The saga continues

SANFORD — Homebuilders in three cities who haven't paid Seminole County road impact fees will have one last chance to prove to the county the fee obligation was passed to their customers.

Following an angry outcry of several builders Monday, commissioners backed off of a staff proposal to notify the builders they would be sued if they did not pay the fees. The unpaid fees were due during the 1987 to 1989 time when Sanford, Casselberry and Winter Springs refused to collect them for the county and the county sued to force their collection.

About $1 million in fees were due when the litigation was concluded in 1989. A total of $118,539 is now owed in 233 unpaid impact fee assessments, county officials said.

Builders told commissioners they had been told by the county the fees would "run with the land," pass from seller to buyer, once the courts upheld their collection. In Aug. 1989, the county agreed to a Sanford settlement request that current owners not be pursued for collection if the builders or developers could prove they notified the buyers during the litigation that the fees may become due.

City utility guide coming

SANFORD — During this week, the City of Sanford will begin mailing out pamphlets to utility customers explaining all of its services and charges.

Program Coordinator Bill Marcus said approximately 10,400 copies of the pamphlet will be sent out. He added, "Anyone who doesn't get a copy by the end of this coming week can get one at the customer service desk on the second floor of city hall."

The information does not contain any changes. Rather it is an attempt to put every available information a customer may need, into one publication that is easy to read and simple to understand.

The pamphlet contains sections on residential and commercial use of reclaimed water, drinking water, sewers and garbage/recycling information. There are also lists of phone number to call for information and services, or to report difficulties and problems. The section on garbage and recycling specifies pick-up days, holiday operation changes, and methods of disposal.

"By getting this publication out to all of our customers," Marcus said, "we're giving the people we serve an opportunity to find out more about the rates being changed, and the ways in which our utility department operates in the sections of our city."

Kuwait City people reported cheering U.S.-led 'liberation'

By JOHN KING
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — Saddam Hussein, his armies reeling from a monumental allied air and land assault, said today he had begun withdrawing his forces from Kuwait. But President Bush accused Saddam of "trying to claim victory in the midst of a rout," and pledged the war would not stop.

Amid indications that most Iraqis had left Kuwait City, CBS-TV said U.S., Saudi, Kuwait and Omani troops had entered the capital city, and were being welcomed with waving Kuwaiti flags and blaring automobile horns.

"Today we will complete the withdrawal of our forces, God willing," Saddam told his war-wrecked nation in an address on Baghdad radio. He said the emirate he annexed in August was no longer part of Iraq.

But Bush, reading a statement in the White House Rose Garden at midmorning, said Saddam's statement was "an outrage" — he had not agreed to U.N. resolutions on Kuwait, had expressed no remorse, and had accepted no responsibility for "the awful consequences" of his nation's aggression.

"Saddam is not interested in peace, but only to regroup and fight another day," he said.

He called on all Iraqi soldiers to lay down their arms, and said they would not be fired upon if they did.

The British War Cabinet agreed with Bush's assessment. But the Soviets urged an immediate cease-fire. Baghdadis rejoiced wildly, and Kuwait's government-in-exile said Iraqi troops were fleeing Kuwait City.

Support group records largest attendance, accepts donation

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Approximately 175 people, one of the largest groups so far, attended Monday night's weekly meeting of Sanford Desert Storm Support Group. The large gathering was partly because of the tension over the acid missile attack against the American military barracks just hours earlier, but mostly because more people have found out about the regular meetings.

As the meeting got underway, John Good, who, along with his brother Mark wrote and recorded the song, "Our Heroes Across the Sea," presented a check in the amount of $56 to the group's chairperson Judy Osborn. The Goods are donating one dollar for each video tape of the song they sell, which, when added to the amount given last week, totals $94.

Good pledged that even if the war ended, he

Mall road plan wins approval

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A plan outlining $8.4 million in road improvements for west Sanford won a 4-1 city commission approval last night, moving developers of Seminole Towne Center regional mall closer to groundbreaking.

The road plan was one in several steps the commission has taken with developer Melvin Simon & Associates to establish a tax increment financing district (TIF) for the mall. The TIF will allow up to 50 percent of property taxes collected on the site over a 14-year period to be used for road improvements needed to accommodate traffic generated by the mall. Through the city, the developer will float about $4 million in bonds to pay for those improvements.

Commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan, who has consistently opposed the mall TIF, cast the only opposing vote.

"My problem is with the TIF, not with the shopping center," McClanahan said. "I haven't been able to convince myself we needed in the money to do it."

The commission earlier yesterday, meeting as the Seminole Towne Center Community Redevelopment Agency, voted 4 to 0 to approve the plan, which also had been approved by the city Planning and Zoning Commission and city staff. McClanahan was not present for that vote.

The $100 million Seminole Towne Center, which will include a mall slightly smaller than the Altamonte Mall in Altamonte Springs, is to be located at the interchange of Interstate 4 and State Road 48. The project also includes 400 hotel rooms and an office complex.

Year-round school calendars are being touted by educators as the money-saving answer for cash-starved, growth states such as Florida, but not all children and parents are ready for such a change.

In Seminole County, Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo has adopted the year round calendar and will begin that schedule in July. Discussions have begun to see if other schools should be placed on the year round schedule but no commitment has been made for other schools.

Libel suit underway

TAMPA — Jury selection has begun in the libel suit of a former sheriff who claims he was defamed in a Pulitzer Prize-winning St. Petersburg Times series. The articles published in 1983 and 1984 dealt with the way former Pasco Sheriff John Short ran his office and with his dealings with John T. Moorman, a millionaire Short appointed a special deputy. Short, 45, and Moorman, 57, filed a multimillion-dollar libel suit in 1987 against the Times, reporters Lucy Morgan, Jack Reed and Jeff Testerman and editorial writer Richard Morgan. Lucy Morgan's husband. The articles by Mrs. Morgan, 49, and Reed, 44, won the 1985 Pulitzer Prize, journalism's most prestigious award, for investigative reporting. The libel suit alleges the articles damaged the reputations of Short and Moorman and led to their indictment on criminal charges in August 1984.

Skydiver may have passed out

DELAND — A 27-year-old skydiver who fell 16,000 feet to his death may have passed out from a severe nose bleed before he hit the ground, authorities said. Berry Hoggatt of Tampa was one of 160 parachutists trying to set a world record for midair linkups, police said Monday. "The exact cause of death is undetermined," Deland police Cmdr. Steve Edwards said. "However, it is believed that he was suffering from a sinus problem which caused a nosebleed, impairing his vision. He was unconscious when he hit the ground."

Hoggatt was one of 160 experienced parachutists picked by organizers of the record attempt at Skydive DeLand, a jumping school that leases land at the city's Municipal Airport. Bob Hallett, owner of Skydive DeLand, said setting a record would have been a tribute to Hoggatt, but the group was unsuccessful.

The fatal fall Sunday occurred as the sky divers were attempting to link arms and form a five-pointed star before opening their parachutes.

Estefan on first tour since injury

LAKELAND — Gloria Estefan, embarking on her first tour since a serious back injury one year ago, will give some Lakeland disabled and handicapped people a sneak preview of her show tonight. Ms. Estefan, who kicks off her "Into the Light" world tour March 1 at the Miami Arena, has been in Lakeland since Sunday for rehearsals at the Lakeland Civic Center.

Her publicist said Monday that Ms. Estefan had invited about 150 to 200 disabled people from the YMCA, Florida Baptist Children's Home Shelter, Florida Sheriff's Youth Villa and the Foster Care House to her dress rehearsal Tuesday night.

At a news conference Monday, the 33-year-old Latin-beat pop singer was upbeat about her recovery and preparations for the future since a March 1990 accident in Pennsylvania involving her tour bus.

Jury selection begins

MIAMI — Jury selection began Monday in the trial of two co-defendants of Manuel Noriega who are accused of shipping drugs aboard a freighter allegedly protected by the deposed Panamanian leader.

Although Noriega himself is not scheduled to go on trial until June, the co-defendants' prosecution will be "a peek through the back window of the government's case," said defense attorney Richard Sharpstein. On trial are Brian Davidow, 29, a Miami real estate broker, and William Saldarraga, 44, a Colombian. They are accused of conspiring to use the freighter Krill to ship 322 kilograms, or just over 700 pounds, of cocaine bound for the United States. The Krill was intercepted by Colombian authorities after it left a Colombian dock in March 1986.

On Monday, the government dropped the broadest conspiracy count against Davidow, and Sharpstein said that was an apparent effort to avoid showing its hand in the Noriega trial. That count would have required extensive evidence of Noriega's involvement in the drug conspiracy.

Task forces identify problems, solutions ORLANDO — Gov. Lawton Chiles on Monday promised concerned Floridians trying to trim the fat and improve the efficiency of state government that their findings will not be shelved to gather dust.

Chiles called reports from six task forces that identified problems and recommended solutions "a blueprint that we need to turn government upside down."

"We know re-inventing state government is not going to be an easy process," he told scores of task force members meeting in Orlando. "The process has already started ... (and) will be a continuing effort."

The recommendations ranged from a call for revamping of social services and the state personnel system, to an appeal for leadership on economic development and long-term planning for growth, transportation and the environment.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Children in 'serious trouble'

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's children are in "serious trouble" because the state doesn't place enough emphasis on early intervention and hasn't clearly defined its role in protecting them, a new report says.

In addition, the system serving the children responds more to "political pressures" than to their needs, members of the Child Welfare Study Commission have concluded.

The 15-member panel will pass its findings and recommendations to the Legislature on March 1 after spending a year compiling the 130-page report.

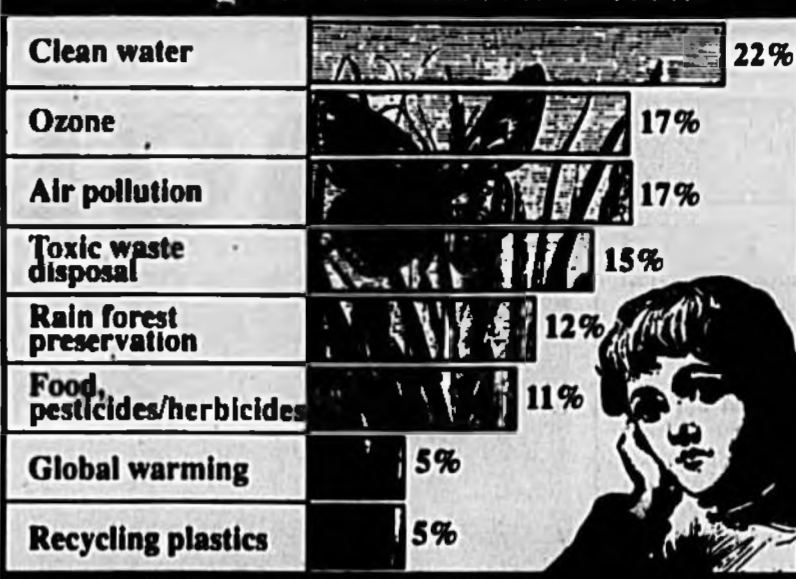

The proposed solutions include increasing financing for intervention programs, shifting money among programs, using volunteers in the judicial system and streamlining state contracting procedures.

"The report lends the weight of credibility to what we've known all along," Jack Levine, executive director of the Florida Center for Children and Youth, said.

Florida, for instance, ranks 17th nationally in per capita income but is 45th in spending for child health and well-being, Levine calls that "the widest gap in America" between wealth and spending levels.

State Supreme Court Justice Rosemary Barkett, who chaired the commission, also said that children's needs aren't assigned a priority among key state issues, such as roads and the environment.

GREEN TEENS

The environmental issue of greatest concern to high-achieving American teens is clean water, according to a survey. Ozone, air pollution and the disposal of toxic waste are also leading areas of interest.

Nor are children's programs ranked in order of importance within the social service system, she said.

"We're spending three-quarters of our money on those (children age) 17 and up," she said. "We should be putting our money where it will do the most good, in prevention strategies."

Barkett said that Florida's children services were "way too fragmented" and that needs should be prioritized. In addition, Barkett said, the state isn't delivering services in a "common sense sort of way."

"We forget these people don't have automobiles," she said. "They (have) to go to different places for different services. Why can't immunizations be done where people go for Aid to Families with Dependent Children?"

In its report, the commission criticized the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, saying it was consistently reluctant to provide the panel with information on children and their families that was not "politically positive."

Some key recommendations from the study include:

— Giving more money to those children's programs most in need.

— Only 35 percent of its eligible poor women receive food from a nutritional program for infants and children, the lowest state rate in the Southeast.

— Offering child immunization clinics at sites dispensing food stamps and other social services.

— Continuing to create, finance and expand school sex education classes and health care clinics near schools to reduce teen-age pregnancies.

— Offering dropout prevention programs for pregnant students and child-care options for student mothers in all school districts.

— Providing drug treatment programs for all pregnant users and their families and persuading them to seek treatment without fear of prosecution or loss of their children.

— Creating a basic standard of care statewide for foster children in the care of the agency and moving more quickly to reunite them with their families.

— Giving state workers who investigate child abuse fewer cases, better pay and more training. A survey conducted by the commission found investigators have three times the number of cases recommended, spend too much time on tasks unrelated to abuse complaints and suffer from low morale.

Nominee can expect tough questions

Martinez aims to become drug czar

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Former Florida Gov. Bob Martinez, aiming to become the nation's second drug czar, can expect tough Senate questioning on his qualifications for the job and his drug-fighting philosophy.

One member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., has said he probably will oppose the nomination of Martinez, a one-term governor who lost his bid for re-election last year in Florida despite campaign appearances by President Bush and the support of campaign chairman Jeb Bush, one of the president's sons.

"If the White House wants to pass out political favors to unemployed former officials, let them pick an obscure ambassadorship or membership on some commission," Simon wrote in December. "We should not use the position of head of this nation's anti-drug effort as a political reward."

Martinez was scheduled to appear before the Judiciary Committee today.

Bush likened the nomination to "a battlefield promotion for a leader who has earned his stripes on the front lines of the drug war." Martinez "can and will hit the ground running," Bush said when he nominated to succeed the resigning William J. Bennett.

Nevertheless, Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., criticized the choice, saying: "Mr. Martinez lacks the background and record to suggest that he is well-suited for this task."

In four years as Florida's governor, Martinez's high-profile anti-drug policies emphasized tough penalties, law enforcement and prison construction over treatment and prevention.

"He's got a pretty miserable record in the state" concerning treatment and prevention, said one of several committee aides who predicted the questioning would "focus mainly on" such issues.

Martinez, who has declined interviews since he began preparing for the hearings, has endured some critical press accounts recently, some of them dredging up old news.

Woman says God wants her to befriend suspected killer

Associated Press

OCALA — Arlene Pralle says there is a side to suspected serial killer Aileen Wuornos most people don't know: she is a deeply religious woman who quotes from the Bible and loves the Moody Blues.

Wuornos, 34, has been unfairly depicted as a suspected killer who robbed and shot to death seven middle-aged men in Central Florida since 1989, according to Pralle.

Wuornos pleaded not guilty Monday to killing two men in Marion County. So far, she has been indicted and charged in four of the deaths in Marion, Citrus and Volusia counties.

But Pralle, a 43-year-old horse farmer who has been writing and talking to Wuornos almost every day for a month, told the Ocala Star-Banner for an article in today's editions that the suspected killer is a "very caring and giving individual" who has been misrepresented in the media as "a monster."

Affidavits filed in Marion County indicate Wuornos confessed to killing Dick Humphreys of Crystal River, saying she shot him nine times "to put him out of his misery."

Pralle has been in contact with the accused serial killer since shortly after she began reading about her in the newspapers in January. She said their similar "stormy backgrounds" lured her to Wuornos, although she refused to detail her own background.

County will defend land-use decision

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County is now faced with defending another land-use decision in lands near the Wekiva River against a state challenge.

The Florida Department of Community Affairs notified the county earlier this month it will appeal the county commission's Jan. 8 approval of the 12-acre Excelsior Properties residential proposal south of Orange Avenue west of Interstate 4. Commissioners granted a request to allow low-density residential uses on the property, which permits up to four homes per acre.

Commissioners rezoned the property to allow a maximum of three homes per acre, still higher than the county staff recommendation of two homes per acre. Commissioners voted 4-1 for the land use change and rezoning. Commissioner Larry Furlong opposed both actions.

The Excelsior Properties site is located northeast of the approved Sylvan Lake development, the first development in the northwest area of the county with a greater than one-home per acre density.

In December, the DCA notified the county the proposal failed to meet the Wekiva River Protection Act requirement that the "rural character" of the area be maintained. DCA has generally determined developments that average one-home per acre meets the rural character test.

DCA has also permitted "clustering" of homes on smaller lots, as long as the homes-to-acre ratio equals one home per acre. The Excelsior site had been classified as "Suburban Estates," which allows a maximum on one home per acre development.

Bright light helps astronauts adjust to offbeat hours in orbit

By MARGIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Astronauts slated for the overnight shift on the next space shuttle flight will spend the week before launch staying up all night and squinting under bright lights in an all-white room.

Doctors believe the treatment will help the men adjust to the irregular sleep cycles demanded by Discovery's round-the-clock, military mission.

The new technique, aimed at tricking the body into resetting its internal clock, worked wonders for the last space shuttle crew. The four Columbia astronauts reported feeling rested and alert throughout the taxing mission in December in spite of their odd hours.

"We all felt better," pilot Guy Gardner said. "The lights did the trick."

Before last year's experiment with bright light, astronauts prepared for offbeat hours in orbit by going to bed a little earlier, or a little later, every night for several weeks before liftoff. The results were dismal for many, including Michael Coats, commander of Discovery's upcoming flight.

"You can force yourself to stay awake, but how alert are you when you need to be?" said Coats.

Dr. Patricia Santy, a psychiatrist and NASA flight surgeon, told NASA officials and Columbia's crew about bright light treatment after reading a medical report last May about its effectiveness for night shift workers.

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A NASA official says further study is needed before deciding whether the space shuttle Discovery can fly safely next month with cracked door hinges.

Tests indicate the doors should operate properly during the flight, Dan Germany, manager of the orbiter projects office at Johnson Space Center, said Monday.

"It looks like we do have a stable system," Germany said.

But NASA officials will wait until later this week to decide whether to launch Discovery around March 9 or roll the shuttle back to the hangar for repairs.

Germany said he believes the cracks can be fixed at the launch pad. Moving the shuttle back to the hangar could cause a delay of several weeks or more.

Gardner and the rest of the crew were eager to try the technique developed by Dr. Charles Czeisler, an associate professor of medicine at Harvard University. The astronauts had had trouble changing their waking hours in preparation for Columbia's first launch attempt last May, which was foiled by fuel leaks.

Czeisler renovated crew quarters at Johnson Space Center in Houston last August.

Fluorescent lights were installed in the crew quarters' conference room that made it about 50 times brighter than before. The room's walls and doors were painted white, and white tarps were placed on the floor and white paper over a large table.

Columbia's seven astronauts moved into the transformed crew quarters one week before the scheduled Sept. 1 launch, the customary quarantine period. Gardner and the other three assigned to 12-hour night shifts in orbit immediately were subjected to the bright light. The three others avoided it.

The four astronauts did paperwork and read in the bright conference room at night. Watching TV was out because of the glare.

Their exposure to bright light was timed so sunlight would not disrupt their bodies' shifted circadian rhythm, or internal clock, when they went out during the day for training.

"We had to reset the clocks of the astronauts in such a way that the sun would be interpreted as evening light rather than morning light."

Czeisler contends a person's circadian rhythm normally is in synchronization with the rising and setting of the sun.

By the time Columbia's crew arrived at Kennedy Space Center after four nights of bright light, tests showed their bodies had shifted to the new cycle.

Milking consumers

Milk prices at the wholesale level have fallen 25 percent since last summer. Yet consumers continue to pay about the same retail prices for milk, cheese, ice cream and other dairy products as they paid a year ago. This apparent price gouging at the retail level deserves the scrutiny of the U.S. Justice Department's antitrust division.

Wholesale milk prices have plummeted over the last two quarters because of a glut of milk at the farm level. Favorable pasture conditions enabled dairy farmers to supply substantially more milk in 1990 than they did in the two preceding years.

In 1988 and 1989, milk output was below normal and prices rose accordingly. In fact, the 9 percent run-up in retail milk prices last year was higher than any other food item included in the government's consumer price index. It also amounted to the steepest one-year increase in milk prices in more than a decade.

It is often difficult to determine when food makers charge artificially high prices, because the cost of a raw commodity may be only a small portion of the total cost of a food item. For instance, much of the cost of a loaf of bread owes to factors other than the price of wheat, such as labor, processing and packaging.

But that is not the case with milk. More than half the price of a carton in the supermarket is attributable to the cost of the milk itself. Milk accounts for roughly 40 percent of the retail price of cheese and 38 percent of the price of ice cream.

The Agriculture Department estimates these and other retail dairy prices will decline this year by only 1 percent to 4 percent. Meanwhile, farm milk prices will hold firm at 15 percent to 20 percent less than last year's levels.

This apparent profiteering by dairy retailers might be more palatable were it not occurring at a time when the Agriculture Department is buying excess supplies of cheese, non-fat dry milk and butter to stop the free fall of prices at the farm level. This price support will cost American taxpayers $763 million this year.

In a perfect world, the free market place ultimately would determine the appropriate price for milk. But the milk market has become hopelessly skewed by government subsidies and artificial pricing by the retail milk cartel. American consumers should not continue to provide dairy retailers government-subsidized milk on the farm level only to be gouged when they go shopping for dairy products at the supermarket.

Thanks for war local coverage

I would like to thank your paper for covering the "Morale as High as the Clouds" support rally for our Troops serving in the Middle East. It was sponsored by the Lake Mary seniors. The turnout was greater than your paper reported, but was under my expectations.

As I mingled about, I overheard comments about how this person would have attended — or that person would have attended, except that it was so cold. I have to ask, "What if our troops chose not to participate in the war, because the weather was too hot, too wet, or too cold?" I realize the weather was chilly, but the entire rally lasted under an hour. Our troops have to endure much worse conditions than those — for much longer periods of time. They are doing this to assure us — you and me — our freedom.

As you crawl into your nice warm beds tonight, in your warm, dry house, picture our men and women of the military — sleeping in various unpleasant conditions: some in abandoned buildings, some in tents — with or without sleeping bags — and some on the ground with only a blanket. Think of that delicious hot meal you had tonight — then think of our troops eating MRE's (meals ready to eat) some — 3 times a day. And the next time you're enjoying a hot shower or relaxing bath, picture our troops — some not having a shower for several days — and most of them cold or — of saltwater — when they do get them. Be thankful for these people who did "sign the contract" — who exist under these conditions so that we can enjoy our comfort and our freedom. And the next time you have the opportunity to attend a support rally — do so.

On my husband's behalf, I thank those who organized and supported this effort. To set the record straight, all four commissioners and the mayor were in attendance at the rally, including Commissioner George Duryea, who was omitted from your article.

In the court of war, who is clean?

As events inexorably move toward the imminent end of the Persian Gulf war, imagery and substance compete for causal credit.

However Republican hawks, Democratic eagles, populist doves and philosophical owls queue up at history's accounting department to claim credit, three images will radiate as the turning points:

Iraqis thankfully firing their guns in the air at the news of Saddam Hussein's initial peace offer. Nobel Peace Prize-winner Mikhail Gorbachev acting as a broker for peace.

Nonstop bombing raids decimating the Iraqi people's will to continue. Once again, history will catalog February, the shortest but the most abundant month of the year, as a time when notable events seem to occur.

The destruction of Iraq's infrastructure is a boon to world peace. But what is good for world peace will have been achieved at the expense of a people's destruction. The Iraqi people have had it; they are emotionally wind out. As a ghetto saying puts it, Saddam sold them wolf tickets. And they are paying a frightening price for his scam.

Saddam has seen the pictures of Iraqis festively firing guns into the air at the news of his

Feb. 15 offer to withdraw from Kuwait. Even with his monstrous ego, he knows he cannot rally his people to commit mass suicide.

He also has to have known that his six conditions for withdrawal were not even remotely acceptable. Either he knew it ab initio, or he was smoking a very poor grade of hashish.

What was so tragically ironic about Saddam's conditions for withdrawal from Kuwait was his apparent amnesia about why he invaded Kuwait in the first place. His invasion had nothing to do with the Palestinians' long struggle for a de-erived homeland or Israel's occupation of disputed territories.

The Iraqi people have had it.

When Saddam invaded Kuwait, it was in response to what amounted to a declaration of economic war against Iraq. As Time magazine pointed out, Kuwait "had been grossly overproducing oil in violation of OPEC quotas ... Kuwait's excess pumping had depressed the average price of an OPEC barrel nearly 57."

For Iraq, which relies on oil for 95 percent of its export revenue, each $1 drop in the price of oil per barrel cost Iraq $1 billion a year.

In the first weeks of Iraq's invasion, Saddam repeatedly hinted that he would be willing to consider a trade-off — withdrawal in return for retaining control of both the Rumaila oil fields on the Kuwait-Iraq border and the two islands of Warba and Bubiyan, which control Iraq's access to the Gulf.

That was the time to negotiate. But George Bush's mind-set simply could not cope with an Arab leader daring to assert an independent influence on the world economy. By demonizing Saddam with an irrational comparison to Hitler, Bush scuttled any room for negotiation.

One can dismiss Saddam's extravagant conditions for withdrawal as the working of a predatory mind. But for the Soviets to buy into them and ignore the real economic reasons for Iraq's invasion begs the question.

U.S. ground troop morale runs high

WITH THE 101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION, Saudi Arabia — Last July, Army Col. Thomas Garrett was picked to participate in a war game involving a hypothetical Arab country that invades its Arab neighbor.

The game was intensely played. And what Garrett remembers most now as he sits in his olive drab tent in northern Saudi Arabia was the fifty new desert camouflage uniform he got to wear during the exercise.

The only problem was that the uniform was hot. Garrett recalls that he said at the time, "I hope I never have to wear these things in a real situation."

What he and his troops have done for the last six months is no game. Garrett heads the 101st Aviation Brigade with its more than 500 assault helicopters. Six months ago they were plucked from Ft. Campbell, Ky., and dropped in the desert to do battle with Saddam Hussein.

He said his troops had performed flawlessly in the harsh desert.

Sources in Washington say that the 101st Aviation Brigade fired the first shots in the Persian Gulf war on Jan. 16, when their Apache helicopters swooped down to take out Iraqi ground communications and radar as the first wave of Air Force fighters and bombers could fly in unopposed.

The actual plan for a ground war was classified, but military experts speculated that troops from the 101st and 82nd Airborne Divisions would be carried into Iraq to set up bases so the heavy armor could roll in and attack Iraqi forces from behind.

Morale was high at the 101st Aviation Brigade during our visit, as the troops awaited the order to move. One private told us that the troops trust and respect Garrett. "He's not out for glory at the cost of casualties, and he's not tightly wrapped like some commanders, which means we'll have fewer men injured than under many other commanders."

Garrett was equally upbeat about his troops, whom he said had performed flawlessly in the harsh desert. And, he said his equipment was doing better than expected with talcum powder-like sand everywhere. The sand has blasted some helicopter blades so badly that Garrett's troops must bind the blades with tape to protect the surface.

Late February brings a period of sandstorms to the Arabian peninsula that can be so blinding a man can't see his hand in front of his face. That concerned Garrett, but the sand would stop the enemy too. "If we can't fly, they can't move either," he said.

In the invasion scenario being speculated on back home while these troops waited for their orders to move, the 101st helicopters shared the first-in honors with the paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division. After they established secure airfields in southern and eastern Iraq, transport planes full of more soldiers and heavy armor would be close behind.

Though military commanders were aware that their secret plans were the subject of much talk in the media and by armchair military experts, they weren't concerned. Even if Saddam read the speculation on the front page of The New York Times, the only thing he could have done to thwart the plan actually would have helped the U.S. war effort.

The best Saddam could do would be to move his heavy armor and defenses away from positions in and around Kuwait and spread them along the Iraqi border with Saudi Arabia. That movement was exactly what the Air Force was hoping for. By bringing his army out of its dug-in positions, Saddam would make them sitting ducks for U.S. fighters and bombers.

In some minds, that made the ground war a no-win situation, except there are always losers.

Who should dominate energy?

WASHINGTON — It's being called the second front in the Persian Gulf War — a coming struggle over energy strategy between a Republican administration that wants supply and demand to dominate policy, and Democrats urging a stronger government role.

President Bush's economists argue that there's not much wrong with U.S. energy policy the markets won't fix, and say their case has been proven since the onset of the Persian Gulf crisis more than six months ago.

That same crisis is stirring Democratic insistence on steps that would lessen reliance on imported oil, including a standby tax and conservation requirements.

Oil imports supplied 44 percent of U.S. consumption in January, according to the American Petroleum Institute. That was down from about 50 percent a year earlier, but up sharply from the 30 percent that followed the oil shortage a decade ago.

"Contrary to what you might hear, the United States does have an energy policy," said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. "It can be described in two words: import oil."

Johnston says imports are up 74 percent in the past five years, domestic production down 20 percent. He wants the Senate to act this spring on a sweeping energy bill to promote production and impose conservation steps.

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., chairman of the House Budget Committee, has proposed a bill that would include a standby gasoline tax, to be triggered if prices fall.

"One of the primary causes behind this war was our dependence on oil in the Middle East," Panetta said. "The time has come within this country to open up a second front with regard to energy policy."

Those measures would go far beyond the policies the administration favors.

While blaming the recession on the oil price shock that followed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the Bush's Council of Economic Advisors said energy markets have cooled with it, eased the impact, and will keep the downturn brief.

The economic report the White House sent to Congress last Tuesday even includes a good word for speculators in the oil futures market, a favored target of congressional complaints and calls for regulation.

"The available evidence ... suggests that speculation is more likely to have lowered prices than to have raised them in the aftermath of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait," the report said.

The report urges primary reliance on the free market to determine energy prices, quantities and technologies, calling that "the foundation for sound longer-term energy policies" and thus for the National Energy Strategy the administration will propose this week.

The White House economists contend that government regulation of energy markets worsened the oil import crisis of the 1970s, and deepened the recessions that followed.

"It was regulation, and not events in the Middle East, that forced U.S. consumers to wait in long lines to buy gasoline," their report says.

Deregulated markets are more flexible, more resilient and better equipped to deal with oil crises, they say, while acknowledging that there will have to be government policies to deal with such things as reducing dependence on insecure sources — Middle East oil.

But their report goes on to say that "even the total elimination of energy imports would not insulate the economy from oil price shocks," because U.S. energy security is tied to that of allies and trading partners.

It also says that the United States is not more wasteful than other nations in energy use, charting a sharp upward turn in efficiency since 1973, the year of the Arab oil embargo — without mentioning the conservation measures imposed by the government after that energy crisis.

The congressional formula would promote conservation with both incentives and new rules, including higher automobile fuel efficiency standards. The administration is skeptical, saying that the goal of energy policy is to enhance growth, not minimize energy use.

Those differences will be hard to bridge, although some aspects of energy policy seem to depend on the beholder.

Johnston says his energy strategy would undo the damage of the Reagan administration's "mystical confidence in the free market, that it would solve everything from the common cold to the OPEC cartel." Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., joined in sponsoring the measure and said it would promote competitive, market-oriented policies.

One of the primary causes behind this war was our dependence on oil in the Middle East.

planned to continue donating the money to the group as long as it existed. The tape may be purchased for $3.25 by calling the American Legion at 322-1852.

The support group has identified at least 144 Sanford-area men and women serving in the Gulf.

During the course of the meeting, several family members read letters they had received from the Persian Gulf forces.

One woman said she had received word from her son Scott, who had served in the conflict. He is currently in Italy, en route back home. She indicated that if possible, she would try to have him attend the meeting next Monday night.

Betty Donaldson reported that she had received a letter from her son Anthony whom she had not seen in two years.

Osborn read her son's letter which included a comment about people back home who continue to object the U.S.

involvement. "They need to wake up and see what we have here," he wrote.

One of the highlights of the evening was the playing of an audio tape by Joeke Childers, recorded by her son LCPL John W. Childers in Saudi Arabia, and made specifically for the Desert Storm group. In it, John expressed his appreciation, thanks and love to the group for all of their efforts in handling the difficult situation of having loved ones involved in battle zones. "We all know that the road ahead of us is a rocky one," but he added they could all be certain "everyone here is strong, and everyone wants nothing more than to return." John is with an Artillery Unit, working in a fire detection control center.

Among reports made during the meeting, were several of mailing packages. A number of packages currently at Patrick Air Force Base, addressed to specific individuals, are not being forwarded. Patrick can only use military aircraft to transport packages mailed to groups, such as units, or divisions, and not to specific persons.

At the present time, the group is planning to hold a parade sometime in the near future. Work is underway in making contacts with various people and organizations who they hope would participate. Osborn said, "This could be one of the greatest parades Sanford has ever seen."

A representative of the Shrine Club announced that they would supply Gus, the camel, for the parade. The Daughters of the American Revolution and other groups are supporting and assisting in the parade planning and preparation. It is hoped several schools might agree to supply their marching bands for the event.

The Sanford Desert Storm Support Group meets every Monday night, beginning at 7 p.m. at the Sanford American Legion Hall, 2874 Sanford Ave. Anyone who has a family member or friend stationed in the Persian Gulf is invited to attend.

Rockpile

Operation Rock Pile is a sting operation aimed at cocaine users and dealers in the tri-state area. Law enforcement agencies work in conjunction with one another to make arrests.

Items seized in the operation included five vehicles, a rifle, a survival knife and a bicycle.

Drugs taken included 65 pieces of crack cocaine, seven grams of marijuana and 302 units of meacaline.

A Rock Pile operation in November netted 50 arrests over a period of five days.

Eslinger said the decrease in numbers reflects an increased difficulty in conducting this type of operation. "They have changed their tactics," Eslinger said of the drug merchants and users. "They are not as viable as they once were."

Eslinger said the drop in numbers should not be misinterpreted as a decrease in drug use or availability in Seminole County.

"It is still something that we have to work very hard at," he said. "The activity has not been curbed at all."

George Prochel, public information officer with the sheriff's office, said the neighbors in the areas where arrests were made were very supportive of the arresting officers.

"They all told them that they were doing a good job," Prochel said. "We did not meet with any resistance."

Prochel described the goal of Operation Rock Pile as getting neighborhoods "cleaned up" and "getting the drug dealers out of the neighborhood."

Eslinger said that the latest Rock Pile operation succeeded in its goals, but that similar sting operations will occur in the future.

"There'll be more Rock Piles in the future," he said.

Eves as Saddam spoke, allied troops in the third day of a huge ground offensive were starting north into Iraq.

A senior Pentagon official said coalition forces had engaged key units of the Republican Guard, and was blocking their attempt to retreat toward Baghdad. The official said allied troops had ranged as far north as the Euphrates River to cut off the Guard's "fighting withdrawal."

"They're not fighting real well by our standards, but they are fighting," the official said of Iraq's best troops.

Iran's Islamic Republic News

Agency reported that Iraq had suffered the heaviest bombardment of the war, with allied aircraft bombing concentrations along Iraq's southern, southeastern and eastern regions.

And the toll from Monday's Scud missile attack on a makeshift barracks in Saudi Arabia climbed to 26 U.S. troops killed, 100 injured.

U.S. military officials in the Saudi capital, Riyadh, said Iraqi forces in Kuwait were simply fleeing under fire.

"There are signs of Iraqi retreat as a result of pressure from coalition attacks," said a senior military official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "This is to prevent annihilations."

In Washington, a senior Pentagon official said, "The campaign continues." Adding: "It would be very imprudent for battle commanders to suddenly let down their guard on the strength of a radio speech."

Baghdad radio said one Iraqi division came under attack as it tried to withdraw. It did not say where.

Fitzwater had said before Saddam's speech that allied forces would "not attack unarmed soldiers in retreat, but we will consider retreating combat units as a movement of war."

Saddam's seizure of Kuwait 6 1/2 months ago set in motion months of efforts to get him out — and led finally to the outbreak of the Persian Gulf War nearly six weeks ago.

The redevelopment plan calls for $8.4 million in road improvements, including these:

• Widening of and off-ramps at I-4 and SR 46, and placement of traffic signals at that interchange. Cost is estimated at $165,000 in the plan.

• Expansion of SR 48 from four to six lanes from I-4 east ramps to Upsala Road, and construction of dual left turn lanes from SR 48 to I-4 westbound lanes. Cost is estimated at $880,000 in the plan.

• Construction of two additional lanes to the planned Rinehart Road extension between County Road 46A and SR 48. Cost is estimated at $1.8 million in the plan.

• Realignment and construction of Oregon Avenue as a four-lane divided road between SR 48 and Rinehart Road. Cost is estimated at $2.5 million, which includes drainage, sidewalks and street lights.

• Construction of a four-lane connector between the realigned Oregon Avenue and Rinehart Road. Cost is estimated at $800,000 in the plan.

The redevelopment plan also includes a $450,000 extension of a water main from Upsala Road to the mall site; $100,000 in drainage improvements; $125,000 for relocation of existing utilities; $450,000 in traffic signals; $982,000 in engineering, surveying and testing; $360,000 in construction contingency fees; and $80,000 in planning and legal fees.

City attorney Bill Colbert said the next steps in the TIF procedures will be for the commission to establish a trust fund, then to validate sale of bonds for the project. Both those steps will happen within 30 to 60 days, he said.

Tom Schneider, attorney for Melvin Simon & Associates, said the redevelopment plan was consistent with the city's comprehensive plan, and would accommodate growth in addition to the mall project.

Schools

year-round calendar, 90 percent of that time is spent reassuring parents and explaining misconceptions," said L. Dianne Locker, program consultant for year-round education in Orange County. "This is a very emotional issue."

This year, more than half a million children in 20 states, including Florida, are attending schools with year-round calendars. Next year, the national number is projected to top 1 million.

More than 14 Florida counties sent almost 100 people to the annual conference of the National Association for Year-Round Education in San Diego this month. Orange and Marion counties already have year-round schools and more than a dozen others plan them soon.

Year-round schooling doesn't mean children go to school every day. Florida law requires children to attend school 180 days of every year, and that doesn't change in year-round schools. What changes is the attendance pattern.

The students are normally divided into five groups with alternating schedules of school days and vacations — most likely following a pattern of 12 weeks on, three weeks off.

This saves space and money — a school that could hold only 800 children now can handle 750, because only four-fifths of them are in school at any given time.

Experience suggests the year-round calendar helps students learn. It lets children off for only short breaks, and schools may use some of that break time for supplemental enrichment activities or remedial work. Children forget less, teachers need to spend less time on review, and those who need extra help get it right away.

But improving education isn't what drives most communities toward year-round schools. The fact is, year-round schools save money.

Economists: Recession to be shorter

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A substantial majority of the nation's top economic forecasters say the recession will be briefer and less severe than the post-World War II average for downturns, a survey released today showed.

Sixty-one percent of forecasters polled look for the recession to be shorter than the post-1945 average of 11 months, while 36 percent think it will be about average in length, the National Association of Business Economists said.

"As for the recession depth, 78 percent expect to see less than the postwar average 2.5 percent decline in GNP (gross national product), while 15 percent expect about an average decline," the association said.

The survey, conducted during the first two weeks of February, also showed just over half of the 54 economists believe the recession will end in the second quarter. Two-thirds had predicted last November that it would end in the first three months of this year.

In the new survey, 22 percent put the low point in the current quarter, while 18 percent said the downturn will bottom out in the third quarter of 1991.

The GNP fell at an annual rate of 2.1 percent in the fourth quarter of 1990, and the median expectations of the NABE economists are for a 1.6 percent decline in the current quarter and a 0.3 percent decline in the next.

A recession generally is defined as at least two consecutive declines in the GNP, the nation's total output of goods and services.

But while the forecasters extended the length of the recession, they did not significantly alter their projection of the economy's initial recovery.

They foresee a growth rate of 1.9 percent in the third quarter and 2.5 percent in the fourth. The November poll forecast a 2.0 percent growth rate in the third quarter and 2.5 percent in the fourth.

The recovery will continue through 1992, with the economy growing 2.5 percent on a year-over-year basis, up from a decline of 0.2 percent this year, the survey indicated. "The previous survey forecast growth of 0.5 percent in 1991.

"Contributing to the recession's end and a recovery beginning in the second half of 1991 are the past easing of monetary policy and the prospects for lower oil prices and a quick resolution to the Gulf War," said the survey summary.

"On the other hand, concern that monetary policy will not ease further, fast enough, and the reluctance of banks to make loans are the two factors most often mentioned that could make the recession longer and deeper than currently expected," it added.

At the same time, the survey found improved inflation prospects, presumably because of a fall in oil prices that had skyrocketed immediately after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait disrupted world petroleum markets.

The forecasters projected living costs as measured by the Consumer Price Index to rise by 4.6 percent this year, down from 5.2 percent in last November's survey, and by 4.0 percent in 1992. The CPI rose 6.1 percent during 1990.

And the economists said unemployment would average 6.8 percent this year, dropping to 6.2 percent in 1992. The jobless rate was 6.5 percent in 1990.

The survey also projected the federal budget deficit will total $300 billion this fiscal year, less than the Bush administration's forecast of $318.1 billion, excluding Gulf War costs.

The forecasters said the fiscal 1992 deficit will ease to $291 billion, higher than the administration's $280.9 billion projection.

Anniversary for president of Nicaragua

Associated Press

A. Nicaragua — President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro is marking the first anniversary of her election, but some say there is little to celebrate.

About 8,000 supporters of Mrs. Chamorro gathered in a stadium Monday to remember her victory on Feb. 25, 1990, which ended 10 years of leftist Sandinista rule.

But her vice president, Virgilio Godoy, and at least seven of the 14 parties that backed her candidacy did not attend.

They say she's cooperated too much with the Sandinistas and has not moved quickly enough to ease social discontent and rebuild the nation's shattered economy.

Mrs. Chamorro said the anniversary ceremony did not represent "a winner's celebration" but "the choice by the people of a system of government and life that makes possible brotherhood, peace and dialogue."

When voters overwhelmingly elected her over President Daniel Ortega, the nation was divided over a nine-year civil war that had killed 55,000.

After taking office, Mrs. Chamorro ended the U.S.-backed Contra rebel war against the Sandinistas, stopped the military draft, cut the size of the army in half and promoted national reconciliation. Press and political freedoms have been expanded and there are no political prisoners.

But economic problems plague her. Inflation was 13,000 percent at the end of 1990. Hospital services have been virtually halted for a month by 23,000 striking workers demanding wage increases. More than 30,000 teachers, who start the new school year in March, also want raises.

Mrs. Chamorro's government says it can't meet the demands without printing more money — which would push inflation even higher.

The unemployment rate is estimated to be higher than 50 percent.

The jobless include more than 20,000 former rebels and 50,000 former Sandinista soldiers who are demanding land and aid from the government. Thousands have taken over private or state-owned land in sometimes bloody confrontations.

We are at war: Day 41 of Desert Storm

Deadly scud attack kills 28 soldiers, injures 100

By GEORGE ESPER
AP Special Correspondent

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — The soldiers' belongings were gathered from the debris of death and packed in their duffle bags.

The small American flags they waved when they arrived in Saudi Arabia were tucked into the tops of some of the bags that would accompany 28 of them on their final journey home.

In a moment's flash, a single Iraqi Scud missile inflicted more casualties on American soldiers than its million-man army and thousands of tanks have in two days of ground combat.

Only hours before Iraq announced it was withdrawing from Kuwait, it skyrocketed the ballistic weapon into a metal warehouse converted into an American barracks and mess hall.

Baghdad radio hailed the attack against "the coward traitors who mortgage the sacred places of the nation ... and turn Arab youth into shields of flesh."

The U.S. command said 28 American servicemen were killed and 100 were wounded Monday night in by far the deadliest of nearly 70 Scud attacks. Four Americans were reported killed and 21 wounded in the opening days of the allied ground drive into Iraq and Kuwait.

Most of Scuds, including an attack Monday on the island-nation of Bahrain, have been intercepted by U.S.-supplied Patriot defense missiles.

Iraq early today also fired its first Scud at Qatar, an Arab member of the multinational coalition. It crashed in a deserted area and no damage was reported, according to the official Qatari news agency.

The explosion crumpled the building's girders. No Patriot missile was fired to intercept the Scud, said sources.

Thousands of Iraqis surrender

By ROBERT DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

IN SOUTHERN IRAQ — Everywhere across a wide battlefield, Iraqi soldiers were abandoning their tanks, guns and bunkers and surrendering.

So many were giving up, in fact, that allied soldiers were running short of the plastic flexi-cuffs used to tie POW's hands, and engineers ran short of explosives because they had blown up so many abandoned Iraqi bunkers.

Iraqis surrendering today held safe-passage leaflets dropped from warplanes, flashed "V" signs with their fingers, smiled and mugged for cameras. More than 18,000 Iraqi prisoners were taken in the first two days of the allied ground offensive, allied commanders said.

Saudi authorities, to whom other allies are sending their prisoners, have made provision for 100,000 POWs — and said they had received a total of 25,000 by Tuesday.

In southern Iraq, the 2nd Brigade of the 82nd Airborne Division alone took thousands of prisoners, and its commander said his unit suffered "not one man scratched" in the process.

"As soon as we got within sight, boom, the white flags went up," said Col. Ron Rokosz, 45, of Chicago. "Their morale is shot. They don't want to fight... You'd come over the ridges and they'd be coming out of

As soon as we got within sight, boom, the white flags went up."

-Col. Ron Rokosz

their holes waving a white flag all over the place. It was the most incredible thing I have ever seen," he said.

The flood of POWs threatened to bog down the offensive.

"We could have gone a lot farther except we had so many POWs," Rokosz said. "It actually slowed down the attack."

In the Saudi capital of Riyadh, a U.S. military official conceded today that the flood of Iraqis surrendering on the battlefield had caused problems for some of the advancing allied units, who found themselves short of transportation to move the prisoners to the rear.

But the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the situation was being resolved and there was no shortage of military police to handle the prisoners in temporary holding areas until they could be moved to the rear.

On the front lines, one group of about 100 prisoners said sat silently in the sand, their hands over their heads, waiting to be searched and transported.

Down the road, a line of 42 Iraqi prisoners

POWs walked in file to the south. They did not even have U.S. guards escorting them as they walked to the rear.

Spc. Arthur Hiscox, 21, of Downer's Grove, Ill., helped capture a group of about 15 prisoners. He yelled "Raise your hands" in Arabic. The group complied willingly.

Allied officers said there was a plus from the lack of initial heavy fighting; there were fewer wounded Iraqi prisoners to care for.

"As a result of their surrendering, we don't even have EPW (enemy prisoner of war) patients," said Col. Jerry Faust of the 44th Medical Brigade.

AP photographer Greg English said he was driving in northern Saudi Arabia with three other photographers when they encountered about 40 Iraqi soldiers who had made their way across the border from Kuwait on foot.

"They were walking and waving white flags, and some of them had their hands in the air," said English. "They had been walking for nine hours and were very scared. Some of them didn't even have shoes."

"They begged us to take them prisoner. They kept pointing to the sky and saying, 'Bombs! Bombs! Bombs!'"

English said the photographers reassured the Iraqis and gave them cigarettes and food, which they ate ravenously. He said they directed the Iraqis about six miles down the road to a Syrian camp.

Congress gets a bill for war

By ALAN FRAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress is getting its first look at President Bush's request for $15 billion in taxpayers' money to help finance the war with Iraq, a proposal seeking items ranging from more Patriot missiles to food.

The Senate Appropriations Committee planned to examine the spending plan today and question Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and White House budget chief Richard Darman.

The proposal includes requests for $324 million for 500 Patriot missiles and for $545 million to buy 400 Tomahawk cruise missiles, according to documents obtained Monday by The Associated Press. Both weapons have been used heavily in the Persian Gulf War.

Bush's measure, unveiled Friday, seeks not only $15 billion in federal funds but the authority to use $53.5 billion in assistance pledged by allied nations. The administration believes that money would last through March.

But lawmakers were likely to pursue at least two lines of questions. They want to make sure the Pentagon really needs the items it is requesting for the war effort, and they want to know why foreign contributions have lagged so far behind the promised amounts.

"The U.S. is living up to its commitments and is bearing the lion's share of the risks and sacrifices," Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., complained on Friday.

So far, the United States has reported receiving just $14.9 billion in cash and services of the $53.5 billion in promised assistance.

Judge refuses coverage of war dead arrivals

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A federal judge rejected a claim that the military's refusal to allow pictures of war dead being returned from the Persian Gulf is an improper attempt to influence public opinion.

U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth refused Monday to immediately order the military to lift its ban on news coverage at Dover Air Force Base in Dover, Del., saying he does not consider the military's reasons to be "improper or irrational."

Lamberth turned down a request for a temporary restraining order, which would have gone into effect immediately. He said, however, that he will hear arguments next week on a request for a preliminary injunction.

The lawsuit was brought by members of the news media, various veterans' groups, and a support group of military families. They said the Pentagon was preventing the public and media from witnessing the return of the war dead "to limit the emotional impact and significance of the fact Americans are being killed."

The groups seeking access to the Dover base, where the bodies of troops killed overseas often are returned first, said the government is not protecting the privacy rights of the dead

Shula's wife dies

MIAMI — Dorothy Shula, the wife of Miami Dolphins coach Don Shula and the mother of two NFL assistants, died at her home Monday after a long battle against cancer. She was 57.

While Don Shula is best known for his 28-year career as an NFL coach, Mrs. Shula was admired for her devotion to her family. The couple were married for 32 years, and Shula frequently said he wouldn't have been a success without her.

The Shulas had two sons. David is an assistant coach for the Cincinnati Bengals, and Mike spent the past three seasons with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The couple also had three daughters and five grandchildren. "It always happens to the good ones," veteran Dolphins guard Roy Foster said. "And she was definitely one of the good ones."

Her funeral will be Thursday at Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church in Miami Lakes, Fla.

Florida expansion

ORLANDO — Both new National League franchises that will begin play in 1993 could be awarded to Florida cities, league president Bill White said Monday during an expansion committee visit to Miami.

The committee also traveled to Orlando, and will visit St. Petersburg on Tuesday. Trips to the other cities in contention for an expansion team — Denver, Buffalo and Washington — have not been scheduled but likely will be made in March or April.

White's comments countered speculation that the American League would block a National League attempt to award both franchises in Florida. The state has no Major League Baseball even though its population of more than 13 million ranks fourth in the nation.

COLLEGE HOOPS

Miami tops USF

MIAMI — Joe Wylie scored 13 of his 19 points in the second half to lift Miami to a 67-58 victory over South Florida Monday night.

The Hurricanes (8-18) split the season series after dropping the first meeting 78-71 in Tampa. The Bulls have never won in Miami (0-4) and close out their regular season (18-9, 8-6 conference), losing three of four games.

Trevor Burton scored 15 of his 18 points in the second half. He also had six assists. Wylie added 13 rebounds, and Hammie Ward scored 12 points.

Radenko Dobras, who finished with 11 points, hit three 3-pointers to help the Bulls to a 38-25 lead at intermission. Fred Lewis added 18 and Gary Alexander had 13 points and 10 rebounds.

Teamwork over talent

Balance key to SCC's win over Valencia

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

ORLANDO — The Seminole Community College men's basketball team proved again that teamwork can overcome talent.

Brian Nason converted a three point play with 0:15 left to give the short-handed Raiders a 75-72 triumph over Valencia Monday night in the opening round of the Mid-Florida Conference Playoffs.

Nason's heroics came after the Matadors' Darnell Murphy had nailed a three-point shot with 0:24 left to tie the score at 72-72. After a time out Nason got free for a layup but missed the shot. After a scramble Nason grabbed the ball and scored as he was fouled. He calmly sank the free throw and two three-point attempts by Valencia were off the mark and SCC had the win.

The Raiders got excellent inside play from Craig Radzak, Darnell Robinson, Earnest Jones and Billy Freeman and a super defensive effort from everyone to upset fifth-seeded Valencia, which had lost to conference champion Lake City 97-96 at Lake City last Saturday.

SCC's defense stopped the Matadors on 35 percent shooting and held its leading scorers, Craig Chambers and Maurice Gray, to 16 and eight points, respectively. Gray had 41 and Chambers 30 against Lake City.

The victory advances sixth-seeded SCC (17-14) into the 'final four' of the MFC tournament where it will take on second-seeded Daytona Beach, a 72-59 victor over Santa Fe.

The game will played in Daytona Wednesday starting at 7:30 p.m.

In the other half of the bracket the Florida Community College at Jacksonville-St. John's River winner will travel to Ocala to play top-seeded Central Florida. Wednesday's winners will meet in the championship game Thursday night at the home site of the highest seeded team left.

Before the game coach Bill Payne of the Raiders told his team that they needed to rebound better, especially on the offensive end, if they expected to win and they responded by outrebounding the taller, more athletic Matadors 49-31.

The Raiders' balance was outstanding as six players, only eight of the 13 men on the roster dressed, scored at least six points and grabbed at least six rebounds.

Nason led all scorers with 26 points and six rebounds followed by Robinson (16 pts., 9 reb.), Dexter Vanzant (11 pts., 9 reb., 11 assists and 3 steals), Radzak (9 pts., 6 reb.), Freeman (7 pts., 10 reb.) and Jones (6 pts., 9 reb.).

Brandon Curtis (13) and Jimmy Chambers (12) also were in double figures for the Matadors, which finish the season at 14-17.

Brian Nason scored a game high 26 points and hit a free throw to complete a three-point play with 0:15 left in the game as Seminole Community College upset Valencia 75-72 in the opening round of the Mid-Florida Conference Tournament at Orlando Monday night.

Who keeps ring after broken engagement?

DEAR ABBY: If you ever get tired of writing your advice column, you should consider the legal profession.

You had a letter in your column recently concerning an engagement ring. The question: If a man gives a girl an engagement ring and four hours later they break up, should the woman return the ring?

You said, "The gentleman has every right to expect the lady to return the ring. And if she doesn't, she's no lady."

I recently read an item in the Iowa City Press-Citizen that said, "Engagement rings become real gifts only when the wedding happens, and must otherwise be returned, the Iowa Court of Appeals has ruled."

The judges said it didn't matter who did the jilting. The court rejected as sexist and archaic earlier rulings that set courts award an engagement ring to the person who was jilted.

IOWA ABBY FAN: I've heard that "who owns the ring" question put to me in a variety of situations. Examples: The couple enjoyed a three-year engagement with "sleeping-over privileges," so the woman felt that she had earned the diamond engagement ring. (Well, if she "earned" it, that makes her a professional.)

In another situation, after a two-year engagement, "Romeo" met another damsel who stole his heart. So, as a consolation prize and to assuage his guilt, he told Damsel No. 1 she could keep the ring.

I'm with the Iowa judge. An engagement ring is more than just a ring — it signifies a promise to wed. And if the wedding does not take place, the ring should be returned to the person who paid for it.

DEAR ABBY: No doubt, your readers were probably surprised to learn that the inspirational quotation which a reader had erroneously attributed to Ray Kroc, the founder of McDonald's was authored by the 30th president of the United States — Calvin Coolidge!

Because Coolidge was a very quiet, conservative man who rarely spoke unless spoken to, he was aptly nicknamed, "Silent Cal."

Elections today in Chicago and Arizona

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley sought nomination for a full four-year term today, and Republican Fife Symington battled Democrat Terry Goddard in a runoff for the governorship of scandal-scarred Arizona.

These races topped a flurry of off-year elections overshadowed by the Persian Gulf War. In other voting: A referendum in Greensboro, N.C. would soften the toughest anti-smoking ordinance in the nation's No. 1 tobacco-growing state. The current measure, barely approved in November 1989, bans smoking in elevators and large retail stores, requires large restaurants to set aside 25 percent of seats for non-smokers and mandates $25 fines for violators. The new measure would make compliance voluntary.

Wichita, Kan., tests the termination movement that scored success last year in Oklahoma, California, Colorado and Kansas City, Mo. Voters are being asked to restrict local elected officials to two four-year terms.

Kansas City, Mo., decides which two of eight candidates for mayor advance to a runoff. The three-term incumbent, Richard Berkley, was barred from running by the restrictions adopted in November, but he had declared his intention to retire before that vote.

The mayor of impoverished East St. Louis, Ill., Carl Officer, is favored in his bid for a fourth term despite financial problems so severe that when the city failed to pay a $3.4 million damage judgment to a beating victim, a judge awarded the man City Hall.

In Chicago, where the Democratic Party dominates politics, the primary is traditionally considered the real election, though the winner must compete April 2 against the victor in a three-way Republican race.

Daley, son of the late, legendary Mayor Richard J. Daley, is heavily favored over former Alderman Danny Davis and former Mayor Jane M. Byrne.

Davis, who is black, is pinning his hopes on a wave of support like the one that helped the late Harold Washington become the city's first black mayor in 1983.

Washington died shortly after winning re-election in 1987, and Daley won a special election in 1989 to fill the last half of the four-year term.

"Most people believe that we held the mayor's election two years ago and are tired of elections, and are willing probably to give the incumbent the benefit of the doubt after only two years," said Alderman Lawrence Bloom, who supports Davis. "That's a pretty big hurdle to start with before you had the war."

Arizona's runoff comes at a troubled period in the state's politics that started with the election of Republican Evan Mecham in 1988. Mecham was later impeached and removed from office for misusing state funds and obstructing justice. Democrat Rose Mofford, who succeeded him, declined to run for a full term.

Since then both the state's U.S. senators have been investigated by the Senate Ethics Committee

Crash diets aren't best path to losing weight

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've tried many weight-loss programs with little success but great money loss. Sometimes, when I eat, my abdomen swells like I'm eight months pregnant. I have had an upper and lower GI X-rays, thyroid tests and the like but am still bothered by this problem. I've also had a slight growth across my Adam's apple and wonder if I might be hypothyroid. Can you give me some direction?

DEAR READER: The answer to your plea depends, in part, on your size. If you are 5 feet tall and weigh 200 pounds, your problem is more challenging than it would be if you were 5 feet 6 inches and weigh 160.

Although there are overweight people who truly suffer from a metabolic disorder, the overwhelming majority of obese adults simply eat too much for their nutritional needs. Thyroid deficiencies rarely cause weight problems.

As I have said before in this column, some people tend to burn calories as fast as they eat them; whereas, other folks have a tendency to store extra calories as fat. This characteristic has a genetic basis.

As you have discovered, most weight-reduction programs will result in weight loss. The major difficulty is keeping off the weight once it has been lost. This is why I recommend a dietary program with which people feel comfortable for long-term management, year after year. Liquid protein diets, the grapefruit diet, the Atkins diet and other similar methods may produce initial weight loss; however, they're so restrictive that most dieters won't stick to them.

For the average adult who is plump, increased exercise, avoidance of "empty" calories (such as alcohol and sugar), smaller portions, and emphasis on low-calorie foods (vegetables and salads) will usually lead to a consistent, albeit slow, weight reduction that can be maintained indefinitely. Physicians and dieticians can often help people decide on (and continue with) a diet that is flexible enough to provide both variety and adequate nutrition.

By James Jacoby

When North made a forcing raise of three spades, South knew he was going to bid at least a small slam. Since North could easily be holding the right cards to produce 13 tricks, South investigated. The four-heart cue-bid drew a five-club bid from North, showing the ace. South bid five diamonds, and if North could have shown second-round control of hearts, South's next bid would have been five no-trump, asking North to bid seven with A-K of spades. But North denied such heart control. Instead jumping to six spades. When West foolishly doubled, South happily redoubled.

The king of clubs led allowed declarer to succeed with the help of an unusual loser-on-loser play. Declarer won dummy's club ace and played back the jack, pitching hearts on both these tricks. West won the queen of clubs and played a trump. Declarer won this trick in his hand, cashed the ace of hearts and went to dummy with another trump. He cashed the other good club, throwing his queen of hearts away. Then he ruffed a heart, got to dummy with a trump and ruffed one more heart. That made the remaining 10 of hearts in dummy a winner. Declarer played a trump to dummy, discarded his queen of diamonds on the 10 of hearts and claimed his slam.

As a point of interest, if West had shied away from the obvious lead of the king of clubs, leading a trump instead, the slam would have been set.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Feb. 27, 1991

You could be extremely lucky in fulfilling your ambitious objectives during the year ahead. So, it is important that your goals are clear-cut and crystallized. Success is likely when you know exactly what you want.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you spend your time and efforts on truly meaningful endeavors today, your feelings of self-worth will be considerably enhanced. If your day isn't productively structured, you'll feel guilty. Places, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to participate in spontaneous, fun diversions today without feeling guilty about it. It's the middle of the work week! Keep in mind, however, moderation in all things is key.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Your greatest gratification today will come from looking out for the needs of others rather than focusing on your self-interests. A generous mind-set is ennobling.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to communicate effectively with others. You should do well in writing, selling, promoting or instructing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There are times to be frugal and days when it is OK to splurge within reasonable parameters. You should be able to combine these extremes without detrimental results today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People with whom you'll be involved today aren't likely to be as effective in leadership situations as you will be. Taking charge of critical developments appears to be inevitable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Much more can be accomplished today by functioning as the power behind the scenes rather than by trying to make your presence felt in the front ranks. Keep a low profile.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you realistically strive for objectives, you will remain in a favorable cycle in which hopes and expectations can become realities. Clarify your goals and go after what you want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) What others perceive you to be is extremely important at this time, especially today. It won't be what you accomplish that counts as much as how you go about doing it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The most important lesson you'll learn today isn't likely to be found in classrooms or books. There are strong indications you might have a personal experience that will prove to be extremely enlightening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your possibilities for reaping material gains from sources other than your usual ones look good today. Listen carefully if a competent associate talks to you about something potentially profitable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Making commitments is something that must be taken seriously today. If you pledge your word to do something, make every effort to follow it through.
