Winn Dixie robbed. cops seek information

SANFORD - He took the money and ran. An unidentified man made off with an undisclosed amount of money from the Winn Dixie marketplace, 1514 S. French Ave., Sanford, late last night.

According to Sanford Police, witnesses said the man was in the store for about half an hour when he suddenly burst into the office at about 10:50 p.m. and told three employees that he'd 'shoot if he didn't get some money. Police said the victims believed he had a gun though they never saw one.

In the office, the victims said he filled a bag he had brought in with him with money from a bin on the deak and from a till before demanding to know "where the big money" was kept.

When the safe was opened, he removed several stacks of money from it. He dropped one of the stacks of money by accident, which caused a laceration on the legs of one of the

After the bag was filled, the man ran from the store and was last seen heading north across the parking lot and turning the corner to go behind the building.

The robber is described as a white male. wearing blue pants, a plaid shirt, a denim jacket, a hat and black Nizes. He is described as having short blond hair and a mustache.

Anyone who has any information about the suspect should call the Sanford Police Department at 325-3030.

Lakeview shares secrets of success

SANFORD — They must be doing something right at Lakeview Middle School in Sanford.

Administrators from the Duval County (Jacksonville) schools visited the school earlier this week to see how the students there are succeeding and thriving, though many are economically disadvantaged and come to the school several years behind academically.

"I did a presentation at a state Department of Education program on improving the quality of education." said Jim Shupe, Lakeview's principal. "It was on breaking the mold cost free."

Shupe said he has turned Lakeview around without spending huge sums of money on equipment or other items. He said that getting the students to "stay in line" and to respect themselves and others is the key to other BUCCESSES.

"They were interested in improving their test scores because the state had found some of their schools to be substandard based on test scores," Shupe said. "But I told them that wasn't happening until you have a safe, orderly environment for the students to learn in."

Police 'wolfpacks,' checkpoints try to stem holiday road deaths

By Bill BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The state will send "wolfpacks" of roving troopers to roads where drunken driving has caused problems to try to stem rising alcohol-related traffic deaths during the holidays.

"The Christmas and New Year's period is the most deadly," Lt. Col. Curt Hall, deputy director of field operations for the highway patrol, told a news conference Thursday on plans to crack down on alcohol- and drug-impaired drivers.

Alcohol-related traffic deaths increased to 961 last year from 944 in 1993, the first rise since 1988, Hall said. The number injured in crashes involving alcohol was up for the second consecutive year, to 23,556.

Gov. Lawton Chiles has proclaimed December "Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month" and declared Dec. 15 "Lights on for Life Day" on the highways, said Roger Doherty of the state Department of Transportation.

Boaters also will face scrutiny, said officials of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and Florida Marine Patrol who enforce safety on the waterways. Alcohol-related boating deaths dropped to 11 in 1994 from 22 in 1993 but officials have counted 16 so far this year, said Florida Marine Patrol Lt. Alan Richard. Mothers Against Drunk Driving will try to step up pressure against impaired driving by asking the 1998 Legislature to pass a so-called zero tolerance law for motorists under 21, MADD state secretary Barbara

The law would set a .02 maximum blood alcohol level for under-21 drivers instead of the state's .08 limit for ali motorists.

The level would be .02 because opponents have argued in the past that with a limit of zero, minors

During the holidays, the Highway Patrol will set up checkpoints to look for people driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs, and sasign selective enforcement "wolfpacks" of eight or ten troopers to intensively patrol roads where drunken driving is a problem.

"Most of our local commanders know where the problem areas are and that's where those people will be deployed," said Hall.

Lake Mary kicks off Christmas season

By CHARL BRODIE Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The weather outside should be delightful as the city of Lake Mary prepares to get a good start on the holiday season tonight.

As a predicted cold front passes through the area, the stage should be set for the biggest and best snowfall this area has seen in quite some time, and the best part of it all is it will all be contained on the grounds of Lake Mary City Hall.

Olde Lake Mary Holidays is a cooperative effort between the city of Lake Mary, FOX 35 Kid's Club, Lake Mary Woman's Club and the Stardust Service Unit of Girls Scouts.

The festivities begin at 6:30 p.m. when Santa arrives. The Lake Mary High School Christmas Band will present an assortment of favorite Christmas tunes followed by the carols of the Girls Scouts □Bee Christmas, Page SA

State division head resigns

TALLAHASSEE - The head of the state office that regulates restaurants and hotels, with questions about his academic credentials unresolved, resigned Thursday for personal reasons, an official said.

John Billingsley told his staff Thursday afternoon he was resigning effective Dec. 31, according to Ed Towey, a spokesman for the Department of Business and Professional

The DBPR inspector general has not finished an investigation into an anonymous tip that Billingsley didn't earn a bachelor's degree from Boston University as claimed on his application.

Boston University records indicate Billingsley attended the school from September 1969 through May 1973 but did not earn a degree.

Billingsley made $69,000 heading the DPBR's Division of Hotels and Restaurants with a $12 million budget and several

Cruise through toll booths

Sometime in mid-1997, drivers on Florida's Turnpike will be able to cruise through toll booths without stopping.
Rather than stopping to pay tolls, drivers will be able to pay in advance with the SunPass system, said turnpike Director SunPass will use electronic scanners at toll booths to read bar codes on windshields. While the new system will be open to all drivers, Ely said SunPass should be of particular interest to truckers. Officials hope it will encourage truckers to switch from interstate 95 to the turnpike. And, as an added incentive to encourage truckers to use the turnpike, reduced rates will be offered for trucks with five or more axles. Ely said. The reduced rates begin New Year's Day and will continue throughout 1996.

The reduction is part of a program aimed at curbing truck accidents on the interstate.

Car rental agency loses appeal

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fig. - A jury has ordered Alamo Rent-A-Car Inc. to pay a Dania man $1.5 million for his 1986 false arrest after the company reported the car he had rented and returned as stolen.

Michael Mancusi was awarded $310,000 in compensatory damages Monday and another $1.2 million in punitive damages Thursday in Broward County Circuit Court.

It was the second time a jury had sided with Mancusi. A jury in 1990 awarded Michael Mancusi $3 million in the same case but Alamo won an appeal for a new civil trial.

Sandy Richards, a spokeswoman for Alamo, said the company would not comment on the case and the decision. The company has 10 days to file an appeal.

Mancusi rented an Oldsmobile Calais from the Fort Lauderdale-based company for a week on July 15, 1986. He kept the car longer and didn't expect problems because of his history as an Alamo customer. He said he received a letter from Alamo demanding the car's return three weeks later, and a company employee agreed to an extension over the telephone. Mancust said he returned the car Aug. 27 after a police detective told him it listed on a "hot sheet" of stolen cars.

But on Sept. 2 an Alamo employee signed an auto-theft arrest amdavit and Mancust was taken to jail 14 days liner.

Women's will benefits students

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. - A Broward County resident who made millions in the stock market has left $1 million in scholarship money for Broward County students, another million to a Michigan college and $100,000 to a Michigan church.

Gertrude Gray died at age 88 in 1989 but her estate is only now being divided because her husband, who was her beneficiary, died last year.

The gift of $1 million to the Broward Community Foundation will let it provide college scholarships to needy students. Between 10 and 20 students will be helped in the first year, said Jan Crocker, foundation president.

She also left a $1 million gift to Albion College, in Albion. Mich., where her first husband Paul Aultman attended school from 1913-1915. The Methodist college provided him with a acholarship to begin his education.

Jim Dolan, who was Gray's accountant and friend, said she left $100,000 to a Methodist Church in Ovid, Mich., because it's where she first met Aultman.

Dolan said Gray took a small inheritance left by Aultman when he died in 1942 and invested it in the stock market. Tobacco giant R.J. Reynolds and Kraft General Foods were her Thursday's open-house cancellation was only the latest chapter in the controversy that began weeks ago.

Senate committee plans to depose campaign staffers

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Senate committee investigating deceptive phone calls by Gov. Lawton Chiles' re-election campaign is widening its probe, the panel's chairman said. Sen. Charlie Crist, chairman of the Executive Business, Ethics and Elections Committee, said the panel will take sworn statements from more than a dozen administrative assistants and other workers in Chiles' campaign and office.

"We want to be thorough but we want to be appropriate. This tries to strike that balance," Crist, R-St. Petersburg, said Thursday. He said he originally planned to haul the staffers before his hearings into the controversy next week. But he decided they would feel more comfortable giving statements to one or two attorneys instead of a panel of lawmakers.

The probe stems from calls the governor's campaign paid National Telecommunications Services Inc. to make last year. For $570,000, the company made 1.1 million calls, including about 70,000 to older voters in which callers did not identify themselves as representing the governor's campaign.

Callers described Republican nominee Jeb Bush as a tax cheat and said his running mate Tom Feeney wanted to abolish Social Security and cut the Medicare health insurance program for the elderly.

They falsely told older voters they represented two indepencommittee, which will begin dent organizations. One group didn't exist and another was a Republican group that had no connection to the calls.

As part of its investigation, the committee also wants to hear from 13 witnesses, including Chiles, Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay. senior advisor Jim Krog and Florida Democratic Party executive director Scott Falmien, who worked on the Chiles campaign.

Chiles' spokesman Ron Sachs said the governor has made it clear he expects anyone who works in his office or worked on his campaign to cooperate.

"While it remains to be seen if Sen. Crist makes it anything but a partisan show. Gov. Chiles expects the best from it, particularly from his own people, Sachs said. Chiles has said he did not know about the calls until last month. He blamed top campaig officials for the calls and applogized to voters.

Americans trying to find more leisure time

Associated Press Writer

The hustle of city life didn't fit Claudia and Eric Sarnow's family plans, so they fled Philadelphia two years ago, leaving behind her designing career and his job as sous chef at the renowned Le Bec Fin restau-

Yet sociologists say one thing has increased steadily with Americans' complaints about lacking time: the amount of free time they enjoy.

Americans are working fewer hours than they were a decade or two ago, but they're trying to cram more activities into a day, sociologists say. "Time has both pace and duration," said Geoffrey Godbey, professor of leisure studies at Pennsylvania State

Marijuana possession alleged

Joseph William Davis, 18, 4288 Rocky Ridge Place, Sanford, and David Columbus Braden, 18, 944 Pledmont Wekiva Road Apopka, were arrested for possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia by Sanford Police on Sunday.

Police said they conducted a traffic stop on the car which was driven by Braden in which Davis was a passenger because they were driving without headlights.

Braden consented to a search of the car, they said. In the car they said they found a pipe used for smoking marijuana and a green leafy substance that tested positive as marijuana.

The two were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held in lieu of $500 bond each.

No bond for probation violation

Stanley Paige. 24, 21 Edward Higgins Terrace, Sanford, remains in the Seminole County Correctional Facility today. He is charged with a probation violation on an aggravated child Deputy Sheriff John Butler arrested Paige Nov. 29 after finding him hiding under a bed in his girifriend's apartment in Sanford. Butler had been trying to serve Paige with the arrest warrant for the past two years, according to sheriff's spokesman, Ed McDonough. At one time, Butler traveled to Paige's hometown, Rochester, N.Y., to look for him.

Paige had been convicted in 1993 of aggravated child abuse after beating a two-year-old child with a belt. The child required medical attention. A Seminole County judge placed Paige on probation but he violated it, McDonough said.

Paige is being held without bond in the county jail.

Feds: More problems

at Florida restaurants

TALLAHASSEE - Florida restaurants seem to be cleaner than they were a decade ago but federal inspectors often pick up on more violations than state regulators, a federal report concludes.

The report by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration comes in the wake of South Florida food-poisoning episodes that sickened hundreds of diners. In August, nearly 200 people were diagnosed with selmonella infections after eating at Margarita y Amigas, a West Palm Beach Mexican restaurant. A month later, 76 Canadian tourists staying at the Four Seasons Ocean Grand in Palm Beach got sick from a buffet contaminated with bacteria.

The FDA found food-storage violations — failure to keep foods at temperatures that prevent food-borne illness — at 38 per-cent of 80 restaurants it checked in the 16-month period ending in deptember. But just 11 percent of the inspections of those restaurants by the state Department of lation listed violations in that category.

The same kind of gap exists when it comes to employee hygiene. FDA inspectors reported poor hygiene, such as failure to wash hands, at 29 percent of the restaurants. State inspectors reported poor hygiene in 6.8 percent of inspections at the same establishments.

Florida needs more inspectors and the ones it has aren't focusing enough on items critical to public health, the federal agency concluded in a analysis of the state's food service sanitation program.

The FDA report also said there is little or no enforcement of sanitation rules in parts of Florida — reportedly because some supervisors worry more about collecting license fees than cleanliness Food safety is of particular concern in Florida, where elderly people make up nearly a quarter of the population and may have weak immune systems that can make food-borne illnesses a life and death leave.

Seminole County hospitality

The snowbirds are coming. With Central Florida's climate still extremely comfortable but cold temperatures and frequent snow now beginning in the northern states, many people will be flocking south for the winter.

Some of these visitors dislike being called a snowbird. Others don't mind, and often use the term in describing themselves.

During the last few months of the year most years, our streets and highways become more and more clossed with vehicles containing out-of-state license tags.

Unfortunately, traffic laws in many states are not the same as ours. As an example, we allow right turns on a red light providing the motorist has made a complete stop and there is no on-coming vehicle which has the right-of-way. Some states ban such turns and the motorists who live there may not know our laws are different.

Also, the strangers may not exactly know where they are going. As a result, they may be driving slower than normal looking for a street name or address.

Likewise, some are traveling in motor homes or pulling boat or camping trailers. For a few, this may be their first time out with large equipment and they may be a bit hesitant, especially in traffic, or making a

Now, probably more than at any other time of the year, our Central Florida motorists need to effereise some added caution. We need to be aware of these visitors and if necessary, change our driving habits.

Take driving to or from work, if we to traveling a specific route at, for example, 60 miles per hour, imagine someone in front of you at a slower speed, and you cannot pass. Live with it. Heading 30 miles at 60 miles per hour, without stops, will get you there in 30 minutes. But if you have to slow down to 55 rather than 60, it will only take you 2.7 minutes longer.

Even if you have to slow from 60 to 50, a 30 mile trip would take only six minutes longer. If you play it that close going to work, you ought to change your habits anyway.

If not, we don't see where 2.7 or six minutes will be any major problem in your

People who come to Florida during the colder months are often regular visitors. While we may have more crowded restaurants, gas stations, mall parking lots or other situations, we must remember that these snowbirds do a lot toward improving the economy of our area.

Yet we know of cases where one action by a "local" has caused the entire city and state to get a bad name. The visitors may go clocwhere next year.

Rather than trying to drive someone off the road and "teach them a leason," let's be patient and show people we are glad they are leader, watching your country fill up with American soldiers under orders to enforce a territorial settlement you regard as an abomination. Knowing that President Clinton sent those troops into Bosnia despite the profound misgivings of the American Congress and the American people, what strategy would you adopt to get rid

One possibility would be to seize a few of them as hostages, to be returned when all the rest had left. But hostage-holding is necessarily precarious: You have to hide your hostages where no one can find them, in a country torn by ethnic, religious and political divisions of every imaginable type.

Far better, such a fanatic might conclude, to start killing a few American soldiers every week by sniper fire. Individual snipers might be caught (and then again, might not), but a group of 10 or 20 of them, sniping separately and melting afterward into crowds of their compatriota, almost certainly could produce a steady toll of deaths.

Then, as the body bags begin to return to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware, President Clinton would have to explain again to his fellow Americans exactly what vital national interest is Does anyone suppose Mr. Clinton has the kind of stamina it would take to stick by his guns in Bosnia straight through an

When the Soviet Union collapsed. leaving the United States as the world's one remaining superpower, the question immediately arose: What should Uncle Sam do with all that firepower? It turned out that our liberals had an

One possibility would be to seize a few of answer: Use it to beat up the bad guys in those relatively small them as hostages, to be returned when all the rest had conflicts that are forever afflicting the

They weren't talking about Saddam Hussein. As a matter of fact, America's vital interests were so plainly threatened by Saddam that many liberals lost interest in opposing him. No -- it was Bosnia that fired the liberal imagination: a notoriously complicated knot in the tangled Balkan skein, where this country has no vital interest whatever but where all virtue (supposedly) resides in the Muslims and all evil in the Serba. Here was a cause pure enough, as liberals saw it, to warrant the shedding of American blood.

As a bonus, barging into Boania would also solve another problem left over from the end of the Cold War: What to do about NATO? That grand alliance, over a space of 40 years, won the Third World War without firing a shot; but what is its role today? By using it as the instrument of a Bosnian policy purportedly laid down by the U.N., that inconvenient question can be postponed indefinitely.

So the troops are on their way. It was too bad that Mr. Clinton's address to the American people on the subject had to coincide with an outburst on the part of the certified nutcake he installed in the presidency of Haiti just last year.

Presumably even Bill Clinton can manage, ultimately, to bring a minor nuisance like Aristide to heel. But in Bosnia Mr. Clinton is playing in a far different league, and for much bigger stakes.

Death: We are failing dismally

BOSTON-The newspaper comes to my doorstep this morning bearing its daily quota of oblinaries. A teacher has died at 68. A costume designer at 81. A civic leader at 79. A company executive at 69.

The lives of these people are described as if the death notice were a resume. The causes of death-cancer, heart failure—are included as if disease itself were a flaw in the human system that science has yet to fix.

What is missing from these pages—what is always missing—are the descriptions of how they died. Was the teacher in pain or at peace? Did the executive have a living will and a doctor who listened? Did the civic leader linger attached to a machine? Was the designer's death one she designed?

I read these pages wondering what would it be like if we listed the way of death as well as the cause of death. Would that make a differ-

Last week, something remarkable happened. The newspapers in this country ran a story about a scientific un-breakthrough. A research project begun with high hopes to test ways of making death in the hospital more humane was pronounced a failure, D.O.A.

The flop was on page one. SO years after Karen Ann Quinian lapsed into a coma. It came after a whole generation of talk about high-tech dying and living wills and the right

When the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation funded this eight-year study, there was a grawing consensus among ethiciets and dectors about how to change the way of dying. If doctors really were sure of the progness of a patient, if they knew what patients wanted and didn't want, surely there would be less pain, fewer t hereits measures " and more care in the hosestal care of the dates." hospital care of the dying.

Study to Understand Prognoses and Preferences for Outcomes and Risks of Treatments—placed nurses in five teaching hospitals to facilitate these changes. But as Dr. Joanne Lynn, a co-director of the project says. t 'We did what everyone thought would work and it didn't work at all, not even a quive.

Half of the patients still died in pain. Huge gape remained between what patients said they wanted and what doctors did. Living wills didn't help. There was too little talk, too late. Too many people died alone, attached to

The easy villains of the story would be the paternalistic doctors who remain convinced they know what's best for the patient even if the patient disagrees. There's enough truth in that image to make Boston University ethicist George Annas warn that t t if dying patients want to retain some control over their dying process, they must get out of the hospital if they are in and stay out of the hospital if they

A more benign interpretation is that the culture of medicine—from school to training to practice—teaches doctors to regard death only as defeat. Even when dealing with the terminally ill, they talk about life and death decisions when they are really dealing with death and death decisions. But Dr. Lynn believes that the problem runs deeper than doctors who don't listen. "This wasn't a group of doctors dedicated to finding the last possible date on the tombstone. What we I read these learned was that pages wondering what would it be like the conspiracy of stience about death was stronger than if we listed the we expected and way of death as the force of habit well as the was also stronger cause of death? than we expected. "

On a day-to-day basis, neither doctors nor patients were talking about what the patients wanted. They were both following the cultural script, talking about the next chemotherapy, the next procedure. They were patching, fixing, going from crists to crists without ever asking.
"How can I live well while dying?"
"We are all involved in the dance of silence,"

t believes Dr. Lynn. Even families go through this painful process wanting one thing: "to pass the mirror test. They want to be able to look at themselves when it's all over and say I was a decent person." Close up, that " decen-cy+' is still defined as fighting death. But when you stand back from the mirror, as this study does, it's a sorry reflection.

Hospitals are not the only places where we die. There are hospices and homes. There are as well, the "tender mercies" of Dr. Kevorkian and the moral ambiguities of doctor-assisted

But the majority of Americans end their lives in hospitals. As long as hospitals reject a humane role in helping people die, we are failing dismally as doctors, as friends, as family, and as fellow travelers through what the pealmist calls "the valley of the shadow of

Odd program saps Labor's funds

WASHINGTON - Labor Secretary Robert Reich has developed a "portrait of a super-saver" as part of a new campaign to get his fellow baby-boomers to be more thrifty.

But some officials inside the Labor Department think Reich and the other promoters well-intentioned Retirement Savings Educa-tion Campaign should take some of their own advice and save money.

"It's a wonderfully noble cause," says one Labor Depart-ment official, "but it has absolutely nothing to do with" the mandate of Labor's Pension and Welfare Benefita

Administration. (1) 71. PWBA. which is supposed to investigate pension fraud, is having its budget slashed. "How are you going to justify climinating investigators or anyone elae (at PWBA) when you're spending this kind of money on a frill that you're not even supposed to be do ing?" asked this source. Labor sources speculate that when all production and personnel costs are figured in. the public education campaign could cost taxpayers as much as $2 million. The public face of the campaign will be the "super-saver" portrait of a female paramedic "in full uniform; arms crossed; upright and proud; big grin." In addition to saving lives, the adexplains, she saves a percentage of her take-home pay.

In reality, however, the "big grin" might belong to the spin-meisters who are being paid to promote the program. Although four Wells Fargo security guards were hired to carry in four canvas bags of cash into the campaign's kick-off event last July to dramatize the power of early investing, the Labor Department's decision to pay a public relations firm $250,000 to spearhead publicity suggests the department has money

The department spent $8,000 just to move an existing stage at the its headquarters to enhance television coverage of the kick-off event, at which Reich complained that 'Americans are not saving enough." In addition. $35,000 is being spent to produce televised public service announcements, while $40,000 has been budgeted for developing and distributing announcements for the print media.

The program has been so strapped for funds that officials have been shaking piggy-banks within the department looking for loose change, according to internal notes of a strategy meeting last month.

Officials noted that the PWBA has no extra funds to spend because of a nearly 13 percent cut in funding, but raised the pussibility that other funds could be accessed. The financial accuses might force cancellation of a major squeese might force cancellation of a major press conference planned for January.

A Labor Department spokeswoman told us they originally sought private-sector "partners" to "limit the expense," but now taxpayers are picking up the entire tab.

Officials have declared the initial phase of the campaign a success and are preparing to launch a second phase, which will include an aggressive print and electronic media campaign of public service announcements and "canned" articles that officials hope will run in thousands of newspapers.

Reich's aides are preparing a letter on the savings crisis to Ann Landers, whose nationally syndicated advice column is counted on to garner lots of free publicity. The David Letterman and Oprah Winfrey shows will also be targeted, presumably with Reich making guest appearances. Organizers are even trying to line up actress Alexandria Paul, who plays a lifeguard on television's "Baywatch" to serve as celebrity spokesperson.

Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black said the railroad is prepared to cope with the elimination of operating subsidies, although it will continue to seek assistance for capital construction. A separate Amtrak bill is pending in the Senate.

Created in 1970 to take over passenger rail services that private railroads no longer wanted to operate, Amtrak was mandated to maintain basic service. Its government subsidy has topped $1.2 billion in some years, but it has been less than half that in others. Critics have urged ending the subsidy and forcing Amtrak to exist on its own, while defenders maintain that the government has an obligation to continue to subsidize service.

The House bill would phase out the subsidy while moving Amtrak to a more businesslike system of operation, lift several federal requirements for specific passenger services, disband the current Amtrak board, create a new management system and authorise sale of stock in the railroad.

A provision that would limit punitive damages to $250,000 for people injured in railroad accidents drew fire from Rep. Cardies Collins, D-Ill., who said, "This is wrong, it's nonsensical and it's simply unfair."

working days. It was a study of the physical condition of the building and of the financial consequences of pursuing the conversion of that building as a public safety facility compared with renovating and expanding the new building or building an entirely new complex.

It was his opinion that the First Federal building would not be an appropriate choice because it would require too much money to bring it to a point where it could be used as a police station.

Donald Carrigan, the investor who purchased the building from the Resolution Trust Corporation and who hopes to lease it to the city, said the figures Reeves used are wrong and that it would actually cost the city far less to convert the old bank building for their use.

According to Carrigan, it would cost $2,500,000 to ready the building for use as a public safety complex and to pay the lease amount. That figure is far less than the $5,400,960 the architect had suggested it would

"I've looked at it (Carrigan's information) and it is my sense there will be enough of a change that it will make a difference to the city commission." Simmons

Based on the architect's figures, the city commission rejected the option of the First Federal building.

Simmons said there were "some errors" in the report and he was "not satisfied with it." He hoped the commission was open to looking at the option again with the revised figures.

According to Carrigan, the amount of the lease was misfigured by the architect and the actual cost would be nearly $100,000 less per year.

In addition, he said, Reeves had reported the building's mechanical equipment was in poor condition;" there were leaks in the building and in the roof causing mildew and mold to grow inside the facility: there was poor indoor air quality as a result of the mildew; the building did not comply with current ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) requirements: no asbestos survey had been done and that the building was not designed to handle the stress of being used as a 24-hour emergency facility.

"(Correcting those items) would be our responsibility. Carrigan assured Simmons in a letter dated Nov. 28, "and they have already been corrected or will be in the near future."

Simmons said Reeves will be contacted to rework the report before the Dec. 11 city commission meeting. At that time the matter will be discussed again.

'With the new figures, we have a different story," Simmona said.

Supreme Court no longer abortion storm center

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court, at center stage for decades in the nation's dramatic and divisive debate over abortion, appears now to be seeking a bit part away from the spotlight.

Most activists on both sides have carried the battle to different arenas, and those who most recently have sought out the court as a forum have been turned away.

"The focus has switched from the Supreme Court to the grass roots, to politics, state legislatures and public opinion," said Clarke Forsythe of Americans United for Life.

Kate Michelman of the National Abortion Rights Action League names a hostile Congress as her group's chief con-cern today. "Since the 1994 elections, there's been a deliberate and flerce, rapid-fire assault on women's ... access to abor-

The high court in 1992 barred states from banning most abortions and reaffirmed the core of its 1973 ruling that said women have a constitutionally protected right to end their pregnancies.

Two subsequent rulings enhanced the protection afforded patients and staffers at abortion

"The court has had its say and now appears willing to sit back and see how its rulings are going to play out," says Priscilla Smith of the Center for Reproductive Law and Policy, an abortion rights litigation group.

The justices seemingly have the abortion-related disputes, and they are routinely denied review these days. A disappointed Jay Sekulow of the anti-abortion American Center for Law and Justice said as much this week after the court turned away the free-speech challenge of five protesters ordered to pay $100,000 for lawyer fees incurred by an abortion clinic they targeted. In its 1992 decision in a case called Planned Parenthood vs. Casey, the court adopted a new standard for judging how far government can go in regulating a woman's abortion decision. The standard: Restrictions are unconstitutional if they impose an "undue burden" on a woman's right to obtain an

The court defined the phrase as "a state regulation (that) has the purpose or effect of placing a substantial obstacle in the path of a woman seeking an abortion of a nonviable fetus."

Beyond that rather amorphous language, the new standard provides legislators and litigators little to go on.

Abortion rights advocates in 1993 urged the court to strike down a Mississippi abortion law requiring unmarried girls to get both parents' consent or a judge's permission before ending their pregnancies.

The advocates said the law is an undue burden on the right to abortion.

The court, acting without comment, refused to hear their appeal and the Mississippi law was left standing.

A similar fate awaited a 1994 challenge to the way Ohio courts are enforcing a law requiring teen-agers who seek abortions to

Sooner or later, the nation's highest court will have to refine, clarify, fine-tune or in some way revisit its body of abortion precedents.

Perhaps the current controversy in Congress over the proposed outlawing of one particular late-term abortion method will end the high court's recent silence.

Never before has Congress outlawed a specific type of abortion, but the House already has passed a bill to ban dilation-and-evacuation abortions. "And NARAL's Michelman said, in the Senate."

President Clinton opposes the bill and could veto it. But if it became law over his veto, a legal challenge surely would follow.

There is no timetable for the Supreme Court's next tangle with abortion. A major factor will be how state supreme courts and federal appeals courts sort out the Casey decision. Another factor is the Supreme Court's willingness to step back into the spotlight.

Direct deposit offered to most taxpayers

WASHINGTON - Most taxpayers may now have their federal tax refunds sent electronically into their bank accounts. The Internal Revenue Service said Thursday that starting with returns filed early next year, direct deposit of refunds will be available to most people who file either of the three basic individual forms — 1040, 1040A and 1040EZ. In the past only taxpayers who filed electronically or on a form generated by a personal computer could use direct deposit.

Those using paper returns will have to attach new Form 8888 authorizing direct deposit of a refund.

Direct deposit is a money saver for the IRS, eliminates the risk of having a check stolen and can bring a refund a few days earlier in many cases. More than half the 12 million couples and individuals who filed electronically this year chose direct

Defense budget becomes law today

WASHINGTON — A $243 billion defense budget became law today after President Clinton traded concern about higher military spending for Republican agreement to fund troops in

With the cost of the Bosnia peacekeeping mission rising to an estimated $2 billion, Clinton reluctantly accepted a defense spending bill that contains $7 billion more than he wanted.

Clinton, who was traveling in Northern Ireland, did not actually sign the bill Thursday. Rather it became law automatically as of today after a midnight veto deadline

In accepting the spending bill, Clinton rejected the entreaties of liberal lawmakers and accepted the advice of congressional Republicans, centrist Democrats and top military officers.

40 years ago

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The slim, spectacled woman in slacks and a windbreaker riding bus No. 7607 smiled as she recalled the days when she and other blacks took to their feet rather than sit on segregated buses.

Blacks had long accepted separate bus seats "because that's the way it was," said the woman, who would only give her name as Gertha. "It wasn't a choice. We had no transportation, so we had no choice."

But that changed 40 years ago today, when black seamstress Rosa Parks, tired from a long day of sewing in a store, sat firmly in her seat and ignored orders to give up her place to a

She was arrested, and the civil rights movement began. Blacks boycotted the segregated buses, eventually winning their case in the U.S. Supreme Court and inspiring a wave of protests that helped bring down segregation laws across the

Millions of eyes were smiling

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The words hardly echo like John F. Kennedy's "Ich bin ein Berliner," but when President Clinton declared, "I am Irish," millions of eyes were smiling. He may not be so blunt today, but the president was reminding Ireland residents — and Irish-American voters — that he is one of them. At heart, at least.

"Many of you perhaps know that one in four of America's presidents trace their roots to Ireland's shores, beginning with Andrew Jackson ... to John Fitzgerald Kennedy," Clinton said Thursday during a triumphant celebration of peace in Northern Ireland. Northern Ireland.

"I know I am only the latest in this time-honored tradition, but I'm proud to be the first sitting American president to make it back to Belfast," he said.

Cadillacs recalled

WASHINGTON — Pour models of Cadillacs built between 1991 and 1995 gave new meaning to the term climate control. When drivers switched on the air or heat they turned the luxury cars into pollution machines.

General Motors agreed reluctantly Thursday to recall 470,000 Cadillacs equipped with what the government called a "defeat device" that caused the cars to emit three times more carbon monoxide than the law allows.

In what the Justice Department said was the first court-ordered recall and the largest automobile case brought under the Clean Air Act, GM must pay an $11 million fine—the second-largest civil penalty assessed under the act.

Asbestos problems

WASHINGTON — Rep. Newt Gingrich asked a top federal official to help businesses with asbestos problems, after a major donor to a Gingrich-led political committee sought assistance from the House leader.

The donor's 1990 request to Gingrich for help was accompanied by a $10,000 donation and a tally of past contributions.

"I am writing you with concern over the crisis that is arising in our courts from asbestos litigation." Gingrich wrote Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William K. Reilly on April 24, 1991.

Reilly on April 24, 1991.

Gingrich had received a letter the previous year from Miller Nichols, a Kaness City-area real estate developer who had written the lewmaker seeking relief from ashestos regulations. It appears to be the first example of Gingrich providing official help to a major donor to GOPAC who sought assistance. The political action committee was led by Gingrich from the mid-1990s through earlier this year, when the Georgia Republican became much busier as speaker of the House.

Calling all basketball coaches

SANFORD - The Sanford Recreation Department is in dire need of coaches for the upcoming Youth Basketball Leagues.

Three coaches are needed for the 13-Under league and one in the 11-Under division. Please call the Recreation Department at (407) 330-5697 If you can help.

Sanford adult recreation plans

SANFORD - The Sanford Recreation Department will hold organizational meetings for its Polar Bear adult volleyball, softball and flag football leagues on Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday, respectively, next week.

For more information, call 330-5697.

Magic set records

ORLANDO - Dennis Scott scored 29 points and Anfernee Hardaway had 24 Thursday night as the Orlando Magic built on the NBA's best record with 110-96 victory over the Dallas Mavericks, who dropped their seventh straight.

The defending Eastern Conference champions have won six straight and, with 13 victories in November, equaled a franchise record for victories in a month despite playing without injured All-Star center Shaquille O'Neal Orlando improved to 10-0 at home, where it was a NBA-best 39-2 last season.

The Mavericks, who haven't won since getting off to a 5-1 start, got 22 points from Tony Dumas and 18 from Jama! Mashburn.

Scott made 10-of-16 shots, including 5-of-7 from behind the 3-point line. Hardaway just missed a triple double, adding 11 assists and eight rebounds to his 24 points, while Nick Anderson made all four of the 3-pointers he attempted and scored 14.

Orlando held Jim Jackson to six points on 3-for-11 shooting. Jason Kidd made 2-of-10 shots and finished with five points for Dallas.

AROUND THE STATE

JU opens season with win

JACKSONVILLE - Artemus McClary scored 34 points to lead Jacksonville to a 58-70 season-opening victory over Florida Atlantic.
The Dolphins scored 18 straight points to turn a 57-52 deficit into a 70-57 advantage. McClary was the leader in the surge, pumping in 10 points while John Knox added six more on a pair of three-point shots.

Jerome Mailoy had 18 for JU (1-0) while Marcell Martin added 13 and John Knox had 11. Huyler led the Owls with 15 points, while Machael Harvey added 14 and Craig Buchanon.

Heat slam Pistons

AUBURN HILLS. Mich. - Bimbo Coles and Keith Askins each scored 11 fourth-quarter points to lead the Miami Heat to a 118-107 victory over the Detroit Pistons on Thursday.

Miami led by double digits for most of the game but had to fight off a furious Detroit rally at the end.

The Heat led 68-53 at the half and had the margin up to 18 points in the first two minutes of the third period.

But the lead was down to three with two minutes left before Coles hit two free throws to make it 105-100 and Askins hit a 3-pointer to make it an 8-point lead with 1:18 to go.

Coles led the Heat with 26 points, Alonso Mourning had 23 and Billy Owens added 20. Grant Hill had 33 points, 11 rebounds and neven assists to lead the Pistons.

Wildcats mauled in Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS - Sam Jacobson had a career-high 26 points and Minnesota led from start to finish for the first time this year in a 93-53 rout of Bethune-Cookman.

The Golden Gophers (4-1) trailed at halftime in each of their four previous games, but were never behind against Bethune-Cookman (0-2).

Mark Jones added 19 points for the Gophers. 13 in the first half. Also in double figures for Minnesota was David Grim with 12.

Roseki Jackson came off the bench to score 10 points and lead Bethune-Cookman.

Big trade in NBA

PHILADELPHIA - Derrick Coleman, whose attitude sometimes overshadowed his talent in five seasons with the New Jersey Nets, was traded to the Philadelphia 76ers for underachieving center Shawn Bradley.

In addition to Coleman, the 76ers will get guard Rex Walters and forward Sean Higgins. Going to New Jersey along with Bradley are guard Greg Graham and forward Tim Perry.

LA QUINTA. CA. - The father and son team of John and Jim Pickens from Arkaness took the lead today among more than 160 teams competing in the opening round of the Lexus Champions for Charity National Championship.

The Pickens' recorded a net score of 57, four strokes better than their closest competitors. The Seminole county duo of Andy Thompson (Longwood) and Gary Wittick (Sanford) recorded a net score of 61 to tie for second place with John Dullois and Bruce Gossett, both of San Jose, California.

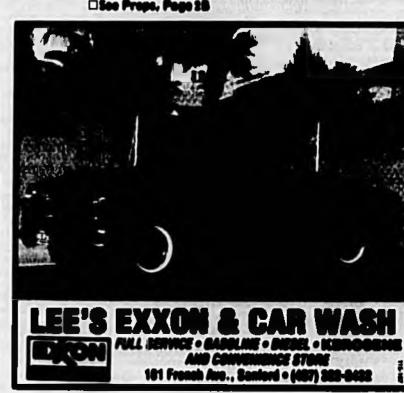

The Lexus Champions for Charity National Championship brings together top amateurs golfers from all over the country to compete for a $75,000 charity bonus ($25,000 for the first place team). Each team represents a local charity from a region of the country that hosted a qualifying event earlier in the year.

The Pickens' are representing Pathfinder Incorporated, an organization that provides jobs and job training skills for developmentally disabled citi-sens. Thompson and Wittick are representing Father Flanagan's Boys' Town.

Participants in the three-day event play either the Stadium Course at PGA West; the Jack Nicklaus Resort Course at PGA West; or the Dunes Course at La Quinta. The format incorporates 80percent of confined handicaps.

in 1995, more than 28,000 goifers participated in over 170 local charity events throughout the country.

OF PICTITIOUS NAME
Notice is hereby given that I am engaged in business at 806 Weltiva Berings Road, Suite 100, Lengweed, FL 32779, Sominals County Florida, under the Fictitious Name of FAR-MELL SWINDPRAGTIC, and that I Intend to register adid name with the Division of Cargarations, Tallahasses, Plorida, in accordance with the provisions of the Fictitious Continued from 18 winning the Clearwater Classic Thankegiving Tournament this past weekend.

The Seminole county-based squad went 5.0 for the tournament and outscored its opponents

After losing one of their starting teammates (Jason M. Bill) in a tragic boating accident in June of this year, the team started out in September with a respectable second place finish in the Labor Day Atlanta Cup after besting the Alabama state champions.

The aquad took first place honors at the Pt. dyers Beach Classic in September and the Largo Holloween Invitational in October, despite losing their starting left midfielder to a broken leg in the first minute of the championship game.

"When our boys saw their teammate taken off the field in an ambulance, they took control of the game and dominated the Largo Wolves (who had not alowed a score to that point of the tournament), defeating them 6-0. They just would not give up." said head coach

Joe Dalton. Assisting Dalton are

Oviedo High School head soccer coach Joe Availone and Oviedo junior varsity coach Tom Gelts. The combination of the three different coaching styles has taken the team to a level and style of play beyond their years. Most of the players will be entering high school in the fall of 1996 and the high school coaches can't wait for them to get there. Not only are these boys exceptional athletes, they all make good grades and many are honor students. Making up the team are Brian Cain and tune Beach.

Reilly Mitchell (Jackson Heights). Eric Blake (Indian Hills), Steven Luppert and Dennie Pettigrew (Tuncawilla), Chris Gottfried and Robert Zahra (Trinity), Jon Arost and Michael Zuel (Rocklake), Rues Abrams (Greenwood Lakes), Ryan Potts (Milwee), Steve Sunn (St. Margaret Mary). Chris Mechan (St. Andrews), John Weish (St. Mary Magdalene) andf Mark Williams (Liberty). The only non-Seminole county player is Greg Swartsenberger from

Russell, piloting the Horsen Around

On lap 25 James Powell III, with David Rogers in tow, got to the inside of Anderson.

Five laps later Russell, who set the evening's fifth qualifying time and by virtue of the draw started the race from the fifth position, raced around Anderson for the fourth place.

Russell, with a high groove pass, got around Rogers for third place on lap 32. As Fritts pulled to a commanding lead, Powell and Russell raced nose-to-tail for the runner-up slot with Rogers and Anderson racing for position.

Select suitable foods to donate

I have heard that many foods donated for Holiday food baskets or to replenish the local food closets are often duplicate items or not appropriate for limited income families. Is this true? What foods are recommended

During the holiday season there are numerous food drives which help to supply local agencies that help to provide food for people in need. Al-though people are very generous during this time of year, there a number of suggestions the number of suggestions the agencies recommend to keep problems to a minimum and accomplish the goal of providing appropiate and nourishing foods.

Due to the time of year, many people typically donate traditional holiday foods. As a result an overabundance of foods such as a result and complete and compl as pumpkin and cranberry sauce are collected. Obviously, this means that the agencies are limited in their ability to provide the variety of foods necessary for a good diet. In some years the agencies have even contacted the Extension Office asking for suggestions for simple, economical, nutritious dishes that could be prepared with pumpkinbesides the obvious.

In addition to the overabundance to a few foods, there are other factors to be considered when donating food. Many people who recieve food donations do not have adequated cooking equipment and/or refrigeration. Foods that require minimum preparation or do not have to be cooked are excellent for donating. It is best to select items that may be served right from the container or prepared by simply adding a small amount of water. Examples are cans of fruit, vegetables, beans, soups, peanut butter, tuna, chicken'n dumplings other meats and meat dishes.

When donating, most of us give the larger size cans and packages. Economy being our motivator; we want the most for our money. However, the smaller cans are ofter more appropriate. For the agencies who must manage the storage for food pantries, medium to individual cans are very helpful. In addition, the needy clientele often have a variety of limita-tions including refrigeration. Therefore, items packageed in small containers for only one or two people are most desirable. This allows food to be consumed in one sitting rather than have leftovers which need to be refrigerated. In addition to canned foods, sauce, ready-to-eat cereal, oat-meal, etc. Again, small packages of dried goods are also destrable. The contents can be used before they become stale or contami- area. nated by insects. The agencies asked that people look over packages of staples to insure that there are no bugs. One contaminated item can lead to the destruction of numerous foods packages. Foods that are donated should be of good quality. The dates should be current, and the cans clean and not rusty or bent. Unfortunately, some people clean out their own pantry of unused food items that have been pushed to the back of the cabinet or in the freezer for several years. Items that require a lot of sorting and discarding add additional work for the service agency.

Depending on the season, fresh foods may be good donations. Best examples are fresh fruits that do not require refregeration such as oranges, apples and bananas. Fresh vege-tables that are in season are also good to donate. Especially good are potatoes, onions, tomatoes, and carrots.

John Marquess with Catholic Social Services recommends that donors stick to common foods that are popular in the local area. People that are re-

These include rice, not accustomed to a vast array dry beans and peas, pasta, of foods and have not acquired a powdered milk, grits spaghetti taste for the non-conventional. He further noted that garbanso beans, sauerkraut, soy sauce and Orienal foods are examples of food best not donated in this

> A good rule of thumb would be to avoid selecting something that you would enjoy yourself. Extra foods that are good for special treats are cocoa, peppermint candy and nuts.
> Perhaps some of the items suggested might seem more costly than if larger quanties were used, or if from "scratch" items were selected rather than fully prepared and ready to serve, but the purpose of the contribution is to provide a nutritious meal to low income families who might not have the facilities to prepare from "scratch" or to store food properly. Barbara McCloud of the American Red Cross further indicated that agencies accept donations of cash or checks for stocking their food pantries. They also could use donations throughout the year rather than just during the holiday season.

will do and say things and then truly not remember what they did or said while they're drinking. These periods can last for days or even weeks. They are called blackouts.

I don't know if your dad is an alcoholic, but the important alcoholic, but the important thing for you to remember is that his drinking is NOT your fault. You didn't cause any of this, and you can't make any of it right, but you can go on with your life, doing the best you can and promising that you won't repeat your parent's mistakes when you grow up.

Reader: Not all smokers die of cancer

DEAR ABBY: Please understand that I will soon be 60 years old, and I am not, never have been, and do not plan on becoming a cigarette smoker. Also, this letter is not being sponsored by any tobacco

I doubt that my letter will ever see print in your column, but that doesn't matter. You (or your editors) probably do not have the intestinal firtitude to print it. But I am flatout tired of hearing all these "bleeding hearts" host and holler about how smoking has caused all these deaths and how secondhand smoke is going to bill us all deaths and now security is going to kill us all.

Abby, both my mather and father smoked like locomotives, and neither one of them died of cancer.

The multiplicated to secondhard I've been subjected to secondhand smoke during my entire lifetime. and even now, with my present with, I am not yet dead of cancer.

My aunt also smoked. She did die of cancer. Her husband smoked, but he did not die of cancer. My cousin (their daughter) also

Christmas is coming soon

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD By Rev. Bruce Scott

How do you know when Christmas is coming? Years ago we marked it by the Friday after Thanksgiving - when the Christmas lights went up. Today we know it sooner.

Early one November a caroonist in a local paper had a drawing showing where the stores have already brought out their Christmas finery, toys and tinnel. The caption over it quipped, 'must be that Thankgiving is coming." We know that the commercialization of Christmas starts earlier each year. I have heard anywhere from 40 % to 50 % of during this time of the year. I wonder if atheist and non-Christians ever give Christmas and the birth of Christ thanks when they profit by it?

Once again many will get caught up in the rush, hurry and worry and Christmas will become trouble rather than

Chanukah party scheduled at Temple

Albert Fermon

PECIAL TO THE HERALD By Albert Fermon

DELAND — Temple Israel of Deland will hold a Chanukah party on Sunday, December 17 at 5 p.m. The holiday of Chanukah is the Feast of Dedication or the Holiday of Lights. This holiday commemerates the victory of Judah Macages over the Syrian Greeks in 165 B.C.E., a victory of a few against many.

With the steadfastness to the teachings of the Torah they subdued these alien forces and rededicated the Temple which had been defiled by the enemy.

The cruse of oil which was found scaled by the High Priest was sufficient only for one day.

Nevertheless, it issted for eight days. Therefore, the custom is to light the candles for eight days to celebrate this miracle. One candle the first nights and an additional candle each subsequent night.

This year the holiday of Chanukah begins on Monday. December 18 and ends on December 25. The first candle will be lit on Sunday evening. December 17.

Temple larsel of Deland is conservative and is located at 1001 New York Avenue. Sabbath services are held each

Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. followed by Oneg Shabbat. Religious school under the direc-tion of Lake Mary's, Howard Appel, is held on Sundays from 10 to 10:45 a.m. for students & to 12 years old.

From 11 a.m. to noon classes are held for those 7 years of age and under. Saturday morning services are held on the first Saturday monthly from 10 a.m. to noon.

Further information may be obtained from the Temple Israel by calling me at 322-0246 or the Temple's Spiritual Leader, Winston Weilheimer at 904-736-8752.
