Money for research scars

GAINESVILLE — Research funding at the University of Florida sourced to $161 million during the 1986-80 achool year, a 19 percent jump from the previous year, the university announced Monday.

"That's a record increase," said Don Price, the university's vice president for research. "It's our largest one-year increase and the largest percentage increase we've ever recorded."

That was up from $135 million for the 1987-88 school year. Nearly 400 governmental agencies, corporations and foundations provided the funds, with $85.7 million coming from the forders agreement.

Topping the federal list, and first among all funding sources, was the National Institutes of Health, which awarded the school 225 grants totaling $27.1 million. The Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, an arm of the Defense Department that funds innovative research, provided $0.9 million to the school's Advanced Microelectronics and Materials Program, the single largest grant in the UF history.

Frenzied death focus of trial

Investigators said Cheryl Ann Snowden had been using cocaine and was hallucinating last year when she jumped from her boyfriend's car along I-75 and tried to grab another passing auto. She was killed instantly.

James Joseph Militello was charged with first-degree murder. Prosecutors said the case could set a precedent on how widely a 1987 law can be applied. The law holds drug traffickers accountable for the weifare of those who buy illegal drugs from them.

Defense attorneys said the prosecutotd had misinterpreted the law. They said the victim probably would have acquired cocaine elsewhere if Militello had not provided it.

Two others also were charged with the sale of drugs in the case, but only Militello faces the murder charge.

Murder confession puzzles cops

DAYTONA BEACH - Jeffrey Lynn Feitner has conferred to killing at least seven nursing home patients, encabing into their rooms at night to quietly extinguish

He told police he did it to "relieve their ain." But authorities aren't ready to nelleve him just yet.

Feltner was arrested for the July 11 murder of Doris Moriarty, 83, a retired registered nume and former resident at Clyatt Memorial Center in Daytona Beach. Feltner was employed at the rest home at the time of her death.

Feitner, 26, has confessed to at least six other similar deaths in neighboring Putnam County, but authorities do not have enough evidence to charge him with those crimes.

Still, they aren't taking any chances. Feitner has been locked up without bail until they can sort out this bizarre murder mystery that began with Feltner's anonymous telephone call to a television station.

"I'm confident now we have either a murderer or a person who is now dangerous or will be dangerous to others," said Volume County State Attorney John Tanner.

Police began questioning Feltner after he called a television station several times, at first saying that a friend of his killed seven

On Aug. 10, police got a call from Clyatt Memorial Center saying that Feltner's roommate told them Feltner was claiming to have killed several people. He was arrested the next day and charged with first-degree

Tanner said he is consulting with pathologists to see if evidence could be gathered from the two bodies that were buried. He said he'd like to find evidence that could prove Peltner didn't kill anyone.

The investigating detective is convinced that Feltner is a killer, but Putnam County officials are akeptical. They say Feitner was not on duty when several of the deaths occured, and that other employees were present when two of the residents died.

State law provides for the authority to begin its work in December 1990. Inmates who were sent to prison before then will not be subject to the new system unless they choose to be.

Sen. Larry Plummer. chairman of the Senate Corrections Committee, describes the new system as a means for the governor to shift blame from himself for inmates who are released early and commit more

Controversial inspector will retire

SANFORD - A county building inspector who, as a Sanford Housing Authority member, created a controversy by calling a contractor a "wetback," has applied for retirement, Seminole County officials confirmed.

J. Wain Cummings, 65. has been a county plumbing and mechanical inspector since February

On Aug. 9, six days after he made the remark during the housing authority meeting, and two days after he publicly apolo-gized. Cummings submitted his notice.

In it he wrote: "I have a whole list of things that should not be said to a certain group of people, another list of things that should not be said to anyone and yet another list of people to whom you do not even try to talk to."

Contest announced for writers

first 50 pages.
For its fifth annual writing contest, Friends of the Library this year has expanded its competition to include novels and acreenplays. The group will keep its poetry competition, but drop short story writing from its offering of categories.

Eleanor Fischer, Winter Park Library community relations coordinator, said the contest committee this year dropped short stories in favor of "something different." With Universal. Disney and MGM studios locating in the area, she said, the group hopes to attract asptring screenplay writers with the new category, at the risk of losing many short story writers.

Last year 749 writers competed in the short story and poetry categories. Pisher said. This year the contest will be open to writers outside of Central Florida, she said.

Novel entries should include the first 50 double-spaced pages of the work, plus a two-page plot summary. The subject must be of interest to adult and young adult readers.

Screenplay writers should submit the first 30 pages of a script for a motion picture or a television movie, along with a two-page plot summary. The subject may be geared toward any age group.

China's tragedy

The news from China grows worse by the week. A regime that shocked the world by shooting hundreds, perhaps thousands, of unarmed pro-democracy demonstrators in Beijing is now compounding it crimes.

Hopes that the regime's crackdown against the democracy movement would be limited and brief have been dashed, Instead, China today looks more like a small-scale rerun of the Cultural Revolution — the Maoist horror that convulsed China during the late 1960s and early 1970s, claiming countless innocent victims.

In today's China, anyone deemed sympathetic to the democracy movement appears to be in potential jeopardy. By some accounts, arrests of suspected democracy sympathisers have reached into the tens of thousands. The number of executions is anyone's guess, but there is circumstantial evidence that hundreds have been put to death.

Because the democracy movement drew particular strength from students and academics, they are the prime targets for retaliation. The government announced last month that the size of this year's freshman class at China's universities was being cut by one-fourth. And those who remain in school are subjected to far greater emphasis on ideological indoctrination.

Meantime, the regime exhorts citizens to turn in anyone suspected of pro-democracy sentiments or participation in the mass demonstrations of April and May. To prevent democracy advocates from slipping out of the country, all exit visas in force in early June were revoked and their holders required to apply again.

As in the Cultural Revolution, China's government seems at war with its own people. As in the Cultural Revolution, the victims of this repression are the very people most essential to China's future. These include scholars, students, those with foreign education or training, the technologically skilled - anyone tainted with ideas other than the doctrinaire orthodoxy of the oldguard leaders who ordered the Beijing

If there are rays of hope in this dismal scene, they come from two facts. First, most of the current leaders are in their 70s and 80s, and thus will soon pass from the scene. Second, a vibrant, pro-democracy leadership in exile is now forming among the tens of thousands of Chinese students and scholars studying in the United States and Western Europe.

The exiled leaders are the hope of China's future. Their dramatic congress recently in Chicago was historic — perhaps the beginning of a movement that will one day constitute the government of China.

Until then, the United States and the rest of the democratic world must deal with the Chinese government that exists. But that should not preclude the democracies from lending full encouragement to the democracy movement in exile. It should not preclude condemnation of the Chinese regime's repression. And it should not preclude the selective sanctions that can send China's leaders a pointed message: A willingness to respect basic human rights is the price of progress and a bigger share of the industrial world's trade and technology.

China cannot have a modern, liberalized economy integrated into the global marketplace while maintaining Maoist repression at home. Indeed, economic reform without political liberalization is unsustainable. The duty of the democracies now is to help China's government understand this

Woodstock: shameful admiration

I let the 20th anniversary of the Woodstock "lestival" go by because I didn't think the event was worth discussing. But the media have indulged in such a bathetic orgy of sentimental reminiscence on the subject that I have concluded it deserves a column after all.

To hear the media talk. Woodstock was some sort of hippie spotheosis of the good, the true and the beautiful. In fact, it was almost the precise reverse.

and the beautiful. In fact, it was almost the precise reverse.

What happened was that nearly 400,000 scruffy representatives of the generation then in its 20s descended on a farm in upstate New York in August 1969 for the avowed purpose of listening to ruck music.

They sprawfed all over (and heavily trashed) their host's farm, as well as the adjoining property of many of his neighbors who hadn't invited them and wanted nothing to do with them. For three days, they drank, copulated, and smoked, sniffed and shot drugs, and just generally did their best to act out their contempt for the larger, "square" society from which they had so ostentatiously dropped out.

Thanks to poor planning (a central characteristic of their type), they fast outran the asnitary and medical facilities that had been set up for them, and the area became a fetid mire that stank for years afterward. Watching the whole affair alide toward disaster, the locale pitched in and managed to rescue most of those suffering from really "bad trips" or strung out

In retrospect, the participants in and defend-ers of this spectacle decided it was downright ad-mirable for at i e a b t t w o reasons: It was the first time that a gathering of "flower children" had reached such a critical mass that those present concluded they repre-sented, collectively, something genuinely new under the sun (they even called it "the Woodstock Nation"); and the helping hand offered by the larger community was interpreted

Flower children: such stunted nerds (exist) in every

as evidence of a new kindliness in interpersonal relations, generated by the Spirit of Woodstock.

The real explanation of the whole phenomenon is far less appealing, its technical name is mass infantilism.

These people weren't called "flower children" for nothing. Children is exactly what they were: Big, overgrown babies, who had never learned to accept adult responsibilities or play a mature part in adult society. There are such stunted nerds in every generation, but Woodstock was the first time they ever assembled in such numbers that they mistook themselves for a movement with something serious to say.

Once this is understood, the rest of their behavior — the rampant self-indulgence, the failure to plan intelligently, the belated and mustby gratiques to the surrogate "parents" from nearby towns who figuratively wiped their noses and bottoms — becomes intelligible.

Almost as instructive as Woodstock itself is the fuse the media have made over its 20th anniversary. The media reveal themselves best by what they admire. Let some discredited, down-on-his-luck socialist or even communist die, and his obituary will sound like the life story of someone who deserves, at a minimum, to rest in Arlington.

Find remedy for addiction first

CHICAGO — The poster on the hospital wall doesn't waste any words. Over the picture of a baby it says: "Some of the people who take cocaine during pregnancy never get over it."

This is more than a public-service warning to pregnant women. It's also the bottom line from the research done on the cocaine babies. Most never get over it.

On this summer morning, in the clinic at Northwestern University's medical school hospital. Dan Griffith is seeing some children brought in for long-term follow-up. It is one piece of a multi-part project on pregnant substance abusers and their babies under the umbrella of the National Association of Perinatal Research and Education hedquartered in this city. Carefully, the burly and gentle psychologist places puzzles in front of two-year-old Stacy and watches as she uses blocks, as she crayons and walks along the string on the floor.

It takes a trained eye to identify the symptoms in Stacy. She is among the best of the Griffith calls "the best of the worst." In this treatment program, they see the mothers who came for treatment, the babies who survivied. the toddlers who have had attention.

But he knows well the syndrome of those born addicted. Newborns who go from sleeping to acreaming, and cannot maintain the state of quiet alertness during which bonding and learning take place. Toddlers who can't tolerate stimulation. School children who are easily districted and more easily frustrated.

These would not be easy children for the strongest families. Even the "best of the worst" have started a life permanently imprinted, scarred, with neurological damage.

How many such kids are there, cocaine bables, crack bables? Last year, the association found that a staggering 11 percent of babies born in 36 hospital in 1968 had mothers who used illegal drugs while they were pregnant. That's some 375,000 mothers.

"The question I am asked most often," said Griffith, "is how do you work with mothers who have done that to their kids?" It's less a question than a judgment that springs up easily in an atmoshpere of public frustration at drugs and anger at the irresponsibility of a pregnant woman.

Lately, that anger has turned to a passion for punishment. Not far from here, a Rockford Woman named Malanie Green was put to trial last May before a grand jury for manslaughter in the death of her addicted newborn. This summer in Florida. Jennifer Johnson was convictied of delivering drugs to the recipient in her womb.

Other courts, seeking to protect the fetus before birth, have moved pregnant women to jail until delivery. In Washington, D.C., a Judge sent Brenda Vaughan to jail for the last three months of her pregnancy after a drug test revealed cocaine use.

The public debate over pregnant drug abusers has turned frequently into an argument over the rights of the fetus versus the rights of the pregnant woman. Those who hold a front-row seat at the devastation of these cocaine babies. who know that durg abuse is the primary cause of infant mortality, who literally see the damage. have the greatest right to judge these pregnant woman. Yet they are more likely to view the argument over rights and the passionto lock-'em-up as a great diversion.

"If you jail one woman, the only lesson you teach women is to stay out of the prenatal health-care system.' says Dr. ira Chasnoff. head of the preinatal association, as we talk over lunch. The lesson he wants to deliver to these mothers is quite the opposite: Come in for health care. Now.

Anger with addicted mothers has turned to a passion for punishment.

Dr. Chasnoff believes there is no shortcut for the kinds of prenatal identification and treatment that his group has been developing. So the Texan-born pediatrician calls the argument over rights a "smokescreen." It's hard to see through it.

As for jailing pregnant women, he runs throught he real-life scenario. If we jail women until delivery in a mythical drug-free prison, do we then send them and their bables back to the same streets? Do we, on the other hand, take the children away from their mothers and put them into the beleaguered foster-care system? And will we jail those children again when they are 16, pregnant and strung-out?

The most popular proposal that drug czar William Bennett has made is for more jail space, but those who work in the fallout of the drug world shake their heads at this. Their impulse is not to lock-'em-up. When they talk about mothers and babies, the issue is not whose rights are violated but what works.

And, on a summer city day, the irony doesn't escape their notice. How fronte to spend money jailing mothers while others who seek help are being turned away, because there is no room at the treatment center.

Glasnost helps Tass report story

MOSCOW - Time was when a story from the Washington bureau of the official Tase news agency would begin: "Yet another falsification has been offered by the White House.

Tass is still far from Pulitzer Prize material. but it has taken enormous journalistic strides under glasnost, and Leonid P. Kravchenko is the man with one foot in the party and the other stepping into legitimate journaltern. Kravchenko, the director general of the new and Improved Tass, ruefully summed up the past as a "credibility problem." We met with him for a rare interview in his modern office on Moscow's Boulevard Ring Road. He is fighting the image of the old days when Tass was perceived onlyasthe mouthpiece of the Central Committee.

Propaganda that instigates is banned by Soviet Con-stitution.

The crash of a pilotless Soviet MIG-23 fighter in Belgium on July 4 is a prime example. The old Tass would have claimed the plane was stolen by the CIA and crashed deliberately. The new Tass sent a reporter to the Supreme Soviet to collar the defense minister for the story, printed that the pilot had bailed out and left the plane on automatic pilot, and then printed the official Soviet apologies to the countries that had been endangered. Kravchenko claims the number of "official" stories appearing in Tass has dropped to only 10 percent of the total copy since he took over in December. Western readers who follow the wire service closely, believe that the party line still takes up more than 10 percent of the ink, but they acknowledge that Tass has come a long way.

Kravchenko surprisingly admitted that some of the more bolsterous non-state Soviet newspapers helped free up Tass for real reporting.

Last April 9, government troops put down a peaceful demonstration in the Georgian capital of Tbilial with clubs, sharpened shovels and poison gas. At least 20 people were killed. Tass. in Kravchenko's words. published "a very laconic statement" about the incident. Then the felsty weekly "Moscow News" blew Tase away with a story and pictures showing what Kravchenko diplomatically described as "an unskillful use of force." Using that as a wedge, Tass published another report giving a more accurate picture of what happened.

We asked him how he covered nationalist movements in the Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. "Not very well." he quickly acknowledged.

The new Tass master called it "a kind of jeweler's work" meticulously figuring out how to tell the story without going too far. He cited the Soviet constitution at one point. It bans "propaganda that instigates national strife." It was one of those neat little Leninist holdover phrases from the Soviet state founder who only abided journalists as "agitators, propagandists and agents of the Kravchenko directs the second biggest news agency in the world, after Reuters. He has more than 8,000 employees who produce a total of 4 million words each day, he said, or the equivalent of 750 newspaper pages. Tass has offices in 113 countries, which is more than Reuters or any other agency. The smallest outposts are manned by at least two PARADENA, Calif. - Voyage 2's electronic brain was ordered to fire small rochet thrusters Monday to "midge" the space-craft 91 miles farther from Neptune during its Thursday flyby and 450 miles closer to the planet's enterent planet's enigmatic moon, Triton.

A series of four small rocket firings, the final such maneuver ever planned for Voyager 2, was acheduled to begin around 4:00 a.m. PDT as the probe streaked toward Neptune at nearly $8,000 mph.

But at Neptune's great distance from Earth — 2.7 billion miles — confirmation of a successful "burn" was not expected until later in the day.

Launched 12 years ago Sun-day, Voyager 2 will streak over the north polar region of Nep-tune about 8:55 p.m. PDT Thursday, about 4 is minutes earlier than originally planned because of the "trajectory cor-rection meneuver" Monday. Searing a scant 3,000 miles above Neptune's cloudtops, Voyager 2 will quickly plunge behind the planet as viewed from Earth and temporarily

Pive hours after close encounter, the spacecraft will sail past Triton, one of at least six Triton, one of at least that no of Reptune and one that may feature a transparent at-mosphere and glaciers of frozen nitrogen on its surface.

The final trajectory correction maneuver, called TCM-20, was designed to change Voyager 2's velocity by 1.1 mph, nudging the spacecraft to one side alightly to put the robot within 62 miles of its planned close encounter aim point — the best engineers can do based on uncertainty about the actual nosinty about the actual postcert

"One of the things about this Right now, we're arriving (at Neptune) 4 % minutes early." Given that Voyager 2 has traveled some 4.4 billion miles since launch 12 years ago Sun-day from Cape Canaveral, Fla., the accuracy of its trajectory is roughly equivalent to sinking a 2,260-mile golf putt.

A major result of TCM-20 w A major result of TCN-20 was to adjust Voyager 2's flight path so the probe will fly 430 miles closer to Triton than it would have without the burn. As it is. Voyager 2 will pass within 23,800 miles of the mysterious

Themes River death toll rises

LONDON - The party boat Marchioness's shattered hull was hauled to the River Thames's north shore today where workers resumed the search for bodies of partygoers who perished in the boat's sinking. Scotland Yard raised the death count to 27.

As many as 150 people celebrating a birthday were plunged suddenly into the river's muddy and polluted waters about 1:40 a.m. Sunday when a barge slammed into the pleasure boat, splitting it in half and sinking it within minutes.

Two crew members of the sand-dredging barge Bowbeile who were guestioned in the accident were released early today and

New hostage threats tied to French navy

BEIRUT. Lebanon - A terrorist group has threatened to kill two American hostages if the French use military force to back Lebanese Christians against Syrian-backed Moslem forces in the country's civil war.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization, believed to be an offshoot of the Iranian-inspired Hezbollah, made the threat Sunday in a statement authenticated by a new black-and-white close-up photograph of U.S. hostage Edward A. Tracy.

The group charged that the United States was implicitly supporting the deployment of French warships off the Lebanese coast to back the Christians in their conflict against Syrian-backed Moslem groups.

Anti-apartheid activists defy crackdown

CAPE TOWN, South Africa - Thousands of anti-apartheid activists filled Cape Town's central cathedral, defying a government crackdown on a nationwide civil disobedience campaign and declaring a "major victory" over minority white rule.

Cape Town's Supreme Court Sunday granted an urgent interdict to the Anglican church ordering police to dismantle roadblocks erected earlier in the day in an attempt to halt busicads of activists from attending the service led by Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu.

Evangelist trial starts

of television evangelist Jim Bakker, beginning today in U.S. District Court, has all the elements of a soap opera: sex, money, religion, intrigue.

More than 300 prospective jurors were summoned to federal court, for selection of a panel to hear the trial, but founder of the PTL ministry said his fate restanot with them but in the hands of God. of God.

"God is bigger than any judge. God is bigger than any jury," says Bakker, who could be imprisoned for up to 120 years if convicted of 24 counts of criminal fraud and conspiracy stem-ming from the way he raised and spent money at PTL. "Jim and Tammy have not broken any laws and God knows that."

Bakker, who resigned from PTL on March 19, 1987, and turned his ministry over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority, has a new television ministry and a new church based at a shopping center in Orlando.

He left PTL just as The Charlotte Observer was about to break a story about his 1980 encounter with former church secretary Jessica Hahn.

Colombia escalates drug war

United Press International

BOGOTA. Colombia - Colombia is "the greatest victim" of a deadly cocaine trafficking cartel and the drug users worldwide who support it, the nation's president said at the funeral of a top politician slain by drug-world assessins.

President Virgilio Barco demanded Sunday that govern-ments around the world join with Colombia in its struggle against drug traffickers.

Police arrested 3,838 suspects over the weekend in a massive crackdown on druglords made possible by a presidential state-of-siege decree allowing them to makes raids without a judicial order, authorities said.

Once again, in this time in sadness, I demand international solidarity in the struggle against organizations with crimi nals from many nations in order to defend the values of civilization and democracy."

Barco spoke at the funeral for Luis Carlos Galan, 47, a presidential candidate and one of the most charismatic Colombian political leaders in the last 20 years. Galan was slain Friday night at a political rally and police said they suspected the assassins were linked to drug traffickers.

Galan was a sworn enemy of the cocaine cartels and an outspoken proponent of extradition of drug traffickers.

Barrowman sets world record

TOKYO - Mike Barrowman of the United States broke the world record in the 200-meter breastatroke Sunday at the Pan Pacific Swimming Championships turning in a time of 2:12.89, nipping the mark he shared with Englishman Nick Gillingham.

Barrowman, 20, of Rockville, Md., set the mark of 2:12.90 at the U.S. Nationals in Los Angeles on Aug. 3, but Gillingham tied that at the European championships last week.

"I wasn't planning on going out to break it in the prelims," Barrowman said, "but yesterday I heard Gillingham tied the record so he changed my mind pretty quick on that.

"Yesterday morning I got up and did my workout then went straight back to the hotel room and concentrated getting fired up and swimming fast. I did my evening workout then I went to bed early because usually I can't sleep well the night before."

Dy MARK BLYTHE Herald sports writer Most families are thrilled to just have one son or daughter play in one of the Little League-sponsored World Series, but the Abreu family took that a step further as brothers Carlos and Pablo reached that elite goal in consecutive seasons.

Pablo made it to the Junior (13 year olds) League World Series with the Altamonte Springs All-Star team that traveled to Detroit last summer and placed third in the world and second in the U.S., finishing behind Mexico and Hewaii

Carlos made the trip this summer with the Altamonte Big League (16, 17, 18) All-Star team that traveled to Fort Lauderdale to play before being eliminated after two games, losing a tough opening game to Venezuela and a controversial contest to Chicago.

"I'm really happy for both of them," Pablo Abreu Sr. said. "They both were lucky to have quite a bit of talent with them and help them get to the World Series. I'm really proud of both them.

Pablo was a member of one of the most powerful Junior All-Star teams to come out of this area as it dominated play until it reached the World Senes. Had rain delays not forced the Altamonte squad into a doubleheader in the World Series semifinals, the team may of finished higher than third.

I remember when we were playing Texas in the regionals." Pablo said. "We were winning 6-0 with the bases loaded. I tripled and we went on to win big in that game and the rest of the tournament."

Five minutes later, I was at the plate and we were playing the plate and we were playing Hawaii, who I think threw the best pitcher we faced throughout the World Series memories

Carlos participated on a suprising Big League team that came together to form a potent attack. The Big League All Stars were a collection of tough athletes with what was thought to be a lack of pitching.

As it turned out, the team got consistently strong pitching efforts throughout the qualifying tournaments before losing its top two hurlers to injuries going into the World Series.

"I was real superiord to detect to the

"I was real suprised to get to the World Series," Carlos said, "I wasn't sure we could get there when we first started, but I knew when we came together we could do it."

The Big Leaguers needed all 15 players to get to the World Series. On one occasion, Carlos (who played everywhere in the infield but first base) had to pitch as Altamonte was down 7-0 and being no-hit by Jacksonville.

"They put me in to pitch late, to save some arms I think," Carlos said. "Then we scored seven runs the to tie the score and another in the final inning and I got the win."

Carlos pitched in two other games, finishing his Big league All-Star stint with a 1-1 record. He also showed good flexibility by starting at third base, shortstop and second base.

The Falcons, 0-2 in exhibitions, were missing 17 players due to injuries or contract disputes. Atlanta registered eight first downs and did not drive past the Buccamers 34.

"I can't cry about people who aren't here and I won't." said Atlanta Coach Marion Campbell. "They are good football players and obvjously they would help us, but to use that as an excuse would be the easy way out."

The Buccaneers begin 1960 as the league's least successful franchise of the decade. Ray Perkins insists the team "will win" as he enters his third year, as coach and the optimism has spread to the locker room.

MIAMI — Of all the disappointments in the Miami Dolphins' injury-riddled, holdout-hampered, winless presesson this year, what seemed to have Coach Don Shula most frustrated Sunday was the inability to mount a running game.

The Dolphins finished last in the NFL in rushing

The Dolphina finished last in the NFL in rushing last year, averaging 75 yards a game, and in their 26-10 loss to the Houston Ollers at Jacksonville Saturday night, they gained just 29 yards in 20 running plays.

"I conscientiously tried to get some king of running game going Saturday, but I couldn't," Shulls said of the Dolphins' second loss of the exhibition

He blamed "a lack of blocking, mistakes on the offensive line, runners not breaking tackles. They had a couple of plays where we had pretty good

"We played Ronnie and Roy and (Jon) Glesler just the first half, and then kept them out." Shula said, "They did some pretty good things in that second drive when we scored the touchdown. There was some pretty good execution in that drive."

But Shule was clearly disappointed that the Dolphins did not maintain that execution, even in the remainder of the second half while the veterans were playing. Some help with the depth is expected this week.

Carlos, who graduated from Biahop Moore last spring, will attend Seminole Community College this fall while Pablo will be starting at Bishop Moore this year. The two will still concentrate on baseball with both of them expected to play for their respective schools.

"They played with excellent teams and excellent kids." Pablo Abreu Sr. said. "I'm just glad they both have the memories they have.

MONTREAL - Ivan Lendl won the Player's International-Canadian Open for a record sixth time Sunday when he crushed John McEnroe, 6-1, 6-3, in the final.

Lendl, who earned $143,500. made it look easy. jumping out to a 4-0 lead in the first set. The 29-year-old, ranked No. 1 in the world, required only an hour and 12 minutes to dispose of McEnroe. showing no sign of the rusty play that had crept into his game following a month long layoff after Wimbledon.

Lendl used his serve, which was in devastating form, to maximum effect, frequently leaving McEnroe frozen in his tracks with no chance to move. It was Lendl's 16th career victory over McEnroe against 15

Lendl later credited his brief layoff from the pro circuit with helping him turn in his winning performance.

"After Wimbledon I took things easy, practiced on the rough points in my game, and just smoothed things out and it's because of that that I was able to be in such fine form." he explained.

McEnroe, who earned $71,750, agreed that conditioning played a pivotal role in the match.

"He hit the ball really hard, there's not too much you can do when he's playing like that. It's obvious his conditioning really helped him," said McEnroe. "I wasn't able to slip too many balls by

Norman holds off Rose to claim an International victory

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Greg Norman birdled the 17th hole Sunday to hold off a persistent Clarence Rose in the finals of the $1 million International golf tournament.

Norman finished with 13 Stableford points and collected $180,000 in posting his first PGA victory in the United States this season.

"I knew what I had to do today, and obviously getting off to a fast start in any golf tournament, whether it's Stableford system or straight up stroke play, you give yourself a big advantage, said Norman, who lost a big lead on the back nine to fall into a tie with Rose.

Rose, who survived playoffs on both Friday and Saturday just to reach the 24-man final field. finished with 11 points and earned $108,000 for second place.

"I was very fortunate to be in the golf tournament today," Rose said. "I've just been getting by the past few days, and today I didn't have anything to lose. I just made some birdies."

With all players starting even on the final day, Norman made five birdies in his first eight holes and looked like he might run away with the tournament. But Rose put together a string of four birdies in five holes on the back side to move into contention.

Tied at the 17th, Norman hit a tremendous drive at the 492-yard par 5, needing only an 8-iron to reach the green in two. He easily two-putted from 25 feet to regain the lead. He parred the 18th to close out the field.

"I established a lead very early on and I knew I was going to make a couple birdies on the back nine," said Norman, who shot 66. "I just played to my strategy all week - make as many birdies as you can and don't make any double bogeys, don't make any stupid shots."

Norman, nicknamed "the Shark", attacked the Castle Pines golf course from the first tee Sunday, posting birdies on the first two holes. Norman added birdies at No. 5 and No. 6, and then lipped out a 30-foot birdle putt at the 185-yard, par-3 7th hole. He just missed a 25-foot putt for eagle at the par-5 8th hole, but tapped in for his fifth birdle and a 6-point lead at the time.

Norman made the turn at plus-10 after a 31 on the front side. Billy Andrade, at plus-6, was the nearest challenger after nine holes.

Rose, after a plus-3 on the front side, began his late rush with birdies at 13 and 14.

Siblings turn reunion into athletic whipping

I am going to get the backside of my frontside kicked.

It never fails. Every time I get together with my two brothers, my two brothers in-law and my dad. I'm sure to get a whipping. And there's no reason to believe this coming weekend is going to be any different. be any different.

Like most siblings, there exists an unspoken rivalry among the immediate family. Usually it's pretty low key stuff, but it really comes out in athletic competi-tion. Volleyball, pool hoops (I'll explain a little later), touch football or golf . . . you name it, we go at it hammer and tongs.

On Sunday, I talked to my brother Marc (next in the line of five that starts with me). It seems that he. I and our brother-in-law Kevin will have a chance this weekend in upstate New York to redeem ourselves for a loss we suffered in three-on-three touch football almost three years ago to Ray (No. 3), brother-in-law Craig and

If all this sounds crazy, it's because it probably is.

The problem, as far as I'm concerned, is that despite being the oldest of five. I'm the smallest of five. Actually, sister Jackie is smaller and sister Michelle is thinner, but she has an inch on me.

It's not fair. Shouldn't there be some kind of athletic nepotism? Shouldn't it be my birthright to win my fair share of contests? Why should I be the one to continually get thumped? What's the point of being the oldest?

Actually, this is probably all payback. I must admit that I occasionally took advantage of being the oldest and (briefly) the biggest when we were kids (sometimes it's hard to remember that we no longer are). But all too quickly, that physical advantage was gone.

That reality will be driven home again this weekend when we line up for what my brothers describe as full-contact jungle volleyball. I'm not quite sure how to describe it other than to

I'm fortunate that this family et-together isn't in Massachusetts. That usually means a game of dreaded pool hoops. Mare has a 4-foot deep above-ground pool with a wooden deck around one side. On the deck is a basketball hoop about 7 or 8 feet high.

Since we're playing in water, dribbling in the conventional basketball mode is an absurdity. And since there's no dribbling. there's no reason not to physically impede the person trying to advance the ball (a water-soaked foam backetball) in any way you deem necessary.

Also, until I started wearing contact lenses, I was blind every time I entered the water. couldn't see the rim from the other end of the pool, not that it would make much of a dif-

Still, that's a diseaster I will be able to avoid until at least next summer. Unless Vicki and I decide to head north next fall so that I might show her the beauty of a New England autumn and I could play in the Fall Classic golf tournament Ray organizes every

But for now, my athletic sight is set on next weekend's volleyball showdown. That and being dragged around Lake Delta on my face after my brothers and sisters shame me into trying to learn how to water ski again.

Before the Buccaneers reserve their Super Bowl' flight to New Orleans, a little history lesson is in order. Tampa Bay went 4-0 during the 1983 exhibition season before winning just two of 16 games that count.

"They seem to be more aggressive this year," said Atlanta running back John Settle of the new-look Buccaneers. "They controlled the line of scrimmage on both sides. If they can do that in the regular season, they're going to be tough to beat."

Atlanta's Chris Miller completed 5 of 9 passes for 43 yards before yielding to Paul Singer midway through the third

Molesters look for affectionate kids

DEAR ABBY: The advice you gave "Arizona Mom" was the worst you have ever given since you started writing your column. Mom has this friendly, affectionate, little 21/2-year-old boy who runs up to strangers and holds his arms up wanting to be held, and you advise her to forbid the child to show any signs of friendliness to a strang-

You tell her to teach the boy that all strangers may look nice. but some people aren't as nice as they look-that some could even harm him, and he can't tell by looking at a stranger who is harmless and who is not.

And if that's not frightening enough for a child, you go on to say, "If your child defles you, punish him by depriving him of something he considers a treat-and make that punishment memorable!"

For heaven's sake, Abby, if Mom follows your advice, she will make a paranoid, anti-social misanthrope out of that friendly little boy before he's 5

Please reconsider your answer. MOTHER OF FIVE

Please tell "Arizona Mom" that there are thousands of people like me (including women!) who look exactly like me-neat, clean and very friendly to children. We are so ordinary in appearance, nobody would suspect us of being child molesters.

Little boys who run to me with outstretched arms, desiring to be picked up, are sending a message: They are starved for fatherly affection. They are easily snatched up to become victims of child molesters such as myself. I can't count the number of little boys I have violated. I know I am sick and have begged to be locked up and put away so I couldn't repeat this despicable behavior. I have had treatment, and I thought I was cured, but the first chance I got. I did the same thing over

Please tell "Arizona Mom" never to let her little boy out of her sight. And teach him not to promise you her little boy will be sexually molested many times before he reaches the age of 12.

I hate myself the way I am. I am hopeful I will one day be able to get the kind of help I need so I will be normal and free of this

SERVING TIME IN TEXAS

Rot, mites can doom daylilles

Daylilles are wonderful. low-maintenance pertennials for the garden but there are a few chores for fall care to help them perform better in the landscape. Especially at this time of year, with the high humidity and scorching sun, the are susceptable to a disease called crown

Bill and Jean Norris, of Norris Daylilles in Sanford, suggest treating your daylilies with a very mild bleach solution if you have a crown rot problem. Put a tablespoon of bleach in a gallon of water and pour this mixture in the crown or center of the plant.

Fall is an excellent time to divide your daylilles, but wait until the weather cools down a little. The Norrises recommend homeowners replant their daylilies every two or three years because daylilies tend to pull themselves into the ground, which causes them to be planted too deep and cease to bloom. This situation varies according to the growing conditions of your garden.

Some daylilles can grow and bloom well for five or six years without division. If your plants are growing lots of leaves, but are not blooming as well as they used to, it is probably time to divide them.

Daylilies can be divided anytime during the year, but are best divided when they finish blooming. To divide your daylilies, dig up the entire clump and shake or wash off the soil without damaging the roots. Washing away the soil exposes all the roots and makes it easier to see how many divisions can

Next, cut off the leaves to about six inches above the crown and divide the clump with a sharp knife. Cuts should be made between "fans" or leaf stalks. Smaller clumps can be pulled apart. The Norrises suggest dipping the plant in a fungicide-like benomyl. Now you are ready to plant.

It is always important to prepare your soil before planting since your daylily may be in the same spot for several years. Incorporate three to four inches of peat moss, compost or decomposed manure and work it in well. Plant the daylilles 12 to 18 inches apart to allow room for fertilized with a balanced fertilizer like a 6-6-6 with minor elements in the spring, early fall and early winter. Try to avoid getting the fertilizer on the leaves or in the crown. Each year, it helps to incorporate bone meal and manure around your plants. A good layer of mulch like cypress, pine bark, or pine needles, will help to conserve

Daylilies have few pests, but one that is very common is the spider mite. Most home gardeners do not realize that they have a spider mite problem until the damage is severe, because the pests are very small and hide on the undersides of the leaves. Mites damage the leaves by sucking the plant's juices. Damaged leaves lose their green color, turn brown and eventually die.

Insecticides like Cygon. Orthene or a scapy solution will control mites. Never use the miticide Kelthane on daylilies, as it is phototoxic to them and will kill them!

There are more than 30,000 varieties of daylilles to choose from and every color imaginable except blue. Varieties of daylilles are available with flowers reaching one to four feet tail. Evergreen varieties are the right choice for Central Florida rather the deciduous ones. Evergreen daylilles stay green for the entire year, but more importantly, they are better adapted to our grow-ing conditions. All these varieties allow daylilies to fit in any area of your garden: front, middle or as a backdrop.

Jean Norris is the president of the Sunbelt chapter of the disease. Hemerocallis (Daylilles) Society in Seminole County. This chapter meets on the first Sunday of each month (September through April) at 2 p.m. at the Seminole County Agricultural Center. All are invited to come to a chapter meeting.

Body builder's diet needs more protein

33-year-old son has been pum-ping iron four times a week for the past 10 years. He consumes large quantities of vitamin/mineral/protein supplements, all for the purpose of maintaining a muscular physique. He argues that he needs about 200 grams of protein daily. He also eats large quantities of food protein, vegetables and complete carbohydrates, as well as yohimbe-bark extract for milligrams that is labeled as 500 milligrams that is labeled as a natural steroid alternative. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER: Your son appears to be engaging in a harmless dietary practice. Body builders certainly need more protein and carbohydrate because of their strenuous activity. These people commonly develop their own, almost magical, dietary preferences. "Natural steroid" alternatives probably do nothing to enhance your son's physique, but bark extract is much less harmful than the injectable steroids used by many body builders and athletes.

If your son is not overweight and he works out four days a week, don't fuse about his programs, even though—to you— his eating habits may seem peculiar. The stuff he is consuming is expensive, but if he is willing to pay the price, let him be. His diet is not harming him.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a prolapsed bladder. There is no urinary leakage or incontinence, and I am not overweight. Is there an exercise I can do to correct this problem?

DEAR READER: A prolapse means the bladder has lost its normal supports and is sagging and pressing against the vagina. Ordinarily, this causes leakage of urine during coughing, sneezing or straining. If the condition is severe, patients may have to times be helped by pelvicstrengthening exercises. Your gynecologist can teach them to you.

By James Jacoby

How would you play J-8-4 in your hand, facing A-K-9-6-5 in dummy, for no losers? That was declarer's problem in today's deal. One approach would be to play West. who had pre-empted with three hearts, for both the queen and the 10 of diamonds. Ordinarily the chances of success are 25 percent, but West's pre-empt reduces those chances. A second approach would be to play for a 3-2 diamond split, with the queen doubleton. Playing out the A-K of diamonds brings down the queen a little over 27 percent of the time. Needless to say, if declarer had to give up a diamond, the defenders would quickly cash out two spade winners. Declarer saw yet another path to success, less likely than the other plays, but perhaps justified by declarer's knowledge of West's tendencies.

West was a player who loudly proclaimed to one and all that his high cards were only in his long suit whenever he made a weak jump bid. If he was telling the truth, he could not hold a high spade or the diamond queen. So declarer played ace of hearts, cashed A-K of clubs, ruffed the heart jack and cashed the diamond ace to see if anyone held a singleton queen. He then ran off his remaining trumps. Coming down to four cards, East had to discard from A-K-J of spades and Q-7 of diamonds. When he threw the jack of spades away, declarer led a spade. East could take two spade tricks but had to lead away from the queen of diamonds. South put up the jack to make his contract.

There is a strong probability in the year ahead that trends will develop in ways where your authority over others will be greatly expanded. Arrangements you presently manage should SCÓRPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be a very easy person to get along with today, provided everyone does things your way. Should opposition arise, your warmth is apt to wane.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might be wise today to keep anything good concerning your career to yourself. Someone who does not have your best interests at heart may try to upset your applecart.
