BRIEFS

Bus involved in accident

SANFORD — A Seminole County school bus, with five handicapped students on board, was involved in a minor rear-end collision this morning. Another vehicle struck the bus near the intersection of S.R. 46 and Cameron Avenue shortly before 8 a.m. School officials said three of the students were en route to Hamilton Elementary School, and two were going to Midway Elementary School. No one was reported injured and very little damage was said to have been done. The Florida Highway Patrol investigated the incident.

Health check offered at Shoney's

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary High School Chapter of HOSA (Health Occupations Students of America) is providing free blood pressure checks on Sunday, April 18.

The checks will be from 5 to 9 p.m. They will take place at the Shoney's restaurant on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford and at the Shoney's restaurant on State Road 434 in Longwood.

Though the screenings are free, the HOSA chapter is accepting donations to raise money to send the winners of regional health occupations competitions to state and national contests.

Project graduation meeting set

SANFORD — The organizers of Seminole High School's Project Graduation will be having another meeting tonight.

The group is making preparations for a drug and alcohol-free celebration the night of graduation on Wednesday, June 9.

The parents of all graduating seniors are invited to attend the meeting and to help with the plans.

The celebration, now a tradition with the graduates of Seminole High, enjoys the support of the business community and draws a majority of the senior class. It will be held at the Sanford Civic Center and aboard the Rivership Grand Romance.

Tonight's meeting will be in the Seminole High School media center. It begins at 7:30 p.m.

Bad winter brings mosquitos

TALLAHASSEE — Along with tornadoes, tidal surges and freezing cold, officials are now adding mosquitoes to the list of havoc spawned by the "no-name" winter storm that hit Florida last month.

In the wake of the storm on March 13 and the nasty weather that hit parts of Florida last weekend, a lot of the state is wetter than usual during this time of year.

Clarification

Abortion protesters were not the only ones subject to weapons checks at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility yesterday as implied in a front page photo caption.

All persons, including pro-choice activists, the press and interested observers, were subject to the check.

Russell closer to job as cop chief

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The city moved to take control of three top jobs from the Civil Service Board last night, a change that is expected to allow the appointment of Ralph Russell as police chief.

The city commission voted unanimously last night, in favor of an ordinance to remove the posts of police chief, fire chief and city clerk from jurisdiction of the board.

The matter was presented for first reading, and would not become official unless it is also approved in a second reading scheduled for April 26.

A second ordinance, seen as a companion to the first, would permit the city to reduce qualifications for the positions of police chief and fire chief. See Chief, Page 5A

Speculation grows: Sears at the mall?

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although an agreement has not been finalized, indications are growing that Sears will be the fifth major store announced for the Seminole Towne Center Mall.

In the master site plan submitted to the Sanford Planning and Zoning Board for review this Thursday, Sears is listed as the tenant for Tract 4. The plans were drawn on March 25, 1993.

The final retail area, identified as Tract 7, is still indicated as a future department store site.

Billie Scott, spokesperson for Melvin Simon and Associates, developers of the mall, said officials were not ready to officially confirm the Sears agreement. "We have been negotiating with them," she said, "and while I cannot confirm that Sears will be a tenant at the mall, I certainly can't deny that we are working with that concept in mind." # School AIDS policy reviewed

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School board will hold preliminary discussions this afternoon on their policy regarding employees and students with AIDS.

The policy holds that a person's diagnosis as being HIV positive must remain strictly confidential unless that person chooses to voluntarily disclose that information.

The policy would make it illegal for employees to be required to tell the district if they have been tested for HIV or what the results of such testing were.

The district would also be prevented from forcing anyone to submit to such a test.

Even if the district is informed of a positive diagnosis. See Policy, Page 5A

Anti-abortion leaders vow to fill jails

By MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Anti-abortion leaders vowed Monday to fill the jails unless 35 protesters are cleared of charges they violated a judge's "illegal, immoral and ungodly" order restricting demonstrations.

"I would encourage people right now to violate the judge's injunction," said Bob Jewett of Washington, D.C., an organizer for Operation Rescue National. "I would hope they would fill the jails."

Thirteen women and 22 men arrested last Saturday in Melbourne appeared before Circuit Judge Robert McGregor in a courtroom packed by protest supporters at the Seminole County Jail. Most identified themselves as Jane or John Doe and received dates for later court appearances.

Six men and three women identified themselves by name and asked to be placed in a pretrial release program. They were released on bail amounts ranging from $100 to $1,500.

The others may have to remain in Brevard County Jail until they are arraigned. Joan Heller, spokeswoman for Brevard Sheriff Claude Miller, said the 10 women will be placed with the general female population that includes women charged with crimes because there is no room to separate them. Heller said efforts would be made to keep the male protesters separate from other inmates.

All are charged with violating McGregor's April 8 order, which keeps protesters 36 feet away from the Aware Woman Center for Choice in Melbourne and restricts "sidewalk counseling" of patients and loud noise.

They were among 51 arrested, including four juveniles, outside the Melbourne clinic. The remainder posted bond and were released immediately along with the juveniles. Another 76 protesters were arrested. See Abortion, Page 5A

Longwood code enforcement board members resign

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Political intrigues blossomed at the Longwood City Commission meeting Monday night like flowers in the spring and before the evening was over two code enforcement board members and one code enforcement officer had resigned.

CEB chairwoman Pat Corbin resigned in person while Bob Lomax, although present, resigned through a letter city commissioner Rex

Anderson read into the record. City administrator James McFellin read a letter from code enforcement officer Bob Baker submitting his two week's notice, but requesting early release from his job if possible.

The resignations stemmed from a case against AAA Tree Service and an indication that politics and harassment are involved.

The commission members took no official action to accept any of the resignations. City Clerk Jeri Zambri acknowledged no official motions.

County extends sign grace period a year

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners will extend their sign-lowering grace period for another year to try to create a countywide sign regulation with the cities.

The suggestion was offered by commissioner Daryl McLain Monday. McLain said the suggestion to review a standard countywide sign policy was raised by Sanford commissioner Herbert "Whitey" Eckstein at a recent CALNO meeting.

Eckstein said recently CALNO had not addressed a uniform sign issue, but he was interested in discussing it with the county and other cities.

Since October, county commissioners have grappled with what to do. See Signs, Page 5A

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Officer fatally shoots motorist

HOLLYWOOD — A police officer fatally shot a motorist who he said reached for a gun during a routine traffic stop, authorities said.

Larry Smith, 36, who was driving, and passenger David DeHass, 33, were pulled over about 2:15 a.m. Monday for running a stop sign, police said.

Officer Peter Salvo said he saw Smith reach between the seats of the car for a gun, so he shot Smith once in the chest, police said. Smith was later pronounced dead at Memorial Hospital.

A loaded .22-caliber firearm was recovered from the car, but it remained unclear Monday night if Smith actually pointed the weapon at Salvo, said police spokeswoman Stephanie Ramirez. DeHass, who was uninjured and not charged by police, said his friend did not point the gun.

Officer Todd Bradford, 24, was with Salvo, 32, at the time of the shooting. Salvo was placed on administrative leave with pay, and Bradford was relieved of patrol duty pending the outcome of an internal investigation, Ramirez said.

Fishing boat captain rescued

CRYSTAL RIVER — The captain of a fishing boat was rescued after three days adrift on a raft in an ordeal that slowly claimed two raftmates.

Mark Meckleberg, 28, was found clinging to life Sunday, and the U.S. Coast Guard's search led to Seven Rivers Memorial Hospital. He was weak, in shock, dehydrated and sunburned and hadn't had anything to eat or drink in three days. He was in stable condition at a hospital Monday.

Paramedics found the lifeless bodies of companions Jason Palmore and Clifford Stanley in the raft, said Petty Officer Rene Hayes.

Meckleberg told the Coast Guard a wave during a storm in the pre-dawn hours Thursday swamped the Michelle Lee and sent the 42-foot commercial fishing boat to the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico.

Meckleberg, Palmore, 19 and Stanley, 23, climbed into a life raft. They drifted until the crew of the fishing boat Prime Time, from Cedar Key, sighted the raft mid-afternoon Sunday and alerted the Coast Guard.

Officials think city hall bugged

CALLAWAY — Officials think someone has been bugging city hall in this Panama City suburb of 14,000 people.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement was called in to investigate last week after an employee working in the attic found what looked like a spider web of microphone-type wires strung above ceiling tiles, City Attorney William Harrison said Monday.

"We have not been able to relate the wires to any legitimate government function in the history of this building," Harrison said. "We don't know how they got there. ... It's quite suspicious."

The wires were not of a type that would be used for computers, fax machines or even door bells, he said. A coil of identical wire was found in the back of the building.

No listening devices were found but the ends of the wires appear to have been recently cut, Harrison said. It was apparent that holes for the wires were drilled some time since the building was painted last fall and metal shavings found around some of the holes appear to be fresh.

Man accidentally kills daughter

CHIEFLAND — A man cleaning his pistol accidentally shot and killed his 12-year-old daughter, officials said.

Megan Lindsey Petersen was in the living room with her father, Hank Petersen, 48, as he was cleaning a .380-caliber semi-automatic pistol Sunday. The gun discharged, its bullet hitting Petersen in the hand and then fatally striking Megan in the chest.

"There is absolutely no indication there is any foul play here, taking into consideration the circumstances and the preliminary eyewitness accounts," said Levy County sheriff's Lt. Chuck Bastak.

Petersen, a cattle farmer, was taken to Shands Hospital, where he was in stable condition late Monday.

Potbellied pigs declared pets

STUART — It's official: Ernie the potbellied pig is a household pet.

Sporting a fluorescent pink harness, the 70-pound porker attended the Martin County Code Enforcement Board's Monday night code enforcement meeting.

Ernie and her owner, Steve Kless of Golden Gate, were there to convince board members that Vietnamese potbellied pigs are domesticated pets. A neighbor had complained in February, leading county officials to find Kless in violation of the county's pet ordinance.

In 24 states, including Florida, counties have ruled potbellied pigs are pets, Kless said. Within the state, Dade and Broward counties, St. Petersburg, Fort Myers and other municipalities have ruled in favor of such pigs.

USDA expands purchase of citrus products in Florida

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is expanding its purchases of citrus products, Florida Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford says it will help ease the state's surplus of oranges.

"This isn't going to do anything to help growers in Seminole County or most of Central Florida," said Bob Brown, of Seymour Lustig, Inc., a citrus shipping corporation.

Earlier this week, Crawford announced that the USDA will immediately accept bids to purchase an additional 74 truckloads of Valencia oranges, 400,000 cartons of frozen orange juice concentrate, and 500,000 cartons of canned, single-strength juice.

Crawford hailed the announcement and said he hopes it is just the start of an effort to get this nutritionally rich fruit and beverage on the tables of America's school children every day.

"Expanded purchases of orange juice and citrus by the USDA could ease the surplus and stabilize the market," Crawford said. He noted that with 80 percent of the crop picked thus far, Florida's harvest will be the largest in 20 years.

"The good news is Florida's citrus industry has fully recovered from the Christmas freeze of 1989," Crawford said. "The bad news is there isn't a grower in Florida who can make a dime with citrus prices at the level they're at."

"This appears to be a much larger thing than it really is," Brown commented. "The USDA has already swung a deal with only the major producers, and this won't do a thing to help the average grower." He added, "Most of the additional purchases will be made from the northern areas of the State, so no one here is going to really benefit from it."

Local shippers operating from the State Farmers' Market at 1300 French Avenue in Sanford, deal with major shipping companies such as Brown's. None of them expected the USDA's announcement would help the local area.

"While those numbers sound quite large," Brown said, "when you talk of about 400,000 cartons of frozen juice concentrate, it's only about 40 truckloads in all. The overall package will probably help a few of the larger operations, but it won't do anything for the smaller grower."

"This announcement reflects the Clinton administration's concern for Florida's citrus industry," Crawford said. He added that he will be encouraging USDA to continue expanding its purchases of fresh commodities in a way of upgrading the nutritional content of school breakfast and lunch programs.

Detective fired in shooting

By Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — A police detective who fatally shot a burglary suspect in the back was fired after a review board found he broke department rules.

Detective John Joseph "J.J." Geoghegan killed Donald Hart, 22, after a chase through a neighborhood last month. Hart, who was unarmed, was suspected of stealing a television set.

Geoghegan, a 19-year veteran of the department who had been cleared of wrongdoing in seven other shootings, was told of the board's decision minutes after it was made. The St. Petersburg Times could not reach him for comment Monday.

"What it comes down to is that he felt he was in a position where he was defending himself from great bodily harm," said police Chief Darrel Stephens. "We concluded that the circumstances ... did not put him where he was in a position of death or great bodily harm."

Officers are authorized to shoot only when every other means of defense has failed and they "reasonably" believe they are in grave danger.

Geoghegan, who was off duty, saw Hart carrying a portable television set away from a northwest St. Petersburg house the evening of March 23. The detective chased Hart several blocks, calling out that he was a police officer and ordering Hart to stop.

Then, Geoghegan shot Hart in the right side of his back. Geoghegan told the police review board that Hart started to turn around and made a motion that led the detective to think Hart was pulling a gun.

"In my judgment, it was not a justified shooting," Stephens said. "We looked at the totality of the circumstances."

An attorney for the Police Benevolent Association blasted the decision. Joseph Ciarcagliano said Geoghegan will appeal to the Civil Service Board.

Pipe dream

Old steamship pipe baffles homeowners

By Associated Press

MILTON — A riveted steamship-type pipe juts seven feet out of Hughie and Voncile Lowe's front yard, but neither they nor the previous owner of their 19th century home have any idea why.

Local and maritime historians also are stumped. The pipe, a foot in diameter, weighs at least a ton and no one is sure how deep it goes into the ground.

The Lowes have been living in the house, built in 1857, since 1985, but Mrs. Lowe remembers the pipe being there when she was a child playing in the neighborhood.

Some old-timers in this Florida Panhandle city remember horses being tied to it before cars took over the streets.

"I've had a number of people ask me ... over the years," said Santa Rosa County historian Nathan Woolley. "I really don't know what it is. It's really an amazing pipe."

The pipe started getting more attention last year when Lowe painted it red, white and blue.

"People stop and get their picture made in front of it," he said.

Historians think it could be connected to a shipyard once nearby that refit Confederate steam-powered gunboats during the Civil War and later built fishing schooners until 1912, Woolley said.

The house was built by the Hannah family, whose members were patrons of the shipyard. They owned the home until 1909, according to Historic Registry information about the house.

When told of the pipe, Bob Holcombe, director of the Confederate Naval Museum in Columbus, Ga., said it sounded like steamboat boiler fittings in the museum.

It isn't big or ornamental enough to be an above-deck pipe, said Lyles Forbes, assistant curator of the Peabody and Essex Museum in Salem, Mass.

But Woolley said it may not have come from a ship at all. It could have come from the boiler of a lumber planing mill that also once was nearby, he said.

POLICE BRIEFS

Deputy attacked

Sheriff's deputies arrested James Albert Kugler, Jr., 19, of Deltona on Sunday. Deputies responded to a call regarding suspicious vehicles and persons seen near an old Ice House, on Rand Yard Road approximately 2:30 a.m. According to the arrest report a deputy checked for two men reportedly seen in the building. He said when he exited, he saw a vehicle coming at him, and had to jump from its path to avoid being hit. Another deputy apprehended the vehicle a short distance away and Kugler was arrested. He has been charged with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle.

Traffic stop leads to arrest

Lake Mary Police arrested Armondo B. Flores, 23, with no local address, following a traffic stop in Interstate-4 Sunday. Police said the vehicle was stopped when it was noticed that it had no tail lights. The officer reported the man indicated he was from Mexico, and could hardly speak English. The license tag on the car was listed as the property of a woman from South Florida, and he could not produce a driver's license. Flores was charged with attached tag not assigned, and driving without a license. A further investigation into the case is underway.

Home ransacked

Sanford police report a home in the 100 block of San Point was reportedly ransacked between April 4 and April 11. The report said a dining room window was cracked, a picture of a pitchfork was painted on the kitchen ceiling, graffiti was painted on the living room wall, and a four-inch hole was cut into the hallway ceiling. The total damage was estimated at $1,930.

Trespass arrests

Sanford police arrested two persons in separate incidents over the weekend, related to trespassing charges. Lyle Earl McMinn, 33, with no local address, was found near a convenience store in the 1900 block of S. French Avenue Saturday. Officers said he explained he had no local address, and had been evicted from a shelter. After he reportedly refused to leave when asked to do so by the officer, he was arrested and charged with trespassing after a warning. On Sunday, police arrested Mary Ellen O'Hara, 33, of Tucker Lane, Sanford, at the Florida Hotel, 500 Oak Avenue. Police said she refused to leave the establishment and was charged with trespassing after a warning.

Traffic stop arrest

Winter Springs police arrested William Harold Schaub, 34, of 5130 Thomas Stable Road, Sanford, following a traffic stop Friday. He was charged with driving with a suspended drivers license.

Domestic violence arrests

Richard Donald Childress, 23, 1311 Santa Barbara, Sanford, was arrested Saturday at his residence by Sanford police. He was charged with domestic violence battery, following an altercation with his sister.
 Jeffery L. Jones, 33, 1409 Myra Court, Sanford, was arrested at his residence by Sanford police early Monday following a fight with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.
 Willease Sanders, 34, 207 E. 6th Street, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Sunday following a dispute with a female. He was charged with aggravated battery.
 Kevin Rodney Henderson, 27, 97 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence early Monday following a dispute with a female. He was charged with domestic violence, battery, and resisting without violence.

Warrant served

David Alan Blitterman, 32, 4439 Francis Ave., Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Saturday. He was wanted for failure to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended license.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

Two soft drink machines were reportedly burglarized Saturday at the Seminole County Humane Society complex on County Home Road. Sheriff's deputies said entry was apparently made by scaling the fence. No estimate of the amount of money taken was made.
 Approximately $100 in items was taken in a business burglary in the 4100 block of N. Highway 17-92 on Saturday.
 A vehicle burglary was reported Sunday at Cameron Wright Park on E. S.R. 46. Items taken include a .380 automatic handgun valued at $250, a wallet said to contain $25, a $250 VCR, and a purse with $100 in currency.
 An autocarrier parked near an industrial plant on Woodruff Springs road, was reportedly burglarized and vandalized Saturday. The owner reported 32 steel chains, four to five feet in length and valued at $350, were taken. The incident report also indicated three wheel hubs valued at $1,500 had holes knocked in them, and 150 feet of hydraulic hoses, valued at $3,300 were split.
 A 1984 gold Toyota was reportedly stolen from the 100 block of Park View Drive in Sunland on Saturday. The vehicle's license number is listed as LZB-98P.
 $23 in currency was reportedly stolen during a residential burglary in the 1300 block of Chestwood Cove, Heathrow, on Friday.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

A mountain bike valued at $300 was reported stolen Sunday in a residential burglary in the 400 block of Mellonville Ave.
 A color TV set was reported stolen during a residential burglary in the 1800 block of Peach Street on Sunday.
 An 8 mm camcorder was seen falling off the roof of a passing car in the 900 block of Mellonville Avenue Sunday. The reporter told police a couple riding on a motorcycle stopped, picked up the camcorder, and fled down Celery Avenue.
 $825 in property was said to have been stolen from a truck in the 200 block of Academy Court on Sunday.
 $520 in stereo equipment was reportedly removed from a vehicle parked in the 100 block of Langston Drive Sunday.
 An undetermined amount of cash was reportedly taken from a man's wallet during a residential burglary Saturday in the 200 block of Sonora Blvd.
 An arc welder valued at $300 was reported missing Saturday from an electrical shop in the 400 block of W. 13th Street.
 An electric hotplate valued at $40 was reportedly removed from a residence Saturday in the 1400 block of W. 16th Street. The resident was in the home at the time of the theft.
 A residential burglary was reported to have happened Thursday or Friday in the 400 block of Orange Avenue. Police said a color TV, a living room set, all the clothing, and all the food from the refrigerator were reported missing.
 Electronic equipment was reportedly stolen from a pick up truck parked in the 2000 block of S. Lake Avenue on Saturday.

Crime protection class set

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary chapter of AARP will be holding a crime protection seminar next Tuesday, April 20. Law and legal experts will be on hand to instruct and respond to questions from the audience.

"There is a great deal residents can do on their own to help protect themselves from crime," said Lake Mary AARP President DeLora Laah, "so we have invited experts to meet with us and give us their advice."

Laah said the information will deal with problems she has heard brought up by the group's members including home burglaries, vehicular burglaries, and safety while going shopping or elsewhere, especially in the evening hours.

Guests will include Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary, Seminole County Sheriff Don Essinger, and a representative of the State Attorney's office.

"We are holding this gathering during the noon and early afternoon time period," Laah said, "because many of our AARP members and senior citizens say they refuse to go out at night. While some may have health problems to prohibit much night driving, others are just plain fearful."

Laah said she realizes the gathering is not at the best time for persons who are employed. "If enough people request a nighttime meeting dealing with the same information," she said, "the AARP will be happy to arrange it."

The meeting will begin at 12 noon with a free luncheon supplied by AARP, followed by the program beginning at 1 p.m.

"This isn't only for AARP members," Laah said, "but anyone of any age who has a concern over this problem are cordially invited to attend. There is no charge."

The meeting will be at the Lake Mary CIA building, located at 280 N. Country Club Road in Lake Mary. No advance reservations are required.

For further information on the seminar, contact DeLora Laah at 323-1142.

State attorneys dispute racial bias in sentencing

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Two state attorneys say their studies disagree with a legislative report that blacks were nearly three times more likely than whites to get longer sentences under habitual-offender laws.

Chairman Elvin Martinez of the House Criminal Justice Committee, who sponsored a bill to take habitual-offender decisions away from prosecutors, in turn questioned the state attorneys' studies.

They were done by Mark Springer, assistant state attorney in Fort Lauderdale, and investigator John Stachowski of the Fort Myers state attorney's office. The legislative report accused both offices of bias in use of habitual offender laws.

"When they said blacks were more likely to be 'habitualized' than whites, people believed it," said Springer. "The end result was wrong."

The Legislature's original study, released in September, brought debate on sentencing reform in the session that ended April 4.

Gov. Lawton Chiles and House lawmakers including Martinez wanted to strip prosecutors of the power to decide who is prosecuted as a habitual offender.

The Senate was firmly against the changes and the legislation failed, though the issue could come up again in a special session.

"From the minute the report came out, the prosecutors were trying to discredit it," said Martinez, D-Tampa. "I certainly would rely on the legislative study more than anything they've come up with. There's no reason for me not to."

Springer said his study found "hundreds" of errors in the legislative research, some admitted by legislative analysts, including counting some offenders as eligible for habitual-offender prosecution even though they didn't meet the legal criteria.

The legislative report said that in Springer's district, 9.5 percent of eligible blacks and 6.6 percent of eligible whites were sentenced as habitual offenders. Springer's study said 12.5 percent of blacks and 12.2 percent of whites received habitual offender status.

The Fort Myers study found blacks about twice as likely to receive habitual offender sentences, rather than three times as likely, as the legislative analysts had said.

Stachowski said the office declined to prosecute 54 defendants who met the criteria for habitual offender status, including 21 whites and 33 blacks. The decisions were made because the cases were weak, he said.

"What they're saying is when we were picking our people, we did it on a racially biased basis," Stachowski said. "But blacks got breaks."

Prisoners continue to hold 8 guards hostage after deadly riot

By JAMES FRIEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LUCASVILLE, Ohio — Authorities negotiated on and off by phone today with convicts holding eight prison guards hostage after an uprising in which the inmates took the guards' batons and beat six fellow prisoners to death.

The guards were taken hostage Sunday as they rushed in to break up a fight that authorities believe was a trick.

"It appears as if there was a staged fight," said Reginald Wilkinson, who heads the state Department of Rehabilitation and Correction.

State officials today negotiated for the guards' release with some of the 450 prisoners still in control of the section of the maximum-security Southern Ohio Correctional Facility where the riot started Sunday afternoon.

The eight hostages had been seen by a prison employee Monday and were believed to be in good health, department spokesman David Morris said.

The inmates presented 19 demands, mostly dealing with prison rules, officials said. Authorities would not give details.

The violence may have stemmed from racial turmoil, officials said.

"Certainly it could be racially motivated, but there is also information to presume that it may not be the case," Wilkinson said.

All six prisoners killed were white, but some of the eight prisoners injured in the uprising are black, and one of the eight hostages is black, said Sharron Korngay, a department spokeswoman.

The other inmates in the overcrowded prison were confined to cells away from the riot area. The prison, with more than 1,800 inmates, or about 200 more than it was designed for, houses some of the state's most dangerous prisoners.

Ms. Korngay said prisoners took 24-inch batons from the guards and killed the six convicts. Their battered bodies were released to authorities Monday.

On Monday, prisoners hung four bedsheets signs out cellblock windows. One sheet said, "We want to talk to the FBI" and another said, "The state is not negotiating." Reporters were kept too far away to read the other two.

Negotiators said the prisoners could speak to the news media only after releasing a guard.

Officials also cut off electricity and water to the cellblock and refused to deliver food.

The prisoners were last fed around noon Sunday, but they may have stored some food in their lockers, Ms. Korngay said. They hadn't asked for food or medicine, Morris said.

Sunday's riot was the first since the prison opened in 1972, although other violence, including at least one hostage-taking that ended after 15 hours, has occurred over the years.

No room at the prison?

Law enforcement officers can make an arrest for a crime. A judge and jury can convict and give a prison sentence. But the criminal ends up with the last laugh.

It matters little how long a prison sentence may be. Convicts know they will be released in much less time.

Statistics indicate Florida convicts, on the average, serve just 22 percent of their sentences.

Senator Gary Siegel (R) of Altamonte Springs believes the reason is the lack of adequate prison facilities. He and Gov. Lawton Chiles attempted to push a 25 cent per pack cigarette tax through the legislature. The money would have gone a long way toward helping finance prison expansion. Their effort failed.

With additional space, both predicted the early release programs now used could be eliminated.

The governor has indicated he plans to call a special legislative session, possibly this spring, to bring the matter back for more discussion.

It's time the people started letting their feelings be known on this matter. Regardless of where the money comes from with which to build additional prisons and expand present facilities, the need is apparent.

People who have been victimized don't want to hear that criminals, possibly sentenced to 10 to 20 years for the crime, could be released in three to five years.

Overcrowding in prisons should not be used as an excuse for early releases.

Siegel, who is chairman of the Senate Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee, is aware of the problem and the need for more facilities.

What is needed now is support by other members of the Florida Legislature.

We urge that this problem be given serious consideration. Bring it up for discussion with friends and family. Ask others for opinions.

We believe the majority of people in Florida want convicts kept in jail to serve their entire terms and pay their debts to society.

Contact your local legislator, personally, by phone or by mail. Let your voice be heard.

Demand more prison space. Demand an end to early-release programs. Let us return to a state where crime indeed, does not pay.

Do what is fair

This is in regard to Shaq O'Neal of the Orlando Magic.
 Why fine O'Neal if he said he was hit in the groin, he was hit in the groin.
 It's getting so you can't defend yourself anymore.
 How would you like it if you couldn't retaliate or was fined for it?
 The way I see it, Shaq was fined because he had money, this is unfair.
 Maybe it's time to get out of this world but, on the other hand, when you die there is a rip-off somewhere.

America is in a spare-time crisis

I have just finished reading the Juliet Schor book that everyone was talking about a year ago. You may remember its title, "The Overworked American: The Unexpected Decline of Leisure." Like too many Americans these days who try to cram eight days worth of activities into the standard seven-day week, I find that I do not keep up with my reading as much as I would like.

Anyway, I expected that I would disagree with much of Schor's analysis, as she bends a mite too far to the political left to suit me. But the Harvard economist has brought squarely into a focus a national problem of considerable consequence.

Simply put, America is experiencing a spare-time crisis. This is borne out by a 1991 survey, sponsored by Hilton Hotels, which found that the average person has only 19 hours of free time per week, about seven hours fewer than most would prefer.

This spare-time "gap," if you will, has done much to damage the social fabric of this country. We invest enough time in our careers or relationships. We shortchange our children. Family and friends don't see us as often. We don't devote enough personal time to keeping body and mind in order.

The decline of leisure also has taken a toll in the workplace. Many industries report low morale. Stress-related workers' compensation claims have exploded in recent years. Work-related illnesses and injuries continue to mount. And, on an ominous note, workplace homicides have become the fastest-growing category of murder in America.

How to reverse these disquieting trends? Schor looks to the workplace itself. In her book, she notes that productivity has more than doubled since 1948, which means that American workers today produce the 1948 standard of living in less than half the time it took back then.

As a trade-off for this productivity gain, says Schor, the nation could have moved to a four-hour work day or a working year of six months or, perhaps, workers could have taken every other year off.

But none of this productivity "dividend," as Schor terms it, went to reducing the amount of time Americans spent on the job. She blames organized labor for this. She says that the union bosses consciously decided to bargain for higher wages and greater benefits rather than shorter hours.

If average American workers of the 1990s had their way, they would accept a little less pay for a little more time away from the job. The Hilton survey found that nearly seven of 10 workers would be willing to forfeit one or two days of pay for an extra day or two of free time.

Employers, by and large, are resistant to offering such an option. Over the last four decades, they have become accustomed to the standard 9-to-5, 40-hour work week.

Since the 40-hour work week very likely will remain the national standard for the foreseeable future, maybe employers and workers can strike a bargain on the standard work day.

Rather than five eight-hour work days -- the current norm -- why not go to a four-day work week with 10-hour days? That would leave workers a three-day weekend to themselves. It would be like they added a full day of leisure time.

Simply put, America is experiencing a spare-time crisis.

Pollution prevention best policy

Keeping clean waters clean and reducing or eliminating contaminants from those that aren't are two common-sense principles with wide public support. Both tenets are embodied in the landmark Clean Water Act written by Congress in 1972.

Since then the nation has made enormous strides against water pollution. One of the best testaments to that achievement is the contrast presented by the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. The virtual death of the Aral Sea and mounting revelations of fouled rivers there are part of a legacy of environmental neglect. The Germans may have spent $30 billion to make the water fit to drink in the former eastern sector of the country.

But here at home it's hardly time to rest on our laurels.

Some level of human-caused environmental impairment, from relatively modest to quite serious, now affects 166,000 miles of the nation's rivers, 3 million acres of its lakes and 8,000 square miles of its estuaries, says Robert Adler of the Natural Resources Defense Council. The Environmental Protection Agency reports that 20 percent of the nation's aquifers, or underground water reservoirs, that provide drinking water show some degree of contamination from man-made chemicals.

These challenges persist, in large part, because since the Clean Water Act was passed the main emphasis has been on treating water after it is polluted rather than on keeping it from becoming contaminated in the first place. With the act now before Congress for reauthorization, the opportunity is at hand to set the stage for another 20 years of progress in protecting the nation's water. The watchwords should be prevention, reducing the sources of pollution and recycling.

Stopping the discharge into any water source of the most toxic chemicals can be the next decisive step toward these goals. The targets of this action should be those toxins proven to "bioaccumulate," or to build up in the food chain. Many of these bad actors are dumped into water courses under permits being routinely issued by the EPA and state authorities. Some of the worst offenders are mercury, dioxin and HCB (hexachlorobenzene).

These substances, which persist in the environment and accumulate through the food chain, are largely responsible for the health warnings, advisories or bans on eating fish that are in place, according to EPA, on over 4,000 bodies of water in 46 states.

A zero-discharge rule governing such chemicals should be written into law.

Congress can also advance three other areas to put prevention ahead of costly cleanup or remediation.

Healthy, intact wetlands help prevent pollution. The National Academy of Sciences has been given the job of drafting a scientifically based definition of wetlands. Using the academy's conclusions, Congress can strengthen the Clean Water Act's wetlands protection provisions. This action can help staunch the current estimated annual loss of 300,000 wetland acres that filter pollutants out of water that cycles into drinking water supplies, buffer against floods and storms, and provide habitat vital for wildlife and commercial fisheries.

Farm fertilizer and pesticide runoff is now one of the largest contributors to contamination of the nation's waters, according to the EPA. In Pennsylvania, farmers are getting assistance and investing their own funds in curbing chemical runoff, particularly of nitrates and phosphorus. It's an approach that should be adopted nationally through the Clean Water Act to provide voluntary guidelines drafted by the states and the agricultural community where the water is clean, and mandatory ones where it is polluted.

The Superfund law's current provisions requiring public disclosure of chemical discharges into the nation's waters has worked wonders in spurring industry to reduce its sources of pollution. "We all agree that pollution prevention is the way to go," says John Mayhew, director of environmental programs for the Chemical Manufacturers Association. "The incentives approach (by public disclosure) works, at least in my industry." At present, however, the disclosure provisions cover only a limited range of chemicals and industries. In reforming Superfund to assure needed cleanup at reasonable cost, the entire disclosure program should be expanded.

The original impetus behind the Clean Water Act was to deal with problems that had gotten out of hand. The challenge ahead is to strengthen our national clean water policies by measures to prevent new problems from arising before they occur.

But here at home it's hardly time to rest on our laurels.

'Excuse me, I was just ...' Zzzzzzz?

A Sunday spread in the "Life and Times" section of the local newspaper recently was about sleep deprivation. The authors contend it's one of the most pervasive health problems in our country today.

"I felt like they were writing about me," a friend told me. "The irritability, the inability to stay awake during meetings."

She is an executive married to a bank vice-president and could buy all the sleep she'd need if it were for sale, but she can't manage enough between her long days and night meetings.

"The other night," she said, "I was driving, only about three blocks from my office, and I had to pull over, put my head down on the steering wheel and catch a few minutes of sleep. I absolutely couldn't keep my eyes open a moment longer."

I knew exactly what she was talking about, and will say no more lest I get mail from traffic safety commissioners and letter-to-the-editor writers who pounce on every sin as a reason to write another 95 theses with me in the Martin Luther role. But it was eerie reading that article, like seeing each of the symptoms of a disease listed on the health page and realizing you have them all. Sleep deprivation victims, you learn, are about as alert as a can of Spam most of the time and are responsible for most traffic fatalities and industrial accidents.

That's what the article said, along with another I read in a recent issue of Time magazine. Health researchers say that sleep deprivation is at least as important as drugs, alcohol and equipment failure in causing general mayhem. Our mental and physical abilities suffer, we're cranky and unable to give anyone our full attention. We're less creative, less accurate and, yes, dangerous.

Several of us baby boomers in town are talking about the article because we were unaware that someone changed the rules on us (perhaps we were napping) since we were growing up. When we were in high school, scientists were experimenting to see how little sleep a person could get by with, and promising a day when we'd eat all our meals in pills. One of my social studies teachers told us that if we'd just gradually reduce the amount of time we slept each night, soon we'd be getting along on three or four hours of sleep each night and our bodies would never know the difference. My gym teacher made us lie on the hard floor, cross our arms and legs, and imagine we were the limpest, dirtiest rag dolls in the world. She told us 15 minutes of this was equal to three hours of sleep a night, so we could have all that extra time for things like studying and practicing our headstands. Sleep was for weenies.

Now, after having devoted ourselves for our entire adult lives to trying to trick our bodies into needing less sleep so we could have it all and be all that we can be, health experts tell us we're killing ourselves. And here's the kicker: They say the typical adult needs eight hours of sleep a night! I haven't averaged eight hours of sleep since I entered first grade, they handed me my crayons and said, "Here's your little coloring book. Put it in your little briefcase, take it home, and bring it back in the morning all finished."

I am happy to report that I'm on the cutting edge of this new "Sleep is Good" trend. These same health experts say we can retard our damage by taking short naps. I could give lessons on pulling a short snoozer on my desktop after the office closes and before I start plowing through my daily New York Times. The janitor has learned to resist trying to give me CPR when he sees me head-down, and to come back later to vacuum my office.

The authors contend it's one of the most pervasive health problems in our country today.

Trains

time when transportation was measured in days instead of minutes. A romantic time of sleepers, dining cars and club cars.

The Pennsylvania-Central Florida Railroad, with tracks running over, around and through majestic mountains, slopes down from the cloud-shrouded peaks on the living room's south wall into the foyer and nearly spills out the front door.

A smaller replica of Sanford's Auto Train station is in transition to the north. East of that is the state of Florida criss-crossed with small engines, cars, buildings, automobiles, trees and people.

"I grew up with trains," Phillips said. "My dad had Lionel models as far back as I can remember. It seemed only natural."

For six decades Phillips, a parts driver for Longwood Lincoln-Mercury, has collected model trains in all shapes and sizes.

They have taken over his house and his life, he said.

"I don't want to come home at the end of the day to work with the trains," he said. "It is very relaxing."

Not only has the majority of the front portion of his home become a glittering fantasy world of railroading, but the garage, bedrooms and dining areas of the home are storage areas for trains and staging grounds for portable displays that he carries to train shows and competitions around the state.

Dozens of awards from 11 years of competition hang from the door frame east of the highest peaks of the mountainous areas of the permanent display.

"I've won quite a few," he said modestly.

Phillips said that he has always collected the trains. Until his marriage failed in 1975 (for reasons other than the trains, he explained) the models were packaged away except at Christmas. When the house became his alone, however, they stayed out 365 days a year.

A decorated Christmas tree towers over a corner of the railroad layout, just in case someone forgets that the big kid inside Phillips is celebrating Christmas all year long.

Phillips also has created models of airplanes and starships which hover over the tracks at their father's home.

"Their wives don't really like them out at their homes," he said in a near-whisper.

His granddaughter, only a year old, has already begun to show an acute interest in the trains.

"She's a little young yet," he said.

Phillips said that he has an extensive collection of engines, numbering over a hundred, though he said there are other collectors with many more.

"You'd be surprised," he said.

Engines range in cost from $15 for the tiny N-scale models to more than $100 for the larger HO-scale. Each car is priced separately beyond that.

"It's expensive as a collection," he said, "but it's not a bad hobby."

Phillips said he never wanted to work on the railroad.

"Surprisingly, that was never an ambition. I just wanted to have the model trains."

Phillips will be joining other model train enthusiasts this weekend at the Central Florida Fairgrounds for an exhibition and competition. The show will be on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

If you want more information on the show, call the fairgrounds at 407-295-3247.

Scott would not say when any official announcement could be expected on the Sears agreement. "I can say this," she said, "when Sears does sign up, it will be in the area we have already indicated in our site plan."

The plans call for a two level store with a total space of 133,278 square feet.

Barring any changes, it would be the fifth largest store in size at the mall. Dillard's, with 206,288 square feet of space would be the largest. Second in size would be Burdines at 180,000 square feet, J.C. Penney at 148,656 square feet, and Parisian at 140,000 square feet.

If the sixth major client is obtained, the store size allocated for it would be 88,766 square feet.

Each of the stores is identified on earlier plans as having two levels.

During Monday night's Sanford City Commission meeting, a request for city annexation of portions of Interstate-4, S.R. 48 and Rinehart Road was tabled. "We should have more information on this before we take any official action," commented Commissioner A.A. McClanahan.

The request was for voluntary annexation of right-of-way land along the three arteries. Attorneys for Melvin Simon and Associates had indicated the land was needed, "...in order to accommodate the legal requirement that all improvements for which the increment revenues will be expended, be located within the Community Redevelopment Area."

Commissioners Whitley Eckstein and McClanahan questioned police jurisdiction should the property be annexed. City Manager Bill Simmons said Acting Police Chief Ralph Russell had estimated the cost for such city coverage might amount to an additional $29,000 next year.

Eckstein suggested an interlocal agreement be discussed with Seminole County, to service the area with law enforcement.

The matter was tabled until the next regular meeting scheduled for Thursday.

This Thursday, at the P&Z meeting, the main focal point will be consideration of the preliminary plat for the mall.

The P&Z meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of the Sanford City Hall.

were made after the resignations were announced but added, "what are they going to do, tell somebody they can't resign from a board?"

The CEB members are unpaid and appointed by the commission. They act like a jury to determine if city residents and businesses are complying with city codes. Commissioner Harvey Smerilaon said the board takes the place of a city court and as in a court, he said a judge (board member) would have to excuse himself if he was a friend of a case participant.

The resignations centered on a case heard by CEB in March against the tree service owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hardy, Jr. on CR 427. Hardy's son, Hank, is a former Longwood mayor. The couple were cited by the city code enforcement officer for a number of violations including sign heights and placement, yard waste disposal, runoff into Lake Griffin and an allegation that a building on the site was occupied although a final inspection had not been done.

There was an implication the code enforcement officer was told to closely investigate the site as payback for Hardys' political enemies. Anderson alleged some past commission members worked out a "deal" with Hardy on annexing the property several years ago which resulted in the commission being found in violation of the "Sunshine Law." Mayor Paul Lovestrand and commissioner Steve Miller seemed to line up in the Hardy camp with Anderson saying Miller's truck was at the Hardys' "restaurant" every morning. "I can have coffee wherever I want," Miller replied to Anderson near the end of the meeting.

New CEB member Lynnette Dennis wrote a letter to the commission criticizing the handling of the Hardy case. She also cited inaccuracies in the citing of inappropriate codes in the case. The inaccuracies she cited are "but another example of the sloppy manner which business is conducted and is evidence of incompetence." Dennis, a new CEB appointee, had attended one session, the night the controversy erupted. She allegedly is a friend of the Hardys. Dennis complained she could not get copies of the meeting minutes or listen to tapes of it when she requested to do so. McFellin said she was allowed to listen to the tape after a copy was made.

Some residents from around Lake Griffin urged action.

Connie Knapp, 273 Lake Griffin Circle, Caseberry told the commission that board appointees should be objective and unbiased and not let personal friendship influence their decisions.

"I got the feeling the 'good old boy system' was at work," Knapp said of the CEB meeting. "The whole hearing seemed biased." She said Dennis seemed to twist the words of Baker and some of the citizens present. She also said court action may be taken if the dumping of yard waste, "which is causing the destruction of our lake" is not stopped.

A CEB member since 1986 and its chairwoman before her resignation, Cobin called the March meeting "a three-ring circus."

"I feel it was politically motivated and that someone is trying to use us as a puppet or tool, and I won't allow myself to be used in this way," she said.

Lovestrand criticized the handling of the AAA case by city employees which brought an angry retort from McFellin.

"I'm tired of your character assassinations of the people who work for the city," McFellin said. He said the criticism helped prompt Baker's resignation. Miller countered McFellin's attack on Lovestrand saying Baker had told him (Miller) two months ago that he was going to leave his city job.

Anderson also intimated that some of the exhibits in Dennis' letter had come from Lovestrand.

"That's inappropriate," the mayor stated.

Smerilaon said he thought it was inappropriate to bring the AAA case before the commission until the CEB has acted.

"I'm not going to pass any judgement based on one letter," Smerilaon said. "Not until I hear all the evidence. I think we should stay out of it and not interfere with the other boards."

Commissioner Fred Pearl did not attend Monday night's meeting.

Before reigning in the discussion, Lovestrand and his fellow commissioners agreed that city boards' meeting minutes should be completed within seven days of a meeting.

were arrested outside a clinic in Port Pierce on Friday.

Rick Blinn of Operation Rescue in Dallas who was overseeing the courtroom activities in Sanford, predicted more demonstrations in Melbourne and other Florida cities before the end of the week.

"For every person in jail, there will be three others willing to take their place" by breaking the injunction, Blinn said.

"There is no merit in the injunction. These people were not named in it. . . . The injunction is illegal, immoral and ungodly."

Orlando attorney Christopher J. Weiss, representing Operation Rescue and Operation Rescue America, asked Judge McGregor to release the jailed protesters on their own recognizance pending an appeal of his order to the 5th District Court of Appeal.

The judge refused. About 100 anti-abortion demonstrators had protested outside the Seminole County jail on Sunday before going to picket outside McGregors' Geneva home. The protest was quiet and violated no laws, said Sheriff Don Kallinger.

Jewett compared the Florida activities to those last year in Houston where he and others were jailed for 19 days.

fire chief in the area of college degree requirements. It passed on a four to one vote, with Mayor Bettye Smith objecting.

"I am sticking by my earlier feeling that the city should not lower the standards for these important posts," she commented.

Setting qualifications for the positions has been the responsibility of the Civil Service Board. The commission, on a split vote, had requested the board lower the college requirements, but the request failed to pass.

Several commissioners then started a move to take the positions from the board's control so the commission could change the requirements.

City Attorney Bill Colbert determined that the change in jurisdiction would require at least a four to one vote by the commission.

It was brought up for a vote at the commission meeting three weeks ago, but was tabled due to Commissioner A.A. McClanahan's absence.

City Commissioner Lon Howell had previously announced his intentions were to change the requirements to allow for Russell's elevation to the top job, filling a position that has been open since the resignation of former Chief Steve Harriet on Dec. 31.

Howell was unable to attend any of the commission's workshop meeting, and only a portion of the regular meeting last night, due to personal matters. He was on hand briefly however, and requested that the two ordinances be presented at the start of the meeting.

According to the ordinance changing the requirements, rather than a four year college or university degree and a minimum of five years police experience, the police chief position could also be filled by a person with an Associate of Arts (AA) or Associate of Science (AS) degree in criminology and a minimum of ten years command level experience.

Requirements for the fire chief job, presently calling for a four year degree in Fire Science or related fields and five years experience in firefighting and rescue, could also be filled by a person with an AA or AS degree in Fire Science and a minimum of ten years command level experience in firefighting/rescue operations.

Both ordinances are scheduled to be brought up for second reading and public hearing during the next regular meeting of the city commission, on April 26.

Upon their expected approval, Howell said he planned to immediately call for the city to officially hire Russell as chief.

Russell, a police captain, has been serving as acting police chief since Jan. 1.

do with their three-year-old requirement that all unincorporated point-of-sale signs be lowered to 15 feet or less by December 1993. By the time that date neared, no businessmen in the county had voluntarily complied. Only those required to obtain a building permit to make some structural change to the sign were forced to comply.

Fearing an unmanageable onslaught of requests for variances from the deadline, commissioner Larry Furlong suggested the deadline be ignored until commissioners decided what to do next.

Tuesday, four commissioners decided to set the deadline back a year to allow CALNO to craft a countywide ordinance. Only commissioner Bob Sturm supported the existing requirement.

"Why prolong the agony?" asked Sturm. "Even after meeting together, the city may not agree or the county may not agree."

Commissioners were unanimous in their resolve to begin cracking down on businessmen, notably car dealerships, that display numerous American flags. The county now restricts businesses to three government flags - federal, state or local.

County Attorney Bob McMillan said recent court decisions have considered such provisions as unconstitutional since they addressed flag content.

Commissioners quickly agreed that they would allow a minimum of four flags of some maximum size, granting larger flags as the number decreased.

Dutch cutting their generous welfare program

By JON HENLEY
Associated Press Writer

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — After decades of a generous welfare system that cares for the old, sick, jobless and, some say, the lazy, even its supporters realize something has gone wrong.

Last year, for every 100 people who were working, another 86.5 received some form of benefit. That was double the number of 20 years ago.

"Far too many people are on benefits and nowhere near enough are working," said Frans Leense, parliamentary vice chairman of the Socialist Party. "It's a sheer annihilation of human and economic potential."

This year, the government finally tackled the most notorious cash-eater, the $12.2 billion-a-year Unsuitability for Work Act, known as WAO by its initials.

Under its provisions, more than 900,000 people declared unfit to work — one-sixth of the work force — receive up to 70 percent of their last salaries. Many collect WAO payments until they reach retirement age and get state pensions.

The number of people on WAO has trebled since the early 1970s as companies rid of workers. Many physically fit people conspired with employers to qualify.

Abuse of the WAO program is a prime component of skyrocketing welfare fraud, which government studies indicate could reach 70 percent. The fact that Leense and other Socialists now back reform illustrates the depth of concern.

Until recently the welfare system was sacrosanct, a proud measure of Dutch humanity and prosperity. Creeping recession and a declining industrial output have changed that.

Like several other nations in northern Europe, Holland evolved a cradle-to-grave welfare system that now consumes nearly one-third of its gross domestic product.

In 1991, the total social services bill for a nation of just over 15 million was $83.5 billion, or about $5,600 per capita.

By comparison, total U.S. welfare and Social Security spending that year was $690 billion, about $2,875 per person.

With the average tax burden near 50 percent, there is increasing support for welfare reform.

"It makes me mad that I pay all that tax and then see people sitting around in cafes all day long," said Mieke de Waard, a 28-year-old real estate agent in Amsterdam.

Welfare programs in such countries as the Netherlands, Germany, Sweden and Denmark include sick pay, unemployment benefits, subsidized medical insurance, old age and disability pensions and child-rearing subsidies.

In Sweden, a government commission has proposed a 113-point plan of welfare cutbacks to save the country from its worst financial crisis.

Criticism of the Dutch system's generosity began in the 1980s as unemployment soared. The rising bill for benefits began to push up labor costs, provoking fears that Dutch products would be priced out of world markets.

"We accept completely that you can't go on giving more and more people welfare while the working population gets smaller and smaller," said Ton van der Lee, policy coordinator of the opposition Green Left party.

Premier Ruud Lubbers' center-left coalition agreed in February to a program intended to trim about $1.5 billion a year from WAO.

It includes financial penalties for companies that use the system as a dumping ground for employees. Benefits will be frozen for those already on the rolls, and payments to new recipients will decline with time.

"Basically, the younger you are, the less time you'll stay on the top rate of benefit," said Toine Asselbergs, spokesman for the Social Affairs and Employment Ministry.

Els Matthesen, a housewife whose husband has received disability benefits since suffering a stroke 12 years ago, said the government was probably right to get tougher on WAO.

"Clearly, we can't afford it," she said, "but I think it's important that people who really need help keep getting it."

There is another side, too: Once in WAO, it can be hard to get out.

"I've been trying for four years to get reclassified as fit for work," said Jose Kok, a 38-year-old former nurse, who entered the program in 1987 because of stress from a difficult divorce.

A Sanford "Classic" Returns

Like an old friend, or a long lost relative, a Sanford "Classic" has returned.

After being closed for nearly 7 years, Dick and Vivian Buck decided it was time to reopen their Restaurant. The seafood buffet is a popular feature at Buck's. Those of us who are long time area residents are familiar with the "all-you-care-to-eat" high quality seafood selections at the buffet. New to the area? Give yourself a treat-come in Thursday, Friday and Saturday for dinner (5:00 PM - 9:00 PM). Buck's has the look and the relaxed atmosphere of a quaint country inn, without the high prices of the newer "trendy" restaurants.

Menu selections at Buck's are not limited to seafood. Steaks and bar-b-que baby back ribs are offered among the menu choices. The friendly staff can offer help if you have trouble making up your mind; the staff are courteous and customer oriented, to make your visit pleasant.

VISIT BUCK'S FOR LUNCH
Kick the fast food habit, it's expensive and certainly not nutritious. (If you are looking for a relaxed lunch hour; do you really want to stand in line at a burger or sub shop?) Buck's restaurant now serves lunch Tuesday through Friday 11:30-2:00 pm. The lunch menu features "all-you-care-to-eat" Soup & Salad bar - only 83.95. Specialty sandwiches and Salads plus a Daily Special! If you still have room, try Buck's homemade desserts, you'll trot back to work with a smile on your face!

If you have a special occasion, let us help! Call ahead 323-0983, Dick and Vivian would love to help you with any "special surprises". Buck's also has take out service available.

Thursday nights are "all-you-care-to-eat" Catfish night. For a low $6.95 you can have your fill of delicious catfish.

Come see us at Buck's Restaurant, corner of Sanford Ave. and 13th St., there is plenty of parking and needless to say plenty of good food.

Pleas for peace as Rodney King jury continues deliberations

By JAMES ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles was a city on edge today as a federal jury weighed the fate of four policemen in the Rodney King beating.

Hundreds of National Guardsmen reported to staging areas Monday to await the verdict. Police put more officers on the street. Civil rights leaders and the mayor pleaded for peace. And rumors of a verdict swept the city.

A woman ran breathless into a West Hollywood restaurant, screaming, "They're not guilty!" An advertising firm sent its employees home early. A Bakersfield radio station broadcast what it called an unconfirmed report of a verdict.

The jury was to begin its fourth day of deliberations today. On Monday, the jurors asked U.S. District Judge John G. Davies if they could take their trial notes with them back to the hotel where they were sequestered. He said no.

Sgt. Stacey Koon, Officers Laurence Powell and Theodore Briseno and former Officer Timothy Wind are accused of depriving King of his civil rights "by beating, kicking and shocking with a stun gun in a beating March 3, 1991, that was videotaped by an onlooker. They could get up to 10 years in prison.

Riots broke out last spring after the officers were acquitted of most charges in a state trial.

About 800 National Guardsmen reported to area armories Monday to await the verdict. At least 5,000 more troops were available, and U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno approved up to $1 million in federal funds for police overtime.

The Police Department put 200 extra officers on the streets at all times. Police were criticized last spring for their slow response to the riots, which killed 54 people and caused more than $1 billion in damage.

Police reported about 50 calls from people who heard the rumors Monday.

"We got one call all the way from London. Even the New York Police Department called," police spokesman Steve Weselink said.

The Rev. Benjamin Chavis, the newly elected leader of the NAACP, worried that the buildup could backfire.

"Law enforcement officials have the responsibility to keep order," he said. "But what I'm saying is, I want to make sure we don't go too far and wind up doing something that is provocative."

Civil rights leaders urged residents to focus their energy on the reasons behind those riots.

"If these officers go to jail or these officers are acquitted, it wouldn't make bread any cheaper for single mothers," said Shannon F. Reeves, Western region director of the NAACP. "There are bigger problems for this nation that we must come together on."

Mayor Tom Bradley appealed for calm and assured schoolchildren they would be safe. During a visit to Manchester Elementary School, he had youngsters repeat after him: "I don't believe we're going to have another riot."

In South Central Los Angeles, where last year's trouble began, some people agreed.

As Barnes and others spoke, a police helicopter flew overhead.

"The people are calm, but there's a little fear," Errasmo Mercado, 31, said in Spanish. "We lost everything (last year) — jobs, food."

11 amendments in works for 1994 Florida ballot

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Groups who want to change the Florida Constitution have proposed amendments as diverse as boosting the state's minimum wage to limiting net fishing.

Two amendments seek to limit the civil rights protections some communities have extended to gays.

One of several proposals would give cities more taxing authority and another would replace appointed utility regulators with elected regulators. Other measures would ban probation or parole for felons, allow deputy sheriffs to collectively bargain, and give minor parties equal access to the ballot.

In addition to those measures, a proposal pending since 1989 would require lawmakers to write a budget for education before turning to the fiscal needs of the rest of state government. And a 1991 measure would ban abortion.

To get on the ballot, petition organizers must collect signatures from 8 percent of voters, based on the turnout from the last statewide election. And to make sure there is statewide interest in the measure, the 8 percent threshold must be met in at least 10 of the state's 23 congressional districts.

Last year, when 363,898 valid signatures were required to put an issue before voters, only two of 10 petitions drives reached the goal. Both were approved by voters. One imposed a 3 percent cap on residential tax assessments and the other imposed an eight-year limit on the terms of Florida's state and federal politicians.

This year, because of high voter turnout last November, the number of signatures needed has jumped to 429,428. That means petition leaders must collect about 600,000 names to be certain they have enough valid ones.

Once 10 percent of the signatures needed to get on the ballot are collected, the state Supreme Court will review a proposed amendment to make sure it passes legal muster.

Florida is one of 22 states that allow citizen initiatives.

Some of the organizations pushing petitions have tried to get the Legislature to enact the same measures — or at least to get it to put the proposals on the ballot. But others are bypassing the Legislature altogether.

"It's a signal of increasing dissatisfaction with the existing system," said David Conrad, an expert in voter behavior at the University of Florida.

"It's good to have an outlet," said Curtis Gans, director of the Washington-based Committee for Study of the American Electorate. "But it is bad for it to dominate or supersede the legislative process."

Gans said he thinks there should be a method of last resort when lawmakers fail to act on pressing issues.

The problem, as Gans and other critics see it, is citizen initiatives not being used to press ideological causes.

Those who put down citizen initiatives seem to have a "holier-than-thou" attitude about the democratic process, according to David Caton of Tampa, who is leading one of the two statewide petition drives aimed at halting laws to stop anti-gay discrimination.

"Our founding fathers said we should have the right to petition the government about grievances," he said. "It's really the check and balance people have over a totalitarian-leaning government."

Health plan could burden families

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A liberal policy group today cautioned health planners that raising insurance premiums or forcing people to pay more costs out of pocket would put extra burdens on low- and middle-income families.

The Economic Policy Institute released a new study showing that health costs already fall hardest on those families.

Two common ways of paying for health care — out-of-pocket spending and insurance premiums — are both "very regressive," absorbing a greater share of income from families at the bottom of the scale, it said.

Taxpayer-funded expenditures such as Medicare and Medicaid, on the other hand, are progressive, meaning that the wealthy bear more of their costs, it said.

The Clinton administration is preparing a major health care plan it hopes to send Congress next month that would provide universal coverage and bring costs under control, its advisers have been considering ways to make consumers more cost-conscious, possibly by having them bear more of the out-of-pocket costs for expensive health coverage.

But Edith Rasell, a doctor-turned-health economist who co-authored the institute's study, said the administration will have to find ways to offset the regressivity of any such changes, or risk adding to the burden.

"I don't think they've really focused on this issue," she said.

The health system could be made fairer "by reducing out-of-pocket spending and premiums and by raising the portion of health care financed through the least regressive taxes," the institute's study said.

The report, drawing on data from a 1987 federal health survey, found that low-income families spent more than 20 percent of their income on health care, while families with the highest incomes spent just 10 percent. The average family spent 15 percent.

"Equity in health care financing has been a neglected consideration," according to the institute study, "The Impact of Health Care Financing on Family Budgets."

"As potential solutions to the health care crisis are considered, improving equity in the distribution of health care spending should be an important goal," it said.

The report said families with incomes between $6,240 and $10,955 spent $1,756 on health care in 1987, on average, or 20.5 percent of their income. Those with incomes above $92,912 spent $13,234, or 10.2 percent.

The figures include money spent out of pocket, health insurance premiums and the share of tax dollars that went for health care.

The lower-income group spent 8.5 percent of its income on out-of-pocket costs, 7.9 percent on insurance premiums and 4.1 percent on taxes for public programs; the wealthy, by contrast, spent 1 percent, 3 percent and 7.3 percent, respectively.

For youngest White House staffers, work is heady

By NITA LELYVELD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Three people who work in the White House were born in a place called Hope: the president, the chief of staff and 19-year-old Chad Griffin.

Griffin is the youngest of a very young White House staff, in which dozens of people are 20-something, and people in their 40s at times seem like elder statesmen.

In the months since President Clinton took office, the fresh-faced new crew has stirred up its surroundings, from its fashion sense to its sense of humor. The young men sport bright, cartoon-like ties, the women wear short skirts, and hallway conversations are college-dorm intimate — full of nicknames and inside jokes.

According to Deputy Press Secretary Lorraine Voles, 63 people in the White House staff of about 450 are 24 and under. Even the 46-year-old president has noticed.

"I've got a Cabinet that looks like America and a staff that looks like a Head Start program," Clinton quipped at the annual Gridiron dinner, after Republican Sen. Bob Dole said of the White House staff: "Chelsea's got to have someone to play with."

In the lower press office, where Griffin works, the atmosphere sometimes verges on giddy. Staffers use the press operation's public address system not just for official announcements but to ham it up and rib each other publicly.

"Chad just got a new haircut," was one recent proclamation. "Jeremy's got a very important lunch date," was another.

But the earnestness of the young staff runs deep, too.

"We were all in awe when we first got there, and we still are in a way," says 24-year-old Kathy McKiernan, a press assistant who had never even laid eyes on the White House before it became her new office on Inauguration Day.

The young people have no problem keeping up with their workaholic big boss, and they never complain, colleagues say.

"There's definitely a sense of enthusiasm around which I think we all benefit from, and which is really nice," said Voles. "They work really hard and they're very productive, but they're also fun — which is important when you work the kind of hours we work."

Most of the young workers who now flash their passes at the White House gates each morning put their lives on hold months ago to join the Clinton campaign.

Jeremy Gaines, a 22-year-old from Los Angeles, sneaked onto a press charter plane headed for Little Rock, Ark., hoping there would be a job for him when he got there.

McKiernan, of Framingham, Mass., left her job as a reporter, arrived in Arkansas suitcases in hand, and went straight to Clinton headquarters, where she was answering phones within minutes.

Griffin put in countless hours as a volunteer in Little Rock last summer, and then dropped out of Ouachita Baptist University in Arkadelphia, Ark., where he grew up, to follow the president to Washington.

The friendships between staffers are strong, Gaines said. "It's like we were all freshman the same minute. We've been through a lot together," he said.

They speak of the president with something like reverence, and cherish the memories of the times they've made eye contact.

"It was about three weeks ago and I saw him in the hall and I said ... 'Good morning, Governor,'" Griffin said in his gentle Southern twang. "Then I realized what I had said and I corrected myself. He didn't take offense, I think."

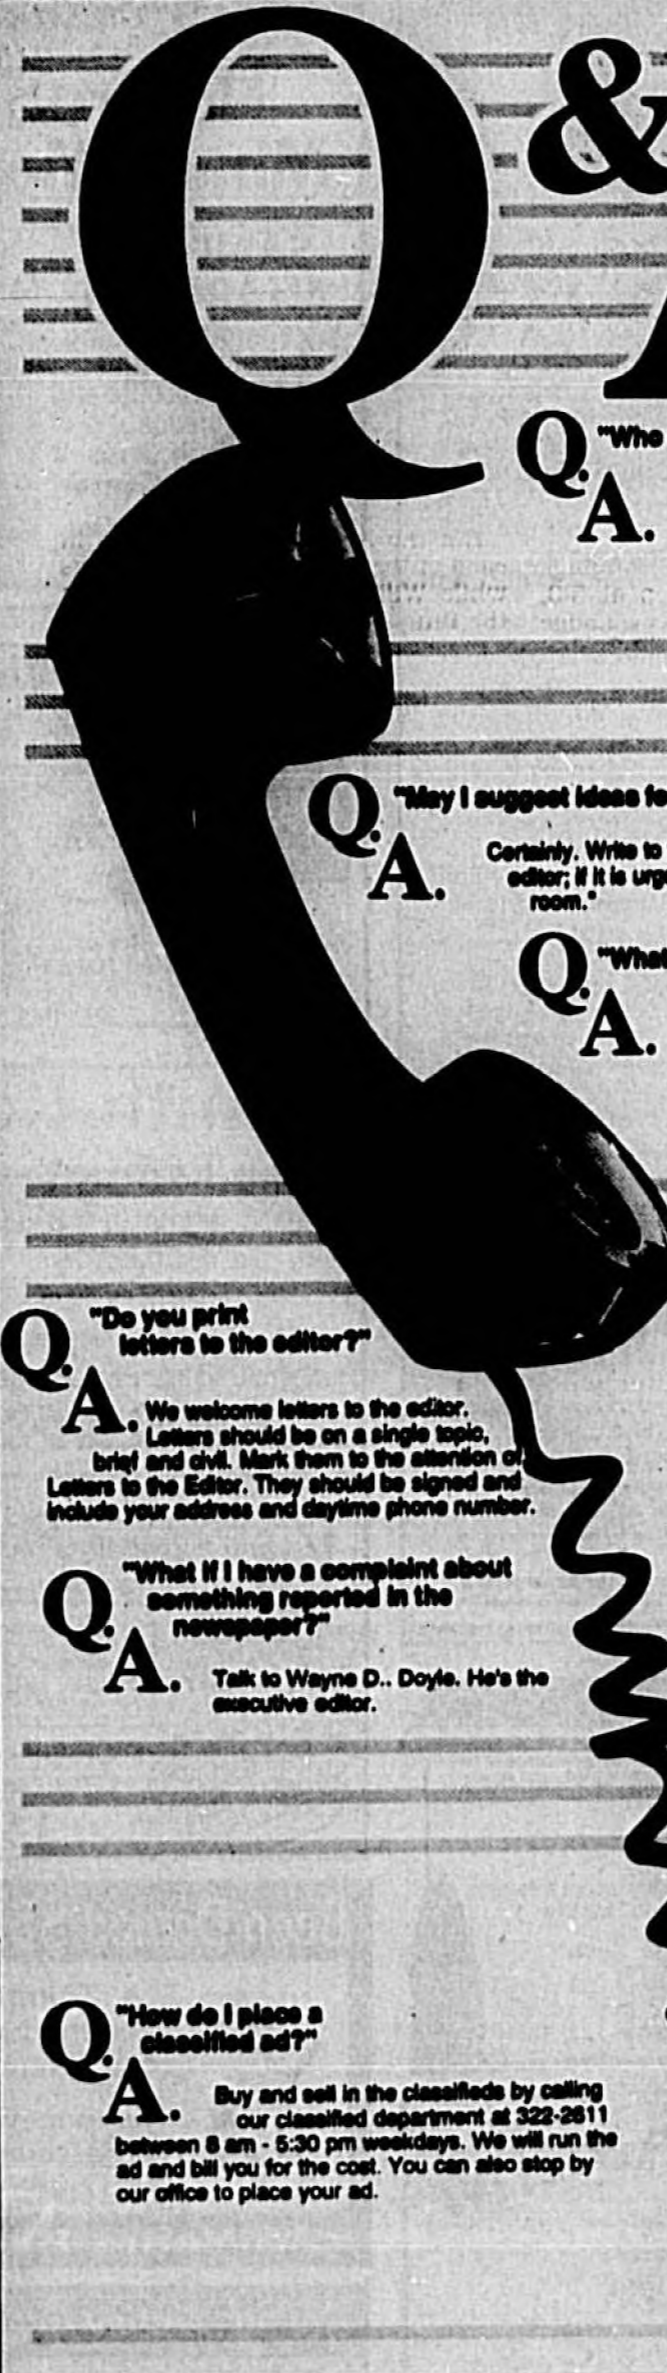

Many of the fresh-out-of-school young aides work in press and communications. They put in long hours and do a lot of grunt work — from answering phones to checking facts to making copies of press releases. The pay is in the low- to mid-$20,000s.

Clinton doesn't know many of the young aides personally, not even Griffin. But that doesn't matter, Griffin said. Just being near the president, and a small part of history, is enough.

One day recently, Griffin stood in the hall outside the Oval Office with Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; Robert F. Kennedy Jr. and Jean Kennedy Smith, who was about to be nominated as ambassador to Ireland.

"I was just standing there waiting to go in, and Mack (chief of staff Mack McLarty) walked up, and he said, 'Isn't it hard to believe where we are?'" Griffin said.

"I told him, 'Sometime you just have to stop, take a deep breath, and say, 'Wow, I'm really here.'"

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Mother-daughter lead Mice

CASSELBERRY — The mother-daughter duo of Connie Thomas and Theresa Walburger combined on a two-hitter as the Paddy McGee "Mice" pounded the Bruisers 15-0 in five innings in Seminole County Recreation Department Women's Monday Night Class C Slowpitch Softball League action at Red Bug Lake Park.

Thomas went the first four innings and allowed one hit.

Contributing offensively for the Mice were Hiedi Greene (3-for-3, two RBI), Thomas (two singles, two RBI), Walburger (home run, two runs, four RBI), Jackie Janowiak (two runs, two RBI) and Lori Lingo (double, two RBI).

The Mice (5-1) remain tied for first place with Most Wanted. The two teams will play for sole possession of first next week at 6:30 p.m.

AROUND THE STATE

NFL looks at Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE — National Football League officials took a whirlwind, whirllybird tour of Jacksonville Monday to help them decide if the city will get a coveted expansion franchise.

Jacksonville was the final stop for the team of NFL expansion officials, who earlier visited Baltimore, St. Louis, Charlotte and Memphis.

The NFL is expected to announce its two expansion cities this fall.

Heat burn Bucks

MIAMI — The shooting of Glen Rice and Brian Shaw helped Miami keep its slim playoff hopes alive by beating Milwaukee 108-85.

Rice scored 25 points and hit three 3-pointers, while Shaw had four 3-pointers and scored 16.

With seven games remaining, Miami is 2½ games behind eighth-place Indiana. The top eight teams make the playoffs.

AROUND THE NATION

Marlins lose on road

SAN FRANCISCO — Barry Bonds homered in his first plate appearance at Candlestick Park before leaving in the sixth inning with a leg injury, and the San Francisco Giants went on for a 4-3 victory in 11 innings over the Florida Marlins in the home opener on Monday.

Bonds, who got his 1992 National League MVP award from godfather Willie Mays, thrilled a sellout crowd at Candlestick Park when he lofted a pitch from Chris Hammond over the right-field wall. The solo shot in the second gave the Giants a 1-0 lead, and two batters later Mike Benjamin hit a two-run homer.

Darrin Lewis' RBI single in the 11th inning sent the capacity crowd home happy.

Benito Santiago tied the score 3-3 in the sixth with the first homer in Marlins' history. With two outs, Trevor Wilson walked Jeff Conine and gave up a run-scoring double to Orestes Destrade before Santiago homered to left.

Lake Howell edges Dr. Phillips

From Staff Reports

APOPKA — Getting their act together, The Lake Howell High Silver Hawks continued to inch their way into the elite of Central Florida baseball Monday, edging Orlando power Dr. Phillips 6-5 in the opening round of the City of Apopka Invitational Tournament at Apopka High School.

Joel Read ripped a big RBI double to highlight a four-run sixth inning and Chris Tolliver made a running catch in deep center field with the tying run on base to end the game as Lake Howell improved to 10-7 on the season.

"That catch saved the game," said Lake Howell head coach Blin to Benjamin. "It was just super. The tying run would have scored easily if he (Tolliver) doesn't make that catch."

The victory by the Silver Hawks will advance them to a winners bracket game against Wellington High School, a 4A program from West Palm Beach, Wednesday morning, starting at 11:30 a.m.

Brian Gomes was the beneficiary of Tolliver's catch. The senior lefthander scattered six hits in going the distance and evened his record at 3-3 on the season.

Senior second baseman Paul Giambalvo paced a nine-hit Lake Howell attack by going two-for-three with a triple and an RBI. Junior Rich DiToro also had a multiple hit game, going two-for-two.

Also contributing for the Silver Hawks were Read, who went one-for-three, including a double, scored one run and drove in another. Junior catcher Mike Hernandez also doubled. Senior Rob Stanton and junior Mike Ganci both went one-for-two and scored one run and senior Monty Mathias was one-for-three with an RBI.

Strong pitching keys A's, Cards

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Outstanding pitching highlighted play in Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League action Monday.

Robert Randall and Terrell Jackson combined on a one-hitter and the undefeated Knights of Columbus Cardinals came up with 10 runs in the fifth inning to defeat the Korg USA Expos 16-0 and Cedric Williams scattered five hits and drove in two runs as the Woodmen of the World A's won their first game of the season, 8-4, over the R.E. Templeton Co., Inc. Blue Jays.

The National Division standings have the Cardinals on top at 5-0. They are trailed by the Moose Lodge Pirates (2-1-1), the Cubs (2-2) and the Expos (2-2-1). The Cubs are still looking for a sponsor.

In the American Division, the Kiwanis Club Orioles are in first place with a 3-1 mark. The Rotary Club Royals are second at 2-2 while the A's and Blue Jays are both 1-4.

Wednesday's schedule will have the Cubs playing the Pirates inside Sanford Memorial Stadium and the Royals taking on the Orioles on Zinn Beck Field. Both games will start at 5:45 p.m.

Saturday, in the stadium, the Cubs will face the Royals at 9 a.m. and the Cardinals will battle the Orioles at 11 a.m. On Zinn Beck, the Pirates will tackle the Blue Jays at 9 a.m. and the Expos will welcome the A's at 11 a.m.

On Zinn Beck Field, two fielders choice's and a throwing error led to five first inning runs and Randall, who has now thrown two one-hitters in two starts, allowed only an infield single to Bart Counts in the first inning, walked three and struck out six in four innings of work as the Cardinals blanked the Expos. Jackson struck out three in the fifth to end the game.

The defending City Champions big fifth was highlighted by triples from Jackson and Donnie Hinson and a double by Ivory Peterson.

KoIC was led by Jackson (triple, single, two runs, four RBI), Hinson (triple, two runs, RBI), Peterson (double, run, two RBI), Randall (single, two runs, RBI), Wesley Winkle (single, two RBI), Charlie McLain, Walter Gaines and Nicholas Barnes (one run and one RBI each), Richard Badger and Lloyd Dixon (two runs each) and Cornell Daniels and Danny Harrison (one run each).

The A's-Blue Jays battle was very exciting as the A's led 4-3 after one inning and 6-4 after two innings.

But the A's added single runs in each of the third and fourth innings while Williams was smacking around the Blue Jays, retiring eight men in a row at one time.

Doing the damage for the A's were Greg Stafford (double, run, RBI), Williams (single, run, two RBI), Brett Witte (single, two runs, RBI), Terrance McQueen (single, run, RBI), Eric Bond (single, run), Mike Laurence (RBI) and Shawn Eason and Lin Van (one run each).

Providing the offense for the Blue Jays were Trelis Smith (double, two singles, two runs), Fabian McKinney (single, two RBI), Aaron Knight (single, RBI), Richard Reddicks (RBI) and Steven Sperry and Adrian Knight (one run each).

UCF plans move to NCAA Division I-A in 1996

By Bill Daugherty
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Central Florida, which began its football program from scratch 14 years ago, announced plans Monday to move up to the NCAA Division I-A level in 1996.

"Just as a great city needs a great university, a big-league city like Orlando should have a big-league college football program," school president John Hitt said in making the announcement at the Florida Citrus Bowl, UCF's home field.

The decision to upgrade from Division I-AA, where the Knights have competed since 1980, was based on a recommendation from a campus committee studying the school's overall athletic program.

In addition, Hitt said the committee recommended enhancements be made to women's sports and other men's sports, including increased coaching staffs and more scholarships for both men's and women's sports at UCF. This recommendation is consistent with both UCF's long-term goals and those of the UCF athletic department, the reports noted.

To accomplish the football divisional change and athletic program enhancements, the athletic budget will have to be increased from the current $3.9 million to nearly $5.9 million for the 1996-97 academic year.

Hitt said the committee's research indicated the increased expenditures will be more than offset by revenue generated by sources such as increased donations, road-game guarantees, ticket sales, television and merchandise sales. The study does not anticipate any increases in the student athletic fee.

"We expect to reap a number of benefits by making the move to major college football," said Hitt. "Historically, many elements of the community first became involved with a university through quality intercollegiate athletic programs and then expand the involvement into other areas of the university."

In addition to increased revenues, the elevation of the football program is expected to result in greater national visibility for the university and Central Florida, increased interest and camaraderie among the student body, and easier recruitment of student-athletes and students in general.

Local merchants should also benefit financially through increased fan support at athletic events and therefore the support of the business community, including the major attractions, should increase dramatically.

One of the first steps in making the transition will be the hiring of a new athletic director with the background and skills necessary to take the athletic program to the next level. Gene McDowell, currently athletic director as well as football coach, will relinquish his administrative duties to concentrate solely on football the football program.

One of UCF's stated goals is to become America's leading Partnership University, a theme that also will be at the heart of the classification change.

"This change isn't something that will just happen; we will have to earn it," Hitt said. "One of the key requirements in moving up to Division I-A is for us to reach an average attendance of 17,000 per game prior to 1998.

"For this to happen, we will need support from all of UCF's friends, from the student body and the campus community to the alumni, community leaders and business leaders throughout Central Florida."

Orlando mayor Glenda Hood said the city is solidly behind UCF's move into big-time college football.

Writers Association State Top 10 Baseball Poll for the first time in over a year and people may have been whispering that the Tribe was having troubles and may be ripe for the picking.

But after winning three of four games on the road, including an important district contest at Leesburg and two victories over state ranked teams, and finishing second in the Zephyrhills Invitational Tournament last week, Seminole leaped back into the top 10 at No. 7 and may be ready to start a strong run at defending its Class 3A State Championship.

The main reason for the move back into the rankings was wins over Tallahassee-Florida High School, 16-3 and ranked No. 4 in Class 2A; and Tallahassee-McClay High School, 14-3 and ranked No. 1 in Class 1A, and a tough loss to Florida High in the tournament finals.

The Tribe, now 16-4 on the season, picked up 52 votes in the Class 3A voting, just three votes out of sixth and 17 out of fifth place. Tampa Jesuit (18-1) is the 3A leader.

Despite a strong showing in the Sarasota Tournament, three easy victories before losing to the host team in the finals, the Lake Brantley Patriots did not receive the same recognition from the voters as they remained

Today at Roy Holler Field, the Blue Jays will battle the Dodgers at 6:45 p.m.

The Cubs scored a run in the first inning and two in the second inning and the Royals countered with two runs in the bottom of the first inning to make the score 3-2 before Aaron Richardson lined his one-out triple and scored on an error in the fifth inning to give the Cubs a 4-2 advantage.

The Royals came back with a run in the bottom of the sixth, but Daniels slammed the door shut with a pair of strikeouts to end the game.

Doing the damage for the Cubs were Freddie Hawkins (two singles, RBI), Richardson (triple, run) and Daniels, Jonathan Justice and Robert Woodward (one run scored each).

Providing the offense for the Royals were Alex Anderson (double, single, run, RBI), Clyde Stephens (double, run, RBI), Nick Johnson (RBI) and Dwayne Tillman (run).

The Red Sox wasted no time in collecting revenge on the defending City Champions, erasing a 1-0 deficit with an eight run bottom of the first inning. The Sox added four in the second and six in the third to close out the game early.

Levi Raines (two doubles, two runs, two RBI), T.J. Thompson (double, single, three runs, two RBI), Adam Frank (triple, two RBI), Jimmy Franklin (double, three runs, two RBI), Randy Ford (double, two runs), Jason Rye (single, run, two RBI), Nick Johnson (single, run, RBI), Bud Bennett (three runs) and Justin Erickson (run) paced the Sox.

The Expos were led by Jay Cornell (double, single, two RBI), Michael White (single, run, RBI), Donovan Daniels (single) and Matthew Hicks (run).

NOTICE OF CODE ENFORCEMENT BOARD PROCEEDINGS
TO: Darryl & Maryl Rusch (or the owner) of the following described property:
Lot 31 Hidden Lake PH 3 Unit 4 PB 28 PGS 1 & 2
129 Waz Myrtle Drive, Sanford, Florida
RE: Case No. 92-44
The Sanford Code Enforcement Board was created by Sanford City Code, Ordinance 1886, as amended, as authorized by Chapter 162, Florida Statutes. The purpose of this Board is to facilitate the enforcement of the codes and ordinances in force in the City of Sanford. You have been charged with violating the following Code on your property: Chapter 11, sec. 11-27 and Chapter 4, sec. 4-1.1 (101.2.1.a) by allowing high growth to develop upon the premises in violation of the code. You are hereby notified that a Public Hearing will be conducted in the above-styled case by the Sanford Code Enforcement Board of the City of Sanford on the 11th day of May, 1993, at 7:00 p.m. in the City Commission Chambers, Room 117, Sanford City Hall, 268 N. Park Avenue, Sanford, Florida, concerning the above-styled violation. The Board will receive testimony and evidence of said hearing and shall make findings of fact and conclusions of law.
You are hereby ordered to appear before the Board at the hearing to answer the charges and present your side of the case. You have the right to obtain an attorney, at your own expense, to represent you before the Board. You have the right to call witnesses on your behalf as well as to cross-examine all other witnesses. If you do not appear, the Board may proceed without you. Should the Board determine that a violation exists, it has the power to issue orders requiring you to bring the violation into compliance, including the power to levy fines and create a lien on your property up to $250.00 for each day the violation continues past the date set for compliance by the Board's Order.
If the violation is not corrected by the time of the hearing or if, prior to the hearing, you come into compliance with the above-styled code violation but the violation recurs prior to the Public Hearing, the hearing will be held on the allegations against you.
If you have questions concerning this matter, please contact the Building Department at (407) 326-2666. SHOULD YOU DECIDE TO APPEAL ANY MATTER CONSIDERED AT THE ABOVE HEARING, YOU MAY NEED A VERBATIM RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS, TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE WHICH RECORD IS NOT PROVIDED BY THE CITY OF SANFORD (P.S. 24-0160).

PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES NEEDING ASSISTANCE TO PARTICIPATE IN ANY OF THESE PROCEEDINGS SHOULD CONTACT THE PERSONNEL OFFICE ADA COORDINATOR AT 326-6424 48 HOURS IN ADVANCE OF THE MEETING.

Counseling treats personal depression

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any cure for depression?
DEAR READER: Certain forms of depression, such as those associated with personal catastrophes (death and divorce, for example) can be treated with counseling.

Other forms that are not associated with a specific life event may be due to an imbalance of chemicals within the brain. Such cases are often helped by antidepressant drugs, such as Prozac and Desyrel, that appear to return the balance to normal.

These drugs, and others like them, should be administered by a psychiatrist, in my opinion. Thus, many types of depression can be viewed as a disease, like any other, for which the services of a specialist are required.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 83 and active, yet when I wake up in the morning, both knees ache. As soon as I get out of bed and begin moving, the pain disappears. What is happening to me?

DEAR READER: I'm sorry to say that you are probably suffering from what I call the "creakiness of old age." Your joints tend to stiffen up when they are inactive at night. This is a common consequence of growing older.

Put up with it and continue to be as active as you can. If, however, the pain persists long after you're on your feet, check with your doctor to make sure that you are not developing a treatable form of arthritis, such as gout. The pain of most serious arthritis worsens with activity, the reverse of what you experience.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
I was amused by a comment in a recent issue of New Zealand Bridge. While describing his team's match against an African nation at last year's world championship, the writer mentioned that on an early deal the opposing South made a strong jump overcall in diamonds while holding a weak 5-5 in the majors. North, taking his partner seriously, bid a slam, which the Kiwis doubled for 2300. New Zealand won the match, but not by a wide margin. Apparently there were "too few opportunities for the opposing South to do his thing."

Today's deal was also in the magazine. How should South plan the play in four hearts against the lead of the club jack? New Zealand is a land of four-card majors; hence North's single raise. If North knows of at least five trumps opposite, a pre-emptive jump to four hearts has much to commend it. Declarer made short work of going down. The first trick comprised the jack, queen, king and ace of clubs. South drew trumps and drove out the diamond ace. However, West led his second club to East's nine. Back came a spade and the defenders had four tricks: two spades, one diamond and one club.

From the bidding and lead, it is almost certain that West has the spade ace. Therefore every effort must be taken to stop East from getting on play. Low clubs should be played from both North and South on the first trick. After winning the club continuation, declarer draws trumps and attacks diamonds. Now, though, East has no entry, and one of dummy's spade losers disappears on the third round of diamonds.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 14, 1993

Your financial prospects look very encouraging for the year ahead, thanks to Lady Luck's new interest in your affairs. She'll do most of the spade work, but the rest will be up to you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could prove to be lucky for close friends today and they, in turn, might be fortunate for you. It will be up to you, however, to initiate the activity or action. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Aries' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instead of modifying or eliminating significant objectives today, think in terms of enlarging them. During this particular cycle, big could indeed be bountiful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Social contacts could be especially important for you now in helping to further your plans. Don't be afraid to consult with people whom you have a friendly rapport with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unruly development that you've had to contend with recently could take a turn for the better today. Instead of impeding your progress, it may accelerate it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make a point today of showing the same consideration to your mate as you do to close friends. It could trigger something fortuitous that neither of you have counted on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to devote as much attention as possible today to situations that could either make or save you money. You might be quite lucky in the greenback department.

especially important for you now in helping to further your plans. Don't be afraid to consult with people whom you have a friendly rapport with.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to be a bit more farsighted than your peers today, so adhere to your assessments instead of theirs, especially if their projections have a negative bent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial conditions are trending in a favorable direction for you at this time. There are indications you should be able to generate larger gains from something that is already productive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes it's unwise to pursue a course along the lines of the least resistance, but not today. What comes easily is likely to be best for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't foolishly try to alter situations that are presently running smoothly. Keep things on track, because what is good now could get even better.
