Nixon Failed To Comply
House Panel Votes 20-18

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee has charged President Nixon with failure to comply with its subpoena for Watergate tapes.

By a narrow, 20-18 vote that shattered its bipartisan ap-

Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., to notify Nixon that his delivery

Sanford Joins CALNO, Works On Land Use Plan

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD—The City of Sanford will become a member of the CALNO Council of Local Governments Wednesday night, changing the organization's stance from the county commission and the local legislative delegation to commission.

Sanford City Commissioner John Morris stopped at least temporarily a move to pressure the Seminole Legislative Delegation into requiring county commissioners to pay $200,000 from general funds the entire costs of a county-wide comprehensive land use plan.

At the end of three successive votes in the midst of nearly two hours' debate, CALNO Chairman Norman Floyd, Mayor of Altamonte Springs, delegated a committee of members from Casselberry, Sanford and the county commission to work out a compromise. The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. May 9 at Casselberry City Hall.

County Commissioner Dick Williams, a CALNO delegate, said county commissioners in consensus earlier this week balked at paying the entire bill for the land planning.

He urged delaying adoption of a proposed resolution directed to the county demanding full night, changing the organization's stance from the county commission and the local legislative delegation to commission.

Lowly Pennies Soaring In Value

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Area bankers said today there presently is no real penny shortage — there are plenty on hand for bank customers — but coin collectors are being refused large quantities.

"We had a customer the other day who asked for $500 in pennies," said Mrs. Gerri ...

"It takes six to seven weeks to get paper products," he said. The bank uses $3,200 worth of pennies weekly, Albert said, and they are kept for steady customers.

"After all we are not in business to help collectors take pennies out of circulation," Albert said. "If a big customer, who is also a coin collector, is asked for coins it might be tough to refuse him," he added.

Blythe said the value of pennies has increased 500 per cent in the past 60 days — a 50-penny roll worth 75 cents in March is now valued at $2.50 he said.

"Some pennies are worth a great deal," Blythe said, "and there are copper pennies in circulation that could sell for $3,000 apiece."

Investment in the coin market was the best investment of capital last year, Blythe contends. He said while the stock market declined 27 per cent overall in 1973, coin investments increased in value by 39 per cent.

"A $1,000 bag of silver coins is worth $4,000 for silver content alone. Uncirculated silver dollars with a common date are worth $9 each and circulated cheaper ones are worth $4 each," Blythe said.

"Silver coins are worth putting in the drawer with the pennies," Blythe said.

Ball, head teller of the new ComBank in Longwood, said, "We do not hand out coins to people collecting them," Mrs. Mackall said. "We very seldom have to order pennies and so far we have received what we have ordered."

Wayne Albert, U.S. Bank of Seminole vice president, claimed his bank is having more trouble getting paper penny wrappers than the coins themselves.

"The reason there is a shortage is because people are hoarding them," she said.

"We have not noticed a shortage yet," said Mrs. Janet Mackall, head teller of Oviedo's Citizens Bank. "We usually get enough pennies from bank deposits to do us, but we have received notice we may not be able to get them."

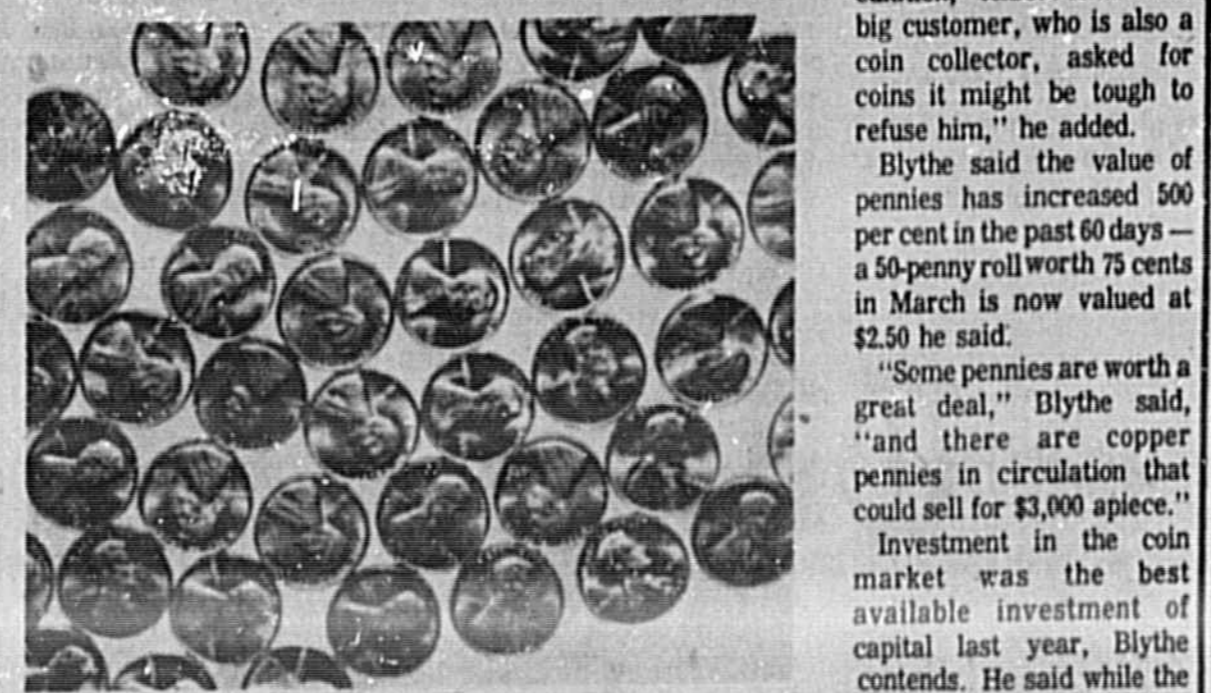

The coin's worth is no longer just one-hundredth of a dollar, but rather 1.03 cents each for copper content alone.

"Pennies are as hot as a depot's stove," J. M. Blythe, owner-operator of Seminole Coin Center, 109 W. 2nd St., Sanford, said today, advising the public to save pennies and any silver coins for the brighter days ahead.

With the continuing copper scarcity and the probability the federal government will be minting aluminum pennies in the near future, Blythe said, copper pennies are bound to become even more valuable.

"The copper coins are still not valuable enough to pay anyone to melt them down for the metal. Besides the government has banned this practice along with penny exploration Blythe said."

He said there is currently a shortage of the coins, noting the federal reserve has issued instructions to banks to refuse requests from those who want pennies to save.

White House May Help Fill In Transcript Gaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anticipating reaction from the House Judiciary Committee, the White House has indicated it may be willing to help fill in some gaps in the Watergate tape transcripts, a language crafted by scores of "intelligible" and "unintelligible."

President Nixon's Watergate counsel, James D. St. Clair, said Wednesday he wants the transcript gaps filled in by the White House recording equipment and in some cases, apparently, the failure of participants to speak clearly.

St. Clair said the transcripts were taken off the tapes by secretaries using "strictly the human ear" and no technical method was employed to correct faults. This apparently meant that no attempt was made by editors to clarify the garbled passages, either.

While a reading of the transcript shows no clear pattern suggesting any of the muddled portions were intentional, the committee is expected to show interest in such passages as this April 16, 1973 discussion of bugging:

John Ehrlichman: Well, all the (unintelligible) were but there was one in Georgetown at somebody's house that actually was never put on. It was (unintelligible) but it was explored and how Dean knows about that, I don't know. The FBI files—

Nixon: (Unintelligible) Ehrlichman: I can't say, I doubt it, I think it was before this time.

Nixon: The reason that I made the call while in Dean's presence last night was that he said Lady was saying how he knew Lady had had (unintelligible) or something like that, I said he must (unintelligible). Well, he thought he ought to get hold of his attorneys. Lady said will not (unintelligible) higher authorities.

Yosemite National Park Is Springing To Spring Life

By NEIL MORGAN
The Herald Services

YOSEMITE VALLEY, Calif.—It has been a warm spring in the silent High Sierra above and beyond these granite domes, but the winter snowpack was heavy. So is the snow that the streams began to trickle down and make their first flights off these cliffs into Yosemite Valley, building toward the crashing crescendo that is expected from the falls in the final two weeks of May. But late April nights have been below freezing, and so the edges of the falls have been laced with icy crystals that mirror the color spectrum and spin the rainbows of the falls.

On every side, Yosemite National Park springs to life. The pale jade dogwoods are bursting into bloom. Lupine appear from nowhere in the meadows. In the shade of giant sequoias, the proud crimson stalk of the snow plant shoots up through lingering patches of white.

Still the visitor can find ways to pretend that he is alone in mighty Yosemite. By July, even with soaring gasoline prices, there will be bumper-to-bumper traffic into Yosemite Valley.

The fast, scarce reduced the vehicle count; at Yosemite by about 15 per cent in the first three months of 1974, but not the number of visitors. Edward Hardy, who came Jan. 1 from Riviera Country Club in Los Angeles as chief operating officer of Yosemite Park & Curry Co., says more visitors are pooling to drive here or are coming by bus. Summer crowds are expected to be about equal to previous years, but guests may be staying an extra night or two. Vacation planners still have abundant choice among the valley's lodging units for most of the summer.

They will find few changes in scene or park policy from last year. Les Arnberger, 50, has come here from Cape Cod as Park Service superintendent to replace Lynn Thompson, who was promoted to regional director. Both he and the concessionaire management are new on the scene, but neither is eager to institute a sweeping revision. There has been relative calm and a lull in controversy surrounding Yosemite since July 4, 1970, when Yosemite Valley suddenly became a battlefield, both physical and symbolic.

That was the incident of Stoneman Meadow. About 30 park rangers rode into an unruly crowd of young people who had refused to disperse after an all-night party at the meadow. Some were injured, and more than 100 were jailed. The backlash was instant. The Park Service was criticized for police brutality. The confrontation of city and campus had been extended to Half Dome and Cloud's Rest.

"I think times have changed," Arnberger said in an interview.

"We don't expect the parks to be involved in confrontation like that again, and we think we are better able to head it off if it threatens."

So the Park Service is busy with such practical chores as extending bike trails to meet the needs of increasing numbers of visitors who bring along their bikes, and others who rent them here.

Free shuttle buses, powered by propane, and a one-way road system have combined to reduce sharply the use of automobiles within Yosemite Valley. The bus service is being increased this summer.

As all national parks, guest facilities operated by concessionaires have been stabilized in number. There are 1,568 overnight lodging units in Yosemite Valley, and they will not be increased.

But some of the oldest tent and frame cabins at Camp Curry dating back to cavalry days and World War I are decrepit. Yosemite Park & Curry Co. (now owned by Music Corp. of America) proposes to replace 150 Camp Curry units with modern facilities including baths. (A hearing on the proposal is scheduled for May 7.)

MA PETITE CHOU CHOU

Blondes Have More Fun

By RON WELLS
The Herald Services

Whoever said, "Blondes have more fun" must have had this one particular French "bombshell" in mind.

No, she isn't an internationally known movie star or singer. In fact, she may not be well-known outside of San Diego County, Calif., but Sinclair's Ma Petite Chou Chou (pronounced shoe shoe) is a star just the same.

Ma Petite Chou Chou is a registered platinum poodle costume of pixie proportions — she's only seven-and-a-half inches tall — but she's much larger in the eyes of her adoring public.

Her fans consist of hundreds of hospital patients and elderly men and women living in retirement and convalescent homes at which Mademoiselle Chou Chou regularly appears.

Born on July 16, 1968, Mile, Chou Chou is owned by Mrs. Willard M. Sinclair of El Cajon, Calif., a town some 20 miles east of San Diego.

Mrs. Sinclair and Mile, Chou Chou have been a "team" ever since they joined forces which was when Mile, Chou Chou was but 5 months old.

"Chou Chou doesn't do any elaborate tricks," said Mrs. Sinclair in an interview. "She doesn't need to. All she does is walk out dressed in one of her costumes and the people just love her to death."

As with every topflight entertainer, Mile, Chou Chou has expressive eyes. Granted this is saying quite a bit for teacup-sized poodle, but in this case it is true.

"She has the almond-shaped eyes which pedigree poodles are supposed to have," said Mrs. Sinclair. "But hers are exceptional due to her black eyelids which tend to make her eyes very prominent."

Every entertainer also needs a big wardrobe and Mile, Chou Chou is no exception. She has more than 35 costumes which she wears exclusively for her performances, including ones symbolic of every holiday.

Apart from her show costumes, Mile, Chou Chou also has a complete selection of everyday attire (eat your hearts out, ladies!).

Yet with all these "star trappings" Mile, Chou Chou is a trouper of the first order. She has already received her "10 Hour Star" from the Volunteer Service League of Paradise Valley Hospital for her work.

She also has been designated as the "performing artist" for the hospital and serves as the mascot for the volunteer service league.

According to Mrs. Sinclair, Mile, Chou Chou made 14 special appearances for hospitals, convalescent homes and charities during the '73 Christmas season.

In addition to her duties as chauffeur, agent, chief cook and bottle washer and "second banana" to Mile, Chou Chou, Mrs. Sinclair also designs and creates all of the costumes worn by the diminutive canine star.

"It is difficult for me to even hazard a guess as to the number of hours I spend making her costumes," Mrs. Sinclair said. "I form a mental picture of what I want to make then I pray a lot and go ahead."

"I have never thought to time myself because it's all so much fun for me," she said.

With a few alternations, Mile, Chou Chou's wardrobe could be right out of one of the high fashion magazines.

Take for instance a stunning little afternoon or evening creation which features a real chinchilla fur coat, hat, collar and cuffs. Another outfit is trimmed with sapphire blue mink.

When she appears at the Paradise Valley Hospital, Mile, Chou Chou always wears her official volunteer uniform which is authentic in every detail.

But Mile, Chou Chou is really unaffected by all this glamor. Her only concessions to stardom have been a couple of pairs of dark glasses, a meticulously collared royal Dutch clip and silver toenails.

Her one big weakness? "She just loves perfume," said Mrs. Sinclair.

'Zero' Vows To Kill Cuban Traitors

MIAMI (AP)—An increasing number of Miami Cubans are walking around with sticks stuck in their belts. Some of them carry automatic weapons in their car. They don't feel safe in their offices, on their way to work or even at home.

Federal, state and local police officials fear a breakout of armed warfare among Cuban exiles here and in the New York City area.

"Anything could touch it off," says a police source.

Authorities believe interne-ine struggles among the refugees were responsible for the murders in a Miami suburb of Jose Elias de la Torre, 62, and that of Arturo Rodriguez Vives, 31, in New York a few days later.

But many refugees place the blame for the slayings, and the present tense situation, on "Castro agents" from outside the country. They say the whole thing is a plot instigated by Fidel Castro to foment civil war among Cubans in exile.

Toriente was sitting on his living room couch with his wife, watching television on the night of Good Friday, when an unknown gunman sneaked up behind a hedge and pumped several shots into his back through a window.

Rodriguez was killed by a Cuban agent to be in his 50s who sat and talked with him in his Manhattan apartment. He was shot and left lying in a pool of blood shortly after his wife stepped out to buy a newspaper.

Both killers escaped, and no arrests have been made to date.

While Miami police puzzled over the Torre killing, a newly emerged refugee organization called "Zero" claimed it ordered his murder because he had "betrayed the cause of Cuban liberation" by allegedly forsaking a grand design to invade Communist-ruled Cuba.

Death threats have since been received by at least six other widely known exiles, including former Cuban President Carlos Prío. The FBI says it considers the threats "a very serious matter."

Zero said originally that the list of "miserable traitors of their homeland" was a long one, but warned that "the cemeteries are large enough and there is time enough to get them there."

No one has stepped forward to claim credit for Rodriguez' slaying, but some exiles and Havana radio thought they saw a connection between the two killings because Rodriguez had been a bitter Torreite critic.

In the midst of all this, other exiles are busy on a renewed campaign of worldwide terrorism and bombings directed against Cuban government property and personnel. Explosions have rocked Cuban offices in Canada, Mexico, Peru, France, Jamaica, Spain, Chile and other places in recent months.

A special Justice Department team has been sent to Miami from Washington to investigate this so-called "internationalization of the war" against Castro, and a federal grand jury has been taking testimony from exiles and others.

Reps. Claude Pepper and Dante Fascell of Florida have called for a federal investigation of the Miami and New York slayings and have urged FBI Director Clarence Kelly to provide protection for those who have been threatened.

This outbreak in hostilities is also taking place at a time when Castro's Cuba is closer to being welcomed back into the family of American nations than ever before in the past 12 years. Exiles think they can prevent or delay this by alerting public opinion to their cause—through violence.

What's happening? A return to the 1960s, perhaps, when refugees were resorting to bombs, bullets and threats in desperate attempts to provoke Castro's overthrow?

Fall Lab Classes Are Open

Valencia Community College, Orlando, is accepting applications for its fall medical laboratory technology program, leading to an associate degree.

Graduates from the program, which includes a final semester at Central Florida Hospital performing laboratory tests, are eligible for state licensure and national certification by the American Society of Clinical Pathologists.

Seminole Junior College students may transfer their general education required courses to Valencia to complete the laboratory phase of training, school officials said.

Valencia has a well equipped student laboratory in which students are trained in basic lab work before interning.

Seminole Memorial Hospital is one of six area hospitals giving an internship in this program.

MAKING SYRUP is a time-honored tradition in those areas of the U.S. and Canada where the maple tree reigns. When the sap begins to run, sugarmen like Leon Wright, left, are ready. He tends the steaming sugar house while Leon Jr., center, carts sap in from the family's 350

Simple Answer Not In Tape Transcripts

By WALTER R. MEARS Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For all the pages of the White House diaries, all the 33 hours of Watergate conversations they cover, nowhere is there a simple answer to the central question of President Nixon's knowledge and motives when the scandal burst.
The edited transcripts are, instead, like evidence in a trial, raw material to be weighed in seeking a verdict. In yielding them, Nixon made public evidence sure to be used by his accusers as well as his defenders.
Through the 1,308 pages recounting their tape-recorded discussions, Nixon and the men who served him thus could become star witnesses for both the prosecution and the defense of the President.
The White House maintains that the transcripts prove Nixon is innocent, that he knew nothing of the Watergate burglary engineered by men who worked in his 1972 campaign organization, and that he learned of the cover-up only on March 21, 1973.

They reflect Nixon's apparent surprise at disclosures about the burglary and high-level involvement, information that came from John W. Dean III, his former counsel now turned accuser, at that March 21 meeting.
They also record Dean's statement that he had worked on a "theory of containment" to keep the Watergate stain from spreading during the 1972 campaign.
"Spare," said Nixon. "To try to hold it right where it was," Dean added.
"Right," the President said. In those transcripts, the President at some points talked of complete disclosure; at others about keeping the cap on the scandal, isolating the presidency from the problem.

The White House said the President at that March 21 session rejected any hush money payments to hide Watergate, but the transcript reflects no flat veto — and shows that he questioned whether Dean had any choice but to make one such payoff.
It recounts also Nixon's lengthy conversation with Dean about how money could be raised in cash, how it can be delivered, the drawbacks and dangers, and whether it would work.
The published transcript is what Nixon long ago said it would be: inconclusive. In refusing to release the tape recordings to the Senate Water-

Supreme Court Battle Next Over Tapes?

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House lawyers are headed for court over President Nixon's resistance to a Watergate subpoena amidst indications it may end in a Supreme Court showdown over whether he has to give up any more tapes and documents.
A hearing was scheduled in U.S. District Court today over a subpoena for materials covering 84 presidential conversations and a motion filed by Nixon's lawyers Wednesday to have the subpoena quashed.

The White House said the tapes and supporting documents sought contained confidential communications to the President and could be denied on grounds of executive privilege.

James St. Clair, Nixon's chief Watergate-impeachment lawyer, said before filing the motion that the White House already had given up all that Watergate papers need to finish their business.

Connally Took $15,000, Mystery Witness Says

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Early in the bribery investigation of John F. Connally, Watergate prosecutors received an affidavit from a mystery witness who said the former Treasury Secretary was paid $15,000 from a dairy cooperative for trying to get a government antitrust suit dismissed, according to a memorandum filed in court.
Connally has repeatedly denied that he took money from the cooperative, Associated Milk Producers Inc. Now Connally has hired the noted criminal lawyer Edward Bennett Williams to represent him in the case, one of Connally's law partners said.
The court memorandum quotes a lawyer, William N. Carter, as saying that about last Nov. 2 assistant special prosecutor Jon A. Sale read to him from an affidavit without identifying the person who made it and without indicating whether the accusation was based on direct knowledge or on hearsay.
"At any rate, the person who made the affidavit said that $15,000 was paid in cash to Connally for his influence in trying to get the government antitrust suit dismissed," Carter was quoted as saying. In an interview, Carter confirmed that the memo quoted him correctly, and gave additional details.
Carter said Sale "waved the affidavit around" so that he could not read the signature on it. "It was a short name, that's all I could tell," said Carter.

Carter represents the former general manager of the cooperative, Harold S. Nelson. He said that Nelson denies knowledge of the alleged Connally payment.
Carter's story about the mysterious affidavit surfaced among more than 1,000 pages of notes and papers collected by former American Bar Association President Edward L. Wright in an independent investigation of the cooperative's political dealings.
In one memo, dated last Nov. 14, Wright quoted one of the co-op's lawyers as telling him that the fourth-ranking partner in Connally's law firm in Houston had said that it was "unfortunate that John Connally had received a payment," but that "it was susceptible of explanation."
But the Connally partner, Marvin Collier, denied in a telephone interview that he had said Connally "received a payment."

Senate Okays No-Fault

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill directing the states to reform their automobile-insurance systems to guarantee compensation for all accident victims has won Senate approval.
The 53-42 vote Wednesday sent the no-fault bill to the House, where the Commerce Committee has yet to start work on the question.
Under the no-fault concept, an accident victim is assured that his medical and rehabilitation expenses and loss of wages will be paid by his own insurance company, regardless of who caused the accident.

Wage, Prices Watchdog

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has decided the government needs a special watchdog agency over inflation, but has buried an attempt to restore authority for new wage and price controls.
Acting less than 24 hours after the administration's old controls program expired, the Senate voted 44 to 41 in favor of an amendment giving the administration authority to monitor wages and prices for another year.
The amendment also gives the administration powers to enforce anti-inflation commitments made by several hundred major corporations before the controls program expired.

Patman Campaign Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Bank and Currency committee, has reported raising more than $100,000 for his re-election campaign, the largest single segment of which has come from savings and loan and banking interests, according to the citizens lobby Common Cause.
Reports filed by the Texas Democrat and a fund raising committee with the clerk of the House covering campaign finances through April 12 show Patman had raised $165,205 and spent $81,350 in his campaign.
A compilation by Common Cause shows that $33,945 of Patman's campaign receipts came from savings, loan, mortgage and other banking interests.

4 Lbs. Out, Breathes Easier

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Leroy Dickman is breathing easier now that doctors have removed four pounds of sandlike matter from his lungs. Dickman, a 32-year-old building contractor, had been having breathing problems for about a year, and it finally got so bad he couldn't hold up his end of the work. Doctors at Harbor General Hospital diagnosed the problem as a rare disease that causes the lung to fill up with granular protein material. They attached a device that looked like a miniature jackhammer to Dickman's chest to shake the granules loose and then flushed the lungs 18 times with a saline solution.

Groucho Gets His Party

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a love feast for Groucho Marx, and nobody had a better time than Groucho. He sang old songs and heard tributes.
More than 200 entertainment figures came to the party, paying homage to the 83-year-old comedian.
Arranging the Wednesday night event at the Hillcrest Country Club were comedian Bill Cosby; actor Jack Nicholson, who almost never appears on the Hollywood social scene; and Marvin Hamlisch, who became an instant celebrity with three Oscars for his music in "The Sting" and "The Way We Were."
"The three of us were sitting with Groucho one night, and he said he was sore because Charlie Chaplin was given a big party after he was given an honorary Oscar two years ago," Hamlisch said.
"Groucho thought he should have a party, and we agreed."
Groucho received an honorary Oscar at the award ceremonies last month.

World 'Ticked-Off' At Watch Prices

By FRANK MACOMBER The Herald Services
Most people live by the clock, one way or another. Hence a growing worldwide interest in the superaccurate electronic watch.
The catch is that the prices — ranging from $275 to $495 for the best ones — are beyond the reach of most.
There's hope, however, that by 1980, at least a third of worldwide watch production will involve quartz-crystal designs selling for as little as $25, says Harry Weisberg of RCA's solid-state division.
The electronic watch, he points out, is invading an industry which sold 180 million sales annually by the end of this decade.
"The watch of the future will be much more than just a convenient timepiece," Weisberg forecasts. "We should be able to expect watches that warn us several days in advance of birthdays and anniversaries."
He also envisions watches that will display elapsed time others with automatic changes to adjust between daylight saving and standard times, and the increasing use of calendar watches that will automatically adjust to accommodate 28, 29, 30 or 31 days in a month.
"On perhaps a more speculative basis," Weisberg says, "we even can envision wristwatches that also will read out the temperature or function as simple calculators."
"The electronic technology is with us today to satisfy such demands. Our mission in the electronics industry is to bring the costs of such circuits within limits that will be attractive to watch manufacturers."
The advent of the electronic watch using solid-state circuitry and quartz crystals for unprecedented accuracy is opening a potentially large new market for companies like RCA which produce integrated circuits and liquid crystal displays.
The electronic timepiece wipes out the traditional watch's array of gears, levers, pinions and assorted hardware. The time can be displayed in digits, with 10 times the accuracy of mechanical or electromechanic watches, according to Weisberg.
Basically, this is how the new solid-state digital watch works: A quartz crystal replaces the old spring-driven balance wheel. Quartz, when electrically stimulated, oscillates at 32,000 times a second, compared with only 2.5 times a second for the conventional balance wheel.

A tiny integrated circuit divides these oscillations down to electronic pulse rates for hours and minutes. The pulses then are transmitted by the circuits to activate the display, or face, which tells you what time it is.
The technique of producing electronic-integrated circuitry as the "brain" of the watch is a spin-off of aerospace technology, Weisberg says.
"These tiny integrated circuits, called COS-MOS, are so perfect for watches that it would almost seem their original, designers had electronic watches in mind."

He points to the success already achieved by IBM Industries' Pulsar Time Computer, the largest selling solid-state electronic watch produced in this country. It uses light-emitting diodes and an RCA-produced integrated circuit.
The company also is turning out COS-MOS integrated circuits for Pulsar, Timex and General Time in this country; Goly in Switzerland, Kienzle in Germany and Seiko and Ricoh in Japan. But RCA has competition from Motorola, Texas Instruments and the Hughes Tool Co.
The accuracy of electronic timekeeping and its ability to withstand temperature changes has attracted auto makers, too.

LAND OF LAPPS

Great People At Top Of Europe

By GORDON IRVING
The Herald Services

ROVANEMI, Finnish Lapland — They sing and laugh their way through life in this northernmost land at the "top of Europe." The Lapps, a fascinating people, have their own "joika" singing, a mixture of yodeling and chanting. Tourism is starting to flourish here as more southern resorts become overexposed. This is one part of the world where the boat is king over the automobile, and where you find a taste of peace and escape from the stress of towns and cities.

This stunningly modern city, capital of Finnish Lapland with 30,000 people, was completely planned by noted architect Alvar Aalto.

It is a land of lively weddings, colorful markets, 650,000 reindeer, and attractive crafts. My wife and I joined a Lapp wedding, a boisterous three-day affair. The guests came dressed in brightly colored costumes. Travelers who have sampled the Rio carnival and the Fasching in Cologne, Germany, swear that a wedding at Kautokeino, Lapland, beats 'em all.

We drove along peaceful roadsides where Lapps live in skin tents, rather like Indian wigwams. Hospitable people, they invite you to sip a cup of coffee or taste smoked reindeer. Reindeer is served in varied dishes. A favorite is boiled reindeer tongue with mashed potatoes and pickled cucumber. Or you can taste reindeer spareribs, minced liver, wood-smoked reindeer steak, or reindeer sausages. It is hard to get away from the reindeer. There are even "reindeer cowboys," often working through the sunlit night on their rounds.

Every July and August the herds are driven down from the mountains to the valleys. As you approach, you hear the strange grunting noise they make as they gallop around. Then comes the whirling sound of the Lapps' lassos.

Tourists keen on seeing a "reindeer rawhide" can make contact with an agricultural ministry bureau in Jokkmokk, Arvidsjaur, Gallivare or Kiruna. Short-hop planes will fly you to a nearby event.

Lapp dogs, small and black, aid in rounding up the animals. "Many of our tourists and visitors take home reindeer horns," a travel bureau man said. "They make a fine wall decoration. We export 50 tons of reindeer horns each year to Hong Kong, Korea, Vietnam and Japan. There they are pulverized, and the powder is pressed into pills. The men eat them when they seek to increase their potency."

A trip to the top of Europe is never complete unless you visit, as I have just done, a typical Lapp encampment where the nomadic herders live in the summer while their reindeer graze contentedly in the mountains. Many Lapps live in these reindeer-skin tents, while others have small timber and stone cabins.

The Lapps are the original inhabitants of Scandinavia, as captivating as the Indians of North America.

WORLD TODAY

Portuguese Government

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The new Portuguese military junta is under public pressure to include some Communists in the civilian government it says it is going to name.

As thousands cheered at a May Day rally, Socialist leader Mario Soares and Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal shook hands and repeated their pledge to work with other groups who fought the Salazar-Caetano dictatorship and are now joined in the Democratic Movement.

It was considered unlikely that the junta could get cooperation from these groups separately. Instead, it was believed probable that all of them, including the Communists, will be represented in the new cabinet.

Third World Assistance

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly's special session has finished its work. The assembly adopted a third world proposal for a special fund to provide emergency aid to poor countries hard hit by high food and fuel prices. It also approved an action program to create a new relationship between rich and poor countries. The United States accused the session of yielding to a "steamroller" that blocked agreement on an American program for $4 billion worth of emergency aid. But U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali told the assembly that the Washington still intends to "do its share" to ease hardships of needy countries.

Vietnam Fighting Raging

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Saigon command for the first time today acknowledged some of its air and artillery strikes "may have" spilled across the Cambodian border as heavy fighting continued for the fifth day. The command denied, however, that its ground forces crossed into Cambodia, contradicting reports from the field and other military sources. It claimed 175 North Vietnamese troops from the 5th Division were killed in fighting today and Wednesday at two points about 30 miles apart on the border, 35 miles northwest and 50 miles west of Saigon. At least 12 government soldiers were reported killed and 26 wounded.

Kissinger's 'Real' Work In Israel

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger moves on Israel today to begin the real work of his latest Middle East peace mission.

Kissinger conceded that the negotiations to try to bring Israel and Syria to an agreement for a withdrawal of Israeli troops from the Golan Heights would be "very difficult."

Speaking toward the end of a relaxed visit in Alexandria, Egypt, with President Anwar Sadat, the American secretary told newsmen: "The main difficulty is the distrust between the Syrians and the Israelis. If we can contribute to removing that, then we are reaching a settlement."

Sadat was more optimistic, declaring: "I have full confidence my friend, Dr. Henry, will achieve a disengagement." He cautioned that Syrian President Hafez Assad "has the final word," but it was apparent that Kissinger, who received the initial disengagement proposals from the Syrians and Israelis in Washington last month, denied that he was carrying his own plan.

Kissinger, who received the internal affairs of South Vietnam after Associated Press photographs taken in the Mekong Delta showed uniformed South Vietnamese troops loading handcuffed Vietnamese aboard a plane marked Air America.

Martin denied that this was a violation of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement, which says in Article 4: "The United States will not continue its military involvement or intervene in the internal affairs of South Vietnam."

The ambassador said he authorized the transport of a wounded North Vietnamese at the request of the South Vietnamese government for "humanitarian reasons." He said he didn't know six other prisoners would be added to the flight.

The photographs show that one of the prisoners was wounded in the leg, but he was walking toward the plane to board it after being put on exhibit with the other prisoners before the people of the nearby town of Moc Hoa.

The North Vietnamese were flown from Moc Hoa, 45 miles west of Saigon, to Can Tho, farther south.

Girl Scouts Plan For Summer Of '74

Three rugged days on a working cattle ranch, back packing in the North Carolina mountains, primitive camping and canoeing on the Econ River, week of horseback riding and a three-day bike hike are just a sample of the exciting adventures open to area girls this summer.

Citrus Council of Girl Scouts has announced registration is now open for "Summer of '74" outdoor opportunities available to Girl Scouts and other interested girls. In addition to the regular resident camps of one and two weeks, there are 70 opportunities for special interests offered in the six-county Central Florida area of Citrus County.

All girls are eligible to apply for Scoutership Funds through the United Ways fund and gifts to council.

There are special interest workshops of three days, two nights, or one and two weeks. "Mini-Treasures" and "Specialized Workshops" will be held at the council's Mab-Kah-Wee Program Center on SR 419 at Chuluota for Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors.

Resident camps are held at Timberlake in Bartonsville for campers through fifth grade and Deer Lake, near Silver Springs, for sixth grade through high school.

Using Right Tools Can Help Solve The Energy Crisis

By RON WELLS
The Herald Services

The energy crisis has been with Americans for quite some time now but there is an aspect of it that few people consider. No handyman project should ever be ruined because of improper equipment, according to the Hand Tools Institute. The institute also feels that with energy in such short supply a person shouldn't waste his time trying to complete a project using improper equipment.

For this reason the institute has come out with some needed explanations of when and how to use a couple of the most misused tools — the hammer and chisel.

For instance, the claw or nail hammer — designed for driving nails with its striking face or removing them with its claw — is many times called on to do jobs it was not made for such as nailing, striking chisels, splitting bricks, and chipping concrete. The institute points out that not only does the nail hammer not fit these jobs but presents a possible hazard to the user because of the danger of chipping, causing eye or bodily injury. When striking masonry nails, a ball peen hammer or a hand drilling hammer is recommended. For striking cold chisels, star drills and other steel struck tools, a heavy ball peen hammer, hand drilling hammer or a double-faced sledge should be used.

For masonry work, the bricklayer's hammer has been designed for setting and splitting bricks, masonry tile and concrete blocks and for chipping mortar from bricks.

For hammering where a steel face would mar the tool or surface, the institute says to use soft hammers which have wood, rubber or plastic heads.

Altogether, according to the institute, there are 15 specialized categories of hammers available to every job, every trade. The proper hammer not only will mean an easier, better job but also added safety.

Just as there is a hammer for every job there is also a chisel. If you're scheduled for a little weekend chiseling, the institute recommends that the first thing you get is a pair of safety goggles for eye protection. Also make sure the object to be chiseled is securely braced or clamped.

Next, check the condition of the chisel. It should have a sharp, properly ground cutting edge not only to do a better job but to accomplish the work safer and quicker.

Also check the chisel's head or striking surface. If the head is mushroomed, chipped or badly battered, the chisel should not be used.

The institute says that above all, make sure you have the right chisel for the job.

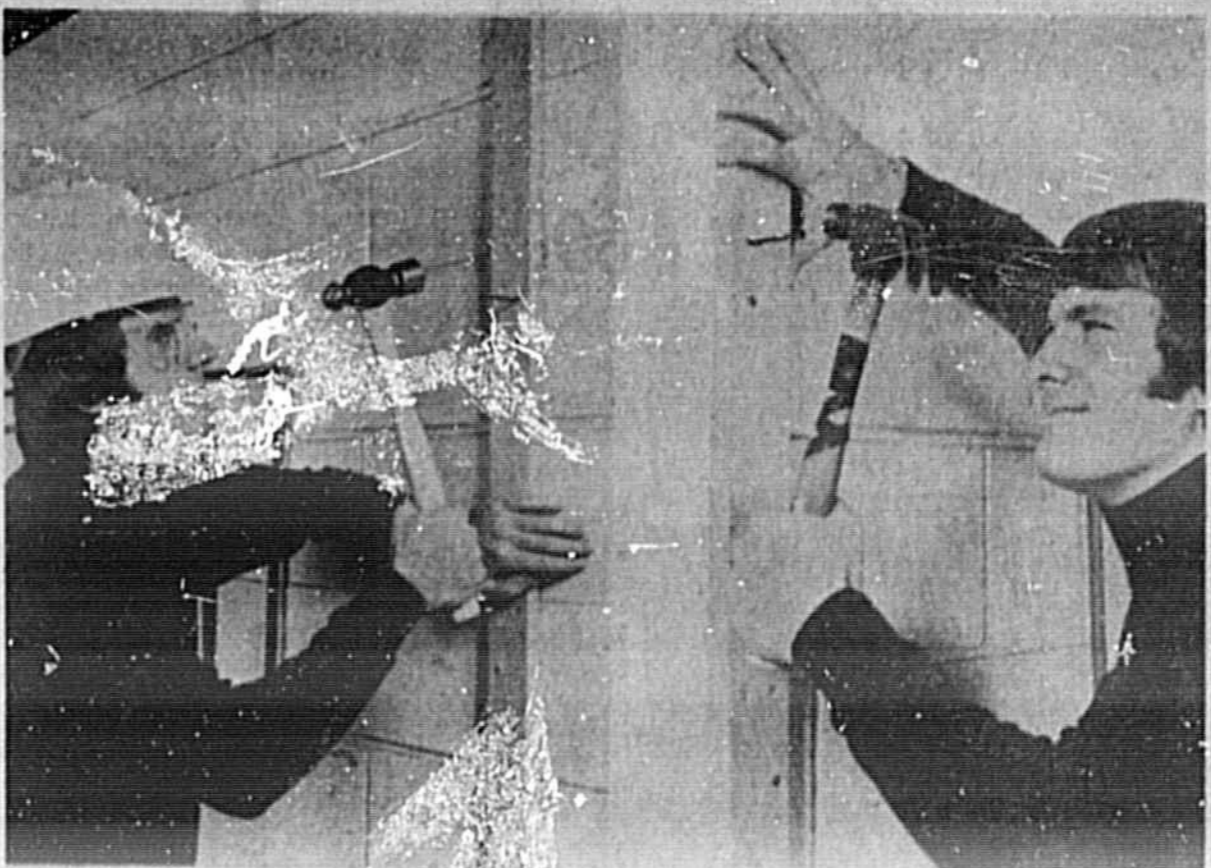

Cold chisels are used for cutting and chipping metal and should never be used on stone or concrete. A ball peen hammer, hand drilling hammer or hand sledge should be used. Incidentally, the face of the hammer should be larger than the head of the chisel. Brick chisels are designed for scoring or cutting brick. They should be struck with a heavy hand drilling hammer — not a bricklayer's hammer which is used for cutting masonry.

Wood chisels which have handles of either wood or plastic should be used with soft-faced hammers such as wooden mallets, rubber- or plastic-faced hammers.

Some of these chisels have a steel button set into the end of the handle so that they can be tapped with a steel hammer.

For rough work, the institute says chisels should be used along with a heavy ball peen hammer, small sledge or hand drilling hammer.

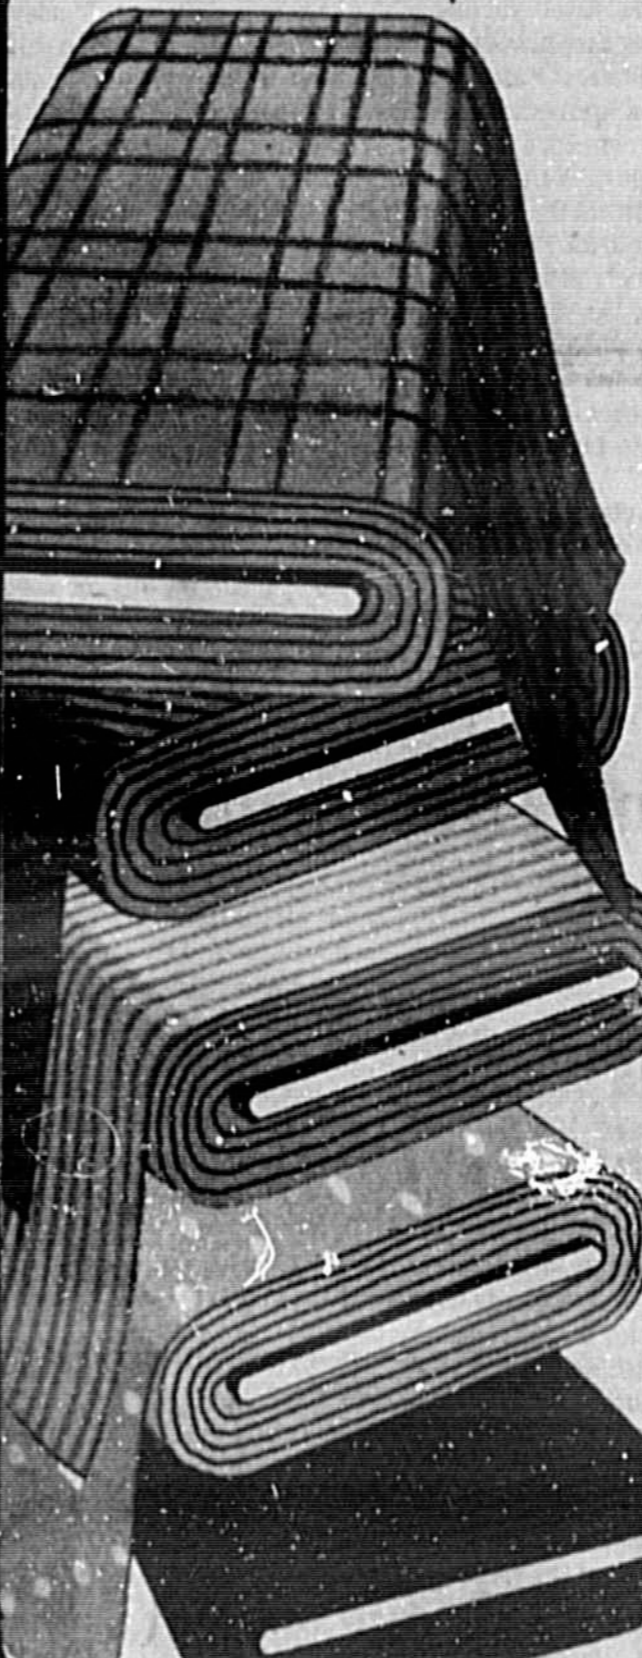

As an added thought, be sure to replace any tools which are damaged. New tools, says the institute, will save energy as well as injury.

The Court's Dilemma: Whether To Switch Trial Site

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

One of the trickiest legal decisions facing a judge today is the demand by a defendant and more rarely, the prosecution for a change of venue.

In effect, the man or woman charged with the crime is saying "I don't trust my neighbors to give me a fair trial — I've already been tried by the press — so lets get the show on the road."

While judges are required to grant a change of venue if questioning indicates potential jurors know enough about the case to open up even the suspicion of prejudice, the court's task is more difficult if the defendant claims publicity alone is enough to prejudice the trial.

In Seminole County, four cases since the Fall have covered most of the problems and risks — inherent in crimes of great public interest with their accompanying glare of publicity.

In the first, a 13-year-old black youth was accused of the first degree murder of a 12-year-old white schoolmate.

Because of the race problem, and because publicity focused on a portrayal of the defendant as a disadvantaged youth, the prosecution requested and was granted by Circuit Judge Volie Williams — a change of venue from Sanford to Titusville.

Eventually, Samuel Geter

pleaded "no contest" to reduced charges of manslaughter, so that the ability of a jury to weigh the evidence free of any prejudice was never tested.

In the second case, shortly after Christmas, long-time Central Florida crime figure Central Florida Blackburn was brought to trial for the 1971 shooting attempt on his former lieutenant, Clyde Lee.

While Blackburn had every reason to fear publicity of his past to be excessive, he and his attorney — confident that Blackburn's record of never being convicted in home county would be continued — did not request a change of venue.

On Jan. 10, a jury of Blackburn's peers acquitted what observers agreed was an astonishing legal trick — first "convicting" as the hired gun a man already acquitted of the Lee shooting, then passing judgment on Blackburn as the money behind the attempted hit.

So Harlan Blackburn, the man who did not fear publicity, is now serving six months to 10 years in prison.

The third case, just recently settled, involved the young Altamonte Springs union organizer accused of hiring the men who burned Air Flow Air Conditioning Company's truck fleet Sept. 19.

Daniel Evans' defense attorney repeatedly raised the issue of excessive publicity making a fair trial impossible — but this time Judge Williams followed the usual practice of refusing to rule on the request until the prospective jury panel in the box and has been questioned by both the prosecution and the defense.

Even though the case had been the subject of front page headlines just a week before the jury came in, none of the men and women picked admitted to specific knowledge of the case beyond the actual fact of the arson itself.

Satisfied, the defense dropped its request for a change of venue. One week later, his peers found Evans guilty of arson and conspiracy.

(Still to come is the almost inevitable change of venue request from William K. Beck, Evans' co-defendant in the case, who was granted a severance prior to Evans' trial and faces his own May 22 date in Seminole County Court House.)

In the fourth and latest case — still to be settled — Circuit Court Judge David Strawn granted a change of Venue based on the evidence of publicity alone, without attempting to seat a local jury.

Strawn, ruling Monday in favor of two of the three men accused of the Feb. 28 kidnap and ransom of Southern Shortening owner George Jackson Jr., later said he didn't feel the expense to the taxpayers was worth the risk, and opted for presumably disinterested citizens of Tampa.

The judge re-scheduled for May 14 the trial of Jesse James Jones Jr. and Frank Lee

Wheeler Jr., commenting "a change of venue motion is kind of like deciding whether to take an airplane flight — if there's any doubt, don't."

"You just can't tell how people are going to react in subtle ways to publicity," the judge said, adding the racial aspects of the case, plus the fact it involved a prominent local business figure, were deciding factors.

Finally, Strawn said, noting the case marked his first change of venue request since becoming a judge in January, 1973, "by granting the switch I can't be wrong — there will be no question of prejudicial knowledge in another area — whereas by refusing the request I could easily turn out to be wrong."

Death Angels Kill For Recognition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — To win recognition and get promoted, they dress neatly and sport to live according "to a puritanical code of moral conduct." But they educate their young in what they call "martial arts," teaching them the "techniques of killing or incapacitating."

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto described the group Wednesday and said it calls itself "Death Angels." He said it is a national organization "dedicated to the murder and mutilation of whites and dissident blacks."

Alioto says the group is responsible for the so-called "Zebra" slayings of 12 whites and the wounding of six others here since last November. All were shot down by young blacks in apparent unprovoked street attacks.

Alioto says the group may be responsible for a total of some 80 "murderous assaults" throughout California since December 1970.

The pattern of killing is by random street shooting or backing to death with machete, cleaver or knife, "Alioto said. "Decapitation or other forms of mayhem bring special credit from the organization for the killers."

"The police have pierced the veil of a vicious ring of murderers called Death Angels. We have the principals involved in the Zebra slayings," said Alioto.

Among those arrested was Tom Manney, 31, a former outstanding football halfback at San Francisco State University from 1960 to 1963.

It was the first major break in Operation Zebra — code-named after a police communications channel — since police began controversial stop-and-search procedures two weeks ago to try to find the killers.

It wasn't the questioning of hundreds of blacks that led to the major break in the case, Alioto said. Instead, it was an informer who may have been enticed by the $30,000 reward put up by organizations and the city.

"I have to assume he was influenced by the reward," said Alioto. He would give no clues as to the identity of the informer.

Nor would police release anything except the names and ages of those arrested. Those to be arraigned along with Manney today were identified as J.C. Simon, 29; Larry Green, 22; Dwight Stallings, 28; Manuel Moore, 23; Edgar Burton, 22; and Clarence Jamerson, 27.

All were booked for investigation of conspiracy to commit murder, said Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca.

Dickinson To Tell Of Bank Charters

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — State Comptroller Fred O. "Bud" Dickinson and his personal secretary, Mamie Mitchell, arrived at the federal building today to appear before a grand jury allegedly investigating Dickinson's handling of bank charters.

While Dickinson waited in an ante room, Mrs. Mitchell entered the jury room two floors below. She carried an attaché case which she handed to Asst. U.S. Atty. Anthony LaSpada after remarking, "It's kind of heavy."

Earlier, Mrs. Mitchell said her subpoena had ordered her to bring to the grand jury some of Dickinson's personal financial records.

Mrs. Mitchell and Dickinson, 52, were accompanied by two attorneys when they arrived at the courthouse building an hour before the 18-member federal grand jury convened.

After Mrs. Mitchell went into the jury room, former State Rep. William Register appeared outside the room. He conferred for a few moments with U.S. Atty. John Briggs; then left.

DURING Wednesday's proceedings in the week-long grand jury probe, former state Rep. William Register, under subpoena to disclose evidence of "any financial transactions" with Dickinson, went before the 18-member panel. He carried two briefcases, presumably containing the financial records he was ordered to bring.

Prosecutors also have subpoenaed banker Tom Dolan, 36, a Cocoa Beach city commissioner.

'Castoffs' Curtail LA's Losing Skein

By DAVE O'HARA

Manager Bobby Winkles of the California Angels thinks he has "a pretty darn good ball club," thanks to contributions from the National League.

What do Nolan Ryan, Bill Singer and Bill Stoneman have in common as pitchers? All are former National League standouts now competing in the quarters of the Angels' starting rotation.

"They, that's right," Winkles said with a grin Wednesday after Stoneman earned his first American League victory in California's 4-2 decision over the slumping Boston Red Sox.

"Those three and my 26-year-old kid, rookie Frank Tanana, give us four solid starting pitchers," Winkles said. "There are some nonbelievers around, but we're not a bad ball club."

We're in second place and now we're going home thinking big," Winkles used his three National League castoffs as the Angels snapped a five-game losing streak and swept a three-game series with the Red Sox, who have lost eight of their last nine starts.

In the other American League games, the New York Yankees beat the Oakland A's 4-3; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Kansas City Royals 2-1; the Milwaukee Brewers routed the Texas Rangers 11-3 and the Chicago White Sox blanked the Baltimore Orioles 5-0.

National League scores: San Francisco 13, Philadelphia 8; San Diego 5, Montreal 1; Cincinnati 5, Pittsburgh 3; Atlanta 6, St. Louis 5; Houston 11, Chicago 7 and Los Angeles 2, New York 1 in 14 innings.

The NASCAR Grand National Championship Series moves to Talladega, Ala., Sunday as 50 cars line up on the 2.66-mile speedway in quest of a piece of the $123,210 in prize money. Three-time Grand National champion David Pearson will be going for his third straight Winston 500 victory.

When another competitor Ramo Stott arrives at Alabama International Motor Speedway, he will be returning to the scene of some of his greatest moments in stock car racing. Stott, from Koekuk, Iowa, has experienced both victory and defeat at Talladega. He has won once and finished second twice. The other times he says he would rather forget. Ramo will be driving a 1974 Chevrolet, the same car he drove to a third place finish in the rich Daytona 500 in February.

Hamo's first encounter with the world's fastest speedway came in 1969 when he finished second in the Vulcan 500 ARCA race. The little Hawkeye captured the ARCA event the following year. In 1972, Stott and James Hylton waged a bumper-to-bumper duel the last 100 miles of the race before Hylton put his Mercury ahead at the finish line.

Pearson, Petty, Yarborough and the Allison will be in the thick of the battle for the pole position won last year by Buddy Baker with a speed of 193.435 miles per hour in a Dodge.

Richard Petty surprised everybody when he showed up at the races with a 362 cubic inch motor. Petty earlier stated in the year that he didn't feel the little block would hold up under his style of driving.

NFL 2-0 In Court, Contracts

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League had one of its most productive days of 1974 Wednesday... and its season still is five months away.

The NFL generally has adopted two lines of attack in attempting to blunt the effect of its rival, the World Football League, and the established league scored victories on both fronts.

One area is the courtroom. The other is the bargaining table.

In Dallas, a State District Court judge issued a temporary injunction prohibiting the NFL from grabbing any more players from the Dallas Cowboys.

Meanwhile in Philadelphia, Harold Carmichael signed with the Eagles, and in Los Angeles, Tom Mack signed with the Rams, both players turning down larger money offers from the NFL. Carmichael, a wide receiver who led the league with 67 receptions last year, signed a three-year contract for an estimated $175,000. Mack, an All-Pro offensive guard who played out his option and would have become a free agent Tuesday night, signed a multi-year contract.

Carmichael's attorney, James N. Solano, elaborated on what could become a NFL rallying cry: "More considerations than just money."

"We did turn down more money from the NFL than we got from the Eagles," Solano said. "But you have to figure that playing in the NFL, with its pension plan, other fringe benefits, endorsements, is worth $500,000."

"So actually there is not that big a difference between the NFL and NFL offers." That's apparently the NFL line in its battle to stay competitive with the NFL in the bidding war for players' services.

"He said, 'Coach, the figures are beautiful.'" Brown added. The loss of Carmichael and Mack, when the NFL was courted, was a disappointment, but the decision in Dallas has the more serious implications for the new league.

Kate Smith Off Flyer's Lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — Philadelphia hopes to finish off New York Rangers in the sixth game of their National Hockey League playoff tonight but the Flyers will have to do it without Kate Smith's help.

It is traditional before sporting events to play the Star Spangled Banner, and in Madison Square Garden tonight a recording of either Jerry Vale or Robert Merrill singing the national anthem will be played.

In Philadelphia, the anthem is played most of the time, but on certain occasions they slip in Miss Smith's rendering of God Bless America instead.

Now none of this would be particularly important except that the Flyers' won-loss record after listening to God Bless America booming through the Philadelphia Spectrum is a remarkable 14-3-1.

Los Schwindel, president of the Spectrum, is the man responsible for deciding when Miss Smith will sing. "We use her for tough games or must games," a club spokesman said.

When the Flyers and Rangers went into Game Five of this semifinal showdown Tuesday night, Philadelphia had lost two straight games and the best-of-seven series was tied 2-2. The game certainly filled Schwindel's criteria for Miss Smith.

So the order was given and on cue, Miss Smith sang, marking her 1974 playoff debut. It just about brought down the house. The fans roared at Miss Smith's voice, knowing their team's record when she sings.

It was very much like the season's opening game, when the Flyers produced Miss Smith in person at center ice to sing her specialty. Standing at the other end of the ice was Toronto

Hutchins KO's Lloyd In Four

By LEE GEIGER
Herald Correspondent

Len "Slinger" Hutchins from Detroit, ran his record to 21-1 and solidified his lofty second place in the night heavyweight rankings by scoring a clean fourth round knockout over Scotty Lloyd of the Bahamas Wednesday night in Orlando. Although the end came at the 2:35 mark, Lloyd appeared ready for the cleaners as early as the third. After a rough first round that was marred by a questionable Lloyd trip to the canvas, the Bahamian came back in the second to rock Hutchins more than once.

Using his usual retreating tactics Lloyd suckerpunched Hutchins into following him into a corner. Bouncing off the ropes with a slightest effort, Lloyd caught the man from the Motor City walking in and forced him to hold on several times.

But it was in the corner that Lloyd met his downfall as Hutchins used powerful body attack to take the heart out of the eventual loser's attack.

A whistling right hand that Hutchins left eye in the third but this only drove "The Slinger" to a more rugged offense. A solid combination of a left hook followed by a right cross had a delayed effect on Lloyd and dropped him a good ten seconds after it landed. Once he was back on his feet it was obvious to all in attendance it was just a matter of time before Hutchins would make his sixth straight knockout victory.

The third and final knock-down came in the fourth from an accumulation of punches, rather than just one big shot.

In a special exhibition, light heavyweight champion Bob Foster displayed his boxing ability by going two rounds each with heavyweights Gene Idollette and Oliver Wright. Much to the displeasure of the crowd the champ was content to work on his jab and defense rather than his famous punching power.

In one of the six round preliminaries Joey Vincent made it two wins in a row in his recent comeback effort by spotting Jerry Hill height, reach and weight and still gave him a sound whipping.

Hill started out like he was going to box Vincent out of the ring in round one. He put together stinging combinations to stagger the Orlandoan and battered him almost at will.

But Vincent found the key to success in the second as he took the fight to the lanky 151 pounder. By roughing up Hill with solid lefts and rights he kept the Flor Lauderite fighter on more interested in stopping punches than he was in throwing them and therein lay the story to the unassuming decision for the 147-pound Vincent.

Hector McBride, took the longest step thus far in his comeback by pouncing out an easy decision over Cisco Reyes of Mexico in a featherweight match.

This win, the third since he laced up the gloves again after a two year lay-off, was his most aggressive showing. Until now, McBride has shown an over-cautiousness in his matches.

Against Reyes, he was the aggressor throughout the bout and scored with sharp lefts and rights. His once-famous punching power is still noticeably absent but his manager Lou Cicussi stated he is satisfied with McBride's current progress.

Batter Up, Batter Down; Dock Ellis Hits 1st Three

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Dock Ellis mowed them down Wednesday night—literally.

Losing all control, the Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher hit Cincinnati's first three batters and not only caused some discomfort but also tied a major league record.

"I've never seen anyone that wild," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson after Ellis' control problems led to a 5-3 victory over the Pirates. "I've never seen anyone hit the first three batters like that."

Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen were struck in the back by Ellis' pitches and that tied a record held by eight others. Emerson Hawley did it twice—with St. Louis in 1874 and with Pittsburgh in 1896. The last pitcher to do it was Hal Sanchez of Cincinnati in 1960.

In the National League's opener games, the San Francisco Giants bombed the Philadelphia Phillies 13-4; the San Diego Padres beat the Montreal Expos 5-1; the Atlanta Braves ripped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5; the Houston Astros tripped the Chicago Cubs 11-7; and

In the American League, the New York Yankees nudged the Oakland A's 4-3; the California Angels stopped the Boston Red Sox 4-2; the Detroit Tigers turned back the Kansas City Royals 2-1; the Milwaukee Brewers ripped the Texas Rangers 11-3 and the Chicago

White Sox blanked the Baltimore Orioles 2-0.

Doubles by Gary Maddox, Bobby Bonds and Steve Ontiveros sparked a nine-run, fifth-inning rally that powered San Francisco's rout of Philadelphia.

The Giants sent 15 batters to the plate in the fifth, overcoming a 6-3 Philadelphia lead with six hits and six bases on balls.

Padres 5, Expos 1

Rockie Dave Freisleben pitched a four-hitter for his second victory in as many major league starts, leading San Diego over Montreal for its fifth straight victory.

Astros 11, Cubs 7

Houston's Lee May hit a pair of two-run singles, rallying Houston past Chicago.

Braves 6, Cardinals 5

Pinch-hitter Frank Tepedino broke a tie with a ninth-inning single, triggering Atlanta past St. Louis. Craig Robinson led off the rally with a single and walks to Ralph Garr and Leo Foster eventually loaded the bases for Tepedino, who drilled a base hit to right.

Dodgers 2, Mets 1

Steve Garvey's run-scoring single in the 14th inning off relief pitcher Harry Parker led Los Angeles over New York. Tom Seaver pitched splendidly for the Mets, striking out a major league season high of 16 batters before retiring after 12 innings.

Toronto Trio Tally To Topple Cougars

TORONTO (AP)—Jack Gibson, Brit Selby and Billy Orr got a little more ice time Wednesday night, much to the regret of the Chicago Cougars.

Each scored a goal to lead the Toronto Toros to a 5-3 triumph over the Cougars and a 3-2 advantage in their association semifinal playoff series.

The sixth game will be played Saturday night in Chicago with the seventh, if necessary, in Toronto next Monday. The winner will meet the Houston Aeros, who eliminated the Minnesota Fighting Saint in six games with a 3-1 decision Wednesday night.

Orr, a defenseman, scored his first goal of the playoffs at 3:46 of the first period to give the Toros a 1-0 lead. Selby made it 2-0 after taking a pass from Gibson.

The teams were tied 3-3 until Gibson scored his first goal of the playoffs at 5:02 of the final period. Guy Trotter clinched the win at 1:08.

Field Day For Derby Hunch Players

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Judegger munched his outs placidly in Stall 71, Barn 42 on the backstretch of ancient Churchill Downs, seeming impervious to the prying eyes of parading visitors.

"That's the same stall Secretariat occupied last year!" Someone asked W.C. Stephens, the slender, bespectacled trainer. "Yep," replied Stephens.

"And Riva Ridge the year before?"

"Yep."

"How did you happen to get that stall? Do you think it will have any significance on the race?" the interrogator pursued the matter.

"Just lucky, I guess," the trainer said. "Maybe it's a good sign."

Horse race buffs are no longer hunch players and are bound to seize on the fact that Judge, the favorite in Saturday's 100th Kentucky Derby, is getting his meals in the same confined, white-boarded quarters held by the last two winners of the sport's most coveted prize.

"I don't know when something like this has happened," said Jerome Hubers, the superintendent of barns at Churchill Downs. He oversees scores of red-roofed stables at the track.

"Just chance," said Raymond Johnson, Ge Derby's publicity director. "Stalls are assigned as the horses arrive."

Put Tampa On Sked
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida Senate has approved 28-4 a resolution urging Florida State University and the University of Florida to include the University of Tampa in their football schedules.

Sen. David McClain, R-Tampa, sponsor of the measure, said the football program of the University of Tampa, a private institution, is being threatened by the National Football League's granting of a franchise for the city.

McClain said the Tampa school's football program would be helped if they were able to include FSU and UF on its schedule.

Twillly Signs Pact
MIAMI (AP)—Wide receiver Howard Twilley, one of the two original Miami Dolphins still on the squad, has signed a new contract with the world champions, team officials said.

Twilley, 30, signed Wednesday for his ninth year with the Dolphins. Last season, the 5-foot-10, 185-pound receiver saw action in six games. The other original Dolphin is tackle Norm Evans.

Also signing contracts Monday were defensive ends Randy Crowder from Penn State and Gerry Roberts from UCLA, a state spokesman said. Crowder was a sixth-round draft choice and Roberts was drafted on the 11th round.

Contract terms were not disclosed.

Canes Go Spanish

MIAMI (AP)—The Miami Toros of the North American Soccer League have acquired defensive man Ralph Wright from the New York Cosmos.

The Toros said Wednesday they gave up a 1973 third-round draft choice for the 29-year-old British national who once played for Southampton.

The Miami team opens its 1974 season Saturday in St. Louis.

Aeros Make Finals
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—"I've never been happier to see a goal go in," said pro hockey's all-time scoring leader Gordie Howe of the Houston Aeros. And he wasn't even on the ice at the time.

Howe, 46, was in the penalty box Wednesday night when the final Aero goal stunned the Minnesota Fighting Saints in the closing seconds of their World Hockey Association playoff battle.

Houston gained a 3-1 victory when the Saints failed in a desperate bid to overcome a one goal deficit in the final moments of the game. The Aeros triumphed 4-2 in the best-of-seven series.

Houston will play the survivor of the Toronto-Cougars series. The Toronto Toros led three games to two after a 5-2 triumph over the Cougars Wednesday night.

Howe was called for tripping against Minnesota's 1:42 left in the game. The Saints pulled their goaltender to put a sixth skater on the ice in an effort to avert.

But Howe's 18-year-old son, Mark, ended the Saints' season by scoring into the unguarded net for his second goal of the game. That put the smile back on his father's face.

Mark Howe led Houston with eight playoff goals in four games against Winnipeg.

Success Story Twist: Academician To Ditch Digger

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. John Coleman has done a Horatio Alger in reverse. He went from college president to ditch-digger, restaurant salad-and-sandwich man and garbage collector.

But now he's back as head of Haverford College in Haverford, Pa., feeling enriched by having taken time off from the academic world to enter the world of the manual laborer.

"I'm still searching for the answers as to why I did it," mused the lean, sandy-haired educator who spent 10 weeks last spring as a blue-collar worker. "I think I just wanted to prove I could work, live in, and be happy in a different world."

After a week spent toughening up at a friend's dairy farm in his native Ontario, Coleman got a job in Atlanta digging sewer ditches for $2.75 an hour and living on his earnings.

"I knew which end of the shovel to use but I was not skilled and never would have been if I'd stayed there two years. Complicated machinery baffles me but I'm envious of those who can operate it," said Coleman, who has written a book about his experiences. "BlueCollar Journal: A College President's Sabbatical."

He had to quit that job after a couple of weeks to return to Philadelphia to preside, as chairman, at the monthly board meeting of the Federal Reserve Bank there.

The next stop was Boston where Coleman, who has written seven books on labor and economics, found it difficult to get a job and was glad to settle for one as a dishwasher. An hour later the proprietor handed him $2 and said, "Sorry, you won't do."

"I was absolutely devastated when I lost that job," he recalled. "My salary check from Haverford was going to the bank each month, but I have never felt more worthless as a person. Because I deal in the world of words, always asking why, it was more frustrating because the boss didn't see the necessity of telling me why I wouldn't do, and that was it."

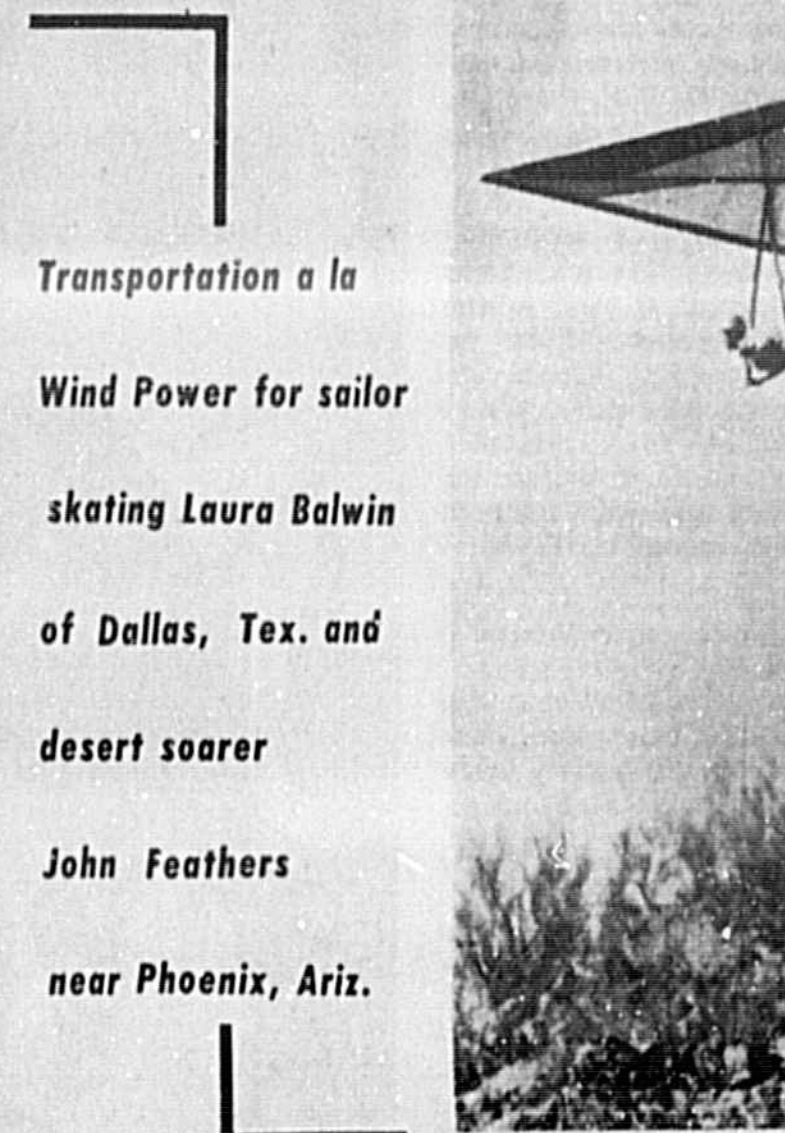

After a few desperate days of job-hunting he was taken on as a salad-and-sandwich man at a Boston seafood restaurant, where his MA and PhD degrees from the University of Chicago were of little value in helping him cope with the steady stream of food orders.

In Coleman's final job at a garbage firm in suburban Maryland he was rebuffed in his attempts to speak to people along his route on four-letter words.

"There's enough insecurity built into everyone that it's very important for people to have someone to look down on," he said. "I took a ride on Sunday wearing a suit, shaved, driving a nice car, and people waved and said hello. The next day I went in their yards to pick up garbage and they'd be contemptuous. Yet I was the same man."

The 52-year-old college president was pleased to learn as a ditchdigger that "I had the physical capacity to survive, which was satisfying to my ego. And I learned to get over my hangups on four-letter words. They sometimes help, rather than hinder, communication."

"In the restaurant work there was the satisfaction of being able to keep up with a complex job and I learned to cope with noise, since I normally work in genteel and quiet surroundings."

"As a garbage collector the biggest lesson was learning of the contempt of people toward one who does the dirty work of society. Soon we'll have to pay so much to get people to do that kind of work that they'll have to get respect."

But the most important outcome of his sabbatical, he added, was to make him more convinced than ever that students should take a break from school, a practice he has long advocated.

"No one should go from high school through college without time out," said Coleman, four of whose five children have already headed that advice. "Our experience has been that the student comes back clearer in his mind about why he wants to be there, gets more out of it and contributes more to the classroom."

He would also like to see faculty members follow that practice. "I believe we would teach

Does O. J. Eastwood Ring A Bell?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Can the National Football League's Most Valuable Player become one on the movie screen?

O. J. Simpson believes so, and he is training for an acting career with the zeal and strategy he has applied to his performances for the University of Southern California—Heisman Trophy winner—and the Buffalo Bills—2,003 yards rushing last season.

"I've been getting leading roles for a lot more money than I've been offered," says the handsome running back, 26. "But I think it's much better for me to sit back and work with actors like Lee Marvin and Richard Burton. Paul Newman and Steve McQueen."

He recently completed a feature role in "The Klansman" with Marvin and Burton and will squeeze in the all-star "The Towering Inferno" before reporting for football practice June 17.

He had misgivings about "The Klansman" after reading the script, a ripe blend of lust, murder and racial conflict in an Alabama backwater. "The script was filled with lines like 'Kill, baby, kill!' and 'Burn, baby, burn!'" he remarked. "I couldn't see myself saying things like that, but I was assured that I could use my own verbiage, and it worked out all right."

Simpson's role in the film has been described as a black militant. Not true, says he.

"He's simply a guy who reacts when he is provoked—you know, sort of like Clint Eastwood when the heaves push' him too far and he goes 'pow!'"

"This guy I play is like that. I'll tell you this: When I kill somebody in the picture, there's going to be applause in the theaters. That's because those guys are so bad."

O. J. remarked that he had learned much from Lee Marvin, William Holden, Fred Astaire and Richard Chamberlain.

"Most of my scenes are with Paul Newman, not McQueen," Simpson remarked. "That's good, because they tell me Newman is a better actor and I can learn more."

Why Not Vote For Tax Cut?

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M.D.

When a first reaction is one of dies, her husband's death. At least, that is the way it was for Ruth D'Angelo and Allen Boyer when they were widowed two years ago.

POLITICAL TRICKS

Approximate of Walter's remarks, a recent report in the newspapers showed that just the paper work of our Federal government costs $36 billion a year!

GOVERNMENT EFFICIENCY

Costs of government could be cut in half in one year if we: (1) Eliminate all taxing forms for average citizens and merely bury the total tax "bite" in a single item that everybody uses, namely fuel.

Establishing Own Identity Is Main Problem Of Widows divorced, widowers or who have never married, Ruth pointed out. Few middle-aged bachelors would want to marry a widow with a family.

"In one of my classes in psychology, we use your textbook, wherein you also attack the growing costs of government."

FAMILY SONG FEST

Ruth and three of her five daughters who are far outnumbered by widows. Both Ruth and Allen said that they have become very suspicious of men they don't know well.

Sports Highlights TV Schedule

NEW YORK (AP)—A recent NBC estimate says sports programming by the three networks peaks in the fall at about 15 per cent of everything the networks air in a given week.

"We're trying to go heavy for sports," Boyles understates, acknowledging that his planned peak percentage of that kind of programming necessarily will fall off as the baseball, NFL and CFL seasons fall off in September and November.

However, he said he hopes to pick up some of the slack with pro basketball, pro ice hockey and pro football on the latter — and some of the network sports attractions local network affiliates may decide not to air.

Boyles, who said his station isn't a network affiliate, was asked why he decided to emphasize the sports world on TV instead of loading up with syndicated and reruns of old network shows.

He had a reasonable answer: "Because of all the people I've talked to in the area in the last four years. They're all hollering there's not enough sports on television here."

McCord Charges Obstruction

WASHINGTON (AP)—Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. charged that President Nixon obstructed justice when he allegedly "sat on information" that perjured testimony had been given in McCord's trial.

McCord testified Wednesday before the Senate Judiciary Committee that the President concealed and suppressed evidence which Nixon knew of through his March 21, 1972, conversation with former White House counsel John W. Inghram.

This was demonstrated by the edited transcript of the tape recorded conversation made public Tuesday, McCord said.

He contended that despite the talk with Dean, Nixon let McCord and fellow Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy be sentenced without disclosing any of the Dean information to the court.

AMC Profits Decline

DETROIT (AP)—American Motors has reported a 58 per cent decline in profits for the first quarter of 1974, compared with earnings for the first three months of 1973.

AMC said Wednesday its first-quarter profits were $6.9 million, or 25 cents a share, compared with $16.5 million, or 61 cents a share, for the comparable period a year ago.

Total sales for the three-month period this year were $488 million, compared with $476 for January-March 1973, American Motors said.

The drop in profits reported by AMC followed the pattern established earlier by the auto industry's Big Three, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, but AMC's decrease was less severe than suffered by the other auto makers.

Stakes Are High But Compulsive Gambler Can't Win

Editor's Note: This article on compulsive gambling, an emotional illness, shows how to recognize the addiction and what is being done to help victims overcome their habit.

By MARCH SPRINGER
The Herald Services

LOS ANGELES—Bob F., 33, is emotionally ill. His sickness is compulsive gambling.

To support his compulsion, he has robbed, embezzled, written bad checks, lied to his wife and caused his 12-year-old to develop an ulcer.

Jay F., 34, of suburban San Pedro also gambles compulsively. Within the last 17 years, he lost $85,000, his first two wives divorced him and he considered suicide.

Although Bob and Jay had been friends in high school, they had not seen each other since until they met one evening at a meeting of Gamblers Anonymous.

Their wives had given them an ultimatum: seek help or agree to divorce.

At Gamblers Anonymous, they confessed to themselves and others not only their compulsion but the moral and civil crimes to which it led.

Since GA was founded in 1967, about 4,000 men and women have joined. The U.S. Department of Public Health estimates the number of compulsive gamblers in the United States at six million.

For millions more, gambling is a harmless form of recreation.

But for others, it is an addiction as powerful as drugs, but with no visible signs, no alcoholic's breath or needle marks.

Why does this pastime for some become a compulsion for others? When does reason, and the certain knowledge that the gambler ultimately will lose give way to an irrational sense of urgency?

GA offers no definitive answers. But its researchers have concluded that compulsive gamblers do share some characteristics. These are, according to GA's book, "Questions and Answers,"

"ability and unwillingness to accept reality," "emotional insecurity" and "immaturity."

A compulsive gambler, GA says, "is emotionally comfortable only when in action."

It is not uncommon to hear a GA member say, "The only place I really felt like I belonged was sitting at the poker table. There I felt secure and comfortable."

"No great demands were made upon me. I knew I was destroying myself, yet at the same time, I had a certain sense of security."

A compulsive gambler also is "unwilling to grow up," GA says.

"He seems to have a strong inner urge to be a big shot, and needs to have a feeling of being all-powerful. He is willing to do anything to maintain the image of himself he wants others to see."

Bob F. readily admits that the definitions apply to him.

"When you're a compulsive gambler, you've got a big ego," he said. "You may have $20 in your pocket but you walk into a place and want to make them think you've got $400 or more."

But compulsive gambling is more than childish bravado. It is, Bob says, an intense emotional need that overpowers logic and will.

Bob describes it as a "feverish feeling—an excitement."

"You're in a fantasy land. You know you're going to lose, but it doesn't matter. You want that excitement. It's the thrill. And it's an escape. When you're gambling, you have no problems at all."

For Bob, the excitement first was felt in 1965 at card clubs. For the next three years, he said, "I gambled anything I could get my hands on."

When his salary was gone, he robbed stores or wrote bad checks. He embezzled and was caught. His mother paid the $1,000 bond. He embezzled again and was jailed.

"Anytime I had money, I would go back to the tables. I was a liar, a con artist and a thief."

In 1969, Bob's wife left him "because she never knew when she was going to have food on the table or anything."

"I begged her to take me back," he said. "I promised I wouldn't gamble anymore."

"That lasted two weeks—until I got my first paycheck. Then I was off and running again," Bob said.

On May 5, 1970, Bob's wife found GA and again threatened to leave him if he refused to join. That was the last day Bob laid a bet.

It was Jay's wife, too, who found GA. She, too, had given him an ultimatum.

For Jay, the "feverish" feeling first had occurred 17 years earlier at the horse races.

"We made a list of all persons we had harmed and became willing to make amends to them all," he said.

"We continued to take personal inventory and when we were wrong, promptly admitted it."

The creed also told members to "believe that a power greater than ourselves could restore us to a normal way of thinking and living" and to "humbly ask God (or our understanding) to remove our shortcomings."

GA claims, however, that it is not a religious society. Its members include atheists, agnostics, Jews, Catholics, Buddhists and Protestants.

But it does maintain that some form of higher power—and thought about driving my car off the end because I made life miserable for myself and everybody else."

When Bob and Jay went to Gamblers Anonymous, they met others for whom gambling had become an obsession. They also were introduced to the ritualism of GA meetings, which like most rituals, was intended to give structure and meaning to what had become chaotic, irrational lives.

The GA rules required first that members "admit we were powerless over gambling—that our lives had become unmanageable," Bob said.

Bob related the recovery program's list of steps, a kind of creed recited at the beginning of each meeting, also included:

"We made a searching and fearless moral and financial inventory of ourselves;

"We admitted to ourselves and to other human beings the exact nature of our wrongs;

"We made a list of all persons we had harmed and became willing to make amends to them all."

"I lost my first wife to gambling and I still didn't stop. I never paid a bill. When I remarried, it lasted six weeks. She told me I had a choice between her and the horses and cards. I took gambling."

At 28, Jay married again—and I almost lost her."

"I took all her savings account and blew it. I didn't care about the bills. I would lie all the time. Catholics, Buddhists and Protestants."

"I was gambling 12 hours a day, seven days a week. I would gamble until 5 a.m., come home and have a cup of coffee and go to work. I didn't even go to my folks' house for Christmas. I'd stay for two hours and say I had to go somewhere."

One night, he said, "I drove out to the end of Gaffney Street and they remind each other, defined as each member sees fit—controls everything."

Under this theory, GA members are encouraged not to agonize about the past or future but to live one day at a time. And they remind each other, emotional dependency. They frequently, but compulsively, but frequently, but their crimes alone were a form of gambling, they say, and end in themselves.

The circle of men includes govern." The recitation continues around the circle.

Then it is over, the men glancing around the room, waiting for one of them to walk to the podium. Finally, Bob nods to Danny.

"I never knew I was a compulsive gambler before I found GA," he said. "I never realized what my problem was. I just kept blowing lots of money."

"Then at GA, when everyone stood up and related their story, it all related to me—every story was my story."

Next, a blond, blue-eyed, convicted bank robber from Chicago moves to the podium.

"I'm a compulsive gambler," he says.

"But what makes it bad is that I'm also a good robber. There's no vault I can't open, no alarm I can't handle."

"But then I go to the racetrack and I'm broke."

"I need this program like a psychiatrist because I'm crazy. If I don't join GA again when I get out, I'm going to go out and get a loan from the bank and gamble again."

"If I don't make it with GA, it's all over—I have no more chances. I'll wind up in prison for good."

One after the other, the inmates describe lives spent in and out of prison and crimes counterfeiter, bookies, a bank robber, a New Jersey hustler, a Mafia "soldier," a drug pusher, an ex-boxer convicted of manslaughter and two co-owners of several San Francisco restaurants who were convicted of tax evasion.

For these men, like the 4,000 other members of Gamblers Anonymous (GA) beyond the prison, arrives with the keys, the men follow him to a second-story room in the prison's recreation building. Soon, Bob and Jay also arrive to begin.

The inmates, dressed in identical beige khaki pants and beige or Army green shirts, arrange their folding chairs in a circle, distribute coffee can ashtrays and wait for the meeting to begin.

Some of the men are compulsive gamblers—some they are addicted to what they describe as the excitement, the emotional high of gambling.

A second inmate continues: "Our GA leaders are not trusted servants; they do not committed for money lost gambling.

A convicted parrot dealer explains how he once robbed a bank for gambling fare and went to prison. Figuring "there had to be a better way," he said, "I started dealing in dope."

"I just ran out of money," he explained.

Then, as if to leave no doubt in anyone's mind about the power of the gambling urge, he added, "I'd even rather gamble than be with a girl right now."

"I never knew I was a compulsive gambler before I found GA," he said. "I never realized what my problem was. I just kept blowing lots of money."

"When I was a bookmaker, I was making pretty good money. But as soon as I'd take in the money, I'd bet it all back. After it was all gone, I had to go out and get counterfeit money."

"I just ran out of money," he explained.

Pet Sitters: They're A Dog's Best Friend

The Herald Services
 Los Angeles—If Fido sulks and refuses to eat when you leave him in a kennel while you're out of town, maybe what he needs is a pet sitter.

He'll still miss you, but he'll be able to stay in his own home where he'll feel more secure.

With a pet sitter, Fido can camp in his own backyard, curl up in his favorite chair for a snooze and be surrounded by familiar smells and objects while you're away.

Sandra Rice and Ann Fisher always have hired someone to sit with their pets while they are away from their suburban Lawnside home. Now they sit for other people's pets.

The two women turned their love of animals into a full-time business which provides specialized services for pet owners.

When they started Fido's Utopia 18 months ago, Ms. Fisher and Ms. Rice only had enough money to pay for printing their business cards. Soon they will be moving their business from their home to an old movie studio in Los Angeles.

"Dogs are so much happier at home than in a cage in a kennel," says Ms. Fisher.

"We always meet the pet before his owner goes away. We ask for the name of the owner's nearest relative and the pet's veterinarian."

She says she makes sure she has the authority to take the pet to its veterinarian for treatment of the animal becomes ill or is injured.

Ms. Fisher was a machinist before her involvement in Fido's Utopia. Ms. Rice worked at a multitude of things, including one summer as an animal trainer.

"I always reverted back to working with animals in some way," says Ms. Rice.

Besides their deep affection and concern for animals, the two women worry about how they can help senior citizens improve their lives.

"It's a sad society when older persons have no place and no way to be self-supporting," says Ms. Rice. "They need to have a sense of usefulness so we try to use senior talent as pet sitters."

She says the money the senior citizens earn enables them to live more comfortably.

Mrs. Kristina Coffey, 73, of nearby Torrance, says being a pet sitter is a pleasant way for her to earn extra money and to meet new people.

"Each animal is different," she says. "You have to treat them kindly, but you can't let them get the upper hand."

Besides feeding the animals she sits for, Mrs. Coffey

"You haven't any idea how animals will respond to love," she says.

Some People Can't Talk Of Their Money Har-gup

The Herald Services
 Los Angeles—What's too private, too shocking, too shameful to tell a psychiatrist? A man will confess he sucks his thumb, leaves his mother and gazes a quart of vodka with breakfast.

He'll admit he sleeps with his teddy bear and that his sexual history could be told in a paragraph.

But just try to get him—or anyone else—to tell you how he feels about money.

"People just can't talk about it," says Dr. Charles Stone of the Department of Psychiatry at Harbor General Hospital in nearby Torrance.

They can't, but they should, says the doctor.

Hangups about money upset marriages, influence careers and batter psyches.

"With troubled marriages, there's no line of inquiry more fruitful than talking about money," says Stone. That's what he says, Masters and Johnson.

"Everybody—married or single—has strong feelings about money," he says.

It's as crucial as sex—more so to many. But Stone points out we can talk more freely about sex than about money.

Because we aren't used to discussing our feelings about money we don't realize emotional conflicts may be influencing the way we use it.

We may be overvaluing, cheating, penny-pinching or hoarding because of guilt, helplessness, self-hate, anger or a lust for power we can't acknowledge.

"Some people think not having enough money is a problem. But believe me, financial excess is a problem for people, too, because it

Mazda Sales Up Despite Put-Down

By JAMES A. GROTH
 The Herald Services

It seems rather hard to sympathize with a company whose sales have doubled in the last year and yet complains of bad publicity.

But, strange as it may seem, that is what has happened with Mazda Motors. The federal Environmental Protection Agency dealt the company a blow when it announced last year that the Mazda Rotary only got in the neighborhood of 10 to 11 miles per gallon of gas. And it didn't take the competition long to get on the bandwagon and give the figures all the publicity they could possibly handle. Still Mazda sales went up.

"It's hard to measure how much the announcement hurt us," says C.R. (Dick) Brown, vice president and general manager of Mazda Motors of America. "Because we still doubled our sales over last year. In May, when the EPA figures were announced we still showed dramatic increases in sales, but I'd say it cost us about 30,000 units."

After a nearly one-year fight with the EPA, Mazda finally won a retest and the results were much better.

The original EPA test was strictly a cold-start city cycle, which means you leave your car with the engine off for 12 hours, start it up and drive for seven and a half miles in start-and-stop city driving. This type of driving accounts for only about 20 per cent of all driving.

This time the EPA tested in all three types of driving, the cold-start city cycle, the hot-start city cycle, which accounts for about 30 per cent of all driving, and highway driving, which accounts for about 50 per cent.

The Mazda got 12.8 miles per

Canner Defends Watered Food

By FRANK MACMORER
 The Herald Services

Ever wonder why canned foods contain so much water, syrup, juice or gravy?

Some housewives who have been opening cans for years complain that sometimes there seems to be too much liquid, but Walter DeVault, assistant to the president of the Blytheville Canning Co., Blytheville, Ark., insists the canning industry's processes are aimed at giving the consumer the best possible product and protecting the public health as well.

"The purpose of canning is to preserve food by heat sterilization so it will not spoil," said DeVault in an interview. "This is accomplished through convection heat applied to the outside of a filled and sealed can."

"The presence of water is necessary to exclude the presence of air," DeVault points out that all three common methods of preserving foods—dehydration, freezing and canning—are used to prevent spoilage and lengthen consumer usability.

"Dehydration is not very satisfactory for vegetables because of loss of flavor and texture," he said. Freezing is "Without the liquid medium, the food on the circumference of the can would overcook, while the food in the center would be undercooked and perhaps sterilized and result in spoilage of the contents of the can."

Low Octane Gasoline Can Damage Engines

By JEFFREY ABBOTT
 The Herald Services

In this era of energy conservation and rising inflation, motorists are watching every penny as gasoline prices continue to soar.

One way to cut down on fuel costs is to switch from premium to regular grade gasoline.

Premium may be just great, you tell yourself, but now that you're driving slower and you don't really NEED that added performance, you'll fill 'er up with regular and save a few bucks.

You may save a little at the gas station, but may well be paying more in the long run when your mechanic tells you that you need a valve job.

The problem is octane.

Back in the days before the Arab oil embargo, refineries turned out higher octane fuels than they do today. Premium fuels with octane ratings of 100 or more were not uncommon. And regular grade gas was consistently rated at between 89 and 92 octane. In the middle were such blends as "super regular" and "regular plus" in the mid-90 octane range.

Today a motorist is lucky to find premium fuel rated at over 95 octane. And regular has dropped to as low as 85 octane.

Many motorists, however, are unaware of the fact that lower than recommended grade fuels can do engine damage.

Economist: Interest Rate Trend Down

The Herald Services — which gave rise to two (contradictory) fears of both faster inflation and a shift to monetary restriction; (4) new fears of an imminent end to recession and early economic recovery that would lift demand and prices in an economy already plagued by inadequate capacity and materials shortages; and (5) increased evidence of worldwide inflation that would supposedly spill over into faster inflation and higher interest rates in the U.S. economy.

Parks' judgment is that in the main these forces will run their course, that inflation will in fact slow and that the basic trend of interest rates is down.

Researchers for E. F. Hutton & Co. believe Colonial Stores could show a 25 per cent earnings gain this year to $3.05 a share. Contributing are an ongoing expansion program, more flexible pricing within the supermarket industry, the absence of costs incurred last year to insure adequate fresh meat supplies and to close 36 marginal units, and 11 per cent fewer shares due to repurchasing.

A possibly Apocryphal story, attributed to Baron Nathan de Rothschild, relates to gold. When asked about gold, he said: "There are only two men who know about gold. One is a director of the Bank of England. The other is a clerk in the Bank of France. The trouble is they disagree."

Argus Research Corp. says this story in a nutshell accurately describes the problem of analyzing the market for gold, and in forecasting its price. Argus concludes that gold "is not about to be restored to its former monetary throne," and therefore "the investor would be wise to view it as just another commodity — a commodity whose demand curve is subject to far more than the usual list of vagaries."

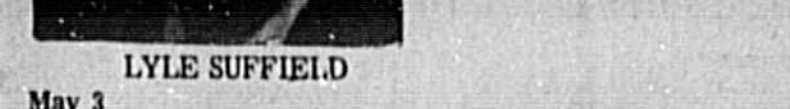

The Fair Value Modification Act of September, 1973, gave the president the authority to allow U.S. citizens to again hold gold. The president merely has to determine that the U.S. balance of payments would not be adversely affected by private ownership of gold.

Stromberg-Carlson Gets Philippines Video Contract

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—Stromberg-Carlson Corporation, a subsidiary of General Dynamics, has received an $869,000 contract to provide an integrated voice and video telecommunications system for the new Heart Center for Asia, now under construction in Quzon City, Philippines. The system includes 40 Vistaphone units.

The $15 million Heart Center for Asia will serve as a center for heart research and education as well as for the treatment of heart disorders. It will contain a nursing care unit with 150 single bedrooms equipped with heart monitoring devices. In addition, there will be emergency and observation rooms, operating rooms and an intensive care unit.

Stromberg-Carlson's Vistaphone picture telephones, which are equipped with both wide-angle and "zoom" capability, will be used in a variety of applications. The 40 units will be interconnected through the switching system, making each video unit accessible from any other Vistaphone station. These units will allow remote viewing of X-rays, charts and patient records, as well as permitting medical consultation and other administrative applications. They will be located at nursing stations, in record centers, classrooms, laboratories and administrative offices.

In addition to the Vistaphones, the Heart Center will use an 800-line Crossreed E-800 matrix, 800 Tone-Dial push-button telephones and several key telephone systems. The Center's communications system will contain a number of standard and optional features of the Crossreed system, including conference calling, consultation calls, dial transfer and abbreviated dialing. Special one-digit numbers will permit rapid calling of nursing stations and the signaling of a medical or "Code Blue" emergency. A number display on the operator's console identifies the calling telephone, enabling the operator to dispatch assistance to that location.

The Crossreed system's inherent speed makes it ideal for hospital use. Call connections through this system are virtually instantaneous. Tone-Dial pushbutton telephones are used to take full advantage of the system's speed.

The communications system for the Heart Center for Asia will be installed by Stromberg-Carlson and V. Esguerra Communications Equipment Company, Stromberg-Carlson's sales representative in the Philippines. It is scheduled to go into service in early 1975.

The Center is a project sponsored by the First Lady of the Philippines, Mrs. Imelda Romauldez Marcos, who is also Chairman and President of the Heart Foundation of the Philippines Inc. The project is being financed by the Government Service Insurance System.

Bank Summarizes U.S. Economy

NEW YORK (AP)—Here is a concise summary of the United States economy that is being distributed this week by the Chase Manhattan Bank to its corporate customers and correspondent banks:

THE GENERAL BUSINESS SLOWDOWN IS NOW AN ESTABLISHED FACT. The odds currently favor a moderate decline in output rather than a severe drop.

Activity has tumbled in the two areas where extreme weakness was expected—autos and housing—and there are signs of hesitation in consumer spending for some other products.

But the outlook for capital spending is still good. Inventories are not yet out of hand, and monetary and fiscal policy are geared toward promoting expansion.

THE SLIDE SHOULD BE LIMITED. Expansionary public policies and strong capital spending by private business should limit the current slide to 1 per cent or 2 per cent, in real terms, from the late-1973 peak.

That decline likely will be spread over a period of two or three quarters of the year. By fall, business should begin to recover—slowly at first, but more rapidly by the second quarter of 1974.

THE ECONOMY IS VULNERABLE. "Unquestionably, the economy is in a highly vulnerable condition. In addition to energy problems and associated uncertainties about foreign trade, certain setbacks could develop."

Lack Of Evidence Frees Zebra Four

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four of seven men arrested in connection with a wave of "Zebra" murders here have been freed for lack of evidence, police say.

Police Sgt. William Kearny identified those freed Thursday night as Thomas Manney, 31, a star football player at San Francisco State University in the early 1960s; Clarence Jamerson, 37; Dwight Stallings, 28; and Edgar Burton, 22.

They had been booked in investigation of conspiracy to commit murder.

Kearny said the four were released because it became evident "during the course of the investigation that no further procedures against them are feasible at this time."

He said Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca planned a news conference on the matter today.

But formal murder and other charges had been filed against the three other men still in custody—Larry C. Green, 22; J.C. Simon, 29; and Manuel Moore, 29, police said. They are to appear Monday before a county grand jury.

The new developments were disclosed as Mayor Joseph L. Alioto was en route to Washington, D.C., to consult with U.S. Atty. Gen. William B. French on his theory that an organization called "Death Angels" was linked to some 80 killings in California.

Alioto says those 80 killings include 12 murders in a six-month period here in a case San Francisco police have code-named "Zebra" after a communications channel. Six other persons were wounded.

All of the "Zebra" victims were white. They were shot down in apparent unprovoked attacks by young blacks, police say.

Green was charged in connection with a case not listed by police as part of the "Zebra" file, the Oct. 20 kidnaping and decapitation of Mrs. Quita Hogue, 28. Also charged in that case was Jesse Lee Cooks, now serving a life sentence for murder.

Green and Cooks are charged with conspiracy to commit murder, murder, kidnaping, armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, Chief Asst. District Atty. Walter Giubbini said.

Police say Mrs. Hogue was beheaded with a machete-like weapon and her husband, Richard, 30, savagely beaten and slashed in the attack. They were forced into a white van as they walked near their Telegraph Hill home, police said.

Moore and Simon are accused of shooting down Jane Holley on Jan. 28 as she removed clothes from a washer at a downtown laundromat and slaying Alario Bertuccio, 81, with gunfire as he walked home from work on Dec. 20.

Moore also is charged with shooting Terry White, 15, and Ward Anderson, 18, at a San Francisco bus stop on April 14. Both teen-agers survived.

Police had listed all four victims as targets of "Zebra" attacks.

Police said a white Dodge van seized in a raid Wednesday at the Black Self-Help Co., a moving and storage business, appeared to be a key piece of evidence in the case.

Officers said they are investigating to determine whether it was the same van used in the kidnaping of the Hagues.

Mannev, Burton and Jamerson were arrested in or near the Black Self-Help Co. on Wednesday.

Alioto said an informer, possibly enticed by a $30,000 reward, provided the major break in the case. He said the "Death Angels" dress neatly and purport to live according to a "puritanical code of moral conduct."

Ervin, Baker: Dean Truthful

WASHINGTON (AP)—The ranking Republican and Democrat on the Senate Watergate committee say presidential transcripts largely corroborate the sworn testimony of John W. Dean III despite White House claims that he is a liar.

In separate statements, Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Thursday the transcripts tend to bolster the credibility of Dean, the former White House counsel who became President Nixon's chief accuser.

At a Philadelphia news conference, Baker also said the committee's final report may be delayed beyond the May 28 target date because the transcripts have opened "new lines of inquiry including the search for possible perjury by Nixon's associates at last summer's hearings."

In Washington, Ervin described the transcripts as "revealing and astounding" and said they "very strongly corroborate" Dean's Watergate testimony.

He contended the transcripts cast a different light on the President's story that he told Dean he would be wrong to offer executive clemency to the Watergate defendants. The White House said when it released the transcripts this week that they clearly showed Nixon's innocence of complicity in the Watergate break-in and cover-up. White House officials said the transcripts also branded Dean as a perjurer.

Although Baker said a delay may be needed, Ervin said there are no plans to ask the Senate to extend the committee's mandate beyond May 28 to allow extra time for the reasoning could be done to change land uses.

"The amendment process is very lengthy," he warned. "I'm just bringing out problems that may arise," the former county planner added, "and suggesting you need to do 're-thinking' on the present plan that the city hasn't followed closely."

Farr estimated revamping the city's land use plan alone will cost $10,000 to $15,000. "Somebody, not necessarily me, would have to do the work."

He estimated other studies and plans required under the pending legislation would cost Sanford another $80,000 even though current traffic and drainage, and sewer-water plans can be updated.

"Personally I believe, if the ELMS Act passes," Farr said, "the city's zoning board may find itself with no reason for existing. Rezoning would become a time-consuming administrative function."

panel's staff to work information from the White House transcripts into the final report.

Wednesday, Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel, said the deadline would be met but that the committee might decide to file a supplemental report at a later date if that became necessary.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said no such request had been made to him but that he expects the Senate would be sympathetic if the request were made.

"Much of the testimony of conflicting statements and John Dean has been apparent perjury would be corroborated," Baker said, adding that he based his opinion on reading about half of the massive set of transcripts.

He said any evidence of conflicting statements and apparent perjury would be given to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

Ervin said the transcripts "very strongly corroborate" Dean's Watergate testimony.

COSTUME PARTY

improving his life style, he traded in his faded jeans and sporting for expensive clothes, styled cuffure, trimmed mustache and flashy sports car.

His rise was so convincing that one dealer Mazzara worked with cried in disbelief when he was arrested during a roundup of suspects Tuesday night, the newspaper said.

Mazzara said he had himself arrested last August during a raid on a drug hangout and then began to work his way up the ladder as a drug dealer. He said he increased his drug buys from $200 a shot to $1,000 and once flashed $50,000 in cash to make a $6,000 purchase.

He said that at one point, a contact told him: "You're moving too fast now, man. I wouldn't give you a nickel that you'll live six months."

However, Mazzara said he continued to make bigger and bigger buys and eventually became a close associate of some of Detroit's principal dope dealers.

Mazzara's deals and wiretaps of the top peddlers also led federal agents to major dealers in New York and Texas, law enforcement officers said.

Asked why he took the assignment, Mazzara said, "I guess it's just a lot of ambition. I wanted to be the best."

Sanford Faces Hike In Land Plan Costs

By BOB LLOYD City Editor

Sanford faces a $75,000 expense in updating its comprehensive land use plan and supplements if pending statewide or local acts are passed by the legislature.

City Planner David Farr broke the news Thursday

Earlier, Sanford officials said they believed the city would have much less expense in meeting the numerous specifications set forth in the statewide ELMS Act or county commission-proposed county-wide land use planning act.

Farr said Thursday, however, that his studies show Sanford will have to completely revamp its current land use plan. "If either of the pending acts passes," he said, "we'll have to go into finite detail, establish more policies and even pinpoint all future school, fire, police and public service sites."

Farr said the pending proposals would require completion of the planning work by 1977 and would require amendment of plans before any rezoning could be done to change land uses.

I really don't know if the following is based on actual facts. But, then again, it really doesn't matter that much.

I do know that it was written by a ninth grade student at Croombs High School in Sanford. After reading it, I was very much moved.

I'm hoping that it will have the same effect on you, also.

It's entitled, "A Little Girl's Letter to God."

"Dear God,"

"Why does Mommy cry when she looks at me. I went to my room for my doll and Mommy cried. She picked me up and held me close. I like Mommy to hold me in her lap."

"Mommy smells good. I wish my puppie, Maggie, smelled as good. Then Maggie could sleep with me and keep me warm at night."

"God, why doesn't Roy come home anymore? I heard Daddy tell Roy to get out. God, why did they say that to my brother? God, why doesn't Roy walk straight anymore?"

"Mommy said Roy had stars in his eyes. Was there something wrong with my brother, God?"

"Daddy said I can't talk to Roy anymore. I used to go to the park with Maggie sometimes."

"Roy said when I get bigger I can blow grass. And punch holes in my arm. What does that mean? I like to pick a blade of grass and blow it through my fingers, but I won't stick holes in my arm because it wouldn't look pretty."

"God, why does Mommy dress in black and why does Daddy cry? Where are we going? I wonder why?"

"God, what's in that big box? Is it for me? What could it be? Is it a toy? Why are they putting it in the ground?"

"God, where's Roy?"

Court Opens Land Trusts

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida Senate today approved a bill that would require secret land trusts dealing with the state to reveal their membership.

Gov. Reubin Askew, meanwhile, called a bill-signing ceremony to ink his signature to a measure that will save senior citizens up to $100 on property taxes by doubling to $10,000 their homestead exemption on city and county taxes.

The bill, approved on a 34-6 vote of the Senate, would apply to all land deals the state was involved in.

Maryland Disbars Agnew

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Calling Spiro T. Agnew morally obtuse, the Maryland Court of Appeals has prohibited the former vice president from practicing law.

"It is difficult to feel compassion for an attorney who is so morally obtuse that he consciously cheats for his own pecuniary gain that government he has sworn to serve, completely disregards the law."

Mazzara said he was threatened with death several times. He refused to carry a gun because it might have revealed his true role.

"I wanted to stay as far removed from being identified as a police officer as I possibly could," he said.

Mazzara, on the Detroit force just three years, said he learned to change his character roles and attitudes as he rapidly moved up in the drug world during his assignment.

He first pretended to be a hippie, sporting a woolly hairdo and a pierced ear. Then to show his drug associates he was words of the oath he uttered when first admitted to the bar and absolutely fails to perceive his professional duty to act honestly in all matters," the court said.

The state's highest court disbarred Agnew on Tuesday because he pleaded no contest last October to a charge he evaded about $13,500 in federal taxes when he was governor of Maryland in 1967.

Wheeling-Dealing Vice Cop Shatters Detroit Dope Pals

DETROIT (AP)—During his eight months in the dope racket, Vincent Mazzara was known to his drug friends as a fast wheeler-dealer who spent thousands of dollars on heroin and cocaine.

That image was shattered when federal and local authorities broke a dope ring and confiscated an estimated $6 million in drugs on information supplied by Mazzara—a Detroit police officer.

Mazzara's role in the recovery of 13½ pounds of heroin and four pounds of cocaine—largest in the city's history—was told Thursday by The Detroit News.

"It's hard to think that it's over," Mazzara, 24, said of an undercover life during which he was threatened with death several times. He refused to carry a gun because it might have revealed his true role.

"I wanted to stay as far removed from being identified as a police officer as I possibly could," he said.

$4 Million For Patty Ignored

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP)—A $4 million offer for the return of kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, ignored for a month by her terrorist kidnapers, expires tonight.

The money is in an escrow fund in a San Francisco bank, deposited a month ago by the Hearst Corp. It will be available for use in resuming a massive food distribution program for the poor if the 29-year-old National News Service heiress, known as "Sally" in the ranks of the San Francisco Examiner, has expressed a belief she was brainwashed by her kidnapers

Judge Kills 'Gate Count

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. today dismissed a Watergate perjury indictment against Sidney Glazer and a new indictment may be drawn up by Hart in dismissing the original indictment.

Hart ruled that Watergate prosecutors wrongly indicted Glazer for testimony that, because of its wording, was literally true.
