WINTER SPRINGS — Traffic will be stopped on State Road 434 today and tomorrow for up to 15 minutes at a time while construction crews begin laying beams for an expressway overpass.

The periodic closings began at 8 a.m. today and continue until 4 p.m. The closings will continue Friday during the same times. The construction is located west of Wagner's Curve between Winter Springs and Oviedo.

Economic growth slows

WASHINGTON — Economic growth slowed dramatically in the April-June quarter after reviving temporarily early in the year, the government said today.

The nation's gross domestic product, the broadest measure of economic health, inched forward at a 1.4 percent annual pace, the Commerce Department said, leaving an earlier estimate unrevised.

During the first three months of 1992, growth in the total output of goods and services picked up to a 2.9 percent pace, the best since President Bush's first three months in office.

However, the 5.1 percent surge in consumer spending that powered first-quarter growth petered out in the second quarter, when consumer spending fell 0.3 percent.

"We're in a stall right now in what already was a half-paced recovery," said economist Priscilla Trumbull of the WEFA Group, a Bala Cynwyd, Pa., forecasting firm.

First-time claims fall

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits posted the largest decrease on record in mid-August and fell below 400,000 for the first time in 22 months, the government said today.

The Labor Department said new applications for jobless benefits totaled 382,000 during the week ended Aug. 15, down from 474,000 a week earlier, when claims from workers involved in a two-week shutdown of General Motors' operations in Michigan were included.

The 92,000 decline was the largest since the Labor Department began tracking claims in 1987.

The Labor Department said the last time jobless claims dropped below 400,000 on a seasonally adjusted basis was during the week of Oct. 6, 1990, when they also stood at 382,000. The following week, they rose to 407,000 and had been above 400,000 ever since.

Southern Bell and AT&T Telephone Pioneers, a group of employees who volunteer for a variety of efforts to aid needy people, is one among many local civic-minded organizations helping with the relief effort in South Florida. SANFORD — South Floridians are picking up the hurricane-ravaged pieces of their lives with the help of many northern Seminole County volunteers.

As part of a nationwide outpouring of relief, non-perishable food items, bedding, medical supplies and money are being collected today at many area dropoff points. Supplies are being transported over the next two weeks to victims of Hurricane Andrew, which left nearly 250,000 people homeless.

Among the volunteer efforts: Although the City of Sanford didn't approve sending any support personnel south, some city firefighters have taken vacation days to help.

The Sanford Police Department also is collecting bottled water and canned goods, which officers will load into a truck and haul Wednesday to Miami.

Canned goods and staples are being collected by the Longwood Police Department, The Southern Bell and AT&T Telephone Pioneers in Sanford, the Sanford American Legion, the Sanford Fraternal Order of Eagles, the American Automobile Association in Lake Mary and the National Guard Armory in Sanford.

Lake Mary to scrutinize budget

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission will focus on the proposed 1992/93 budget in a special meeting tonight.

City Manager John Litton's budget message was originally presented in July. Discussion of the budget has been scheduled for the last two commission meetings, but has been held up because of the length of the meetings.

Litton said, "Tonight's meeting will be aimed at going over each department's budget, with the department heads on hand to answer any questions that might come up."

He added, "The commission has had ample time to study the proposals. While there may be things they want to cut, there could also be items they want added, so we'll be looking at that tonight as well."

One item to be considered tonight will be the millage rate. The city has adopted the tentative rate of 3.8991, but comments by members of the commission during the Aug. 30 meeting indicated they may consider adopting the roll back rate of 3.76477.

If the city continues with the tentative millage rate, the owner of a house valued at $100,000.

SANFORD — The City Commission has put a hold on the continued use of the Salvation Army gym for the recreation department. Approval of a contract for the next year was tabled.

Parks and Recreation Director Mike Kirby had proposed that the city adopt an increase in the monthly rental proposed by the Salvation Army Atlanta headquarters. It would have increased the monthly rate from $1,300 per month presently charged, to $1,797.17 per month.

Kirby explained, "The original agreement for next year, after the first eight months of use in 1992 at LONGWOOD — Police officer Michael A. Matt was struck by car Tuesday. It didn't stop him from getting his man.

The officer was chasing Mark T. Volt, 23, of Altamonte Springs on foot across a parking lot at a shopping center on Highway 17-92 in Longwood, when he was accidentally struck by a car.

"It was unavoidable," he said, "I ran right out directly in front of this oncoming car and there was no way the woman driver could stop in time."

He added, "When she saw me going across the hood of her car, she certainly looked surprised."

Matt said he was informed by witnesses that the woman stopped and started to get out of the car. "But when she saw me get up," he said, "she got back in and left." The woman was not identified.

Although he eventually fell to the ground, Matt was able to get back on his feet and continue the

County stalls garbage-fee vote

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two county commissioners seeking re-election will not face a politically-sensitive vote to raise garbage rates until after the primary election next Tuesday.

A decision to raise the garbage "tipping" fee 72 percent will be delayed until after the Sept. 1 primary. Both commissioners Pat Warren and Jennifer Kelley are seeking re-election and face primary opponents. The increase would add about $1.40 to monthly unincorporated garbage bills and a similar amount to city garbage bills.

Warren and Kelley said they were willing to consider the issue Tuesday, but were not concerned about the additional delay. Kelley said she still questioned the need for the 72 percent increase. Warren said she did not want to consider the tipping fee increase until negotiations with haulers were complete.

I'm not interested in considering the tipping fees until we resolve the problems with the yard trash and the last directions we gave (on service).

-Pat Warren

"I'm not interested in considering the tipping fees until we resolve the problems with the yard trash and the last directions we gave (on service)." said Warren, who said this morning she had forgotten the item was to be brought up Tuesday. "The tip fee is an additional cost to haulers that they pass on to the people."

When county staff informed commissioners Aug. 11 that negotiations were not complete with the five county haulers over service and rates, commissioner Fred Streetman suggested considering the tipping fees when negotiations were complete, according to county records of the meeting.

Following Streetman's suggestion, Warren and Kelley called for a delay in the tip fee decision until Aug. 25, according to the records. Commissioners voted 4-0 for the two-week delay. Commissioner Bob Sturm was not present because he was recovering from surgery.

Rabun said this morning no commissioner had requested the delay. Rabun said he did not remember commissioners had formally established Tuesday to take up the item again. He said he recalled Streetman's suggestion to consider the two rate impacts together when negotiations were complete.

County Attorney Bob McMillan said this morning the commission was not legally required to take up the item, because it was not a public hearing.

School drug policy to be finalized

By VICKI SOLOMON
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board will meet this evening to finalize the anti-drug policy that has been the center of controversy for nearly two years.

The meeting has been moved to a 7:30 p.m. starting time, from 7 p.m., to accommodate the schedules of several board members.

In an effort to standardize the punishment that schools use for students caught using drugs, alcohol or tobacco products, the district had written a policy modeled after the one used in 1990 at Lake Mary High School.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Man hospitalized after bizarre attack

TAMPA — A man remained hospitalized in critical condition Wednesday after an attack at a motel that police called "bizarre and cruel."

The 41-year-old man, who had checked in with his girlfriend, was stabbed in the chest and had his penis torn off with locking pliers when the woman's former boyfriend attacked the couple late Saturday, police said.

Police arrested Terry L. Barron, 53, about four hours after the attack and charged him with two counts of attempted murder and one count of armed burglary. He remained in the Hillsborough County Jail without bond.

"This is about as bizarre and cruel a crime as I've ever seen," said Capt. Bob Price, a 22-year police veteran.

The man's penis was taken to the hospital to see if it could be reattached, investigators said. Tampa General Hospital spokeswoman Cindy Tanner declined to give details about the man's treatment.

The woman told police the attacker was a former boyfriend with whom she had broken up. She said she'd been dating the victim for about six months and her jealous ex-boyfriend had been following her.

Rapist once on TV, strikes again

WEST PALM BEACH — A rapist who appeared on an ABC news show as a recovering sex offender was charged with raping a teenage girl, police said.

David O'Neal McCutcheon, 28, allegedly picked up the 16-year-old girl in West Palm Beach about 9:35 p.m., drove her to a warehouse district, ripped her clothes off, beat her and raped her, said Sgt. John English.

An officer heard her screams and stopped the attack, English said.

During an interview on "Peter Jennings Reporting: Men, Sex and Rape," McCutcheon talked about why he raped women.

"Whether you say yes or no, I don't care. If you say no, it might as well be a yes because it's a yes to me," McCutcheon told millions of viewers and tried to explain his therapy. "You try to ... fight it, to keep it from coming back up again. And see, that's where a lot of people distort things because they say, 'Well, I'm cured.' And really, there is no cure to nothing."

Jennings, who talked to other rapists as well as victims and investigators for the show, said Wednesday that statistics show McCutcheon has little chance of real recovery.

Orange buys wildlife land

ORLANDO — Orange County commissioners are pleased at being able to purchase a link in what environmentalists see as a "wildlife corridor" from Central Florida to Lake Okechobee.

"I can't tell you how I'd feel if we lost this chance," Commissioner Vera Carter said Tuesday after a 5-2 vote authorizing the purchase of 1,587 acres along the Econlockhatchee River for $8 million.

FLAG Development Co. of Miami offered the property at $4,600 an acre.

The county also will stipulate that FLAG is giving it $400 an acre in land value as a donation. The company can then deduct that $634,800 from its federal taxes.

The land, on the eastern bank of the Econ north of the Bee Line Expressway, is across the river from 2,800 acres the St. Johns River Water Management District bought in February.

The area is home to increasingly rare animals such as the gopher tortoise. Environmentalists hope the corridor from north Seminole County to Lake Okechobee would allow animals to move freely across a wider area.

The property, along with the parcel bought by the water district, can be used for such activities as horseback riding and camping, said County Chairman Linda Chapin.

Radio show pioneer, Burke, dies

BOCA RATON — Alan Burke, a pioneer of the confrontational radio talk show style, died of complications from emphysema. He was 69.

Burke, who died Monday at Boca Raton Community Hospital, first gained national notoriety on television. The Alan Burke Show ran on New York's WNEW-TV Channel 5 from 1968 to 1989, and a two-hour weekend show was syndicated to 20 cities from 1968 to 1970.

The subject of his shows ranged from First Amendment rights to sex in suburbia to a Jewish anti-Semitism.

The American Jewish Committee and the United Church of Christ blasted his show as a forum for bigots.

Burke was known for hanging up on his South Florida radio call-in listeners and insulting his guests.

He hosted as WINZ talk show from 1978 to 1984 in Miami. He moved on to WQBS in 1984 and stayed with the station was bought by WWSW also in Miami. One of Burke's last jobs was hosting a show for WJNO in Palm Beach County.

Burke is survived by his wife, two sons, two stepchildren and four grandchildren.

A private service was planned.

State faces cost of hurricane

By JACKIE MALLIFAR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State leaders know there's going to be a financial reckoning in the wake of Hurricane Andrew, but they've not yet figured out where they're going to get the money.

"I think all of us are aware — the governor included — that we're going to have to face the financial implications of this disaster soon enough," Tom Herndon, chief of staff in Gov. Lawton Chiles' office, said Wednesday.

"Right now we've been focusing on food, water, security," Herndon said. "Those are the paramount issues."

State leaders will probably have to turn to lawmakers to appropriate more money later this fall, but Herndon said it was too soon to tell if taxes would have to be raised or if the money could be shifted from any of the state's hundreds of trust funds.

In the short-term, the first source of money in the operating budgets of the state agencies.

Although the state's $31 billion budget has held up since the fiscal year began July

"I think all of us are aware — the governor included — that we're going to have to face the financial implications of this disaster soon enough."

-Tom Herndon

1, Florida had to cut spending several times in the last two years because of tax shortfalls.

"The agencies have been wrung pretty dry over the last couple of years already," Herndon said. The agency operating budgets support essential services and state government is continuing to function in 95 percent of the state, he said.

After agency operating budgets have been squeezed, the state will go to its Working Capital Fund, commonly known as the rainy day fund. But with just $62 million available, that money is a drop in the bucket in the wake of Hurricane Andrew.

Preliminary damage estimates range from $6 billion to $20 billion. Some 180,000 people were left homeless when the hurricane hit south of Miami just before dawn Monday.

The federal government picks up three-quarters of the cost of rebuilding roads and at least three-quarters of the cost of temporary housing for residents without insurance.

However, to get that federal money, state and local governments have to put up matching money.

"At some point, we probably will have to seek some sort of additional appropriation," said Don Pride, a Chiles' spokesman.

Lawmakers return to the Capitol for an organizational session in November. Pride said the Legislature could be asked to approve more spending as early as then and didn't rule out the possibility of a special session before November.

South Carolina paid $10 for every resident under its arrangement with the Federal Emergency Management Agency after Hurricane Hugo devastated that state in 1989, according to Rod Westall.

Noriega is transferred to Talladega

By Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega was transferred to a federal prison in Talladega after Hurricane Andrew wiped out two federal lockups in the Miami area, a prisons spokeswoman said.

All of the 1,400 federal prisoners in Miami were moved to the Talladega Federal Correctional Institution or other federal prisons in the southeast, said Angie Sheffer, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons in Atlanta.

Noriega was escorted to the Talladega prison at about noon Wednesday, Ms. Sheffer said. She said Noriega will have a cell to himself but wouldn't say where in the prison complex he was being held.

Noriega had been in Miami's Metropolitan Correctional Center since his conviction April 9 on drug trafficking charges.

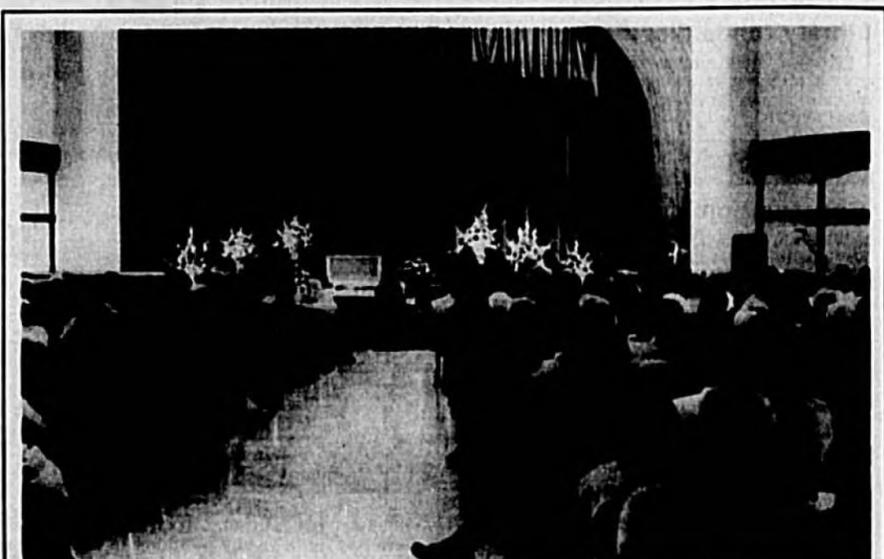

The transfer of Miami prisoners to the Talladega lockup came a year after Cuban detainees at the prison rioted, seizing control of a building and holding 10 hostages.

Ms. Sheffer said the inmates being evacuated from Miami were not Cuban detainees. All were awaiting trial in Miami, she said.

The prisons spokeswoman said it was the first time a federal prison had been closed by a disaster.

"We have on occasion at some of our smaller facilities had to contemplate evacuation, but to the best of my knowledge, the Bureau of Prisons has never gone through any evacuation of this size in history," Ms. Sheffer said.

Vickie Plunkett, acting press secretary for U.S. Rep. Glen Browder, D-Ala., said an unknown number of prisoners was sent to the medium-security Talladega prison, which already was nearly 40 percent over capacity with 953 inmates. An adjoining prison camp was slightly under capacity with 239 prisoners, she said.

Florida universities squabbling over allocation of library money

By Associated Press

TAMPA — A proposed change in the allocation of library funds has caused some squabbling among Florida's nine public universities.

At stake is $15.2 million to buy books, magazines and other resources needed for research and class work. The amount is small in terms of the overall university budgets, but officials say the money makes a big difference in their ability to provide faculty and students with current information.

Some universities cut their library budget during the past two years of shrinking budgets. Others, including the University of Florida, protected their libraries, making their deepest cuts elsewhere.

The usual formula for dividing state money would restore library spending at the university where it was cut the most. But UF and its allies say that would unfairly penalize them.

They have convinced Chancellor Charles Reed that they deserve a larger slice of the pie. He will recommend those schools receive more when the Board of Regents makes a decision next month.

Instead of following a mathematical model for splitting the money, Reed said his recommendation rewards the schools that made their libraries a priority.

"We tried to be as consistent as we could with your prior decision about how to manage your campuses," Reed told the university presidents Tuesday.

"I know everybody doesn't like it, but it's the best we can do."

President Modesto Maidique of Florida International University was one of those who objected.

Complaining that more than 20 percent of his library funds were being taken away, he said. "Why not leave well enough alone? We're not talking about a great amount of money in any event."

The revised spending plan will give UF $3.8 million for library resources, an increase of $700,000. The University of South Florida will receive $2.5 million, an increase of nearly $400,000.

Florida International University will receive $1.2 million, a cut of more than $500,000. Florida Atlantic University will receive $1.2 million, a cut of $200,000.

POLICE BRIEFS

Bad check charges filed

Howard Warren Robinson, 28, of 802 Orange Avenue, Sanford, was charged with nine separate counts of obtaining property with a worthless check. Sheriff's deputies located him at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, where he was being held on an unrelated charge.

Cars burglarized

Sanford police are investigating burglaries to six vehicles, all in the parking lot of Hill Haven Nursing Home, 950 Mellonville Avenue. All of the cases were reported Tuesday. A $1,200 gold ring and purse were taken from the car of Jacqueline Rathbun of Sanford. Owners of the five other vehicles were identified as Carol White of Osteen, Artie Lee Daniels of Sanford, Anthony Corrales of Deltona, Suzanne Payne of Sanford, and Lorrie Teikamp of Sanford. None of the other owners reported anything missing. Officers said entry was made in all of the vehicles by breaking open a window. They suspect a steel object such as a wheel wrench may have been used.

Richard Franklin Rabon, 34, 6030 Una Drive, Sanford, was arrested during a traffic stop by Winter Springs police on Tuesday. He was wanted for three separate warrants charging him with violation of parole on a conviction of driving under the influence of alcohol, failing to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended license, and failing to appear on a charge of battery.

Glen Alan Cox, of 704 Cherokee Circle, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Tuesday following a dispute with his girlfriend. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

High school site decision delayed

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Several people walked out of this week's school board meeting when it became apparent that the board would not make a decision for a couple of months on which piece of property they would choose for a new high school in Winter Springs.

"I thought they were going to rush into this, but I'll just come back in October and see where they're going," said John Devon of Winter Springs who walked quietly from the meeting room. "If they're going to look carefully at both sites, I'm pleased."

The board will advertise an intention to possibly buy both a 57.8-acre site adjacent to Central Winda Park on State Road 434 at the Wagner Curve and a 74-acre site on State Road 434 to the north of Howell Creek Road in Tuskawilla. They will buy only one site.

"There are advantages and disadvantages to both," said Diane Kramer, the district's facilities planner. "The difference is that the costs on one site are on the property and on the other, there are things we are required to do off-site."

Once a site is selected and the school is built the entire Seminole County school district will need to be rezoned. While many of the students in the new schools will come from Lake Howell High School, the other schools will need to be rezoned in order to create a balanced enrollment.

Seminole High School, the most under-utilized facility in the district stands to benefit from the rezoning. Though supporters of Seminole High have said in the past that the school can not wait until 1995 to be rezoned as they are under-enrolled already, none of them stood to speak last night.

The district had, at one time, discussed building a new school near Heathrow, between Seminole and Lake Mary High School, but opposition from the Seminole supporters and an increasing overcrowding situation at Lake Howell moved the need for a new school to the Winter Springs area.

The board has scheduled a public hearing for Tuesday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. in the board room. At that time, the owners of each property will make presentations, the board will ask questions and members of the public will be allowed to make comments about the merits or disadvantages of each.

The 57.8-acre site has an asking price of $2,358,300. The asking price for the other site is $2,320,000.

The full 57.8-acre site is usable for the high school which the state mandates must be built on a minimum of 50 acres.

While only 51 acres of the 74-acre site are usable some pointed out last night that the remaining 23 acres consist of wetlands along Howell Creek that could be used as an on-site environmental study center. Ten of those wetlands acres have an additional potential use as practice fields for sports teams.

Lolon Grago, a science teacher at Lake Howell High School and a resident of Tuskawilla, spoke briefly in favor of that site at the end of the meeting.

Finish the job

The Senate Select Committee on POW/MIA Affairs has a few more months of work before writing its final report at year's end. But the committee's 11 months of hearings and investigation have already exposed enough of the truth to justify some initial conclusions.

First, some American prisoners of war were almost certainly abandoned when the United States withdrew its military forces from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia in 1973. How many U.S. servicemen were left behind is uncertain.

Recently declassified Pentagon documents note that about 350 Americans listed as either prisoners of war or missing in action in Laos were never returned and never accounted for. In addition, Hanoi failed to return or account for about 80 American servicemen known by the Pentagon to have been captured alive.

Even today, 19 years after the Paris Peace Accords, the Pentagon is keeping open the files on 133 missing Americans as high priority "discrepancy" cases. The communist governments of Vietnam and Laos have insisted publicly for years that they are not holding any American POWs. Yet, the 133 cases remain unresolved.

Most were known to have been captured alive. If these men are dead, where are their remains? The North Vietnamese kept meticulous records on POWs but claim to know nothing of the 133 in question.

Absent the return of remains or a satisfactory explanation of what happened to these men, the suspicion will linger that some may still be alive, either in Southeast Asia or in the Soviet Union.

The second conclusion is that the Pentagon and the Nixon administration erred tragically in declaring that any POW not returned during the prisoner exchange in February and March of 1973 should be presumed dead.

The Pentagon's own files show this conclusion to have been unwarranted. Moreover, it effectively discouraged any further search for evidence that some POW/MIA might be alive. In effect, the government's rush to disengage from the Vietnam War may well have condemned dozens, scores, or even hundreds of American servicemen to endless years of captivity.

Conclusion No. 3 is that the Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations were shamefully negligent on the POW issue. All failed to pursue reports that some Americans might still have been held in Indochina. For whatever combination of reasons, all relegated the POW issue to backwater status.

Given these emerging conclusions, where should the committee go from here? It should focus on two new sets of allegations that have arisen since its inquiry began last fall. Both are central to the question of whether any POWs might still be alive.

At least two witnesses have testified under oath that they saw top-secret intelligence reports detailing the transfer of American POWs from Vietnam to the Soviet Union, with some of the transfers taking place after 1973. The committee should insist on reviewing files of the super-secret National Security Agency, which has custody of the relevant intelligence.

The bipartisan Senate Select Committee on POW/MIA Affairs has already accomplished more than many could have hoped when its investigation began nearly a year ago. It remains now for the committee to finish the job.

Who's making campaign rules?

George Bush probably got what he needed out of the Republican Convention: a jet-assisted takeoff with the help of a united party. Now the problem is to maintain that momentum and cross the finish line in November ahead of Bill Clinton.

Whether he can do so will depend in great part on the rules of the campaign, as these are understood by the voters. So it is critically important who lays down those rules. What subjects can be discussed? Which topics, if any, are taboo?

In answering that question, the Democrats have the enormous help of the liberal media. Well over a year ago the media's drumbeat began: This time there must be no Willie Horton!

Personally I have always thought the "Willie Horton issue" was a devastating illustration of Michael Dukakis' liberal affinity for coddling criminals. Even The Washington Post admitted editorially, back in October 1988, that there wasn't anything "racist" about it.

But the Republicans have nevertheless been largely browbeaten into agreeing that there must be no "Willie Horton issue" in this campaign, and the media have quickly expanded the taboo: There must be no "negative campaigning" at all.

Those of us who can remember 1964 are fascinated by the media's new distaste for negative campaigning. Never mind the TV commercial about the little girl and the atom bomb. A few weeks before the election that November, six major newspapers around the country carried a full-page ad by a liberal polemicist named Ralph Ginsburg containing the names of more than 300 psychiatrists, all of whom staked their professional reputations on the finding that Goldwater was mentally too unstable to be president.

No "negative campaigning," eh? As currently interpreted by the Democrats and the media, this turns out to mean that only one subject is discussable this fall: the economy, on which they think President Bush is vulnerable.

Now, of course the economy is unquestionably

It is critically important who lays down those rules.

the major issue at the moment, and the Republicans are already putting forward their own program for improving it. But does it follow that nothing else -- nothing whatever -- can be discussed?

I happen to think that the single most important thing about any presidential aspirant is his character. But Gov. Clinton's character is simply out of bounds. (Stuck to the economy!)

No reference to his -- shall we say? -- cavalier attitude toward the draft in 1968 will be allowed, though he is running for commander in chief of the Army, Navy and Air Force. (What about the economy?)

Any allusion to his long history of extramarital affairs is equally impermissible, since a man's attitude toward his marriage allegedly tells us nothing about how he would react in various situations as president. (Certainly it tells us nothing about the economy.)

Gov. Clinton is allowed to point with pride to his wife's career in law and public life, and to bid for women's support by hinting at how influential a role she will play in his administration. But the Republicans are forbidden even to quote any of the hair-raising statements Hillary Clinton has made over the years on children, marriage and related topics. (What do these have to do with the economy?)

We preside over baseball's end

It saddens me to say it, but I believe professional baseball as we know it will soon be extinct.

Future historians will probably date its demise from April 18, 1966, when the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Houston Astros played the first game on fake grass. This angered the gods of Olympus, and Houston lost, 6-3. It also annoyed Philadelphia Phillies first baseman Dick Allen, who said, "If a horse won't eat it, I won't play on it." And former manager and ace Leo Durocher, who said, "This travesty could ruin the game."

Soon the people who own baseball teams -- a special breed descended from a European tribe known as the Loopy Loops -- were ripping up real grass in places like Philadelphia and Kansas City and playing the game in the open air on synthetic sod. The gods resolved that baseball would suffer an agonizing demise.

First, they decided, they would corrupt the players. Thus it came about that free agency and arbitration were invented and a union was formed. This was good for a while because it forced the Loopy Loops to pay players something akin to what they were worth, but it soon devolved into utter lunacy.

By 1992, thanks to the money generated by network and cable television in competition with each other, the average salary was $1.08 million and even mediocre players were signing $15 million contracts. Players like Pittsburgh's insufferable Barry Bonds and Oakland's arrogant Rickey Henderson got greedy and whiny and sulked about being underpaid.

At about this time, it occurred to fans that it wasn't television and the Loopy Loops who were paying these outrageous sums to watch egotistical jerks pout. It was them. They were paying through the nose for cable sports channels. They were paying an average of $65.85 a game for tickets, food, beverages and souvenirs when they took their families to the park.

They looked at players like Boston's Jack Clark, who made $5.4 million a year and spent it on 18 cars and condominiums and country club homes and a drag racing team and they said to themselves, "Why the hell am I forking over my money to keep this fool in toys?" And they stopped going to the park.

Then the gods went to work on the Loopy Loops, who had been saved for last because they were already wicked and devious and no challenge at all. Indeed, the gods had already leveled a curse on them in 1919 when one of their ilk in Boston sold Babe Ruth to the Yankees and another in 1958 when Walter O'Malley moved Brooklyn's Dodgers to Los Angeles and still another in 1972 when Bob Short took the Washington Senators to Texas.

In 1973, the gods set down among the Loopy Loops one George Steinbrenner, who purchased a large chunk of the New York Yankees, then proceeded to hire and fire 18 managers and 11 general managers and generally make a buffoon of himself. Other odd personages joined his ranks and soon the sport was in the hands of magnates, developers, car dealers, singing cowboys and pizza makers who tried to sell teams for enormous profit.

From plebeian ranks, a prophet rose and said to the fearful fans, "Buy them yourselves. Form cooperatives, sell shares and purchase your teams. It is not a wild idea: The Green Bay Packers football team has operated this way since 1922." But the fans did not listen, and the prophet, who went by the name of The Curmudgeon, said, "Municipalize your teams. Float bond issues and buy them." And a governor of New York by the name of Cuomo touted the idea, but it came to naught.

Thus it happened that the people lost all affection for megaball and turned their attentions to fishing. The moguls and swellheads gradually departed and the game reverted to its pastoral past and was enjoyed by true lovers of the sport.

And the gods of Olympus rested and marveled unto themselves, perhaps by our curse on baseball we have saved it.

The gods resolved that baseball would suffer an agonizing demise.

Who's fit to lead our armed forces

It was all the rage at the Grand Old Party in Houston for speakers to conjure a scary specter -- our U.S. military being led by someone who never spent one day in the military service of his country.

Speakers evoked emotions of patriotism, fear and even ridicule: Imagine our troops being directed by someone who once avoided military service by cobbling together variations of what the speakers called dodges and the law calls deferments.

We heard Pat Buchanan recall that George Bush was our youngest World War II fighter pilot in the Pacific and then ask: "Which of these two men has won the moral authority to send young Americans into battle?"

Even President Bush resorted to ridicule, exclaiming this uncharacteristically big r a g g i n g aspersion about patriotism and guts: "While I bit the bullet, he bit his nails."

We'll hear more. But I'd like to see the Republicans rise above themselves and stop these attacks that I assume were leveled against the first public figure who leaps to my mind because his resume fits their rhetoric -- one of the finest officials I've known: Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney.

Why are these Republicans attacking my old friend Cheney? Yes, OK, Dick Cheney never served a day in the military. But he served ably in shaping the fate of the military. Cheney's leadership as a defense secretary has been first rank, perhaps unsurpassed.

And that's no surprise since, for almost two decades, I've known Cheney as a tough, yet fair-minded conservative who always stood for a strong defense and against discrimination.

That's why Bush had no reservation about naming Cheney defense secretary. He knew Cheney's ability to shape our forces wouldn't be affected by the fact that during the Vietnam War, Cheney took his draft deferments precisely when and how I took mine: first as a student in the pre-Vietnam '60s, next as a husband in 1964, then as a father in 1966.

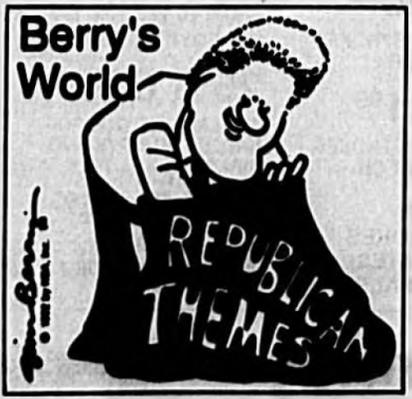

Now, it has been brought to my attention by reliable sources that perhaps Buchanan-Bush, et al., didn't really have Cheney in mind -- maybe they meant to make us think of Bill Clinton, a Democrat, who, like Cheney, also did not serve.

Come to think of it, Buchanan, our leading expert on moral authority, also observed, "When Bill Clinton's turn came in Vietnam, he sat up in a dormitory in Oxford, England, and figured out how to dodge the draft."

Buchanan didn't mention that when his own turn came, he escaped military service because of a bad knee, which, mercifully, didn't limit his afterlife as a daily jogger. (Did you notice Buchanan never asked, when he was campaigning against Bush: "Which of these two men -- Buchanan or Bush -- has won the moral authority to send young Americans into battle?")

As the campaign explodes around us, our burden will be to sort through the bombast and separate what truly matters from what truly doesn't. As in this: Clinton's lack of military service doesn't eradicate his ability to be a strong commander in chief, just as Bush's admirable military service doesn't alone equip him to be commander in chief.

Neither can we judge Dan Quayle, pro or con, by his Vietnam experience, when he fought only to get into the Indiana National Guard and stay out of the war (he employed all weapons, including calls to officials by his influential family).

 the $1,300 rate, was to have been $15,608. The Salvation Army has called for an increase, based on the city paying for 50 percent of all services for the facility including custodian, electrical, water, gas, trash removal, janitorial supplies and property upkeep.
 Kirby had originally proposed increasing the cost of summer playground fees from $10 to $15 per week would help offset the increase.
 "Now that we have started using the facility," said Commissioner Whitey Eckstein, "it looks as though the Salvation Army is trying to put a gun to our heads." He added, "We are doing this to help our kids, but raising funds is not the way to do it."
 Eckstein suggested some other options should be explored.
 City Manager Bill Simmons said, "When we started negotiating this lease, we felt this was the most we can pay. We asked them if they would accept this and they said yes." He added, "I think Atlanta is thinking about the establishment as part of the open market and I'm not sure this is the best alternative at this point."

 Commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan agreed. "This building was built by local funds, and now they want to act like it's a corporate facility."
 Most of the discussion took place during a workshop session held yesterday afternoon. Kirby was to recommend a counter offer by the start of the regular Commission meeting at 7 o'clock last night.
 When the matter came up for discussion during the regular meeting, Kirby suggested the city offer what was in the original agreement, $15,608 per month.

Simmons suggested if the Salvation Army approved the change in the monthly lease, the matter could be approved. "But if not," he said, "then we should bring it back for further negotiations."

 It was at that point Matt chased Volt on foot and was struck by the car.
 Matt was not seriously injured. He managed to get back on his feet and apprehend Volt a short distance away. Volt was taken into custody and charged with fraud in obtaining a controlled substance, and resisting arrest without violence.
 "I do have a bruise on my thigh," Matt said this morning, "and while I feel OK, I have filed an injury report just in case any problems come up."
 Matt was off duty today, but voiced concern over the car which struck him. "I was hoping the woman driver would contact us," he said, "because I thought I may have dented or scratched the hood of her car with my gun when I laid across it."
 Matt, who observed his 26th birthday last week, has been with the Longwood Police Department for 18 months.

Aid

 in the past two years than in all of the 1980s.
 A crew of volunteers from the Seminole County Traffic Department will assist in South Florida by repairing traffic signals and street lights, said Traffic Engineer Steve Decker.
 Representatives for the volunteer effort ask that donations consist of bottled water, canned goods, baby food, diapers, Sterno, candles, toiletries, flashlights, batteries, blankets and medical supplies, said Terry Baker, assistant chief of Longwood police.
 "Please tell them not to forget the hand-held can opener," Commander Jim Smith from the American Legion added.
 Salvation Army Mrs. Capt. Joy Bergen, whose husband Capt. Gary Bergen has just returned from his second trip delivering goods to South Florida, said clothing is not needed, but the food and water shortage is critical. Capt. Bergen will return to the Ft. Lauderdale base Monday assisting the Salvation Army for a week.
 "The whole thing is very difficult. They're working out of Ft. Lauderdale because it's been almost impossible to get into Miami. No power. No roads. Trees all over the existing roads. A trip from Ft. Lauderdale to Miami ordinarily takes an hour. Capt. said it takes a full day to deliver supplies and get back.

It's that bad," Mrs. Capt. Bergen said.
 The Sanford Fire Department also received a call regarding the need for paramedic personnel in the Miami area.
 The Sanford City Commission Monday denied the request, much to the chagrin of Commissioner Bob Thomas.
 "I can't see why this city didn't commit itself. Certainly they would send us help if the hurricane struck here. I'm just sick about the whole thing," Thomas said Wednesday.
 City Manager Bill Simmons explained the city's position.
 "We couldn't authorize our personnel to go down there because it would reduce the number of people on call here, and they would not be covered by women's compensation while they were there."

 According to Assistant Fire Chief Ron Neel, six firefighters are helping relief efforts, including Fire Marshal Richard Cohen, Capt. Bill Elements, an EMS coordinator; Paramedic Lt. Gerard Ransom, firefighter Dean Rainville, Battalion Chief William Ellenberg, and firefighter Kip Parrishall.
 "All of us here are extremely proud of them," Neel said.
 Sanford Police Lt. Mike Rotundo said his men have also volunteered to help on their own time.
 "Some of them will load up a U-Haul Wednesday and go down there on their day off," he said.

Budget

 with $25,000 homestead exemption, would pay $292.43 in property taxes next year. If the roll back millage is adopted, the same home owner would pay only $282.36, or approximately $10 less.
 Litton said, "The city has to hold tonight's meeting to fine tune the budget, but there will be two formal public hearings scheduled for Sept. 3 and 17."
 He added, "The millage rate does not have to be finalized until the end of September, so it wouldn't be necessary to make any official change in the millage rate until that time."

Tonight's meeting is considered a special called meeting, rather than a workshop session, which would allow the commission to take formal action if it is required.
 The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of the Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

Policy

 That policy had called for students involved in extra-curricular activities to be subject to punishment if they were caught partaking in the banned activities 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Punishment included suspension from the next function of the extra-curricular group and treatment at a state-licensed drug treatment center.
 In the face of much public opposition, Supt. Paul Hagerty changed the policy to apply to students only during the term of their extra-curricular activity. The punishment was also changed to remove the requirement for treatment at an HRS facility on the first offense.
 Hagerty said the change in the policy was not a softening of the district's stand against drugs, but a change in the focus of the policy.
 "Though there has not been a public hearing about the revised policy, members of the public, during the public input section of the Aug. 12 board meeting, said they believed the revised policy is more acceptable, but they still had some problems with it."
 "I think you're probably moving in a positive direction, finally," Allison Garcia said at the time.
 Those problems are expected to be the subject of the discussion tonight and many of those citizens are expected to be at the meeting to speak to the board before a final vote is taken.

"I never had to dial the area code when I called my sister before, why do I have to now?"

"Will this new dialing plan cost me more?"

New Dialing Directions for the Information Generation.

Because Florida's growing so quickly, the supply of telephone number combinations is running low. But the answer to this problem is simple. And it won't cost you a dime.
 Now, when you dial a long distance number within the same area code, you need to dial it like any other long distance call - by including the area code.

This new dialing plan will dramatically increase the supply of available telephone numbers.
 So, remember to dial the area code on all long distance calls within your area code. And, remember to re-program speed-dial numbers, programmed FAX machines, computer modems or alarm systems affected by this new dialing system.

Here's The New Way To Call Long Distance Within Your Area Code.

Dial 0 or 1 + Area Code + 7-digit Number

NATIONAL BRIEFS

SAT scores improve

WASHINGTON — Scholastic Aptitude Test scores for high school seniors were up marginally this year for the first time since 1985, leaving some educators heartened but others unconvinced that the nation's academic slide is ending. The College Board reported Wednesday that average SAT scores rose 2 points to 478 in math, and 1 point to 423 in verbal skills, compared to last year's results. A perfect score in each part is 800.

"One or two points may not seem like much, but each point is meaningful on a test taken by more than a million students who represent roughly two-thirds of all entering college freshmen," said Donald M. Stewart, president of the New York-based testing agency.

"We hope we are beginning to see a trend, upward."

Down Syndrome test discovered

WASHINGTON — A battery of simple blood tests can help doctors spot about half of all pregnant women who are carrying fetuses with Down syndrome, a report today indicates.

While the tests will not replace amniocentesis — the standard method of detecting this birth defect — they should help doctors choose which women should undergo the procedure and may allow many older women to avoid routine amniocentesis.

About one of every 850 babies is born with Down syndrome, which causes retardation and a variety of physical abnormalities. It results from a genetic defect that is especially common among babies of older women. As a result, many mothers over 35 routinely get amniocentesis, which involves drawing out a sample of fluid surrounding the fetus with a needle.

Iran-Contra jury deadlocked

WASHINGTON — Iran-Contra prosecutors face a rough road in retrying former CIA spymaster Clair George on coverup charges, say legal experts and the foreman of the jury that deadlocked on all counts.

"There was never a point in our deliberations where a majority found the defendant guilty," jury foreman Steven Kirk said after the case ended in a mistrial Wednesday.

"Twelve other jurors would have a hard time finding the defendant guilty of these charges," he said.

Economy 'teetering' on recovery

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The economy approaching the presidential election is caught in a "never-never land," teetering between recovery and recession, analysts say.

As measured by the gross domestic product, the economy through June has grown for five consecutive quarters after declining in late 1990 and early 1991.

But the gains have been so paltry it hardly feels like growth to most people. And even as the total output of goods and services has increased, the unemployment rate has worsened in most months. It was 7.7 percent in July, just under an eight-year high of 7.8 percent in June.

"Our economy is not recovering. It's not in a full-fledged recession. It's in never-never land," said economist Allen Sinai of the Boston Co. Economic Advisors Inc.

"We're in a stall right now in what already was a half-paced recovery," said economist Priscilla Trumbull of the WFA Group, a Bala Cynwyd, Pa., forecasting firm.

More data on the economy's health is being released today with the Commerce Department's updated estimate of the second quarter's GDP. Reports also were due on new claims for unemployment benefits earlier this month and on corporate profits in the second quarter.

Last month, the Commerce Department calculated second-quarter GDP at a feeble 1.4 percent annual rate. Most economists were looking for a modest upward revision to 1.6 percent today, partly because the nation's trade performance was somewhat better than first thought and because businessmen added more to their inventories than initially believed.

But the inventory buildup could reduce the need for production in the third quarter, detracting from growth. And now Hurricane Andrew looks as if it will depress the figures as well.

"No one knows how much damage has been done, but factory output — and more importantly tourist industries — will be badly hurt," said economist Sung Won Sohn of Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis.

Damage has been preliminarily estimated at $15 billion to $20 billion in Dade County, Fla., alone, making it the most destructive storm in U.S. history.

Sohn said the hurricane could shave between 0.2 and 0.3 percentage points off the third-quarter GDP increase.

Warlord maneuvers for power while fellow Somalians starve

By GREG BYRNE
Associated Press Writer

MOGADISHU, Somalia — To his supporters, warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid is a hero who overthrew dictator Mohammed Siad Barre. To his critics, Aidid is even more ruthless than the man he ousted, fighting a clan war that has left the nation shattered and starving.

Aidid, a former army general and ambassador, heads the United Somali Congress, the strongest of many clan-based militias in a fragmented land that has no government and no police.

He looks more grandfather than warlord — 60ish; soft-spoken; graying, receding hair, pot belly. He jokes with his soldiers, usually wears civilian clothes and sometimes dons a kamfyeh, the headpiece worn by devout Muslims.

But Aidid is locked in a bitter, bloody battle with former ally Ali Mahdi Mohamed — the interim president who controls a small section of northern Mogadishu and little else.

Their conflict, fueled by numerous clan rivalries, has claimed tens of thousands of casualties, flattened the capital and is the leading cause of a famine that threatens 1.5 million Somalis.

Africa Watch, the U.S.-based human rights group, calls the war a "power struggle between two ambitious and ruthless men who display a callous disregard for the value of human life."

Their feud illustrates the depth of clan and subclan loyalties in Somalia, which was considered one of Africa's most homogeneous states before the fighting that erupted last year.

Both men are Muslims who belong to the Hawiye clan. Neither has offered a detailed political program, but both say they want a national reconciliation conference leading to a multiparty interim government.

Their one irreconcilable difference is subclan blood ties: Aidid and his followers are Haber-Oedra, Ali Mahdi and his men are Abgals.

Aidid, whose forces occupy southern Mogadishu and towns in the southwest desert, led the guerrilla campaign that ended Siad Barre's 21-year reign in January 1991.

He wants Somalia governed by Islamic principles but is not considered a hard-line fundamentalist.

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — If the preseason polls are to be believed, the Lyman Greyhounds and Lake Mary Rams should be among the challengers for the Class 4A boys' cross country state championship this year. In the preseason Florida Athletic Coaches Association' honor roll, compiled by Rick Rothman of Spanish River Community High School in Boca Raton, Lyman is ranked No. 2 and Lake Mary No. 3 behind top-ranked Naples-Barron Collier.

Both the Greyhounds and Rams had one representative in the individual Top 10 preseason rankings.

Lake Mary junior Toby Ayers starts the season at No. 3 behind Niceville's James Senechal and Brian Good from Pensacola-Washington. John Scott, a senior from Lyman, is ranked No. 10 in the preseason poll.

Scott's teammate, Brian Nelson, is listed in the "Others to watch" category.

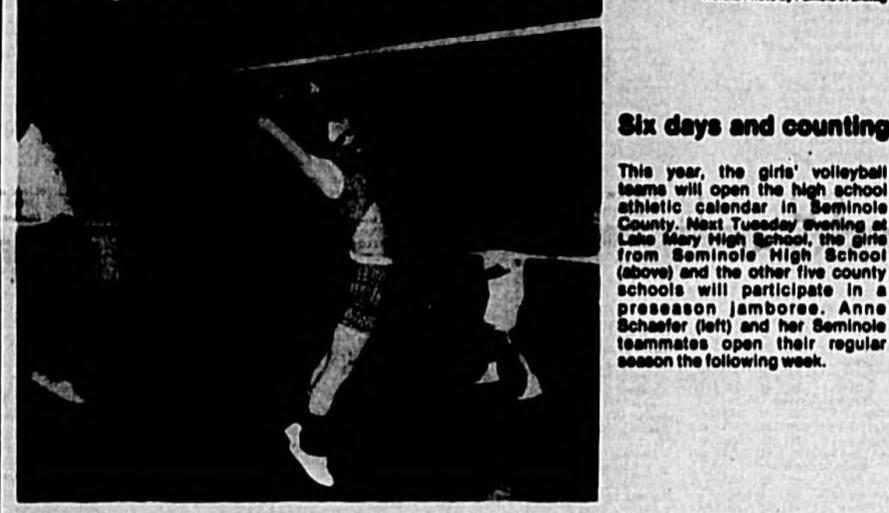

Lyman and Lake Mary landed in the preseason top 10 due largely to the quantity and quality of runners returning from their 1991 teams.

GSCC again calls for nominations

By TONY BOGGERMAN
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Did you forget? Earlier this month, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce made its annual announcement that it was accepting nominations for the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame.

That may have been a bit presumptuous on their part. After all, they can't accept nominations if no-one is willing to submit any.

As of Monday of this week, no-one had.

Originally, the deadline for written nominations was Friday, Sept. 4. But that deadline has now been extended until Monday, Sept. 14.

The Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame, founded 10 years ago, is operated by and housed at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Currently, there are 23 members of the Hall of Fame. The most recent inductees were University of Central Florida baseball coach Jay Bergman (who coached at Seminole Community College earlier in his career) and deceased Sanford Herald sports and news writer Peter Schaal.

To be eligible for consideration by the selection committee, a candidate must meet the following three requirements:

• They must have lived in Seminole County for a period of not less than three years or must have worked in Seminole County for a total period of not less than five years.

• They must have made an outstanding contribution to their sports field as a player, coach, administrator or fan.

• They must be at least 21 years of age on the date of nomination.

Any candidate who receives votes on 75 percent of the ballots returned by the members of selection committee is elected membership to the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame.

Once nominated, an individual remains on the Hall of Fame ballot indefinitely unless he or she doesn't receive a vote for three consecutive years.

Voting is based on the candidate's integrity, sportsmanship, character and playing ability or contribution to his or her sport.

Please send nominations, along with any documentation supporting the nomination, to the attention of Bud Layer, chairman of the Hall of Fame selection committee, at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, 400 East 1st Street, Sanford, 32721.

St. Pete fans 'card' baseball leaders

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Fans wanting to show support for the proposed sale and relocation of the San Francisco Giants to St. Petersburg are being encouraged to mail millions of postcards to baseball leaders.

City officials spent $34,000 on the pre-printed cards that are addressed to baseball commissioner Fay Vincent, National and American League presidents Bill White and Bobby Brown and Giants owner Bob Lurie.

"You're batting a thousand with us in Tampa Bay — thank you for your support," the cards addressed to Vincent read.

The message to White, Brown and team owners in their respective leagues is "Thank you for helping our baseball dream come true in Tampa Bay," while Lurie is getting a "giant thank you" for agreeing to sell the Giants to a Florida ownership group for $115 million.

Local officials hope the show of support will sway major league owners when it's time to vote on the proposed sale and moves. However, employees in the New York offices where most of the seven million postcards are headed weren't excited to hear about the campaign.

"Obviously we don't want to encourage that," said Carole Coleman, a spokeswoman for major league baseball. "The commissioner cannot sit and read every one that comes in."

Hurricanes deal with Andrew's aftermath

Associated Press

VERO BEACH — Shortages of food, water and electricity in hurricane-ravaged Coral Gables prompted the top-ranked Miami Hurricanes to move their preseason workouts 140 miles north Wednesday to Vero Beach.

The team will stay until its season opener Sept. 5 at Iowa, and may return to Vero Beach after the first game. Because of damage from Hurricane Andrew, the university pushed the start of classes back more than two weeks to Sept. 14.

Andrew left the campus without water, electricity and phone service in most buildings. The team's practice field was littered with debris.

"And there was some concern about the amount of food remaining in the dorms," athletic director Dave Maggard said.

The Miami staff was hard-hit by the catastrophic storm. Head coach Dennis Erickson said there was little left of his house, and several assistant coaches sustained serious property damage.

"It's tough for anybody who has never been through anything like this," Erickson said. "To have your house completely destroyed, which mine is, well it's tough to go back and look at."

Andrew dealt a different kind of setback to Miami standout receiver Lamar Thomas and reserve running back Jason Marucci. They hoped to resolve their grand jury indictment in federal court Thursday, but U.S. Attorney Martin Goldberg said he will request a one-week continuance while his office tries to return to normal operations.

That means Thomas and Marucci likely will miss the Iowa game. The school won't allow them to practice until prosecutors act on their request for enrollment in a pretrial diversion program.

The move to Vero Beach was especially tough for coaches and players who left behind families still dealing with ravaged personal property.

"Tell my wife about it," defensive coordinator Sonny Lubick said as he boarded the team bus Wednesday. "She's around the pool trying to pick up pictures and wipe things off and save belongings and here we are saying, 'Goodbye, I've got to go.'"

"Every coach is the same way. That's the hard part."

Erickson and his family waited out Andrew in a closet at the home of an assistant coach. Erickson said the experience has altered his priorities.

"Family and people are much more important," he said.

Dolphins may move opener

Associated Press

MIAMI — Miami Dolphins receiver Mark Duper, apparently preoccupied with Hurricane Andrew's assault on his hometown in Louisiana, was an unexcused absentee at practice Wednesday.

Because of Andrew, the Dolphins are discussing the possibility of moving their season opener against New England from Miami to Foxboro, Mass. The game is scheduled to be played Sept. 6.

Coach Don Shula had no explanation for Duper's absence from the light workout, but the veteran receiver had expressed concern Tuesday for his family in south-central Louisiana.

Two brothers and his mother have a 19-acre farm there, 100 miles west of New Orleans and in the path of Andrew.

The coach said he is concerned now about helping players cope with the ordeal.

Quarterback Cino Torretta, who retreated to the safety of West Palm Beach during the storm, returned Tuesday to the campus and was overwhelmed by the devastation.

"I have been through a 7-something earthquake," said Torretta, who is from Pinole, Calif. "and this is way worse. There are no trees, nothing. This is crazy."

IN BRIEF

Residents plan toga party

Residents at Village on the Green will be hosting a "Tribute to Greek and Roman History" with a toga party at the Longwood lifecare community beginning with a cocktail party at 5 p.m. tonight.

To capture the festive spirit of the evening, the clubhouse will feature decorative Greek columns and other architecture from the era. Greek hors d'oeuvres will be served. Greek and Roman music will be played and, of course, traditional togas will be worn says Social Director Pat Leeper.

Prizes will be awarded for best costumes.

The cocktail party is part of an on-going series of social events held at the community throughout the year.

Village on the Green is located just off Wekiva Springs Road on the Sabal Point Golf Course in Longwood. More than 300 residents live at the community.

Film series begins

The Seminole Community College Fall Film Series presents its first film of the season, Blood of the Condor, on Sept. 9, 7:30 p.m., in the Concert Hall of the Fine Arts Building.

Based on actual events, Blood of the Condor tells of a United States imposed population control program that sterilized Quechua women without their knowledge or consent. In recounting this incident, the film provides the American viewer a fascinating look at the customs and rituals of the Quechuas as well as a unique opportunity to see ourselves as others see us. Filmed in Bolivia and directed by Jorge Sanjines, the film is in Quechua and Spanish with English subtitles. The film is not rated. Admission is free and open to the public.

Residents of Bram Towers, Sanford, were treated to a show of new fall fashion, modeled by residents of center for active retirees. Ruby Amstutz, Rose Marie DeMilla, Gloria Jones, Anna Clements, Sue McGinnis and Helen Mitchell donned washable silks and cotton blends in the latest colors and styles suitable for the mature Florida woman. ## Mom of new father is grandmother

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is 47 years old. Two years ago when our first child was born, she became a grandmother for the first time.

When people congratulated her on becoming a grandmother, she'd say, "I am not a grandmother. I am the mother of a new father."

We thought that was rather clever at first, but she continued to make such a point of not letting anyone refer to her as a grandmother, we realized that she wasn't kidding.

When our child began to recognize her, she insisted that he call her "Ta Ta," and she said she never wanted him to call her

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"Grandma, Granny, Nana," or anything that related to grandmother. Then she went into that silly routine about her not being a grandmother; she's the mother of a new father.

We don't want to make a big thing out of it, but we'd like to know how to tactfully handle the situation.

SMALLTOWN, USA
DEAR SMALLTOWN: Call her "Ta Ta" to keep her happy. But whether she likes it or not, she is a grandmother, and she'll not be able to avoid that label forever, which will be her problem, eventually — not yours.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing a letter that lets me know I am not alone in this world. (A woman placed a poster on her front door to discourage unwanted company.)

Some time ago I placed a sign on my door that read: "DO NOT DISTURB. NIGHT WORKER!"

It didn't help. People still rang my bell, twisted the doorknob, beat on the door and yelled, "Anybody home?" Some even went around to look in the windows!

When I realized that I needed something stronger, I put up another sign: "ADMISSION $1 — NO ONE ADMITTED FREE."

That sign did the job. Nobody bothered me after that. Now I notice two other signs just like mine in the neighborhood.

DEAR WOLF IN JASPER, ALA.
DEAR WOLF: So far you've been lucky that some curious stranger hasn't demanded to know what you are offering for a dollar.

DEAR ABBY: Since my husband retired nearly a year ago, he has started one project after another, but he hasn't finished any of them.

First, he thought it would be nice if we had a vegetable garden, so he dug up the back yard and bought all kinds of seeds. However, he never got around to planting anything. (You can imagine what our back yard looks like!)

Then he decided we needed a patio, so he bought a truckload of sand and a load of bricks. It's been three months, and the bricks and sand are still piled on our back porch. He hasn't started to "build" anything yet.

Now he is gathering equipment for a woodworking shop in our basement! Abby, he is such a dear man who has really earned his retirement, but all he does is read "how-to" books and whistle as he heads for the hardware store to do some more shopping.

I hate to nag him, but what can I do?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR OOOO: Look at it this way: You have a cow pasture for a back yard, a pile of bricks and sand on your back porch, and a collection of woodworking equipment in your basement. But you also have a husband who is alive, retired, and happy as a lark. If the unfinished projects annoy you, either quietly hire someone to finish them, or whistle as you walk around them.

DEAR ABBY: After reading your article about the uninformed woman who couldn't locate the Pacific Ocean and didn't know the difference between history and geography, I was reminded of the dear little boy in my first-grade class who had just moved to California.

He was telling the class about the wonders he had seen here in California, and one of the wonders was the ocean.

"What is the name of that ocean?" I asked.

"I don't know," he said, "it didn't have a sign."

Early diagnosis is the key for dyslexia

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss dyslexia.

DEAR READER: A child is suspected of having dyslexia if his or her reading skills are at least two years behind the expected grade level.

Most dyslexic children have normal intelligence and vision, but they suffer from an inability to process visual images. The cause is unknown. Dyslexic youngsters also have problems matching, seeing, feeling and hearing, suggesting a disruption in the cognitive centers of the brain.

Children with such reading disabilities should undergo rigorous physical, neurological and psychological testing. Early diagnosis is important; dyslexia should be treated before a pattern of failure and frustration is established.

There is no way to correct the perceptual defects in dyslexia; thus, treatment is directed toward helping affected children overcome their handicap. This requires a multi-disciplined approach: counseling, special schooling and suitable curricula. These services usually can be coordinated by a consultant trained in recognizing and treating the often-subtle deficits of dyslexia.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 74-year-old and have had kidney disease for three years. Initially, I was treated with Lasix and ultimately was placed on dialysis. Though this has truly saved me, I suffer through the treatments. They cause itching that my doctor, as well as allergy specialists, have been unable to control. No medication is successful for more than two days. I've tried acupuncture, but that only works for a few hours. I'm running out of options, and my doctors appear stumped. Can you comment?

DEAR READER: Dialysis, a technique to cleanse the blood of wastes using an artificial kidney, is fraught with many complications, including anemia, mineral imbalance and aluminum toxicity; this latter problem can cause seizures, muscle cramps and restlessness. Itching is a recognized complication of dialysis and may reflect metabolic imbalances in the body, following dialysis.

Your kidney specialist may be able to help you by altering the

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

All games need colorful characters who catch the public's eye. In bridge, we have Omar Sharif, of course, but we also have Zia Mahmood. He is a mercurial Pakistani who travels the world playing in tournaments. When taking a break from globe-trotting, he can be found at the high-stake rubber-bridge tables of London and New York.

Zia has written a book about his life entitled "Bridge My Way" 1822, P.O. Box 1120, Laredo, TX 78041, 800-367-9967. It is both entertaining and instructive. He sprinkles the pages with amusing stories and advice, especially for playing rubber bridge, the author's forte. You learn not only how to score well but also how to control the various fauna that inhabit this strange world.

Take Godzilla. Away from the table, he's successful; at the table, he's the partner no one wants to cut. He can make a vacation in Elm Street with Freddie Kruger seem inviting.

Today's deal really happened. South intended his four-trump rebid as Blackwood. But North — correctly, as no trump suit had been agreed upon — thought it showed a balanced 28-30 points. So North bid his suit, but South took it as showing two aces.

Godzilla, West, had no difficulty in doubling seven no-trump. And he knew the textbook lead against a no-trump contract: the heart two. Declarer won in the dummy and ran 11 minor-suit winners. Which ace should Godzilla keep for trick 13? He threw the spade ace, so it was seven no-trump doubled and made.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 28, 1992

Try to get out socially and move around as much as possible in the year ahead. Go to new places where you can meet new people. The contacts you'll make could turn out to be extremely advantageous.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You've heard the old adage, "If you want something done right, do it yourself." If you let this axiom guide you today, it will substantially enhance your productivity. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Several important objectives that could be meaningful to you in material ways can be achieved at this time — if you apply yourself. After you get the ball rolling, Lady Luck may intervene.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're in a very hopeful cycle where aspirations have good chances of being fulfilled. Don't let negative thinkers discourage you and rain on your parade.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Size up your opposition realistically today and don't empower anyone with qualities they do not possess. Actually, in competitive developments, you're the one with the edge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The impression you'll make on others today will be both favorable and enduring. This gift could produce benefits in areas you'd least expect.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Lady Luck will be doing her best today to help you develop new sources in order to meet your material needs and wants. However, she'll appreciate a helping hand from you as well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Good can come your way today by showing a willingness to cooperate with others. When you think of what's best for them, you'll also realize what's best for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This can be a productive day for you, provided you're determined to do a number of things you've been letting slip by lately. Make a list of priorities and get going.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your outgoing, optimistic manner will help enhance your popularity today. This could be especially true with regard to members of the opposite gender.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're likely to be luckiest today in your material affairs, particularly if they are situations where you're trying to do something worthwhile for others, as well as for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't downgrade your flashes of inspiration today, even if they appear to be a trifle grandiose to others. They might be too big for them, but not for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your material prospects look encouraging both today and tomorrow. However, you must take the bull by the horns instead of waiting for things to happen.
