The Sanford Cleyfers, fighting uphill battle all the way, made seven straight victories at Sanford, Fla., yesterday afternoon, scoring a 7-6 victory over the Bruins in a well-contested game played before the crowd of the season.

Manager Yde, for Pittsburgh Pirates who were leading the Bruins, resented Palmer's charge of stealing the game. Yde had accused the pitcher of stealing the game. The protest, accompanied by $10 to cover costs of investigation, must be filed with the league secretary.

Palmer's charge of stealing the game was not accepted. The league secretary, however, will investigate the matter.

BROAD FEDERAL CUTS PLANNED TO SAVE HUGE SUM

The President is expected to send the completed organization plan to Congress within the week where approval is expected. More sweeping in character than the program proposed by President Hoover last year and rejected by Congress, the Democratic plan is considered by leaders on Capitol Hill to have more chance of adoption because of the board provisions of the economy bill.

Whereas one branch of Congress could reject the Hoover set-up and the House did disapprove of the Roosevelt plan, approval of the Roosevelt plan of which branch and with the heavy Democratic majorities this is generally accepted as unlikely.

Not only is opposing legislation considered improbable, but the administration is reliably reported to be planning to ask immediate approval so that the reduction in expenditures can become effective June 1 instead of waiting for Congress for the 60-day period of waiting prescribed in the economy bill.

Three major steps already have been taken in the direction of producing reductions and balancing the budget. Grants to war veterans were cut $400,000,000 by executive order, and $50,000,000 estimated additional savings would be saved by using interest payments on the 1934 share of the adjusted compensation certificates maturity fund.

Another $125,000,000 in savings is estimated by the administration as the result of governmental salary cuts, making close to $600,000,000 in budget reductions. The billion-dollar mark is expected by the President to be approached as a result of the organization program including consolidation, curtailment and complete abolition of functions.

With these savings Douglas is counting upon the estimated $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 from bare revenue to produce a balanced budget.

Involving the laying off of thousands of government workers throughout the country, the curtailment program is to reach its hand into every government department.

The postoffice department alone was slated for a curtailment approximating $150,000,000. Secretary Roper of the commerce department has announced that he expects to spend $20,000,000 next year as compared with $43,000,000 this year and appropriations for 1934 of $34,000,000. Secretary Perkins has been asked to cut $500,000 from the labor department's $13,000,000 fund.

DOUBLE VOUCHER FOR TODAY

GOD'S WORD STANDS: The word of the Lord stands for ever—Isaiah 40:8.

Next Saturday is Poppy Day!

The Legislative debate over the Twenty-ninth bill is giving the state a black eye.

As we see it what the Legislature really needs is more facts and fewer factions.

J. P. Morgan is on the spot in Washington today. The Senate investigating committee is going to try to find out why his bank didn't go broke.

Some of our representatives seem to think that they can solve the bond problem by buying their heads in the sand and saying that it doesn't exist.

The so-called self-liquidating agency is not working so well. The city of Fort Pierce, for instance, which some time ago issued $2,500 worth, has about decided to scrap its scrip.

President Roosevelt has invented a new system for dealing with the public debt. He lets them pass any kind of a bill they want to, giving him the power to do anything under the sun, and then he agrees to use this power "if, and when."

The House ways and means committee will have none of the sales tax as a means of financing President Roosevelt's bridge works bond issue. Higher income taxes, and another gasoline tax are in the air.

The Fort Myers News-Press says that one power Governor Sholtz ought to have the right to abolish the Legislature. That goes back to George McDuffy's original proposition that the Legislature, instead of meeting sixty days every two years, should meet two days every sixty years. We may want to that yet.

Whenever little the Legislature may have accomplished during this session, there has been no word of bills introduced. The Miami Herald points out that there have been over 2000 bills filed for action, which is more for the same period than the 1931 session, and is at the rate of 40 bills a day.

The purpose of the inflationary measures recently adopted is to raise the price level to the point where it was about 1928. The purpose of the farm relief bill is to raise the average price for agricultural commodities higher than that to the level of 1914. One of the purposes of the industrial control bill is to eliminate out-thrust competition, thus increasing prices.

Paul Mellon mentions the criticism which has been directed at Professor Moley, head of the "New Deal" for writing for "The Nation" while occupying a prominent position. The professor explained his treasury efforts as of the necessities if hard times should come.

A "New Deal"

During the administration of George Washington nearly 150 years ago, France and England were at war and repeated overtures were made to this country by the French government, which had materially aided the American colonies a few years before in their War of Independence, to form an alliance. Washington was obdurate, however, steadfastly refusing to become embroiled.

In his "Farewell Address" he enunciated his policy on foreign entanglements. "The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible," he said. "It must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."

Since that time the doctrine of national isolation has been a consistent and conspicuous feature of American foreign policy. It has been rigidly adhered to by every American president from Washington to Woodrow Wilson. Even President Wilson strenuously sought to avoid complications with foreign powers throughout the early years of the World War. He persisted in American rights of neutrality and was re-elected in 1916 on the plea that "he kept us out of war."

Vast changes, however, have taken place since the days of Washington. Rapid transportation and instant communication have brought the world closer together and have transformed the broad Atlantic into a mere puddle of water. What was a comparatively simple task for Washington was relatively impossible for Wilson. Try as he would he could not avoid those "incidences" which are the basis of every international conflict. The importance of foreign trade, bankers' loans, and popular prejudices engendered by the daily stories of atrocities and sinking of our ships, finally drove him in 1917 to declare war.

As a result of his experiences during the World War, President Wilson came to the conclusion that the time for the abandonment of America's traditional policy of isolation had come. If in this complex world we could not stay out of foreign wars once they had started, was it not better to throw the full weight of American opinion and resources of the side against the aggressor at the very beginning of disturbances and thus seek to prevent a conflict?

President Wilson campaigned vigorously for American entrance into the League of Nations. The Democratic ticket in 1920 was pledged to League participation. Franklin D. Roosevelt, as candidate for the vice presidency, made speeches throughout the whole country seeking to show the people that the preservation of the Wilsonian ideals, the cause for which American soldiers died in France, and the future peace of Europe and the whole world, depended upon American adherence to the League covenant.

But American public opinion was not ready then for so comprehensive a change in American foreign policy. The effects of the World War were still rankling in many a saddened soul. We would have none of Europe. We would enter into no entangling alliances with foreign powers. The strenuous efforts which were made by President Wilson to keep us out of that war were forgotten. It was remembered only that it was a European conflict and that we had sent our men and money over there to fight a foreign war.

During the Republican administrations which followed the war, this country stuck pretty rigidly to the policy of our forefathers. There were Kellogg-Briand peace pacts and Nine Power treaties, to be sure, which outlawed war "as an instrument of international policy," but nothing which even remotely could be considered as involving this country in tangled European affairs.

Lately there has been a decided change in the complexion of American foreign policy. We hear a great deal of "consultative pacts," "the abandonment of America's traditional policy of national isolation," and its "decision to participate in the control of armaments." What does it all mean? Is the United States about to join the League of Nations? Or is this country to take a position equivalent to League membership? In order to help preserve the peace of the world?

Is it not easier to prevent a war than to stay out of it after it has begun?

Cuba Libre

If the reign of terror which virtually exists in Cuba were peculiar to that country alone, then there might be more justification for the talk of intervention being heard, but in a world that is torn by serious economic and political upheavals, it does not particularly behoove the United States to become too excited over the problems of the little island republic at this time.

Under the Platt amendment it would be entirely within our right to take over the control of the Cuban government, because there can be no denying that the Machado regime has failed to provide a government "adequate for the protection of life, property, and individual liberty."

It is generally accepted as a fact that Machado has furnished the republic with a bloody and unscrupulous rule which has left the people in a highly agitated state of revolt. Money has been squandered, hundreds thrown in prison, many of them never being heard from again, the universities closed, newspapers muzzled, and a system of organized federal murder instituted.

However regrettable all this is, much of it can be blamed on the economic condition of the country brought about by the complete collapse of the sugar market and the consequent impoverishment of a great number of the population. If business were good and people were employed they probably would not be so concerned about the affairs of government and the strife between Machado and his enemies would not have been so acute, calling, in his opinion, for such stern measures.

The Roosevelt Administration holds the view that with a stimulation of the sugar market and improved economic conditions the affairs of the government will automatically come to be looked upon with better favor by the citizens. It is taking hold of the Cuban situation with the idea of aiding trade and letting the country work out its own political destiny.

One does not have to possess a broad imagination to foresee all the pitfalls which await any United States action which presumes to establish a provisional government over the island or to supervise the election of another president. There is hardly much chance for permanent political goodwill in Cuba and it is open to serious debate that conditions would be any better under the opposition than under Machado.

MIAMI AND THE BONDHOLDERS

ST. PETERSBURG INDEPENDENT

Many citizens of St. Petersburg have been strongly urging that the city accept bonds in payment of taxes for 1931 and 1932, and this question was the main issue in the city election held Tuesday, paying delinquent taxes for years prior to 1931 in bonds, and have also been able to pay special assessments in bonds. But the city council has refused to permit 1931 taxes to be paid in bonds—the bondholders committee entering objection to that plan the plan not being favored by many of those who paid their taxes for that year in full and with money when due. Many other Florida cities had the same problem to deal with.

Now a new angle to the controversy over tax payments with bonds has developed. In Miami the city commission had the city charter amended by the legislature to specifically authorize it to accept bonds in payment of all taxes that had become delinquent. The plan was to permit payment of 1931 and 1932 taxes as well as those for other years, in city bonds. The plan was to be voted on by the voters at the next election. Just as many delinquent property owners were about to settle their taxes with bonds the bondholders committee stepped in with a writ of mandamus and stopped them. The order was secured from a federal court and it forbade the

(Continued From Page One) money, if possible, with which to operate the city within the next few weeks, the Commissioners declared themselves "not in a position to make a payment for the Chamber of Commerce at this time."

Earlier in the meeting the Commissioners, after listening to Judge J. G. Sharon plead that "On behalf of the baseball boys and fans" a $10 monthly rental charge for the use of Municipal Park be waived for the summer, had referred the matter directly to a committee of custodians headed by George C. Fellows in any event at the ball park this summer and that whatever action the committee takes must be predicated on this fact.

After dealing with the baseball situation, the Commissioners listened to S. Runge, local resident, who stated that while the Elks Lodge has been forced to abandon the use of the Elks Band a group of musicians headed by George C. Fellows is willing to offer its services and stage a free concert every Thursday night during the summer, provided the city will erect a bandstand, provide benches, and erect lights on a vacant lot between the Valdez Hotel and the Court House.

The Commissioners, thanking Mr. Runge for the co-operation of the local musicians, voted to erect the necessary requirements provided the total cost does not exceed $25.

Under terms of the City's new beer ordinance, Clerk Lamson is to present the names and addresses of all persons who are given licenses to sell beer and light wines. These names are to be presented at the next regular meeting after the license is issued.

Last night he presented names of nine persons who had secured licenses. The Commissioners approved the issuance of licenses to all of them except E. D. Taylor, of 2501 South Grandview Drive.

Commissioner Lehman, who said that a group of negro residents wish to clean up a strip of land immediately east of the ball park for the purpose of making it a negro playground, asked that the request be granted.

"It's okay with me," said Mayor Speer, but after a discussion in which Commissioner Shilboser, in advising against placing white and negro playgrounds so close to each other said, "I can remember when as a kid I used to run three miles for the chance to 'rock' little negro boys." Clerk Lamson was instructed to locate a suitable spot somewhere in the negro section where, on city-owned land, a playground may be constructed.

Thirty-four thousand dollars worth of City of Sanford bonds that have been accepted in payment of taxes during the past few months were cancelled after an ordinance providing for such action had been passed.

City Attorney F. H. Wilson was instructed to proceed "as usual" in handling a peremptory writ of mandamus which has been secured by the Foraker Savings and Trust Co., and in disposing of another writ which the bondholders' Protective Committee wishes to secure against water-works funds now on hand.

Before concluding their meeting, the Commissioners ordered Roy Williams reinstated as police chief, effective June 1, provided physicians signed a paper indicating that his physical condition is such that he is now ready for duty. Officer George Gray also was ordered reinstated, as effective the same day.

The Commissioners personally expressed their appreciation to Acting Chief Shafer for "Your fine handling of the department during the disability of Chief Williams."

Miss Shoemaker: "Now, you must prove to me that the world is round."
Billy Farrell: "Why? I never said that it was."

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

About 10:00 o'clock Wednesday morning the auditorium of the Sanford High School was filled with the parents and friends of the pupils of the Eighth Grade who with pleasure and pride in their hearts were present to witness the graduating exercises of the large class of 49 girls and boys, the pupils of the Misses Flora Walker and Gertrude Speer of the Grammar School. While a march was played the Misses Walker and Speer marched at the head of the class of girls down the right aisle while Professor N. J. Perkins, Meera D. L. Thresher, of the county school board, L. R. Phillips and C. R. Walker, of the local school board, Capt. George Lynch, state inspector of rural schools, and the Rev. A. S. Peck proceeded the class of boys down the left aisle. Among those taking part on the program were: the Rev. A. S. Peck, Professor Perkins, Marian Phillips, Antoinette Lake, Fannie Reba Mims, Lucille Rines, Griffin Herring, Roby Laing, William Runge, and Raymond Phillips.

High School Notes EDITED BY THE BOYS' H-LY OF THE SCHOOL. A very interesting program was held Friday in the auditorium. After several specialties and reading of the scripture by Rev. Hardin of the Methodist Church, the school was presented two beautiful portraits. One of General John J. Pershing was presented by the American Legion Auxiliary, and one of General Robert E. Lee was presented by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The school appreciates these gifts very much and we are very proud to display them in the building.

Thursday afternoon at San Lando Springs the H-Y tennis was held as scheduled. Although the crowd that was expected did not attend, those present had an enjoyable time.

Last week on the Thirtieth Street courts the Freshman class and the tennis fans of the Junior High School held a match. The results ended in a deadlock. They are as follows: Billy Zachary, Junior High, won over Herbert Smith, Freshman, by 6-0, 6-1. Charles Robinson, Freshman, won over Lefty Adams, Junior High, by 7-5, 6-4. James Terwilliger, Junior High, won over Edw. Bonlake, Freshman, by 6-4, 6-4. Roy Wright, Freshman, won over Robert Rumbley, Junior High, by 6-4, 6-4. The Junior High doubles team of Billy Zachary and Robert Rumbley won over the Freshman doubles team of Charles Robinson and Herbert Smith by a score of 6-4, 6-2. The other Freshman doubles team of Edw. Bonlake and Roy Wright won over the other Junior High team by a score of 6-7, 3-6, 6-2. This concluded the matches and the meet was in a deadlock.

With graduation only three weeks off, the seniors are beginning to assume their bodily attitude. Well, if they are going to feel that way about it, just let them go—they really think they are important. They get out in the cold world and find that life is not a bed of

Henry Ford

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people who I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users. We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are now of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience. We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

Henry Ford
