BRIEFLY

The Central Florida Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa is looking for high school juniors interested in attending the fraternity's 1999 Summer Camp and Institute for Prospective Teachers.

The camp will be held July 29 through Aug. 4 at Indiana University in Bloomington. The application deadline is Feb. 27. For details, call Dave Scott at (407) 322-8823.

The Seminole County Veteran's Service Division is opening a new office in Casselberry on Jan. 4. The office will be located at 132 Sausalito Blvd., off State Road 436 - just 1/10 mile south of Red Bug Road in the Gooding's Office Center.

The hours of operation will be 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Veterans wishing to transfer their files to that office can call 685-3377.

The existing office in Sanford will remain open.

Florida motorists will be paying 15.6 cents less per gallon for Self-Serve Regular Unleaded gasoline this month than they did in December of last year.

The AAA Auto Club South December Fuel Gauge Report shows that the average price for Self-Serve Regular Unleaded, gasoline decreased 3.3 cents this month to $1.010 per gallon from the November price of $1.043 per gallon.

"Due to the continued economic crisis in Asia and Russia, and the resulting oversupply of crude oil on the world market, average gasoline prices have dropped to their lowest level in over a decade," said Yoli Buss, Director of Traffic Safety.

"Florida motorists will continue to enjoy the gift of lower gas prices throughout the holiday season."

Self-Serve Regular Unleaded prices fell 3.3 cents to an average $1.010 per gallon. Mid-Grade Unleaded dropped 3 cents to an average $1.133 per gallon, and Premium Unleaded fell 3.2 cents to an average $1.213 per gallon.

This month the lowest Self-Serve Regular Unleaded price in Florida was 94.6 cents in Port Richey and the highest price was $1.114 in Delray Beach.

County gets finance award

By Russ White

STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - When it comes to achievement in financial reporting, few counties can match Seminole County's record.

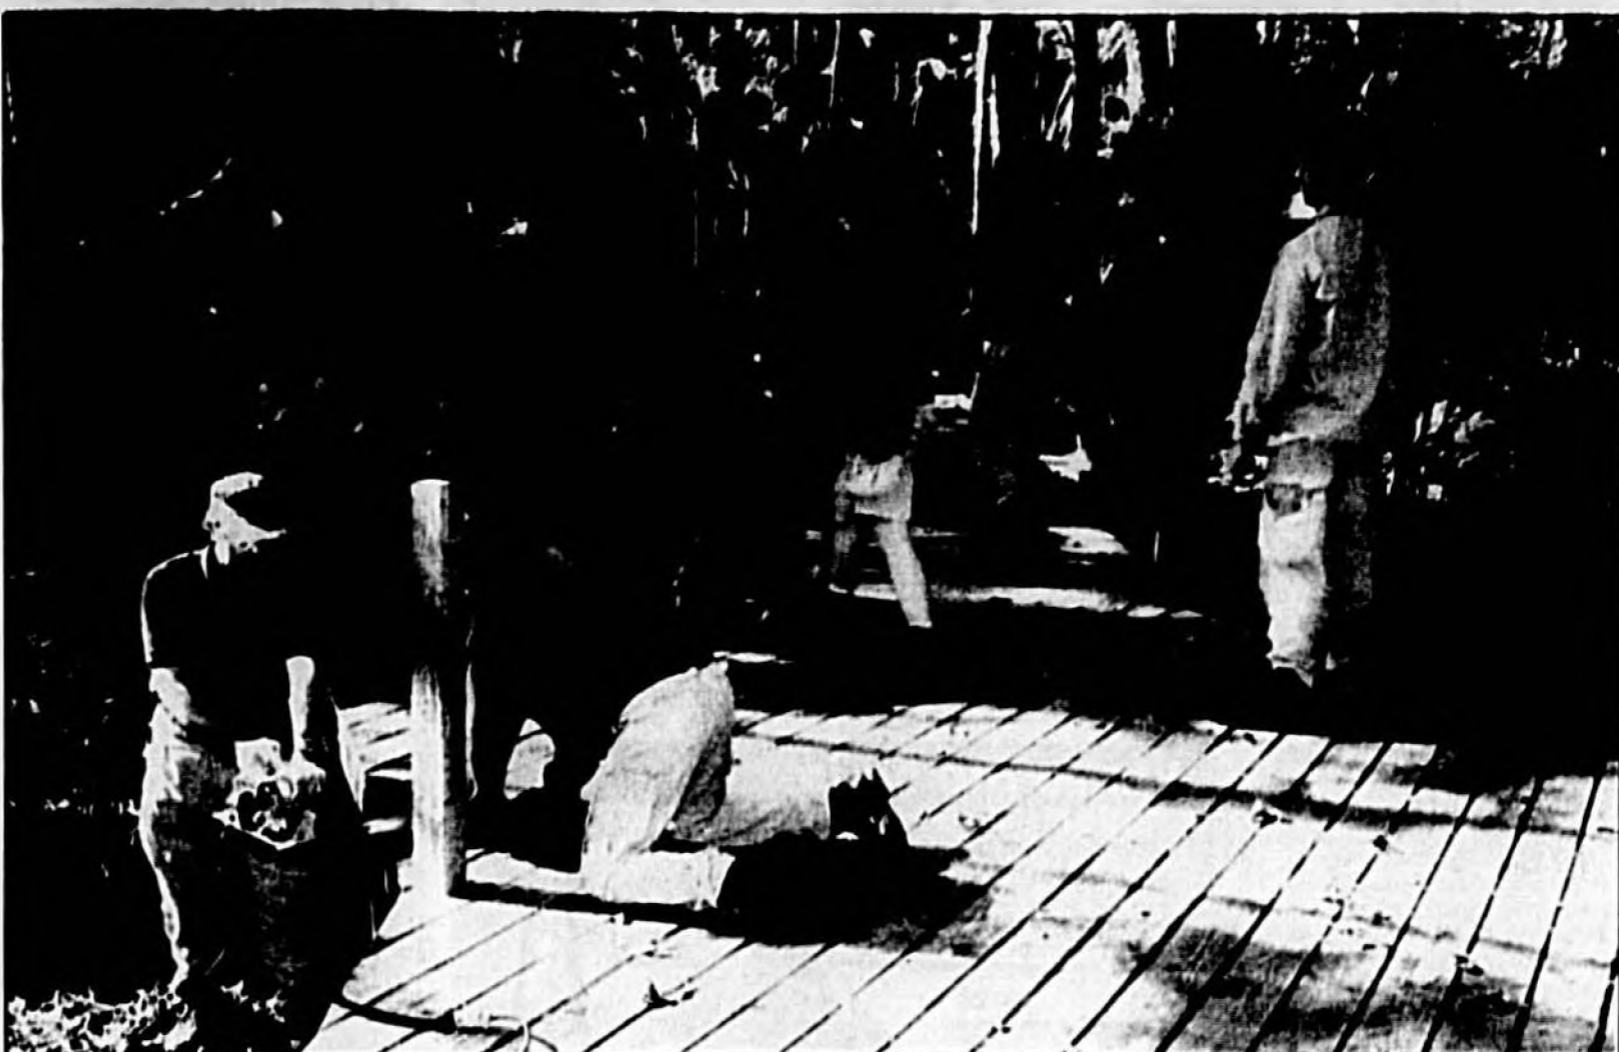

For the 16th consecutive year the Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada has awarded Seminole County the Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting.

For the 18th consecutive year, Seminole County Finance Director Robert Wilson, also received the Award of Financial Reporting Achievement.

"It's easy to take this award for granted - 16 years in a row, three different clerks, three different administrations," Seminole County Clerk of the Circuit Court Marianne Morse said. "But the effort the county finance staff makes every day is anything but ordinary."

The annual financial report includes statements of revenues and expenditures, balance sheets and an independent audit opinion of all funds managed by county government including the Board of County Commissioners, the Clerk of the Court, the Property Appraiser, Tax Collector, Sheriff and Supervisor of Elections.

"There's a lot of hard work, under sometimes trying circumstances and deadline pressures, makes this all look easy and all of us look good," Morse said.

Sweat and hard work pay off in boardwalk project

WINTER SPRINGS - Students in the Eckerd Youth Alternatives program have nearly completed a re-built observation deck at Spring Hammock Reserve in Winter Springs.

So far, students have completed 700 feet of the 1,000 foot boardwalk. Lumber for the project, which so far has lasted seven months, is paid for by one dollar donations from students and parents collected at the park over the past three years.

"We've completed more than half the boardwalk," project director Skip Burdette said. "We're re-building an observation deck in the natural habitat."

The students are doing the work as a public service project. Approximately 7-8 students are on-site at a time. Most have been arrested, and are classified as low security risks. The project is designed to give the students hands-on skills, education, and human relations activities, Burdette said.

"We're teaching vocational skills they can use," Burdette said. "We're helping them grasp the basic concepts of carpentry and construction. Only workers train the younger ones until they move on. It's a continuous cycle."

Students are also receiving education from accredited teachers.

"They are working really hard," teacher Cynthia Tilmans said. "It's not right to think these are bad kids just because they've been in trouble. I've been amazed by what I've seen here."

Kevin, 15, said participation in the program is helping him to control his temper and work constructively with people around him.

"It's the greatest thing that could have happened to me," Kevin said. "They make me think about what I'm doing. When I lose my temper, they pull me in a group and we talk about it."

Counselors are on-site, using group therapy to help the students through difficulties. One technique the counselors use is called "catch and reflect."

When there is a disagreement or lost temper, counselors and SANFORD - The Sanford Police Department is conducting safety tours in elementary schools to promote using seat belts and child safety restraints.

The department has made presentations to Hamilton, Goldsboro, Wicklow, All Souls, and Pinecrest Elementary Schools. The presentations are part of the Do The Buckle Safety Tour, sponsored by Chrysler Corporation.

"We're trying to publicize the importance of seat belts and safety restraints," Cpl. Rick Poovey said. "So many lives would be saved if people used seat belts properly. We have activities and demonstration that really get the kids into this."

An estimated 5,500 lives could be saved each year by increasing the level of seat belt usage in the United States to 90 percent, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Only 88 percent of Americans wear seat belts.

Poovey said he also wanted to remind driver of the importance of sitting at least 10 inches behind the steering wheel, and of buckling up.

"The airbag comes at you with tremendous force," Poovey said. "There's a proper way a driver should be sitting. You should be at least 10 inches from the steering wheel, or the force of the airbag can cause serious injury."

The Do the Buckle programs in Seminole County are party of a nationwide program between Chrysler, local police departments, and schools, community centers, auto shows, shopping malls, and other venues.

A two-person team traveled in a brightly colored Chrysler minivan to each Seminole County school, performing safety demonstrations and experiments.

"We had a live airbag go off against a dummy to demonstrate the force of the blow," Poovey said. "We demonstrated different type of accidents, and what can happen depending on whether you are wearing a seatbelt, a safety restraint, and seated properly. Children under 12 should be in the back seat."

The program's theme song, dance and video, Do the Buckle, plays off the tune and lyrics from the '70s song Do the Hustle. In the video, an animated character named Bucky helps people understand the importance of seat belts.

The exterior of the minivans feature colorful graphics and safety messages. The companies supporting the company with Chrysler include Takata Inc., IIT Automotive, and Autoliv.

Santa brought mirth to city's last meeting of year

New impact fees for police, fire get preliminary OK

LAKE MARY - 'Twas a week before Christmas...and before the Lake Mary City Commission could get down to business on the last meeting of the year, they heard the prancing and pawing of eight tiny reindeer on the roof of City Hall.

The commission had several important items on the agenda including a public hearing on the new police and fire impact fees, but it took time out for an annual visit from Santa.

Each year, Santa keeps a close eye on the mayor, commissioners, city manager, city attorney and police chief of Lake Mary, said John Holland parks and recreation director. He bestows fictitious gifts on each, in keeping with their behavior during the year.

For Commissioner Gary Brender, it was a letter of thanks from Britannia Airways, and two tickets to anywhere he wanted to go, for helping them negotiate its new contract with Orlando International Airport. (Britannia has announced it is leaving Orlando Sanford Airport, thus relieving some of the airport noise Brender has battled.) with his title and seat embroidered on the back.

For Mayor David Mcalor, who loves to play basketball and has complained to the parks department about ragged basketball nets in the city's parks, an emergency net. "You can put that up and handle the problem," said Santa.

Santa gave City Attorney

Donna McIntosh, who has worked diligently to establish the city's adult entertainment ordinance, an "Adult Entertainment Test Kit" to help enforce the new ordinance. Among other things, the kit contained a ruler. (The county's ordinance requires dancers in adult clubs be covered with bikinis of a par-

Where they found Santa at City Hall

At 2:30 p.m. Friday, there was a scare at City Hall. "Santa Claus isn't coming?" Robin, the elf, said. "He's sick," Mrs. Claus said. "We've got to get another."

"The kids will be here in 30 minutes," Robin blurted from finance replied. Sanford, the Friendly City, was in a jam.

"Who do we call?" everyone asked.

"Farnsworth, in recreation," was the first suggestion.

Tom Farnsworth, recreation superintendent. Splendid fellow. A good choice to be good St. Nick. If Mayor Larry Dale can't be here this year, Farnsworth would need to be the city Santa.

Assisted by Lisa Jones and Kim Sosnowski, Farnsworth quickly climbed into a suit that was nearly a Florida State Seminoles wine color. Santa mumbled he was a Gator.

"We've got to get going," Santa's helpers told him. "It's almost three."

At 3 p.m., the first of a couple hundred area youngsters arrived for the city's annual Christmas party. There were stockings hung with care. Food. Drinks. Balloons. Presents. Christmas music played on a keyboard by city planner Jay Marder.

Mrs. Claus - a.k.a. Director of Finance Donna Watt - took Santa by the arm and the two entered the large recreation room. Several of the children ran up to greet them while others were glued to their tables where they drew with crayons.

Within minutes, the room was a winter wonderland although outside there was abundant Florida sunshine. The children inside noticed nothing outside. Their place was within the walls of City Hall. Their eyes were full of wonder.

Eventually, each of the children came up to sit on Santa or Mrs. Santa's lap. To tell the two of their dreams and what they would like for Christmas. They came from families who try their best to provide their needs and if possible their wants.

The City Hall party was sponsored by Wayne Densch, Inc., which contributed $2,400. Jolie Sester from Densch dropped in to see how the party was progressing, and was delighted at the sea of happy faces.

Carla Thomas from community development played herself throughout the party - a gracious host. She had planned well. That's why there were no snags. Too bad the mayor wasn't able to be there - thank heavens for Farnsworth.

The day belonged, of course, to the children. There were a few tiny babies but mostly kids from 3 or 4 to 11 or 12.

Jessica Mullins, 8, told Santa Claus she would like to have twin babies for Christmas.

Santa wasn't sure how to answer her.

Most of the requests were for play dolls, dirt bikes and play stations.

Not one boy or girl wished to have the impeachment called off.

Just as well. Santa wasn't sure he could handle that one either.

Where is Wayne Morris?

Q. When I was a kid in the 1950s, one of my favorite actors was Wayne Morris. It seemed like, all of a sudden, he just dropped out of sight. What happened to him? Are any of his movies on video? —D.F., Diamond Springs, Calif.

A. He dropped out of sight because he dropped out of life. Morris died way back in 1959. Quite a few of his films are on video, including "Time of Your Life," "Kid Galahad" and "Bushwhacker."

ASK DICK KLEINER

DICK & CHICKI KLEINER

Q. There's a new Kentucky Fried Chicken commercial running, and the voice of the animated Colonel Sanders sounds familiar, but I can't place him. Who does that voice? —B.R.M., Colorado Springs, Colo.

A. Randy Quaid supplies the voice of the good colonel.

Q. Please help settle a dispute. Did the actor who played Newman on "Seinfeld" also play in the 1978 "Animal House" movie? —D.D., Magnolia, Ark.

A. The actor who played Newman was played by...

Wayne Knight, who was not involved in that "Animal House" film.

Q. Could you settle this bet I'm having with my husband. Is Lisa McRee from "Good Morning America" pregnant? Thank you so much. —W.C.P., Searcy, Ark.

A. Not according to her.

Q. What are the titles of the movies with the character named Billy Jack? I think the star's name was Tom Laughlin. Are they available to rent on video? —H.B., Centralia, Ill.

A. There were four movies in the series, beginning with "Born Losers." After that came "Billy Jack," "The Trial of Billy Jack" and "Billy Jack Goes to Washington." The first two are on video, the others are not.

Q. I have been trying to find the name of a book. The movie that was based on it is "About Mrs. Leslie," with Shirley Booth and Robert Ryan in the 1950s. Any information will be appreciated. —M.M.E., Salisbury, N.C.

A. "About Mrs. Leslie" was not based on a book. It was an original screenplay by Ketti Frings and Hal Kanter.

Q. Please help! I am seeking information on the origin and meaning of my first name, Tondalaya. It came from the Hedy Lamarr movie, "White Cargo." Do you know what that name means? Was the movie based on a novel? Thanks! —T.S., Bristol, Tenn.

A. "White Cargo" (1942) was taken from a play by Leon Gordon, which, in turn, was adapted from a novel, "Hell's Playground," written by Vera Simonton. In the novel, your name was spelled Tondelayo. It doesn't appear to mean anything special; just a name invented by Ms. Simonton.

Sanford sailor lends a helping hand

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

SAN DIEGO - When the USS Duluth (LPD 6) returned from its six-month deployment to the Western Pacific/Indian Ocean, the crew had not only protected U.S. national interests, but also had made a lasting impression on hundreds of orphans and elderly people in various ports along the way.

Petty Officer 2nd Class Steven Charles, the 32-year-old nephew of Thomas and Betty Clark of Sanford, was one Duluth crew member who was involved in offering a helping hand. To Charles, his role in the community relations projects was vital to both the success of the mission and in promoting a positive image for the Navy.

"I volunteered in Hong Kong by helping clean the swamps, and while in Singapore I helped with landscaping," said Charles, a 1985 graduate of Lake Mary High School.

The 17,000-ton Duluth has a full complement of 420 personnel. The amphibious transport dock ship uses helicopters and landing craft to transport Marines and their equipment ashore.

"I wanted to volunteer because I wanted to represent my ship, while also allowing my family and friends to know that I am doing good things in other countries," Charles said.

Charles found his volunteer work rewarding.

"It wasn't the feeling I had about completing the job but just seeing the children in the orphanage smiling made me happy," Charles said.

While the Sailors and Marines volunteered much of their off-duty time to help, all got to enjoy the liberty in these exotic ports.

"In Hong Kong, I was able to meet different types of people. In Singapore I learned some of their laws and their excessive fines, like $500 for dropping chewing gum on the streets. In Malaysia, I was able to see their night clubs that are very similar to American clubs," Charles said.

While naval forces protect U.S. national interests by deploying abroad, they are also committed to helping those in need. They serve as great neighbors and make a positive difference in the countries they visit.

Airport can grow with good planning

The Orlando Sanford Airport suffered a setback last week when Britannia, a charter carrier, pulled its business, which accounted for about 20 percent of the airport's passenger traffic. Sanford officials see this as a mixed blessing because the airport was growing faster than the available facilities. We agree.

Competition is the name of the game, however service to customers should remain a priority if Central Florida airports are to retain business generated by travelers. With Orlando International Airport to the south and Daytona Beach to the north, Sanford has its work cut out.

The Sanford Airport Authority recognizes this need and is busy with its planned expansion of terminal facilities and additional runways. More than one million passengers passed through the airport's gates in 1997. Close to 1.4 million are expected by the end of 1998.

Victor White, executive director of the airport, has directed his staff to work with the remaining carriers to make sure their needs are met. Sanford Mayor Larry Dale, himself a pilot, continues with his plan to attract major domestic carriers to the airport.

With careful planning and close attention to the details, we believe Sanford can become a major hub for both domestic and international flights.

Girls' basketball is not pretty

In this year of area girls' high school basketball games, I am appalled at a trend I am beginning to see.

It appears from what I observe there are two areas of concern:

1. An obvious "male mentality" to encourage and/or win demand their players to commit flagrant foul and/or dangerous acts on another team.

There is an excessive amount of "garbage players" i.e. "players not encouraged to make points or play defense, but to dribble and maim a player targeted on an opposing team.

I doubt even the famous women's college teams of Tennessee, Duke, etc. encourage this type of play in order to defeat opponents. The point is some players are going to get hurt, and hurt badly if this practice continues. Hands have been broken deliberately, crushing falls on the court have been caused by dangerous players, heads and, yes, even eyes have been hurt.

Soccer, hockey, even baseball offers some protection of play that is rough, but basketball is literally an unprotected play. For basketball coaches to encourage this kind of play demeans the sport itself, and makes you wonder what kind of coaches do we have in girl's sports.

If they have eyes they see what is going on.

2. Referees: Note the name "Referee". These offenses could be and should be stopped by the refs by simply not allowing a player on a team or a team as a whole to use these tactics.

What kind of ball play are they encouraging by allowing girls to simply beat up on each other? I am concerned about all the girls who play basketball on all the teams.

Sports is a lesson in life to young people. A lesson to be a team player, play fair, do your very best and most of all be honorable.

What kind of message are we sending these kids? Have Bill Clinton's words and actions already trickled down to high school sports?

Developers saving trees

The article by Shari Brodie on the 25th anniversary of the Forest in your Dec. 13 edition should make us all stop and remember what our community could have looked like. In it she writes that the developer of the Forest "left as many trees as possible on the land heavily populated with pine and oak." She also points out that the Forest has received several awards including one for "outstanding environmental improvement."

Over the past several weeks, a development along Rinehart Road has begun expanding. In the process over fifteen large oak trees have been destroyed. One of the last ones came down this past week--it was on the edge of the property and really didn't seem to need to be taken. I don't know how old it was, but I could barely reach half way around it. There was an old rope hanging from one limb--maybe someone used to swing from it. It took less than 30 minutes for the men to take down what must have taken over 100 years to grow.

When I asked why all the trees had to be taken I was told that "the people moving down here that will buy these homes don't want the trees in their yards." It is a good thing for our community that Robert M. Anderson, the man who developed the Forest, didn't think like this. We have sure come a long way in just twenty-five years. Haven't we?

System controls and hinders lower classes from seeking private attorney services

By Johnell Jackson

The high rate of plea bargaining, deal making, and other special offers by the State Attorney's Office is only part of the evidence of a system that controls you. This system makes it virtually difficult to near impossible for low class whites, and blacks to afford the price tag when seeking assistance from private attorneys.

Attorneys need financial support and smoking guns from their clients to overcome the many hurdles placed on them by this system. With all of the special rules and immunities from prosecutable acts done by the system to you, it becomes very expensive and more difficult for attorneys to do their job.

If you become a victim of this system you have to pay in order to play. In a constant search for an attorney to handle a civil matter for me, I understood the tragedies of this legal system that attorneys have to go through for low class whites and blacks. Even though I found an attorney that agreed to handle my civil matter, after thousands of dollars were requested, I was proud to pay it. I realized this was placed on attorneys by this corrupt system.

My Two Cents

Attorneys are your only care and hope in this system. Despite the control the system has over them, you see public defenders as part of the system and your chances of a fair and justly process is very slim to none. In a recent conversation with some federal agents in a local field office, I realized the need to establish a victim of the system legal defense fund.

There are plans on the table for this project so that blacks and low class whites can have some hope through an attorney by financially assisting them. Years ago, judges were supposed to be godly men and women chosen to administer the law in a court of justice equally, with control of proceedings and decisions in question of law or discretion that demanded great respect by the public. The defendants are now becoming mediators for the system assuring that all plea bargains, deals and other special offers are transacted smoothly between attorneys and the State Attorney's Office.

The judges used to be the key people in this system with respect from the public. The system has destroyed these factors and now they (the judges) are prisoners to the system. Seminole County government, as well as, the City of Sanford are 15 years behind in appointing police chiefs like Ray Bronson. He is a member of the good ole' boy network at the helms. You can rest assured that a victim relief fund is very well needed to help private attorneys. A victim relief fund will help minorities battle their special deals, and face the system to better respect you as a citizen of the civil system.

While many cannot afford the expense of this legal system, neither can the courts afford to get backed up with trial matters. Where there is division amongst you, all types of evil works prevails and the system has crippled many households because of their evil works. This nation will perish before your eyes because of fear. You are destined to lose if the spirit of fear is not suppressed. God bless you.

Injecting science in implant cases

By Joseph Perkins

Imagine, if you will, that hard evidence came to light proving beyond a reasonable doubt that O.J. Simpson did not, in fact, kill his ex-wife and her waiter friend.

Or that federal investigators uncovered convincing new information clearing Timothy McVeigh of the Oklahoma City bombing. Or that exculpatory documents turned up showing that Theodore Kaczynski has been misidentified as the Unabomber.

Well, that's roughly the equivalent of what occurred this week, when a panel of four scientists, appointed two years ago by a federal district court in Birmingham, Ala., issued an authoritative report concluding--unanimously and unequivocally--that there is no scientific evidence that silicone breast implants cause disease.

These findings amount to vindication, all-too-betwedly, for much-vilified silicone implant manufacturers--including Dow Corning, Bristol-Myers Squibb Co., 3M Corp. and Baxter International Inc.--who have been portrayed by avaricious plaintiffs lawyers as the corporate equivalents of Simpson and McVeigh and Kaczynski.

Indeed, as one trial lawyer told a Reno, Nev., jury three years ago, in a personal injury suit resulting in an outrageous $13.9 million judgment against Dow Chemical Co. (parent company of Dow Corning), the conduct of Dow and other breast implant makers "was criminal," and because of their reprehensible actions--that is, the manufacturing and sale of silicone gel implants--"thousands of women across the country are sick."

But the panel of scientists, working at the behest of Judge Samuel Pointer in Birmingham, who is overseeing breast implant litigation in the federal courts, exonerated Dow Corning, et al., this week.

They found no link between silicone gel and the myriad diseases claimed by plaintiffs' lawyers, including lupus, arthritis, immune systems disorders and an exotic new medical condition, invented by the plaintiffs' lawyers' scientists-for-hire, called atypical connective tissue disease.

The several-inch thick report, divided into four sections covering toxicology, immunology, epidemiology and rheumatology, was blunt in its assessments.

There is "no association," it concludes, "between breast implants and any of the definite connective tissue diseases... or the other autoimmune/rheumatic conditions." Furthermore, it states, there is "no evidence that silicone breast implants precipitate novel immune responses or induce systemic inflammation."

And in plain terms that the lay public can understand, the scientists declared that, after two years of analysis of "the most rigorous and relevant scientific information" available on breast implants, "there was no consistent or meaningful association" between silicone gel and any of the medical conditions that the plaintiffs' lawyers have claimed.

These scientific findings ought to bring closure to five years of breast implant litigation, including a massive multibillion-dollar class-action suit, involving more than 700,000 women, still pending before Judge Pointer's Birmingham court, and more than 4,000 individual personal injury suits in state courts throughout the country.

The report from the scientific panel clears breast implant makers of making "thousands of women across the country sick," of putting the lives of these innocent, unsuspecting women at risk.

It's like police discovering that a one-armed man really killed O.J.'s ex. Or federal investigators finally tracking down John Doe No. 2, who confesses that he alone bombed the federal building in Oklahoma City. Or the media receiving another letter from the so-called Unabomber, which couldn't possibly have been written by Kaczynski.

It's a pity that breast implant manufacturers were unjustly charged with putting a hazardous product on the market, with criminally endangering the lives of women. And it's a shame that the one-time largest silicone implant maker, Dow Corning, was forced into bankruptcy to protect itself from billions of dollars in personal injury claims.

But if one good thing comes out of this breast implant litigation it is that Judge Pointer has established a precedent that, hopefully, federal and state courts will follow in future when personal injury claims are based on disputed science.

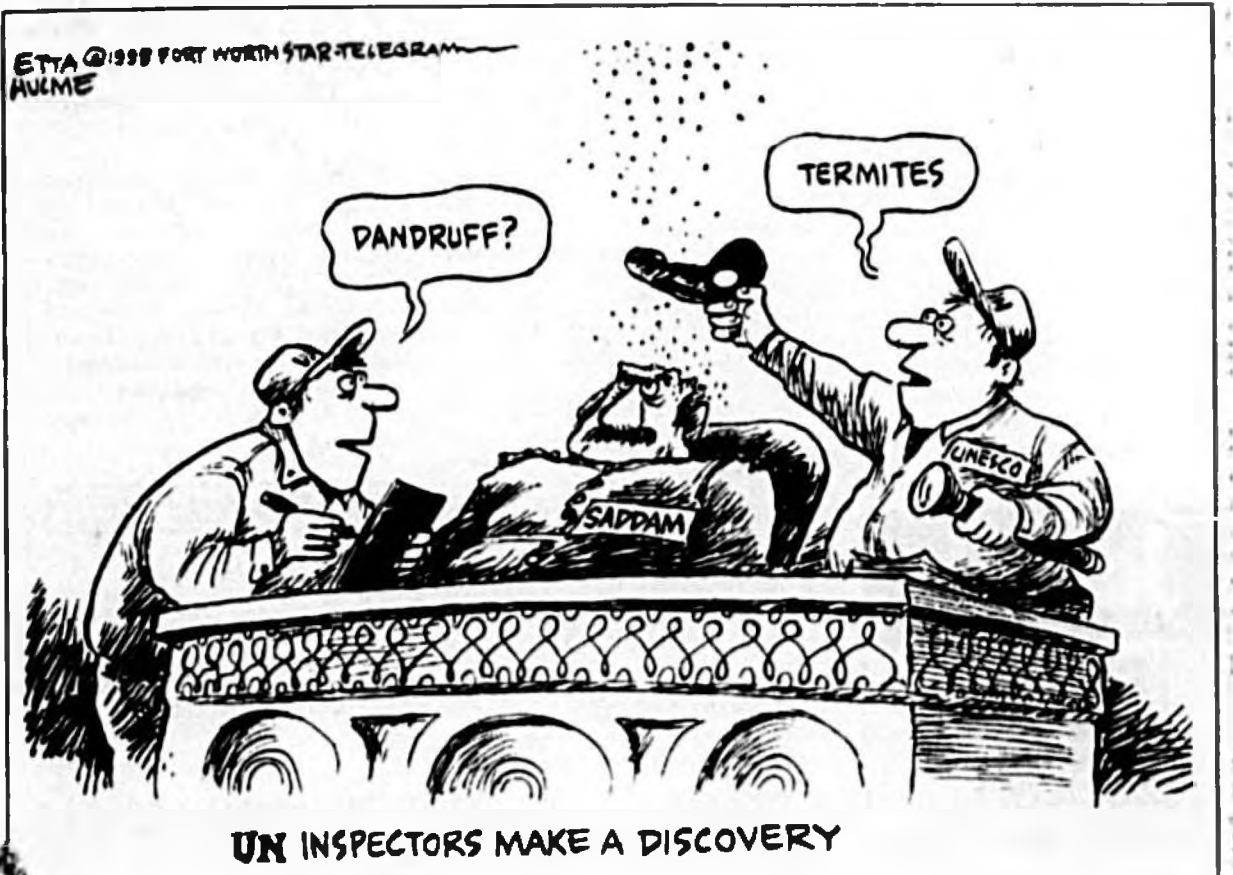

For by appointing a panel of scientists beholden only to the court, the panel's scientific conclusions have far more verisimilitude, and, thus, should carry far more weight with judges and juries, than the scientific claims and counter-claims of "experts" bought and paid for by either plaintiffs or defendants.

Special athletes are all winners

By Jeff Berliniche

ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - Step by step, the kids struggled across a 6-inch balance beam, balancing themselves in front of family and friends.

Obviously, most of them didn't finish first. But they were all winners.

It was the same scene at the vault and at the rings over at Sanford Gymnastics last Saturday when the facility was host for the state Special Olympics.

Competitors traveled to Sanford from all over the state to compete and to just enjoy the friendships they have created over the years.

Most of the Special Olympics competitions were held in Daytona Beach but the organization couldn't find a place to hold the events so Jeanette Stiffey, President of the Sanford Gymnastics Association, and coach Bob Edge contacted the Special Olympics and got ready to put on a show.

Over 80 kids showed up in Sanford after a gala opening ceremony at the Embry-Riddle Field House in Daytona Beach. Jay Gruden, coach of the Orlando Predators made an appearance and Team Florida, which will send representatives to the Special Olympics World Games in Raleigh-Durham, N.C. made its appearance.

"We were really happy with the turnout in Sanford," Stiffey said. "There was no one to run it in Daytona Beach and we were happy to have it in Sanford."

The event marked the 30th anniversary of the Special Olympics and over 1 million people from all over the world participate.

At Sanford, competitor with all types of disabilities participated in different activities. There were different levels for men and women and the competitors were divided into three competitions including Men's Gymnastics Level 1, Women's Rhythmic Gymnastics and Artistic Gymnastics which had the most contestants.

Stiffey recruited volunteers to work the events and competitors were judged after each routine.

Some of the competitors looked polished while others with more serious disabilities were just there to compete.

Win or lose, everyone was smiling at the end.

Holiday travel to reach record levels

TAMPA - A record 45.2 million people expect to travel 100 miles or more from home this Christmas-New Year's, the greatest number of travelers for any holiday period, according to AAA Auto Club South.

That figure represents a 2 percent growth over last year's 44.5 million travelers. The previous heaviest travel period was Christmas-New Year's 1996 when 42.3 million people took a trip.

"Christmas-New Year's travel has skyrocketed this decade," said Cindy Sharpe, managing director of public and government relations for AAA Auto Club South. "Since 1990, travel during this period has jumped 66 percent. That compares to 35 percent growth for Thanksgiving and 46 percent for the three major summer holidays."

Approximately 35.5 million people plan to go by auto this holiday, also a 2 percent increase over last year. Another 9.7 million will travel by air-plane, train or bus, up 1 percent.

Both the West and the Southeast are expected to have the greatest numbers of auto travelers, with 9.2 million coming from each region. Other regions and their expected numbers of motorists include the Northeast, 5.8 million; Midwest, 5.7 million; and Great Lakes, 5.6 million.

According to AAA's survey, 38 percent of travelers plan to visit a city while another 31 percent expect to go to a town or rural area. Other popular destinations include: ocean/beach, 12 percent; mountains, 8 percent; state/national park, 2 percent; theme/amusement park, 2 percent; lake, 2 percent; other, 4 percent; don't know or no response, 1 percent.

While 35 percent of travelers plan to stay with a friend or relative, another 31 percent will be staying at a hotel or motel. Other lodging plans include: cabin/condo, 5 percent; camper/trailer/RV/tent, 2 percent; boat/ship, 2 percent; bed and breakfast, 1 percent; other, 1 percent; no overnight stay, 2 percent; don't know/no answer, 1 percent.

AAA's holiday travel projections are based on a national telephone survey of 1,500 adults conducted by the Travel Industry Association, which does special research for AAA.

For Chief Richard Beary, who was recently injured in an auto accident, and who has requested four new patrol cars from the city, Santa presented a gift certificate to Toys R Us...for three tricycles and a skateboard.

And then laying a finger aside of his nose...Santa wished all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year and returned to his sleigh. He had to hurry, because he was warned he was in violation of some city ordinance.

With Santa's exit, the commission approved an ordinance amending the city's code for temporary structures. The city wants to use a temporary structure on its property on Rinehart Road, to situate the building department with the public works department, which shares space with the police and fire departments.

The commission approved new police and fire impact fees, 4 to 1, on first reading.

The new fees are the result of a study recently completed by Public Resources Management Group, Inc.

The study found the current impact fee structure was not sufficient to fund capital needs within the city, such as the new police station in downtown Lake Mary, and the new fire station and satellite station that are proposed.

If approved on second reading, at the Jan. 21 meeting, the new fees will rise from $90 per new home, to $165, for police protection, and from $60 per new home, to $175, for fire protection.

The Home Builders Association of Mid Florida reviewed the new fee structure, and Cheryl Taubensee, of the Governmental Affairs Committee, called the study thorough and said it does reflect the overall cost of police and fire protection in the city. She said the fees might pose a burden on builders and homebuyers if started immediately.

Taubensee asked the commission to consider phasing in the new fees, giving builders a chance to alert buyers of the increase.

"Essentially, you would have a situation where a homeowner would purchase a home, then the builder would find out fees have increased," Taubensee told the commission Thursday night. Because the fees are paid at the time a permit is pulled, the builder could have to make up the difference.

"I don't want [the small builder] to get stuck with the increase," said Greene. He suggested a 90-day period, after the commission's final vote in January, to allow builders time to alert their customers.

According to HBA, Lake Mary's police impact fee is calculated at 2.8 officers per 1,000 population, higher than Orange County's two officers per 1,000. HBA also said Lake Mary's proposed cost for new fire facilities are higher than Orange County's, but rates were comparable with neighboring Oviedo.

Priorities.

We have an opportunity to make our community an even better place to live. We're interested in learning your ideas.

We at Florida Power & Light Company want to help improve the environment in the region, while at the same time work to meet the future energy needs of our Central Florida customers.

We're just beginning to develop plans to repower at the FPL plant on Highway 17-92 in DeBary. Repowering means adding new state-of-the-art technology and using significantly more natural gas and less oil. This will enable us to provide cleaner, more reliable power without having to build a new power plant using new land.

Following are just a few of the benefits that Central Florida residents could enjoy as a result of the project. The newly converted plant would:

- significantly improve air quality.
- increase FPL's property taxes in local counties.
- reduce visual emissions and improve the plant's appearance.
- reduce oil-berge traffic on the St. John's River.

- help keep electricity rates low.

Your input and priorities are important to us. We all want our community to be the best it can be. To get involved and to learn more about this important project just ask to be added to our mailing list by calling us at 1-800-DIAL-FPL ext. 1526, visit our web site at www.fpl.com or fill out and mail in this coupon right away.

As we begin working together for the future, FPL and all of our people who serve your community would like to wish you and your family a joyous holiday season and a happy new year.

Baker: a good guy

SANFORD - Seminole County lost one of its good guys this week.

Actually, Lyman football coach, or now former Lyman football coach Larry Baker isn't leaving Lyman. He just resigned as football coach to concentrate harder on his job as athletic director.

But it won't be the same watching the Greyhounds next year without Baker on the sideline. He's a class act and will be missed.

The wins didn't always add up in Baker's favor. His team struggled since Baker took over in 1991, but you'd be hard-pressed to find a team that worked harder during the games and in practice.

His team struggled again this year, despite being considered a dark horse at the start of the season. A 3-6 record could have easily been reversed, though, as his team was in almost every game right down to the final seconds.

There was a late loss at Apopka. A rain-soaked loss at Edgewater. A couple of other late losses.

Baker's kids kept playing. Last year, there was more of the same. Late losses.

But Baker never seemed down on himself. A lot of coaches lose once or twice a year and have nothing to say after a game.

Baker has always been there, win or lose, and never ran out of patience. Maybe if the Greyhounds had gone 6-3 or better, he'd be back next season. Certainly, a string of losing years couldn't have pleased the boosters, but this is high school football.

Sure, it's about winning and losing. But it's also about something more. And to see Lyman's seniors this season, playing out the string and knowing they would go all four years without a winning record, but still giving it everything they had down to the very end, speaks a lot for a coach.

Now Baker can concentrate on running an athletic department that is rapidly becoming one of the better one's in Seminole County.

Lyman will drop to Class 5A next season which means a slight downgrade in the schedules, and the Lyman freshmen and junior varsity have shown promise. Whoever Baker's successor is on the sidelines will inherit a stronger team than Lyman has fielded recently.

Baker also has some other solid programs under his charge including the boys cross country, wrestling, boys soccer, girls basketball, boys swimming, baseball and boys lacrosse teams among others.

He said one of the reasons for his resignation was that he couldn't commit enough time to his football program with so many other responsibilities as athletic director.

That's commendable. Lyman's football team has taken a lot of losses over the past few years, but maybe the biggest one is the loss of Baker, a good man who always did his best.

Last Second Shot: I have covered Seminole County football for three years and, with Baker's resignation, only one football coach remains from 1996: Lake Howell's Mike Blsceglia.

First day of Target Soccer Classic proves tough for other SAC teams

By Tony DeBormier
CORRESPONDENT

LAKE MARY - Once upon a time, the Target Soccer Classic (nee Burger King Girls Soccer Classic) was dominated by Seminole County schools. From 1983 through 1991, Lake Brantley and Lyman were the only champions the tournament ever had.

But since 1991, the only county team to claim the crown in the high-powered high school girls' soccer event were the 1993 Lyman Greyhounds.

It appeared that that trend may continue after Friday's first round of the 1998 Target Classic as three of the five county teams that played, lost. Lake Brantley (which needed sudden-death penalty kicks to get by Melbourne, 3-2) and Lake Howell (a 3-1 winner over Neptune Beach-Fletcher) were the only locals to advance into the winners' bracket.

Lake Mary was to play its first round game this morning at 11 a.m. against Valrico-Bloomingdale.

"That says more about the caliber of the teams that come to play in this tournament than anything else," said Lake Mary coach Bill Eissele, who, de-

Lake Mary girls bop Boone

By Dean Smith

LAKE MARY - The Lake Mary girls' basketball team went back to what it does best Friday night...play hard nosed defense and get the ball to Lauren Bradley.

"And all that, it worked to perfection as the Rams roughed up previously undefeated Boone, 53-35. In a rematch of last March's Class 6A State Championship Game in Lakeland.

Lake Mary took a 14-5 lead after one period as Bradley, who will attend Florida State University in the Fall, scored all 10 points during a 10-3 run that saw the Braves turn the ball over seven times.

Bradley finished the half with 14 points, five rebounds and one blocked shot as the Rams led 26-13 at intermission.

Bradley, who fouled out with 5:07 left in the game, ended the night with a game-high 18 points. Freshman Bryn Mosler chipped in with eight and four rebounds, while Lake Howell transfer Kurry Kane, Becky Pedro and Ashlee Balance added six points each.

Super junior Vanessa Randall led Boone (10-1) with 12 points, but was frustrated by the tough defense displayed by Bradley throughout the game.

Lake Mary (12-2) will be idle until it travels to Tennessee for a tournament against some of the best female teams in the country.

RECCHI'S BOMBS BEAT SEMINOLE

SANFORD - The fourth three-pointer of the game by Brian Recchi, with 10 seconds left in overtime, gave Lake Brantley a hard-fought, 46-44, Seminole Athletic Conference victory over host Seminole at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Friday night.

"We're getting close," said Seminole head coach Bob Traina. "We led most of the game tonight and we lost by two to Spruce Creek and were in the game with Lyman until late, but it's getting frustrating."

"But we'll work on cutting out the turnovers and keeping a positive attitude. The kids are working hard, they just have to learn that the game is not won in the first, second or third period, it's won in the fourth, or in this case overtime."

The Patriots also won the freshman (53-33) and the junior varsity (49-45) games as well.

Recchi finished with 17 points, while Mike Assent added 13 points for the winner's. Sylvester Wynn Jr. scored 10 points for Arrow Force VII.

Lake Brantley improved to 4-4 and will next play in its own Holiday Tournament on December 29th and 30th, while Seminole fell to 1-8 and will next play in the Lake Mary Christmas Tournament starting Dec. 28th.

Lake Howell boys soar to top of SAC

OVIEDO - You don't just walk into the Lion's Den at Oviedo High School and walk away with an easy win.

But last night, arch-rival Lake Howell marched in and ignored the noise and the crowd to stake its claim as the top team in the Seminole Athletic Conference with a 71-53 win over the Lions.

Lake Howell has four new starters since last year's district championship team, but the new batch of Silver Hawks might be even better. Featuring four seniors, the Hawks advanced to 9-1 with their only blemish to a Winter Park team they pounded earlier in the year. The Hawks dominated the boards and pressed Oviedo into submission with its all-out attack.

Lake Howell went into the season with a lot of question marks, but there have been a lot of answers ever since the season opened.

"We're surprising a lot of teams right now," Parsons said. "Some of the other teams in the district didn't think we could compete, but we've been playing well. Now that they are getting a chance to see us, things could be different next time around."

Lake Howell coach Steve Kohn said he is also a bit surprised with his team's early success.

"We've been passing and shooting really well," Steve Kohn said. "We have good teamwork and Chad's been playing really well, especially off of Reggie. Chad can finish off Reggie's passes."

That happened a lot last night. Lake Howell and Oviedo provided the two most memorable games of last season in boys basketball and both teams played with a raised inter-

ARCA's best testing for Speedweeks '99

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - Twenty-four ARCA Bando/Mar-Hyde Series teams tested at Daytona International Speedway Friday in preparation for the February 7, 1999, FirstPlus Financial 200.

The test session will continue through the weekend. Grandstand access is not available due to construction.

NASCAR Winston Cup veteran Dave Marcis took part in the session in a car he will field for driver Dwayne Leik. Marcis fields the No. 71 NASCAR Winston Cup car as well as the No. 71 car in ARCA's top series.

"ARCA is using this test session to try some new things with the cars," Marcis said. "The first thing is a new spoiler height. ARCA wants to slow the cars down a little from last year and improve the handling."

The teams had the opportunity to test their cars for the 36th running of the FirstPlus Financial 200 at Daytona which is part of the first weekend of the 1999 racing season.

The annual ARCA season-starter will be run following the Bud Shootout at Daytona on Sunday, Feb. 7.

1998 NASCAR Winston Cup Rookie of the Year Kenny Irwin Jr. used the 1998 FirstPlus Financial 200 as a warm-up for his first ever Daytona 500 and managed to win the event over a full field of ARCA regulars and past winners Mike Wallace and Andy Hillenburg.

On Saturday, Feb. 6, 1999, the NASCAR Winston Cup Series takes to the track for the first time under the clock in 1999 in Daytona 500 pole qualifying.

For the first time ever, Daytona International Speedway is offering a limited-edition collectible pole day ticket featuring 1998 Daytona 500 winner Dale Earnhardt. The ticket offers grandstand access to all the events on that first racing weekend of the season.

Former Rolex 24 champions Test Daytona's lights

A pair of Rolex 24 At Daytona champions tested Daytona International Speedway's new lighting system Tuesday night to give feedback to racing and track officials about potential usage during next month's USRRC event.

Didier Theys, who was on the winning Momo Ferrari team last year, and 1993 winner Jim Dawson both tested the 3.56-mile track with the lights at 20 percent, while Downing made laps with the lights at 100 percent.

The lighting system was put into place for the Pepsi 400 NASCAR Winston Cup Series event, which is held each summer on the track's 2.5-mile trioval. The 1998 running of the Pepsi 400 was the first competition under the new lights at Daytona.

A decision by track officials will be made later this month on how to best utilize the lights during the Rolex 24 At Daytona.

"I thought that 20 percent of the lights worked really well," said Theys, who teamed with Gianpiero Moretti, Arie Luyendyk and Mauro Baldi last season. "As many cars as we pass per lap here at Daytona, it would definitely be better from that standpoint."

Downing was impressed with the track fully illuminated and had no problems with the transition from the banking to the infield road-course portion of the track.

"The 100 percent lighting was good," Downing said. "There were no problems going from the banking where it was very bright, down into the infield. The lights helped through the infield some, but it's not like daylight out then. You're still racing through darkness."

The 37th annual running of the Rolex 24 At Daytona is scheduled for Jan. 30-31, with 80 cars expected to start. Classes for the Rolex 24 range from the spectacular Can-Am. Please see Daytona, Page 4B

Last minute gifts for bird lovers

Special to the Herald

OCALA - If there's a wild bird enthusiast on your Christmas list, check out these gift ideas that are sure to please.

Birdwatchers, or birders as they are commonly called, will appreciate a field guide to help them identify the birds they see in the field or at their feeders.

One to consider for the beginner is the Birds edition of Peterson First Guides, by Roger Tory Peterson, who created the first field guide to birds more than 60 years ago.

This guide makes it easy to get started, and helps the beginner move on to the next level of birding with the more advanced, Peterson Field Guide, also by Roger Tory Peterson.

Other good guides for more experienced birders include Stokes Field Guide to Birds, Eastern Region, by Donald Stokes, and Birders Handbook published by Simon & Schuster.

National Geographic puts out a useful field guide for those planning to take their birding interest across the United States and beyond called Field Guide to the Birds of North America.

The Florida Wildlife Viewing Guide by Susan Cerulean and Ann Morrow is a great book for anyone who wants to know where to go in the state to see birds and other wildlife.

All of these books can be found or ordered through major book stores such as Barnes & Noble, Books-A-Million or Borders.

For the birder who likes to use the computer consider Peterson Multimedia Guides: North American Birds. This CD-Rom provides comprehensive coverage of nearly 1,000 bird species with more than 1,400 photos, videos and bird calls, plus offers instant connection to Peterson Online.

Other gift ideas for birders include binoculars, bird feeders and seed, bird houses, a gift certificate to a native plant nursery, or membership in a conservation organization such as Audubon, Florida Wildlife Federation, National Wildlife Federation or the Nature Conservancy.

If you plan to buy binoculars 7x35 power is recommended. This size gives good magnification without the shake that occurs with higher-powered models.

Bird feeders are available nearly everywhere and can provide hours of viewing pleasure. If you know someone who already has feeders, why not give them bird seed? You can even put it in a useful, decorative can or bucket for a more festive look.

Even better than feeders are plants that naturally provide food and shelter for birds. The best are ones that are native to Florida. For a list of native plant nurseries in Florida, or for the name of a native nursery in your area call the Florida Native Plant Society at (813) 856-8202.

Bird lovers who also enjoy a good cup of coffee will appreciate shade grown coffee.

Much of the coffee produced in the neotropics is grown on full sun plantations which destroy natural habitat and provide minimal bird habitat.

Shade grown coffee is grown on traditional coffee farms where the rain forest is preserved and continues to provide habitat, plant material, fruits, nectar and an insect community birds need.

You can order shade grown coffee from the Thanksgiving Coffee Co. at (800) 648-6191 or visit their website at www.thanksgivingcoffee.com.

What's Up In The NFL.... Week No. 16

SANFORD Week 16 has arrived and I'm still displaying deadly accuracy!
Readers continue to shower me with letters of appreciation as the regular season draws near to an end.

Everyone was stunned that the Giants upset the Broncos last Sunday except my readers and me. I was the only writer that I can find in the country that predicted the trouble for Denver. Wow! Thirteen point underdog and I deliver.

That, my friends, is why I am paid the big bucks here at the Herald.

Once again the CRYSTAL BALL OF FOOTBALL delivered the easy money with his patented LOCK OF THE WEEK.

The Colts crushed the Bengals as I promised they would and had the job finished by halftime.

Tony Guru now calls me The King of the Junk Games. I'm not sure if that's a compliment, but I promise to continue the "redistribution of wealth" through the Super Bowl.

Looking around Florida, the news was dim except for Tampa Bay, which trounced Detroit.

This team is so up and down that they are difficult to keep track of. In the past few weeks they have put on performances that are Super Bowl efforts! If the Bucs get lucky and sneak in, the Vikings had better be ready.

Enough jawing, let's look into the CRYSTAL BALL OF FOOTBALL and find some winners.

MINNESOTA (-14) VS. JACKSONVILLE

Look for the Jaguars to bounce back after the disappointing loss (which I predicted), to the Oilers. The big problem here is that the Vikings will be in no mood to help them back to their feet. Vikings win and I think they're a good bet. Vikings 34, Jaguars 14.

SAN FRANCISCO (-7) AT NEW ENGLAND

The Niners shouldn't be a touchdown favorite in this one, but they are...hmmmm. You have to think the Patriots will play for pride if nothing else, take the points and hustle to the bank. Niners 23, Patriots 17.

NEW YORK GIANTS (-1) VS. KANSAS CITY

The Giants are a sucker bet in this one. Have you ever seen a team that wins the Super Bowl play well the next week?

No. It never happens. Stay away from this game like the plague. Chiefs 23, Midgets 16.

GREEN BAY (-6) VS. TENNESSEE

The Packers are a desperate team and have the character to hide that fact from their opponents. I look for them to put a dent in the Oiler fairy tale, but it won't be easy. Do not wager on this game. Favre or Eddie George can win this one with a big day. Packers 14, Oilers 12.

PITTSBURGH (-11) VS. CINCINNATI

The Steelers are in for a big surprise! The Bengals are a terrible team and the players now realize that many of them won't be in the league next year. They will play like their careers depend on it, because in most cases, it is. The Steelers will continue to struggle, but should win this game. Steelers 17, Bengals 14.

SAN DIEGO (-9) VS. OAKLAND

The Cheaters have let the entire criminal world down. After an excellent start, they have plummeted rapidly. Hollas is a goofball at quarterback, and the bad attitudes are back. That's why I love them, and that's why they'll drop this game to a team they should beat. Chargers 28, Raiders 17.

SEATTLE (-7) VS. INDIANAPOLIS

The Battle of the two best new quarterbacks in the league. Peyton Manning has done his dad proud as he has matured faster than anyone expected he would. The future looks bright for the Colts if they can keep this rising star healthy.

Kitna, on the other hand, has done the World Football League proud as he has put a spark into this young Seahawks team. I'm glad the Moon experiment is over and look forward to watching this kid next year. Seahawks 31, Colts 24.

DALLAS (-11) AT PHILADELPHIA

Who cares?

The Cowgirls are the best in the worst division, and the Eagles are in that division. Where are all you Cowgirl fans who thought you were so great the last few years? Two words for you traitors....Band Wagon. Cowgirls 0, Eagles 0.

ARIZONA (-5) VS. NEW ORLEANS

The Cardinals will win their season wager today as they top seven wins and place themselves in serious contention for the playoffs. The fans are well aware of this and will give them vital 12th Man advantage against the scrappy Saints. Ditka deserves Coach of the Year honors. Cardinals 28, Saints 14.

DENVER (-3) AT MIAMI

I told all of you that the Dolphins were not the real deal.

At best this team qualifies as a mediocre squad. Jimmy Johnson and his empty promise have worn out their welcome in South Florida, believe me I know. In the biggest surprise of the off season, look for the Dolphins to make a coaching change...eeeh...I wasn't supposed to tell anyone. Broncos 27, Dolphins 10.

spite being the tournament host and organizer, has yet to have a team win a Target title. Over that same time span, Eisele has led the Rams to two state championships (including the 1997-98 Class 6A crown).

Lyman, Oviedo, and Winter Springs all dropped into the consolation bracket on Friday. University shut out Lyman, 4-0. Daytona Beach-Seabreeze upended past Oviedo, 4-1, and Winter Park blasted Winter Springs, 6-0.

In other first round games, Clearwater-Countryside had to go to penalty kicks to get past defending Class 4A state champion Bishop Moore, 2-1. Boca Raton played Boone in the late game at Lake Mary.

Meghan McMillan and Janey Hallberg each scored in regulation for Lake Brantley as the Patriots rallied to force penalty kicks.

Windy Mulvihill, Nandy Pryce, and Piper Seaman provided the offense for the Lake Howell Silver Hawks in their win over Fletcher. Lauren Chase netted the goal for the Senators.

Jana Brauer scored a pair of goals 11 minutes apart in the first half to help the Seabreeze Sandcrabs avenge an early-season loss to Oviedo. Kristin Swann and Aleia Long each added a goal in the second half. Elana Cavallini scored for the Lions.

Nine games are scheduled for today at Lake Mary and Lyman high schools.

At Lyman, the Greyhounds will take on Melbourne at 1 p.m. while the Winter Springs Bears face off against Fletcher at 3 p.m. Lake Brantley and University tangle in the 6 p.m. quarterfinal before Lake Howell and Winter Park play at 7 p.m.

After the Rams and Bloomingdale Bulls get done their first-round match, Oviedo plays the Boone-Boca Raton loser at 1 p.m. Bishop Moore will face the loser of the Lake Mary-Bloomingdale contest at 3 p.m. In the 5 p.m. contest, Seabreeze and the Boca Raton-Boone survivor tangle. The Lake Mary-Bloomingdale winner takes on Countryside at 7 p.m.

On Monday, four consolation bracket games will be played at Lake Mary's Don T. Reynolds Stadium. The semifinals (at 6 and 8 p.m.) and two more consolation bracket contests will be played Tuesday.

Wednesday's schedule has the fifth-place game starting at 2 p.m., the third-place set for 4:30 p.m., and the championship game kicking off at 7 p.m.

which plays in the Under-12 Seminole Premier League at Central Winds Park in Winter Springs, registered five wins in the two-day Melbourne tournament.

The team posted impressive victories over the Pittsburgh Fusion, CFU Rockers, Royal Palm Beach Dragons, Melbourne Fusion and the Seminole Sparks.

The team is headed by Coach Danny McAvoy and Assistant Coach Rick Affolter and trainers Jennifer McAvoy and Dave Rippe.

The F.C. America players include Jessica Riggins of Casselberry; Amanda Wallace of Heathrow; Kristin Shaw of Lake Mary; Lizzie Talansky, Lauren Malizia and Angie Cardetti of Longwood; Alex Billeter of Matland; Dania Zayas, Lindsey Topetcher and Gimena Solari of Orlando; Sara Portoguese, Ashley Oyer and Rachael Malatesta of Winter Park; and Stacey George, Katie Lazeration and Lauren Affolter of Winter Springs.

Several weeks ago, F.C. America Kumba U-12 utilized its size and strength to break open a close match and capture the U-12 Seminole Premier Championship by defeating its younger counterpart F.C. America Kumba U-11, 4-0.

The U-11 team is coached by Evert Rademakers and is assisted by Ken George and Gerry Grimes. The players include Brittney Blount, Michelle Ernest, Yvonne George, Stacey Greene, Kacey Grimes, Nicole Hayes, Anna Hite, Jacqueline Kalish, Jessica Magluta, Bonnie Morsheiser, Karly Overmeyer, Mary Oyer, Amanda Portoguese, Katie Rutledge, Tiffany Vonderbecke, Whitney Wade and Emily Yero.

The new season will begin in February.

against the spread in the schedule. This is the selection that after research and contemplation, I feel most comfortable about releasing as my patented LOCK OF THE WEEK.

My record speaks for itself, and I thank all of you who take the time to let me know how much you appreciate it.

Today I'm going back to the junkpile, as Tony Guru would call it, and head to Three Rivers Stadium. The BENGALS (+13) OVER THE STEELERS is my LOCK OF THE WEEK, and one that will be fun to play.

These teams hate each other, and with Sanford native Jeff Blake back at the controls, they may even win this game.

Enjoy your football and remember.....everything else can wait!!!!

the first half. Parsons was dominating the scoring, but Oviedo's Danny Lebo played strong defense on Kohn until Kohn got hot with his 3-pointers.

The Hawks led 30-23 at the half after Kohn scored late on a 3-point bomb and ran away to a 50-30 lead after the third quarter. Lake Howell's defense was in Oviedo's face all night and shots were hard to come by.

Kohn stuck a dagger with another long 3-pointer and that ended any questions.

To make the win even more impressive, rebounding forward Justin Smith missed the game with the flu.

"I didn't know if we could rebound well enough, but I think we're doing it," Steve Kohn said. "I thought we might have a problem with everyone adapting to Reggie's play, but everyone's fitting in."

WIN AT BRIDGE

The ball is on the other foot

By Phillip Alder

BRIDGE

PHILLIP ALDER

Yesterday, we looked at the first reason for covering an honor with an honor even though it was the first of touching honors: You were trying to win the trick with the club king, hoping partner had the ace and declarer wasn't finessing at all. Now let's look at the other side of this story.

First, though, a quick word about how to bid a balanced hand. I think you should open two no-trump with 21-22 points. With 23 or more, open two clubs, strong, artificial and forcing, re-bidding two no-trump (23-24) or three no-trump (25-27). I never see 28 points! What about weaker hands? With 15-17, open one no-trump. With 18-19, open one of a suit and jump-rebid in no-trump. With 20, call it either 19 or — much more often — 21.

Back to this deal. East has two key plays to make. The first comes at trick one. Whenever you are trying to establish a suit in which declarer has two stoppers, you should drive out one of them as quickly as possible. Trick one isn't too early! As the opening lead marks South with the ace and jack of hearts, East should play the 10 (or seven).

South wins with the heart jack, plays a spade to the dummy, and calls for the club queen.

East must not cover. His heart suit isn't established yet, and he needs the club king as a late entry. East must hope West has the club ace.

When West wins trick three with the club ace, he returns his second heart, establishing East's suit while he, East, still has the club king as an entry.

Winter Springs provides Honduran relief

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

They won't get a chance to see their efforts pay off.

That's too bad, because the students at Winter Springs High School deserve the opportunity.

During the summer, Hurricane Mitch ripped through impoverished Honduras, killing over 300,000 people and devastating an already-poor country.

Winter Springs SGA President Patricia Xavier, her sister, Deborah, and Sophomore Class Vice-President Sarah Jones decided to do something about it, to make the holidays special even if they wouldn't get a chance to see the kids on Christmas Day.

The Xavier sisters are from South America and Jones recently visited Brazil, so they had seen the living conditions that the Honduran natives deal with every day. When the hurricane hit, all three said they watched film of the devastation and knew something had to be done to help the victims have a merry Christmas.

"We heard about a lady named Franci Hyde who was working to help the hurricane victims and we saw how much was lost," Patricia Xavier said. "I thought if we could send them some presents, it might help them have a better Christmas."

She got Hyde's number through a local television station and the idea was formulated to start a toy drive at Winter Springs. They found out that much of Honduras was left homeless by the devastation and unselfishly began to inform the Winter Springs students about what was needed.

"I saw on the news how bad those people have it," Patricia Xavier said. "Their houses were only made of clay and they were all swept away but he storm."

"People there live in cardboard boxes," Jones added. "Even people in America who live on welfare have it better than the third world countries. It shows how grateful we should be to have everything we have here."

"It's good to help out," Deborah Xavier said. "We don't need to be able to see them when they get their presents because it feels so good to help them."

Winter Springs, in only its second year of existence, is still developing its clubs, but the students there have learned the spirit of giving. Four of its clubs - the Honeybears, Interact, Best Buddies and the FCA - held a competition to see which could raise the most canned foods, and other clubs are also doing their best for the holidays.

The students have been spreading the message through televised announcements throughout the school and they are asking for public support. For the Honduran relief effort, toy donations can still be made at the school and they are looking for anything even slightly used.

For the Winter Springs students, it brings the meaning of Christmas into perspective, especially since a lot of them have never dealt with the kind of hardships to which they are now being exposed.

"I think a lot of the students at Winter Springs understand, but I don't know if they know how much of an effect it has on people," Jones said. "We're still kind of a baby school since we're new, and we're all sort of starting to learn what we can do to help out."

Some students have gone the extra mile. A student from Peru brought an entire bag of toys and another Winter Springs parent went to yard sales to buy as much as she could for the Honduran effort.

To the kids who have been through so much tragedy, any gift can be considered a blessing.

"The kids will just be happy if they can get something to eat, let alone a toy," Jones said. "I just wish I could give the kids a hug and tell them to keep praying."

Patricia Xavier added, "I love to help but it still doesn't feel like we're doing enough. If everyone helps, they can have a pleasant life."

With the help of some kids at Winter Springs that they will probably never meet, they can have a very pleasant Christmas.

Winter Springs students Patricia Xavier, Sarah Jones and Deborah Xavier led the charge to provide a merry Christmas to victims of the hurricane which ripped through Honduras last October.

Mention Toys for Tots and what is the first thing that comes to mind?

It should be Oviedo High School.

That is where one of the most inspirational acts of Christmas giving happens every year.

The Oviedo High School ROTC cadets have single handedly made the Christmas mornings more special for over 20,000 children in Seminole County through dedication to the Marine Corps' Toys for Tots program. Oviedo has won the Central Florida Trophy for collecting the most toys four years in a row. That trophy is given to only one of 15 schools involved in the program.

This year, in addition to the usual inspiration of caring students, a dedicated leader and the help of the community, Oviedo is inspired by the thought of retiring the trophy if they can win it again for the fifth time this year.

"We hope to retire the trophy this year and keep it here at Oviedo permanently this year," Colonel Joe Nardo (USMC) said. "There will be a new trophy next year if we can achieve our goal. We would be honored to have the trophy here to represent all of the hard work everyone has given to the program over the past four years."

This is the sixth year that Col. Nardo has been at Oviedo High School and he recruited the help of the cadets in the Toys for Tots program in the same year. He is the reason that the program is such a success.

"Colonel Nardo really goes out of his way to make this program a success," said Cadet Lieutenant Commander William Dougherty. "He puts so much into this. We want to do well for him as well as the children because he gives us the inspiration to want to do better and better."

"He's like that with everything," added Cadet Commander Steve Chadwick.

"Anytime we need anything, he's there to listen and help. The Toys for Tots program is no different. He is a very caring person who truly cares about other people. He's the real reason that our drive has always been so successful."

Another reason the program is so successful is the inventive way Col. Nardo goes about recruiting the toys.

First, he runs a contest among all of the second period classes. The class that brings in the largest number of toys receives a free breakfast provided by Col. Nardo and Oviedo principal Bobby Lundquist. In addition, a certificate is signed by Col. Nardo that the class gets to display.

Other ideas that the Colonel has implemented include manipulating the admission prices of various events at the school.

For example, at a chorus performance last week, the price of admission was a toy. See Oviedo, Page 3C

Lake Howell leadership comes through for holidays

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

Leadership means a lot of things, but at Lake Howell High School, it means, well, the ability to lead.

It means taking charge of the student body and using their skills to make their school and community a better place.

At Lake Howell, the Leadership Club has taken charge of many of the school's efforts to ensure a better Christmas for those less fortunate.

Everyone benefits including Operation Christmas Child, overseas children and local children.

For starters, the group at Lake Howell collected over $200 for the Marie Taylor Foundation for underprivileged children.

"We knew they needed some help, so as soon as we heard about them, we knew we needed to do something," said Nick DeBellis.

The Leadership Club then heard from the Bridge Program and decided to adopt nine children for whom they could supply food and clothing.

Operation Christmas was one of the clubs' largest successes. Every third period class at Lake Howell was assigned the task of trying to donate cans of food. Boxes were placed in each class and the response was overwhelming.

"Everything we did with Operation Christmas depended solely on how the school would come through," DeBellis said. "Lake Howell always responds well."

Some classes turned in a couple of boxes. Then, again, others turned in as many as 10 boxes full.

The students in Leadership also adopted classrooms and went to read Christmas stories to them. It gave them a chance to have strong interaction with some of the kids and brighten their own Christmas spirits.

"When we get to have physical contact with the kids, we can see how important it is to brighten someone's Christmas," Marisa Diaz said. "We got to read to them and give them snacks and it was fun."

To get more Lake Howell students involved, the Leadership Club showed film clips of the underprivileged on the school television announcements. In a change from the past, the Leadership Club decidid not to offer incentives for the classes which collected the most or did the best. Instead, the club let the Christmas spirit take over.

"A lot of times we have offered prizes for the clubs or classes that did the best, but this time we didn't," DeBellis said. "We were so surprised by how many people responded."

As for the Leadership Club, it gave them a feeling of giving during the time when giving is supposed to be more important than receiving.

"It brings a whole new meaning to Christmas," Diana Garcia said. "We're giving to people that can't give to themselves and it really brings home the spirit of Christmas. It gave all of us a reality check."

Lake Mary Interacts with the community

The Lake Mary Interact Club combined with other Seminole County High Schools to bring in thousands of canned food goods to benefit the needy at Christmas time.

By Kellie Werner
STAFF CORRESPONDENT

With so many clubs and organizations across the county getting involved in the spirit of Christmas, it's hard to pick one that stands above the rest.

At Lake Mary High School, however, the choice is clear.

This year, the Interact club has not only gotten involved, but their many varied projects have helped both young and old to experience the true meaning of Christmas.

Interact has taken on four very special projects this year that brought the members into the community and touched many who don't have much to be happy about during this very wonderful time of year.

First, members of the Lake Mary High School Interact club volunteered their time at the Seminole Town Centre mall in the Habitat for Humanity gift wrapping center. This project is set up to raise money for the many homes that the organization builds for those who cannot afford to build a home or have had a home destroyed in a natural disaster.

Secondly, Interact involved the entire school in a canned food drive to help those less fortunate have some semblance of a Christmas dinner. For weeks, club members have encouraged their class mates, teachers and administrators to donate canned food items for the drive. Last Wednesday, those canned goods were delivered to the Winn Dixie in Winter Springs so they could be packaged and delivered to families in need.

Another project that the club undertook was stockings for seniors. Students collected various items such as soaps, shampoo, cross-word puzzles and things of the like to fill stockings. Once the stockings were full, Interact members hand delivered them to the Better Living for Seniors center. Not only did they brighten the day of the residents with their thoughtful gifts, but they also spent time with the elderly folks who might not have families around them at this time of year.

Last, but certainly not least, Interact sponsored a Seminole Children's Village. This proved to be the favorite of the group and the most fun.

"We invited children from the orphanage who were sufferers of abuse to a Christmas party," club president Erin Dehlinger explained. "We took them to the zoo, treated them to lunch and then gave each child a present. It was so wonderful to see the looks on the children's faces when they got the present. Everyone had fun that day, and I'm not sure who had more...us or the kids."

Projects like the children's village and stockings for seniors is nothing new to these club members. Interact is a non-profit organization that works directly with the community in several different civic minded ways. Its members work closely with other organizations such as the Rotary club, Humane Society and Habitat for Humanity to help make the community a better place for everyone. "Everyone in Interact is here because they care," Dehlinger said. "Everyone is always willing to participate and gets excited about our projects. It's so much fun to see our work make a difference and it makes us feel really good to know that something we did may have made things easier or happier for someone else."

Even more amazing than the fact that these students give so freely of their time is how the projects are put together. Students in the club do most everything on their own.

All of the items for the stockings that were taken to the senior center were collected by the students from their own homes or bought directly by the members. All of the presents that were given to the children at the zoo party were purchased by the members as well.

Christmas is a time for sharing and the Lake Mary Interact Club has mastered the art. Gifts purchased with the money was not the highlight of the Christmas projects, either. What mattered most to the students was seeing what their care and compassion meant to others.

Isn't that what the season is for? Giving to those less fortunate? If there is any doubt about the answer to that question, as an Interact member.

Serteens brightens the season at Lyman High

By Alex Kane

STAFF WRITER

This Christmas, one club has been especially busy at Lyman High School.

Serteens, a community service club on campus, has done a great deal of work to brighten the holidays for others.

First, Serteens is hoping to send Christmas spirit wrapped up in shoeboxes. Just recently, the club finished up with its part in Operation Christmas Child. The group collected shoe boxes filled with toys. Over a hundred shoeboxes flowed in. Once the students in Serteens wrapped them, the shoeboxes went off to the YMCA, from which they were mailed to underprivileged children in developing countries.

"It was a great success, and it was very satisfying to help so many people," said Serteen member Monica Spirig.

The large outpouring of support kept the members busy with shoeboxes to wrap. The students had to wrap all the gifts before mailing them off.

"We got a really big response for it. We were overwhelmed by how many people brought in presents," said club member Laurie Ratchman.

The club did finish wrapping, and sent the presents off. The students completed the project with hard work and determination.

Also during the holiday season, Serteens decided to do something to add to the cheer of Lyman's teaching staff. They fashioned reindeer out of candy canes, and distributed them to the faculty.

Led by president Katie Galvin, Serteens is a high school branch of Sertoma, and is a community service club. During the past school year, the members have found themselves extremely busy with the club. Aside from their Christmas activities, they have a number of other plans in the works.

"We have three committees: Elderly, At-Risk, and Youth. Each group has major projects," said club sponsor Charlotte Roberts.

The work for Operation Christmas Child was organized by the At-Risk Committee, but the others have definitely had their share of important projects as well.

During Halloween, the club had a stand at Cranes Roost Park, where it distributed candy to an estimated 10,000

Jasmin Koohi, valedictorian at Lyman High School, is a member of Serteens, a community service club that is making Christmas special.

kids. The Elderly committee planned out visits to Mayflower Retirement Community, which will occur later in the school year.

There, the students will work with seniors, become acquainted with them, and see how they can better help their lives. Serteens will also provide entertainment to the residents of Mayflower by performing a play.

"I am very pleased with the students. They have been very active," said Roberts.

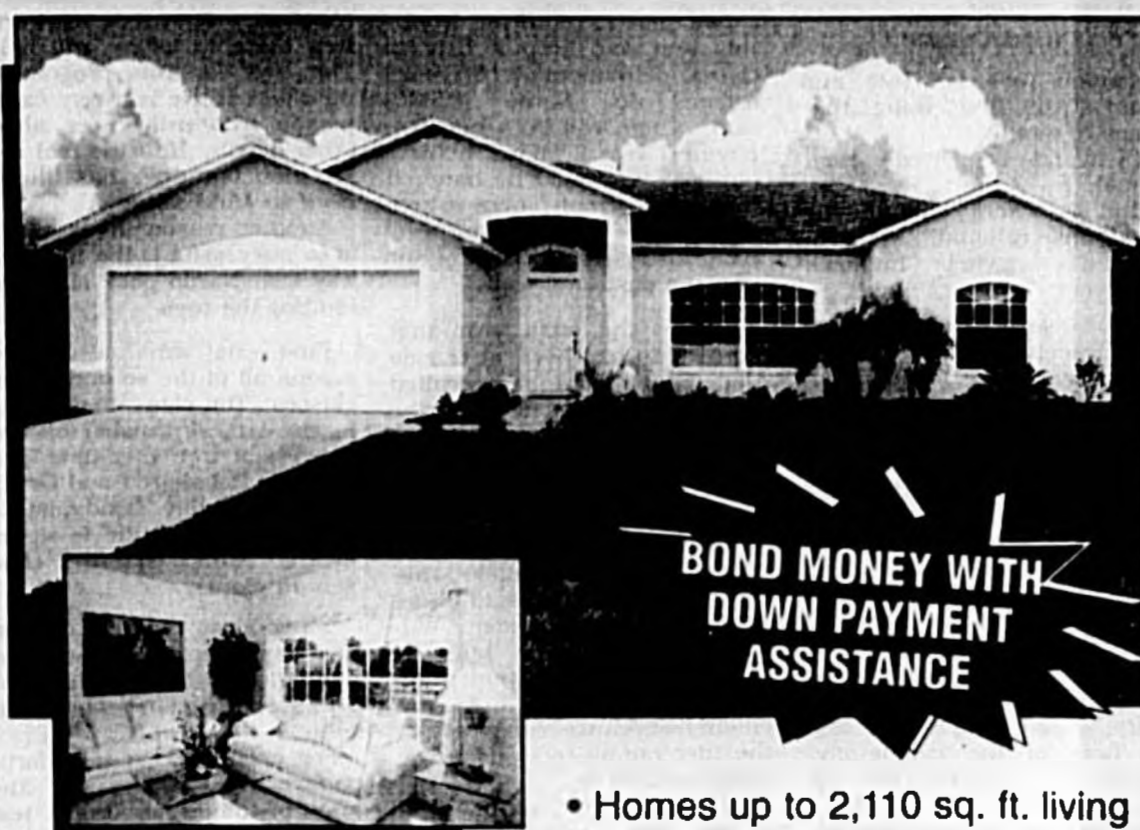

Only halfway through the school calendar, Serteens has already achieved success in their service goals. Still, they are far from finished planning their projects.

Serteens plans to continue to make a difference at Lyman and in the rest of the community. As one of the most diligent and effective clubs on campus, Serteens made Christmas a little brighter this year not only for a number of children, but also for teachers, and perhaps themselves. The members hope to accomplish even more in the coming months.

"I think that this year they have been very conscientious in helping any way they can," said Roberts.

Throughout the remainder of the school year, and in years to come, look for Serteens to be helping out wherever they can.

Having a very merry Crooms Christmas

By Kellie Werner
STAFF CORRESPONDENT

At a time when so many kids are wondering what they will be getting for Christmas, it's refreshing to see some kids worrying about what other children will be getting.

The Middle School Student Government at Crooms Academy has sponsored a very special project that will benefit children affiliated with its own school.

A Christmas tree has been placed in the school office that in addition to having lights and ornaments also has a way to make a child's Christmas a happy one.

"The kids wanted to do something that would help those directly around them," said student council sponsor Brendan Beas. "They presented me with an idea for toys for the children and when I presented it to Principal Bernadette Hardy-Blake, we came up with the idea of the tree. It has really gone very well and the kids are very enthusiastic about it."

This "Angel Tree" has actual hand made angels on it that represent a child from the academy that are in need of toys for Christmas. Faculty members and parents can take an angel from the tree, buy a toy for the child named on the ornament and then give the present to the child's mother or father so there will be presents for the child to open on Christmas morning.

Many teenage mothers in Seminole County choose Crooms Academy for their high school education because of the unique program that the school offers to young people with children. A nursery school program is established that requires the moms to tend to their little ones before school, during lunch and after school, but keeps them during the day so that the moms can attend class. Students can choose to work in the center as part of a early childhood development focus to their education.

Raising children is very expensive and it isn't easy for young mothers to make much money while tending to a child and going to school full time. Therefore, buying Christmas presents isn't always in the budget.

Crooms' middle school student council has found a way to fix that and the angel tree is part of the solution.

The idea started as a toys for tots type of drive. One of the council members thought of the idea and presented it to Beas. The rest is history.

How is it that kids who should be busting over their own gifts have found it in their hearts to give to those less fortunate?

"A big part of it is Mr. Beas," Tarkan Canturk said. "He does all kinds of different stuff for the school. And he is always there to help us whenever we need anything. He helps us with family problems, school problems whatever and always listens to our ideas. He has inspired us to do things for others and having him support us makes it even more fun."

Beas came to Seminole County from Palm Beach where he spent his childhood. He attended the University of Central Florida where he achieved his dream of becoming a teacher.

The five years that Beas have spent at Crooms have been filled with activities that better the school and the community. While this is the first year that he has been the sponsor of the student council, this math teacher is greatly admired by both his students and teachers alike. He has taken the ideas of the council and by adding a little here and there, has taught the students how to care about others, themselves and their school.

That self confidence and community awareness is coming through in the angel tree project.

"It hurts me when I think about kids not having any presents on Christmas morning," Christina Harhalos said. "I know how I would feel and it would be awful. We can't solve the problem but we can at least help where we can. And knowing that the presents are going to kids that we see every day is really nice."

"Christmas isn't all about

Crooms students helping out at Christmas are sponsoring an Angel Tree to help those who are less fortunate.

presents, but that is very important to little kids who don't know about the true meaning yet. I think it's more important that the kids know that someone remembered them and cares about whether or not they have a good Christmas."

Throughout the year the members of the student council do a lot of things for the school including planning dances, sponsoring a sports day and putting together a canned food drive for Thanksgiving.

This, however, is the project that they enjoy the most and have the most fun doing. Because they are helping children in their own school, the benefits of their activities are seen first hand and immediately.

That's really what Christmas is all about, giving to those less fortunate.

Beas and the members of his student council have earned an A for that lesson.

Oviedo

The same was done at the band concert and at the basketball game on Friday night, all that was required to see the game was one dollar and one new, unwrapped toy.

When the student government at Oviedo donated $500 to the cause, Col. Nardo called the Oviedo Target and asked them to direct him toward the discounted toys so he could spend the money. Target did a lot more than that. The store manager did direct the Colonel to the toys and also discounted a lot of other items so the program money could go even farther.

Contributing the most to the success of the program however, are the cadets. The students who give everything they have to make sure that children in Seminole County have a present under the tree on Christmas morning.

Not only do the cadets give of themselves and bring toys, they visit each classroom and encourage the other students in the school to bring presents for the children. This year's theme is, "Can't you give up that one hamburger or movie so a child can have a present under the Christmas tree?"

"I have a friend who remembers Christmas mornings when his parents couldn't afford to buy him presents," recalled Cadet Ensign Christina Callin. "If it weren't for the Toys for Tots program, there would have been nothing for him at all. I just think about how awful that would have been and that makes me want to keep giving."

With the enthusiasm that the Oviedo ROTC has for the Toys for Tots program, it's a safe bet that not only will the trophy be retired, but many children will have a merry Christmas thanks to their efforts.

Brantley a team on and off field

The Lake Brantley girls soccer team is pretty challenging on the field.

It's starting to do some challenging off the field.

The Patriots are challenging their fellow Lake Brantley athletes and the rest of the girls soccer players in the county to help out at Christmas time. They have been working with the Russell Home, a place for autistic adults, and collecting goods from the entire school. The gifts were delivered last Friday after their coach, John Schaefer asked if the team wanted to help. Immediately the Patriots responded and challenged the other Lake Brantley teams to do the same. They've collected household items such as food, towels and other everyday goods that seem like something that everyone should have, yet the autistic adults, born without their full potential, cannot make such simple purchases. It has made the Lake Brantley soccer team feel the holiday spirit.

"I feel great about helping people who are less fortunate than we are," said Kim Delp.

The Patriots, currently in first place in the district ahead of state champion Lake Mary, want to send a challenge, especially to the Rams.

"We can do better," Renee Gagnon said. Especially against Lake Mary."

It helps that the team is closely-knit and works so well with each other.

"We have a lot of unity here," Gagnon said. "We are like a family and we all want to help."

So does the rest of the school.

"Everybody knows that everybody gets involved at Lake Brantley," Sarah Cockrell said.

Seminole French Club warms the feet

By Jeff Bertinleke

ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

It's the shoes.

That was a popular Nike campaign several years ago, but it's taken on a new life at Seminole High School where the French Club has started a campaign to deliver shoes to the underprivileged. It's been a popular effort and the whole school has chipped in to make sure that the needy have warm feet for Christmas.

The shoes are going to Goodwill and Mustard Seed, two charities which will distribute the shoes. Some of the students in the French Club said they are thinking about going to the drop-off points to see the faces of the people who receive the shoes.

"We all want to chip in," Tammy Hinckley said. "People don't understand how important it is to help out."

The French Club got the idea from a Christmas tradition in France. French children receive Christmas presents in shoes from their Santa Claus, Pere Noel.

The French Club has spread the news over their television station and some of their students have gone to extremes.

Mike Riegel said he carried a pair of shoes around campus all day.

"Everybody walked up to me and asked what the shoes

Seminole students gathered at the French Club Christmas party Tuesday to celebrate the holiday and their success of their shoe collection drive.

were for and I told them what they stood for," he said.

Most importantly, the Seminole students learned the true meaning of Christmas.

"It's the time when everybody needs to help," Susan Walther said. "It feels great this time of year."

Stretches treat carpal tunnel syndrome

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

OKLAHOMA CITY - A leading hand physician is recommending exercises, not surgery, to help treat and prevent early stages of carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS), a serious medical condition affecting more than five million American workers. Houshang Seradge, MD, an Orthopaedic Surgeon and Assistant Clinical Professor at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, has developed a scientifically tested stretching routine that the majority of his patients are successfully using to relieve symptoms associated with CTS including burning, numbness and tingling sensations in the hands. Businesses and factories that have incorporated the exercises into employees' daily work routines also report positive results in reducing CTS-related complaints.

CTS is an increasingly common injury caused most often by repetitive hand and wrist movements. Activities that contribute to CTS include typing on a computer keyboard or gripping objects such as a steering wheel or any hand tool for long periods of time. Blunt force injuries, diabetes, weight gain and pregnancy can also lead to CTS.

Laboratory studies show that Seradge's stretches help treat CTS by reducing pressure in the carpal tunnel. Patients who perform the stretches on a daily basis also notice a reduction in upper body aches and pains.

Seradge, who created the exercises after 20 years of research with CTS patients, compares his stretching routine to the warming up and cooling down concept used by athletes. "It is my belief that step stretching routine to help treat and prevent carpal tunnel syndrome.

the risk of most upper extremity injuries caused by repetitive hand intensive work can be significantly reduced," says Seradge. "I recommend a worker perform carpal tunnel exercises before work and at each break, just as a runner would stretch his legs before and after a run."

Donna Thomason, a secretary in El Reno, Oklahoma, developed CTS after 15 years of typing on keyboards. Thomason avoided surgery after incorporating Dr. Seradge's stretches into her daily routine. "I've regained use of my right arm, that is what the exercises have helped me do most," says Thomason. "I can pick up my grandchildren without having pain."

The stretches, which take less than three minutes to perform and do not require special equipment or clothing, are promoted for use by the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons and they are a standard of care under the Oklahoma Workers Compensation Insurance Guidelines.

The complete exercise program is demonstrated in a new video that is helping fund continued medical research into

CTS. The video addresses CTS causes, symptoms, treatments, job modifications and surgery. Seradge also demonstrates how to prevent back and neck pain while working at a computer.

All of Seradge's proceeds from video sales benefit the Orthopaedic and Reconstructive Research Foundation, a non-profit medical research and education organization in Oklahoma City.

For more information about the exercise video and to place orders call toll-free (800) 999-1846.

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

ATLANTA - More than 2.75 million Florida Medicare beneficiaries should now have the needed information to make informed decisions about their Medicare coverage and options for change. The Health Care Financing Administration, as part of its National Medicare Education Program, mailed the Medicare & You handbook and unveiled the new Medicare-Choice toll-free telephone number during November to Florida recipients who are part of 5.5 million Medicare beneficiaries in five pilot states.

The updated handbook and the toll-free phone line, 1-800-MEDICARE, (800)633-4227) join the beneficiary-oriented Internet web site, www.medicare.gov, and a coordinated partnership program with national and local organizations who work with Medicare beneficiaries to bring neutral and objective information to beneficiaries in Florida, Arizona, Ohio, Oregon and Washington. Beneficiaries in the other 45 states received a condensed Medicare & You bulletin outlining the program's changes.

"The Clinton Administration, Congress and all of our partners are committed to helping Medicare beneficiaries understand the options and benefits that were created as part of Medicare-Choice, as well as the Medicare program in general," HHS Secretary Donna E. Shalala said. "Medicare & You is just one of the ways we are getting information to beneficiaries to help them make informed decisions about how they want to receive their health care. And after evaluating this year's pilot program, we hope to learn what works best for beneficiaries."

In the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, Congress created Medicare-Choice to help modernize Medicare and give beneficiaries additional types of health care options available to other Americans such as preferred provider and provider-sponsored organizations, medical savings accounts and private fee-for-service plans.

As part of the pilot program, beneficiaries in Florida and the other four pilot states received a copy of the handbook in November. The states were selected based on their Medicare population and availability of managed care options. HCFA is phasing in the education program in the five states to refine its efforts before the Balanced Budget Act-mandated national education program begins in November 1999.

"Because many of these managed care options are new to a large number of beneficiaries, it is vitally important to bring them up to date about what health care options may be available to them in the future," said HCFA Administrator Nancy Ann DeParle. "At the same time, a small number of them may be notified that their current HMO is withdrawing from the Medicare program. They should be able to get fair and unbiased information about their options from either the handbook, the website or the 800 number to help them make an informed decision about how they want to continue to receive their health care."

Only about eight percent of 219,020 beneficiaries of Florida's more than 2,770,000 total Medicare beneficiaries, in 26 of the state's 68 counties, have been affected by some Health Maintenance Organizations' decisions not to renew their contracts to provide medical coverage.

"The handbook also outlines the new preventive benefits available to all Medicare beneficiaries, including annual screening mammograms, diabetes monitoring and vaccinations," DeParle said.

The handbooks for the five pilot states contain detailed information on the Medicare-Choice options in general, as well as comparisons of managed care plans available in specific regions of the state. The Bulletin that was mailed to beneficiaries in the remaining 45 states condensed the information include in the handbook.

At the same time Medicare beneficiaries received Medicare & You, the new toll-free telephone number became available to callers in the five pilot states. The number 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227), operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and is staffed by customer service representatives between 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. local time, Monday through Friday (at other times the telephone line will be answered by on-line computer systems).

The customer service representatives will help answer questions related to Medicare health plan choices, process requests for plan comparison information and plan disenrollment forms, and make referrals to other information sources where appropriate.

The service will accommodate both English and Spanish-speaking callers and also a TTY (telecommunications device for the deaf) line: 1-877-486-2048. The toll-free phone line will be phased in nationally over the next year, beginning with the five target states, to help HCFA assess the kind of information beneficiaries want and need.

"I started wearing glasses in the 6th grade when I couldn't see the chalk board. For the past 18 years I have depended on contacts or glasses to do everything from drive, watch television and play sports. LASIK has changed my life! WEDDING

Dr. and Mrs. Richard B. Forgas

Love is lovelier the second time around for pair

By Doris Dietrich

Marriage, often said to be the most sacred of human institutions, has become a more casual affair for many couples. For Richard and Mrs. Forgas, however, it is a love story that has blossomed a second time around. The couple, who were first married 40 years ago, are celebrating their 40th anniversary with a second wedding ceremony. The bride, Mrs. Forgas, is 68 years old and the groom, Dr. Forgas, is 70. They have three children and five grandchildren. The ceremony was held at the St. Paul Baptist Church in Sanford. The bride wore a white dress and the groom wore a dark suit. The ceremony was officiated by Rev. Dr. J. Edgar Smith. The couple was joined in matrimony by Rev. Dr. Smith. The ceremony was a joyous occasion for all who attended. The bride and groom were surrounded by family and friends. The ceremony was a beautiful and memorable event. The couple's love story is a testament to the power of love and commitment. They have shared a life of love and companionship for over four decades. Their second wedding is a celebration of their enduring love and the joy they have brought to each other's lives. The ceremony was a beautiful and memorable event. The bride and groom were surrounded by family and friends. The ceremony was officiated by Rev. Dr. J. Edgar Smith. and language her roses and the glow to her job at the Sanford where she has a good demonstration of 40 years. The growing romance blossomed until those words in the couple's eyes and smiles led to the chimes of wedding bells. Ollie and Dick were married Nov. 21, in the First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Bruce Hunter performing the double duty and only candle ceremony. The arrangements of the bridegroom were grown up by the bridegroom's mother-in-law, Mrs. G. Hunter of Sanford. Holiday ballet dazzles patrons Dazzling, spectacular, the best yet — are but a few of the choice words describing the 31st performance of Ballet Guild of Sanford Semole, "A Holiday Party Mix (With Nuts)" at Winter Springs High School Dec. 12.

While the world out there is turning topsy-turvy, Ballet Guild has maintained the epitome of excellence and professionalism thanks to the dedicated choreographers and artistic directors, sisters Miriam Doktor and Valerie Weld.

Before the show got under way, Sally Sawczuk, president of the board, welcomed the nearly full house after which she was joined by Miriam and Valerie. Recognized were three high school seniors, Vanessa Keaton, Melissa Garris and Kimberly Huffman. The Nola Ferguson Dedication Award was presented to Karolyn Mantuano by John and Scott Ferguson, husband and son of the late dedicated seamstress.

The Silver Slipper Award went to Angela Baragona for the third year for acquiring the most sponsors. And last, but not least, Jackie Carlo, head of the Betty Smith Foundation in honor of her late mother, was recognized for sponsoring each of the 34 company dancers.

The performance was dedicated to Donna Hoffman who has been volunteering for the guild for 16 years. The surprised Donna was escorted on stage by Matthew Twillager.

Joining the guest dancers performing were former Ballet Guild dancers, Heather Hoffman, Robin Scott Pfeiffer, Amy Simmons Thornhill and Natalie Weld. All are teachers at the School of Dance Arts.

Matt Taricano, narrator, was Santa's head elf who told the story in poetry between numbers.

dancers. Wearing form-fitting black tights, red and green tics and Santa Claus caps, the high-stepping dancers kicked, pumped and shook to a medley of Christmas songs, including "Joy to the World," "Merry, Merry, Merry" and "Rockin' on the Rocks."

After this dance, elves danced down the aisles distributing candy. Also, during the show, several elves brought out a large pack of toys and the children were called to the stage area where they were presented a free toy.

Castle Brewer Day Marked

Castle Brewer Scholarship Day is always celebrated on the second Sunday in December at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church.

This scholarship day was a special event bringing together over 16 descendants of the late Rev. Castle Brewer for their first reunion.

The Castle Brewer Scholarship was named in honor of an educator, minister, pastor and community leader who served St. Paul in Sanford from 1884 until 1936. This man of God was a preacher, teacher and pastor with an intense feeling for the welfare of people.

Because of his concern for people in the community, he promoted activities that were able to reach others far beyond his community. His legend still lives on. In June of 1950, the Sanford Housing Authority asked the Brewer family and son David then a chaplain at the United States Army in Fort Bragg, N. C., if they would give permission to the Housing Authority to name the 125 unit project "Castle Brewer Court."

Chaplain Brewer responded to the request with humility and gratefulness. Thus now stands the 125 unit project called "Castle Brewer Court" located on West Mulberry Avenue in Sanford. This project serves many single families, seniors, and children of the community. Progress still goes on to improve the living standards of low income tenants of the project.

The Christian Education Department of St. Paul Baptist

Church established the Castle Brewer Scholarship Fund in 1987 to assist seniors of the community who wish to continue their education. Students must apply for and are awarded scholarships from the fund based on academic merit and need. The funds are obtained by the annual "Brewer Breakfast," "Castle Brewer Scholarship Day" and scholarships are awarded annually on Graduation Appreciation Day held in June.

Mustard highlights for the Castle Brewer Scholarship Day were rendered by the youth choir of St. Paul. Their selections filled each heart. The Castle Brewer family members in attendance were introduced to children growing up in St. Paul. They were delighted to return home once more. A dramatic presentation of Langston Hughes' "The Negro Mother" was presented by Najwah Abdul Sabur Boston, a great great grand of Rev. Castle Brewer.

Stardust Unit holds 1920s camporee

Scouting in the 1920s was quite different from today. That's what the Girl Scouts in the Stardust Service Unit in Lake Mary learned at their 1920s camporee the second weekend in December.

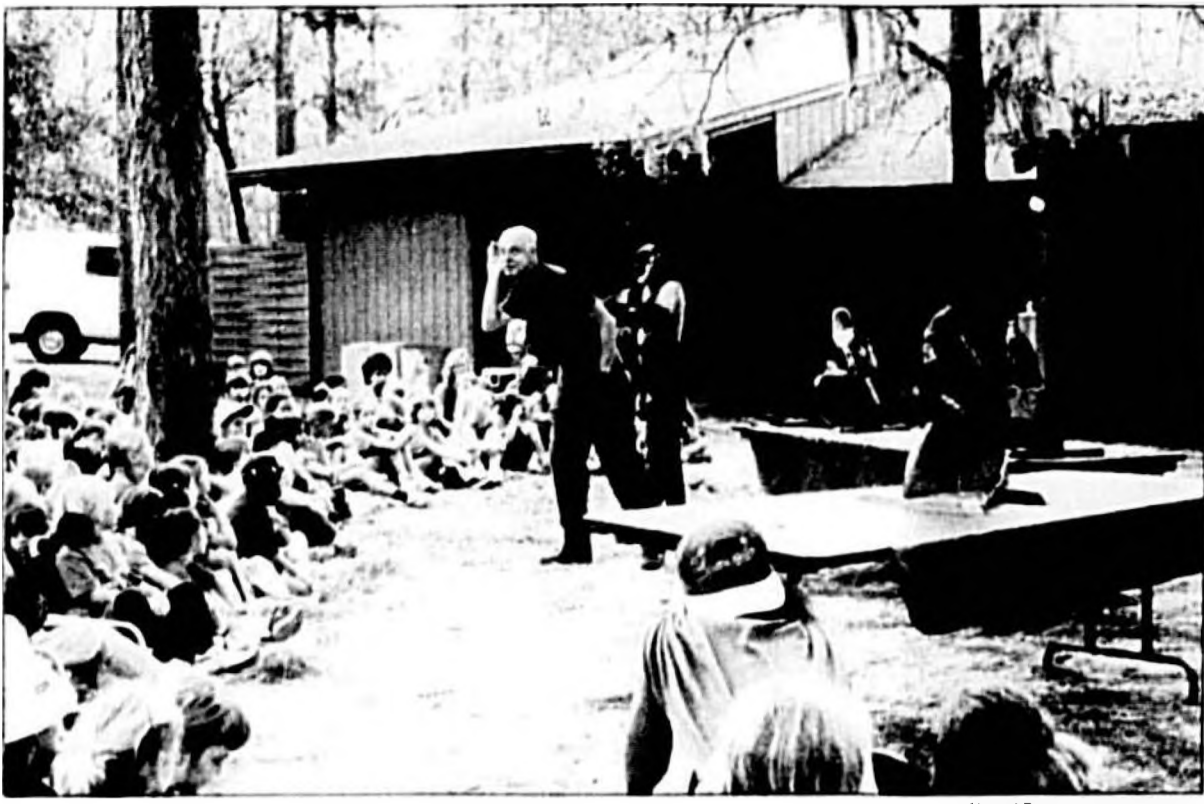

The fun started Friday night at Wekiwa Springs State Park as the girls exchanged SWAPS, acronym for Share With Another Person. Each troop had made small trinkets to trade with other girls. There were pins made out of clay, bead necklaces, pom pom bears, glow in the dark alligators and more.

Saturday morning, more troops arrived. In the 1920s, Scouting had a slight military feel to it. The Stardust Girl Scouts were taught the Girl Scout salute and instructed to call their leaders Captain and their co-leaders Lieutenant, as girls in the 1920s had to do. The troops were then divided into groups and the groups went to their workshops. There were six workshops in all. Each workshop was based on badges that Girl Scouts did in the 1920s.

At the Electrician, the girls learned about alternating current and direct current. The girls were also instructed on household electrical safety. They had to chance to examine various electrical components they wouldn't normally be able to see. The saw first hand how dangerous electricity could be as they watched a hot dog being electrocuted.

Stardust adopted 9 birds from the Florida Audubon Birds of Prey Center in Matt Land. The adoptions were classroom adoptions so that each girl got a picture and information sheets on one of the birds, coloring sheets, games and more. The youngest troops also made pine cone owls.

Two volunteers from Audubon came out to the camp with four birds of prey. They brought a red shouldered hawk, a red tailed hawk, a barn owl and a great horned owl. The Bird of Prey Center takes in injured birds and, whenever possible, releases them into the wild. Many birds are not releasable. Birds that are permanently disabled are used in the education program because they are too wild. Instead they become foster parents to young birds that are releasable, once healed. That way, the birds don't come imprinted on humans and stand a better chance of survival in the wild.

The volunteers told the girls all about the birds they had brought with them and how they had been injured. They also told the girls how important it was to call them if they found an injured bird of prey instead of trying to rescue it themselves. Birds of prey have extremely sharp talons and will use them when frightened or threatened.

In the 1920s, there were few phones or definitely no cell phones or walkie talkies. Communication sometimes relied on visuals. Girl Scouts earned their Signaling badge by learning Morse code and semaphore. Semaphore was a way of communicating using two flags. At the Signaling workshop, each girl learned the flag positions for SOS and got a chance to try it out.

At the Athlete, the girls learned how to do setting up exercises, the 1920s term for warm-up exercises. They also tried to throw a basketball 40 feet, one of the requirements for the original badge.

The Pioneer badge was the equivalent of today's Troop Camper. But camping in the 1920s was very different from today. Instead of sleeping bags, they had bed rolls. The girls learned how to make bed-rolls and tie knots. They also got a chance to build their own lean-to. To earn Pioneer in the 1920s, girls had to build a lean-to that would sleep 3 people. The Stardust girls came up with some very inventive lean-tos as well as some very amusing ones.

For Flower Finder, the girls took a hike around the front of the youth camp ground and learned how to recognize some dangerous plants, such as poison ivy. They also learned the importance of native plants.

tion Committee. Done by Marilyn Boston, the portrait will be hung in the church.

James Gray, a great grandson of the late Castle Brewer, son of the late Estelle Gray and Charles Gray, delivered the message of the morning. Gray spoke of the history of the Brewer family. He reminded the family not to forget their past, for if the past is forgotten, we are doomed to repeat it and we will fail.

Pastor Covington expressed his honor and blessing to each one. He is grateful to be standing on the shoulders of this great pastor who has left a legacy not only for the church, but for the family and community.

Seniors of the Seminole County schools may apply for information and applications for the scholarships by calling Earl E. Minott at 322-0369 or Al-terness S Bentley 322-7875.

GROUP SEEKS UNITY

The Tobacco Free Partnership of Seminole County and The Grove Counseling Center, Inc., presented Habari Gani "What's The News". The objective says Director Jennings is UMOJO "Unity" "Bringing Families and the Community Together." This event was held Saturday evening at the Boys and Girls Club.

The presentation of the Sankolo Boys II Men were presented by A. Patterson who heads the program of neighborhood young boys and girls who are students at Sanford Middle School. This group of young people meet everyday to study and they are taught how to be productive citizens of their community.

Beginning in January these 16 boys and 13 girls will be in an after school program to be held at Seminole Gardens. Director Jennings is proud of the success accomplished and says there is still improvement to be made. During the spring break of 1999, the kids will travel to Nashville, Tenn. for a special educational tour.

Finances are needed to support this trip for these youth. The Boys II Men are Nathan Mike Jackson, Anthony Collier Zantabus Joseph, John Wells, Jr., Deronte Wells, Kaitimmi Butts, Dwayne Russell, Tyneiss Lomax, Lee Richardson, Marcus White, Morrell Dickerson, Matthew Burgess, Rodney Medlock, Demetrius Wilson, Bert Campbell, Maurice Butler, Ferrence Merthue, Elliott Wells, Willie Stringer and Antowin Collier.

Kwanzaa Boys II Men was observed. The keynote speaker for the occasion was Officer Arthur Barnes of the Sanford Police Department. His words were to remind the young people to be positive, act positive, think and speak positive. Barnes recommended that they invite God into their lives because with God all things are possible.

He asked them to be sure to respect all adults and parents and to remember that you can be anything you want to be and to never let anyone tell you what you can't do or be.

Parent Involvement is Prevention and Education is a Preventative.
