Panhandle ticket hits jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — A single Lotto ticket sold in Laguna Beach in the Panhandle near Panama City is worth an estimated $15 million, state lottery officials announced Sunday.

The ticket sold in Bay County was the only ticket to match all six Lotto numbers drawn Saturday night, lottery officials said.
The winning numbers were 16, 20, 34, 41, 47 and 49.

Officials said more than 238,000 other players also won cash by matching at least three of those numbers, including 215 players who matched five numbers to win $5,362.50 apiece.

Another 11,028 players matched four numbers to win $153 each, while nearly 227,000 players matched three numbers to collected $7 apiece.

Lottery officials estimated this week's jackpot at $7 million.

Also Sunday, officials said $93.1 million was transferred last week from the lottery to Florida's Education Enhancement Trust Fund.

By law, at least 37.5 cents of every dollar spent on lottery tickets must be used for state education.

Lottery officials say the latest contribution boosts the total transferred so far this year to $668 million. Overall, the lottery has raised $1.6 billion for the trust fund, officials said.

A proper flag burning

Hundreds of American flags of all sizes were burned Sunday afternoon at American Legion Post 53 on South Sanford Avenue in Sanford. Chaplain James D. Edwards Sr. (rear, far right) conducted a special prayer for the ceremony along with other post legionnaires. The post followed the proper way to destroy flags by burning when the patriotic symbols become soiled or damaged.

CR 427 work lane-change due any day

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Road work on the eastern side of County Road 427 in downtown Longwood is expected to be completed within a few more days, but that doesn't mean the traffic congestion, construction work or inconvenience will subside. It merely means that possibly before the end of this week, motorists will begin driving on the opposite side of the road while work continues.

Jim Pullen, Seminole County Construction management engineer, described the road project as a "reconstruction or conversion from a two-lane rural road to a four-lane urban road."

The work area of the 4-lane project runs from the intersection of State Road 434 in downtown Longwood, south to Charlotte Street. But Pullen said, "That's not the total job. This project also includes tapering from four to two lanes at each end of the widening, as well as some side street work to blend the pavements together for smooth traffic flows. The tapering work will go clear to the Lyman High School area."

Hubbard Construction Company began work on the project in October, and according to the present completion date, it should be finalized by Feb. 15, 1991. "I

LONGWOOD — Even though city officials and planners are in the midst of preserving and protecting their downtown historical area, one landmark building, the old Saddle Up Western Store, has been demolished, the victim of progress.

The old two-story structure on the southeast corner at the intersection of State Road 434 and County Road 427 has served Longwood residents in various capacities for over fifty years.

Since 1969, it has been owned and operated by the Boetto family, who sold western hats, clothing and boots to customers from all over Central Florida. Then, progress took its toll in the form of a county road-widening project on CR-427.

Saddle Up owner Jeff Boetto said, "Seminole County

Aid for pre-kindergarten pupils OK'd

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board has adopted plans for next year's Pre-Kindergarten Early Intervention program.

"We want to present a high quality preschool experience," said Pat Clark, supervisor of the early intervention program while presenting her case to the board. The 30 vote, with two members absent, was cast Friday.

She said a high quality experience was one which was "developmentally appropriate" and, therefore, one which forced youngsters to think, forced them to make choices, exposed them to a print and literature-filled environment and one in which their perceptual motor skills were developed.

The early intervention program is designed to help youngsters whose home environment or personalities have shown them to be at risk to drop out of school later in life.

Atlantis hauled to launch pad for secret mission

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Atlantis was slowly hauled to the launch pad Monday for blastoff around July 13 on a secret military mission, replacing the crippled shuttle Columbia in NASA's revised flight schedule.

Atlantis, mounted atop a squat mobile launch platform and carried by a powerful crawler-transporter, began the 6.5-hour, 3.5-mile trip from the Vehicle Assembly Building to launch pad 39A at 11:40 p.m. Sunday, about 45 minutes ahead of schedule.

Once the shuttle reached the ocean-side launch stand, engineers planned to spend the day hooking up fuel lines, electrical cables and hydraulic systems to ready the ship for blastoff.

Air Force Col. Richard Covey, Atlantis's commander, Navy Cmdr.

Frank Culbertson, the co-pilot, Marine Col. Robert Springer, Air Force Lt. Col. Carl Meade and Army Capt. Charles Gomar planned to fly to the Kennedy Space Center Monday night to participate in a practice countdown Wednesday and Thursday.

Details about the flight are classified, but sources have said launch is planned for around 8 a.m. July 13 and that the mission is scheduled to last about four days. The shuttle's typical altitude will be 190 miles in an orbit tipped 28.5 degrees to the equator.

The launch schedule flip flop between Atlantis and Columbia was ordered by NASA managers to minimize the impact of the fuel leak that grounded Columbia the night before its planned takeoff May 30 on a 10-day astronomy mission.

NASA managers are debating whether to order a special fueling

Deputies have positive attitude toward mandatory vest ruling

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — It's been about 10 weeks since Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy Thomas Johnson's life was saved by his bulletproof vest.

Johnson was struck in the chest by two 9mm bullets during a shootout with a bank robbery suspect.

Within a couple of days after Johnson's showdown in Longwood, Sheriff John Polk issued a directive mandating that all patrol deputies wear department-issued bulletproof vests.

Johnson, who was out of commission for two months while multiple gunshot wounds to his thighs healed, said, "I think it should have been mandatory before. It's one of the best general orders to come down. It makes a lot of sense. It's for a good purpose."

Johnson, 25, has been a deputy about five years and said he has always worn his bulletproof vest. He did so as a promise to his mother and then to his wife after he married.

"It's a deal we have," Johnson said. "They wouldn't worry about me if I'd do this."

When the new order came out, Johnson said, "There were a lot of bad feelings. Some of the older people weren't real happy with it. Several complained during the first couple of weeks. But after you've been wearing it a month or two, it becomes second nature, like putting on your gumbel. It's there, but you're not consciously aware of it. There's no doubt about it. My vest saved my life."

SANFORD — As the summer days, cooing heat and dripping with humidity, drag on to the second week of vacation for youngsters out of school, a trip to an imaginary place or a chance meeting with historical characters begins to beckon from the shelves of the Seminole County Public Library.

"We want the kids to have the incentive to read," said children's librarian Sandy Oakley at the North Branch of the Seminole County library system, 150 N. Palmto Ave. Sanford.

To that end, the libraries across the county have begun the Summer Bookaneers program.

Boys find dynamite in abandoned factory

CALLAHAN — Two boys playing in an abandoned furniture factory stumbled upon a locker containing between 50 and 100 sticks of dynamite, prompting the evacuation of the neighborhood, officials said.

The boys took several of the sticks home with them, where their teenage brother cut one open and set the contents on fire before their parents learned what they were up to.

Authorities were not amused. On Friday they evacuated about two dozen families living within 200 yards of the abandoned factory just outside town, the Florida Times-Union reported.

A search discovered between 50 and 100 sticks of the high explosive inside a locker.

The families were permitted to return home after explosives experts from Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base determined the dynamite would not explode if left alone.

Eastern strike blamed for violence

MIAMI — Eastern Airlines employees and property have been the targets of more than 500 incidents of violence and vandalism reported to police since the carrier's machinists began striking 15 months ago, a published report said Sunday.

The incidents ranged from pranks such as putting golf balls in gas tanks or human feces on sidewalks to more serious crimes such as throwing roofing nails at employees or planting bombs on property, The Miami Herald reported.

"This is one side of the strike that's never been reported," said Dade County police Lt. Sam Duncan. "The criminal mischief that's gone on is incredible."

The 9,300-member International Association of Machinists went on strike March 4, 1989. Since then, area police have handled 554 cases of violence and vandalism, the report says. The FBI is investigating three bombings.

Most of the incidents occurred close to Eastern headquarters and not near the airport's passenger terminals. Police blame the trouble on a small number of strikers.

Twelve injured in collision

MIAMI BEACH — A teenage girl was killed and 11 other people were injured Sunday when a speeding car hit a Metro-Dade County bus on Collins Avenue, went out of control, flipped and rammed two other cars on the other side of the road, police said.

The Nissan Maxima sideswiped the bus just before 6 p.m. on the main beach avenue and plowed through the median, witnesses said.

"I saw a car come through the trees out there and it chipped trees off," said witness Ted Mahan. "The first car spun over and hit a second car and went over top of that and landed upside down."

Another witness, Danny Marshall, said he heard a big bang and turned to see that the car had hit the bus and another car.

Medfly aerial assault completed

MIAMI — State workers have completed their aerial assault against the pesky Mediterranean fruit fly in Dade County. The last scheduled aerial spraying was carried out Sunday over northwest Dade, where agriculture officials have trapped a total of 23 medflies since April.

Officials plan to follow up the aerial attacks with a week of intensive ground spraying, and more trapping. A plan to release sterile flies was scrapped after officials discovered that fertile flies in the wild were not all that interested in their sterile counterparts from Guatemala.

Four killed in separate violent incidents

JACKSONVILLE — Four people were killed in, apparently unrelated violence during a seven-hour period. In what officials describe as one of the city's most violent weekends in memory.

Although three of the four murders took place in an area where drug-related violence is common, police say the number of killings in so short a period is disturbing nonetheless.

Doctor, wife found dead at home

SARASOTA — A doctor and his wife were found dead in their home over the weekend, and authorities are investigating.

Dr. Leon Stutzman, 66, and his 55-year-old wife Kathleen were found dead Sunday afternoon, after neighbors alerted police.

Both victims had been shot in the head, police said.

Senators to canoe Suwannee River

LIVE OAK — U.S. Sens. Bob Graham, D-Fla., and Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., plan to canoe the Suwannee River this weekend to explore the condition of the historic river that flows through both states.

The Suwannee, which was memorialized in the Stephen Foster song, faces increased pressure from surrounding development.

Drugs found bolted to cruise ship

By DON FINEFROCK
United Press International

MIAMI — Drug traffickers sought to use a Miami-bound cruise ship to smuggle marijuana into the United States over the weekend but were foiled when the ship's captain spotted two divers in the water near the hull of the ship, a Coast Guard official said Sunday.

The two divers and a third man found nearby, all Jamaicans, were arrested after authorities found four steel boxes bolted to the hull of the ship containing marijuana, officials said.

Although traffickers have used similar smuggling techniques with smaller boats before, a Coast Guard official said he believes the case represents the first time would-be smugglers used a cruise ship as a means of transport.

Miami is the world's busiest cruise port.

"I've been here six years, and this is the first time on a cruise ship," said Coast Guard spokesman Luis Diaz. "It has been done on smaller boats. They would bring in drugs in that manner, but on a cruise ship, no."

Diaz said the captain of the cruise ship Holiday alerted Coast Guard officials about noon Saturday after spotting two divers in the water next to his ship.

Erotic Donuts

Customers: $1 donuts worth the trip

By RENE STUTZMAN
United Press International

UNION PARK — The doughnuts are cold and overpriced, and coffee refills cost $1, but that has not slowed the stampede of customers to Erotic Donuts, a new almost-topless doughnut shop.

The waitresses wear bikini bottoms, and, to the dismay of many customers, pasties.

"Not pasties in the old stripper sense, cute little round things with tassels. They wear round things," said Harry Stewart, the Orange County attorney who has been trying in vain to figure out a way to prosecute shop owner Kevin Welch.

"They're not exposing anything," Stewart said.

The waitresses wear a different pair of designer round things every day.

"We autographed one today, (for) a probation officer who took it back to the office," said waitress Lillian Guillen, 36, of Orlando.

"I have one pair with red and white hearts. They're cute," said waitress Maura McNamara, 21. "That's my real name and my real age. In the newspaper they put quote marks around it like I'm a hooker."

What she is is an actress/model/waitress with a fun, easy, good-paying job, and she loves it, she said.

When the shop opened May 30, it was besieged by customers.

"It was a zoo," said Welch, 30, who gave up his job driving a juice truck to start the business.

Doughnuts cost $1 each, three times what you would pay if you bought them from the Orlando bakery 6 miles up the road where

Why not? Doughnut shops, hardware stores, whatever.

— Elliott Pardee, Chuluota

Welch buys them every morning. Coffee also is $1 — no refills.

But customers flood into the small shop, sometimes so many they form a line out the door.

Elliott Pardee, 33, a computer programmer from Chuluota, has stopped in three times in less than two weeks.

He likes the idea of an almost-topless doughnut shop.

"Why not? Doughnut shops, hardware stores, whatever," he said.

However, Orange County Commissioner Bill Donegan is not amused. He has received 108 complaints about the shop — more than any other matter during his 18-month tenure on the commission.

"There's no question that he slipped under every adult entertainment ordinance that we have. He doesn't serve any liquor. He doesn't allow anyone under age 18 in there. He tinted all the windows. It's one of these times we'll have to be more creative in writing ... ordinances for these places."

Welch admits his inspiration came from R'Donuts, a 5-year-old topless doughnut shop in Fort Lauderdale, but to comply with county ordinances, he had to have his waitresses wear pasties.

Another doughnut shop used to occupy his building, and neighbors were surprised when they saw "Erotic Donuts" plastered over the old sign.

State studies neglected cemeteries

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — A state task force has found cemeteries across Florida are deteriorating due to neglect, sometimes with spectacularly macabre results, according to a published report Sunday.

The task force, which was created in the wake of revelations about the condition of the state's graveyards, found that 26 of Florida's 170 licensed cemeteries are in financial trouble and might not be able to provide proper maintenance, The Florida Times-Union reported.

Furthermore, 2,117 cemeteries owned by churches, families and non-profit groups are exempt from licensing, and officials could not even begin to guess how many of them are deteriorating.

State officials say existing regulations are not addressing the problems.

"It's a thorny issue," said Albert Winter of the state Comptroller's Office in Jacksonville.

Gold recovered from 1622 shipwreck

United Press International

KEY WEST — A group of salvagers has retrieved the first treasure from an unidentified 17th century Spanish galleon that sank near the Dry Tortugas off Key West.

The salvagers on Saturday displayed the first gold bar to be plucked from the wreck, which lies about a quarter mile under the sea, and they say there is more such treasure waiting to be claimed. They have declined to speculate about the total value of that treasure.

The gold bar was retrieved by an unmanned shuttle called Merlin.

"It was absolute ecstasy by the guys on the ship. They were just whooping," Daniel Bagley told The Miami Herald.

Bagley is the director of Seahawk Deep Ocean Technology, the group founded by Tampa businessmen that has laid claim to the wreck.

Although Seahawk has yet to identify the wreck, organizers believe it may belong to the same fleet as the Nuestra Señora de Atocha, the richest treasure ship ever found.

The Atocha's fleet was sunk by a hurricane in 1622 one day after leaving Cuba for Europe.

Bob Marx, the group's archaeologist, said the gold bar displayed Saturday has the seal of the Spanish crown, which he said indicates that the galleon was an official treasure ship headed for Europe.

The group found the wreck in April 1989 about 25 miles south of the Dry Tortugas and 75 miles west of Key West.

Group plans de Soto tribute

United Press International

HELEN, Ga. — A governor-appointed commission to commemorate the 450th anniversary of the Hernando de Soto expedition through Georgia is still exploring ways to raise money.

The commission was turned down this year when it asked the Legislature for $43,000 to pay for supplies to mark the approximate journey the Spanish explorer took through Georgia in 1540.

"Sometimes we think we're paper tigers."

The Times-Union reported numerous macabre examples of graveyard desecration and decay, including the scattering of bones in Jacksonville's

Greenwood Cemetery last month.

Sunken graves and rotted wooden caskets became a problem in Jacksonville in the early 1970s, when dogs got into some older graveyards and got at the bones in collapsed graves.

The city later tightened its ordinance to require concrete vaults, but the problem with older graveyards remains, the newspaper said.

LONGWOOD — The long-range planning for the future of the city is expected to receive another shot in the arm tonight when University of Central Florida graduate student Jim Coleman presents the results of the recently completed citizens survey at the regular meeting of the Longwood City Commission.

Coleman was recommended last October.

when the city administration contacted the university's Department of Public Administration, seeking assistance in conducting a needs survey as part of its "Visions" program.

Youthful Volusia cyclists to get special bike paths

By NICK PPRIFAUF
Herald staff writer

OSTEEN — Children riding their bikes to Osteen Elementary School when it reopens this fall will find their very own equivalent of a freeway.

Volusia County is almost finished installing eight-foot-wide bike paths along Doyle Road, from both the easterly and westerly directions, and plans to add another one north of the school before the students return.

The bike path to the west of the school, seven-tenths of a mile long beginning at Courtland Boulevard, was completed March 9 at a cost of $66,157. The eastern leg, expected to be complete within two weeks, begins at State Road 415 and runs eight-tenths of a mile to the school entrance. That 4,300-foot stretch cost the county $78,233.

"We've been working for the past three years throughout Volusia County to provide adequate bike paths for students who live within a two-mile radius of their schools and therefore do not qualify for busing," said W.A. McGhee, engineering supervisor for roadway design. "Within the next two years we hope to have a total of at least 20 such bike paths finished."

The county is paying for construction of these paths on a continuing basis as funds are available, McGhee said.

"The next Osteen area project," according to McGhee, "will be another bike path from the north, on Courtland, beginning at Fort Smith and running south to join the path already finished on Doyle."

Bids will be accepted later this month for that project and it should be completed by the beginning of the new school year.

Osteen Elementary School serves kindergarten through fifth-graders in the Osteen and western Deltona area, with a 1989-90 enrollment of 1,373 students. Volusia County school officials predict an increase in enrollment this fall due to the rapid growth of the area.

Debris linked to jet crash 31 years ago found in lake

United Press International

EUSTIS — Air Force officials were to arrive today to retrieve what appears to be the wreckage of a military jet submerged in Lake Joanna since a spectacular crash 31 years ago.

Lakeshore resident Gene Weisman found the debris sticking out of the water in the drought-depleted lake while waterskiing Friday.

One piece of wreckage has "T-33" stenciled on it, leading Lake County sheriff's officials to link it with the crash of a T-33 jet trainer.

Such a jet crashed into the mile-long lake on May 3, 1959. The Orlando Sentinel reported Sunday.

The Air Force has begun its own research to confirm whether the wreckage is the shattered tail section from the crashed jet, said Sgt. Ivy Page, an information officer from Patrick Air Force Base in Brevard County.

News reports at the time said the plane was en route from the old McCoy Air Force Base south of Orlando to Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama.

Two crewmen were killed. The biggest piece of debris was described as about half the size of a car.

High court's Medicaid ruling seen as costly

By CAROLE FLECK
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Forty-six states argued against it. Health care providers supported it. Now taxpayers could be paying for it.

The issue is health care for the poor and indigent, and the question is who will shoulder the burden when states are forced to pay higher reimbursement fees to providers such as hospitals and nursing homes.

The Supreme Court addressed the matter Thursday when it upheld a law allowing health care providers to sue states for higher reimbursement costs in treating Medicaid patients. The court said providers that operate "efficiently and economically" have a right to sue for "reasonable and adequate" reimbursement.

The ruling stemmed from a lawsuit brought by the Virginia Hospital Association, which said Virginia failed to provide adequate reimbursement for medical care for the poor.

The law exposes states to potentially millions — and perhaps billions — of dollars in litigation brought by health care providers and could ultimately lead to higher taxes.

"The states will have to defend these cases, and that will be costly," said Sheila Taub, a law professor at Bridgeport University in Connecticut. "States may be inspired to increase reimbursements to hospitals and nursing homes, which spend the most Medicaid dollars, and they don't have much money floating around."

"The money will either be taken from other state programs or states will be forced to increase revenues by driving up taxes," Taub said. "We're talking about lots of money because lots of hospitals have filed for bankruptcy or closed in recent years because they can't survive under rates Medicaid is paying them."

In Philadelphia, attorney Matthew Strickler said three of four city hospitals in the past few years were forced into bankruptcy due to meager reimbursements.

Strickler, who filed a friend-of-the-court brief supporting the VHA on behalf of Temple University Hospital, said Temple was suffering financially because most of its patients were poor and on Medicaid.

"Temple has serious financial problems because it receives 40-50 percent Medicaid reimbursement, which is insufficient to cover its costs," he said. "It is essential to the survival of the hospital that we do something to remedy the payment inadequacies. Hospitals can't survive on these payments."

Some government officials fear the ruling ultimately will lead to the decline of health care for the poor because Medicaid dollars will be used instead for litigation. Moreover, the federal government is not likely to increase its share of funding.

"We're afraid that the court's ruling opening the floodgates to litigation is going to divert money from patient care," said Kenneth Graham, an assistant attorney general in Connecticut who filed a brief on behalf of 46 states supporting Virginia. "Those dollars are going to come out of Medicaid budgets. It's a cost of administering the Medicaid program."

Carter Phillips, a lawyer who filed briefs on behalf of the American Health Care Association and American Hospital Association in Chicago, said the ruling will serve as a "check" on the fairness of the state's reimbursement plan.

"Historically you could always cut Medicaid in the state budget when everything else went bad," Phillips said. "Now it will serve as a useful check, and the health care provider can take action. It will upgrade the quality provided to Medicaid patients."

"You can't continue to underprice a commodity without having some affect on how hospitals will operate in terms of new services being provided and equipment," Phillips said. "Now providers are guaranteed a true and reasonable return as long as they operate efficiently."

But Phillips acknowledged that the law will likely burden state treasuries, forcing tax increases or cutbacks in services.

"This will create some problems for the states," he said, especially those that have used the Medicaid reimbursement scheme to solve their budget problems by cutting reimbursement rates.

"They did it to avoid a budget problem because 'You're a state and looking for a place to save, that's it. Now states will have to find some other way to come away with money or find another place to cut."

Wit and charm

"Who knows," Barbara Bush told graduating seniors at Wellesley College, "somewhere out in this audience may even be someone who will one day follow in my footsteps and preside over the White House as the president's spouse." Then, after a well-timed pause, she added, "And I wish him well."

With Raisa Grubachev at her side, Mrs. Bush used wit and charm to win over the commencement crowd at the Massachusetts women's college, where 150 seniors gained national attention by protesting the first lady's speaking invitation. They said it was inappropriate because Mrs. Bush had been a homemaker — not a career woman — who gained recognition through her husband's achievements. She dropped out of college in 1944 to marry George Bush, then a Navy pilot.

Fortunately for the sake of diversity, there are no hard and fast rules for selecting commencement speakers. Speakers at American colleges have ranged traditionally from captains of industry and Nobel Prize-winning scientists to political dissenters and unconventional artists. Whether the views of a speaker meet with universal approbation should matter less than whether he or she has something important to say to graduates.

Does Barbara Bush qualify? Let's look at her background first. The first lady is also America's First Volunteer, championing literacy and the care of babies with AIDS as part of a lifetime of charitable work, some prompted by the pain of losing a child to leukemia in 1953. She has long been her husband's backup in sensitive matters, whether helping to ensure that summits go smoothly on the social side or serving as a goodwill ambassador. And as President Bush's wife for more than 40 years, she succeeded in one of life's most demanding roles by raising four sons and a daughter.

Does Mrs. Bush have anything important to say? The listeners at Wellesley thought so. To the frequent cheers and applause of the audience of 5,000, she urged the 535 graduating seniors to tolerate individuality and personal choices, to care about children and to get involved in causes larger than themselves. Traditionally, she said, the winner of Wellesley's annual hoop race was expected to be the first married; now the winner is said to be the first millionaire or chief executive officer. She called both stereotypes.

"At the end of your life," declared the 64-year-old first lady, "you will never regret not having passed one more test, not winning one more verdict or not closing one more deal. You will regret time not spent with a husband, a child, a friend or a parent." That's a sensible, caring message of relevance to people of all generations and ambitions.

Revenge music

Two generations of parents have come to suspect that much of what passes for music among the teen-age set — whether bubble-gum rock or heavy metal or rap — is, in fact, an instrument of aggression, devised for either of two purposes: to drive adults out of the house, or out of their minds. Now comes news that the game of using music to establish turf can work both ways.

Ten 7-Eleven stores in British Columbia were recently having trouble with teenagers loitering outside the shops and congregating in the parking lots, keeping other customers away. So the stores installed outdoor sound systems over which they play a recorded program known as "Golden Sounds". Montyvan, Ray Coniff and other varieties of the syrupy fare commonly known as elevator music. When the volume on "Moon River" is turned up, the teens flee in disgust. "It makes me feel like kicking in the windows," one of the repelled loiterers told The Wall Street Journal.

Oh, isn't revenge sweet?

Disaster looms on chemical alley

TEXAS CITY, Texas — Even a casual observer can quickly sense the anguish of the people living in the communities bordering Galveston Bay, the San Jacinto River and the Houston Ship Channel by observing the signs posted throughout the area.

First, there are the "HC" signs at the edge of many roadways. They identify the special routes designated for trucks carrying hazardous cargo ranging from lethal industrial chemicals to toxic waste.

Then, there are the "Warning" signs posted on the chain-link fences surrounding the storage tanks, flare stacks and catalytic crackers operated by Union Carbide, Amoco, Marathon, GAF and lesser known firms such as Sterling Chemical and Hill Petroleum.

Finally, there are the "For Sale" signs in the front yards of so many area homes — an indicator that their owners can no longer cope with the chemical waste pits adjacent to housing developments, the acrid odor of unknown compounds released from industrial units directly across the street from child-care facilities and the constant threat of deadly fires or explosions.

Along the banks of the 50-mile-long network of waterways that links Houston with the Gulf of Mexico is the densest concentration of petrochemical plants and oil refineries in the nation. Half of the country's petrochemical products and 15 percent of its refined petroleum products are produced here.

While consumers everywhere benefit from that work, those living in the area pay a high price in terms of unremitting threats to their health and safety. Along one stretch of Interstate 45, for example, seven waste pits containing styrene tars, heavy metals and other lethal compounds are situated directly across the highway from a middle-income neighborhood.

"This is one step up from midnight dumping," says one concerned mother, Bebe Lising. She is among a growing number of area residents critical of what they characterize as an unrestrained and irresponsible petrochemical industry.

Those critics claim that producers determined to maximize profits cut corners, endangering both plant workers and those living nearby. This charge is rejected by the American Petroleum Institute, which says "first and foremost, the industry's abiding concern is the safety of its workers."

Last year, API named Phillips Petroleum the safest company in the industry. The award was made only months before a devastating series of explosions and fires at a Phillips petrochemical plant in the Houston Ship Channel community of Pasadena, Texas, killed 23 workers and injured about 125 others.

The federal government's Occupational Safety and Health Administration fined Phillips $5.7 million, alleging that the firm was guilty of 566 willful safety violations. Phillips denies those charges, but, if Phillips is the best, the episode raises questions about safety standards elsewhere in the industry.

Indeed, now almost commonplace in the area are plant fires, barge explosions, accidental releases of lethal chemicals and the purposeful dumping of arsenic and other toxic substances into the tidal estuaries that sustain rich seafood beds.

Along I-45, seven waste pits containing lethal compounds are situated across from a middle-income neighborhood.

Court flags First Amendment test

WASHINGTON — No speech, however obscene or inflammatory, injures America as much as the Supreme Court does — all nine justices — when speaking about First Amendment protections of speech. It almost invariably miseducates the nation of the nation's premises. It has done so again, concerning flag-burning.

In 1984, a porter burned a flag in Dallas to express loathing for America. Convicted under a Texas statute proscribing desecration of the flag in a way that would give offense to onlookers, he appealed to the Court.

Last June, the Court overturned his conviction, arguing that flag-burning is "sufficiently imbued with elements of communication" to be constitutionally protected "symbolic expression," which the Court erroneously considers a synonym for "speech." The Court held — it was correct about this, if only this — as follows: Texas intended to protect the flag as a symbol of national values; therefore by forbidding flag desecration Texas was proscribing "expression" that has a particular political content.

Congress promptly passed the Flag Protection Act of 1989 criminalizing desecration. Protesters promptly burned flags to protest (among other things) the act. Now the Supreme Court has agreed with the lower courts which said prosecutions would be unconstitutional. The Court argued (perfunctorily, in just eight pages) that there was no constitutional difference between Congress and Texas' laws.

The Court was divided 5-4 but the decision is fundamentally uninteresting because the majority and the dissenters do not differ about fundamentals. All nine justices share the flaccid, false consensus about what the Founders intended by First Amendment speech protection.

Justice Brennan, a liberal, joined by liberals Marshall and Blackmun and conservatives Scalia and Kennedy, gave short shrift to the dissenters' (Stevens, joined by Rehnquist, White and O'Connor) lame contention. The dissenters argued that Congress intended to protect the flag as a national symbol but did not thereby intend to penalize the expression, through flag desecration, of particular ideas.

The dissenters argued that it is constitutional doctrine that certain methods of expression may be prohibited if the prohibition is unrelated to the ideas expressed; and if the prohibition does not interfere with alternative means of expressing those ideas; and if the prohibition serves an important societal interest.

But the dissenters share the majority's mistaken belief that "symbolic expression" is tantamount to speech as the Founders understood and valued it. And the dissenters agree that Congress values protecting the flag as a symbol of nationhood. So the dissenters are left with the limp argument that such symbolism implicates no particular ideas. That is nonsense.

The entire court, and probably all of Congress, operates within the incoherent consensus about the First Amendment.

If you agree, as all nine justices do, that the Amendment forbids limiting particular forms of expression to protect particular ideas — if, that is, you agree that the Constitution forbids "establishment" of particular political ideas — the result the Court reached is logically entailed. But did the Founders mean to forbid such partiality toward particular ideas? They did not. That they did not is, we may say, self-evident.

Sufficient proof (but not the only proof) is that the Constitution guarantees the supremacy of — "establishes," if you will, as American political orthodoxy — certain political ideas. The Constitution forbids the establishment of a particular religion but requires the establishment of a particular form of government. It does so by guaranteeing to each state "a republican form of government."

Furthermore, the First Amendment explicitly distinguishes religious speech from other kinds by proscribing "establishment" of government partially toward a particular religion. Why? Walter Berns of Georgetown University argues, correctly, that the Founders believed that fundamental religious truth may be unknowable, and certainly so far as government is concerned, there is no such thing as religious truth. But the Founders believed that fundamental political truths are not merely knowable, they are (as Jefferson proclaimed in the nation's primary document, the Declaration of Independence) "self-evident."

After many years of miseducation (in part by earlier Courts) the Court is convinced of, and hence the country is committed to, this proposition: The Constitution mandates protection of any behavior that "expresses" a politically tinged attitude. Today's Court cannot fathom that the Founders who wrote the First Amendment used language with a precision — a precision born of philosophic clarity and subtlety — that is foreign to the Court.

The dissenters are left with the limp argument that such symbolism implicates no particular ideas.

Whistleblower goes unheeded

WASHINGTON — When Linda Mitchell landed a job at the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station near Phoenix, Ariz., she thought she had found the Cadillac of nuclear power plants. Now she thinks it's an Edsel.

Mitchell, an electrical engineer, mother of four and grandmother of two, can now add "whistleblower" to her resume. She has become the central figure in yet another story about how badly the nuclear power industry does its dangerous job and how federal regulators look the other way.

Palo Verde is owned by the Arizona Public Service Co. and is the largest nuclear facility in the country. Mitchell has become a crusader against what she sees as gross safety problems at the plant.

Now federal officials are reviewing Mitchell's charges that the Arizona Public Service Co. founded the safety problems by trying to foil a government investigation of the plant. Mitchell has filed a complaint with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission alleging that Arizona Public Service tried to discredit an NRC investigator after he found serious safety problems at Palo Verde. The NRC Inspector General is looking into the claim.

The story began in March 1989 with a near disaster at Palo Verde. The plant had to be shut down during a power failure. The emergency backup lighting system at the plant failed during the blackout, and workers were literally feeling their way around the valves that would shut down the plant before the reactor core heated up.

In the dark, operators goofed the shutdown procedure and two other plant workers stepped in, corrected the mistake and averted a calamity. When the NRC found out, Arizona Public Service was fined $250,000 for failing to maintain the lighting system and for other violations. Several months later, when an NRC inspector showed up to see if the lighting system had been fixed, Mitchell told him it hadn't, and she gave him the documents to prove it.

Our associate Scott Sleek obtained a copy of the report by NRC inspector Charles Ramsey that confirms that the lighting system still didn't work.

The trouble was just beginning for both Mitchell and Ramsey. Mitchell claims that she heard a discussion in which her bosses planned how to get the NRC to take inspector Ramsey off their backs. She says management employees boasted that the company would "get rid of" Ramsey. The company ended up accusing Ramsey of misconduct on a technicality. The NRC, which would rather betray its own inspectors than upset the industry it is supposed to regulate, went so far as to put the company's complaints in Ramsey's personnel file. He protested and the NRC had to back off and remove the offending entry. Arizona Public Service officials told us they have done nothing wrong and that they are working hard to upgrade the lighting system.

Mitchell, who has 25 years of experience in nuclear energy, said she has paid a price for telling the truth. She claims she and her husband have been threatened anonymously. We have also seen a written statement from a plant employee who said that a plant official complained loudly and profusely about Mitchell's aggressiveness on the lighting problem.

In an ideal world, Mitchell could report her concerns to the NRC and get action. But this is the same NRC that has told its own inspectors to back off and once even paid an informant to rat on an inspector.

In the dark, operators goofed the shutdown procedure.

test for Atlantis after the practice countdown to make sure the ship does not have a similar problem to the one that grounded Columbia.

Engineers traced Columbia's leak to a 17-inch-wide fuel line fitting where the ship's main liquid hydrogen line enters the belly of the orbiter. But technicians were unable to isolate the problem area and NASA managers had little choice but to order Columbia back to its hangar for a detailed inspection.

The part of the "17-inch disconnect" fitting on the external tank side of the big umbilical will be shipped back to the manufacturer Tuesday.

If tests fail to find a leak, the corresponding valves and plumbing on the shuttle side of the fitting will be removed and replaced with hardware currently installed in NASA's newest shuttle, the Endeavour.

If all goes well, the astronauts, dressed in bulky spacesuits, will strap in aboard Atlantis Thursday for the final hours of the mock countdown, scheduled to end with the simulated ignition and shutdown of the shuttle's three main engines.

Vests

before it became mandatory, everybody came back wearing vests on their own." Deputy Brian Marcum said. "I guess that's what it takes sometimes to remind you what's out there."

After abandoning his vest for day patrol duty since 1982, Marcum recently donned the device again. He tapped his vest and said, "Call me Michelangelo, one of the Ninja Turtles." Marcum said he's not sure if he feels safer in his vest, because he believes, "If it's going to happen, it's going to happen."

He pointed out that deputy Hugh Thomas, killed in Geneva March 28, 1989 by a sniper's bullet to his head, "wore his vest religiously from the first day. It's something beyond your control."

Wearing his vest "took some getting used to," Marcum said. "It's just like the seatbelt. It becomes a habit." The vest, he said, is very hot during day duty, because the material doesn't "breathe" and there's no way for heat to escape. If patrol cars weren't air conditioned, Marcum said vest-wearing deputies might become ill from the heat held by their vests.

Marcum said his wife was once a sheriff's deputy. "She knows what I go through. She's of the mind that she's not my mother. She wanted me to wear the vest, but she wasn't going to tell me. She knows how hot it gets working days," Marcum said.

Sgt. Ken Starr, who recently shifted from night to day patrol, said on night duty he wore his vest mainly for the peace of mind of his wife. "She wanted me to wear it all the time anyway," Starr said. "If I didn't wear it, it was in my car."

"I think most people have realized it's for safety. They're experimenting with some vests now that are lighter and more comfortable. A vest weighs a ton," Starr said. His vest really weighs about two pounds.

"It doesn't restrict movement. Some guys complain they ride up. Some don't fit the way they want them to. And they're hot. After a 12-hour shift, my T-shirt is wringing wet with sweat. It's worth the problems and the hassles. I don't know any deputies who haven't been able to do something because they were wearing vests," Starr also said his vest has saved him from cuts when climbing over a fence.

"It's worth it. I didn't wear mine before," Sgt. Martin Linnekugel said. "It's hot. You get used to it. It's better than getting killed. Most have adjusted to it."

books on a special page provided by the library system.

"They can see the results of their reading over the course of the summer," Oakley said.

She said children often get bored early in the summer because they "use up" all their activities early in the season, spending the last two months "driving mom crazy, looking for stuff to do."

The Bookaneer program lets children read what they want at their own pace, and allows them to chart their progress and feel a sense of accomplishment.

"Our goal is to give them a reason to read," Mildred Carter, children's librarian at the Northwest branch of the Seminole County library, 580 Greenway Blvd., Lake Mary, said. "When they see how much they've completed, they have a sense of accomplishment." The program, a traditional summer event in Seminole County for more than a decade, has always been "quite successful", according to Carter.

"The kids read whatever they want and if they want to talk to a librarian about it when they return the book or check another one out, we're here," she said.

In addition to the reading program, the library will offer a series of films including "The Rescuers," "The Jack of Hearts" and "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

Youngsters are required to pick up free tickets at the reference desk for some films, so they are encouraged to check with the librarian at their local branch.

There will be story times at the North Branch library for youngsters to hear some of their favorite stories, as well as some they may never have heard before told by master wordsmiths.

"There's a little something for everything here," Oakley said. "The library is a fun place to be and summer is a great time to be here."

needed our land for right of way in their road-widening project, and what I would have had after they finished wasn't very much in the way of a store."

Boetto, who was a teen-ager when his family opened the store, said he temporarily moved the business to a leased store on the northern side of SR-434, hoping to be able to rebuild the 7,000 square-foot building.

"But," he said, "Once we really examined the condition of the old place and looked into the amount of money we would have to invest to restore it, we realized tearing it down would be the only answer." Boetto has since moved to the store immediately south of where the old building stood. It's smaller, but so far he has managed to expand the structure and is planning further expansion. Rather than bemoaning the loss of the family store, he expresses appreciation to his loyal customers who have continued to patronize the store through the two moves.

"But," he said, "even people who don't buy western wear stop in and ask about the old store. They miss seeing it. I miss it too."

as early as we can," Clark said.

Children most at risk are those living in poverty, those living with only one parent, those with language problems or from non-English speaking homes, those with an undiagnosed learning disability, those living with teenage parents, those with deep-seated emotional problems or physical handicaps, or those children who may have experienced racial or ethnic prejudice.

"It is these children who exhibit low achievement and we want to teach them that school can be an interesting experience," Clark said.

In 1988-89, 96 children participated in the pre-kindergarten program. Last year only 71 students were served.

Last year's program began in January, rather than August, because the letter of approval from the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services which allows the program to begin was not received until December.

The board approved Clark's request that the program begin in August with or without the letter of approval this year.

Currently, the early intervention programs are operated in privately- or corporate-owned day care facilities.

Board chairman Ann Neiswender said she could foresee a day soon when the program would be in place on new and existing school campuses, but vice chairman Nancy Warren, long opposed to adding another responsibility to the district budget, said she is in no hurry to start the process.

"I am not in favor of school-based services," she said. "Let's look for another way to serve these children."

Next year the program will be, once again, coordinated with 4-C facilities and not placed in school sites.

Chernobyl hero fails to improve

SEATTLE - The prognosis for Soviet hero Anatoly Grishchenko, who exposed himself to massive doses of radiation sealing the burning Chernobyl nuclear reactor, was dim Sunday in his fight against leukemia.

Susan Edmonds, a spokeswoman at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, said Grishchenko remained in critical condition and showed no signs of improvement.

The 53-year-old pilot has been on a respirator for the past 3 1/2 days after he developed a fever and had difficulty breathing. Grishchenko underwent surgery Tuesday to remove a fungal infection on his right lung.

Five children pulled from burning van

NEW YORK - Five children were pulled safely from a burning van parked on a Brooklyn street by three men who spotted the flames and rushed to the scene.

The children, Hasidic Jews, had just received a blessing Sunday from their spiritual leader and their father called the rescue by three black men a miracle, saying "If they hadn't been there, my children would not be alive."

Mandela tours Americas

United Press International

OTTAWA - Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, beginning a North American tour that includes an address to Canada's Parliament today, promised that a more humane South Africa looms just beyond the horizon.

About 2,000 people, including hundreds of schoolchildren, were at Ottawa's military airport Sunday to greet Mandela. Chanting in Zulu and singing the black African national anthem, the crowd waved African National Congress flags and placards welcoming Mandela to Canada.

The 71-year-old vice president of the ANC said he would request that Western nations assume new tasks in the struggle against apartheid, the system of racial separation in South Africa, "which continues to ravage our country."

Mandela said the end of the "hard and costly struggle" was in sight. "Beyond the horizon lies a South Africa that will be as glorious as it is humane," he said.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

A's answer Chisox challenge

After squaring off with the upstart Chicago White Sox in a four-game weekend series, the Oakland Athletics emerged with their championship reputation fully intact.

Chicago entered the four-game series trailing the division-leading A's by just two games, and with hopes of moving closer to the World Champions.

It looked promising for the White Sox Thursday night when they took the opening game of the series. But Chicago stumbled and dropped the next three, capped by Sunday's 5-2 loss to the Athletics.

Elsewhere in the American League, Toronto trashed New York 8-1, California crushed Detroit 7-3, Boston chopped Baltimore 6-5, Cleveland trounced Milwaukee 12-4, Minnesota topped Kansas City 4-1, Oakland clubbed Chicago 5-2 and Seattle downed Texas 6-3.

TENNIS

Lendl wins Wimbledon tuneup

LONDON — Ivan Lendl, who owns a title in every Grand Slam event except Wimbledon, showed himself in top form on grass Sunday with a straight-sets victory over Wimbledon champion Boris Becker to win the $500,000 Stella Artois tournament.

Lendl, the defending Stella Artois champion, defeated Becker 6-3, 6-2 in 74 minutes, his first victory over Becker on grass. It was Lendl's first victory over Becker since the 1987 Masters and left them even 8-8 in career meetings.

Lendl broke Becker in the second game of each set to gain the advantage and clinched the match with a third service break.

BOXING

Foreman calls for showdown

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The only battle between Mike Tyson and George Foreman in the near future will be an argument over when they should fight each other.

After scoring quick knockouts on a Saturday night doubleheader, the former champions had different ideas about what should happen next.

Tyson's promoter Don King announced Tyson would fight young contender Alex Stewart Sept. 8. Foreman agreed to fight Francesco Damiiani on the same card at Caesars Palace, but called for a showdown with Tyson.

"Let's get George Foreman and Mike Tyson together once and for all," Foreman said. "That'll be the end of the whole thing. Who's playing these games anyway?"

"If 10, 15 or 20 million dollars isn't enough, I don't know what is. We've got to fight sometime, why not fight one another? The winner would then fight for the heavyweight championship."

WORLD CUP

Spain, Belgium score wins

ROME — Adif Miguel "Michel" Gonzalez to the list of players who have scored more World Cup goals than the United States.

Michel, as the flashy Spaniard is known, recorded the first hat trick of the tournament Sunday, powering Spain to a 3-1 victory over South Korea in the northern Italian city of Udine.

In Sunday's other matches, Belgium, 2-0, qualified for the second round with a 3-1 triumph over Uruguay in Verona while Egypt and Ireland played a scoreless draw in Palermo, Sicily.

Gonzalez joined West Germans Rudi Voeller and Lothar Matthaeus atop the World Cup scoring race with three goals. Ten players have more goals than the U.S. team, which has one from Paul Caligiuri in its first two matches.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Reds complete sweep of Astros

Houston reliever Xavier Hernandez said he was "just throwing inside." It probably had nothing to do with the fact that the Cincinnati Reds were playing Home Run Derby against Astor pitching.

Eric Davis belted two of Cincinnati's four home runs Sunday and the Reds ended their weekend feast on Houston pitching with a 7-1 victory, completing a sweep of their three-game series.

Hernandez, who earlier had been warned after hitting Glenn Braggs in the sixth, hit Barry Larkin in the seventh. Davis then drilled a two-run homer before Hernandez plucked Todd Beuzinger with a pitch, precipitating a bench-clearing incident.

Wright's buzzer-beater lifts ICBA 'Noles over SOYSA

From staff reports

COCOA BEACH — Randy Wright turned a potential disaster into game-winning play Sunday as his buzzer-beating basket lifted the ICBA Seminoles to a 53-52 win over SOYSA in the third place game of the Florida 15-and-Under AAU state basketball tournament at Brevard Community College.

Coached by Eddie Norton, the ICBA (Inter County Basketball Association) Seminoles represent the Oviedo-Lake Howell high school areas.

With just seconds remaining, ICBA leading scorer Leon Lowman started to drive to the basket and slipped. As he fell, he pushed the ball towards the basket. Wright managed to grab the ball and get the shot off before the buzzer sounded.

The shot culminated a run that saw the Seminoles come from six points down with 50 seconds left.

SOYSA (South Orlando Youth Sports Authority) finally was able to get the ball inbounds and brought it upcourt, where John Latimer was fouled. He converted two free throws to give SOYSA a 52-51 lead with 11 seconds remaining.

Lowman scored 21 points to lead ICBA. Wright finished with 12 with Braxton contributing nine points. Lowman, Braxton and Wright all will be sophomores at Oviedo High School next year while Jacques will be a sophomore at Lake Howell.

To get to the third-place game, the ICBA Seminoles beat Lakeland, Fort Lauderdale before losing to Gainesville in semifinals on Saturday.

The Seminoles will next play in the YBA (Youth Basketball Association) national invitational in Orlando in July. Currently, there are 24 teams entered in the 15-and-Under age group from 20 different states.

ICBA also will be represented by teams in the boys' 11-and-Under and 13-and-Under brackets as well as the girls' 18-and-Under tournament.

From staff reports

EUSTIS — Todd Herrback threw a two-hitter, striking out eight and walking three, to lead the Altamonte Springs Senior National League Dodgers to a 12-2 win over the Casselberry Cubs in the Area 3 final of the Top Team Tournament Saturday night.

The game was stopped after five innings by the 10-run mercy rule. It was the fifth time this season the Dodgers had defeated the Cubs.

Now the Dodgers, who won all three of their Area 3 games, advance to the Top Team district finals, which will start in Deltona on Tuesday. The Dodgers are scheduled to play Daytona at 7 p.m.

Scott Johnston had two singles, three RBI and two runs scored to lead the Dodger attack. Danny Seldentaden added two singles, one RBI and one run scored while Mike Lyons contributed two singles, two RBI and two runs scored.

Also chipping in were Tim Ruckelschel (single, three RBI, two runs scored), Herrback (single, two RBI, one run scored), Eddie Pita (one RBI, one run scored), Danny Story (single, two runs scored) and Jimmy Ruddy (one run scored).

Big Leaguers sweep Eustis

From staff reports

EUSTIS — The Altamonte Springs Big League awakened from the doldrums with a nine-run sixth inning in the first game and went on to take a 10-5, 15-5 doubleheader sweep from Eustis Big League on Sunday.

The win increases the Altamonte Springs record to 11-2 on the season, good enough for a three-way tie for the league-lead with Dr. Phillips and Rolling Hills/Pine Hills. Next action for Altamonte springs will be this Wednesday when they host Southwest Orlando Big League at Lake Mary High School at 7:30 p.m.

Altamonte Springs had been held to only one hit and trailed 4-1 until the fateful sixth in which the team sent 15 men to the plate and erupted for seven hits.

Southeast Seminole names first All Stars

From staff reports

Despite being in just its first year, the Southeast Seminole (Oviedo-Tuskawilla) Babe Ruth Baseball League still will be represented by All-Star teams in five different age brackets this summer.

The league will have teams entered in the Junior Bambino (9 and 10-year-olds), Bambino (11 and 12), Preps (13) and Babe Ruth (14 and 15) All-Star tournaments. Also, the league's 12-and-Under All-Star softball team will play in a tournament in Orlando.

On the Junior Bambino roster are Troy Bougwell, Austin Costin, John Buchanan, Mark Brown, David Vanata, Damon DiCharry, Matt Goldstejn, Jeremy Zalanes, Ashley Scott, Alan Montijo, Matt Tulip, Ryan Wilder, Kenny Parrott, Allan Walker and Joe Muley.

Coached by Richie Costin, manager of the league-champion Pirates, the Junior Bambinos will play in the district tournament in Longwood June 21-25. A win there will advance them to the state tournament July 5-8 in Newberry. From there, they would go to the National Regional in Huntsville, Ala., July 26-28.

Named to the Bambino All-Stars were Trace Wilson, Joe Thomas, Nick Caldwell, Mike Scutero, Donnie Markey, Chris Spies, Ricky Schmitt, Brad Marshall, Jake Fessler, Amle Mohabar, Jack Connors, Don Glorious, Levi Long, Nathan Peck and Duane Caldwell.

Bill Thomas, manager of the league-champion Royals, will guide the Bambino squad into the district tournament in Longwood on June 21-25. They could advance to the state tournament in Tavares on July 12-15 with See Babe Ruth, Page 2B

Six teams still alive in church softball tourney

From staff reports

SANFORD — Calvary Christian, St. Stephen's Catholic of Winter Springs, Maranatha Pentecostal, Grace Christian, Church of God and Central Baptist are the six teams left after Saturday's action in the Sanford Church Slowpitch Softball League's Spring Tournament at Chase Park.

Next Saturday will be the final day of the tournament, which will be played at the Lee P. Moore Park Field located in the Hidden Lake Subdivision.

Being a double-elimination tournament, there is the possibility of seven games being played next week if the team that is still undefeated falls to the losers' bracket survivor, forcing a winner-take-all game.

In losers' bracket action this past Saturday, First Baptist Geneva and Central Baptist remained alive with 7-0 forfeit wins over Grace United Methodist and First Nazarene, respectively. Maranatha then eliminated Geneva with a 16-8 triumph and Central eliminated First Baptist Markham Woods by a 15-2 score.

In the winners' bracket, Calvary bested Grace Christian 10-8 and St. Stephen blasted the Church of God 16-4.

Maranatha used a seven-run first inning to propel it to the victory over First Baptist Geneva. The big hits in the inning were a home run by Arthur Jackson and doubles by Sam Raines, Alvin Campbell and Alan Peterson.

For the game, Maranatha collected 19 hits, 10 for extra bases. Contributing to the Maranatha onslaught were Peterson (home run, three doubles, four runs scored), Jackson (home run, double, single, two runs scored) and Greg Hardy (two doubles, single, two runs scored).

Also contributing were Raines (double, single, run scored), Thad Brooks (two singles, run scored). See Softball, Page 2B

Irwin comes on to force 18-hole playoff with Donald

United Press International

MEDINAH, Ill. — Hale Irwin capped an amazing rally with a 40-foot birdie putt at the final hole Sunday to tie Mike Donald and force the 29th playoff in the U.S. Open's 90-year history.

Irwin's putt trickled in the cup as Donald was walking down the 10th fairway, meaning Donald had to play the final nine holes in even-par to win his first major title.

The best Donald could do, however, was a 1-over 37 over the back side of the Medinah Country Club course and he had to make a series of nerve-testing par putts to do that.

Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion who is trying to become the tournament's oldest winner at age 45, will meet Donald in an 18-hole playoff Monday. If they are tied at the end of those 18 holes, the playoff will continue in sudden death.

Irwin, playing in the Open thanks to a special exemption from qualifying granted by the sponsoring United States Golf Association, shot a 5-under 31 on the final nine holes and clinched that effort with an amazing putt across the width of the 18th green.

After the ball had trickled into the cup, Irwin set out on a celebratory sprint around the putting surface, giving high-fives to members of the gallery.

His final round 67 equaled the low round of the day and left him at 8-under 280. Donald tied that figure by shooting a 1 under 71 in the worst of the swirling winds that finally showed up at Medinah to give the golf course at least a small amount of revenge from the record number of low scores shot earlier in the week.

One shot away from the playoff were two players of vastly different backgrounds — Nick Faldo and Billy Ray Brown.

Faldo, the two-time Masters champion who was trying to keep alive hopes of golf's Grand Slam, shot a 3-under 69 for his 281 total. Faldo got to 8-under with a birdie at the 14th hole and pars over the final four holes would have tied him with Irwin and Donald.

But Faldo three-putted the par-4 16th hole for a bogey and his 10-foot bid for a birdie at the final hole grazed the cup as it went by.

Brown, the second-year pro from Texas who was tied for the lead with Donald when the final round began, hung in all day despite suffering a double-bogey at the par-5 seventh hole.

Summer brings lightning strikes

This is a time of year there is a possibility that one of the trees in your yard may get struck by lightning. Lightning injuries are extremely variable and appear to depend on the voltage of the charge, the moisture content of the part of the tree struck and the species of the tree involved.

The Arbor Day Foundation gives some hints on preventing damage by storms before it happens. First, think ahead when planting trees. Visualize the mature height of the tree and avoid planting near wires, too close to buildings or spots that will be dangerous if blown over. Planting in groups can prevent trees from being blown over.

They also suggest lightning protection for mature trees that have a high value, such as a historical tree or one that occupies a particularly important place in your landscape. The protection system is similar to the lightning rod on your house and should be installed by a professional.

If lightning does strike, the woody parts of the tree may be completely shattered and they may burn. The bark may be burned or stripped off of the entire length of the tree. The internal tissue of the tree may be severely burned without much external evidence. All or part of the roots may be damaged. The upper trunk and branches of evergreens may be killed outright while the lower portions remain unaffected. In groupings, trees close to the one directly hit may also decline. In many cases, the grass or other vegetation near the stricken tree may be killed.

"Hot" lightning with temperatures over 25,000 degrees Fahrenheit will make the entire tree

Trees which have been struck by lightning.

GARDENING

burst into flames while "cold" lightning can make a tree literally explode as it strikes at 20,000 miles per second. On occasion, both types can fall to cause apparent damage, but months later the tree dies from the burned roots.

Tall trees or those growing alone in open areas and trees with roots in moist soil or along the water's edge are more likely to be struck by lightning. No species of tree is totally immune, but some species are more resistant to lightning bolts than others. Elm, maple, oak and pine are commonly hit. The reason in susceptibility is not clearly understood.

Some authorities attribute the difference to the internal composition of the tree. Trees high in oils like birch and beech are poor conductors of electricity. Trees high in starch like oak and maple, are good conductors. In addition, trees in decline or decay appear to be more subject to a strike than healthy trees.

It is commonly believed that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. But this is not true as some trees bear scars from several lightning strikes.

If lightning does happen to strike your tree, assess the situation and decide what needs to be done. Immediately notify police if any wires are down. Inspect the tree carefully before making attempts to repair the damage. The tree may be injured internally or below the ground despite the absence of external symptoms and could die regardless of treatments. Expensive treatments should not be done until the tree appears to be making a recovery. Consult the Seminole County Forester or another qualified tree consultant if you are unsure of the extent of damage.

When the internal damage is not severe or if the tree is particularly valuable, several immediate measures can be taken. Shattered limbs and torn bark should be removed. Resume the proper cultural practices for the tree-like watering and fertilizing to encourage new growth.

Except for removing hazards, major work on a tree struck by lightning should be delayed for 6 to 12 months. For removal of downed trees or to repair damaged ones, you may want to select a tree care professional. Tree work can be dangerous, especially if you do not have the proper tools, knowledge or health to do the job. These professionals should be listed in the phone book under Tree Service. Get more than one estimate if possible so that you may compare.

All Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Help find best pet

During June, Adopt-a-Cat month, the Sanford Herald will be searching for pet stories from our grade school and middle school-aged readers.

We need you to write us a letter about you and your pet to be reviewed by our panel of judges. Tell us how you adopted your pet, what your pet means to you, and include any anecdotes about you and your pet. Your pet does not have to be a cat to qualify.

Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity.

You must live in Seminole County to enter. We will select one winner from grade school and one winner from middle school. We will be running a different contest for high school students in the near future.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include your name, your pet's name, street address, city and daytime phone number at the top of your letter.

Deliver or mail to "Love a Pet Contest," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters.

Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday, June 29.

The two winners will be featured with their pets in an upcoming edition of the Herald.

Felony conviction no life sentence

DEAR ABBY: "Concerned Mother" wrote to say that her 21-year-old son was facing a felony conviction for buying some electronic equipment that turned out to be stolen. She said, "He thinks if he's convicted he'll be branded a failure, and his life will be ruined because nobody hires a felon." Then she asked if there were any convicted felons who had turned their lives around and become successful. Here's my story:

In my early 20s, I was convicted of delivering a controlled substance (marijuana). I was not a dealer; I did it as a favor to a co-worker. It was the only time I had ever done such a thing. It was a grave mistake — I was guilty of a felony — but I lived through it, and will soon complete a 10-year probation sentence. I was depressed and felt like a failure at 24 until a friend told me that he believed in me, but in order to succeed, I had to believe in myself and pull myself up by my bootstraps. And that's exactly what I did.

I sent out resumes and had many interviews in search of a job that paid better than minimum wages. I got many polite turndowns when my conviction was discussed, but I never let it get me down. I finally got a job and worked my way up the corporate ladder. I've proven myself to be a valuable employee and refused to let one mistake ruin my life. I continue to grow because I believe in myself. Today, this convicted felon is a very successful businessman.

ADVICE

I'll close with some inspirational words from Ray Kroc, the founder of McDonald's: "Press on; nothing in the world can take the place of persistence."

"Talent will not, nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent.

"Genius will not, unrewarded genius is almost a proverb.

"Education will not, the world is full of educated derelicts.

"Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent."
NO NAME, NO CITY, NO STATE, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I was overwhelmed with success stories from convicted felons. Read on:

FROM ARIZONA: What constitutes success? Is it a high school dropout who got his G.E.D. two years later? I did that.

Is it a man who went to prison twice, and 18 years later earned a presidential pardon and became a police officer? I did that.

Is it a man who married a wonderful woman and raised five great children — no drugs, no jail, no problems? I did that.

I'll always be an ex-con, but I don't have to be a failure.

SUCCESSFUL

Coping with the pain of shingles

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 80 years old and have had shingles for over eight months. Sometimes the pain is more than I can stand. I've tried ointments, pain pills and blocks. Nothing seems to help. Must I live with this for the rest of my life?

DEAR READER: Shingles (herpes zoster) is a virus infection of the skin's nerves. The viruses enter the nerves and cause painful blisters, distributed in a band pattern that appears on one side of the body. The infection begins as a tingling, unpleasant sensation. The rash breaks out a few days later and usually runs its course within two weeks. Then the blisters dry up and the skin returns to normal, except for scars that can result from severe infection.

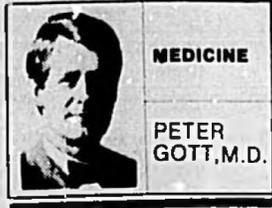

Shingles is not a serious health problem and usually heals itself. However, about 10 percent of patients develop a dreaded complication of the infection: post-herpetic neuralgia — persisting, often excruciating, sharp pain that can last for months or years. Treatment of post-herpetic neuralgia is unsatisfactory; analgesics reduce the pain level, but no specific therapy is available.

Because no one can predict which patients with shingles will develop this complication, most doctors choose to treat the infection, early, before neuralgia becomes a problem. Thus, during treatment, doctors attempt to reduce the possibility of neuralgia.

Two drugs are used for this purpose: prednisone (purified cortisone) and acyclovir (Zovirax, an anti-viral medicine). Both are administered orally for varying periods, depending on the severity of the shingles. These medicines diminish the extent of the blistering and help protect the patient from neuralgia.

Shingles can also affect the face and the eyes. This is the most serious form of herpes zoster because, unless treated promptly and vigorously, the virus infection may lead to irreparable corneal damage and permanent visual difficulties. Patients with ocular herpes should be under the care of

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

South jumped to two spades in the pass-out position to indicate a six-card suit and enough high-card values for an opening bid if he had been the dealer. North bid four spades, even though three no-trump might have been easier. (Nine tricks come easily at no-trump unless East selects an opening club lead.) Needing 10 tricks at spades, declarer South had to walk carefully, but he used good detective work to make the right decision. After cashing the king of diamonds, West switched to a trump. Declarer won in dummy with the ace and played a club back to his jack. West won the queen and played a second spade, won by dummy's queen. Another club went to the king and ace, and West played the club 10, ruffed. Declarer played king of spades, discarding a diamond from dummy, and then a low heart to dummy's 10. He came back to his hand with a club ruff, noting that West had started with four clubs. West had now shown up with the king of hearts, A-K of diamonds and A-Q of clubs — 16 high-card points. If he held three hearts originally he would have had 2-3-4-4 distribution and surely would have opened the bidding with one no-trump. So his one-diamond opening was apparently made on a five-card suit. That would give him only two hearts. So South played a low heart from his hand and was rewarded when the king came up. Had declarer carelessly led the queen or jack of hearts, West would have covered with the king, and eventually East would have taken a heart trick to set the contract.
