School burglarized

WINTER PARK — A burglary has been reported at Lake Howell High School, on Duke Road. The burglary reportedly occurred between 11 p.m. yesterday and 5 a.m. this morning.

According to Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, two or more persons broke into the vocational building during the night. The building houses the computer laboratory.

"They took the hard drives and memories from at least 51 Dell computers," he observed. "The total loss would probably be slightly more than $30,000."

McDonough said it's the second time the same computer lab has been burglarized since January. "The first time they went into the building they took the same kinds of equipment and the loss at that time was estimated at $40,000," McDonough said the first case, as well as the incident this morning, are now considered open and investigations continue.

AT&T may add 350 jobs in Lake Mary

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County and Lake Mary will reel in another choice addition to the I-4 corridor today with the approval of a $731,000 economic incentive package for AT&T, which will relocate two more divisions to Lake Mary.

About 340 new, high paying jobs may be created in the next 3 to 5 years bringing the total AT&T employee base in Lake Mary to 1,830. The existing AT&T operations employs 650 associates. About 840 associates will be transferred to the planned Lake Mary facilities.

"This is a very minor incentive paid to a very major industry," Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun commented. The award, to be paid to offset the cost of impact fees, permit fees and relocation, will become available in October 1995.

"This award represents a 2.5 year return on investment when considering all property and utility tax receipts expected from the projects," the county manager noted. The salaries for the new jobs will be in the $35,000 to $50,000 range.

The AT&T Corporate Information Technology Services currently housed in Maitland would move to a 43,000 square-foot, three-story administration facility to be built near Lake Emma Road. The

Port, airport merger still on hold

Sanford not ready to deal

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The county's plans to merge the Sanford Airport Authority and Seminole County Port Authority hit another snag Monday when Sanford commissioners agreed to contact local legislative delegates in Tallahassee telling them they are not ready to approve the proposal.

When the proposal was originally presented, County Commission Chairman Randy Morris had suggested it might be approved rapidly by the city and county, then forwarded to Tallahassee in the form of a bill, to be enacted during the current legislative session.

Since that time however, the city has failed to support the matter.

At the conclusion of a discussion yesterday during a commission work session, City Manager Bill Simmons suggested, "We should perhaps contact our legislative delegates and either tell them we need more facts before we make any decision, or tell them outright that we are saying no on the merger."

While Simmons said the letter to the delegates should be sent before April, Mayor Bettye Smith sug-

Let the goals begin Sanford planning for future

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford officials Monday began setting some goals they'd like to see become part of Sanford's future.

The Sanford City Commission spent an extra hour of a work session in initial preparation for a goal list to assist in this year's budget planning.

Using a suggestion list from City Manager Bill Simmons, and a list of plans and goals set forth by the commission in March of 1989 as guidelines, members of the commission began calling attention to what they perceived as important matters which needed commission concentration.

Although far from complete, Simmons said he had obtained enough input to have an initial listing prepared for continuing discussion on the matter.

In order of discussion, the following items were proposed for consideration by the various commissioners:

• Bob Thomas — Preparation of a video tape showing the finer points of life and benefits for people and/or businesses who may consider moving to Sanford.

Library may add Sunday hours

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners are moving forward with a plan to open at least one library branch on Sundays beginning April 2 and will consider three options on how to fund the extra hours.

The commissioners balked at the estimated $52,000 cost initially quoted for adding four hours on Sunday at the Central Branch. The county personnel department suggested some employees be paid double time for Sunday duty.

The commissioners asked that other options be drawn up noting other county employees assigned to Sunday work were not paid at the double time rate and they might raise questions about the wage disparity.

The commissioners were scheduled to discuss the Sunday library hours at a 10:30 a.m. work session this morning.

The following options will be considered:

OPTION 1:

- All five libraries will CLOSE on Thursday evenings from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.
- Central Branch ONLY will open on Sundays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.
- Staff from all branches will rotate to Central Branch to work every fifth Sunday.
- Staff assigned to Sunday hours will be working a total of 40 hours during that pay period (4 hours Sunday, 36 hours Monday through Saturday).
- All five libraries closed in order to provide full library service on Sunday by manning seven reference stations, seven circulation stations, and five pages. Any staff not assigned to Sunday who

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Escaping prisoner falls to death

FORT LAUDERDALE — A prisoner trying to escape from the eighth floor of a jail fell to his death when his rope made of sheets ripped apart.

The 33-year-old man removed a plexiglass plate from a window at the Broward County Jail and tied the sheets to a vent pipe, said sheriff's spokesman Ott Cefkin.

He had lowered himself about three floors Sunday evening when a sheet ripped, Cefkin said. A guard making his rounds discovered the body.

The prisoner, who was not identified, had been convicted of armed sexual battery, armed kidnapping, and armed robbery, among other crimes. He had been returned to the jail after destroying several cells at a federal prison, Cefkin said.

6-year-old starts fire, kills two

POMPANO BEACH — A 6-year-old boy who started a blaze in an abandoned van that killed his toddler brother and cousin is now in the custody of his aunt.

When asked if he knew the fire could harm his brother and cousin, both 2 years old, "He acknowledged that there was some danger there," fire division Chief Steven Pollio said.

The investigation continues, and no charges have been filed, he said.

Officials received confirmation Monday the boy had not been enrolled in a prevention class that he was referred to following an arson incident last August at the family's home.

After the blaze broke out, the boy reportedly ran into his house for help, and his uncle pulled his own young son out of the burning van. The other toddler could not be reached.

The 6-year-old "has admitted to lighting a piece of paper on fire in the van that caused the fire," Pollio said.

The fire erupted in the van parked at the home shared by the six children, their parents and another adult during services at Macedonia Baptist Church, the neighborhood church.

"The mother ran into church from across the street with a child in her arms and said, 'My baby is burned,'" said Rev. Alilus Hill, pastor of the church.

Picnic honors rescuers

PAISLEY — There were sheriff's deputies and wildlife officers, nearby residents and strangers from afar. Some 1,200 of them helped in the search for two missing boys in the Ocala National Forest.

On Sunday, many of them joined Joel Oakes, 6, and brother Eric, 3, and their parents in celebrating the successful two-day rescue effort of a month ago.

"We just felt like we owed everybody so much," said the boys' mother, Michele Oakes, about the picnic held in the Deerhaven area of the forest. "We couldn't call everyone on the telephone, so we wanted to do something to say 'thank you.'"

Many of the one-time searchers were touched by the gesture by the Michele and Tim Oakes and their church.

"It kind of restores your faith in humanity," said Terry Squires, who searched from dawn to dusk for two days, until his team heard Eric's cries and found the boys, cold and hungry but unharmed, huddled in a palmetto thicket.

The youngsters wandered away from their parents and got lost in the swampy woods.

Imposter robs Wal-Mart

DESTIN — When a man wearing what looked to be a Wells Fargo uniform, bulletproof vest and holstered pistol appeared at a Wal-Mart store to collect the day's receipts, no one doubted he was the real thing.

"They did not suspect anything unusual until another Wells Fargo guy showed up at 8 p.m.," Sunday, Okaloosa County sheriff's spokesman Rick Hord said Monday.

Only then did employees realize they had turned thousands of dollars in cash and checks over to an imposter who had a two-hour head start.

Authorities described the bold bandit as clean-shaven, in his 50s and wearing dark clothing with red patches on the shirt sleeves.

The imposter apparently was familiar with collection procedures.

Wells Fargo Armored Service Corp. varies its collection times and changes pickup routes as a security measure so the time of his arrival raised no suspicions.

When the second Wells Fargo guard arrived, a call to the armored car company's regional office in Pensacola confirmed the first man was a fake.

The Wal-Mart store in this Florida Panhandle resort city began using Wells Fargo only six weeks ago, said store manager Ernie Marchisain.

Atypical strain more prevalent

Expert: Non-infectious tuberculosis on rise

By JOHN PACENTY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — When a sick Carolyn Cochrane went to see Dr. Jeremy Tabak, she was told she probably had tuberculosis.

Yet, Ms. Cochrane didn't respond to the usual treatment; she stayed sick as her right lung was destroyed by the disease.

"It's like with cats, you have domestic cats and then you have tigers and lions," the Miami pulmonary disease specialist said.

Ms. Cochrane contracted a lion for sure. The National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine says she got bitten by non-infectious, or atypical, TB.

"I was like, I have what?" said Ms. Cochrane, who thought she just had the flu. The Key Largo resident spoke Monday as part of a public awareness campaign about the new danger posed by TB.

She eventually underwent three operations — to remove her right lung and protect her windpipe — and is almost cured. Today, she still has to take loads of antibiotics, and some have side-effects that could harm her hearing and vision.

Tuberculosis — caused by a microorganism that eats away at the lungs — is becoming more prevalent in populous states with steady immigration, such as Florida, California, New York and Texas.

"Florida sort of has a double-whammy," said Dr. James L. Cook, head of the infectious diseases division at the National Jewish Center. "It has (regular) TB and it has an increased incidence, just based on our non-comprehensive sampling, of these atypical TB infections."

Unlike regular TB, the atypical strain is simply spread by the environment, he said.

"This is one that is prevalent in the water and in the soil. The southeastern United States happens to be a real high-risk area, but only a small percentage of people ever become infected," Cook said. "We probably all inhale it and blow it back out but it doesn't stick."

TB had made a comeback in recent years with the number of cases rising in the mid-1980s until 1994 when the number declined 5 percent to 1,360 cases.

But Dade County has about twice the number of TB cases as the rest of the United States. Increasing numbers of TB-infected immigrants from Latin America — where TB sanitariums are commonplace — are part of the reason. Big city problems such as homelessness, intravenous drug abuse and AIDS also are major contributors to the disease's comeback.

Cook also believes that non-infectious TB is on the rise, but he can't prove it because the number of cases aren't tracked since the disease is not infectious.

"We get more phone calls from Florida," Cook said. "If it's because it's more prevalent or because people are becoming more aware of it spreading, we don't know. My suspicion is the incidents are increasing."

The bacteria that causes the non-infectious strain is finding new victims, like middle-aged women.

Stallone joins Chiles to tout Florida film production

By GILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Even with Rambo to help him boost the state's film industry, Gov. Lawton Chiles got into a war of words over the embattled Florida Entertainment Commission.

Sylvester Stallone joined the governor Monday at a news conference to tout Florida's film and television future and set a $1 billion production goal by the next century.

Stallone is preparing to make an action-adventure film in Florida and is looking for partners to build a "virtual reality" theme park, he told a crowd of more than 150 reporters and onlookers jammed in a conference room.

"I've spent the last 20 years in California. I can say the patina has worn to bare metal and the bloom is off the lily," said the actor, who now has a home in the Miami area. "I think the opportunity presents itself as long as we are aggressive. California has been shot in every conceivable way."

Fireworks came when Chiles — asked about probes of the public-private partnership that promotes Florida film and television production — retorted with an attack on commission gadfly Al Crespo of Miami.

"When a convicted felon, a former convicted felon, can come around and use his fax machine and run out stories to all of you that you pick up and print ... I don't care about all that," Chiles said. "Nothing will happen from any of those things, so I'm not concerned at all."

"I haven't robbed a bank in over 20 years," fired back Crespo, a self-proclaimed rehabilitated bank robber who spent 18 years in prison, when reached in Miami. "My past has nothing to do with the issues."

The state comptroller's office is probing $6,546 in travel and expense claims by the commission's executive director, John Reitzhammer.

Boyfriend says suspect confessed

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

MONTICELLO — John "Billy Joe" Crumitie says he wasn't at the highway rest stop where a British tourist was shot and killed two years ago.

But the longtime boyfriend of Crumitie's mother says the youth confessed his role in the crime, according to court documents.

The second trial of Crumitie, 18, on first-degree murder and attempted murder charges, was scheduled to begin March 20. The jury deadlocked in his first trial in November.

Crumitie was one of four youths charged in the death of 34-year-old Gary Colley during a botched robbery at an Interstate 10 rest stop Sept. 14, 1993. Three of the teens have pleaded guilty to lesser charges.

Douglas Watkins lived with Crumitie's mother, Susie Mae Johnson, at the time of the shooting, prosecutors said. Watkins said the youth "admitted to participating in the I-10 homicide and firing at the vehicle from the driver's side," according to court documents filed by the state.

The slaying was one in a series of unrelated tourist attacks that damaged Florida's reputation as an international vacation destination.

Watkins also said Crumitie admitted he burned the clothing he wore during the killing and participated in a separate robbery at a local hotel two days before Colley's death, court records show.

Watkins' statement corroborates statements investigators obtained from neighbors and acquaintances shortly after Colley's death. Assistant State Attorney Michael Schneider on Monday would not say when Watkins gave his statement, only that it was recently.

Drunk drivers Lawmakers: Crack down on young, repeat offenders

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Young drivers who drink illegally and repeat violators of drunken driving laws face tougher punishment under legislation being pushed this session.

The bills reduce the blood-alcohol content for anyone under age 21, provide automatic license suspensions for drunken driving and allow authorities to seize a vehicle if a defendant is convicted a third time for driving under the influence.

Members of the activist group Mothers Against Drunk Driving and law enforcement officials said Monday that tougher laws since the mid-1980s have helped reduce alcohol-related traffic deaths, but MADD wants tougher punishment for youngsters who drive and drink as well as repeat offenders.

"Drunk driving will not be stopped until the punishment is swift, severe and certain," Lucilla Christofulle, MADD's state chairwoman, said at a news conference with photographs of drunken driving victims serving as the backdrop.

One measure (SB 340 & HB 33) that has been reintroduced after failing last year reduces the blood-alcohol limit from .08 percent to .02 percent for anyone under age 21.

If young drivers stopped for suspected drunken driving exceed the limit, they will lose their licenses for six months. If they refuse to submit to the breathalyzer, they lose their license for one year.

"They can relate to having that privilege of driving taken away," said Susan Isenberg, a lobbyist for MADD. "They cannot relate to dying or being seriously injured."

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Bob Casey, R-Gainesville, said as many as 30 teen-agers could be saved each year if Florida lowered the blood-alcohol limit.

Another bill (SB 348 & HB 331) puts some muscle in the Administrative License Revocation law already in place.

Anyone stopped for drunken driving who exceeds the .08 percent limit automatically loses their license for at least 30 days. If someone refuses to take a breath test, they lose their license for 90 days.

Under the measure, no hardship license would be available.

"It's not really a question of morality," said Sen. Jim Horne, R-Orange Park, the bill's sponsor. "What we are trying to do is make our streets safe, not only for you, but for us, our family, our children."

The third bill (SB 308 & HB 619) supported by MADD allows law enforcement agencies to seize a defendant's vehicle if that person is convicted a third time for drunken driving within 10 years of the last offense. The bill also applies to anyone convicted of DUI manslaughter.

Kids and cops

The Central Florida Public Safety Fair was held Saturday, March 11 at Crane's Roost in Altamonte Springs. In attendance were many agencies including but not limited to, police, fire and rescue from Seminole, Orange and Lake counties. Police Sgt. Aaron Keith and Cpl. Rick Poovey represented the Sanford Police Department's Community Relations Division by handing out literature and bracelets as well as speaking with adults and children regarding the Neighborhood Watch program and the DARE program. Kids such as Miranda Studstill, 5, and her brother Jacob, 3, pictured with Sgt. Keith, standing, and Cpl. Poovey, enjoyed the special appearance made by PC-1, the Sanford Police Department's friendly talking police car. Also on display was the number one in the state, DARE car, along with one of Sanford's new patrol cars. The K-9 unit, which is under the Selective Enforcement Division of the department, gave a demonstration with their K-9 dogs and their handlers, Officer Mike Ansley with his dog, Karo; Officer Bill Wixon with his dog, Chico and Officer Ned Golden with dog, Nleko.

High court to hear arguments today over 2 casino proposals

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida voters have rejected casinos three times in 16 years, most recently in November. But the next vote will involve just seven people: the justices of the state Supreme Court.

"We think gaming is going to come to Florida, and we think our proposition is the best one for the voters of Florida because it gives them the opportunity to determine if, where or when," Michael Levine, president of Proposition for County Choice, said Monday.

Levine's group is one of two scheduled to appear today in the state Supreme Court to argue that their measures are in the proper form to go before voters in 1996 or 1998.

"I'm concerned that we may get one or both of these on the ballot," said Stephen MacNamara, an attorney for No Casinos, a group reactivated last year to fight several casino initiatives.

Last year, only one of four groups actively pushing different casino proposals collected enough signatures to make the ballot: Proposition for Limited Casinos, which would have allowed 47 casinos in hotels, riverboats, horse tracks, dog tracks and jai-alai frontons around the state. Limited Casinos spent nearly $16.5 million, the most ever spent on a campaign in Florida history. But it attracted just 38 percent of the vote. No Casinos spent less than $1.7 million fighting the amendment.

Before Floridians can vote on a citizen's initiative, the proposal must pass muster in the state's high court. The court reviews content and language but doesn't look at the merit of the proposal.

Even if a group has collected the 429,428 signatures needed to make the ballot, its measure can be disqualified by the court. County Choice, which would let voters in each county decide whether to allow casino gambling, has 84,650 verified signatures as of last week. Levine said the petition drive is on hold, and no decision has been made about whether to push to make the 1996 or 1998 ballot.

The other proposal on today's agenda is backed solely by Chicago-based Bally Entertainment Corp. Known as Florida Locally Approved Gaming, it would allow 20 casinos around the state in hotels or on riverboats. FLAG has 414,408 signatures.

Support city goals

The Sanford City Commission undertook a goal-setting project yesterday afternoon. The citizens can be pleased with the work accomplished thus far.

Using a listing from the last goal setting project six years ago, the commissioners, one by one, gave their opinions of projects which are in need of consideration in the future.

Compared to the March 1989 goal list, the present commission took a more practical approach. Although some of the proposed goals, such as the creation of a new recreation center and new fire station might involve extensive planning and expense, none of the goals could be considered beyond reach.

All but one of the present commissioners, Kerry Lyons, were involved in the 1989 goal setting, but this time, they exercised a better approach, which we believe will be of more immediate benefit.

Six years ago, goals included such matters as providing adequate housing, especially homes for the aging, solving drainage problems, and creation of a convention center with hotel accommodations. These are excellent goals, but cannot be accomplished without years of work and involvement by many outside entities.

The commission today is looking at the goal-setting as needs which might be able to be accomplished in the near future. In effect, they have moved away from "pie in the sky" goals and gone at this with a clear vision.

The goal setting is not over for the city. More sessions are expected in the future, and no doubt, more goals will be established.

For the time being however, we see the individual suggestions by each of the commissioners and the mayor, as commendable.

Once the goals are officially established however, progress will depend greatly on support by the people. We suggest this be given serious consideration and when the time comes to bring these goals into fruition, we urge support.

Heartfelt thanks

Now that the dust has settled on the last election and my life has gotten back to normal, I want to give some heartfelt thanks to some people who well deserve it. First and foremost, thanks to my wife, Emily and daughters, Katie and Mary. Politics is very hard on a family and I could not have made it through two campaigns and four years in office without you by my side. Secondly, thank you to my campaign supporters for all your hard work and contributions. It is very gratifying to me personally to have had over 300 Republicans, Democrats and Independents actively working on my behalf. And thanks to the press for always giving me a fair shake even when we disagreed. The reporters who cover Seminole County for the newspapers and radio and television stations are first-class journalists.

Thanks to my former colleagues for your support of so many of my proposals. Much was made of the four-to-one votes but virtually all of my initiatives had your unanimous backing and I am grateful to have had the opportunity to have served with you. Thank you to the Seminole County staff. I have never worked with a more dedicated or more talented group of people. Thanks to the hundreds of volunteers who give their time and energy to serve on the county's various boards and committees. A special thanks is due the businesses who unhesitatingly offered their own money to improve Highway 17/92. Our business community is just as committed to improving Seminole County as the residents are — all we have to do is give them the chance.

Last and most importantly, I want to thank the people of Seminole County. You gave the opportunity to try and make a great place a little bit better. In that I hope I was successful.

Garbage pickup

We have forgotten some things we learned in school.

For example: What does the word "exempt" mean to you? Free from, not obligated and etc. Why force people to have mandatory garbage pickup; this just makes people mad and rightly so, how would you like it?

It's true, garbage cannot be allowed to stack up like New York City of years ago, when the garbage men went on strike, but when some people only have a little bit, they should have a large can to put it in, and then have it picked up once a month.

Certain laws that put too much pressure on people like the ones on "fixed incomes" can be reversed or do they need the money that bad? Don't they have compassion for some people? What if you were in their shoes? Don't you want to be re-elected?

It's November the Alamo!

I am a traditionalist. And it is a tradition in this space to have a contest every so often. So we are going to have a contest.

The last contest, about a year ago, asked for 1) a description of the foreign policy of the Clinton administration and/or 2) a prescription for what American foreign policy should be — each entry to be able to fit on a bumper sticker.

The Clinton description contest winner was "Lax Americana." Other entries included "Hesitastination," "Clintonertia," "Speak Bigly and Carry a Soft Stick," "Liberte, Egalite, Stupidite," "Superpowerlessness," "Ozark Wilsonianism" (an entry that was submitted anonymously and angrily in a National Security Council envelope), "Explanation," "Flipflopracy," "Surrealpolitik," "Stanley Greenbergism" (after Clinton's pollster) and "Naked Digression." It was not a particularly good contest from the White House point of view, but it did leave room for improvement, which has occurred.

The winner of the prescriptive contest was "Amerocentric Pro-Democracy Adhocracy," which I still rather like. (I am the sole judge in these traditional contests.)

Another contest asked entrants to name a new holiday to commemorate the end of the Cold War. There was a massive submission of

"Freedom Day," and I decided to go with the majority, notwithstanding some nifty other entries, including "Defrost Day," "Thaw Day," "Ronald Reagan Day," "Gipper Goals Day," "Jericho Day" (when the walls came tumblin' down...), "Sans Soviet Day," "Gorbachev Day," "Never Thought I'd See It In My Lifetime Day," "Pour-Us-A-Boris Day" (perhaps prophetically apt) and "E2D2," which, of course, stands for Evil Empire Death Day.

Today our thoughts turn toward domestic matters and we focus on the forthcoming presidential election. After all, it is only a year from the first primary, and just a short 20 months until Nov. 5, 1996, at which point Americans will elect a new president, or re-elect an incumbent.

Contestants are asked to submit entries for any, some or all of the following categories:

1) A re-election slogan for President Clinton in the general election. ("OK, This Time I'm Really Serious.")

2) A slogan for a Democratic primary challenger to Clinton. (Generic: "It's Clinton, Stupid." For Sen. Bob Kerrey: "I inhaled and I served." For the vice president, if the president doesn't run: "Save the Crescent-Finned, Snail-Snouted, Red-Breasted Dowager — Elect Al Gore.")

3) A slogan for a third or fourth party candidate in the general election. (For Ross Perot: "Crazy Enough to Try Again." For Colin Powell: "I'm Colin Powell, and They're Not.")

4) A slogan for a Republican candidate running against Clinton in the general election. ("It's the Morning After in America." "I Knew Bill Clinton, I Worked With Bill Clinton, and I'm No Bill Clinton.")

Send entries to me c/o this newspaper, or to me c/o Newspaper Enterprise Association, 200 Park Ave., New York, NY 10166. Please enclose a copy of this column with the name of the newspaper enlightened enough to carry it.

So we are going to have a contest.

How much prejudice is left?

BOSTON — So it was the engine after all. Not the pilot. Lt. Kara Hultgreen did not die on the altar of "political correctness," or "preferential treatment" or "reverse discrimination." She died because the F-14A Tomcat stalled as it approached the aircraft carrier.

The Navy brass played the videotape of the crash over and over again. The officers relayed the findings of their investigation succinctly: It wasn't her fault, it wasn't her sex.

Kara Hultgreen had grown up fearless, a daredevil who believed she could do anything. At 10, she deliberately ran through a glass door. At 28, she broke the glass ceiling.

When the Navy finally lifted its ban against women fighter pilots in 1993, this gung-ho pilot who knew all the lines from "Top Gun" was the first to join an air combat squadron. Last October she became the first to die.

But before Kara Hultgreen's body had even been recovered from the sea, 4,000 feet deep, strapped to her ejection seat, the anonymous phone calls, the fax attacks, the rumors had all begun. She was only a pilot because the Navy was trying to be "politically correct" in the wake of the Tailhook scandal. She was unqualified. She was given preferential treatment. She was, in the modern slang, an affirmative action baby.

In her too-brief career, Kara Hultgreen had flown across the whole trajectory of prejudice. At the beginning, she was banned from her job because she was a woman. At the end, it was said that she only got the job because she was a woman. One double standard was twisted into another.

Even Ted Koppel on "Nightline," probing her qualifications, asked if she had received a "kind of affirmative action." And a reporter, automatically responding in the same shorthand, said no, the Navy didn't lower its standards.

Maybe this is Lt. Hultgreen's last, unwitting service. The people who cast a shadow on her reputation have thrown some light on the debate about discrimination and affirmative action.

In today's language and climate, affirmative action has become synonymous in the public mind with lowering standards. The remedy for discrimination has become a code word for it.

Those who oppose affirmative action will say Kara Hultgreen's story proves how much these programs tarnish every successful woman or minority. Even one who rose by the most rigorous of single standards.

Those who favor affirmative action will say the story proves how far we still are from a race-blind, gender-neutral society. The people who want to keep the outsiders where they belong — down — have found a new way of expressing an old prejudice.

But either way you look at it, affirmative action is now tainted. It's become a fighting term. Politicians who want to appease those legendary angry white men promise to strike it from the policy vocabulary. California is putting the issue on the ballot. The president has vowed a top-to-bottom review of federal programs. We are in for change and we don't have a new language for it.

Affirmative action plans, the goals and goals designed to remedy past discrimination, have made a difference in the lives of women and minorities. The statistics can tell you that.

The plans have also created antagonism between men and women, whites and blacks. The anecdotes can tell you that.

This antagonism is stirred every time an employer tries to let a white man down, falsely but easily, by saying that "we have to hire a woman." It's stirred every time a politician wants people to believe that a black American has taken "their" job, not a Sri Lankan or a Mexican.

Those who have favored affirmative action — as I have — have been too busy fighting opponents to confront our own conflicts. We haven't squarely faced the dilemma of fostering group rights to promote individual rights. Nor have we fairly computed the competing disadvantages of race and class, gender and poverty.

It's late in the day and we haven't laid out our own endgame. We haven't decided when the time is up for this temporary policy. If not now, when? How will we know? It's no wonder that the country believes the temporary is permanent.

But the opponents of affirmative action also have their work cut out. As the mood of the country shifts, so does the burden. Those who would end programs that have given women and minorities a chance are now obliged to describe the tools they would use on the still-rocky road to equality.

Without such a plan we can only assume that the goal is to go backwards.

While the debate goes on, it's worth remembering how much prejudice there still is in this world. Enough prejudice to follow a young pilot into her grave.

Lt. Kara Hultgreen did not die on the altar of "political correctness," or "preferential treatment" or "reverse discrimination."

Albright travels to support sanctions

UNITED NATIONS — U.S. Ambassador Madeleine K. Albright, who recently completed a tour of six foreign capitals, is making headway in her quest to convince foreign leaders to keep international sanctions on Iraq.

By reminding these leaders of the deceit and duplicity of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, Albright hopes to head off a move by French and Russian officials to have the U.N. Security Council lift the sanctions. Although France and Russia are stressing how "cooperative" Iraq has been, their real motive is to make money by cashing in on previously negotiated trade deals.

Our sources say she arrived bearing a litany of the lies Iraq has used to stall U.N. arms control efforts over the last four years — evidence that is designed to show how forced and reluctant Iraq's "cooperation" has been. Albright, who has been touted as a likely successor to Secretary of State Warren Christopher, was dispatched on her unusual mission so she could go to the people who give U.N. diplomats their orders. Albright met with foreign officials in the United Kingdom, Jordan, Kuwait, the Czech Republic, Italy, Switzerland (for a meeting with German officials) and Honduras.

For months after the Persian Gulf War, Iraq kept U.N. inspectors at bay, while denying that a nuclear weapons building effort was under way. But the inspection teams began peeling away the layers of deception — with no help from the Iraqis. Our associate Dale Van Atta has learned new details of just how this was done, some of which Albright has confided to foreign dignitaries.

The first major clue came from some of the Western hostages held by Saddam Hussein at a strategic location before Desert Storm. They returned home with curious radioactive particles in their coats, suggesting there was a uranium enrichment facility at the temporary hostage site.

The second clue came in the spring of 1991, when a key Iraqi engineer working in the nuclear program defected through northern Iraq to the Central Intelligence Agency. He revealed previously unknown details of a massive uranium enrichment program using electromagnetic isotope separation (EMIS).

The third clue came when the first U.N. inspection team was taken to the Al Hamath workshop area. Members of the team could hardly keep from laughing when Iraqi escorts told them that what they saw was just some truck maintenance facilities and machine shops. A dead giveaway was the crane labeled, "Iraqi Atomic Energy Commission." Another was a large electrical power grid that's needed for nuclear-related plants.

The fourth big break — known among participants as "The Great Truck Chase" — in the nuclear weapons investigation came in June 1991, when the team arrived at the Abu Gharaib military barracks. The military refused to let them in, though the team could see and photograph large crates and equipment that seemed to be related to the detector's account of a huge EMIS program to produce bomb-grade uranium. Some team members argued for a sit-in to test the Iraqis' resistance, but Chief Inspector Maurizio Zifferero ordered a withdrawal.

When Zifferero left Baghdad, a politically astute and aggressive American, David Kay, was put in charge. Armed with intelligence showing that all of the equipment had been moved to a site called Fallujah, Kay devised a plan for the team to bluff its way into getting what it needed.

Albright hopes to head off a move by French and Russian officials to have the U.N. Security Council lift the sanctions.

 gested the letter be sent immediately, telling the delegates we are just not ready until we get more information."
 During discussion of the proposal, Simmons alluded to information received in a copy of a memo from County Commissioner Daryl McLain, to Ronald Weindrich, chairman of the Sanford Port Authority, on March 8. "There is a lot said about the purpose of the merger," Simmons said, "but not a whole lot of specific information, especially on how the city would benefit through this merger."
 "We already have complete control over the airport except for the FAA," opined Commissioner Bob Thomas, "what would we really gain. If we would merge, would we be giving up quite a bit?"
 "I'm not prepared to answer that," Simmons responded. "At this point, I don't want to sell the deal short, but there is just not adequate information available.

 "It seems to me the natives are getting restless that the county is eventually going to take the whole thing," Thomas commented.
 Simmons continued, "The way the wording is in the proposal at this point," he said, "is that they are using too many 'the county may' or 'the county might' phrases in it. Nothing seems to be certain, merely proposed. I'm still looking for something that talks in hard dollars or specific things before we can or cannot accept this."
 "The way I see it," said Commissioner Lon Howell, "if we merge, the city will get zero. The question I have had asked to me by many people is, if we don't give up the airport, isn't the county going to move the courthouse?"
 Jay Marder, director of planning and development for the city responded that Commissioner McLain had apparently felt there was enough support to reconsider the courthouse relocation, but it had no connection with the merger.

 Commissioner Kerry Lyons observed, "This is just a lot of words, not facts and figures. I'm glad we are going at this with caution. We ought to look at the document the county wants to send to the legislative delegation and either modify it until it is to our benefit, or turn it down."
 During the entire discussion, no one on the commission indicated any support for accepting the merger proposal without specific and detailed financial information and further documentation.
 The next discussion on the merger is set for tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m., when the matter is to be proposed to the Seminole County Port Authority meeting.

 Aviation Authority, and the city of Sanford.
 The agreement prohibits the diversion of airport revenues to non-airport activities such as other local government needs.
 It prohibits the granting of exclusive rights on the airport property.
 It also says that neither the city nor county have been required to support the airport with local tax dollars, though each receives ad valorem taxes from the airport.

 "I want to go on record as being totally opposed to the merger of the Central Florida Regional Airport of Sanford and the Port Authority of Seminole County," she said.
 During a meeting of the Airport Authority earlier this month, the authority refused to make any decision, and joined the city of Sanford in calling for more information on the proposal.

 Airport Director Steve Cooke also alluded to a number of points in the government agreements about the former Naval Air Station property, which did not come into agreement with what the county is proposing.

 estimated cost of the building is $7 million. This division is the internal supplier of voice, data processing and networking products for all AT&T divisions worldwide.
 The AT&T Sales and Marketing Technology Solutions (SMTS) division, which has associates in Maitland, Kansas City, Atlanta and New Jersey would be combined into one technology center located in the vacant Conner Building in Lake Mary. This AT&T division develops integrated information technology business solutions for all AT&T operations in the U.S. The estimated capital investment in equipment and furnishings for the Conner Building is $5.5 million.

 Seminole County and City of Lake Mary will provide equal shares of the economic incentives package if the proposals are approved today.
 Lake Mary officials were scheduled to meet in special session this morning and were expected to attend the board of commissioners meeting at 1:30 p.m. today in the commission chambers of the County Services Building.
 Snaring the AT&T divisions helps the county move toward the goal of expanding its tax base and moving from the present 70 percent residential/30 percent commercial, industrial and business ratio to a 60/40 ratio.

 "Seminole County is a bedroom community," Rabun explained, "and it will become a very expensive place to live over time if we don't expand our tax base."
 In the past few weeks, the county commissioners have approved incentive packages for Recoton, Cincinnati Bell and Dixon Ticonderoga for relocating or expanding their businesses in Seminole County.

History

 "They really look forward to this every year," said Phil Beasley, the social studies teacher at All Souls. "At least most of them do. I guess there are some kids who don't get as excited, but a lot of them really do look forward to this."
 Students, each year, are assigned the task of writing a report about a historical location of landmark and then creating a three-dimensional replica of that place.
 As an incentive to get the youngsters interested in the project, Beasley holds a contest each year to choose the best creation from each grade level.

 Over the last decade and a half, students have been tackling the assignments with great enthusiasm.
 Some students slap the creations together in an afternoon. Most spend "a few hours a day and weekends for a couple of weeks" working on the project.
 "There is a lot of time and effort put into these projects," the teacher said.
 The most exciting ones to him, Beasley said, are the recreations of central Florida locales.

 Over the last few years, students have constructed models of DeBary Hall, of Sanford's Hopper Academy, Upsala Presbyterian Church and the Cultural Arts Center and of All Souls Catholic Church, with which the school is affiliated.
 "We really try to encourage the eighth graders to find a central Florida location," Beasley said.
 Beasley is proud of this year's winners, who he said created some "fine work, which showed a lot of creativity and originality."

Goals

 Whitey Eckstein - Creating a Sports Hall of Fame in the city.
 Mayor Betty Smith - Continued work in assisting the Waterfront Steering Committee in the pursuit of its plans for waterfront and downtown area developments.
 Kerry Lyon - Looking into reducing licensing fees by possibly 10 to 20 percent to help persuade businesses, especially small businesses, to move to Sanford and thus help improve the economy.
 Lon Howell - Development of a recreation center/community center.
 City Manager Simmons - Work on planning for a new Fire Station #11, preferably on the northeast quadrant of property owned by the city across French Avenue from Sanford Middle School. Simmons also projected possibly including part of the building with which to house the Sanford police administration offices, but keeping the existing police station for use as a station house by officers.
 Regarding the proposal for a video tape of the city, Commissioner Thomas said he believed such a tape would stir people's interest in moving to Sanford.
 Simmons however, questioned who such tapes would target.
 "We've just given city money to the Waterfront Committee for 1,100 copies of a promotional brochure," Eckstein said. "This is already a marketing package."
 "But with a video tape," Thomas continued, "people could actually see what the marina, lakefront and other areas really look like."
 Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr also spoke on the subject. "Video tapes may have been in vogue five to ten years ago, but if we have one, it would have to be updated every year. Then you would almost have to be there when it's played and practically plug it in."
 "If we had one today," Mayor Smith asked, "who would do anything with it?"
 Farr said there would probably have to be copies for the chamber, Sanford Main Street, Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association, and probably several other groups.
 Following further discussion, Simmons said he would contact the Seminole County Economic Development Commission, (EDC) to see if there might be some way to participate in such a project which might be for the total county.
 Commissioner Howell responded, "It looks like if we don't give up our airport, we wouldn't get any cooperation from the county on this matter."
 Eckstein addressed his comments on the need for a Sports Hall of Fame, listing many sports stars who were from the immediate area or had contact with the area. "I don't understand why our merchants don't want something like this to attract people downtown on weekends. I see no future vision from our downtown people."
 He mentioned that he might be able to obtain the old library (on E. First Street) for use as a downtown sports museum site. "It would give our city a better image," he said. "But I've talked to a lot of people and nobody is enthusiastic. They haven't said no, but they haven't supported it."

 Farr told Eckstein he would bring the sports museum up before a meeting of the chamber's board of directors to see what response he might get.
 Mayor Smith urged that continuing support be included in the planning list for the waterfront committee. "Certainly the city isn't going to build any 300 room hotel like the committee has indicated on the plans, but there are many points in which the city should get involved," she said.
 "For example, we could consider relocating the ball park at Fort Mellon Park farther away from Seminole Boulevard, we could change the whole face of Fort Mellon Park, do something with Seminole Boulevard, build a river walk. There are a number of things which fall into our purview."
 Lyons not only suggested reducing licensing fees by 10 to 20 percent for new businesses, especially small businesses wishing to move into Sanford, but possibly changing fire inspection fees from once a year to once every two or three years.
 Fire Chief Tom Hickson responded however that the frequent fire inspections help keep merchants' insurance costs lower, and suggested the change wouldn't be practical.

Commissioner Howell was adamant about the needs for a recreation center. "This was on our list six years ago," he said, "and it should still be kept on it. When it came up for a vote for the financing last year, the citizens voted it down, but there must be some way we can find to finance it."
 Simmons responded that the defeat at the polls came as a matter of bad timing, with tax increases and a tight economy. "The 1998 election might be a good time to bring it up again," he observed, "with the mayor and two commission seats on the ballot, plus some charter changes, we can expect a good turnout."
 The discussion on setting of goals for the city lasted for a full hour. Each of the commissioners said they appreciated the brainstorming session approach, which was done in an informal setting prior to the start of the regular agenda work session.
 Eckstein suggested the setting of goals for the city should be on a continuing basis. Once the goals are set, he also suggested presenting at least a quarterly update on work being done toward achieving the goals.
 Simmons said he would take the various suggestions and compile them into a starting list of plans and goals, and have them ready for presentation before the second meeting in April.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Senate GOP package under fire

WASHINGTON — A Senate Republican package of options for trimming Medicare, Medicaid and other benefit programs is already drawing fire from advocates for the elderly and is sure to attract even more criticism.

Sen. Judd Gregg, R-N.H., who headed a Senate GOP task force looking for the savings, released the proposals Monday. They include a new way to compute the inflation rate that would reduce the growth of certain benefits and raise taxes for many Americans. In addition, the Republicans envision increasing costs for many elderly people on Medicare and cutting the growth of Medicaid and welfare.

"We think we can provide better programs with fewer dollars," Gregg said.

Floodwaters begin to recede

MONTEREY, Calif. — Mounds of sewage fouled water supplies and forced some residents to disinfect their water with bleach as California's ravaging floodwaters began to slowly recede.

Although a new round of storms brought a few more inches of rain Monday to Northern California's Napa and Sonoma counties, the rest of the region was largely spared. Another inch of rain was expected today in the region; skies were expected to begin clearing by mid-week.

The storms have killed 14 people and caused damage estimated at $2 billion. About 7,000 people had been evacuated since the rain began Wednesday, and some 1,000 were still out of their homes today.

WORLD BRIEFS

WWI vet, 102, weds lady, 53

LONDON — A World War I veteran won the heart and hand of a woman nearly half his age by telling her about his adventures.

George Brunwell Jameson, 102, and Julie Robinson, 53, were married Friday at a registry office near their home on the Devonshire coast southwest of London, British newspapers reported today.

Jameson told the Daily Express newspaper he was "jolly lucky" to have found the perfect companion so late in life.

"We are very much in love with each other in spite of the age difference," he was quoted as saying. "I don't give a damn what people think — age does not matter to me."

Robinson saw Jameson appear on a BBC television documentary about the war in 1993, soon wrote to him seeking more information, and eventually traveled to his home.

"George is the funniest and kindest man I have ever known," the Daily Mail newspaper quoted her as saying. "He is a darling."

Laws no match for monkey business

SINGAPORE — Although tough laws keep down Singapore's crime rate, they are no match for monkey business.

A gang of six monkeys has created havoc in two neighborhoods, sneaking into homes through ventilation slats and open windows to steal toothpaste, soap, fruit and once a set of playing cards, a newspaper reported today.

They also overturn rubbish bins and leave a mess, said the Straits Times, the main English-language newspaper of this squeaky clean city-state.

The animals, which emerged from a nearby wooded area, are fearless and are often seen leaping from roof to roof, the Times said.

Apparently, the only organization authorized to catch wild animals is the Singapore Zoo, but it can't move until it receives permission from the Primary Production Department or the police, the Times said. It said the zoo charges an hourly rate for such jobs.

OVIEDO — The Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce will hold a membership luncheon this Thursday, March 16, at Toucan Willie's Restaurant and Bar beginning at noon. Cost is $8 per person. For additional information, phone the chamber office at 365-6500.

Republicans meet

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Seminole County Republican Executive Committee will meet Thursday, March 16, at Eastmonte Civic Center, Magnolia Avenue, in Altamonte Springs. Guest speaker is Tom Slade, chairman of the Republican Party of Florida.

The public is invited to attend. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Spray art toy recalled

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and Kenner Products have announced a voluntary recall of about 176,000 of the company's "Colorblaster 3-D" model 14290.11 spray art design toys.

When the toy is over-pumped, the orange pump handle and purple cap can fly off the base, possibly hitting the child using the toy and causing facial injury. Kenner Products received reports of eight injuries which occurred when the pump handle and cap assembly blew out of the base and struck the pump operator.

Kenner sold the recalled product nationally through wholesale and retail outlets between August, 1994 and January 1995 for $26.99 each.

Return the product to the store where purchased for a full refund, or call (800) 327-8264 for a pre-paid mailing label to send the handle and cap to Kenner for a refund.

Advanced disposal fee protest

WINTER PARK — A citizen's activist group has solicited and presented 500 petitions and 80 letters to state Sen. Buddy Dyer (R-Orlando), protesting the Advanced Disposal Fee (ADF).

Dyer is a member of the Senate Natural Resources Committee. On Feb. 8, he voted to introduce a bill to the committee that would extend the ADF for two more years. The ADF is scheduled to expire in October of this year. The tax is collected on containers over eight ounces that do not meet recycling regulations. The fee doubled this year to two cents per container.

Of the $32 million collected last year, only 12 percent was used for recycling purposes, said Grant Maloy, president of the Central Florida Taxpayer's Action Network, the group which collected the petitions. Maloy feels the tax is regressive.

Deadlines for crop assistance

DELAND — The deadline for the 1994 Tree Assistance Program (TAP) and the 1994 Disaster Assistance Program is March 31.

TAP covers nursery inventory, orchard trees and forest tree seedlings losses resulting from damaging weather in 1994. The program is designed to reimburse planting or rehabilitation costs for nursery inventory, orchard trees and forest tree seedlings for certain small and medium scale nursery growers who experienced losses in 1994.

Disaster assistance is available to producers who experienced crop losses exceeding 40 percent of normal production due to weather conditions in calendar year 1994.

Producers will be required to provide production costs and verifiable sales (production) documents. Producers with insurable crops must purchase crop insurance for 1995 to be eligible for disaster payments.

To file claims for either of these programs, contact the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Consolidated Farm Service Agency for Volusia and Seminole counties, at (904) 734-2535.

Lyman winning streak ends at eight

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

LONGWOOD — Watch out for the man in the grass. A not so funny thing happened to the Lyman Greyhounds during the third inning of an outstanding pitchers duel with Deltona Monday night at Lyman High School. As a Greyhound runner rounded third base attempting to beat a throw to the plate his feet suddenly came out from under him and he fell to the ground halfway home, allowing the Wolves catcher to tag him out.

Deltona then seized the momentum and scored a pair of runs in the top of the fourth inning and the Wolves held on to hand Lyman its first loss of the season, 2-1.

For the first three innings it looked like neither team would get a hit, let alone score a run as Lyman's Kyle Hayde and Deltona's Danny Lopez matched strike for strike.

Lopez (1-1) retired the first seven batters he faced before Danny Bogeajis lined a one-out single to left with one out in the third. Mike Paulus then reached on an error, giving the Greyhounds runners on first and second. With the top of the order coming to the plate, Lyman head coach Bob McCullough brought in a pinch-runner for Bogeajis.

Norton's Oviedo teams rolling again

From Staff Reports

CASSELBERRY — The new year has started off just fine for the Mickey Norton managed slowpitch softball teams from Oviedo.

The men's team, sponsored by Toucan Willie's, has split a pair of close games in the Oviedo Recreation Department Thursday Night Spring League, while the women's team, the PDS Hackers, opened their season in the Seminole County Recreation Department Monday Night Spring League at Red Bug Lake Park with a crushing victory.

Eight different players contributed to a 14 hit attack as the Hackers walked past the M&M Angels (with Lake Howell basketball star Kelly Kohn) 12-3.

The pitching duo of Juanita Johnson and Teresa Walburger held M&M at bay, with Johnson working the first four innings and Walburger hurling three scoreless innings. Doing the hitting for PDS were Terri Mann (4-for-4, triple, two runs, RBI), Colleen Smith (2-for-4, home run, triple, three runs, three RBI), Tammy Morris (2-for-4, double, two runs, three RBI), April Lawrence (two hits, two RBI), Walburger (triple, two runs, RBI) and Tammy Cheaser, Cary Muller and Jaudon Mariette (one hit each).

The Cudas plated a pair of runs in its half of the eighth inning, but Bob Neufeld sent Toucan Willie's home happy as he drove in three runs to win the game.

Leading the way for the winners were Troy Kessinger and Doug Pagel with four hits each. Also contributing were Kenny Tuttle (three hits), Neufeld (two hits, five RBI) and Troy Quackenbush, Errol Bannister, Rick Tribit and Bill Stripp (two hits each).

Hitting in the loss were Joe Brondon (three hits, two runs), Ed Norton (2-for-3, three RBI) and Neufeld and Tribit (two hits each).

This Thursday, Toucan Willie's will take on Froggers #2 at 7 p.m.

County nines in baseball pre-poll

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The strength and balance in the Seminole Athletic Conference among its six baseball teams has been recognized by the voters in the FSWA (Florida Sports Writers Association) as four of those clubs have received votes in the preseason poll.

Lake Mary got the most recognition, collecting 26 votes which was good enough for a tie for 10th in the class 6A rankings. Also getting votes were Lake Brantley (10 votes) and Lyman and Oviedo (three votes each). The other two teams in the SAC, Seminole (4-3) and Lake Howell (8-2), have also gotten off to a good start and could get in the poll soon.

Volunteer of the Week

Veteran devotes time to other veterans

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

DELTONA — Although Tawana Metts has been a resident of Deltona for almost two years now, most of her waking hours are spent in Sanford. She was born and raised in this community and its power keeps her loyal.

Metts has many volunteer endeavors under her belt. She has been a member of the Sanford Woman's Club for three years. She presently works several times a month with her mother, Jean, at the Food Bank in Sanford and TEFAP (Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program) and the Share program.

She participated in a missionary trip to Haiti with her church, Sanlando United Methodist Church in Longwood. She has been a member there for seven years.

Volunteering in the area of working with veterans was named as her true love. She worked for many years with the Veteran Outreach Clinic in Orlando. "I helped begin many projects there," said Metts. "One of the programs I started was a food bank. It was helping veterans and their families."

Being involved with the Vietnam Veterans of Central Florida got Metts active with the Paralyzed Veterans of America. She has given her wholehearted efforts to this organization for some six to seven years.

One of the chief activities Metts has been busy with now and every year is the Paralyzed Veterans annual get-together in May. "We work all year for this one event," she said. "It takes place the last weekend in April. Guys come from all over the United States to participate." Metts shared that much of the weekend consists of fishing and boating. "Many of the paraplegic veterans get a ride in a boat," she said. "The quadriplegic veterans fish off the banks of the St. Johns." This event is held right in Sanford's own Lake Monroe area. The civic center is used for ceremonies during the weekend.

Although part of Metts' job for the weekend is planning and helping organize she enjoys the time just giving drinks and helping bait the veterans' hooks with worms. "It's really an open bass tournament," she said. "They give away a boat and motor every year. Even people that aren't veterans participate. Last year they gave a new wheelchair to someone that wasn't a veteran." The Paralyzed Veterans of America is one of the "most powerful of all the veterans' organizations," according to Metts. "Every year at Christmas they put on a big party for spinal cord injured children."

Metts admitted that working with the veterans was "the favorite of all her activities. Since Metts herself is service veteran, there has been a chance for that understanding to blossom. "I have some friends that are paralyzed," she said. "There was a gentleman who I traveled with as his aide, so I got to meet a lot of other people."

Her expertise in working with burn victims from Vietnam at a large burn center in Texas allowed her path to cross with many casualties from the war. "I didn't work much with spinal cord injured people until later."

She spoke of her motivation with the group by saying, "Sometimes we think we have it so bad." She said, "When you see these people in the wheelchairs you realize all you have. It does my heart so much good to be able to help them. That's what drives me. It uplifts my life. They really appreciate someone just taking the time to talk to them."

Getting sleep during the weekend of the veterans' celebration has been a problem in the past. "I would work sometimes from four in the morning to twelve or one in the morning. It's a long day. One year I helped load people in the boats. I know the proper way to lift paraplegics."

Metts encouraged anyone who can help with the weekend or wanting to attend, to contact the Paralyzed Veterans of America. Metts agreed that you will count your own blessings when you realize how often you take your own health for granted.

Visiting ancient Egypt could be the trip of a lifetime

While I appreciate all of your telephone calls, many of which have come appointments for personal sessions, I must ask you again to try to remember that if you wish to have an inquiry answered, that you should send that inquiry or question to the address shown at the end of this column. While I enjoy speaking with each and every one of you, it's easier to document your request when you send it in by mail. Thank you.

DEAR JERRY: I understand that you have been to Egypt. Could you recommend whether or not it would be safe to go at this time, and would that kind of trip be worthwhile, and is there more to see than the Pyramids?

JERRY STEWART

DEAR EVELYN: I can absolutely suggest that this will be one trip you will forever talk about. As for any danger at this time, you can always find danger almost any place, but I think you're referring to the Muslim extremists and some attacks on tourists. Try to remember, you can get hit by a car just stepping out into the street! As for problems there, they are minimal to say the least, and more directed toward the present liberal government.

I wouldn't hesitate a minute if you have the opportunity to go there. Depending on your itinerary, I would suggest checking with a travel agency about a "package," one that includes all your meals along with air, ship, baggage taxes, tips, and tours while at each location. Better though, would be the following: one that includes Egypt, Jordan, Israel, and Turkey.

As I remember it was for about a total of 23 days and cost something at the time of around $4,000 per person. As for what you would see, let me just say that if you have read, even as a child, about any of these places, that all of a sudden each place seems to come alive and you realize that you are really there, imagine climbing up inside the Great Pyramid, the only one of the ancient Seven Wonders of the World that still exists, seeing the sound and light show of the Pyramids and Sphinx, or seeing the King Tut exhibit, or going to Memphis and I don't mean Tennessee!

You might find where Moses was found on the Nile. Did you ever see 500 mummified crocodiles or how about the Room of Mummies at the museum in Cairo, chariots made of gold, garages made of gold, jewelry you can't even get copies of, at Kmart. Did you ever ride a camel, visit a mosque, be amongst 21,000,000 people? Cairo, a city where you can walk without fear of getting mugged, raped or whatever?

Ride a modern subway that rivals anything you've ever seen, drink out of a real bottle of "Coke," pass vehicles at night and notice that when two vehicles pass each other, that they both turn their lights off when they pass (customary), learn to eat and enjoy Middle Eastern foods that taste better than going to Mickey D's.

See Elephantine Island and all its beauty, desert sunsets that make you think you have never seen the sun set before. See where Jesus was born, where he did his carpentry, where he died and where he rose. Just let me know when you're going, I'd love to go again. Of course, you have to understand that I lived there for two years as well.

If you do go, say hello to Lawrence of Arabia. His spirit is still there!

Family disowns victim of abuse

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Aching in Atlanta," who told her family, after her father died, that he had molested her when she was 5 and 6 years old. Her family disowned her for having revealed this.

Abby, I don't believe the family should have disowned her, but the deed is done and it's time she got over it. She should ask her family to forgive her for having caused them so much pain.

When I was a child, my father did some things to me he shouldn't have done, but I forgave him, and moved on. He has since died, and I would never burden my poor mother with such disturbing news.

Please do not use my name if this is published.

NAMELESS
DEAR NAMELESS: Why should the victim ask the family for forgiveness? Forgiveness implies wrongdoing. In order for the victim to be healed completely, the record should be set straight.

Almost always, when a family member who was molested as a child later finds the courage to reveal it, other family members came forward with similar stories. And this begins their healing.

Sadly, when the truth is revealed, it is not unusual to learn that the other parent had been aware of what was going on, but failed to protect his or her child.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Livid in Salem, Mass.," who was fed up with people who put their children on their answering of from time to time. There are many who will read this and appreciate the reminder.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for Mom and Pop who want to charge their 21-year-old employed daughter rent. Where else is she going to get room and board for $50 a week?

I would take it one step further and charge her for electricity, water and telephone, too. If money is not the issue to the parents, they should put it into a savings account and give it to her as a nest egg when she's ready to go out on her own.

Too many parents enable their children to mooch well past the age when they should be self-sufficient. Consider birds — their moms kick them out of the nest as soon as they're old enough to fly.

GEORGE L. SCHEIDT, PALM BEACH GARDENS, FLA.
DEAR GEORGE L. SCHEIDT: Those mama birds are wise enough to be owls. I wonder where the demeaning expression "birdbrain" came from.

Shuttle crew on launch: 'It's a great moment'

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Endeavour's crew cheered the historic launch of fellow astronaut Norman Thagard aboard a Russian rocket early today before returning to work on their own record-setting flight.

Thagard, the first American to ride a Russian rocket, was launched with two cosmonauts from Kazakhstan as Endeavour passed over Indonesia.

"It's a great moment," said astronaut Tamara Jernigan. Added Endeavour commander Stephen Oswald: "I bet Norm is glad to be there."

Mission Control recited the countdown and told the shuttle astronauts to "look north," even though the astronauts were too far away to see the gleaming white rocket climb into orbit.

They're hoping for a chance to speak with Thagard via radio once he arrives at the Mir orbiting outpost on Thursday.

Endeavour is set to end its astronomy mission on Friday after 15 1/2 days in space, which would break the shuttle endurance record by 19 hours.

The marathon flight might get even longer. NASA is considering extending the flight by two days so the crew can conduct additional celestial observations. Mission operations director Jeff Bartle said there were plenty of supplies and fuel on board for the extra days, and officials hoped to make a decision today.

On Monday, the shuttle's three ultraviolet telescopes peered 14 million light years into the universe toward a galaxy in the midst of a baby boom.

The dwarf galaxy, about one-fifth the size of our Milky Way, is undergoing a population explosion called a starburst, when stars up to 100 times as massive as the sun are born at a prodigious rate.

"In an astronomical blink of an eye, tens of thousands of massive stars have formed," said Michael Panelli, an astronomer working on the ground with one of the telescopes.

"This should tell us something about how galaxies formed in the early universe because it's believed that most galaxies formed in a starburst phase several billion years ago."

Panelli's science team took 70-millimeter ultraviolet photographs that will be developed after Endeavour returns to Earth. Astronomers working with another of the instruments aboard the shuttle gathered data on light streaming from the distant cluster.

'Outbreak' opens tops at weekend box office

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — The suspense film "Outbreak," starring Dustin Hoffman as an Army scientist fighting a killer virus, debuted in first place at the box office.

"Outbreak" earned a strong $13.4 million, but second-week holdovers "Man of the House," "Roommates" and "Hideaway" all declined 30 percent or more from a week earlier.

The top Academy Award nominees, "Pulp Fiction" and "Forrest Gump," maintained strong earnings, and "Gump" is now poised to pass "The Lion King" as 1994's highest-grossing title. Overall business was dim. The Top 10 films brought in $38.2 million, compared to an average of $55.7 million during the past 52 weeks.

The top 20 movies at U.S. and Canadian theaters from Friday through Sunday, followed by studio, gross, number of screens, receipts per location, total gross and number of weeks in release, as compiled Monday by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. and Entertainment Data Inc. from actual returns and studio estimates:

1. "Outbreak," Warner Bros., $13.4 million, 2,215 locations, $6,059 per location, $13.4 million, one week.

Write A Want Ad That Sells!

YOUR CLASSIFIED AD works best when it contains what the reader wants to know.

- GIVE FACTS
Put yourself in the buyer's place. What would you want to know? List the item's age, condition, size, brand name, model and approximate value. If you're selling a car, state the type of transmission, mileage (if it's low) and special equipment.
- DON'T EMBELLISH
It's risky business to exaggerate and it won't increase your chances of success. A potential buyer may get a buyer to your home. It may also get you a punch in the nose.
- AVOID ABBREVIATIONS
While a few abbreviations can save you space, too many of them string together can create confusion. A careful reader won't take time to sort out your meaning.
- INCLUDE PRICE
Buyers looking for bargains are more interested in the merchandise than they know the price. This applies to everything from household furnishings to automobiles. Omit negotiation, please! Fairly, is the best guarantee of success.
- BE AVAILABLE
A telephone number is fine if you're at home when your ad runs. If you're not going to be home, state the time you will be. Most people won't call back twice.
- USE YOUR NAME
Put your name to your ad. It gives credibility to the item you are advertising. You may even get results when someone who has read your ad sees you in a restaurant or walking down the street. It's a talking advertisement of being in a small community such as ours.

IF YOU NEED ADDITIONAL HELP, CALL THE SANFORD HERALD AND WE WILL HELP YOU WORD YOUR AD.

Tachycardia syndrome linked to medicine

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can you tell me about POTS -- postural orthostatic tachycardia syndrome? Information on the cause and treatment would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER: Sometimes, in the presence of heart disease or drug therapy for cardiovascular ailments, people experience a sudden drop in blood pressure when they quickly sit up or stand. This causes weakness, lightheadedness or fainting, associated with tachycardia (rapid pulse, as the heart tries to compensate by pumping more blood to the brain against gravity).

The causes of this syndrome are legion, but the end result is the same: postural (orthostatic) low blood pressure with compensatory tachycardia -- that is far more pronounced than the usual lightheadedness we all may occasionally experience upon rapid standing.

In patients taking medicine to reduce blood pressure, the syndrome can be prevented by a simple reduction in the dose of the drug, under medical supervision.

For those who are not medicated, the therapy is somewhat more tricky and complicated. Regular exercise will help by toning up the cardiovascular system. (POTS is much more frequent in sedentary individuals and is common in people who have been confined to bed.)

Also, doctors may encourage more dietary salt (to increase blood volume and blood pressure.) Finally, elastic support stockings, which prevent pooling of blood in the lower extremities, may stabilize the circulation so that faintness and tachycardia don't occur.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it possible to catch bad breath? Out of loneliness, I began a relationship with a horrible older woman whose teeth were loose and whose breath was unbelievably foul. I kissed her often. Now I find my own breath stinks in the same way hers did. No kidding. Is it possible she had some unique bacteria that she passed on to me?

DEAR READER: Absolutely. Most cases of halitosis (bad breath) are caused by bacterial action on food particles that are caught between the teeth. It is entirely possible that your former partner transmitted large numbers of bacteria to your mouth during your intimacy.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Yesterday I gave a defensive deal that most pairs should get right. Today's deal would test even the best pairs. But East found the winning play. The deal originally appeared in Jeremy Flint's column in The Times of London. As Flint didn't name East, I have a feeling it must have been he.

Defending against three no-trump, West leads the club three. How should East plan the defense?

Perhaps North should bid three diamonds on the third round. But he wanted to get to three no-trump if his partner had a club stopper. And although South didn't, it took very accurate defense to defeat the contract.

The dummy contains eight winners. Somehow the defenders mustn't allow the declarer to take the heart finesse or to reach his hand to cash the spade ace.

At one table, East put in the club queen at trick one. When it held, he continued with the ace and another club. West cashed his two winners in the suit but was endplayed. He exited with a low diamond, but South courageously ran this to his nine.

The lead actor of our story also won the first trick with the club queen. However, anticipating his partner might have no safe exit, East returned the club four at trick two. West won with the king and returned a club to his partner's ace. Now East switched to the diamond three. Luckily West's diamond spots were sufficient to keep South out of his hand. West won tricks 12 and 13 with the heart queen and club nine, respectively.

Impressive stuff.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 15, 1995

If you handle developments effectively in the year ahead, it should be a fun one for you socially and a rewarding one for you materially. Make the most of opportunities in both areas.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be well received by friends today, but guard against foolish behavior. Thoughtless actions could create shock waves difficult to subdue. Pieces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your success today could depend on how well you adapt to shifting conditions. Prepare to make changes whenever and wherever necessary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Yield to and abide by logic today and try to keep erratic conditions under control. Emotional concerns could distort the picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your might strongly disagree with your mate today about certain issues. Control your temper; harsh words and unyielding positions will make you both look foolish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should do well today if you can delegate assignments. When you have to fend for yourself, however, you might not be as successful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Share with others today, but keep your generosity within prudent bounds. If you're excessive, regret will set in later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Wanting to put your personal imprint on all you touch today is okay, provided you contribute something worthwhile. Back off when you don't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Making changes simply for change's sake could be your major weakness today. Do not disrupt situations with your career if they're running smoothly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Conditions today might be a bit usual. You could be a winner, yet lose in the process. Hold onto what you gain with both hands and a tight grip.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You associates might back away from you today if they think you're unduly concerned with your own interests while ignoring theirs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keeping secrets might not be one of your stronger attributes today. A manipulative individual who recognizes this may take advantage of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be your own worse enemy today if you're prone to hold a grudge. In the process of trying to get even, you might make matters worse.
