

The Everglades National Park

One has to read that the new Everglades National Park in Florida will comprise some 2,500 square miles and be twice as large as the entire state of Rhode Island before comprehending the magnitude of this project, which has recently been enacted into law. Florida's park will, in fact, be larger than any other national park in the United States with the single exception of the Yellowstone. It will also be the only sub-tropical park in the country.

A description of the territory which this park embraces, as given by Ernest I. Coe, chairman of the Everglades National Park Association, is interesting: "There are many miles of lovely beaches along its western boundary where it borders the Gulf of Mexico. About half of the area is made up of thousands of wooded islands and other thousands of lakes, bays and interlocking waterways. There are hundreds of miles of tidal waterways which boats up to six feet draft can go, and thousands of miles of waterways for lighter draft boats. It is a paradise for pleasure boating, and tropical scenes unfamiliar to the general public.

"Here the fishermen find the tarpon, salt-water black bass ready to test his prowess. It is a natural natural life sanctuary. Its inclusion in the National Park system will add a park wholly different from those now established. It is tropical rather than temperate and summer-like throughout the entire year. It is a distinct life as compared with other national parks.

"Here the palm, mahogany and rubber tree supplanted the maple, ash and hick of colder climes. Here are bear, deer and panther, alligator, crocodile and manatee. It is the all year around home of wild numbers of birds, birds, the egret, spoon-billed and this here welcome the migratory bird from the south when winter comes. It is a wonderful land to be seen, and a great place to live in. As a national park all its wild life and other features will be protected from exploitation not only but also of this but all to be preserved for enjoyment.

In time the Everglades National Park will become one of the most famous in the world. It will attract visitors from the far corners of the globe. And it will preserve for posterity a large portion of Florida's natural history from the comparatively recent geological past. The great Florida Everglades, an organization, which grows, Florida forest and a great number of children, call see Florida's wealth and its future.

Among those who have worked hard for the park are Ruth Brown (Ewing), daughter of a year and who was unable to have a part in the distribution of the park. Those who had a part in the distribution of the park, Mark Wilson, and a number of others, but the most prominent particular contribution of all at was a splendid piece of work for Florida.

A Generous Indian

Call "big rich" and "rich" in their own right, but they were away from home and on the beach, but for a year, they were in the same way. He had the money, but he had the heart.

When the money man was in the money, he was in the money with the Oklahoma Indians. He was in the money with the land to the land, but he was in the money with the money.

The old Creek was generous and he was in the money. He was in the money with the money, but he was in the money with the money.

In establishing the fact that he was in the money, he was in the money with the money, but he was in the money with the money.

Finally, the Indian in the money was in the money with the money, but he was in the money with the money.

It was a good thing, however, for them to be in the money with the money, but he was in the money with the money.

But here was a man who was in the money with the money, but he was in the money with the money.

Uncle Sam protected the man's wealth, wouldn't let him spend but $2,500 a month. Now, the old man is gone and he couldn't take it with him. His fortune, according to the government, will not even go to his widow, the woman who put up with him for many years. It will go to his "nearest relatives."

ALMADGE WILL OPPOSED BY PULAR JUDGE

Georgia Governor Not To Be Pressed Hard Despite Opposition

ATLANTA, Ga., June 5.—Conceded "early in the summer of last year that some one should run for Governor of Georgia" and "during that development" during the past ten months have sustained this conviction," Judge P. H. Pittman of Cartersville, who presides over a circuit of six counties in north Georgia, has announced his candidacy for the office held by Eugene Talmadge.

Judge Pittman's announcement was made at a time when it was believed that the peppery Talmadge would have no opposition in a second term. It was known that Abit Nix of Athens, who was runner-up in the gubernatorial race two years ago, would not be a second try until 1936, and that of the enemy of J. J. Mangum of Bremen, formerly chairman of the state highway board and a one-time supporter of Governor Talmadge, had absided.

"The time," asserts Judge Pittman, "has come in the state's affairs that demands an unselfish service to government according to law."

Judge Pittman is described by his supporters as similar in some respects to Governor Talmadge, and the equal of the latter as a stump speaker. If this estimate of Pittman is accurate, there will be a sizzling platter of politics served to the Georgia electorate.

In spite of the expected hot campaign there is little likelihood that Talmadge's tenure of office is threatened. It is possible that Judge Pittman may carry as many as twenty-five or thirty counties, but Talmadge undoubtedly will carry from 125 to 130.

In short, Judge Pittman is unlikely to interfere with Talmadge's progress toward a seat in the United States Senate.

While Georgia is preparing for its primary on Sept. 12, Alabamians this week cast the heaviest primary vote ever recorded in that state.

Former United States Senator Thomas Heflin, who sought to enter Congress as the Representative from the Fifth District, ran third but obtained enough votes to cause a run-off on June 12 between the incumbent, Miles B. Allison, and Major Joe Etarne of Huntsville. Heflin ridiculed the result and asserted that he was making an investigation of the balloting.

All the incumbent representatives except Allison and Lamar Jeffers of the Fourth District, who was defeated by Judge Samuel F. Hobbs of Wetumpka, won re-nominations, although several found themselves in tight races. Particularly impressive was the vote obtained by Representative George Huddleston, who received 8,000 more than the combined votes obtained by his three opponents.

But to veteran politicians the biggest surprise was the heavy vote received by Major Frank Dixon in the three-cornered contest for Governor. He ran second to former Governor Bibb Graves and was nearly 20,000 votes ahead of Judge Leon McCarty, who had been picked by political experts as certain to enter the run-off with Graves.

It might as well be said that despite the large vote received by Bibb Graves, there is a chance that Major Dixon may win in the run-off.

The bandit, sought by a posse of 200 deputies and citizens for the slaying of a deputy sheriff and the wounding of a policeman, slugged Gilbert Shields, uncle of Ralph, when the elder man tried to interfere.

Bloodhounds and a posse combed the country west of Underwood for the other two bandits.

HINDENBERG SETS UP NEW MILITARY CREED FOR ARMY

Virtues of Obedience, Courage, Esprit de Corps Emphasized

BERLIN, June 5.—(AP)—German soldiers were reminded that "German force protects the German Reich," in a crisply worded manifesto to the army issued last night by President Von Hindenberg and General Werner Von Blomberg, minister of defense.

The manifesto sets forth a new military creed which emphasizes the virtues of obedience, courage and esprit de corps.

"The people are united through national socialism," the manifesto said, and this declaration was hailed as the president's first public reference to the national unity achieved under the Nazi regime.

"The defensive force is the arms bearer of the German people," the statement began. In the accompanying discussion, the Nazi party organ pointed out that it was not "by chance" that these words replace the preambles of a similar creed issued in 1930.

Then it was stated that there was no united German people worthy of such designation.

"The honor of the soldier," says the document, "lies in the complete giving over of their persons to the people and the fatherland."

The highest military virtue resides in strong courage. Hardiness and determination are demanded. Cowardice is shameful.

"Obedience is the cornerstone of the defensive force, and confidence is the foundation of obedience. Great performances in war and peace come only through the esprit de corps of the leader's troops."

GRADUATES TOLD NOT TO EXPECT MUCH OF WORLD

Editor Gives 7 Rules For Youngsters Now Out "On Their Own"

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Millions of graduates, coming out of school this summer into business and professional fields, will be asking themselves and others: "What shall I do with myself now that school days are over?"

In a message to the 1934 graduate, J. E. Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, gives seven general rules to help guide the young men and women "going out into a world filled with confusion and uncertainty."

Morgan's message follows:

"First and foremost, do not expect too much and do not lose confidence in yourself because you cannot get a job immediately or because you cannot begin where your parents left off or because you cannot keep pace with someone around you who is better situated."

"Do the best you can each day. Do all you can to improve yourself. Train yourself to observe, to think, to speak, to write, to be natural and agreeable, to enjoy wholesome games and to understand the outdoors."

"Second, as you cast about for a vocation into which you can fit, think more of your own growth and happiness than of the money you can make. There are too many salesmen trying to sell people things they neither want nor need."

"There are far too many people in the parasitic industries trying to make a living regardless of the effect on other human beings but there is not enough play in the creative services."

"Third, if you cannot find or make a job that will pay you enough to live on in spite of your best efforts, do not be ashamed to fall back upon your family or upon the relief agencies of the community."

"There is much that one can do within the home to contribute to its well-being and happiness. You may be able to do volunteer service in the church, in the school, in the care of the parks or in some office or occupation where you would learn worthwhile skill and yet not interfere with the job of someone employed for pay. It is better to

NATION FLOUTING INFLATION PERIL, SAYS KEMMERER

Princeton Economist Backs Crusaders' Drive On Expansion

NEW YORK CITY, June 5.—Dr. Edwin Walter Kemmerer, Walter professor of international finance at Princeton University, who sailed yesterday, on the Italian liner Vulcania to advise the Turkish government on currency and banking problems, endorsed the non-partisan campaign recently announced by The Crusaders and said that "America seems to be well on the road to a dangerous inflation."

"We have passed one red danger signal after another," he said. "Whether from choice or pressure will make no difference in the final results. The disastrous effects will not be tempered by any difference in motive. It is a great tribute to the faith that has made America that thus far the confidence of our citizens in our money has been so well sustained."

"There comes a time, however, when faith can no longer be maintained. Disillusionment in matters relating to the value of money is sharp and sudden. Unless the recent continued expansion of our currency and circulating bank credit is soon checked, the inflation may get out of control. The country would then suffer serious evils which it might easily have escaped had it learned from monetary history the usual experience with inflation."

"Pointing out the dangers of a run-away inflation cannot complete in drama or tragic values with the actual processes of inflation. Horrifically prosaic though the fight against inflation may be, the American citizen who points in this movement will not only be protecting their own best interests and those of their children, but will be giving great service to many of our most cherished institutions."

He said that America had long prided herself on the educational, religious and welfare endowments of private individuals, recently estimated at more than $9,000,000,000 and asked who would replenish them if they destroyed or even substantially reduced by deflation. Dr. Kemmerer will remain abroad two months.

UNFORTUNATES OF STATE BEING GIVEN TRAINING

PERA Pays $14,000 In Salaries Monthly To Jobless Teachers

BY JOHN WILDS JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 5. (AP)—More than 5,500 Floridians—some blind, some deaf, others illiterate—turn unemployed hours to training that will fit them for the job rolling in on a returning wave of prosperity.

To their 275 instructors, all jobless teachers, the Florida Emergency Relief Administration pays monthly about $14,000 in salaries. Almost as varied as the curriculum of a small college is the range of useful subjects taught. The blind learn the Braille system of reading, the deaf lip reading.

Local communities are expected to furnish books and materials for the classes, but the PERA will grant a sum equal to five percent of the teachers' salaries for that purpose. Classes are usually organized by the county superintendents of public instruction.

General adult education and classes for the illiterate, numbered 225, are conducted in Alachua, Bay, Calhoun, Charlotte, Citrus, Clay, Columbia, Dade, Duval, Duval, Gilchrist, Glades, Hamilton, Highlands, Hillsborough, Holmes, Jackson, Manatee, Marion, Okaloosa, Pinellas, Putnam, St. Lucie, Sarasota, Suwannee, Union, Volusia, and Wakulla counties.
