

BUSINESS HEAD FORECASTS END OF NRA RULE

Leaders in Industry Demand Privilege To "Spank Its Own Bad Boys"; New Law Seen

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Powerful figures in industry lashed out against the NRA Thursday night and demanded that business be allowed to spank its own bad boys.

A committee of the National Business Advisory and Planning Council, composed of many industrialists, in a report yesterday anticipated the death of the NRA next June and demanded that industry prepare for self-government.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a speech at Charlottesville, Va., forecasting the passing of the NRA, said a new law would have to replace it to preserve industrial progress.

The substitute act, however, he said, should not contain a provision permitting the President to impose codes; licensing provisions should be eliminated; the law should be in the form of a civil rather than criminal statute and labor clauses should be made less stringent.

The two-edged assault upon the Recovery Act came as Administrator Hugh B. Johnson addressed the large gathering in Waterloo, Ia., on the part the NRA has played in increasing farm income.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—NRA Thursday fixed the price of popular-brand cigarettes at a minimum of 13 cents per package of 20 or two packages for a quarter.

Cartons will cost the smoker not less than $1.20. The twenty-for-ten cents variety of cigarettes will continue to sell for 10 cents. The price limitation begins July 16 and was set for a 90-day period in two orders by Hugh B. Johnson, declaring "an emergency has arisen tending to defeat the purpose of the Recovery law."

The emergency named was the extensive use of cigarettes as "loss leaders" by large retailers and chain store distributors not primarily engaged in the retail trade.

It was reported that cigarette brands were said to have been selling for as low as two packages for 23 cents and from $1.08 to $1.15 a carton.

FILM FLICKERS

By GLADYS WILLIAMS

Marion Davies, in the most dramatic role of her career as "Operator 13," comes to the Millane Theater on Sunday next. As a federal spy in Southern territory Miss Davies is sworn to capture her worst enemy, Gary Cooper. This picture is a splendid dramatization of Robert Chambers' novel that ran in the Cosmopolitan Magazine last year. You will enjoy it immensely.

The attractions for Wednesday at the Millane include "He Was Her Man," an underworld story of a double-crossing crook who earns the right to be called a man by forcing the girl who loves him to wed another. Joan Blondell and James Cagney have the leading roles. Strictly adult entertainment.

Also "Moulin Rouge Night Club Revue" will be seen as the stage attraction for Wednesday, featuring a galaxy of modern dances including the Cuban Rumba and the Carola. Comedy and harmony are not lacking.

On Thursday and Friday the local theater presents "Born to Be Bad." In this unusual story Loretta Young gives a splendid portrayal of a reckless young mother who teaches her seven year old son to follow her example of unscrupulous living. The boy, Jackie Kalk, (the picture's high light) learns the meaning of honor from Cary Grant. Adult.

The second feature for Thursday and Friday is "Glamour," a dramatization of Edna Ferber's triangular love story. In this film Constance Cummings portrays the modern girl who achieves the greatest moments for which most women dream and throws her happiness away. The picture is greatly strengthened by the fine characterization of Paul Lukas. Adult.

Saturday's bill offers a good romantic comedy in "She Learned About Sailors." The story is of a Jack-tar who falls for a night club entertainer and she, hesitating, almost loses her man. It's a lively story of rollicking sailors with the beautiful Alice Faye of Vallee fame, and Lew Ayres taking the stellar roles.

The Western film stars the handsome Rex Bell in the "Fugitive."

MRS. ROOSEVELT ARRIVES

SACRAMENTO, July 14.—(AP)—Leaving a transcontinental passenger plane here this morning, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt reportedly departed by automobile for Lake Tahoe, Nevada, to join her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall.

Camp Foster Notes

By R. H. CULLUM

July 12, 1934.

Sergeant Claude C. Locke, of Company D is one of the happiest boys in camp tonight, due to the fact that he not only qualified as Gunner in the three-day machine gun target practice which ended today, but he also made the highest score of the regiment, his score being 340 out of a possible 350. Others to qualify from Company D are as follows:

Expert — Corporal James M. Moya.

First Class Gunner: Sergeant Robert M. Moya; Private 1st Class Charles W. Summersill.

Second-class Gunners: Private First Class Carl E. McKenney; Fred Shannon; Phillip M. Vickery; Privates Kenneth E. Benton; John D. Duncan; Hollis G. Ferguson and Joseph R. Higgins.

Company D as a whole came in second, Company H, from Lake City coming in first by a very low score over D Company.

Match shooting for the Fred H. Davis Trophy will take place next Friday, the 20th, and with any break at all, Company D should win by a large margin.

Mrs. R. L. Robertson and son, Robert, Jr. were the guests of Lieut. Robertson Wednesday night and attended the Governor's Ball.

Mrs. Thomas Townsend and son Billy, who are visiting friends in Jacksonville, were at the camp Wednesday night, the guest of Private Townsend.

Compared to previous years, the general health of the camp is holding up remarkably well. While a good many are answering sick call each morning, it is mostly first aid treatment, the illness in most cases not being serious enough to confine the boys to quarters.

Cloze haircuts have been the order of the day, and quite a number of the boys will not need combs or brushes for some time to come.

Mrs. Ralph E. Stevens and Mrs. W. D. Hoffmann attended the Governor's Ball Wednesday night.

Sheriff McClelland and Deputy Sheriff Ed Meisch are attending the Peace Officers Training School in camp this year.

No far better weather could not have been ordered for the annual encampment this year. Only one small shower this week. It is to be hoped the weather will continue to be on its good behavior for the balance of the encampment.

Company D diamond ball team hooked up with Company C of West Palm Beach Wednesday night and came out on the small end of a 12 to 4 score.

THE PIPE

By R. H. CULLUM

After people learned to play the horn some one thought how to play the pipe. The Indians thought up the idea of it pipe. The pipe is never used in war. It plays a fine low note. In the old days the Indians used to win their wives or squaws by playing sometimes three days at a time on their pipes. These pipes were first made from Bamboo. In the very old days the pipe was still played by the nose. Some still say the music is much prettier when the pipe is played in the old, old way. Some books tell us that the smallest people in the world, not any more than two feet high, Pygmies, and living in far off Australia first made the pipe, and played it.

All-IP-lus who lived 960 years before Christ made letters in the alpha-bet and put them on the pipe to sing by. This was before we had notes for music as we have now.

KNOWY-FURET

By R. H. CULLUM

A short time ago in the bird cage at the zoo hiding in the pine trees, there was a secret. Two nests made of sticks and no lining, each held two bluish eggs. The lady and mother egret of each nest, so wonderfully pretty in their snowy white feathers, took turns keeping the eggs warm. Now there is no more secret. Out of the eggs came four baby birds. They are out on the ground now where you may see them. The daddies and the mothers feed their children chopped-up fish. Look at the legs and yellow are the feet.

O'LAVE FOLLOWS THREE

By R. H. CULLUM

Now Old Three Legs was the only god who knew what Balor of the Eye said. These two had a sign they used. O'Lave saw Old Balor's tall wiggle in a funny kind of way. Each of the three tails moved in a different way. The earth god then would move his kelt, from one of his legs to the other, then the hairy played thrilly tunes. O'Lave counted. There were sometimes three. These would stop. Then there would be five tunes. As O'Lave kept looking the Three Legs, began turning, coming nearer him. No, he was passing him, leaving him. Yes, he was making O'Lave follow him.

O'Lave wanted so much to hear what old Ey, had said. It seemed that Three Legs would never stop. As O'Lave took his long, long steps with his big feet that only a fourteen foot tall giant could take, he almost stepped on something. It was an animal. Had fur on it. It had stripes that made O'Lave think of the squirrel he had seen in his home country. But as he looked, it was not a squirrel.

about those snakes, they make me shake in my shoes. Everything has a right to be hurt though, so I along with you people, will try to learn something of them.) Some boys and girls like to travel with the giant, O'Lave, and as this stranger has many strange things to see on the misty, mystic lake, we shall keep traveling with him to see what happens. "Have you heard that?" likes its corner and we can let it keep it. Well as four corners make a square we better stop there.

KIDDIES' COLUMN
By HAZEL MOUGHTON

Well boys and girls, we have news for you. The Sanford Herald says you may have a column in the paper every day. Now it is a heap of fun how and what we shall enjoy together. The first thing I thought was "Everyone of us likes to know about music, we better have one corner on that." The next thought I had was of the zoo. I cornered it. It is well to know about the animals, birds and snakes, for we can make them our friends. (Um, I don't know

PECORA HANDS HIS PROXY TO SECURITY HEAD

Commission Chairman And Pool Operator To Cast Vote For Stock Investigator

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(A.P.)—The proxy served as a symbol of peace today within the Securities and Exchange Commission which rules the stock markets. Commissioner Ferdinand Pecora, it became known, has given this proxy to Chairman Joseph Kennedy permitting Kennedy to vote for him in several commission meetings. This renewed reports of a feud between the two men were buried. The disclosure followed another attack on a stock market pool in which Kennedy, a former financier, profited about a year ago. The pool in question was conducted in shares of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Company. Kennedy and his colleagues, evidence before the committee revealed, made $995,000 profit. Pools now are forbidden by the Stock Exchange Control Law. It was because of Kennedy's connection with this operation that Ferdinand Pecora, Senate Banking Committee counsel, who conducted the investigation, objected to his election as chairman of the commission and was reluctant to serve under him.

Charlie Burkes Is Dead From Effects Of Burns Received

Charlie Burkes, middle aged and well known negro seamy crew member, died at his home in Golden Gate Saturday night from the effects of horrible burns he received last Tuesday when his clothing, saturated with gasoline, caught fire when he struck a match to light his pipe. Burkes had carried a small can of gasoline to his home from a nearby filling station, and some of the gasoline had spilled on the lower part of his trousers. While seated in a chair on the porch of his home, Burkes stooped over to strike a match on the floor. When he did, a spark jumped onto his trousers leg, setting it afire. Before he could put out the flames, he had been enveloped, and his legs, from the knees down, were horribly burned. Burkes was a native of Jefferson county Florida. He had resided here for over 10 years, and he was employed as a foreman for F. Dingfelder, local commission merchant. Burkes is survived by his widow and 10 children.

President Roosevelt Lays Plans To Secure Cheaper Light Rates For Country

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(A.P.)—President Roosevelt moved Sunday night to obtain cheaper electricity for every person in the United States and simultaneously notified the big power companies their rates were going to be equalized under new federal power regulations. While Mr. Roosevelt was en route to Hawaii, the White House made public and executive order, creating a "national power policy committee" headed by Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes which said: "The committee's duty will be to develop a plan for closer cooperation of the several factors of our electrical power supply—both public and private—whereby national policy in power matters may be unified and electricity be made more broadly available at cheaper rates to industry, to domestic and, particularly, to agricultural consumers. "As time goes on, there undoubtedly will be legislation on the subject of holding companies and for the regulation of electric current in interstate commerce. This committee should consider what lines should be followed in shaping up this legislation." The committee will function under the Public Works Administration which Ickes as Interior Secretary, heads. Members, in addition to Ickes, are: Dr. Elwood Mead, of the U. S. Reclamation Bureau; Frank R. McNinch, Federal Power Commission; Morris L. Cook of the Mississippi Valley PWA Committee; General Edward S. Markham, (Continued on Page Two)

BANKS SAID TO BE FINANCING U. S. PROGRAM

President Of Bankers Association Reveals Part Banks Occupy In New Deal Plans

By FRANCIS MARION LAW, President American Bankers Association. The banks of the nation provide the machinery through which pass daily many millions of checks and drafts, aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars. The banks are largely financing the federal government in its Recovery Program, involving the greatest peace-time expenditures ever known. Likewise the banks are largely financing the current credit needs of states, counties, cities, public schools and other political subdivisions, all of which have intimately to do with the daily affairs of all the people.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

THE GOLDEN RULE: As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them.—Luke 6:31.

THE OLD SONG

There was an old song once. What was it?—I have forgotten. The words and even the tune. It is of no value now.

A song of the old lands— Their rivers, their plains, their stars

Across the sea; but not memory Retains little trace of them longer.

We have forgotten the old song. Have forgotten the old ways and The old days in other lands; Nor can they be restored ever.

—W. W. E. ROSS.

We never had much use for book agents or bank landlords.

First thing they are going to do in Key West is to take a census. Looks like they could find that out from the relief rolls.

Herr Hitler explains why it was necessary to kill all those Storm Troop leaders. It seems that some of them didn't agree with him.

The cost of living hasn't gone up much, in spite of NRA, AAA, and inflation, but it has gone up some, one percent in six months. That's according to the United States Department of Labor.

Chairman Fletcher of the Republican National Committee, has announced that the Republicans are going to have a "brain trust."

There! They've gone and thrown overboard the only talking point they've had!

After reading some of these speeches by Hyrd, Glass, Davis, Smith and a few others, it occurs to us that this country is still going to have only two major parties, the Democrats and the New Dealers.

A "Sarasotan" writing to the Tampa Tribune suggests that the newspapers ought to be prohibited from printing crime stories. That would, at least, let the people think that they were safe until someone tapped them on the head. And what a break it would be for the criminals!

We see by the papers where they have named a street a Key West after President Roosevelt. "Roosevelt Boulevard," they are going to call it. But that's nothing. If he'll do as much for Sanford as he is going to do for Key West, we'll name the whole city after him.

It's a mighty poor man who can't get life insurance. It's a mighty bad risk that the insurance company of London Lloyds will not accept. And yet Lloyds recently turned down a policy on the life of Adolph Hitler. It seems they have a hunch the policy wouldn't pay dividends to the company.

When H. E. Wadsworth, a New York millionaire, made his will in Tampa in 1922, he set up a special fund of $35,000 to investigate his death, and a $100,000 fund for a reward for the capture and conviction of those responsible for his death in the great fool play. Our brief news report gives no elaborate details of his death, but we dare say he died of a nervous breakdown.

The present head of Germany, according to a new book just published, Ernst Henrich's "Hitler Over Europe," has long been supported and backed financially by the German Steel trust, particularly by Fritz Thyssen, big Ruhr industrialist. Not all Germans, of course, realize this, but those that do must feel much the same about it as we would, if a tool of the United States Steel Corporation were working in the White House.

Restricting Initiative

In one of his recent articles Walter Lippmann says, "There is no use talking about recovery under present conditions unless capitalists, large and small, begin to invest in enterprise for the purpose of earning a profit." This is the view which, we find, most economic analysts are taking of the situation. It is a view which is supported irrefutably by statistics.

The reason is that most of the employment which now exists in the United States is confined to the so-called heavy goods industries. They are the industries which are concerned with the making of machinery and the construction of factories and warehouses. They are the industries which must be differentiated from the consumers goods industries having to do with making of things which people consume or use.

Unless capitalists, large and small, begin to invest in enterprise of one kind or another, there will be but small purchases of machinery, and but little construction of factories and warehouses. And unless there is considerable activity in this particular field of endeavor, unemployment, which is now requiring such large expenditures on the part of the government, cannot be eliminated. Until this unemployment is eliminated, the depression will be with us with varying degrees of intensity depending upon the volume of federal expenditures.

But the other day we read that a certain individual in Miami had come to the conclusion that it would be profitable for him to go into the ice business. He had decided to purchase the necessary plant and equipment and erect an ice factory. He might not have been able to make money at it, but at least he thought he could and was willing to run the risk of losing his capital. Purchase of the equipment, and construction of the factory alone, would have put men to work.

But according to one of the provisions of the NRA ice code, no one can go into the ice business without first obtaining the consent of those already in the ice business. It was necessary for this particular individual to obtain the permission of those who would be his competitors before he could begin the operation of his factory. Under the most favorable conditions there is no group of people in the world less likely to grant permission for a new factory than one's would-be competitors.

A hearing is now being held in Jacksonville under the auspices of the Mr. Hawkins, the NRA state administrator, to determine whether this individual in Miami shall be permitted to open his ice factory. There is no way of knowing, of course, what the NRA will do in this particular case, but the fact remains that a code provision makes it possible for the existing ice factories to prevent a new ice factory from entering the field. We are informed that this provision exists in many codes.

This restriction on individual initiative makes one wonder what this country would be like today if say, fifty years ago such a law had been in effect. If it had been necessary for Henry Ford to have obtained permission from the wagon makers before he could bring out his "horseless carriage," we are afraid the automobile would have been a long time in getting here. If Thomas Edison had been prevented from manufacturing his incandescent lamp until the candle-makers of the country gave their consent, electricity today would be of small use in this country.

And if today we are going to prevent men from going into business unless they have the permission of their future competitors, how are we going to end the depression if, as Walter Lippmann says, "There is no use talking about recovery under present conditions unless capitalists, large and small, begin to invest in enterprises for the purpose of earning a profit?"

Rumors

The German government is immensely irritated by the malicious lies and rumors which are being spread throughout the world by the "foreign press." In his recent radio address to the world, Chancellor Hitler said, "It is unfortunate for us all, for Germany as well as for other nations, that wild rumors about us, rumors without foundation in fact, are constantly current in America and other countries."

While Dr. Paul Goebbels, the so-called Nazi Minister of Propaganda and Enlightenment, has this to say: "There have been cases of lies, slander and misrepresentation of the true facts such as are almost without parallel in journalism. June 30 (the night on which the recent executions took place) passed off without friction, without the slightest domestic tremor. One is nauseated as one gains a complete survey of the entire foreign press comment."

Undoubtedly there were some exaggerations, and possibly some misrepresentation, though hardly intentional, of the recent events in Germany. No reporter, no matter how conscientious and experienced, can be expected to obtain 100 percent accuracy in his accounts of events happening all over a great country like Germany, when he is hampered on every hand by censorship laws, and short-sighted officials who deliberately deceive him and through false tips are continually sending him off on wild goose chases.

Such is the case in Germany. The local press is completely muzzled and every attempt is made to prevent foreign correspondents from obtaining any information whatever for transmission to their papers back home. In such an atmosphere as this rumors are bound to thrive and misinformation is very likely to be mistaken for the truth. You cannot prevent people from talking. And when there is no source of official information, facts are almost certain to be obscured by hearsay chatter.

Even so, the foreign correspondents must not have done such a bad job of their reporting on June 30. Early accounts placed the dead as the result of the Hitler "purge" at anywhere from 50 to 150. The "most exaggerated" stories did not put the executions above 150. No official information was forthcoming until more than a week later. Then Hitler himself admitted that 77 had been killed. This is not such an exaggeration as to affect vitally the course of future world events.

The first "official" information was that Edmund Heimes committed suicide. But reporters discovered that he had six bullet holes in his body. Then the "official" report was that he was killed while attempting to assassinate Hitler himself.

1st. The banks must be liquid and confident in their own strength.

2nd. Business men must further lay their fears and regain confidence to the point where they will dare to think and plan ahead.

The first requisite is accomplished. The second is in process. Bank credits will increase and money will go to work as soon as business men get over their disinclination to borrow and this will be when they begin to see profits within their reach.

In the past depression the real movement of the expansion in bank credit has always come after general business recovery got under way and not before. The number of good credit risks is increasing daily. Not in my time have good borrowers been so warmly welcomed at banks as they are today. Never before has there been such competition for good loans, nor has the interest rate ever been so low.

Banks are badly needing loans for revenue purposes, and now that confidence in banks has been largely restored they are naturally returning to a more normal lending policy. Before the bank holiday the confidence of the people was shattered. The thought of the safety of their funds. Withdrawals from banks became increasingly heavy in general. Under such circumstances the banker, mindful of his primary responsibility to his depositors, was more concerned in the collection of new loans. The result was a severe contraction of credit. For this the banker should not be blamed. He simply performed his manifest duty.

Bankers at this time are very properly viewing the credit needs of business with serious and sympathetic consideration. Applicants for loans are not always familiar with the rules governing bank credit and constructive and interested help on the part of the banker will bring about the making of many additional loans, and without doing violence to any principle of good banking.

Certainly no one would advocate the making of unsound loans by banks. The creation of a large volume of unsound loans would not only weaken the banks—it would prolong the depression and wipe out some of the gains already made. It is to be earnestly hoped that no banker will yield under the pressure of his desire for earnings, or for any other reason, and make loans of the wrong sort.

There are many needs for credit of kinds which are not within the province of commercial banks to meet. Likewise there are many types of credit facilities available—enough, it would seem, to meet the requirements of all classes of worthy borrowers.

It is clearly the duty of every banker in the country to perform certain services. The most important of these are:

1. To afford perfect safety for deposits.

2. To grant credit to those who deserve it.

In the matter of credits the public must in fairness remember that commercial banks are not lending their own money, but the money of their depositors, represented very largely by the earnings and savings of the people. Creation of the committee was the President's second major step in a program for unifying all the nation's power resources. His first was a nation-wide survey of waterways and their relation to hydro-electric development and flood control, a project he outlined in a message to the last Congress. In his message Mr. Roosevelt, on his return to the Pacific Coast from his Caribbean cruise, will visit several huge federal power projects under construction in Washington and Montana.

Repeated assurance has been given by the Administration that there is no desire on its part to continue government lending a moment longer than is necessary and that at the earliest possible time the government will gladly give way to the banks and other lending institutions. This, of course, is as it should be and we are all earnestly looking forward to the time when private initiative and enterprise shall have replaced government crutches.

Numerous bank failures have created in the minds of many a grossly exaggerated idea as to the losses of depositors in closed banks. The record indicates that depositors in banks which closed in the past three years will realize on an average about 65c on the dollar. That would mean a loss of 35 percent. It has been estimated that during the depression the average value of investments in stocks lost about 90 percent; bonds similarly declined approximately 60 percent and commodities 65 percent.

Deposits in sound banks continued to be worth 100 percent throughout the depression and 90 percent of the bank deposits of the country were not affected.

The country can have full confidence in the integrity and competence of the bankers of the country. Out of the lessons of the last few years has come experience that will be valuable to the banker and to his community. It can be counted on to show a proper appreciation of his responsibilities and obligations and to take his place among those who are making earnest and unselfish effort to promote recovery. He is not infallible, but with every power that lies within him I believe he may be depended upon to fulfill his duty as a custodian of the people's money, as a dispenser of credit and as a God-fearing American citizen.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

THE GOLDEN RULE: As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them.—Luke 6:31.

THE OLD SONG

There was an old song once. What was it?—I have forgotten. The words and even the tune. It is of no value now.

A song of the old lands— Their rivers, their plains, their stars Across the sea; but not memory Retains little trace of them longer.

We have forgotten the old song. Have forgotten the old ways and The old days in the old lands; Nor can they be restored ever.

—W. W. E. Ross.

We never had much use for book agents or bank bandits.

First thing they are going to do in Key West is to take a census. Looks like they could find that out from the relief rolls.

Herr Hitler explains why it was necessary to kill all those Storm Troop leaders. It seems that some of them didn't agree with him.

The cost of living hasn't gone up much, in spite of NRA, AAA, and inflation, but it has gone up some, one percent in six months. That's according to the United States Department of Labor.

Chairman Fletcher of the Republican National Committee, has announced that the Republicans are going to have a "brain trust." There! They've gone and thrown overboard the only talking point they've had!

After reading some of these speeches by Hyrd, Glass, Davis, Smith and a few others, it occurs to us that this country is still going to have only two major parties, the Democrats and the New Dealers.

A "Sarasotan" writing to the Tampa Tribune suggests that the newspapers ought to be prohibited from printing crime stories. That would, at least, let the people think that they were safe until someone yapped them on the head. And what a break it would be for the criminals!

We see by the papers where they have named a street a Key West after President Roosevelt. "Roosevelt Boulevard," they are going to call it. But that's nothing. If he'll do as much for Sanford as he is going to do for Key West, we'll name the whole city after him.

It's a mighty poor man who can't get life insurance. It's a mighty bad risk that the insurance company of London Lloyds will not accept. And yet Lloyds recently turned down a policy on the life of Adolph Hitler. It seems they have a hunch the policy wouldn't pay dividends to the company.

When H. E. Wadsworth, a New York millionaire, made his will in Tampa in 1932, he set up a special fund of $25,000 to investigate his death, and a $100,000 fund for a reward for the capture and conviction of those responsible for his death in the event of foul play. Our brief news report gives no elaborate details of his death, but we dare say he died of a nervous breakdown.

The present head of Germany, according to a new book just published, Ernst Henrich's "Hitler Over Europe" has long been supported and backed financially by the German Steel trust, particularly by Fritz Thyssen, big Ruhr industrialist. Not all Germans, of course, realize this, but those that do must feel much the same about it as we would, if a tool of the United States Steel Corporation were sitting in the White House.

Restricting Initiative

In one of his recent articles Walter Lippmann says, "There is no use talking about recovery under present conditions unless capitalists, large and small, begin to invest in enterprise for the purpose of earning a profit." This is the view which, we find, most economic analysts are taking of the situation. It is a view which is supported irrefutably by statistics.

The reason is that most of the employment which now exists in the United States is confined to the so-called heavy goods industries. They are the industries which are concerned with the making of machinery and the construction of factories and warehouses. They are the industries which must be differentiated from the consumers goods industries having to do with making of things which people consume or use.

Unless capitalists, large and small, begin to invest in enterprise of one kind and another, there will be but small purchases of machinery, and but little construction of factories and warehouses. And unless there is considerable activity in this particular field of endeavor, unemployment, which is now requiring such large expenditures on the part of the government, cannot be eliminated. Until this unemployment is eliminated, the depression will be with us with varying degrees of intensity depending upon the volume of federal expenditures.

But the other day we read that a certain individual in Miami had come to the conclusion that it would be profitable for him to go into the ice business. He had decided to purchase the necessary plant and equipment and erect an ice factory. He might not have been able to make money at it, but at least he thought he could and was willing to run the risk of losing his capital. Purchase of the equipment, and construction of the factory alone, would have put men to work.

But according to one of the provisions of the NRA ice code, no one can go into the ice business without first obtaining the consent of those already in the ice business. It was necessary for this particular individual to obtain the permission of those who would be his competitors before he could begin the operation of his factory. Under the most favorable conditions there is no group of people in the world less likely to grant permission for a new factory than one's would-be competitors.

A hearing is now being held in Jacksonville under the auspices of the Mr. Hawkins, the NRA state administrator, to determine whether this individual in Miami shall be permitted to open his ice factory. There is no way of knowing, of course, what the NRA will do in this particular case, but the fact remains that a code provision makes it possible for the existing ice factories to prevent a new ice factory from entering the field. We are informed that this provision exists in many codes.

This restriction on individual initiative makes one wonder what this country would be like today if say, fifty years ago such a law had been in effect. If it had been necessary for Henry Ford to have obtained permission from the wagon makers before he could bring out his "horseless carriage," we are afraid the automobile would have been a long time in getting here. If Thomas Edison had been prevented from manufacturing his incandescent lamp until the candle-makers of the country gave their consent, electricity today would be of small use in this country.

And if today we are going to prevent men from going into business unless they have the permission of their future competitors, how are we going to end the depression if, as Walter Lippmann says, "There is no use talking about recovery under present conditions unless capitalists, large and small, begin to invest in enterprises for the purpose of earning a profit?"

Rumors

The German government is immensely irritated by the malicious lies and rumors which are being spread throughout the world by the "foreign press." In his recent radio address to the world, Chancellor Hitler said, "It is unfortunate for us all, for Germany as well as for other nations, that wild rumors about us, rumors without foundation in fact, are constantly current in America and other countries."

While Dr. Paul Goebbels, the so-called Nazi Minister of Propaganda and Enlightenment, has this to say: "There have been cases of lies, slander and misrepresentation of the true facts such as are almost without parallel in Journalism. June 30 (the night on which the recent executions took place) passed off without friction, without the slightest domestic tremor. One is nauseated as one gains a complete survey of the entire foreign press comment."

Undoubtedly there were some exaggerations, and possibly some misrepresentation, though hardly intentional, of the recent events in Germany. No reporter, no matter how conscientious and experienced, can be expected to obtain 100 percent accuracy in his accounts of events happening all over a great country like Germany, when he is hampered on every hand by censorship laws, and short-sighted officials who deliberately deceive him and through false tips are continually sending him off on wild goose chases.

Such is the case in Germany. The local press is completely muzzled and every attempt is made to prevent foreign correspondents from obtaining any information whatever for transmission to their papers back home. In such an atmosphere as this rumors are bound to thrive and misinformation is very likely to be mistaken for the truth. You cannot prevent people from talking. And when there is no source of official information, facts are almost certain to be obscured by hysterical chatter.

Even so, the foreign correspondents must not have done such a bad job of their reporting on June 30. Early accounts placed the dead as the result of the Hitler "purge" at anywhere from 50 to 150. The "most exaggerated" stories did not put the executions above 150. No official information was forthcoming until more than a week later. Then Hitler himself admitted that 77 had been killed. This is not such an exaggeration as to affect vitally the course of future world events.

The people who own these deposits have accumulated them through years of labor and sacrifice, and in many cases the deposit represents their all. These depositors have the right to call for their money at any time, or at least on short notice. Deposits constitute a sacred trust.

There are certain basic principles in sound banking that must be held onto even in this period of change, but the progressive banker must be responsive to changing conditions and he must be active in seeking proper opportunities to meet the sound needs of his customers.

Repeated assurance has been given by the Administration that there is no desire on its part to continue government lending a moment longer than is necessary and that at the earliest possible time the government will gladly give way to the banks and other lending institutions. Civil War Background Of Milane's Movie

There can now be no denying that Marion Davies is possibly the screen's most versatile star. Just when she establishes herself as a ranking comedienne, stage and dancer in one stupendous musical picture, she follows up with a dramatic performance that will long be remembered. Miss Jeanette Borland Marries R. A. Smith

Attracting the interest of a wide circle of friends here is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Jeannette Borland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Borland, to R. A. Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith. The ceremony was performed yesterday morning at 9:00 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on West First Street in the presence of the immediate families and intimate friends of the couple.

Dr. E. D. Brownlow, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony. Bridal music was furnished by Mrs. Royce R. Pippin, the bride's sister.
A dark blue crepe traveling ensemble was selected by the bride for the occasion. Her hat, shoes, and other accessories harmonized with her dress and coat. She came here with her parents from Pinckard, Ala. a few years ago and was graduated from Seminole High School in 1933.

Mr. Smith came to Sanford with his parents about eight years ago and was graduated from Seminole High School in 1931. He later studied at the University of Florida and Stetson University. He is a member of Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for points in Alabama to spend a few days. They will return here the latter part of the week to make preparations to go to St. Louis, Mo. where Mr. Smith will enter the Grabwohl School of Laboratory Technique.

Christian Endeavor Rally Is Held Here

A rally of all Christian Endeavor Societies of Sanford was held last night at 7:00 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church with Gus Seeburg of Bradenton, who will be song leader at the State Christian Endeavor convention in Tampa on Aug. 24, in charge of the short song service which opened the meeting.

Mr. Seeburg also conducted the devotional and sang, "Dare to be a Daniel," after which Rodman Lehman of this city, state president, gave an outline of the program and speakers planned for the state convention.

During the offering a trombone solo was played by Mr. Seeburg after which the meeting was closed by the repetition of the mispah benediction. The purpose of the meeting was to interest the young people in attending the state convention.

Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture "Operator 13" which opened yesterday at the Milane Theater, Miss Davies appears as Gail Loveless, a lovely Union spy who is sent into the South to seek and slay the Confederacy's most valuable scout and spy, Captain Jack Galliard.

Gary Cooper plays the role of Galliard and the love complications that spring up between these two enemy spies provide one of the most romantic stories to reach the motion picture screen. With the Civil War as the colorful background, "Operator 13" based upon Robert W. Chambers' best and greatest novel is crammed with interesting side lights upon one of the least known phases of the rebellion, the espionage system of the armies of the North and South.

All Traffic And Business At Standstill As Mobs Storm City And Wreck Stores

The general strike called by union labor Saturday night to go into effect Monday morning. One man was bayoneted by a National Guardsman.

Folles said hoodlums were smashing the windows of food stores in Oakland across the bay, with bricks and attempting to steal supplies. Cruising patrol cars were kept busy with riot calls and officers placed 10 men under arrest.

A Guardsman along the San Francisco waterfront challenged a trespasser who attempted to seize his rifle. The guard bayoneted the man who was hurried to an emergency hospital.

Other soldiers were stoned by a mob of about 500 men. The sentries' challenge to halt was ignored and they fired shots at the protesters, who fled. The shots were found imbedded in the side of the box car.
"The protesters might have been 'Reds' or Communists," a guard officer declared. "Our men have been instructed to act quickly if their commands to halt are ignored."

outbreaks of violence, Chief of Police William J. Quinn hastily swore in 150 emergency patrolmen. They were the first of 500 men authorized by Mayor Angelo Rossi to cope with a situation he described as worse than the 1906 earthquake and fire.

Municipal cars still continued to operate on deserted streets, but it was reported they would cease this morning. Fear was expressed the cars might be attacked by strike pickets and the lives of passengers and crews endangered.

Many grocery stores, which had sold out their supplies to apparently agitated residents, closed and barred their doors. Downtown restaurants, unable to obtain meat and other supplies were preparing to discontinue service.

Like cities under war time siege, San Francisco and other bay communities awoke to a Sunday marked by an ominous haze. A few automobiles, estimated to be the official program many of them on official business, ventured downtown.

A guard of a dozen bluecoated officers, heavily armed, watched at an official gasoline filling station here while police, ambulance and city machines were refilled with the precious fuel.

Police controlled their beats in pairs and extra officers were detailed to watch newspaper plants. A bomb was hurled at a passersby on Mission Street, crashing through the window of a morning newspaper.

"There's nothing doing yet," one officer remarked grimly, "but before the day is out I expect a lot of fireworks to pop."
A San Francisco physician, driving through South San Francisco, was halted by pickets. One man jumped on his running board and threatened to shoot him, the man leaped off.

In Oakland a man and his wife who had succeeded in purchasing some fresh vegetables, were halted by pickets who opened the rear compartment of the motor car and dumped the vegetables on the street.

Defies were hurled at the strikers by several downtown hotel men in San Francisco.
"For the last few weeks we've been buying away supplies, and one morning, 'We have food, fruits, vegetables, meat and dairy products. Because of the need of conserving, our main dining rooms will be closed to the public, but our regular guests shall not go hungry."

Depression Turns Psychoanalysis To Practical Purpose

CHICAGO, July 14.—Stylish in psychoanalysis patients change, even as styles in everything else. Practical considerations, such as losing a job or failure to get along with fellow workers, now bring the hard-boiled business man to the psychoanalyst whose patients were once recruited largely from among the obviously over-privileged and plainly neurotic types.

"Many business men realized their failure was not due entirely to economic conditions, especially those who lost one position after another."

Lost Conner Child Returned To Home Safe And Sound

Baby Fearfully Kidnaped Is Found Wandering In Woods Less Than A Mile From Home

HARTSDALE, New York, July 17.—(AP.)—Robert Conner, 31-months-old, missing since Thursday, was found alive and smiling this afternoon in the woods behind his house, by state troopers. Mrs. Charles H. Conner fainted when a trooper came into her Hartsdale home with the baby in his arms.

His face badly scratched by brambles, Robert had evidently spent nearly five days in the woods. Otherwise, however, he was unharmed.

The child, well and apparently unharmed, was found at 2:45 P. M. by Sergeant Jerome Hogan of the Greenburgh police. Hogan said he found the child about three-quarters of a mile from the house and some distance from the spot where Robert was left by his playmate.

Hogan said it was apparent the baby could not have reached the spot where he was found by its own efforts as the underbrush was very dense at that spot.

The child's mother was placed under the care of a physician as a result of the shock.

This morning, five days after Robert had vanished, the search for him was virtually at a standstill. Not a single clue to his whereabouts had been discovered.

Every available dog, trained or otherwise, had been taken out by police. Boy Scouts and other searchers had retraced an area of about two square miles around the Hartsdale home for scents on the ground or under it.

All this territory had already been gone over once by the Boy Scouts and other volunteer searchers. Trained bloodhounds had waded through it vainly trying to pick up a trail. But the searchers had practically abandoned hope that this method would prove effective in finding the boy whether he might be dead or alive.

Mr. Conner said he was grateful for the help that had come to him from every source. "If I were the richest man in the United States," he said, "nothing more could have been done for me than has been done. I have been receiving the greatest possible help from the local police and firemen, from the state police and federal government, from Boy Scouts and others.

"The search had convinced Mrs. Conner and me that somebody had our child, that he was alive some place, and that some day we would find him. It was obvious the child was not dead, or his body would have been found before now. From this fact we got our greatest hope."

He said he did not believe that the child had been held for ransom. The only letter asking anything of value, he said, was the note demanding $50. He not only had no money for ransom, he said, but had refused to accept offers of money from friends who suggested that the child might be returned if money were paid.

DARROW BLAMES N. R. A. FAILURE UPON AMATEURS

Tells Minnesota Bar Lack Of Economic Information Hurts

DULUTH, Minn., July 17.—(AP.)—Clarence Darrow, internationally known attorney, charges that the National Recovery Administration is led by "amateurs" with no understanding of political economy.

"The trouble with this method is that nobody has been in charge of affairs who is schooled in political economy, nothing but amateurs," the attorney said at the final session of the Minnesota State Bar Association here.

Darrow, who was chairman of President Roosevelt's National Recovery Review Board, did not mention General Hugh S. Johnson, the N. R. A. administrator, by name.

"I won't mention who he put at the head of it. I can't remember his name. I heard he is a military man not a statesman."

"The business collapse was brought on by Wall Street money changers, the greedy men and big business," Darrow continued.

"Roosevelt at his inauguration promised a 'people's administration'; that he would do his very best, and there is no doubt that he has tried. The country is like an individual. It's easier to get them sick than to get them well."

"The whole N. R. A. program was based on two things: Make prices high and cause scarcity. But a price is only of value in its relation to other things. How would they do it?"

"Kill little pigs and throw them out," Darrow said.

2 Big Firms Assist In Drive To Save Our Artesian Water

A source of satisfaction to County Agent C. R. Dawson today was the announcement of H. H. Coleman, local manager of the Florida Power and Light Co., that his firm, glad to co-operate in the movement to conserve the artesian water of this section, had capped a six-inch well near the old ice plant on West First Street.

At the same time, Mr. Dawson announced that T. L. Dumas, superintendent of the A. C. L. R. R. division here had notified him that his workmen had just capped a well near the old passenger station on Commercial Street, and that the workmen would cap a three-inch well today on their property near the American Legion hut.

"Mr. Dumas assured me," Mr. Dawson stated, "that the Coast Line is desirous of re-operating in this worthwhile movement to conserve the artesian water of our area."

"This voluntary action by the Florida Power and Light Co. and the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. sets a fine precedent for everyone in this county," Mr. Dawson stated, "and we hope that scores of other wells will be capped within the next few days. Owners who are willing to co-operate in this movement should notify me at the Court House by telephone 678, or the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, telephone 51."

Orange County Must Pay Higher Millage

ORLANDO, July 17.—(AP.)—Orange county Monday found it necessary to increase the millage due to increased bonded requirements in various school districts, and the fact that $100,000 general revenue balance has been exhausted.

The millage for 1934 set by the board of county commissioners, was $3.14 in the Orlando district as compared with $2.25 for 1933. With the exception of the Orlando district, where the increased millage is approximately four mills, the average increased taxation throughout the county will be three mills.

AAA WILL BUY SURPLUS BEEF IN SEMINOLE

Cattle To Be Bought For Processing And Distribution Among Needy Unemployed

JACKSONVILLE, July 17.—(AP.)—The Florida Emergency Relief Administration will purchase surplus cattle in the flood damaged regions of Central Florida.

The counties certified as being a part of the emergency district were Brevard, Highlands, Okechobee, Orange, Osceola, Polk, and Seminole.

Beef cattle will be bought for processing, it was announced, while milk cows will be distributed to needy farmers. The FERA has requested a special allotment of $750,000 to supply relief activities in the area.

Motorized Artillery Unit Will Stop Here

One hundred and eleven officers and men of the 116th Field Artillery United States National Guard will pay this city a two hour visit on Tuesday, Aug. 7, it was announced today.

This organization, completely motorized, will be enroute to its base at Tampa after having spent two weeks in annual encampment near Columbia, S. C.

The party will reach Sanford at 12:30 o'clock to be met by motorcycle escort provided by Chief of Police Roy G. Williams and Sheriff J. F. McClelland.

The escort will provide five blocks of parking space in the vicinity of the Montezuma Hotel where the officers and men will have luncheon.

During luncheon, the officers, headed by Major Byrd Sparhawk, will be guests of Mayor W. A. Leffler, County Commission Board Chairman John Melach Sr., and Harry M. Papworth of the Chamber of Commerce.

All vehicles—42 of them with 116 guns—will be filled with gasoline while the men are at luncheon, after which the party will leave for Tampa via Lakeland where supper will be served.

Orlando Judge Speaks To Sanford Rotarians

"We all want to do as we please of course," Judge Robert J. Van Ness of the Juvenile Court in Orlando when he addressed Sanford Rotarians today on the subject, "Liberty and Limitations," but, he added, "we will serve and endure not by doing as we please, but by pleasing to do as we ought."

In devoting a major part of his talk to the great amount of lawlessness now prevalent in America, Judge Van Ness pleaded for more respect of law and order.

Miss Ella Maude Jones entertained the guests with several piano selections.

Those present included Rotarian L. B. Jones of Jacksonville, Mrs. R. J. Holly and Mrs. B. E. Jones, Judge Van Ness, Miss Jones, and Rotarians Randolph Chase, who presided, H. B. Pope, H. H. Coleman, S. O. Shihab, Karl Lehmann, H. R. Stevens, E. F. Halness, W. M. Haynes, W. L. Cooper, S. G. Gray, H. M. Watson, James Wright, S. Polston, Martin J. Bram, Fred T. Williams, W. C. "Dead" Shell Bursts Killing 7 Soldiers

SAINT GERMAIN - EN LAVE, France, July 17.—(AP.)—The explosion of a forgotten trench mortar shell, thrown playfully by a soldier at a group of comrades, today killed 7 of them and wounded 25 on an artillery training ground. It was the second accident to the French armed forces due to forgotten shells within the past four days. A shell recently fired by accident from a destroyer at Toulon, killed two sailors on a neighboring ship while cleaning operations. Among the victims of today's accident was the soldier who found the shell. He intended to frighten his comrades by tossing the shell he believed "dead" and it exploded.

P. W. A. JOBS UP 91% IN VALUE IN FIRST 6 MONTHS

Construction Ended Or Under Contract July 1 Is $1,700,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Public Works construction in the first six months of this year measured in dollar values advanced by 91 percent, Harold L. Ickes, Public Works administrator, disclosed today.

The figures showed that on Jan. 1, federal and non-federal projects under completion, under contract or completed, had values of $800,000,000, while on July 1 similar projects involved $1,700,000,000.

This $1,700,000,000 worth of projects now in contract, construction or completed stages, will be joined shortly by another $158,000,000 worth of projects for which bids are now being advertised preliminary to awarding contracts, Mr. Ickes said.

"Real expenditures" on federal and non-federal projects, he continued, or the value of materials plus wages on construction sites plus wages of men employed directly on these sites have risen rapidly in recent weeks. For the first week in April "real expenditures" were approximately $15,000,000 he said, while in the week ended June 30, they exceeded $30,000,000.

For the week ended June 30, the "key" figure of P. W. A. employment, showing only men directly employed on P. W. A. construction sites, had risen to 688,000 or double the number of those employed at the beginning of April. Producing, processing and transporting raw and finished materials is estimated to give indirect and industrial employment to two men for each man directly employed on construction sites.

All projects now under construction, contract, completed or advertised for bids, received allotments from the original $3,300,000,000 Public Works appropriation. Projects awarded allotments from the new appropriation have not had time to get beyond the initial allotment stage.

P. W. A. allotted $2,168,000,000 from the original appropriation in projects classed as federal and non-federal.

Fifty New York Cigar Factories Closed; Owners Blame Code As 4,000 Lose Jobs

YORK, Pa., July 17.—The closing of the fifty cigar factories, employing more than 4,000 persons in York county, center of the country's hand-made cigar industry, especially that section of it known as the "fast" section, was the result of a code which was dictated by the manufacturers using automatic machinery, the small, independent manufacturer will be forced out of business and the larger manufacturer will be compelled to install automatic machinery and to throw out of work thousands of persons in this section who had been able to make a living before the code went into effect," he said.

The York county factories closed their doors on July 8, the date the code went into effect.

WATER HELD, CHARGED WITH TRUNK MURDER

Tony Mancini Accused Of Slaying Woman Whose Body Was Lo- cated In Brighton

LONDON, July 17.—(AP.)—Tony Mancini, a stuttering Italian waiter, was charged today with the murder of Mrs. Violette Kaye, also known as Mrs. Violette Saunders, a professional dancer. She was the victim of "the Brighton trunk crime number two."

Her body was discovered jammed in the trunk with the head and arms of another woman. They were believed to have been dismembered from the torso discovered a month ago in a trunk in the Brighton railroad station.

Mancini was arrested early today in southeast London and was questioned by Scotland Yard detectives.

At the end of the grilling, they charged him with the murder and arranged for his appearance in police court tomorrow.

Wurt Warner Gives Up Lease On Hotel To Daytona People

Wurt W. Warner, manager of the Valdes Hotel for the past two years, announced today that he had sold his interest in a lease on the property for the next two years to Guy McMillan of Daytona Beach, manager of the Gilbert Hotel in that city.

The change of ownership was effective today, and a representative of Mr. McMillan was in the city arranging details.

No immediate change is contemplated in the personnel at the hotel, but extensive repairs and renovations will be undertaken within a few weeks.

The new manager is a widely known Florida hotel operator, and is an associate who is interested in the new plant with him. His Daytona Beach property is known as one of the busiest hotels in that city.

Mr. Warner announced that while he will make Sanford his home, he will enter business in Orlando beginning tomorrow. He expects to commute between the two cities daily.

Mr. Warner operated the Valdes from 1926 through 1929, leaving Sanford to open a hotel at Palatka. He returned to Sanford two years ago, and he has been operating the Valdes Hotel since that time.

7,000 Truck Drivers In Minneapolis Quit, 10,000 Alabama Cotton Workers Strike

(By The Associated Press)

Labor troubles struck new sectors of the nation today as San Francisco's strike extended its numbing grip. An additional half million residents of San Francisco's strike-plagued metropolitan area were caught in the paralyzing onrush of the general strike.

Tramlines in Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and other East Bay cities walked away from their jobs.

In San Francisco itself there was a slight relaxation of the strike. Under heavy guards a few trucks rolled into the city carrying gasoline and food supplies. Some municipal street cars were placed in operation.

National Guardsmen continued patrolling the waterfront. Two hundred more Guardsmen moved into Oakland.

The market district at Minneapolis was quiet as 7,000 truck drivers struck. Nevertheless Governor Olson called out the National Guards to preserve order.

More than 10,000 workers in the scattered Alabama cotton mills answered the call for a state-wide textile strike. An official of the United Textile Workers of America predicted that 25,000 laborers would join the walkout.

Parades and spirited condemnation of the Regional Labor Board marked the second day of the strike conducted at San Antonio, Texas, by members of the Pean Shellers Union demanding higher wages.

At Pittsburgh William Spang, leader of the local unit of the Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tin Workers threatened to call a strike at the Carnegie Company's Duquesne, Pa. plant.

Unmolested, with scattered boos hurled at him, former Governor Walker Kohler of Wisconsin walked through the picket line surrounding Kohler and Company, of which he is president, in the Wisconsin village which bears his name.

By long distance telephone, secretary Perkins kept abreast of developments. There were no indications the White House would heed several requests to intervene in the California strikes.

McClelland Comments On Training School

Prediction that a marked increase in cooperation between all law enforcing agencies would be noted within a short time because of the "unusually interesting and educational" first annual Florida Peace Officers' School held in Jacksonville last week was made today by Sheriff J. F. McClelland, who with Deputy Sheriff Ed Meisch were among the 164 of firea present.

Lectures and addresses made by numerous officials and state officers all were aimed at better law enforcement, Sheriff McClelland stated, and the lectures were so clearly explained, with such practical application given, that not a single man could fail to benefit.

Sheriff McClelland said that a feature of the sessions was the number of facts brought out in relation to law enforcement. "Officers who have been in authority for as long as 20 years learned things which they had been misinformed about for years," Sheriff McClelland stated.

As an example, Sheriff McClelland stated that few of the officers know that the sheriff of each county is responsible only to the governor of the state. Only the sheriff has authority to telegraph for the militia, for instance, Sheriff McClelland stated, his authority exceeding even that of a police chief who is merely the "sheriff" of a small division of government. "Few of the officers knew this fact," Sheriff McClelland stated.

Sheriff McClelland plans to gather his deputies and other local peace officers around him at an early date to transmit to them some of the newer methods of enforcement which he learned at Camp Foster, he said.

With Most Businesses Closed, Housekeepers Are In Trouble

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—(AP.)—Not much real hardship yet but inconvenience aplenty was the lot of the San Francisco housewife today in the general strike. Here are some of the "why's":

She couldn't get any groceries delivered.

If she trailed to the store on foot, she couldn't buy any meat, butter or eggs, any fresh vegetables or fruit.

She couldn't use the family car, because her husband used it to get to work, if he still had any gasoline in the tank.

There were no vegetables to strain for the baby's diet but the canned kind she fortunately had stocked up on.

The laundry bundle she prepared from long habit and put on the front porch stayed there, untouched.

The washerwoman didn't arrive. She tried to order a few needed household things from a department store, but was told deliveries were being made by mail only, and that perhaps after tomorrow there would be none.

Her things didn't come back from the cleaners, and she could get no idea when they would.

Little Marjorie was upset because it was her birthday and there was no promised movie to go to, and her party had to be called off because the children couldn't come, and there wasn't enough butter in the house to make the cake.

Son Joe was grumpy because she wouldn't let him beg a ride downtown to "see what it looks like," and because the boy he phoned to make a tennis date said he wasn't going to walk all that way to the courts.

Spark, the spaniel, rolled a reproachful eye at a skippy portion of dog meat, and as for the (Continued on Page Two)
