Cash for your trash

SANFORD — A recycler from Geneva has won $100 instant cash, in a promotion sponsored by Reynolds Recycling.

Jessie Fulgham won the money by recycling aluminum cans at the Reynolds Recycling location in the Pinecrest Shopping Center in Sanford, and playing the Reynolds "Recycle & Win" game.

In addition to receiving cash for the aluminum cans he turned in, Fulgham was given a scratch-off ticket which eventually proved to be the winning ticket for $100 in cash.

One ticket is given for each 25 pounds or portion thereof of aluminum cans recycled, with up to five game tickets per day.

Prizes in the nationwide contest range from a coupon good for a free roll of Reynolds Wrap aluminum foil, to cash prizes of $1 to $100, and 35 grand prizes of new Ford Ranger pickup trucks.

The "Recycle & Win" game is expected to continue through August 31, or until all Reynolds Recycling locations have exhausted their supplies of game tickets.

Turfgrass seminar

SANFORD — The University of Florida Cooperative Extension Service will hold a Turfgrass Seminar and Field Day, Tuesday, May 9, in Sanford. The event is designed for professional turf managers and maintenance personnel.

Speakers from the university will discuss selection and maintenance of turf for ball fields and recreational areas, including disease and insect management.

The seminar is free of charge. It will begin at 8 a.m., at Sylvan Lake Park in Sanford.

For additional information, contact Dr. Cathy Neal at 323-2500, ext. 5551.

Roadwork begins

CASSELBERRY — The Department of Transportation has announced work will begin Monday, May 8, on the $1.5 million widening and resurfacing project at the intersection of SR-436 and U.S. Highway 17-92 in Casselberry.

DOT officials say an additional through lane is being added to both east and westbound SR-436, and 2,500 feet of the roadway is being resurfaced through the intersection. An additional 2,500 feet of U.S. 17-92 will also be resurfaced in that area.

The DOT said extremely heavy traffic at this intersection, one of the busiest in Central Florida, has caused deep pavement rutting and

People of all faiths share special moments with God

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Prayer brings comfort for those who seek it. It brings people closer to their creator.

Today, people of all faiths are celebrating the National Day of Prayer.

A joint resolution of Congress established the celebration in 1952 as an ecumenical expression of national unity. It was institutionalized in 1988 when Ronald Reagan declared the day should fall on the first Thursday in May.

And around Seminole County, people share their thoughts on prayer:

Katrina Devlin spends an hour each morning reading the Bible and seeking guidance from God.

"I can't get going in the morning until I have re-committed myself to the Lord," she said. "I find comfort in prayer."

Wearing a t-shirt with the hand-scrubbed message "Jesus saved my Life," John Craig said he sometimes spends an afternoon in the lobby of the John E. Polk Corrections Facility "just praying" for both those who have been incarcerated and for their families.

High speed rail becoming a reality

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — It's not difficult to imagine high speed rail lines running through or near Sanford, providing rapid transportation to points between Daytona Beach and the Orlando area. What is difficult is to estimate when it will become reality and how much it will cost.

Although dreamed about for many years, the proposal received its first real shot in the arm in April of 1993. At that time, Congress approved the High-Speed Ground Transportation Development Act. Although of nationwide scope, it was speculated that one of the areas of consideration would be here in central Florida.

The government established a five year high-speed rail funding plan (1993 to 1998), allocating $1.3 billion. Of primary concern were five areas across the nation, of which a route between Miami, Orlando and Tampa was included. The area through Sanford to Daytona Beach was part of the over Central Florida plan.

In May of 1993, just one month after the act was approved, Floridians were given their first glimpse of a high-speed train, the X2000. It was on display at various points in the state, and was projected as the possible rapid rail service for Florida's future.

The X2000 is capable of speeds up to 150 miles per hour. It would require special tracks to allow for tilting during turns, but could also use some existing tracks for straight runs.

Now, a second company wants to set up a Volusia County test site for a magnetic-levitation vehicle — this one to operate a passenger carrier to be called a Magplane.

Officers of Florida Magplane Inc. envision a 26-minute commute atop Interstate 4 from Orlando to Tampa. Although not specifically considered at this time, there is a possibility of some type of rail transportation from the Daytona Beach area, through Sanford, to an Orlando station.

Cops say 72 auto thefts solved

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County sheriff's investigators believe they have solved 72 auto theft cases in the Wekiwa and Sweetwater areas since August, 1994. Six men have been arrested.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough listed the men as Joseph Albert, 24, David Diaz, 16, Paul Dinkins, 24, Fernando Lopez, 16, Robert Puebla, 20, and Luis Rivera, 15. All but Lopez reside in Apopka. Lopez was a resident of Clarcona.

McDonough said the suspects targeted primarily Chevrolet Camaros, Chevrolet Blazers, and Jeep Cherokees. In each incident, he said, the suspects used a screwdriver to unlock the door of the vehicle, drive it to another location, and steal components such as radios and speakers, then abandon the remains.

Crisis for baby boomers

Financial future bleak, study says

SANFORD — "Like sand through the hourglass...so are the Days of Our Lives," the soap opera promo goes.

As baby boomers born in the post-World War II 40s and 50s enter their peak earning years, mortgage payments, monthly bills and planning for the kids' college educations occupy the thoughts of most two-wage earner households, with little or no thought to saving for retirement which awaits just a few short years away.

How can today be the 25th anniversary of the shooting of anti-war protesters at Kent State? Where has the time gone?

While boomers are busy living their lives, financial planners warn most are not adequately saving for retirement as they head down the home stretch of their earning years. Americans need to triple their retirement savings to adequately prepare for their "Golden Years," financial advisors say.

Property rights Landowners get new powers under bill

By ABAM YERGAN
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles says he will sign legislation that makes it easier for property owners whose land values are hurt by government actions to seek restitution.

Starting Oct. 1, property owners who feel wronged will be able to go to court faster and have fewer obstacles to seeking compensation.

The Senate passed the bill 38-1 Wednesday in an effort to thwart more draconian proposals to require governments to reimburse property owners whose land is hurt by their actions. The House passed the bill 111-0 on Tuesday.

The legislation (CS-108 000) was a compromise between property rights advocates, some environmentalists and the governor's office.

"I think it addresses a problem that's been around. I think it addresses it in a reasonable way," Chiles said.

Opponents say the legislation will hurt local governments and their ability to control growth and protect the environment. Sen. Howard Forman, D-Pembroke Pines, was the lone dissenter.

Sen. Rick Danieler, who helped craft the compromise, said he believed it answered the cry from private property rights supporters without going too far.

"I don't think we've been too aggressive, but I hope we've been aggressive enough. What we're doing addresses those abuses that we've all heard about," said Danieler, D-Winter Haven.

Under current law and court rulings, governments usually only reimburse property owners if actions result in total loss of their land's value.

The legislation says property owners are entitled to compensation when "inordinate" government regulations keep them from making the money they reasonably expected to make from their property. The courts will determine what inordinate means.

Before filing suit, property owners must give governments 180 days to respond to their complaints.

If the dispute isn't resolved, the property owner can then go to circuit court, where a judge would decide if the government action hurt a property's value. A jury would determine damages, and a property owner could collect attorney's fees.

The proposed law applies to rules laws passed by state and local governments after the Legislature approves this measure.

Also under the bill, property owners who have a problem with an old law or rule can use a non-binding mediation process to settle a dispute. If they don't like the results, they can sue a government under the legal standards in effect before the legislation takes effect.

Supporters said the legislation was a better alternative than a proposed constitutional amendment pulled off the ballot last year by the state Supreme Court.

The Tax Cap Committee, which planned to push the petition again for 1988, has suspended its drive until the Legislature acted. David Blodgett, chairman of the organization, said Wednesday the decision hadn't been made whether to proceed with the petition drive.

Boy sentenced for slaying molester

FERRY — A judge has ordered a 13-year-old boy to spend at least 10 months in a secure juvenile facility for fatally shooting a prominent banker who used him as a virtual sex slave, the teen's lawyer said.

A judge also said Billy Ray Head Jr. will remain under state supervision once he is released, possibly in a foster home or other community shelter, until he is 19.

The boy killed 62-year-old Joe Anderson with a shotgun while on a fishing trip in February near this North Florida town. The allegations of abuse surfaced after the shooting.

Anderson, vice president of Farmers & Merchants Bank in Monticello, had given thousands of dollars in cash, drugs and gifts to the youngster and his family in exchange for sex with the boy over an eight-month period, state investigators say.

Circuit Judge James Roy Bean followed the advice of the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice, which a prosecutor had called "a coding reclassification."

The boy, diagnosed as marginally retarded, appeared cheerful during the sentencing, nibbling on cheese crackers. Defense lawyer Rya Harrison argued for leniency.

"This boy never acted inappropriately until his mother's desire for money on the one hand and Joe Anderson's desire for sex on the other hand," Harrison said. "Billy Ray was the subject of consorting between two adults to virtually sell the little boy into sex slavery."

The state sought a first-degree murder charge, but a grand jury instead recommended the boy be tried for second-degree murder as a juvenile. Bean found him guilty of a lesser offense, delinquent manslaughter, in a non-jury trial last month.

Appeals court overturns award

WEST PALM BEACH — An appeal court overturned an award to sugar cane cutters who said they'd been cheated on their paychecks and ordered the case to trial.

The Wednesday ruling by the Fourth District Court of Appeal took back one of the largest awards to farmworkers in Florida history. Sugar growers could have lost more than $61 million in back pay to thousands of workers.

"We're happy," said U.S. Sugar executive vice president Bob Baker. "We think it's appropriate."

The so-called Bygrave case — for Bernard Bygrave, one of the cutters who sued in 1991 — led most growers to start using machines rather than men to harvest cane. U.S. Sugar still hires about 1,300 "guest workers," mostly from the Caribbean, to cut cane in the fall, but previously as many as 15,000 people worked Florida's sugar fields.

The appeal court overturned a 1993 Palm Beach County Circuit non-jury ruling that the sugar companies had shortchanged the cutters for years. The case hinges on what the companies promised in work orders signed by the cutters.

Workers said they understood they were to be paid by the ton, and were expected to cut at least eight tons during an eight-hour day. Growers said the contract required them only to pay the minimum wage or "task rate," whichever was higher.

The appeal judges said the contract was too ambiguous to tell what the workers should have anticipated.

The cutters had expected at least $1,500 each in back pay. "We're obviously disappointed for the workers that we can't get this finalized and get them their money," said Jim Green, a lawyer for the cutters.

U.S. Sugar changed its method of paying workers, amending the contract and paying 50 percent more than the standard wage for the job — which averages $5 to $6 per hour — but not because it was doing anything wrong, Baker said.

Angler pleads guilty to blowing up bird

WEST PALM BEACH — A commercial fisherman pleaded guilty to killing a pelican by putting an explosive into a fish that the bird swooped down and swallowed.

Michael Yule, 21, entered his plea Wednesday for the January incident. He will be sentenced in July for violating the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

A government prosecutor said an appropriate sentence might be a "significant" term of community service at an animal rehabilitation center, plus a fine.

The brown pelican lived a week after being torn apart by the "seal chaser" explosive.

"It was a stupid, immature act on his part," Yule's attorney, Horace Beacham Jr., told U.S. Magistrate Ann Vitunac. "He recognizes that. He realized now that it was inevitable the pelican would pick up the fish and injure itself or die."

Yule, of Jupiter, faces a maximum six months in prison and a $5,000 fine on the misdemeanor charge. He had spent an unsuccessful day fishing Jan. 26 on the Intracoastal Waterway when he inserted the explosive, about twice as powerful as an M-80, into a bluefish and threw the fish into the water, according to court records.

School's neglect may have pushed boy over brink

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — By ignoring two failed suicide attempts at school on the same day, administrators may have actually pushed a boy into ultimately hanging himself, attorneys maintained in a $2 million civil trial.

The mother of 13-year-old Shawn Wyke contends school administrators knew of the failed attempts, but never told her. She claims all they did was read Bible verses to the sixth-grader and send him home.

The next day, Oct. 17, 1986, the boy hanged himself from an oak tree in his front yard.

Attorneys for Carol Wyke tried to show through expert testimony in federal court Wednesday how the inaction of administrators went beyond negligence and may have contributed to the suicide.

"A suicide attempt is a cry for help. When such a cry is ignored, it gets louder," testified University of Virginia psychologist Peter Sheras, who instructs teachers on how to spot suicidal behavior.

He said Shawn likely was trying to get attention through his suicide tries, and he was driven to follow through when the attempts were ignored.

"My belief is after there had been a number of attempts, it got him closer to that point of hopelessness," Sheras said. "It may have set the stage for that subsequent last straw."

Polk County School Board attorney John Stidham denied administrators of McLaughlin Middle School in Lake Wales had any warning of Shawn's suicidal intent.

But in testimony earlier Wednesday, Brenda Morton testified she called a school administrator when her son told her he stopped the boy from trying to hang himself with a football jersey in a school bathroom.

"He thanked me for calling and said he would take care of it," Morton told a federal jury Wednesday. "I didn't do anything else because I felt the school had taken care of it."

"I would have done something ... I would have gone to her," Morton testified, looking over at a weeping Wyke. "That's not something you just leave idle. ... Somebody needed to do something."

School board attorneys deny Morton's testimony that she spoke to dean of students James Bryant about the failed attempt. And they also deny accusations that Assistant Principal James Butler was aware of another attempt the same day when a cafeteria worker caught Shawn in a bathroom trying to hang himself using a cord and wire hanger.

Polk County sheriff's detective Robert Ore testified he called the school during his investigation of Shawn's suicide, and an unidentified male administrator acknowledged he was aware of the bathroom attempt.

"They knew of the incident prior to Shawn's death," Ore testified.

"That knowledge and what administrators did or didn't do about it are crucial to the case."

The case was expected to continue through the middle of next week.

Service award bestowed for outstanding support of zoo

By BOB BROWN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — George E. Smith was recently presented with the Joseph A. Oritt Service Award by Ed Peery, director of the Central Florida Zoological Park and Smith, "was selected as the recipient because of his outstanding support and service to the zoo."

Smith is president of Wharton-Smith, Inc. Also on hand for the award presentation was Stella Oritt, widow of Joseph A. Oritt, the first recipient of the award, and for whom it is named.

"Wharton-Smith, through its leadership, epitomizes the true meaning of corporate giving as they contribute time, talent, resources and revenues in support of Central Florida Zoological programs," Peery said.

Peery explained that the Joseph A. Oritt Service Award is presented annually to the individual who most completely embodies the spirit of Oritt, who was a zoological society board member. He was honored for his many years of voluntary service to the zoo and the central Florida community.

George Smith, right, accepts the Joseph A. Oritt Service Award from Ed Peery, director of the Central Florida Zoo.

Peery said Oritt cared for others could individually enjoy the animal kingdom through recreation and education.

Drug arrests

Undercover officers of the City/County Investigative Bureau (CCIB) made two arrests Tuesday in connection with suspected drug sales activities. Federico Guerrero, 19, of 888 Old Lakewood Road, was located by deputies at a motel on W. 29-46. He was charged with sale of a controlled substance, under 30 grams.

Lee Charles Taylor, 18, of 1800 Roosevelt Avenue, was located by deputies on Southwest Road near 18th Street. He was charged with sale of a controlled substance.

Retail theft

Elizabeth Evelyn Edwards, 26, of 1811 Cochran Road, Geneva, was arrested Tuesday by Sanford police. Officers said she reportedly had attempted to take a CD recorder/cassette recorder valued at $184.99 from a business in the 8100 block of S. Orlando Drive, without paying. According to the arrest report, when she was approached by a security officer in the store, she attempted to run but went to an entrance door which did not open. She reportedly then fled through the exit door and drove off. Police located and stopped her vehicle in the 2300 block of French Avenue. She was charged with retail theft.

Warrants

Jack Lee Johnson, 26, 1808 Cedar Creek Circle, Sanford, was located by Sanford police at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a previous conviction for possession of a controlled substance.

William Wayne, 26, 1701 W. 12th Street, was located on French Avenue near W. 29th Street by Sanford police Tuesday. He was wanted on a warrant for reckless driving/unlawful speeding.

Bobby Leon House, 26, 1811 W. 16th Street, was located by Sanford police in a parked vehicle at 14th Street and U.S. Highway 17-98. When police investigated, they discovered he was wanted on a Volusia County warrant for violation of probation. Police also charged him with possession of drug paraphernalia.

Roger James Smith, 33, 804 W. 10th Street, Sanford, was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. He was wanted on a writ of bodily attachment.

Brandon William Cook, 33, of DeBary, was arrested by deputies at the Seminole County Courthouse Tuesday. He was wanted on a warrant for aggravated battery.

Edward George McNeil, 30, 433 Sun Lake Circle, Lake Mary, was located in Altamonte Springs by sheriff's deputies Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on previous convictions of burglary to a dwelling, and trespassing in an occupied structure.

Kary Thomas McKinnon, 26, Main Street, near Sanford, was located by deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on a writ of bodily attachment.

Traffic stop

Lake Mary police arrested Oned Forakis, 37, of Apopka, Tuesday following a traffic stop on Country Club Road near Rantoul Lane. He was charged with unlawful speeding, driving with a suspended license, no child restraint, and no seat belt.

Sheriff reports

A 8000 TV set was reportedly stolen Monday from a residence in the 2000 block of Colony Avenue near Sanford.

Two bikes were reported stolen Monday from a residence in the 700 block of Baywood Circle in Seminole Estates. On Tuesday, a third bike was reportedly stolen from the yard of the same residence. The total value of all three bikes was estimated at $200.

A window air conditioning unit and air handler, with a total value of $800 were reportedly stolen Tuesday from a business in the 2600 block of Stoneval Place near Sanford.

Ceiling fans, mini blinds and a window air conditioner with a total value of $1,000 were said to have been stolen Tuesday from a residence in the 2600 block of Garden Drive near Sanford.

A resident of the 400 block of Tangle Drive, Sanford reported her microwave was stolen when she returned home, along with a computer. About five times in the past four months, the woman said two suspects have taken items from her home. She had never reported the thefts.

Sanford police reports

A window was found open at a business in the 100 block of E. First Street in downtown Sanford early Wednesday. Nothing was immediately determined to have been stolen.

A 17-year-old Sanford resident told police he was beaten by four men early Wednesday in the Sanford Clubhouse. He reportedly told officers he had been pushed into a glass window, which broke and caused cuts in his right leg.

A woman walking in the 800 block of Olive Avenue near Lake Monroe Terrace said a stranger called out to her and threatened he would shoot at her car.

Lake Monroe Terrace resident said someone broke into her apartment over the weekend and took a VCR valued at $400.

A electrical contractor working on the Seminole County Education Service Center, 625 S. Lake Mary Blvd., Sanford said a construction trailer at the site was burglarized over the weekend and two spools of wiring, valued at $8,000, were taken.

Vigil: 25th anniversary, Kent State shootings

By BOB BROWN
Associated Press Writer

KENT, Ohio — Holding candles that flickered in the cool spring air, hundreds of people began a vigil this morning on the spot where four Kent State University students were killed 25 years ago during an anti-war protest.

After streaming up a daffodil-covered hill, they stood silently in the parking lot where National Guardsmen had opened fire. Mary Ann Vecchio, whose moment of agony was frozen in a Pulitzer Prize-winning photograph, stood on the spot where Bill Schroeder died.

"Teach love. And combat violence," she said.

"And you all in smart enough to take it in," she told the students who surrounded her, their faces lit by candlelight. "Take it home to your families, to your loved ones. Don't take it for granted."

Vecchio, then a 14-year-old runaway, was pictured kneeling with arms upraised in horror over a dying Jeffrey Miller.

The vigil was to continue until 12:24 p.m., the time of the May 4, 1970, shootings. At that moment, a bell was to ring 15 times — once for each Kent State student killed or wounded, and once each for the two Jackson State University students killed in a protest 10 days later.

Few of the 31,000 students now at Kent State had even been born on the day of the shootings. Many find it difficult — but not impossible — to understand that "My parents went through it. My friends' parents went through it — some of my friends' parents were actually in the Vietnam war," said Todd Demangan, 30. "It's still kind of close. It's not completely distant."

Lori Sundquist, 20, agreed. "My mom was at Ohio State when it happened, and my dad was in Vietnam," she said. "I know that my mom was really upset when it happened. She told me what had happened, and I knew all about it when I came to school here."

Three days of unrest on the campus began with student protests against the Vietnam war and the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. Then Gov. James A. Rhodes ordered the National Guard to restore order.

As demonstrations raged around them, guardsmen opened fire. In 13 seconds, the four students were killed and nine wounded, stunning the nation and galvanizing the anti-war movement.

The wounded students and the families of the dead settled a $40 million lawsuit in January 1979 for $875,000.

Vecchio, who still has the same long, straight black hair and familiar almond-shaped eyes captured in 31-year-old student John Fil's photo, was a runaway from Miami at the time. She was picked up by the FBI several weeks after the shootings and returned to her parents.

Sharing with others

"If I won the big Florida Lottery, I'd certainly share some of my winnings with my fellow man." We've heard it said a great deal, although only a few, such as the late Shelia Ryan of Orlando have actually done so.

But if we don't win the lottery, there are still ways to help others, and not with just lip-service, but with financial donations.

Right now, in the City of Sanford alone, there are a number of projects underway seeking financial support. Everyone can't give to every organization, but we believe an interest in these projects is worth considering.

We haven't mentioned it recently, but Sanford Fire Chief Tom Hickson and his firefighters are still involved in refurbishing that old fire truck. Thanks to some outstanding public donations, the truck was purchased and brought back to Sanford. Now however, Hickson says funds are still needed to help in the rebuilding of the truck. It is to be used to represent Sanford in parades and at other functions, but until it's street-worthy, it's of no value.

Another point is the refurbishing of the historic old Ritz Theatre. The Friends of the Ritz organization is desperately seeking financial help for this restoration. The roofing done this past weekend is only a fraction of the work which will be necessary before the public would be allowed to even enter the structure for any type of performance.

On still another matter, the Sanford Historical Downtown Waterfront Association, SHDWA, is seeking contributions for the July 4th fireworks display this year, with the accompanying arts and crafts show, rides, amusements, parade, and family picnic.

The drive for money, especially in these times of economic recession, is not an easy one, with any and all donations being gratefully accepted.

Of course we cannot overlook the recent Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Educational Committee scholarship awards which were given thanks to generous donations from business persons and private individuals.

Yes, if we did win the lottery, we might give each of these projects some consideration, and possibly make a donation.

But the majority of people will not win the lottery. Even so, there must be a dollar or two somewhere in the family or personal budget which can be spent in one or more of these projects.

For donations to the July 4th fireworks through SHDWA, phone Rod Leyer at 322-8050.

For donations to the Fire Truck project, phone the Sanford Fire Department at 322-4662.

For donations to the Ritz Theatre restoration project, phone Helen Stairs at 328-7322.

Of course, if you win the Florida Lottery, call all three of them.

People want equality and to be involved in neighborhood schools

I am writing not as a resident of any one development or subdivision or even as a member of a particular high school community but rather as a citizen of Seminole County. Over the course of the (school board) task force's public forums (on reasoning) you've heard from a lot of us.

What follows is a summary of what I've heard the vast majority of the speakers at these meetings express, speakers ranging from the student, who will be directly impacted by this process, to the mother whose grown children are now beyond our public schools and the many parents of high schoolers, middle schoolers and elementary schoolers, and the presidents of homeowners' associations and of community associations. All of them concerned citizens, like me, but as far as I know, none of us is in a position to individually change the course of events. But, like they say, "You don't have to be in Who's Who to know What's What." I know that the task force is listening. I just hope that the school board and the district administration won't treat us like the horse that how and how, but their leg just keeps rolling in.

The speakers' themes have been so consistent. The people want equality, they want their communities intact, they want to be involved, and to be able to remain involved with their schools, and they definitely do not want their children exposed to the needless risks or safety hazards of illegal busing.

After the last meeting, at beautiful Seminole High, Dr. Tom Marvy agreed that he would explain the funding issue. Indeed, as he explained it to me, each school receives the same amount of funding for each equivalent student. There is no inequity of funding. The reality and the effect of equality lies not in the funding but rather in the treatment of students and of their communities.

As the community grows, the people of the community don't want their schools to be and to invest of themselves in their schools. In time the high schools come to define the communities.

People say they live in the Lyman District or the Seminole or Lake Mary, or Brantley, etc. district because each school remains unique, and reflects the common interests of the surrounding community. And so, each of our high schools has unique characteristics which recommend it. They are all good schools. The people of each school community share their pride and involvement with the people across the street, in the next block, in their development, etc. They invest in their community, in their school.

Usually, when a community outgrows its schools either the schools are expanded to meet this growth or, when new people settle somewhere toward the edge of the existing community, a new school is built. These new people have more in common with the people across their street in their next block, and so this new community of interest builds its own school and invests in it and the cycle renews itself.

Every school in Florida now has a school advisory council, or SAC, made up of school staff, parents and community members. The SAC's structure and mandate are described in a state program, called "Blueprint 2000" which, in turn, follows a federal design by the same name. The mandate of each school advisory council is to develop and ensure accomplishment of a school improvement plan for that school.

Currently there are seven goals, designated by the state, in the school improvement plans. The SAC's task is to figure out what can be done to improve the school in each of the goal areas. These goals include readiness to start school, graduation rate and readiness for post-secondary education and employment, student performance, learning environment, school safety and environment, teachers and staff, and adult literacy.

In the federal Blueprint 2000, there is another goal, one which the state will probably include as a requirement in the next cycle of plans. Basically, that goal is to foster parent involvement, based upon the concept that in order for a school to succeed, and in turn, their children to succeed in school, parents must be involved. Well, it is obvious from listening to the parents at these meetings that the schools they want to be involved in are their own communities' schools. Not the next ones up or down I-4. In this day and age, we already live complicated and busy lives. I am now in my third year on one of these school advisory councils. Quite honestly, I am not sure that I would have been quite so free with my time if it meant that I had to drive away from my community school several miles across Route 434 or Route 436, or up or down 17-92 or I-4 or something.

Speaking of I-4 brings me to the safety of the children. Not only is it inconvenient to drive the 15 miles from Spring Oaks to Lake Mary High School, sometimes several times a day, as the president of the Spring Oaks Homeowners Association told us, it absolutely places his and others' kids at needless risk. Walking to school or driving surface streets is one heck of a lot safer. It's also safer for the children's parents, for that matter. Anyway, I know that I would worry if my son had to drive or be transported over I-4 to get to and from "his" school. You know, youth is a time of rapid change; between the ages of 12 and 15 a parent can age 30 years. Having to deal with I-4 would only make it worse.

And then there is the court order. It makes me think of Shakespeare's

JOHN BURDICK

John Burdick is president of The Seminoles Community Group, a neighborhood, parent, teacher and professional organization. He is in his third year serving on the School Advisory Council, and is a chairman of the local community council.

"Out, out, damned spot" — only you read it: "Out, out, damned court order." The people want out from under the shadow of the past. They want to think in terms of community. The people of these school communities don't want to think in terms of black and white — equality, yes, but not in terms of "I'm black and he's white or vice versa." The court order enforces racism, it institutionalizes racism. Listen to the president of the Westside Community Association, to the young student who speaks at Seminole High, to the countless others. Isn't it persecution to bus kids from north of Seminole High School to Lake Mary High School and then turn around and bus kids from the shadow of Lake Mary's football stadium to Seminole High? Are the kids supposed to wave at each other as they pass on 17-92 or I-4? How do you think that makes the kids feel? Equal? I doubt it! How do you think it makes their parents feel? Equal? I doubt it! And, it tears those communities apart!

I think the people have a pretty good idea of, and would like to tell the school district, what they can do with their new in-house lawyer — turn him loose on getting the court order reversed or cancelled or made null and void.

At a meeting at Lyman High School, the meeting at which you first presented the five original plans to the school board, I, and I believe, most of those present, were overwhelmed by those plans and the unacceptable implications of each one. Some of the plans were worse than others, but not a single one could possibly win consensus support. The Edulog ones proved the adage that anyone can make a mistake, but it takes a computer to truly foul things up. At best these two disregard the needs of the community. At worst they look like a crude attempt at social re-engineering, and that's not a part of the school board's nor the district administration's charter. Computers are great for crunching numbers but don't ask nor expect them to think. Reasoning is a process that cries out for reason, not number crunching.

A lot has happened, many people have spoken, during this past month. I now realize that the task force and the school board do not have to destroy anything. Now I understand that you have the opportunity to heal rifts in communities, rifts that were created during the last or past high school reasoning efforts. The task force can design some that follow logical, natural boundaries, boundaries that accommodate the existing communities and keep them whole. We can build this new school, and let the surrounding community fill it as it grows.

If this means that we need to invest in expansion of some of the existing schools, let's do it. Maybe we really don't need to build yet another high school for the year 2002 or 2004. And when we really do need to build another, let's apply the lessons learned during this reasoning effort. Let's see it where it really needs to be, where it will cause the least disruption to existing schools and communities while still serving the new population.

The school board established the reasoning task force and directed it to include input from the members of the various high school communities. The board approved the five guidelines suggested by the task force but said that each proposed plan should also accommodate the needs of all who live in the area. In a popular song with the line "The Times They Are A-Changing," Well, the times, they have changed and they still are a-changing, and they will continue to change in the future. And that's where we all need to focus, the future. After all, we are talking about the future, our future, our kids. We are talking about an issue that will impact the very people who will someday in that future sit on a task force just like this one. Let's not leave them a mess to straighten out. Make the best of this opportunity. Let's leave them a plan that they can look back on and be proud to say: "My father, or my mother served on the reasoning task force that developed the concepts that we have today. What that group came up with has stood the tests of time and progress. It fostered equality — it fostered involvement. It has served well all the communities of Seminole County."

Parity in all schools

The Seminole County School Board is in the process of renegeting the high school boundaries in order to accommodate the new Winter Springs High School scheduled to open in the autumn of 1988. In this reasoning, the Seminole County school board needs to address a myriad of important issues rather than reaching for a temporary political bandaid.

In 1981 when the last reasoning took place, the area west of I-4 and north of Lake Mary Boulevard was added to Seminole High School with the expectation that 4,800 new households would develop and that these households would contribute mostly white, mostly middle-class students, to the Seminole High School zone. This growth expectation has never materialized and so the present school zoning has been operating with erroneous expectations. Although about 1,000 housing units have been constructed, only 26 students from these homes attend the Seminole County high school system. Far more students have opted to go to private or parochial schools. The message to the students of the Markham Woods Road/State Road 46 area, is one of apathy. One has only to sit at Oodging at Heathrow to see the buses unload from Trinity Prep and Lake Highland Prep as well as other private schools to see that the northwest quadrant of Seminole County has been abandoned by the school board. There is no recognition of the enormous impact it could have on program services, test scores, and parental support if this steadfast group of parents felt free of the stigma of Seminole High ... free of the violence, poverty, and associated social ills fostered by this situation.

Future growth of this area is not expected to generate the numbers of students needed to justify busing Seminole High School. Much of the land west of I-4 is now zoned for low density housing and many acres have been purchased by the state as part of the Wekiva River conservation movement. The balance of housing expected around the new mall will be low-income or subsidized housing further adding to the existing problems. Consequently the imbalance needs to be rectified with this reasoning and the school board needs to look elsewhere for additional middle-class students. Correcting this imbalance and attracting these children back to the public schools could have an immediate impact on the quality of education in Seminole County.

In reality, under the present set of circumstances, everyone has lost something. The school board, the community, the school and the students have lost an opportunity to improve a situation that is creating misunderstanding, frustration and disharmony. The public school system is ignoring the needs of an entire generation of middle-class students.

The school board needs to eliminate a school zone of extremes. At the moment too much of the zone is populated by either the county's poorest or the county's highest income executives. Seminole High needs a healthy influx of middle class students for balance, equality and parity with the other high schools in Seminole County. With this reasoning it is essential that parity be achieved among all the high schools. The loud and clear message here should be that all high schools are equal and it shouldn't really matter where you live or where your child goes to school. Seminole County is not that big geographically. We live about as far north and west in Seminole County as it is possible to live and our child, out of perceived necessity, goes to Trinity Prep. The travel is an inconvenience at times but no real hardship. Ironically, my child wants to go to a "normal" high school but we, like so many other parents in this northwest quadrant, feel that Seminole High presents too much of a threat to her personal safety and too much of an educational compromise to insure her a successful future.

In summation, we ask for parity for all area high schools and that this be achieved by realistic, actual, tangible households ... not a pipedream of proposed homes that will probably never exist and under present conditions homeowners who will never send their children to Seminole High. Parity is the only fair way for the elected members of the school board to serve all the constituents that elected them. Anything less shows lack of leadership and succumbing to special interests whether it be lobbyists or effectively organized homeowner associations. The school board must represent all the people otherwise it will be time for a change.

Act responsibly

I have no children in the Seminole County school system, nor do I have my home up for sale, nor am I concerned about making a "killing" on it in the future.

I am deeply concerned, however, about the education that is being given to our children, many of whom must lead and protect our country in the future!

I need say no more than to ask that school board members read and consider, objectively, the letter from N.A. Daniels, and act responsibly when the issue is voted upon.

Equal education

I am directing this to the school board, to appeal a sense of fairness regarding the upcoming reasoning of Seminole County high schools.

I have been a resident of Seminole County for the past 17 years and my son will be attending Seminole High School in four years.

I sat at a meeting at Lake Mary High School on Monday night, April 3rd, and listened to many parents get up and voice their reasons for wanting their children to go to a particular high school. These parents are looking out for the good of their children and only their children. They don't care about all of the children of Seminole County. That's your job. That is what you were elected to do. Not to look out for the interests of certain areas whose residents may be in a high economic bracket or have political clout.

Please, school board members, do the right thing by basing your decision for reasoning on socioeconomic guidelines which will give all children of Seminole County an equal education, not only those in special programs. Every child is entitled to receive an equal education.

other deterioration in the roadway. About 150,000 vehicles used the intersection on an average day in 1984.

Hubbard Construction Company of Orlando will be handling the work. The contractor is only being allowed to close traffic lanes between 9:30 p.m. and 5:30 a.m. Access to businesses in the area are to be maintained, though certain points of access may be altered during paving operations.

No lane closures are anticipated during the first several days of work.

The project is expected to take nearly six months to complete. The DOT said the lengthy time period is due to restrictions on work hours necessitated by the heavy traffic at the intersection.

Free vegetable giveaway

SANFORD — This Friday, Seminole Volunteer Enterprises, Inc., will be distributing free vegetables in front of the old Sayre Plaza, for feeding organizations only. The distribution will begin at 11:30 p.m.

Next Tuesday, again beginning at 11:30 p.m., the organization will be distributing free vegetables to those needy families who are currently receiving SSI, AFDC, food stamps, social security, medicaid, or other forms of public assistance.

This Friday's distribution to organizations, and next Tuesday's distribution to families, will both be held at the Seminole Volunteer Enterprises location at the plaza, 2970 Orlando Drive.

German shepherd joins FHP

DELAND — A new member has joined the Florida Highway Patrol and will be working the highways in Bunnell, Volusia and Flagler counties looking for drug dealers.

You might say, he has a nose for the job. Levi, a 30-month old German shepherd, is the newest member of the K-9 corps.

Levi replaces K-9 Henry who died of internal injuries in October. Henry served the FHP for six years before his death.

Levi's new partner is Trooper Jerry Cayes, who has been on patrol for 16 years. The trooper and Levi make up one of two K-9 teams assigned to the DeLand district.

More time to practice

SANFORD — Weeps, don't believe everything in the letter about the Sanford Kiwanis Club Golf Tournament. The tournament, scheduled for May 28 at the Deltona Hills Country Club, has been postponed. Not just for a few weeks, but until Oct. 14.

Over 1,000 letters were sent out to Kiwanians before it was noted that the event would have conflicted with the Memorial Day weekend.

It will, however, for an almost five month time period, provide prospective participants with premium practice time.

Prayer

before I found the Lord," he said, pointing to the housing area of the jail. "I know what prayer can do. God answers prayers."

Settye Smith, mayor of Sanford, said that prayer is "a big...very big part" of her life. "I can't imagine trying to live without praying," Smith said. "Prayer is communion with your creator."

Smith said she prays in the car, standing in line at the grocery store or wherever she is when she feels the need to speak with God.

"Prayer gets me through the day," she said. "I think prayer works. At least it does for me."

Harvey Periman, the ministerial rabbi at Congregation Shaalom Tzedek, says he prays throughout the day so he can be ready, but he likes to begin his day in "concentrated prayer" for about an hour beginning at 8:30.

"Prayer changes things," he said. "As long as it is God's will."

Every day should be a day of prayer, he said, but he is glad for the annual celebration because it brings people who don't normally pray into the awareness of what prayer can do.

Brantstetter Davis said she has "never, ever prayed," and that she "has never suffered because of it."

She said "didn't care" if it is the National Day of Prayer.

"I think there shouldn't be any prayer that the government makes people do," she said. "It's a violation of my civil rights."

David Mayer believes prayer is "a very private thing." He said he believes that God "hears my call" whenever and wherever he prays.

"I don't go to church," he said. "I don't think God needs me to go to some special building to pray. He hears me and answers my prayers whenever I call out to him. God hears me if I'm in my car, if I'm on the golf course, if I'm on a boat or if I'm sitting out in Fort Mellon Park. He doesn't care (where you are)."

Shayna Rollins believes the National Day of Prayer is an intrusion on her personal privacy.

"I am not a Christian or a Jew or a Muslim or anything else," she said. "I believe in God. I do not believe in religion. So why should I have all this prayer stuff shoved down my throat?"

People should be allowed not to pray...or to pray, if they so choose without any "national days" to promote it, she said.

Kellie Smith is 6-years-old. She said she prays every night.

"I pray for my mommy and daddy and my cat and my teacher," she said. "God can take care of them if I ask him to. So I ask him to."

Riders on the Magplane would be propelled at 300 mph, and reportedly would feel as if they were aboard a commercial jetliner.

Designers say the craft would cruise along an aluminum guideway, propelled by electromagnetic current. The company wants to build a three-mile test guideway near the Daytona Beach airport.

Company President David Carrier said some public funding would be sought initially, but the company would rely solely on private money later.

Another firm, American Maglev Technology of Florida Inc., is looking for a partner on plans for a maglev train. The train uses similar technology. Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

Retire

unprecedented growth in the retirement-age population," the Committee for Economic Development contended in a report urging immediate reform.

The recommendations, announced here by the New York-based committee, include raising retirement benefits, increasing the retirement age, and extending the retirement age.

"If we take prompt steps to implement the reforms CED recommends, significant portions will be required, but they will be manageable," said Lawrence A. Wettsch, chairman of the group's pensions and saving subcommittee and chief executive officer of Arthur Andersen & Co. "If action is postponed," he added, "the nation will face the very unpleasant choice of a substantial cut in the economic status of the elderly or a crushing tax burden on future workers."

The report — "Who Will Pay For Your Retirement? The Looming Crisis" — noted that the baby boom generation will start retiring in about 10 years, boosting retirees from the current 19 percent of the population to 30 percent by 2030.

That growth will be exacerbated by an elderly population that already is growing rapidly because of increasing life expectancy while births are declining. The result will be a sharp decline in the ratio of workers to retirees, from about 3.4-to-1 to about 2-to-1, the report said.

In addition to demographic factors, the report said, other causes of the crisis include the high cost of health care, the high cost of Social Security, and the high cost of Medicare.

—The national saving rate has declined to record lows in recent years and "private saving for retirement is woefully inadequate."

The committee contended that private saving per worker is only about one-third of what will be needed — if Social Security benefits are not cut, as it and other experts suggest may be necessary.

"It is now clear that the Social Security system has made promises to future retirees that cannot be kept without vastly improving funding or imposing a harsh burden on future workers," the report said.

"Clearly, for the vast majority of those currently in the labor force, their future economic circumstances will depend greatly upon their own saving and participation in retirement plans."

—"Underfunded pension promises in both private and public retirement programs are a growing and often understated problem." The deficiency for government, civilian and military pensions combined is estimated to be $1.5 trillion, it said.

—"Rapid growth in government spending for the elderly threatens to get so far out of control when the baby boom generation retires that it cannot be financed by reasonable burdens on taxpayers."

The committee recommended the government simplify regulations and reverse recent changes in policies that act as barriers to private retirement saving and discourage growth in private pension coverage.

The government also should act quickly to preserve Social Security by prefunding retirement promises and possibly trimming benefits, it maintained.

The committee emphasized that business and government should fully fund their pension promises and said business should be encouraged to raise the retirement age.

And, it concluded, "CED believes that this situation calls for a major education campaign sponsored by both government and private employers to improve workers' understanding about their own responsibilities and options for retirement."

The committee is a private, nonpartisan research and education organization of 250 top corporate executives and university presidents.

Suspicion of heroin smuggling

KARACHI, Pakistan — An American was arrested at Karachi's airport after customs agents said they found 4.4 pounds of heroin in his hand luggage.

Stavros Petkovits, 24, of New York City was picked up Tuesday evening as he was preparing to board a Pakistan International Airlines flight to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, customs officials said today.

U.S. officials confirmed the arrest but declined to comment on the case.

In an attempt to halt rampant drug smuggling, the government has approved a law that allows judges to impose the death penalty for possessing as little as 100 grams, or about four ounces, of heroin.

Pakistani courts have traditionally shown leniency toward Westerners convicted of drug smuggling, but Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto's government has vowed to take a tougher stance in all drug cases.

Full withdrawal from northern Iraq

ANKARA, Turkey — Turkey announced today it has pulled out the last of its troops from northern Iraq, six weeks after 35,000 soldiers crossed the border to wipe out Kurdish rebel bases.

"We have no soldiers left in northern Iraq. We have withdrawn them all," Defense Minister Mehmet Goltan told reporters today upon arriving for a Cabinet meeting.

Turkey was under tremendous pressure from the United States and other NATO allies to bring the massive military offensive against the Kurdish rebels to a quick conclusion.

The troops were sent into northern Iraq March 30 to wipe out some 50 camps used by 2,800 Kurdish rebels for hit-and-run attacks in Turkey. Some 20,000 soldiers were withdrawn last week, and Goltan said the rest left Wednesday.

Goltan also said Turkey had taken military measures along the border. He did not elaborate, but military officials have said they planned to build bases on the frontier to block rebels from crossing.

The area in northern Iraq has been patrolled by allied warplanes since the end of the Gulf War and is beyond the reach of Iraq's military.

Strong quake rocks northern Greece

ATHENS, Greece — An earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 6 shook the northern Greek peninsula of Kalkidhiki today, following a series of smaller tremors, the Athens Geodynamic Institute said.

There were reports of slight damage to some houses but no injuries. Schools in the town of Ierissos were closed.

The quake struck at 3:36 a.m. (8:36 p.m. EDT Wednesday). Its epicenter was near Arnai, 180 miles north of Athens.

The quake was preceded by six smaller tremors with preliminary magnitudes ranging between 3.9 and 5.1.

The Macedonia Press Agency quoted seismologist Prof. Vassile Papanahon as saying the quake opened a 10-mile-long crack in the earth.

In 1978, an earthquake measuring 6.7 caused damage and several deaths in Salonic.

Humanitarian release

State Department says imprisoned Americans have health problems

By BARRY SCHWAB
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — Two Americans serving eight-year sentences in a top-security prison outside Baghdad have medical problems that require their release on humanitarian grounds, the State Department says.

"We call upon the Iraqi government to release them on that basis," spokesman Nicholas Burns said Wednesday in an ongoing dispute with Baghdad over the detention of William Barloon, 36, and David Daliberti, 41. They were convicted of crossing the border from Kuwait.

In Baghdad, the government had no immediate reaction to Washington's appeal, and most of the state-run news media ignored the story.

Only Babat, a daily newspaper published by Saddam Hussein's eldest son, Qdai, printed the statements made by the State Department and the Iraqi information minister. But it did not comment on them.

Based on a report from a Polish diplomat, Burns said Barloon was treated for sharp chest pains with nitroglycerin tablets, oxygen and a tranquilizer, and given electrocardiogram tests, which disclosed "possible scarring."

The Polish diplomat, Ryszard Krystolik, was barred from entering their room at the hospital, and had not been notified they were taken there, the spokesman said.

"All of these latest events" are a continuing warning sign that the detention of Mr. Barloon and Mr. Daliberti cannot be sustained on legal or humanitarian grounds. We have reason to believe that they both have health concerns," Burns told reporters.

In Baghdad, Iraqi Information Minister Hamed Yousef Humadi said only one of the two men — he didn't say which — had been hospitalized.

"He is receiving very good medical care. He has been taken back from the hospital in very good condition and the doctors have found no problem," Humadi said.

He said the men's wives, Linda Barloon and Kathy Daliberti, can "visit the prisoners any time" as long as the women remain in Baghdad.

They arrived in Baghdad on Saturday to see their husbands and to plead with the Baghdad government for their release.

Barloon, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Daliberti, of New Hampton, Iowa, were arrested March 13 after they crossed into Iraq from Kuwait, where they worked for U.S. defense contractors. They were convicted despite their insistence that the border crossing was inadvertent.

Overhauling the nation's civil legal system

By BARRY SCHWAB
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — After eight days of debate and votes on scores of amendments aimed at overhauling the nation's civil legal system, the Senate is moving toward a possible final vote on the contentious legislation.

The senators on Wednesday narrowly approved a wide-ranging proposal by Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., to limit punitive damage awards in all civil lawsuits in federal and state courts.

Opponents said Dole's provision, which resembles a House version passed in March, could stifle Senate passage of the overall product-liability bill written by Sens. Blaine Lott, R-Wash., and Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va. Some senators have been pushing proposals to re-vamp faulty-product laws for 13 years.

Adoption of Dole's amendment means it would be more difficult for consumers to win punitive damage awards against small businesses, local governments, nonprofit organizations and health care providers, in addition to product manufacturers.

After votes on a few other amendments, the Senate planned to vote today on whether to cut off debate on the product liability bill and was expected to set a date for a final vote.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said the Republicans could lose the final vote because they broadened the bill.

"The more it's loaded up, the more problematic this issue could become," Daschle told reporters. The Republicans' "lives are complicated with each new issue that's added to this bill," he said.

But Dole called approval of his amendment "an important victory in our efforts to end lawsuit abuse."

"The Senate has heard the message from the American people," Dole said.

His amendment significantly broadens the bill by capping punitive damages in all civil litigation — not just those involving faulty products — at twice a claimant's compensatory damages. Compensatory damages are the combined total of economic damages, such as lost salary and medical bills, and less tangible noneconomic damages to compensate patients for loss of an eye or a limb and for pain and suffering.

The 51-49 vote, mostly along party lines, by broadening the Senate legislation, brought it in line with a comprehensive package to overhaul the civil justice system that was passed by the House as part of the GOP's "Contract With America." The House package, however, includes a punitive damages cap in all civil lawsuits of $250,000 or three times economic damages, whichever is greater.

The Clinton administration has expressed opposition to some provisions of the House legislation but has not explicitly threatened to veto it.

White House spokeswoman Ginny Terzano said Wednesday the administration views the Dole provision in the same light as the House package and has similar objections.

The Senate also approved, by voice vote, a provision by freshman Sen. Mike DeWine, R-Ohio, to set a special $350,000 punitive damages cap for individual defendants whose net worth is less than $500,000 or for business owners or local governments with fewer than 25 full-time employees.

As Republicans pushed ahead, they were challenged by one of their own number, freshman Sen. Fred Thompson, R-Tenn., who proposed an amendment that would apply caps on punitive damage awards for product liability only to cases in federal, not state, courts.

Thompson's amendment was rejected, 58-41.

Some 45 percent of all product liability cases — or about 23,000 last year — are tried in federal courts, according to the Administrative Office of U.S. Courts.

Study: High school equivalency test barely raises earning power

By JOE MARCUS
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Dropouts who take the high school equivalency test earn barely 4 percent more than those who don't — and only if they use their substitute diploma to go on to further education, according to a study.

The average recipient of a general equivalency diploma earns $7.43 an hour nine years after getting the certificate. High school dropouts who do not receive a GED make $7.02. The difference is about 6 percent, but since GED recipients work slightly fewer hours while participating in training programs or looking for work, their total income is just 4 percent more than other dropouts.

"Is it worth paying $30 and sitting for this exam? The answer is yes," said Richard Murnane, an economics professor at the Harvard Graduate School of Education and the study's co-author. "But is this a useful strategy for getting low-income people out of poverty? The answer is no."

A million young Americans a year drop out of high school without receiving a diploma. An increasing number of them take the test called the General Educational Development exam.

Nearly 800,000 people took the GED in 1993, the last year for which the figures are available. That's up from 734,000 in 1988.

"Out in the world you need either a high school diploma or some further education," said 18-year-old Hector Hernandez, who dropped out of school when he was a junior but wants to get a degree in computer programming.

"I need to at least have a GED," said Hernandez, who works in a warehouse while he prepares to take the test this month.

The GED tests writing skills, social studies, science, interpretation of literature and the arts, and math, and includes a written essay. In their study, to be released this summer, Harvard researchers looked at 988 men who left high school before graduation. Most dropped out when they were 16 or 17, after finishing the ninth grade. About a third obtained a GED, with virtually no immediate effect on their hourly pay and only a small gradual increase over time.

The American Council on Education, which administers the test, is working on a similar analysis that generally points to the same conclusion, said its director of research, Janet Baldwin.

The council found that GED recipients make slightly more than other dropouts, but those who use the GED to open doors to further education eventually earn about the same as high school graduates with comparable college or vocational training.

"I think it's important to take the long view on this," said Baldwin. "With further time in the labor market, these people will increase their earnings."

A 30-year-old Ugandan immigrant, Grace Wabulya, said prospective employers have reacted favorably just hearing that she's studying to take the GED.

"Once I mention about getting my GED, they smile," she said.

Search for bombing victims nears end

OKLAHOMA CITY — Recovery crews found another body in the wreckage of the federal building today, what could be the last day of the search for victims of a terrorist bomb.

When they leave, relatives of the victims will be allowed to have a final, private remembrance at the site.

"It's almost over," said police Sgt. Lynn McCumber, one of just a half-dozen workers who dug through rubble Wednesday. They found the body of two adults and one young child Wednesday, and another victim was found today, bringing the death toll to 147.

About 25 people are still missing. The search could end by this evening, Assistant Fire Chief Jon Hansen said.

Investigators continued to pursue thousands of tips in the nation's deadliest domestic terrorist attack, but the hunt for John Doe 2, the second suspect in the April 19 bombing, remained unsuccessful.

First zoo price hike in 8 years

By Heidi Pappas
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — For the first time since 1987, admission prices at the Central Florida Zoological Park have been increased. Price hikes have been enacted for all age levels.

Ed Poney, director of the zoo commented, "As the Central Florida Zoological Park continues to enhance and expand programs and services, it has become necessary to initiate a modest increase in admission rates in order to keep pace with today's economic conditions."

The additional funds generated by this increase is expected to allow the zoo to continue making improvements, which, in the immediate future, are listed as a new cheetah exhibit, renovation of the main exhibit area featuring primates and felines, and the addition of visitor rest areas including rest room facilities, picnic tables, and a satellite food concession unit.

Marketing Director Andrea Farmer reported that during the past eight years since the last admission increase took place, there have been significant improvements and enhancements at the zoo. She included over a quarter mile of elevated boardwalks with rest areas, a new education complex and expanded education programs, Florida Trek nature walk, butterfly garden, and the most recently opened backyard habitat.

New and renovated animal exhibits for clouded leopards, jaguars, black-footed cats, wrinkled hornbills, a South American mixed exhibit, Goffin's cockatoos, bald eagles, toucans, koobaburras, Hoffman's two-toed sloths, and Animal Adventure have all been completed since 1987.

Under the new pricing guidelines which went into effect this past Monday, May 1, general adult admission increased from $6 to $7, children 3-13 admission hiked from $3 to $5, seniors 60 and older admission climbed from $3 to $4.

The zoo, a non-profit charitable organization, is owned and operated by the Central Florida Zoological Society, and is funded by earned revenue. Admissions, concessions and gift shop revenues make up nearly 60 percent of the zoo's annual budget.

Development warns Americans face a crisis unless they triple their savings, the Social Security system is overhauled and pensions are fully funded and expanded pension coverage is provided.

The New York-based committee is comprised of 250 corporate executives and university presidents.

As baby boomers begin to reach retirement in about 10 years, the number of retirees will go from 12 percent of the population to 20 percent by 2050. The declining birth rate means the ratio of workers to retirees will go from about 3.4-to-1 to about 2-to-1, the study shows.

Financial planners from A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc., based in St. Louis with offices around the country, including a branch in Heathrow and Sunbank also urge individuals to plan for the future.

"Many baby boomers have come to realize that the pensions and Social Security their parents could depend on are no longer enough," an Edwards' publication states. "In fact, the Social Security administration estimates that Social Security's benefits and private pensions will provide only 28% of future retiree's income needs."

All of the thefts occurred between midnight and 6 a.m. Of the 73 vehicles stolen in Seminole County, McDonough said 69 were eventually recovered and returned to their owners.

Sheriff's investigators believe the suspects could have been responsible for approximately 200 auto thefts in Seminole, Orange and Lake counties since last August.

McDonough said all of the suspects are believed to be members of the "A.P.K." gang in Apopka.

The sheriff's office has asked the Seminole County State Attorney's office to file grand theft auto charges against the suspects.

Just what does Oviedo taste like?

By Heidi Pappas
Herald Senior Staff Writer

OVIEDO - The Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce's next event promises to have something for every taste.

The May 20 "Taste of Oviedo" event promises not just the tastiest food in town, but also some of the finest in local artwork and a showcase of many of the businesses in the city.

"This is our first 'Taste' event," said Angie Willford of the chamber of commerce. "We hope it will become an annual event. We wanted it to be a little different than the others."

Willford said the organizers not only wanted to highlight the culinary, commercial and fine artistry of Oviedo, they also wanted to show off the city's "new downtown" in front of the Oviedo City Hall on Alexandria Boulevard near State Road 434 (Alafaya Trail). Alexandria is located between Mitchell Hammock Road to the north and Chapman Road to the south.

She noted that one of the biggest differences between this Taste and other similar events is that admission will be free. Each sample of the culinary delights will cost 50 cents, however.

More than 30 restaurants, including Toucan Willie's, Bill's Elbow South, Froggers, P.J. Coole, Chili's, Cracker Barrel, Applebee's, Shella, Orlando Ale House, Hooters and others, will be offering their fare for four bits a taste.

"Our Taste is more of a festival than the others," said Willford who said she has enjoyed the other area events for years. "We hope to have something for everyone."

In addition to the other attractions, there will be five bands and a dime jockey offering the musical accompaniment to the day-long event. Among the musical fare will be jazz singer Jackie Jones and her band and bluegrass band American Steel.

The Taste of Oviedo will begin at 10 a.m. and last until 5 p.m.

Willford pointed out that the organizers "by no means want to take away" from the annual Oviedo Women's Club Day in the Country craft fair.

"This is something very different," she said.

WCPX-Channel 6 is the co-sponsor of the Oviedo Chamber event. Other sponsors include Baldwin-Fairchild Funeral Home, Coors beer, Magic 107.7 FM and Publix.

The event will be something for the whole family, Willford promised. In addition to the food, music, art and commerce, there will be clowns and special games just for the youngest participants.

Tots should fly in safety seats

WASHINGTON — Children who ride on a parent's lap during a plane trip are in danger of injury or death, say airline flight attendants who want the practice banned.

Special safety seats are "the only safe way for our youngest passengers to fly," Patricia Friend, president of the Association of Flight Attendants, said Wednesday.

The Federal Aviation Administration has opposed requiring the seats for infants under age two, contending the added cost would drive families to automobiles, a less safe form of travel.

Children under age two do not require an airplane ticket if they are carried by an adult. But in a crash the children are in greater danger because parents are unable to hold on to them, Friend said.

"Quite frankly, it does not make sense to selectively put infants at risk by not requiring them to be restrained," said Chris Witkowski, director of air safety and health for the association.

Rep. Jim Lightfoot, R-Iowa, who has introduced a bill to require safety seats for the youngsters, called the FAA "misguided" for opposing the idea. And the National Transportation Safety Board has recommended that restraints be required for infants aboard airplanes.

But the FAA has opposed the requirement on cost, as well as safety grounds.

FAA Deputy Administrator Linda Hall Daehle estimated the added cost to parents of buying a ticket for toddlers at as much as $200 per flight, a total of $1 billion annually. Daehle said the FAA is encouraging airlines to consider ways to reduce the cost for parents who want to buy a ticket for youngsters.

Argue retrial for Menendez brothers

LOS ANGELES — Erik and Lyle Menendez's second trial on charges of murdering their wealthy parents will be pushed back to Aug. 16, a judge ruled Wednesday.

The trial had been scheduled for June 12, but Van Nuys Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg said the case would not be ready and moved the trial back two months.

Lyle, 27, and Erik, 24, are charged with the Aug. 20, 1989 shotgun killing of their parents, Jose and Kitty Menendez, in their Beverly Hills mansion.

Their first trial, which lasted six months, ended with the separate juries both deadlocked between murder and lesser manslaughter convictions.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty, contending the brothers killed out of hatred and greed for a family fortune.

The brothers claim they shot their parents out of fear after suffering a lifetime of physical, sexual and emotional abuse.

Nix on free condom distribution

CINCINNATI — The City Council just said no to condom giveaways.

Council members voted 5-4 Wednesday to stop paying for the Health Department to distribute free condoms.

"City Council should not be in the business of subsidizing immorality," said Councilman Charles Winburn, who sponsored the ban.

"The real issue is whether distributing condoms encourages young people to be sexually active," said Councilman Phil Helmich.

Health Commissioner Malcolm Adcock called the vote "disappointing" and said the health department's board would discuss the issue next week.

Adcock noted that last year, health officials reported 940 cases of syphilis in the Cincinnati area — the most in 40 years. The Health Department responded by buying 300,000 condoms for about $30,000. Some were repurchased by community-run clinics that receive some city funding.

"I sometimes have the feeling that we're going back to the Dark Ages when people thought the earth was flat," said Councilwoman Bobbie Sterne, who opposed the ban.

Funny pages at a post office near you

By RANOLDPH E. SOUERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — From the Yellow Kid to the Katzenjammer Kids to Brenda Starr, the funny pages are many Americans' first encounter with the newspaper. Soon, those colorful memories will take up residence on their mail.

The U.S. Postal Service announced today it would produce a new set of 30 33-cent stamps featuring some of the most popular, original and classic comic strips.

The stamps help celebrate the 100th anniversary of the appearance of the Yellow Kid in the New York World newspaper, the first color feature comic.

The new issues are the latest "pop" culture stamps to be announced, joining Elvis Presley, other rock 'n' roll singers and Marilyn Monroe among other popular subjects that are expected to generate large sales to people who save stamps — a high-profit area for the post office.

Mike Kilian, who writes "Dick Tracy," said he thinks the decision to issue comic-strip stamps was probably driven by the profit motive, but added that his hero deserves a stamp "every bit as much as Elvis."

"The make-believe characters on the comic strips have helped us keep our sanity for the last 100 years in a world that is all too real and often scary," commented Dean Young, who draws "Blondie."

Chester Gould started "Dick Tracy" as a topical satire and kept moving with the times, Kilian said. The strip is still trying to do that with stories on bank crimes, computer hackers and white-collar crime.

John Cullen Murphy, who writes "Prince Valiant," noted that over the years the comics have held up an image of our evolving society to ourselves, frequently in a more canny and accessible way than the experts ever have.

On Friday, the Library of Congress joins the fun, opening a new exhibit: "Featuring the Postmaster: 100 Years of the Comic Strip."

"Hogan's Alley" in the New York World became the first comic strip in 1895, drawn by R.F. Outcault and featuring Mickey Dugan, a jop-toothed boy in a smudged nightshirt.

Dugan was the Bart Simpson of his day, reports Stefan Kanfer in the magazine Civilization. After experiments in various colors for his shirt, the Yellow Kid was born — a youngster who eventually gave his name to a rather shoddy form of journalism.

The lad became so popular that the New York Journal and World wound up in a bidding war for Outcault's services. After a court battle the Kid ran in both papers at the same time, with Outcault using the title "McFadden's Plate" in the Journal while another artist drew "Hogan's Alley" for the World.

Rudolph Dirks' "Katzenjammer Kids" went through a similar phase when Dirks left the Journal for more money. He set up shop under the name "Captain and the Kids" while another artist took over his old title.

"Katzenjammer Kids," launched in 1897, is the oldest strip still in syndication and pic-needed the use of sequential panels and balloons for dialogue. The Yellow Kid spoke through phrases printed on his nightshirt.

"Little Nemo in Slumberland" has been called an art nouveau masterpiece. The strip, which ended in 1907, was a little boy's weekly trip to dreamland, and featured surrealistic nonverbal and biting social criticism.

"Bringing Up Father," featuring Jiggs and Maggie and launched in 1913, is part of the new stamp set, as are "Frisay Kat," "Rube Goldberg Inventions" and "Toonerville Folks."

"Gasoline Alley," another strip that's still running, in which the characters actually age, is included. "Barney Google" and his horse Spark Plug are there, though they are new part of the "Sandy Smith" comic.

There's "Little Orphan Annie" and "Popeye" as well as "Blondie," "Dick Tracy" and "Alley Oop," the forerunner of the "Flintstones."

"Nancy" and her friend Sluggo enjoy ice cream on one stamp, while "L'il Abner" embraces Daisy Mae on another.

Senate confirmation process is on trial too

By WALTER R. MEARS
An AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Welcome to the club, one senator said, telling Dr. Henry Foster that it must be mystifying to hear his career replayed in bits and pieces that would make his own resume hard to recognize.

Another said Foster was entitled to "the presumption of innocence" as if he were up for trial, rather than for confirmation to become surgeon general.

Observations like these, from skeptics as well as supporters, came again and again during two days of hearings on the Foster nomination. Whatever the outcome for him, the confirmation process is at issue too.

It can, and often has, become an ordeal for the men and women a president nominates to serve in administration posts or for federal judgeships. It also can become a barrier, prompting prospective nominees to say no.

The answer to that always has been that there are plenty of other qualified candidates ready to take the job involved. They may not always hold true, given the torturous track awaiting a nominee who stirs controversy.

Foster has been on his track for three months, with weeks more to go. There is the prospect that eventually it will hit a dead end, clouded, as he said himself, by abortion and "the issue of my credibility, which has never ever been questioned before."

It is being challenged now, by Republican opponents, in a campaign that will intensely scrutinize the nomination he sent from the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee to the full Senate. Democrats contended that the credibility questions are cover for opposition really based on the abortion issue.

On that, Foster and the White House wrenched their own problems with initial misstatements on the number of abortions he performed. He now puts it at 38.

Foster, an obstetrician-gynecologist from Nashville, said he'd relied on memory at first without checking the records, and that was a mistake.

"But it was an honest mistake," Foster said. "I am a doctor. I had never experienced anything like the media scrutiny that I attracted following my nomination. In my desire to provide instant answers ... I spoke without having all of the facts."

At that point, he wasn't getting much help from the White House aides who do know the system, in part because of the assumption there that a board physician with a pioneering 35-year career, honored by a Republican president and praised by his friend and fellow physician, GOP Sen. Bill Frist, would be a no-problem nominee.

That led to unasked questions, unchecked records and to the controversy that persists.

Foster heightened it himself with his slip of the tongue complaint about white-right wing extremists, and his comment that there was something fishy about the way black nominees have been treated.

"Race has no part in this," he told the committee.

Politics does, on a nomination now tangled in rival campaigns for the GOP presidential nomination. Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas threatened a filibuster to block Foster. Sen. Bob Dole, front-runner for the nomination, said he may use his power as majority leader to prevent a vote in any event, insisting that the issue is truthfulness, not abortion.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas, the committee chairman, backs Dole for president but not his argument on Foster. "He has been made into a pawn in our abortion debates," she said.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-

Conn., who made the "presumption of innocence" comment, said he fears that what Foster encountered "would discourage other good people in any administration when asked to step forward and serve their country."

Sen. James Jeffords, R-Vt., told Foster he can be proud of his work and mystified at the way it has been dissected. "It may be small consolation, but welcome to the club," Jeffords said. "We all go through it in political campaigns." He said he's sorry the same pattern often marks confirmation proceedings.

"We are not here to rummage through the attic of his life in search of every possible mistake or imperfection," said Frist. It happens.

IN BRIEF

McGriff, Braves top Marlins

MIAMI — Fred McGriff drove in two runs and the Atlanta Braves capitalized on wildness by the Florida Marlins for a 6-4 win Wednesday. The base runners scoring Atlanta's first four runs all reached on a walk. Another reached on an error and later scored on a wild pitch. Tom Glavine (1-0) gave up two runs in the first but settled down and pitched 5 1/2 innings for the win, allowing six hits and three walks. Though out-hit 12-8, Atlanta improved to 6-1. The Marlins have lost six of seven, the worst start in their three-year history.

Bucs sign Brooks, three others

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers aren't wasting any time signing their draft picks. Derrick Brooks, the 28th player taken in last month's draft, signed a four-year contract, while three other picks agreed to terms Wednesday. The signing of Brooks, a linebacker from Florida State, came less than a week after Warren Sapp, the club's other first-round pick, received a four-year, $4.4 million contract. Brooks' college teammate, cornerback Clifton Abraham, was one of the three Tampa Bay picks agreeing to terms Wednesday. He was selected in the fifth round. Linebacker Wardell Rouse, a sixth-round pick from Clemson, and Maryland offensive lineman Steve Ingram, selected in the seventh round, also agreed to terms.

Senators get past Lightning

ST. PETERSBURG — Evgeny Davydov and Steve Larouche scored 11 seconds apart early in the third period, leading Ottawa to a 4-3 victory against Tampa Bay in the regular season finale for both Wednesday night. The Senators won four of their last five games and took the season series from Tampa Bay 3-1. The Lightning (17-28-3) slumped badly during an aborted playoff push, losing their last six games and eight of their last 11.

AROUND THE NATION

Magic go up 2-1 on Celtics

BOSTON — The Orlando Magic overcame the determined Boston Celtics, a raucous crowd and their reputation for losing big games. The young Magic came through down the stretch Wednesday night, scoring the last eight points to beat Boston 82-77. Leading 8-1, they can close out the best-of-5 series and slam the doors on the old Boston Garden with a Game 4 victory Friday night. Shaquille O'Neal had 20 points and a season-high 21 rebounds in front of a full house in the building that the Celtics will leave for the new FleetCenter next season. Nick Anderson led the Magic with 24 points. Boston was led by Dominique Wilkins and Dee Brown with 18 points each. Dino Radja had 15.

Panthers close with win

PITTSBURGH — Jaromir Jagr set up Pittsburgh's first goal to continue the Penguins' run of NHL scoring champions, but four consecutive Florida goals rallied the Panthers to a 4-3 victory Wednesday night. Jagr, finishing with a flurry of four goals and an assist in his last three games, became the first European player to lead the NHL in scoring. Jagr and Philadelphia's Eric Lindros tied with 70 points apiece in the shortened 48-game season, but Jagr led 32-29 in goals. The Penguins have won three of the last four and five of the last eight NHL scoring titles. Mario Lemieux, sitting out this season for health reasons, won in 1988, 1989, 1992 and 1993. Jason Woolley, Bill Lindsay, Gaetan Duchene, and Scott Mellanby scored for the Panthers.

FSU thrashes Mercer

MACON, Ga. — Jeremy Balasar's three-run homer highlighted a five-run ninth inning as Florida State beat Mercer 18-3 Wednesday in the Seminole's first trip to Macon since 1983. Florida State set the tone early by sending 11 batters to the plate in a seven-run second inning to jump out to an 8-0 lead. Mickey Lopes, Randy Hodges and Brooks Badaux each had three hits for Florida State.

Seminoles, Greyhounds chase state golf crowns

From wire reports

SARASOTA — Seminole's Jeremy Anderson and Lyman's Megan Breen were in the hunt for individual medalist honors and, as a result, had their schools in position to make a run for the team championships in the Class 6A state golf tournament. Playing on the 6,845-yard course at the Misty Creek Country Club, Anderson carded a 2-under-par 70 during Wednesday's first round, leaving him a stroke behind leader Steve Scott of Coral Springs heading into today's final round.

Seminole teammate Matt Kuchar shot a 75, putting him 12th in the individual standings. Led by Anderson and Kuchar, Seminole put up a team score of 307 for the first round, leaving the Tribe in a tie for third with Jacksonville-Sandalwood behind Coral Springs (293) and Dr. Phillips (303). Also contributing to the Seminole's team score were Tort Carl, who came in with an 80, and Richie Billa, who had a first-round score of 82. Scott Sturgill shot a 123 for the Tribe. Meanwhile, in the Class 6A girls meet at the Jacaranda West Country Club, Breen and the Lyman Greyhounds were second in the team standings after Wednesday's first round with a composite score of 339, just five strokes off the pace set by Parkland-Douglas (334). Individually, Breen shot a 78 Wednesday, placing her in a tie for seventh with Gonzalez-Tate's Angela Waters. Beanie Phillips of Lake Worth-John I. Leonard topped the leader board with her 72. Rounding the Greyhounds' team score were Robin Rhein (83), Michelle Keefe (89), and Bronwyn Kohn (89). Christina Keller (101) also represented Lyman.

Top seeds make finals

Dixon, defense lift Lyman

LONGWOOD — Led by strong pitching and defensive play, the Lyman Greyhounds advanced to the championship game of the 6A-District 4 baseball tournament with a 3-1 victory over the Lake Mary Rams Wednesday night at Lyman High School's Carlton Henley Athletic Complex.

Lyman, the No. 2 seed, will play top-seeded Lake Howell (a 3-2 winner over Oviedo) for the district title Friday at 8 p.m.

"Tommy Dixon pitched a great ballgame tonight, but you expect that out of your No. 1 pitcher and he performed," said Lyman coach Bob McCollough. "We generated enough runs to get ahead and force them (Lake Mary) to come after us. And we just made some super plays to keep them from catching us."

The Greyhounds (No. 8 in this week's FSWA Class 6A state poll) took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when starter Mike Metcalf scored on a wild pitch. Lyman doubled its lead in the third, when Bruce Robby drove in Freddie Young.

Lake Mary's lone run came in the top of the fourth inning when Rene Perez's RBI single brought in Nick Sosa, who had reached on a walk.

The Greyhounds' final run came in the bottom of the fourth inning when Mike Paulus scored on a wild throw to first base during an attempt to complete a double play.

Luis Rivera went the distance on the mound for the Rams, giving up three runs on six hits with four strikeouts and four walks.

Dixon gave up just the one run on three hits, striking out seven and walking four.

Lyman's starting pitcher Mike Metcalf (No. 10) and Lake Howell starter Ricky Padilla (No. 22) hiting) worked into the seventh inning of their 6A-District 4 tournament semifinal game Wednesday night at Lyman High School. Padilla, who hit an RBI single off Metcalf in the fifth, and the Silver Hawks rallied for a 3-2 win.

Bases-loaded walk boosts Hawks

LONGWOOD — Top-seeded Lake Howells rallied in the seventh inning to climb past the Oviedo Lions, 3-2, in the semifinals of the 6A-District 4 baseball tournament Wednesday night at Lyman High School.

The Silver Hawks (21-8) will play No. 2-seed Lyman (a 3-1 winner over Lake Mary) for the district championship at 8 p.m. Friday at Lyman High School.

"We were kind of sluggish out there for a while," said Lake Howell coach Birto Benjamin. "We really weren't swinging the bat that well. Hopefully, that will change in the next game. We're right where we want to be and we are going to do whatever it takes to stay there."

The Silver Hawks broke the scoreless tie in the fifth, when Ricky Padilla drove in Peter Oill (who singled to start the inning) with a shot to center field.

Oviedo tied the score in the sixth on Brion King's single that plated Mike Bergman, then went up 2-1 in the seventh as Adam Coleman scored on Slade Hodges'

RBI single. Lake Howell answered in the home half of the inning with three consecutive singles, including a RBI safety by Matt Huston. With the score tied, and runners on first and third, John Schiemer was intentionally walked to load the bases.

An infield fly later, Ricky Lieflander drew a walk, forcing in the winning run for the Silver Hawks.

Padilla started for Lake Howell and worked 6 1/2 innings, giving up two runs on eight hits with four strikeouts and no walks. Mike Johnson came on in the seventh and got an inning-ending double play.

Mark Metcalf started for the Lions and worked six innings, giving up three runs on six hits with six strikeouts and no walks. Coleman relieved Metcalf in the seventh inning and gave up two walks (one intentional).

Kinley wins Late Model 50-lapper

By PAUL MARSELLA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Osteen's Marc Kinley, driving the Applebee's/Knight's Inn/Longwood Lincoln Mercury Ford Probe, captured the Late Model 50-lap End of the Month championship last Friday, April 28, at Orlando Speedway.

For Kinley, it was the first Late Model victory of the year. Kinley, who set the evening's second-fastest qualifying time, started the race from the fifth position.

At the end of the second lap, Kinley was in second place. Four laps later, he got around front-running Johnny Gaskacko for the No. 1 spot.

Kinley moved through the field with the evening's top qualifier, Bobby Coyle, riding his rear bumper. Throughout the caution-free race, Kinley and Coyle were never separated by more than two car lengths.

"The car felt real funny throughout the race," said Kinley, the 1994 Florida Pro Series Rookie of the Year. "We later found out I had a front tire going down."

"Woody from Bemco helped us set the car up tonight and that gave us a few seconds advantage. If it wasn't for that, the tire could have been a problem."

Kinley, who had a mirror full of Coyle the entire race, used lapped traffic to help keep Coyle behind him.

"It was a good race right to the wire," said Kinley. "I really have to hand it to Bobby (Coyle)."

Hughes hangs on in Patterson run

BAMSBULA — Orlando's Greg Hughes, piloting the Advantage Carpentry Cavalier, held off a hard-charging Mike Fitch to win the 100-lap Tommy Patterson Memorial for Modifieds last Saturday night, April 29, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Tommy Patterson, who competed at New Smyrna Speedway in the Thundercar and Modified divisions, was stricken with Lou Gehrig's Disease and passed away in 1993 at the age of 42.

Hughes, who set the evening's second-fastest qualifying time, started the race from the sixth position. On lap 10, he moved into second place. Nine laps later, he assumed the lead.

"I hadn't planned on taking the lead that early," said Hughes, 36, who has been racing for six years. "The race more or less just came to me and I had to take it."

Hughes took the lead from Wayne Parker, who later relinquished second place to Fitch on lap 21.

For the remainder of the race, Hughes and Fitch raced nose-to-tail. Fitch used an inside pass to get by Hughes on lap 88. Two laps later, Hughes regained the point.

"He got a little bit high, so I made my move," said Fitch, a former FASCAR Modified champion. "I know now I made it a little too early. The tires were still cool from a caution and he got me a few laps later."

Cards, Marlins eke out victories

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Two teams trying to make up ground in the Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League's National Division did so Wednesday night at the expense of a pair of American Division teams.

At Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Knights of Columbus Cardinals improved their record to 4-5 with 9-8 come-from-behind win over the Signs by Design A's (8-8). Meanwhile, at Zinn Beck Field, the Seminole Produce Marlins reached .500 (5-5) by hanging on for a 10-7 decision over the Kiwanis Club Indians (4-8).

Aaron Richardson scored three runs for the Cardinals and singled home J.W. Harkness with the go-ahead run in the bottom of the sixth inning. William Kirby added a two-run single.

Horace Stokes had a single, a run, and an RBI. Levin Raines also singled and scored a run. Eric Sperry, Donovan Daniels, and Corey Murkey each scored a run.

Providing the offense for the A's were Tim Byrd (double, run, two RBIs); Joe Sodheim (single, two runs, RBI); Chad Getchall (single, run, RBI); Mike Arrington and Terrell Bender (each with a single and a run); Johnathan Eaddy (single, RBI); Charlie McLain (single); Brett Witte and Anton Floyd (one run each); and Donta Harper (RBI).

George Chamis drove in four runs for the Marlins with a double and a single. George Jennings hit a two-run single. James Gunn had a single, two runs, and an RBI. Mike Robinson

Twin girls are 'exciting'

Childless couple adopt twins from China

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

DEBARY - Like most married couples John and Lynn Cook yearned to begin a family. Lynn, a registered nurse and her husband of six years, John, a computer analyst for Cincinnati Bell Information Systems, "took their desire to the Lord and prayed for God's intervention."

As 6-year residents of DeBary, the Cooks' home was quiet without children. Yet, now a phone call to the couple echoes the squeals and giggles of 1-year-old twins they adopted from China. The Cooks clearly emphasized that all the glory goes to God for orchestrating such happiness in their lives. Attempts for adoption began after some time of "trying to have a family and not able to." One day, "while sitting on TV on a patient" this patient shared some news that changed the Cooks' lives. He told Lynn of an adopted child his own daughter had acquired through China. As hope filled her heart, Lynn began her search.

She inquired about adoption through Holt International. "They have 40 some years experience and a good reputation," said Lynn. "The manager of the Orlando office, Mr. (Pat) Williams, went through Holt International."

Although Lynn shared that is "quite unusual" for China to give two adoptive children, the Cooks did receive twins. "Normally China only gives children with disabilities for those requesting a second child. Given our ages we weren't sure what would happen."

The couple then contacted Beijing. "We were told for a second child we would have to leave the country and then return," she said. "We were unsure. Then in November after our mid-June application we found out there were twins available."

"The couple went through the required home study. All the information they knew at this point about the girls was that they were healthy."

In November the director of Holt International flew to Beijing to hand over the application to the Chinese government. "Three days before Christmas we got word that we could adopt them," said Lynn. "Two days before Christmas we received pictures. The children had been abandoned at a hospital and were at an orphanage for a short time. They were placed to go into foster homes and not the same home."

Finally, at the end of February, the Cooks went to China. "We met their foster families and got to see the country where the twins came from," said Lynn. "It helped to fill a few holes from their past."

Five other couples joined the journey to also adopt children of their own. "From start to finish the process was less than eight months," said Lynn. "It was less than a pregnancy."

She further added that the Chinese government was very cooperative and well-organized. "We were treated graciously, the visits were short and we felt we were able to breeze through. We went through several cities in China."

In order to "fill in those gaps" the couple took their own camera. Lynn expressed that they wanted to "do a story for the girls so when they're older this might fill in the gaps. We also brought a gift bag to the foster families. We brought dolls for the girls and showed the dolls on the video."

Lynn concluded by saying, "It's exciting. We're so grateful to God that we have these precious little girls."

Dating basis of commitment

DEAR ABBY: It has been said that you don't really know people until you've lived with them, but that's like putting the cart before the horse.

The process of dating is for the purpose of getting to know a person. It is a time for sharing likes and dislikes, beliefs, habits and faults, as well as good characteristics.

Each situation, whether a dinner date, movie date, sporting event, picnic, church service, a game of cards, a day at the beach or amusement park, cooking together, presents a different "atmosphere."

The longer the relationship endures, the more opportunities to detect characteristics of honesty (or dishonesty), jealousy, possessiveness, tenderness, cruelty, etc.

All of this can be done without a sexual relationship. When and if both parties arrive at the conclusion that this is a lasting love - not lust or infatuation - then a marriage commitment can be made.

I do not want someone's rejected lover after they have lived together - and then discovered it was not good.

WE'RE WAITING IN FLORIDA
DEAR WAITING: Congratulations. Obviously, the more exposure, the better the opportunity to observe the potential mate. I am reminded of the old saying, "If you want to know how a man will treat his wife, take careful notice of how he treats his mother and his sister." And the same can be said about women and how they treat the men in their lives.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the person who received an invitation to a wedding, and later learned that the bride couple had sent out two sets of invitations - one for a church ceremony followed by a dinner, the other for a dance with cash, punch and a cash bar.

ADVISE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

You agreed with the writer in assuming that the newlyweds wanted as many gifts as possible.

I disagree. I am being married next year, and I come from a very religious family. They'd be upset attending an affair where alcohol is served.

However, my fiance and his family enjoy alcohol, and they would be very disappointed if alcohol was not served. Most of our friends also drink alcohol, so I can understand why a couple might have two receptions.

Here's my solution: I will have two receptions, and I'll leave it to my guests to decide which one they want to attend - and if I end up with a lot of gifts, all the better for me!

FROM THE EQUUS
DEBARY, PA.

DEAR ABBY: "Fed Up in California" wrote in complaint about guests who turned down dinner invitations to her home when invited. I'm surprised that you totally missed the obvious - there must be a reason why people are reluctant to go to her house for a meal. C'mon, Abby!

We have some good friends who are wonderful people. They are great guests and can keep you entertained for hours. But eat at their houses? Never!

WILLIAMS & BARNES
REASON KNIGHT

The place is a pigsty. They have three dogs and a cat who are covered with fleas. They scratch constantly and lie around all over the furniture. These people kill flies with a rolled-up newspaper and leave the little corpses lying wherever they fall - on countertops, tables, furniture, etc.

They keep inviting us over for dinner, and we keep dodging them because just the thought of eating there makes us queasy.

So, maybe "Fed Up" should step back and take a good look at herself and her home. She may be in for a rude awakening.

DEAR TERRY, SEND THAT!

DEAR SENOR JERRY: You say that these friends are "wonderful people." I believe you, but if you truly value their friendship, don't keep them in the dark.

Tell them the truth, with love and candor. It would be one of the best gifts they ever received.

How much medicine can a person take?

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a male in my early 40s with many illnesses that require medicine out of 23 containers a day, which is about 90 doses. How does my body distribute so much medicine? Obviously, some of my problems have been caused from side effects of drugs, such as steroids. My case is a very complicated one, but I'm at a loss to understand how everything works on the right ailment.

DEAR READER: Your problem is not unique. Termed "poly-pharmacy" by the medical profession, it provides a major challenge for both patients and doctors.

First of all, most medicines are not like a "smart bomb"; they do not target individual diseases and organs. Rather, there is a wide overlap.

For example, you mention steroids. These drugs are very beneficial for many diseases; however, they affect virtually every organ in the body.

Corticosteroids, prednisone and the like cause a tremendous number of side effects, including diabetes, cataracts, brittleness of bones, immune deficiency, changes in appearance, and many other complications.

Cardiovascular drugs, such as beta-blockers and calcium-channel blockers, cause constipation, fatigue and urinary problems, among others. Diuretics, such as Lasix, lead to potassium depletion and kidney malfunction. The list goes on.

One of my primary responsibilities, when I see a new patient, is to review his or her treatment plan, eliminate unnecessary drugs, change others, and generally try to simplify dosing schedules in order to avoid the very problem you have: too many medicines in too complex a dosing pattern.

In short, I doubt that you really need all the drugs you have been prescribed. What's more, some of your prescriptions may actually be required to treat the complications of your other medications.

I recommend that you ask your family doctor for an in-depth interview to review each medicine, its purpose and side effects, with a goal toward reducing your problem of poly-pharmacy.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicine."

STUMPED? Call by Answer @ 1-800-4-A-WORD or 1-800-4-WORD.

By Phillip Alder

A few years ago, the English satirical magazine Punch died. It began publication around 1841, so it was something of an institution in England. I was sorry it faded, but I must admit that I wasn't a subscriber.

In 1878, Punch included this line: "I am not hungry; but thank goodness, I am greedy." Well, the declarer in today's deal was greedy. And when the cards made him pay for his greed, he had to go hungry, having lost the money with which he was going to buy himself dinner.

South might have rebid three no-trump to offer a choice of contracts, but he was worried his partner would pass when the diamonds were too weak for no-trump.

After winning the club lead in his hand with the king, South cashed the spade ace, dropping West's queen. This should have sounded a warning bell, but South felt confident that West had played the queen from G-J -- or maybe even from G-J-x. He continued with the spade king. When West discarded a low heart, South suddenly saw the error of his avaricious ways. He had no way to avoid losing four tricks: two spades, one diamond and one club.

South should have ensured an evening meal by continuing with a low spade from hand at trick three. Here, East wins dummy's 10 with his jack and returns, say, the diamond king. South wins in hand with the ace, plays a heart to dummy's ace and finessees his useful spade eight. Declarer draws East's last trump and concedes three tricks.

Don't overlook a safety-play that will cement your contract.

Phillip Alder's new book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 5, 1988

Listen carefully to propositions brought to you in the year ahead by relatives, in-laws or friends of the family. Any or all might put you on the track to something good.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though you might not be in complete accord with a position a friend takes, at least try to be supportive today. He/She would be grateful. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and $35 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4468, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be inclined to coast today unless your ambitions are aroused by some type of material motivation. When money talks, you walk.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

You might have some minor frustrations to contend with today, but if you treat them philosophically, they'll prove manageable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions could make a change for the better today and offer opportunities where only limitations existed before. Prepare to move, and to move fast.

VERGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today's events might unfold in a way that provides you with a better understanding of someone you've disagreed with lately. Let bygones be bygones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This could be a very productive and rewarding day for you, so once you get rolling, keep moving. Your enthusiasm will probably increase with your efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you get involved in some type of competitive sport today, don't become overwhelmed by the reputation of your opponent. You can give as good as you get.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Domestic concerns requiring your attention should be given priority over all other interests today. It will put your mind at ease when they are settled.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Companions might dodge making difficult decisions today, but you won't need to. You can face life realistically, logically weighing your alternatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Financial forces will be favorable for you today. Your possibilities for personal gain look good, provided you're willing to put forth the effort required.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may not realize the full power of your current popularity with your peers. Make it a point not to slight anyone or play favorites.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This will be a good day to attend to matters that, up until now, you've left incomplete. Cut your to-do list in half, but start with the toughest projects.
