Freeze Slows Christmas Mail; May Curtail Traffic Toll

By United Press International

While America's bone-chilled letter carriers were hampered by ice, snow and a plunging wind-chill factor across much of the nation, traffic safety experts hoped the bitter cold would curb holiday traffic accidents.

Mail carriers grappled with a record 10 billion pieces of holiday mail and neither snow nor cold stayed them from heroic efforts to complete their appointed rounds before Christmas Eve's end.

In Minneapolis, for example, letter carriers wearing ski masks braved a wind-chill factor of minus 25 at high noon Friday to slog through four feet of snow.

But in Washington, Postmaster General William Bolger warned that without a significant break in the weather "we can expect delivery delays of a couple of days for mail that is now awaiting transportation."

In the worst holiday accident by Saturday, a bus carrying a Texas church youth choir collided head-on with an 18-wheel truck killing at least nine people and scattering bodies "all over the road," authorities said. More than 20 people were injured in the accident.

Holiday motorists took to the roads Friday amid optimism bitter cold and snowy weather over most of the nation would curb the 300 to 400 deaths experts estimated for the three-day Christmas weekend.

"People have always tended to drive more carefully in serious weather," said Chuck Vance, spokesman for the National Safety Council in Chicago, and the bitter cold is expected to last for entire holiday period. The council estimated 300 to 400 deaths and 14,000 to 19,000 disabling injuries during the period, which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ends at midnight Monday.

Last year there were 346 deaths and 16,100 serious injuries recorded during the Christmas holiday. Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, in an exuberant display of Christmas spirit, a man clad in western clothes and driving a Cadillac handed out thousands of $10 bills to about 400 men, women and children waiting for a free meal in a local mission.

"It was flabbergasting," said Clancy Imislund, managing director of the mission. "Some of the guys left right away and went to a nearby liquor store. Some of them put the money in their socks. One guy said, 'I'm going to get something to send my kid for Christmas.'"

Trial Set In Battery, Burglary Incident

A Sanford man is scheduled to go on trial Tuesday for sexual battery and burglary.

Rodney Lewis Woods, 26, of 25 Castle Brewer Court, has been charged with the July 16 burglary and sexual battery of a resident in the home that was burglarized.

According to a police report, the woman awoke at 3:45 a.m. to find herself under assault.

Police said the attacker entered the woman's apartment by removing a screen from a window.

Woods was arrested 11:20 a.m. July 18 after questioning. He was being Saturday in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $8,000 bond.

The trial will be before Seminole Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr.

Building Moratorium

Cities Take Emergency Steps To Save Water

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Emergency measures are in effect to conserve Sanford's water supply.

A moratorium has been placed on building permits for all new construction, water pressure in the system will be dropped to reduce usage by 15 percent, and use of water for lawns, gardens, car-washing and other nonlife-supporting functions is outlawed until the water supply is restored.

The shutdown of wells contaminated with EDB (ethylene dibromide, a suspected carcinogen) has reduced water supplies to a quantity that cannot meet the needs of the city's 30,000 residents. Sanford officials agreed in an emergency meeting Friday afternoon.

Commissioners voted unanimously to authorize the city attorney to negotiate with owners of irrigation wells in Lake Mary for those wells to be tested for cancer-causing EDB. If they are found to be free of EDB an effort will be made to connect them to the city's water supply.

The move comes after three wells, in addition to the three already shut down, were also found to have unacceptable levels of EDB.

The commission waived bid requirements and authorized city manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles to negotiate for and obtain personnel and materials needed to test and to hook up to four irrigation wells. But it will take six to eight months to bring new wells into the system.

The severity of the water supply problem was realized at 4 p.m. Thursday when city officials received results of the latest tests on water in five of the city's 15 wells. Environmental Science and Engineering of Gainesville, which conducted the test, found three of the six wells tested had levels of EDB at .416, .142 and .138 parts per billion. The acceptable level in drinking water is .1 parts per billion.

Knowles said the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services also tested the wells at the same time the Gainesville company conducted its test. The results from the HRS test are not in yet, but Knowles said he expects the results to be the same.

With six wells shut off in Sanford's system the city supply, according to Knowles, is reduced to one-third of its normal quantity. The city can now produce only about three-and-one-half million gallons of water per day.

Lake Mary's 1,004 water users, who are supplied by Sanford, face the same situation.

Lake Mary's city commission also met Friday afternoon and voted unanimously to recognize the emergency.

They put a moratorium on building permits for all new construction and enforced a ban on use of outside or lake water, until the water supply is restored.

Knowles said the wells will be tested again, but he does not expect to see results from the additional tests until Tuesday or Thursday of next week.

Time and money are major problems in finding a new source of water for Sanford. Knowles said that personnel will be working through the holidays and on weekends to try to hook the irrigation wells into Sanford's system.

"If anything is going to be done it's going to have to be done through local action," Knowles said. The state, he said, "is interested, but has a reserved attitude," about Sanford's problem.

"The state is trying to duck the issue and is trying to get something out of the federal government," Mayor Lee P. Moore said.

Knowles said, "There's no way the state can provide potable water for 30,000 people; they aren't equipped to supply 3-million to 4-million gallons of water a day."

Marriage

No More Three-Day Waits To Tie The Knot

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Love and marriage may go together but not in Seminole county without a license.

And to get a license you have to fulfill several legal requirements which changed this year, according to deputy clerk Donna Creamons, of the county's probate and marriage division.

Couples no longer have to wait three days to get married. That change took effect July 1.

You can get married immediately, Mrs. Creamons said. Several marriages have been solemnized in the records office, including one with a gowned bride and 30 guests.

The second change is that the clerk of court can charge you $10 if you want to get married in the office. The service used to be free.

Fees for all the forms, charges and blood tests that must be completed before a couple can get a valid marriage license, costs about $70. Half of that cost is for two blood tests assuring the newly-weds-to-be do not carry a sexually transmittable disease, according to Mrs. Creamons. The test must be less than 60-days old and on a certificate provided by the state to physicians and approved laboratories.

Another $25 of the cost, which must be paid in cash, goes to the clerk of court's office for the license.

According to Mrs. Creamons, the cash payment is one of two problems many couples have when they take out their license.

"You can't pay by check," she said because it takes out-of-town checks time to clear.

The other problem hopeful couples encounter is verifying a previous divorce.

If one, or both of the couple have been divorced, they either must have a copy of the court decree or have the divorce verified by phone call to the clerk of court where they were divorced, she said.

Men experience the divorce record problem more often than women, she said, because women tend to keep divorce records for child support reasons.

"We've had two cases where we called to verify the man was divorced only to find out the decree

Taking advantage of the recent change in the state law eliminating a three-day waiting period to get married, Kaye Futrell, 19, and C.L. Damage Survey

Sanford patrolman A. J. Collazo, left, bends over to assess the damage to colleague Lt. Richard Nooney's patrol car and a school crossing sign after a collision about 5 p.m. Thursday. A car driven by Michael S. Dalzell, center, assessing damage to his car's grille work, lost its brakes and hit the patrol car from behind, pushing it into the sign. Dalzell, 19, of 224 E. Warren Ave., Longwood, was charged with operating a car with faulty equipment. The mishap occurred at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Florida Avenue near the Fairway market in Sanford.

TV Dealer Charged With Deceptive, Unfair Acts

A Casselberry businessman has been charged by the Florida Attorney General's office for six civil violations of state consumer codes.

Joseph Yossifan, of A1A Stores, 376 State Road 436, has been cited by the Florida Attorney General's office for violating the state's Deceptive and Unfair Business act.

The charges were filed after a 23-month investigation produced 22 complaints against appliance dealer Yossifan and his three A1A stores.

The first complaint was logged in Jan. 1982 and the last complaint report was received by the attorney general's office Nov. 9, said Fred Hochstetel, special assistant attorney general based in Miami.

Hochstetel said Yossifan is charged in the non-criminal civil suit with bait and switch tactics, failure to disclose energy ratings on air conditioners, failure to advertise the complete price of a television, failure to disclose the correct duration of sales periods, continuous sales, and not stocking sufficient quantity of items for a sale.

The charges are supported by a 17-page report made by investigators on site at Yossifan's stores in Casselberry, Orlando and Melbourne, Hochstetel said.

Yossifan has denied the charges, according to media reports. He was unavailable for comment Friday.

Of the 22 complaints received, according to Hochstetel, two are from consumers and the rest from private security agencies which Hochstetel declined to identify.

The complaining Seminole County consumer is John Stearnes of Chula Vista near Oviedo.

Stearnes said he went to the Casselberry A1A Store in August to buy a television for his son after seeing an ad for a Zenith television for $277.

But when he got to the store, he said, salesman tried to talk him into a higher priced model of another brand.

When he insisted on the $277 Sylvania, "They said they were out of them. Stearnes said, 'They wanted me to buy a Sylvania.'"

"They use high pressure. They show you a ticket for a repair job of an RCA and a Zenith and say they're expensive to fix while the Sylvania is so cheap to repair you can fix it yourself," he said.

Stearnes said the technique worked because he bought the Sylvania model that sells for more than $500.

"They made me mad. They had me fuming when I left there," he said.

A few days later, Stearnes said he saw an ad for the same model Zenith on sale again at the same store.

Later, during October, Stearnes noticed an advertisement in the newspaper urging consumers to report what they thought were bait and switch practices to the state. He said he called the toll-free Tallahassee number and filed the complaint.

Kuhn Gives Yankees Going-Away Present

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bowie Kuhn is giving the baseball world much to remember him by in his final months as commissioner.

Kuhn, who will leave office by March 1, imposed the heaviest penalty in baseball history Friday when he fined the New York Yankees $250,000 for comments made about the "Pine Tar Game" — remarks which he considered detrimental to the best interests of baseball.

Kuhn last week suspended four players for a year because of involvement with drugs.

The blockbuster fine imposed on the Yankees centered around the controversial Pine Tar Game between the Yankees and Kansas City Royals last July 24. The largest fine previously levied by Kuhn was a $100,000 penalty against San Diego Padres Owner Ray Kroc for tampering with Joe Morgan and Graig Nettles before they officially attained free-agent status.

From Tampa, Steinbrenner said he thought the fine against the team was excessive but the Yankees would abide by Kuhn's decision and pay it.

Steinbrenner made numerous public comments saying that American League President Lee MacPhail's decision favoring the Royals and going against the Yankees was unfair.

"Once again, MacPhail has favored the culprit," Steinbrenner said over the summer. "He's bending over backward to accommodate the team that perpetrated the crime. I like Lee but I feel sorry for him. He made a very dumb decision. It was a pitiful decision. I don't question his integrity or his decency, but you have to question his decision."

"I wouldn't want to be Lee MacPhail living in New York. Maybe he should go house-hunting in Kansas City."

The game was halted in the top of the ninth inning after George Brett's two-run homer off reliever Rich Gossage gave Kansas City a 5-4 lead with two out. Umpires Tim McClelland and Joe Brinkman ruled Brett had excessive pine tar on his bat.

Brett originally was declared out and the Yankees were declared the winners, but MacPhail ruled the game had to be resumed and Brett's home run counted. The game was finished at Yankee Stadium on Aug. 18 and there was no change in the score.

Fans who came to see the last four outs at Yankee Stadium on Aug. 18 were charged separate admissions and that was the basis of two lawsuits brought by the fans over the ticket policy for the game.

Although imposing his fine on the Yankees, Kuhn specifically said the hearings he held on the matter disclosed that Steinbrenner was in no way involved in bringing about the suits by the fans.

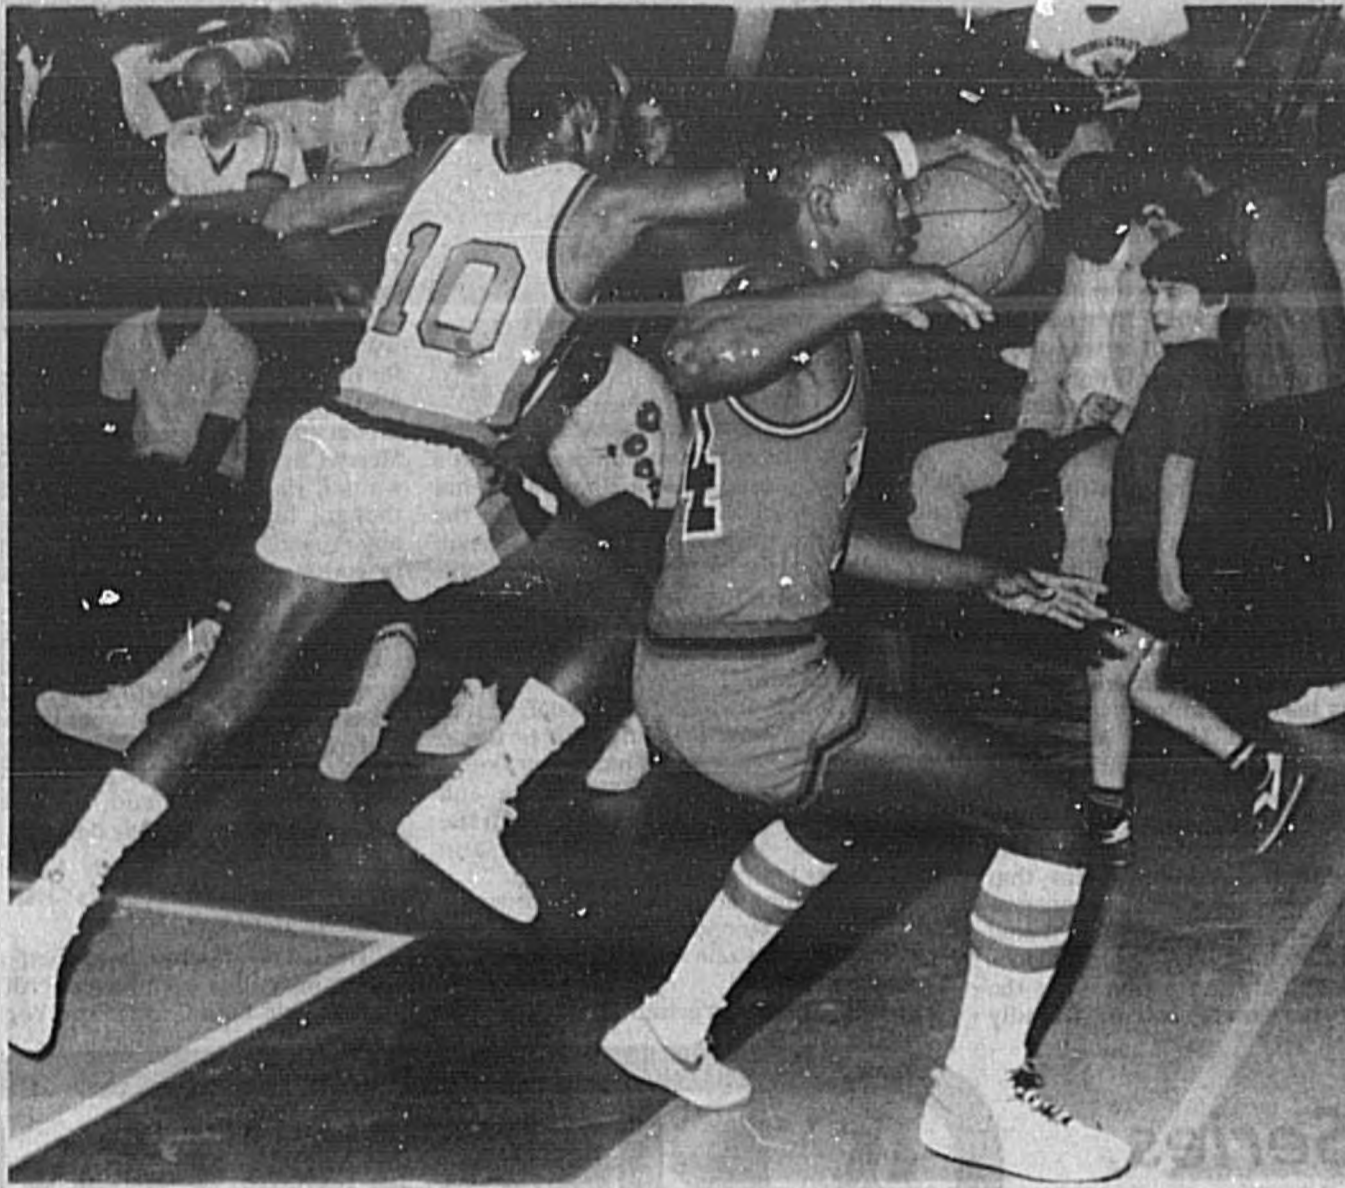

Even though Steinbrenner was exonerated by Kuhn on the lawsuits issue, he will be responsible for at least a portion of the fine as principal owner of the club.

Steinbrenner has had disciplinary action taken against him five previous times by Kuhn in Kuhn's 15 1/2 years as commissioner. Steinbrenner has also been suspended twice by baseball officials.

Kuhn suspended Steinbrenner from baseball for two years on Nov. 27, 1974, after the Yankees' owner had pleaded guilty to making illegal political campaign contributions. Steinbrenner was reinstated after 15 months.

Last May 31, MacPhail suspended Steinbrenner for one week for statements made on May 27 questioning the integrity of umpires Darryl Cousins and John Shulock.

Steinbrenner's shoot-from-the-hip style also has caused him to be fined three previous times by Kuhn. On Nov. 11, 1979.

Billy Martin Has The Worst 'Behind' Him Now

With apologies to George Brett, Billy Martin would like everybody to know it's all behind him now. He's talking about the surgery by both the doctors and by the Yankees, and from his hospital bed, he has a message for all of you.

The message is: "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

Billy the Kid wishes it known he truly means that for everybody. He's including George Steinbrenner, the man who's still his boss and who cut him loose as Yankee manager a third time but kept him as his "top adviser;" Yogi Berra, his old buddy and pal since more than 30 years; all the fans in New York and the entire media — even those who took some pretty good pot shots at him now and then.

Martin was operated on last Friday. Not for cancer or any other major problem, as some of the whispers said, but for virtually the same condition that temporarily shelved Brett during the 1980 World Series. Hemorrhoids.

Were it not for a slight complication, Martin would be getting out of the hospital in another day or so. But he popped a couple of stitches and had to be sewn up again.

The doctors have told him he'll probably spend Christmas and New Year's Eve in the hospital. That's not bothering him particularly because he should be released shortly thereafter. In the meantime, he thinks they must be mistaking him for some Middle Eastern oil sheik since they couldn't be giving him more attention if he was one.

Martin would like to get one thing across. He isn't being mysterious about the name of the hospital he's in or its location. The only reason he's trying to keep it quiet, he says, is because he wouldn't mind a little peace and privacy.

Shortly after he comes out of the hospital, Billy will be back. Yup, again. He'll be back in New York making some more of those TV commercials with John, Madden, Boog Powell, Red Auerbach and Dick Butkus.

For the time being, his friend, Judge Eddie Sapir, is his key communication link with the outside world. He and Martin are very close. Closer than some brothers.

Sapir, who normally presides in criminal court in New Orleans, was at Steinbrenner's side in the Yankee owner's office Friday afternoon during the announcement that Berra was replacing Martin as manager. Sapir was there at Steinbrenner's personal invitation. Steinbrenner likes Sapir. So does everyone else, one of the reasons being the judge has a genuinely warm, friendly personality.

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

No one at Friday's news conference paid a whole lot of attention to a phone call that came into Steinbrenner's office right in the middle of the question-and-answer session that followed the original announcement. Sapir was answering one of the newsmen's queries about Martin when Steinbrenner informed him there was a long distance phone call for him.

At first, Sapir had the impression it was Steinbrenner's way of telling him to try to cut short his remarks a bit. Sapir knew another session with the TV, radio and photo people was to follow this one with the writers, and also was aware he and Steinbrenner both had planes to catch.

When Steinbrenner told him there was a call for him a second time, Sapir realized there actually was one for him and took it in the adjacent office.

He was rather surprised to find it was

Martin on the other end of the line. "I was elated," Sapir says. "He had been operated on that very morning and was calling from the hospital. As groggy and sedated as he was, what he wanted me to do was to be sure to thank the New York fans for him for being so loyal and supportive. He also wanted me to thank the New York media and to wish them and everyone else a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Billy wanted those members of the media, who thought he might be upset with them for any reason, to know he was looking forward to working with them in his new capacity."

"He didn't even know who the new manager was," Sapir reveals. "I told him it was Yogi. 'That's great,' he said. I asked him 'would you like to congratulate him?' He said he would, and I went in and got Yogi and put him on the phone. Yogi told me Billy told him he was looking forward to working with him and that he thought George had made a good choice."

Sapir has spoken with Martin several times since and reports that he's in excellent spirits.

"He looks at what happened as a dual opportunity," his friend says. "All he wants to do is help both George and Yogi any way he can. He doesn't think this is the end of the world. The truth is his outlook couldn't be any better. He said to me, 'I'm going to continue going to church and give to charity.' I'll tell you something else. He could've had this operation during the season, in July, but he put it off until after the season because he didn't want to leave the team. He'd rather sacrifice his Christmas and New Year's the way he's doing. That's the kind of person Billy is. How loyal can a guy be?"

There's little question about how Eddie Sapir feels about Billy Martin, or for that matter, the other way around. If there is any question, here's what Sapir has to say about the Yankees' new chief adviser:

"I love the guy. I'm elated that he was given the opportunity to remain in baseball in a prestigious position because he loves the game so very much and he's so great for the game. The fans will always love him. They see him as one of them because he's really still a fan himself."

In that case, I would like very much to convey a personal message to Billy Martin and to everyone else. It's the same one as his, Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, and I hope he'll be back and so will you when I get back on Jan. 2.

Finland's Log Housing Expertise Comes To Sanford

Andrew Onjukka at entrance

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

If you're looking for the log house at the end of Scarlet Avenue just off Onora Road in Sanford, you may think you're lost when you find a burnished-gold, Finnish-style house that in no way resembles an American log cabin.

But this is the house the Finns built. Veikko Onjukka and his 25-year-old son Andrew are carrying on the traditions of their ancestors and have brought to Central Florida log housing expertise that the Finnish people developed through 3,500 years of experimentation.

Andrew Onjukka said his 56-year-old father became an apprentice to logmasters in his homeland when he was 7 years old. He said his father was small for his age when he started to school just before his seventh birthday. The county doctor visited the school and informed the 2-foot-10 Onjukka that, "You're kind of tiny. Why don't you go home and grow up for a year?"

Andrew said that turned his father away from education. "He wanted to learn; he was ready to learn. But that really turned him off."

Since he couldn't begin his formal education, Onjukka and his 4-year-old brother wandered next door where two craftsmen in their 70s were building a Finnish-style log duplex.

Andrew said: "Those two old gentlemen during that year, 1933, had the patience and the foresight to teach these two little brothers the how's and why's of building with logs."

But Onjukka didn't use that knowledge until about 30 years later in Canada, when a Finnish artist asked him to build a log house. Onjukka said he didn't have the experience, but he did have the knowledge and would give it a try.

The experiment proved so successful that Onjukka established a Canadian company to design and build log homes. During the following decade he built about 200 homes and shipped some as far away as Japan, Austria, Finland and England. Eventually he sold his Canadian rights for his designs and since 1970 that Canadian company has sold about 2,000 of homes of his design to an international market.

In 1980 Onjukka came to Florida to retire and Andrew returned to the area. He had spent about two years in Forest City when he was in high school in the early 70s.

Andrew, who dropped out of medical school after the first year, saw a need for his father's log home here in Florida, and realized that the raw materials needed for construction, white pine, was plentiful from Georgia to the Arctic Circle.

Onjukka came out of retirement and with Andrew designed and built their 3,000 square foot, handcrafted lodge on the western shore of Lake Onora. It took them 11 man-months to complete the home, which has a price tag of about $180,000.

The house, which features a front balcony off an interior matching loft, is nestled among oak, pine and magnolia trees.

But the Onjukkas were careful not to locate the house too close to the existing trees and have placed added shrubs where they do not touch the oil-finished surface of the house, so it is protected from plant-held moisture.

Tearful Tot Must Learn That Three's A Crowd

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old woman with a 3-year-old daughter, Tammy. I'm not married (never was) but I would like to be. Tammy and I live with my parents. They have been wonderful to us, but I want Tammy to have a daddy.

Dear Abby

I met a fine gentleman about three months ago, and he is courting me. Russell is the first man I've gone out with since Tammy was born, and I like him a lot.

My problem is that Tammy cries and fusses when Russell comes to take me out. We finally have to take her along. Then all the time she's with us, she carries on and fusses and spoils our evening.

I am torn between Tammy and Russell. I love Tammy with all my heart, but I want the relationship between me and Russell to work out. I'm afraid it never will. What should I do? I don't want to lose Russell. He's getting impatient with me, and I can't blame him.

TAMMY'S MUMMY

DEAR MUMMY: When Russell comes to take you out, visit with Tammy for a while, then tell her you are going out and kiss her goodbye. There is no need to take her with you. She's young, but not too young to understand that you need adult company and a few evenings out occasionally. If you continue to take Tammy along on your dates with Russell, you can kiss him goodbye.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 17, I became involved with a so-called "religion" that, at the time, placed restrictions on me which helped me refrain from sex, drugs, cigarettes, etc. The people claimed to love each other, and I gained many friends.

At first, it did not matter that my "religion" did not allow such things as blood transfusions, saluting the American flag, voting and getting involved in politics. I read their publications, attended five meetings each week and knocked on doors to spread the word.

The illusion lasted several years. As I got older, I began to look into the organization's history and learned many things that distressed me. I got to the point that I no longer believed in that faith.

I thought I could just simply stop going to meetings. But when I voted in the primary election last spring, my husband told the elders and they "disfellowshipped" me, formally kicking me out of the congregation. I am now considered "dead" and no one of that faith is permitted to speak to me for the rest of my life.

I have paid a dear price for my spiritual freedom — my husband is divorcing me, my family members of that faith refuse to speak to me, and I have lost 13 years worth of "friends."

Abby, please advise your readers to closely examine all the teachings of these door-knockers before joining. Otherwise, they may lose their families like I lost mine. Sign me ...

FINALLY FREE IN N.C.

DEAR ABBY: Upon reading your comment regarding the "barklessness" of the African basenji dog, I must interject a word of caution to those who plan to rush out and buy one.

While basenjis do not bark, this does not imply that they are noiseless. They let out an unearthly whine that is very unnerving!

I should know; I've worked in animal hospitals for nearly eight years.

Over 130 Have Breakfast With Mr. And Mrs. Claus

The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce held its Christmas Breakfast With Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus last Saturday with over 130 children and adults showing up.

Karen Warner

Finis and Rosey Selock graciously opened the doors to their restaurant, Cafe Sorrento, in the wee hours of the morning, as chamber officers and directors arrived to begin making coffee, pancakes, eggs, sausage, bacon and prepare orange juice and set tables.

At 8:30 a.m., the first of two breakfasts were served. Due to limited seating, breakfast was served at 8:30 a.m., then again at 9:30 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus (Carl and Ethel Carlson) greeted the excited children as they arrived with Santa taking time to lift each child onto his lap for a brief chat, while Mrs. Claus passed out gifts.

Donning aprons and cooking breakfast were chamber president Carol Hoffman, vice-president Dr. Larry Seigler, secretary Karen Beal, treasurer Linda Teeter, and directors John Beale, George Duryea, Al Guthell, Delores Lash, Charles Valerius, Wayne Hoffman, and membership chairman Lillian Megonegal. Other Santa helpers were city commissioner, Russell Mengonegal, Amanda Beal, Sherry Hoffman, Cindy Brown, Finis and Rosey Selock. Special breakfast guests were Art and Phyllis Grindle.

Contemporary Gardens on Lake Mary Boulevard donated two beautiful poinsettias to be given away as door prizes. Winners of the plants were Fran Noville and Mr. and Mrs. Troelstrup.

The Lake Mary Woman's Club held its annual Christmas luncheon on Dec. 15, at the Upsala Presbyterian Church. Clubmembers and guests each brought covered dishes of salads, turkey and side dishes. During the luncheon, candles were lit, highlighting the beautiful flower arrangements centered on each table.

Musical entertainment was provided by Al Lathrop, who recently won a medal in the Golden Age Olympics for his music. Al plays an old-fashion instrument called a xylophone. It is made of wooden slates, which gives off a bell-like tone when struck. The church pastor's wife, Jeanne Shea, played a wonderful selection of Christmas tunes, to which the club members joined in singing. The highlights were when they all tried to remember the words to "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

Club recording secretary Alice Moughton made a beautiful Christmas tree skirt to be raffled off during the meeting. Pat Fox was the winner of the skirt. Ethel Carlson, whose birthday is the day after Christmas, won a fantastic flower arrangement donated by the Lake Mary Florist. Special guest at the luncheon was Lola Jackson, Seminole County School social worker. Presented to Lola from the club were Christmas presents and funds to be used to help a needy family at Christmas. Each year, the Woman's Club adopts an anonymous family for Christmas and provides gifts. Adopted this year was a mother and her five children.

Hostess for the luncheon were Marion Quigley, Pila Hughes, Escar Neider and Gwenne Butler.

The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce held its annual Christmas Lighting Contest this month. On Dec. 19, chamber officers and directors John Beale, Karen Beal, Charles Valerius and Delores Lash made the official judging for the winners.

In the "residential" category, first place went to the Al Wickman home, second place to Buzz Petoos, and an honorable mention to the Larry Muse home.

In the "commercial" category, first place was awarded to Lippencoits/Country Curl, second place to the Lake Mary Florist, with an honorable mention to George Duryea, M.S.A., C.P.A.

The tally is in on the amount of money raised for the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association (CIA) from the recent Driftwood Village Merchants Association Arts & Craft Show.

Karen Beale, treasurer for the Driftwood Merchants Association presented a check on their behalf to CIA president, Dick Fess and CIA treasurer, Carol Hoffman. Monies raised will go into the CIA building fund.

...Log Cabin

their Longwood Logs business, said all of their homes are designed for long and energy efficient lives.

He has, he said, seen log homes in Finland of similar design which are 500 and 600 years old. And one of the primary reasons for the long life and energy efficiency of these homes is, according to Andrew, their tongue-and-groove, waterproof construction. The structures are built without the use of nails and no filler is needed between the tightly fitted logs. To meet southern building codes the Onjukkas have added bolts, which serve as hurricane anchors and are required to be spaced between the floor and ceiling every 320 feet.

The lodge with its 4-by-6-inch squared logs, convective, fiberglass-shingled roof, aluminum insulglass tinted windows and extended window sills and overhangs is so energy efficient that Andrew said the electric company came out to see if the meter had been tampered with. "Of course it hadn't been," he said. "I considered that to be the ultimate compliment. In the 11 months I've lived here the electric bill hasn't exceeded $57 in any month and this is an all electric house."

A power company energy audit determined that the house is about 62 percent more energy efficient than the average home.

And the Onjukkas' homes are available in kit form for the do-it-yourself builder. Andrew said that using one of their pre-packaged, clearly marked kits three people with only ability to read the instructions and properly schedule the construction could erect one of their 1,500 square foot homes in one day at a savings of about 40 percent of the cost of a conventional frame house, which requires skilled labor to build.

Andrew said the home buyer gets more for his money with a solid wood log home, because, all of the interior and exterior surfaces are wood, which is sturdier and more fire resistant than a conventional house. "I have never seen a log home burn to the ground. The wood is just too dense to support combustion. It will char, but you have more time to bring the fire under control, because it will burn so slowly." He also said that termites aren't a major problem, because most of the wood surfaces are exposed and are easy to inspect visually.

Some of the Onjukkas' innovations which stand out in their lodge on Onora Lake are: Two open spiral staircases, which lead to the front and rear balconies, feature steps and stringers that were each shaped from a single piece of laminated maple and are all the same width, which avoids narrowing at the curves at the stairway winds its way up. The kitchen floor is inlaid with handmade cedar blocks that have received a special treatment, which prevents buckling. And the hand-hewn 30-foot ceiling timbers were cut at the home site.

Neither of the men has formal training, except for a high school architectural course that Andrew took. Andrew said that eventually they hope to expand their business to include a modular log home that can be anchored to a concrete slab, in addition to the kits and the larger homes that are currently available through their business.

Andrew defends his home to doubters who say it isn't a log cabin. He said: "If you look back at the roots of log buildings you'll see that our homes are closer to the original version built over 3,000 years ago than Abe Lincoln's version of a log house. You wouldn't find a log house set with mortar in Europe."

"When the American pioneers started building log houses they didn't have the time or the tools to fit the logs together. They slapped the house together with mud to get in sooner. It was a matter of necessity. But with today's machines and materials you don't need insulation, chinking or anything between the logs."

At the conclusion of business when the new Seminole Historical Museum was discussed and following the holiday feast, Mrs. Guy Wood (Julie), daughter of the president, was the guest of honor at a surprise stork shower given by chapter members.

Twelve members and one visitor, Mrs. Shumate, attended the occasion. The January meeting will be hosted by Mrs. Robert C. Miller.

ding my time with friends. I never had friends before you Cratchits reformed me." Tiny Tim said that he needed to keep four cards in each minor suit in dummy so he ruffed Scrooge's heart lead. A spade to the ace dropped the jack and five. Now he led his ace of hearts and said, "Here is a Christmas gift." Then he ruffed his ace and led a trump. Old Scrooge was in with his king and had to lead something. If he led a heart, Tim would ruff in dummy and discard a club or diamond from his own hand. Tim couldn't go wrong. Each suit was going to break 3-3 and he could set up dummy's fourth for a discard. Old Scrooge now made a great play. He led his queen of clubs. This gave Tim a chance to go wrong. Tim might take his ace, go to dummy and finesse against a hypothetical 10 in the East hand. Tim would have none of that. He simply cashed the top clubs, discarded his seven of diamonds on the fourth club and insured a Merry Christmas for everyone except old Scrooge.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY DECEMBER 25, 1983 You'll be presented with many opportunities to advance scholastically, physically and materially. However, it'll be up to you to take advantage of them and to schedule your time well. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Sincerity will earn you the love and respect of others today, but using flattery to gain your aims will have the opposite effect. Major changes are in store for Capricorns in the coming year. Send for your Capricorn Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but also know when to call it quits. If you are a guest, don't wear out your welcome. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) At social gatherings today try not to introduce topics that could take the enjoyment out of conversations. Keep everything light and breezy. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Pace yourself wisely early in the day, or you may run out of energy and not be able to fully participate in all of today's activities. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Overindulgence may be your major temptation today. Be moderate in what you eat and drink. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though you'll be in a gregarious and festive mood today, try not to spring too many uninvited guests on your spouse. Keep the party limited. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Read the directions carefully today before trying to assemble any new or unfamiliar merchandise. Breakage is possible if you act in haste. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're already known as a generous giver, but also try to be a gracious receiver today. Make a big fuss over the smallest of gifts. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful today not to behave pompously or pretentiously, especially when you're around persons who might not be as fortunate as you are. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do your good deeds in secret today instead of announcing what you've done for others. It'll come off better if you let the word get around on its own. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to enjoy the types of activities today where you don't have to dig deeply into your purse in order to have a good time. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Subdue inclinations today that could lead you to feel you have to be in the spotlight. You'll be better received playing a supporting role.

YOUR BIRTHDAY DECEMBER 26, 1983

Success will come more readily in the months ahead if you don't broadcast your objectives to all within earshot. Restrict word of your intentions to those directly involved. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is opportunity around you today careerwise, yet you may be reticent to go all out and thus only achieve partial success. Major changes are in store for Capricorns in the coming year. Send for your capricorn Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Have hope in your heart today, but be able to distinguish between caution and self-doubt. Don't let negative projections keep you from trying. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major accomplishments are possible today, provided you don't let another look over your shoulder and dictate your every move. Be your own person. ARIES (March 21-April 19) It may be necessary to do a little apple-polishing today with authority figures. Rather than create a confrontation, try to be agreeable. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not waste your time today using procedures which you know from experience are unproductive. Look for new and better ways to accomplish tasks. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Benefits from joint ventures are questionable today, especially if you are involved with someone who falls to share the rewards and duties equally. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Responsibilities of joint concern should not be solely left up to your mate to handle today. Pitch in and do your part. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Being dictatorial with coworkers will earn you only unpleasant retorts today. Kindness will win their cooperation. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sensible about anything you buy today, even if the discounts are extraordinary. Remember: You don't want all your future assets earmarked for bills. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Doing things your own way is not without merit, provided you don't step on associates. Cooperate today, but don't use others. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your financial affairs today, don't do things against your best interests just to appease another. Be friendly without being foolish. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) New enterprises look favorable now, but don't pour funds into ventures prematurely. Be sure you'll get real mileage for each dime you spend.
