. (UPI)—Changing the format of the PGA golf championship from match to medal play has turned it from the greatest fairway title of them all to "just another tournament," former champion Vic Ghezzi charged today.

The PGA abandons match play this year, shifting to four rounds of medal play instead of head-to-head golf when the tournament is held at Haverstown, Pa., July 17-20. The match play event has been a financial flop, the PGA said, when the leading stars were kayeod in early rounds.

But Ghezzi is adamant that the PGA erred when it became too greedy and tried to get too many names in the match play field.

Booze Qualifying Field

"Their first mistake was when they boosted the field from 20 qualifiers to 64 for the match play rounds," he asserted. "That made 16-hole matches necessary to get the field down to size instead of staying with the old system of 36-hole matches all the way through."

When the tall, tanned Ghezzi won the championship at Cherry Hills in 1941 by beating Byron Nelson on the 36th hole all of the matches were at 36 holes.

"That was a true test," he explained, "you had to be fit to play five 36-hole matches but it was a fair test because the top golfers didn't get knocked off by somebody who was 'hot' for only 18 holes."

"It's easy for a big name golfer to get beaten at 18 holes by somebody who holds a hot hand," he continued. "But if you can't beat 'em at 36 holes, you can't beat 'em at 18. The 36-hole method all the way was the only true one."

Attract Old Heroes

The PGA tournament, to be played at Llanerch Country Club, will consist of four rounds of medal play with only one round a day. This is going to attract a lot of the old heroes, such as Ben Hogan but Ghezzi feels that the tournament prize still will have much the best of it.

"A lot of them complain about two rounds on the last day of the U.S. Open," he said. "Well, a true champion should be able to play 36 holes. It should be a test of stamina as well as anything else."

"And remember," he emphasized, "even with those two rounds on the final day, a lot of flukes still have won the Open."

Player Of The Day

By United Press International
—JIM LEMON—

Manager Cookie Lavagetto of the Washington Senators isn't kidding when he says he wishes he had another Lemon.

He means Jim Lemon, 6-foot, 4-inch outfielder who is one of the most dangerous "low average" sluggers in the American League.

A .268 hitter for six big league seasons, the right-handed hitter from Covington, Va. knocked in a total of nine runs Sunday as the Senators split a doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox.

Lemon knocked in five runs with a homer and a double in the Senators' 12-0 victory in the opener and added four RBIs in the second game which the White Sox won, 12-11, in 11 innings.

Official averages released at league headquarters here for the season through midnight Thursday reveal that while Hamilton dropped 11 points during the week, Niemann picked up two and continued to impress with his clutch hitting.

Healthiest boost of the week was turned in by Palatka catcher McGaughey who, with 10 hits in 19 trips, jumped from .364 to .364, and second place.

That 2 to 1 decision, over Tampa, Pedro Gonzalez, with 95 hits, is likely to become the league's first hitter to break the 100 mark. Only teammate Tom Tresh of St. Pete is near him, and his .8, while good, was at least a week away from 100 on the basis of Tresh's batting of the past three weeks.

George M. Pizarro, veteran Gainesville first-coach, poled out homer number 15 Thursday night at Cocco, while Palatka's Bill Martin stole his 21st base to lead in that field.

St. Pete's George Banks, whose single broke up the 16-inning struggle that saw losing pitcher Bob Cruz of Tampa walk but two men over that roster, was high in RBIs, with 66, with Pizarro second with 64.

Among the pitchers, St. Pete's Jim Horneford won his 14th in 15 decisions, while Palatka's be-speckled Marchelino Sanchez won his third straight without loss. Tampa's Harry Coe broke the 100 strike-out mark during the week, his total standing at 104 at mid-

Stan Stanev, one of those fabulous weight-lifters out of Yugoslavia, won the Olympic light heavyweight championship in 1948. CHAPTER 13

PRICE MADDEN walked through the Madison house, worried and puzzled by Laura's and Jean's absence.

He paused in the dining room, staring perplexedly at the table which hadn't been completely cleared of dirty dishes. Bruce Jarvis darted around him, grabbing a slice of ham, wolfed it down. Then Price heard someone come in, and Laura's cry, "Price, what did you get here?"

He hurried toward her, and she ran into the room, and for a moment they had no time or thought for anyone but each other. When Laura risked him and tipped her head back to look at him, he saw the tears that were in her eyes, and he realized how much pressure worry had put upon her these last hours.

"I just got here," he said.

"She didn't hear him. She just stood there looking at him as if her eyes would not get enough of the sight of him," Laura said. "I've been afraid, Price."

"Everything's fine," he said.

"I've got the boy," she motioned toward Bruce who stood at the table shoving bread and butter into his mouth as fast as he could.

"Bruce, this is Laura Madden. Jean's been staying with her."

Gleaming around, Bruce bobbed his head as Laura said, "I'm pleased to meet you, Bruce."

He wiped a sleeve across his mouth and reached for another piece of ham.

"He hasn't had anything to eat for two days," Price said.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Laura said. "I'll find you something, Bruce. There isn't much on the table, but the meat the picker and me through the kitchen into the pantry, filled it with milk from a crock, and returned to the dining room with it and a wide slice of dried apple. Bruce grabbed the pie and ate it from his hands, then filled the glass with milk and drank it, his hands trembling with weakness."

"It's been rough," Price said. "I've been ducking around all day yesterday trying to keep out of everybody's way and this morning he ran into the Mahawk key. I got there in time to save his hide, but it was a close shave."

Laura stood beside Price, her arm on his as she stared at the boy. Then she remembered why she was here, and she gripped Price's arm. "We can't stay. I got so excited when I saw your horse outside that I forgot. I quarreled with Dad and he got me out of the house. But it's more than that, Price. It's something bigger. I've heard about people selling their souls. Is that just a preacher talk, or could a man really do that?"

"I don't know," Price said thoughtfully, remembering how Barry Madden had been his usual potter, commencing on Saturday morning in the house, but yesterday, here in the hall of his own house, he had been a harried, uncertain man, giving orders he must have known would not be obeyed.

"You're glad you from the marshal's job," Laura said, "and Harke has the star. Pete Nance is in town. So is Curly Blue, and he's expected to ride out to the Rocking C as soon as you get here. I guess Weston wants to know if you found Bruce."

Price grinned. "Well, let's tell him."

"But you can't fight Pete Nance," Laura said. "Can't you see that? You know why Weston brought him here?"

"Well, I can't disappoint him."

"Let's go to the hotel," Laura said. "Jean's there alone. I'm worried about her. She'll want to know about Bruce, too."

Price nodded and took Bruce by the arm. "We're going to see Jean," he said. "I'd better get you out of here before you found out yourself. You're worse'n a boy in an alpine patch."

Bruce rubbed a sleeve across his mouth, looking a little sick. He went along without resisting. Price waddled about the horses and decided to leave them where they were for the moment.

Bruce glanced at Price, his mouth lightening. His old fears were plaguing him again. He saw the picker and a hunted man, but still he didn't hang back or fight Price's grip on his arm.

The three of them went into the back through the back door and up the stairs, no one seeing them, as far as Price knew.

Laura tapped on the door, calling, "It's Laura, Jean." The girl opened the door at once. Price showed Bruce into the room ahead of him. For a moment Jean stared at the boy as if she couldn't believe he was actually here, then she cried out and took him into her arms and hugged him.

"Bruce, Bruce," she whispered. "What happened? Where have you been?"

"It's quite a story," Price said, stepping into the room behind Laura and shutting the door.

He crossed to the window and looked down into the street. He saw the car in sight, and Curly Blue, who lounged indolently in the shade of a wooden awning. Presently Pete Nance appeared in the doorway of Mahoney's Bar and looked up down the street in the disdainful way he had, and stepped back.

When Price turned, he saw that Jean had an arm around Bruce, tears running down her face but making no sound with her crying. She wiped her eyes and said in a low tone, "We're all that's left, Bruce."

"If anyone could make the boy talk, it would be Jean. Price said, "He saw Cole Weston shoot Red Sanders yesterday, but he's too big a coward to stand up in court and swear to what he saw. It's up to him whether Weston hangs."

"He's not a coward," Jean said angrily. "You aren't, are you, Bruce?"

The sudden expression that Price had seen so often on the boy's face was there now. He said, "I ain't a coward, but I ain't no sure-footed, neither. Maybe I was a coward when I looked at Jim and Sam were dead."

"Tell the rest of it," Price said. The boy threw him an angry glance, then said sullenly, "Weston shot Sanders. I seen it, but that don't mean I'm going to the county seat and wait around till they try Weston and then get up in court and tell what I seen."

"What do you think you'll be doing between now and then?" Price demanded.

"I dunno," Bruce said. "I'm going somewhere."

"Maybe you'd better get out Weston for a job as you'll be handy," Price said. "You know he'll kill you if he's not in jail."

"Not if he don't catch me before I run," Bruce said stubbornly.

"What will Bruce say?" Jean demanded. "Bruce, you just aren't thinking straight. We've got to get home. It's the only place we can go. You'll make out, you and me. Sue, too, if you want to fetch her there."

Bruce didn't say anything. He sat on the bed, hunched forward, his big-knuckled hands clasped on his lap. Jean looked at Price and shook her head. "He'll see what he's got to do, Mr. Nance. You'll have to give him time to think of the window again. Barry Madden had just left the bank and was going into the jail. Curly Blue was still under the wooden awning. Might as well get it over with. Price thought...

"Curly Blue ain't gonna forget the looking you give him," Price is warning. "The odds are too long, and you can't win..." the story continues tomorrow.

Chain Letters Bad For Everyone Says Local Postmaster

There is a time-honored adage to the effect that whenever anyone gets something for nothing, somebody else is sure to get nothing for something.

Postmaster Joel S. Field doesn't know what particular circumstances gave rise to this axiom, but he believes that the author might very well have been thinking of chain letters.

Chain letter schemes are bad for everyone. They are obviously bad for the many who lose because the wasted money could have been used to pay the rent, or to reduce the mortgage, or to apply against the grocery bill, or to purchase shoes for the children. They are bad for the few who win because profit so easily obtained gives substance to the argument that it is possible for those with sharp wits and dull scruples to live comfortably off the toil of others.

The postal service objects to chain letters for many reasons, these three primarily: first, chain letters are legally fraudulent because they violate the letter laws; second, chain letters are morally dishonest because they take money from people who cannot afford the loss and give it to people who have not earned it legitimately; third, they require in their handling expensive and important time which post offices need to work legitimate correspondence.

Postmaster Field is frank to say that it is difficult to prosecute those who participate in chain letter schemes. This makes public cooperation especially necessary. If you receive a chain letter of any sort, send it to your Postmaster. Don't continue the chain, as all of the letters urge you to do, unless you want to break the law, contribute to the ill-gotten profit of someone you have never seen, and add to the woes of the postal service.

"If you can afford to gamble, there are other ways to get more fun for your money. We can't give you any information about the games that are available, but we can give you information about all kinds of postal matters if you will call FA 2-2802," said Field today.

The world's first automobile filling station dealing exclusively in sale of gasoline and petroleum products was opened in Columbus, Ohio, in 1917.

Warren G. Harding was the only man in U. S. history to be elected president while serving in the Senate.

Poultry Farmers Keep Production Up, Prices Down

DENTON, Md. —(UPI)—Americans are eating chicken in record amounts these days, and this is good news to poultry farmers on the Delmarva Peninsula where super-assembly-line methods to rival the auto manufacturers are keeping prices down and production up.

High point of the year for Delmarva poultry farmers and processors was June 26 when the 15th annual Delmarva Chicken Festival and National Chicken Cooking Contest was held here. The three-day festival is expected to attract more than 30,000 people.

The Delmarva Peninsula—consisting of 14 counties of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia—is the birthplace of the broiler chicken industry. And as meat prices have soared, Delmarva poultrymen have cashed in on the sale of chickens which sell for less than half the price of beef or pork—and, incidentally, have less than half the calories.

The Delaware Poultry Industry, Inc., says that Delmarva growers are holding to a 1940 price level, and showing a profit. And that's where the assembly line technique comes in.

The process begins with the egg and progresses through the growing chicken and into the huge plants where the broilers are processed for the table.

Promotion-minded growers use high energy feed which produces one pound of meat for each 2.5 pounds of feed consumed. They keep flocks numbering into the thousands, and with efficient production methods keep the broilers flowing in what appears an unending stream to the processing plants.

These plants are also models of cleanliness and efficiency. Today typical examples, are putting out 20 per cent more tonnage with a third less labor than they used five years ago. The plants produced more than 170,000,000 broilers last year for America's tables.

Not only are Delmarva chicken people production-minded, they are promotion-minded. This year chicken was chosen as the official dish for Father's Day by the Father's Day Council.

But the high point was the Chicken Festival. Food experts from all over the country attended, with some 195 broiler cooking experts from 19 states entered in the chicken cooking contests.

As usual, the original world's largest frying pan was in action, preparing chicken for visitors. It holds 40 gallons of cooking oil at one filling, and uses enough gas to heat a dozen homes for a month.

Record Sale in 1937

It was only 30 years ago that the modern broiler industry began on the peninsula. The idea of a few farmers that young, tender chickens could be fried, broiled or stewed quickly caught on. Soon more farmers followed the lead, and hatcheries were founded to supply the growing demand for baby chicks. Then came feed mills to grind, mix and store the special fast-gain feed that growers wanted by the ton. Central dressing plants followed.

Today there's an integrated smoothly operated industry of 5,000 broiler growers, 30 hatcheries, 75 feed manufacturers and dozens of dressing, freezing and packing plants.

Statistically, growers expect to reach sales of 180,000,000 birds this year, the largest in history. Americans today are eating broilers at the rate of 16 pounds annually per person, compared with less than a pound per person a generation ago.

Poultry people say that modern eating habits are largely responsible for the phenomenal growth of the broiler industry. Americans today want low-fat, low-calorie foods with high protein content. A half-pound of chicken breast has 315 calories compared with 776 for the same amount of porcupine steak, for example.

Broilers, the growers say, are lower in fat than any other meat, higher in vitamins, and right up at the top in protein.

FIANCE CALLED SPY—Tatana Kubikova, 22, remains single in Kmerduf, Czechoslovakia, after her American fiance, Joseph Sanders, 28, of Los Angeles, was arrested and accused of spying. Communist police questioned Sanders for six hours before allowing him to return to Vienna. He told newspapermen that he will continue to fight to marry Tatana. (UPI)

TOOK NO CHANCES—WASHINGTON, Va. —(UPI)—Because Nate Flint's mother, father, sister and two brothers died between their 61st and 62nd birthdays, Flint made sure of having his 62nd birthday celebration by holding a party for himself two days before the actual date. He invited the towns of Berre and Montpelier and an estimated 5,000 persons showed up. A 35-gallon oil drum was needed to store all the birthday cards.

First Federal Semi-Annual Total Shows Increase

The forty-seventh semi-annual statement of the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. shows total assets of $7,077,197.08 as of June 30 and represents an increase of over six per cent in the six-month period just closing.

Savings account balances, in spite of conditions that were not considered by many as conducive to advances, moved from $2,677,644.50 a year ago to $4,728,508.47.

Even greater progress was shown in the home mortgage figures in the statement. The $5,810,367.37 now outstanding is 11.9 per cent greater than the comparative total in the June 30, 1947 statement.

According to Howard Faville, president, the local thrift firm closed loans totalling $600,000 which was a marked improvement over the two six-month periods preceding it. The association officer said that although economists predicted a sharp slide in the demand for home ownership money, the forecasted trend did not show up here. In an effort to meet the demand First Federal borrowed $24,000 from the Federal Home Loan Bank.

Savings activities, Faville said, have continued to be extensive. Although just a little less than one and a quarter million dollars were added to savings accounts, the withdrawals—apparently stimulated by the adverse economic conditions stemming from the freeze—have also been greater than usual.

Dividends amounting to over $100,000 were earned by the savings accounts for the first six months of 1950 and were figured at three and a half percent a year, the association president said.

It is a matter of pride, Faville continued, for the association to be among the top 10 per cent of the savings and loan associations of the country in its ratio of reserves to savings on its books.

This element of safety for savers now is in excess of 11 per cent, he added.

The remainder of the year should show a continuation of the demand for money, First Federal's president said. Conditions in the area indicate a further influx of residents, many of whom will be home buyers or home builders. While project homes with government financing will attract many of them, there is still a great number who will call on the local association for funds. Faville feels that December figures will reflect a good 1950.

THE CARD OF THANKS
Very often a Card of Thanks in The Sanford Herald means a good which is difficult to fill in any other way. Not only is a gracious appreciation of gratitude to those who have aided and tributed but also courteously acknowledges the services and the needs of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot be mailed.
Newspaper Cards of Thanks are accepted as socially correct. Emily Post, the noted authority on etiquette, feels they carry great good usage.
There is no prescribed form for a Card of Thanks. It can be as brief or as detailed as you desire. When the occasion comes you will find a sympathetically understanding member of our staff to assist you.

THE "IN MEMORIUM" NOTICE
It is the custom of many families in this country to commemorate a bereavement by an "In Memoriam" notice in newspaper classified columns. They find a real solace therein. Preservation of selection of a suitable verse brings back to them tender, pleasant recollections. As Eliza Cook, the English poet has so beautifully expressed it:
"How cruelly sweet are the echoes
That memory plays an old tune
On the heart."
Most frequently an In Memoriam is inserted on the anniversary of death. However, other dates, which it is felt are appropriate or meaningful are also selected. The birthday of the departed, the wedding anniversary, Memorial Day, even Christmas are among other significant occasions chosen.
If you are hesitant to express your thanks thoughtfully in poetic form, you may avail yourself of the Herald's collection of beautiful verses. These express in poetic beauty the emotions of the heart-strings. Among them are verses appropriate to any circumstance.

THE RATE
Cards of Thanks and In Memoriam notices, due to the fact they may run to considerable length, are billed at $1.00 per column line.

Chuckles In The News

MECHANICAL HANDCRAFTS TOYKO (UPI)—Sad China announced today it is trying to achieve the ultimate in modern technology - mechanization of the handicraft industries. Radio Peking said a national conference of handicraft cooperative decided that 90 per cent of the nation's handicraft industries could be converted into modern factories or workshops by 1955 or 1961.

SHAVE YOURSELF BRIDGEMORE, England (UPI)—A barber has opened a "do it yourself" shaving cubicle with two electric razors. The charge is six pence (seven cents) a shave.

PENACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—Clyde Johnson, night club operator, has asked for an injunction against daylight saving time on the ground that it is "damaging my business."

FRITZLAR, Germany (UPI)—Motorists not only utilize the parking meters recently installed here, they have contempt for them. Several times in past days they have dropped coins in the meters, set up tables and played cards until the time ran out.

BERMUNGMAN, Ala. (UPI)—Adam Whitted, 56, faces charges of driving his car down the wrong way on a one-way street while intoxicated.

Traffic Deaths Decline 3 Pct.

CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Safety Council says that traffic deaths declined 3 per cent during May for the ninth straight month in which a decrease was reported.

In addition, the council said, May was the 17th month in the last eighteen to show fewer highway fatalities. The only month in that period to show an increase was last August.

"But the real test is just ahead," the council warned. "The fourth of July weekend will bring the largest traffic jam of the year so far."

"There could be no better way to celebrate the holiday than for everyone to get back home safe and sound."

May toll was 2,910 deaths as compared with 3,000 for May 1957, the council said. The May traffic deaths raised the toll for the first five months of this year to 15,240, or 1 per cent below the 15,360 total for the corresponding period last year, the council said.

Twenty-six states chalked up fewer traffic deaths in May, one reported no change and 21 reported increases. The council said that at the end of the five-month period, 53 states had better records than for the same period last year and 15 showed increases. Showing decreases for the five-month period were Vermont, West Virginia, Arkansas, Connecticut, South Carolina, Delaware, Nevada, New Hampshire, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, New Jersey, Georgia, Kansas, New Mexico, Alabama, Iowa, Montana, Ohio, Missouri, Utah, Pennsylvania, Texas, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Oregon, California, Maryland, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Virginia.

The three largest cities with perfect traffic records in May were Fort Worth, Tex.; Tampa, Fla.; and Wichita, Kan. The largest cities with no traffic fatalities for the five-month period were Saginaw, Mich.; Orlando, Fla.; and Pueblo, Colo.

Three leading cities by population group at the end of five months, ranked according to number of deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles were:

850,000-500,000: Memphis, Tenn., 1.5; 50,000-100,000: Orlando, Fla., 0.0; Kingsport, Tenn., 0.0.

One pair of twins is produced in about 88 births. Triplets occur once in about 7,600 and quadruplets once in 670,000.

LAPP-A-DAY

"Speaking of vacations—the last two weeks in August you may move your desk nearer the window."

What Are the Effects Of Alcohol on Body?

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.
RECENTLY I wrote a column about the advantages of alcohol in certain cases as a therapeutic agent. Now, it seems, everyone wants to prescribe his own medicine — whisky, gin, beer, what have you?

I have received several letters inquiring about the effects of alcohol upon the body. Readers ask what does drinking alcohol do, how does it react.

How It's Used
Well, let me emphasize that it is not alcohol itself, but the way we use it that determines how much good or harm it will do.

Alcohol, you see, affects every organ of the body. It enters the bloodstream rapidly, since it does not require prior digestion. Alcohol gets into the bloodstream most quickly when it is taken in concentrations of from 15 to 20 per cent, the percentage found in most highballs and wines. Food in the gastrointestinal tract slows the entrance of alcohol.

Once it is absorbed from the gastrointestinal tract, it travels through the portal vein to the liver. Most of it goes through the inferior vena cava to the heart, lungs and arterial blood. After some delay the alcohol enters the various organs.

Requires Certain Functions
Alcohol is primarily a brain depressant. First faculties to be impaired are the more complex ones.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Q. P. S.: Does eating eggs cause hardening of the arteries?
A. Answer: There is no evidence that eating eggs causes hardening of the arteries.

News Of Men In Service

NORFOLK, Va. (PHTC)—U. S. Naval Academy Midshipman second class Frank B. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Thomas of Geneva, completed two weeks of amphibious training June 30 at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va.

Arriving at Little Creek June 5, the midshipmen were given practical experience in the tactics used in modern amphibious landings.

The training was climaxed June 30 by a mammoth assault on the beaches of Camp Pendleton, Va. The midshipmen joined two thousand members of the 6th Marine Regiment from Camp Lejeune, N. C., for the full-scale amphibious landing.

GREEN COVE SPRINGS, Fla. (PHTC)—Francis A. Diessare, chief fire control technician, USN, reenlisted in the Navy for six years June 6, while serving with the Atlantic Reserve Fleet at Green Cove Springs, Fla.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Diessare of 114 Jackson Ave., Rutland, Vt., and husband of the former Miss Georgia Stapler of Lake Monroe.

Before entering the Navy in September 1940, Diessare attended Mount St. Joseph Academy.

Rev. Schlessmann Accepts Call To Eustis Church

Rev. Phillip Schlessmann, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Sanford, announced today that he has accepted a call to serve as the pastor of Faith Lutheran Church in Eustis.

Pastor Schlessmann said, in making public the call to the Eustis church, that progress and growth in the two churches which he has served since 1953 has been so great that a pastor was required in each.

Coming to Florida in July of 1948 as a missionary at Largo, he took over the Sanford Mission and then began the Eustis Mission in August of the same year.

The Lutheran Church of the Redeemer dedicated its church building on Aug. 19, 1956 and Faith Lutheran Church in Eustis on Oct. 20, 1957.

Pastor Schlessmann, following his graduation from the Plymouth Wm. high school in 1943 at first followed a medical career when he attended college at Wisconsin in 1946 and 1948.

However, soon after, he decided to study for the Lutheran Ministry and attended Concordia Seminary during 1947-1953 with exception of one year which he served as Vicar at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Eustis.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower stood pat today on his decision to keep Sherman Adams as his top aide despite Republican statements that he should resign because his usefulness has been seriously impaired.

The President told a news conference that the statement he made two weeks ago on Adams is no more or no less an expression of his confidence in Adams now than it was then.

After giving that answer to a question about whether he might be reconsidering his decision on Adams, Eisenhower said he would have nothing more to say at this time on the matter.

But a few minutes later he did say in response to a question that he assumed the Internal Revenue Service would report to him on whether Justice Byron Bernard Goldfine had charged off as an income tax deduction his gifts to Adams on the ground that they were a business expense.

The President said that he heard only this morning that Goldfine may have done that.

In other news conference highlights, Eisenhower:

Made a strong plea for restoration of the House Appropriations Committee cut in his foreign aid program. He said the cut added up to "taking reckless risk with our safety."

Such a cut, he said, would "have grave consequences in portions of the free world and to our nation's security—and will encourage Communist imperialism."

Said that he was not disposed to do anything reckless in an effort to rescue the Americans captured by the Cuban rebels. He said we are trying to get live Americans back. The action of the Cuban rebels was unjustifiable.

Made clear that he will not show any preference in the contest for the Republican nomination for governor in New York between former GOP Chairman Leonard Hall and wealthy Nelson Rockefeller.

Said he hopes the presently anticipated federal deficit of more than 10 billion dollars for fiscal 1959 which began Tuesday, can be cut. He based this on hope for increased revenues resulting from an economic upturn and recovery.

There are still some pledges that have not been paid according to Mann, and he is anxious that those who still have the obligation to meet do it in the next 60 days so that the money will be available for the payment to the agencies three months from now.

Market's Commodity Total Shows Decrease

More than $4 million worth of produce moved through the Sanford State Farmers' Market during the 1957-58 season, according to the annual report of commodity sales.

Several factors entered into a decrease in valuation of produce sold through the local market. The $4,012,500.70 sold this season was $729,779.85 less than the 1956-57 season.

Sandy Anderson, assistant Market Manager, pointed out that "in spite of three freezes, two floods, and a late opening of the new market building, there was only a narrow margin between this year's sales and the previous season's."

He said, in revealing the June report, the out-of-state commodity report, and the annual report of Florida produce for the season ending June 30, "We think you will find our annual report of varieties, units and gross sales of Florida Produce and fruit, in a fairly substantial bracket considering the adverse weather we encountered in the fall of 1957 and the spring of 1958."

"Our out-of-state sales report of fruit and vegetables shows a large decrease in units and valuation compared with the 1956-57 season," Sandy Anderson said. And he pointed out that this low volume was due to the fact that the law prohibits him to enforce racial integration. But he added that he has always believed that the true cure for racial difficulties depends on all Americans observing correct procedure rather than acting from individual prejudices and emotions.

Rep. Cleveland Seeks 4th Term In House

State Representative Mack N. Cleveland Jr. today announced his candidacy for a fourth term as a member of the Florida House of Representatives.

Representative Cleveland served as Speaker Pro Tempore during the 1957 session of the Legislature and served on the Rules and Calendar, Finance and Taxation and Constitutional Amendment committees, three of the most important committees in the House.

He also served as chairman of Judiciary A and as a member of the Mental Health, Public Utilities and Education committees. He has served as a member of the Interim Legislative Auditing Committee and has served since the establishment of this committee during the 1955 session. As a result of the work of this committee Legislation was introduced and passed in the 1957 session resulting in improved accounting procedure and better efficiency in many of the agencies of State Government.

In an interview this morning Representative Cleveland stated: "I have sincerely appreciated the opportunity and privilege of serving the people of Seminole County during my three terms and feel that with the experience and seniority acquired I am in a position to render an even greater service to all of the citizens of Seminole County if re-elected. I humbly submit my candidacy for a fourth term with the expressed desire and hope of continuing to actively and energetically serve the people of Seminole County in the Florida House of Representatives."

He was born in Sanford and attended Seminole County Schools and graduated from Seminole High School in 1942.

Cleveland is an overseas veteran of the Army Air Corps of World War II and after his discharge in February 1946, entered Stetson University where he received his Bachelor of Science and Business Administration degrees in 1949 and his law degree in 1951 and since that time has been practicing attorney in Sanford.

He is a member of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce, First Baptist Church, Masons, Baha Shrine Temple, Elks, American Legion, VFW, Kiwanis, The Florida Bar, 40 at 8, Seminole County Bar Association and American Judicature Society.

Convicted Bolita Ringleader Gunned Down From Ambush

TAMPA (UPI)—A recently convicted bolita ringleader was shot-gunned to death from ambush here early today as he stepped from a cab.

Police said Joe Pelusa Diaz, 64, was struck by three shotgun blasts in the right side and back fired from a parked car about 85 feet away. He apparently was killed instantly.

The assailant or assailants then sped away in the darkness.

Police said there was an eyewitness to the slaying, but they would not disclose his identity. He was believed to be the cab driver who took Diaz to the death scene.

Diaz's own car was parked nearby. He apparently took the cab to pick up his car.

Diaz was convicted Saturday of being a "layoff man" for the big bolita ring smashed by raids in Polk and Hillsborough counties last March. He had been charged with three lottery counts but was convicted only of assisting in the promotion of a lottery.

As a "layoff man" Diaz covered protection bets on heavily wagered lottery numbers.

He surrendered on the bolita charges March 29 in Polk County after being advised he was being sought by police.

YES! THIS IS IN THE SEMINOLE COUNTY COURT HOUSE. Even looks like a fire trap, doesn't it? Look at the exposed wood beams, wood walls, and narrow hall! Anything could happen here. (Photo by Bergstrom)

County Court House Is Too Old To Be Safe

The very character and heart of a community is reflected in its public buildings. Progressiveness, aggressiveness, that spirit of "being out in front" is portrayed in the structures which house the governmental bodies of the community.

Sanford and Seminole County, we know, are not communities that will go up in smoke at the first strike of a match but the public buildings which house the various important departments of its government are actually tinderboxes.

They've been outdated by many years and by the very admission of those who occupy it, the County Court House is practically useless.

The offices of the Clerk of Court, the Tax Assessor, the Tax Collector, the County Judge and the Judge of the Circuit Court are all too small to take care of the enormous growth through which Sanford and Seminole County are going.

Offices in the basement of the court house are inadequate and antiquated; the lighting is terrible. Wood floors and partitions would flame up like tissue should a fire start in some cubby hole or crack.

Well do our elected officials realize that others before them failed to take care of the progress ahead, setting aside funds with which outmoded and worn-out buildings could be replaced. And certainly they realize that funds are hard to come by for the emorgo from taxes levied upon the people of the community.

But there comes a time when these buildings, now nearing the end of their period of usefulness, must be replaced so that Sanford and Seminole County, as well as all of the communities of the county, can follow the leadership of their government and set about putting the community on a modern pace.

No one wants to endanger their lives or the lives of the employees of county governmental offices by subjecting them to work in a building which could so easily be destroyed by fire—a building that can fall to the ravages of weather and just plain "being worn out."

Again we invite you to take a close look at the Seminole County Court House — look closely in the basement and around the narrow passageways which cannot be used. Pass your own opinion on them and it is believed that it will be the same as ours—just too old to be safe.

It has been said recently that the Seminole County Court House must be evacuated in the next two or three years—but we call to your attention that there is no planning, none whatsoever, leading toward replacing a structure that must go.

As a Court House 20-50-40 years ago, it was wonderful, actually served a county with just a few thousand people in it. Now it is a landmark and pointed to as "the deteriorated old building that's become useless."

It is time for Seminole County to put its best foot forward so that merchants, businessmen, investors, and industry will follow suit.

A modern, well planned, up-to-date Court House is a must for Seminole County and it's time to start planning for the date when it will be built.

Holland Stresses Seniority In Reelection Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Florida's U. S. Sen. Howard L. Holland pointed to his seniority today in his bid for reelection against former Sen. Claude Pepper.

Holland of Bartow, made it official Tuesday that he would seek his third six-year term in the Senate. But there had been no doubt that he would attempt to keep possession of the Senate seat he has held since 1948.

Holland, who will be 66 July 10, will face Pepper in what is expected to be one of the hottest political battles in the Sept. 9 Democratic primaries.

The Florida Republicans have not yet named a candidate to meet the winner in the November general elections.

Liberal vs. Conservative In announcing his candidacy, Holland did not mention Pepper by name but said Pepper's candidacy "gives the people of Florida a clear choice between his brand of thinking and mine."

Pepper, who was defeated in 1950 by Sen. George Smathers, was labeled as an ultra liberal during his 14 years in the Senate when he supported the Democratic New Deal and Fair Deal. He also led fights for organized labor against the late Republican Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio.

Holland, considered one of the staunchest liberals of the Democratic Party, said "in my opinion, the main reason why he (Pepper) was reelected from Florida's other seat in the Senate was his failure to follow the thinking and convictions of Florida people."

Holland pointed to the advantages to the state in his seniority and committee membership.

Cites Service "Any new senator," he said, "must start at the bottom and would require many years of service to reach my present committee standing or my proven capacity to serve Florida and the nation."

"I had to wait eight years, until I was in the upper third of the Senate, before I could win assignment to the Appropriations Committee, as its first Florida member in about 40 years. I have been a member of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry for nearly 10 years. My aggressive services on these two committees has enabled me to serve every important agricultural industry in Florida.

"My membership on these two committees and my seniority in the Senate as 15th among the 49 Democratic senators is an asset of the people of Florida."

People were actually stopping a truck loaded with the huge melons yesterday in order to get a first hand look at the giant size.

Recently an announcement was made that the top watermelon, in one of the melon growing counties, weighed in at 79 1/2 pounds.

But watermelon growers do, Seminole County does a little bit better.

Hubert Bagwell, on one of his melon farms, raised a new winner in variety to Florida. The one causing all of the confusion over size is known as the "Cobb Gem."

According to Bobby Newman, who furnished equipment to Bagwell, one of the huge round melons of the new variety weighed in at 73 1/4 pounds. Practically more than an ordinary man can lift comfortably!

However, the "Cobb Gem" isn't the only large melon grown by Bagwell in his prize patch. There are "Charleston Grays" that average from 65 to 68 pounds, and by the looks of them, some even heavier.

According to Bagwell, "they're mighty sweet melons along with the fact that they're big and look like the top weight in this section."

"I've got a mighty good crop of these beauties," said Bagwell, "and they're all just about like this" as he pointed to his truck loaded with about the biggest melons one would want to enjoy.

While stopped to talk to a Sanford Herald reporter and to have a picture made with the "big ones", passersby would slam on brakes and ask "are those watermelons?"

"Yes mam," Bagwell would answer, "they're Seminole County grown 'Cobb Gems'."
