Illegal pipe manufacturer busted

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Members of the City County Investigative Bureau, CCIB, arrested four persons yesterday on charges of manufacturing drug paraphernalia. The suspects were taken into custody at the Spanish Trace Apartments near Altamonte Springs.

Arrested were Michael Zabel, 24, of Altamonte Springs; Glenna Clukey, 21, of Casselberry; Johnathan Cohen, 24, of Altamonte Springs; and William Nidy, 23, Winter Park.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, CCIB agents said the living room table in the apartment was set up in an assembly line where 150 marijuana smoking pipes were being manufactured.

McDonough said the pipes were designed so a person would not have to touch their lips to the device, apparently in order to avoid the spread of disease.

CCIB officers believe the pipes were to be distributed on the west coast.

Reno to announce deputy choice

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Janet Reno is expected to name Jamie S. Gorelick, the Pentagon's top lawyer, to the No. 2 post in the Justice Department.

Gorelick, 43, would become deputy attorney general, a government official said Tuesday. The announcement could come today.

The job was left vacant in January by the resignation of Phillip B. Heymann.

Gorelick had been preparing William J. Perry for his Senate confirmation hearings for the post of secretary of defense. It was a task she also undertook in coaching Reno for her nomination, and reportedly deeply impressed the attorney general.

At the Pentagon, Gorelick worked closely with military and civilian officials in crafting the administration's policy on homosexuals serving in the military. She won praise from members of the armed services committees for her straightforward testimony on the issue.

Before going to the Pentagon, Gorelick was president of the District of Columbia Bar, and in private practice represented clients like General Electric Company and National Public Radio.

In 1988, she was an adviser on criminal justice issues to Michael S. Dukakis' presidential campaign.

Michel hurt in car accident

WASHINGTON — House Minority Leader Bob Michel required 49 stitches to close a head wound suffered in an automobile accident outside the Capitol.

Michel, R-Ill., was a passenger in a car that was pulling out of a parking area and was hit by another car Tuesday.

He was taken to George Washington University Hospital. Hospital spokeswoman Terry Abdo says he left with 49 stitches in a laceration on his forehead.

Michel's office said his driver was not injured. The unidentified driver of the other car was examined at the hospital and released.

Sanford teen burglar to get 25-year prison sentence as habitual offender

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A 19-year old man, described by Sanford Police as a one man crime spree last summer, will be sentenced as a habitual offender next month to 25 years in prison after pleading guilty or no contest to 22 burglary and theft related charges.

Kevin Lee Smith, 19, will be sentenced March 30 on the numerous cases of break-ins, grand theft and burglaries of vehicles, homes and businesses. Smith was arrested Aug. 1 after a homeowner found him trying to break into his daughter's car. At two of the crime scenes, police found "a calling card"— human feces.

Assistant state attorney Trish Piedrahita said Smith has agreed to be sentenced as a habitual offender to a 25-year prison sentence.

Several of the burglaries Smith admitted to were in and around the Sanford historic district. Some of the reported break-ins were on Elm, Laurel, Park, Mellonville, Grandview avenues, Osceola Drive, El Portal, 26th Street, Clear Lake Circle in Hidden Lakes

The Environmental Protection Agency, EPA, has determined that ground water surrounding the Sanford police station at 815 S. French Ave., has become contaminated from gasoline which leaked from gas storage tanks several years ago. The problem is not said to be any cause for concern to nearby residents. Work is now underway in the parking lot area to filter the water supply and return it to the surface. The extensive task is expected to cause parking difficulties for a long while.

Graduations to move indoors

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — After years of complaints of too hot conditions, the threat of inclement weather and increasing lawsuits based on injuries on school property, the school board voted last night to mandate that beginning in June 1995 all high school graduations must take place indoors.

The board agreed unanimously that the graduation ceremonies must take place "in an air conditioned indoor facility."

There was some disagreement, however, on whether or not the board could mandate which facility schools must use.

For the last two years, Lake Mary and Lake Brantley high schools have held their commencement ceremonies at the Orlando Arena (the "O-rena") in downtown Orlando since no Seminole County facility could accommodate all the students and their friends and families.

Similarly, Oviedo and Lake Howell high schools went to Orange County to the UCF Arena last year in order to accommodate their large classes' needs.

Those schools made the decision to hold the graduations away from school property of their own accord. In the future, the schools will have no choice.

The board had wanted to force the move for this year, but scheduling conflicts are already prohibitive.

The potential of the Orlando Magic hosting an NBA play-off game at the O-rena seems increasingly possible, officials at that facility told school board staff and the games would occur in early June as would the commencement ceremonies.

Schools could be bumped in favor of the basketball play-offs.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Utility complaints declined last year

TALLAHASSEE — Customer complaints about utility service in Florida declined slightly last year, but the Public Service Commission said the number of inquiries it investigated has increased.

The PSC received almost 42,972 complaints from customers in 1993, compared with about 44,463 the year before. Of those, 6,280 were investigated by the PSC, compared with 5,574 in 1992, the commission said Tuesday.

About 45 percent of the complaints investigated by the PSC were against the state's two largest utilities — Florida Power & Light Co. and Southern Bell Telephone Co. The commission received about 2,500 complaints about Southern Bell's rate review that was settled earlier this year.

The complaints resulted in $770,105 in savings to customers, bringing to $4 million the total refunds and credits issued to customers who complained to the PSC's Division of Consumer Affairs in the past five years.

Parents can force teens into treatment

WEST PALM BEACH — Parents can force teen-agers into substance abuse programs without a court order, and the centers can take steps to ensure the youths don't leave at will, a judge ruled.

The ruling Tuesday stems from a lawsuit filed in November by Growing Together Inc., a get-tough drug treatment center in Lake Worth, against the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

The center claimed in the suit the department's policy on a minor's right to refuse treatment was an "unconstitutional deprivation of the right of parents to control the health and welfare of their children."

"Treatment facilities should be very happy with this," said attorney Jack Scarola. "Until now, there was no workable way to run a program. Anytime the child wanted to leave, they could."

Barbara Griffith, the center's executive director, said HRS had taken too much responsibility away from the parents. "The pendulum had swung too far to the other side," she said.

HRS officials could not immediately be reached for comment, but Scarola said HRS did not oppose the ruling and has no legal grounds for appeal.

Biker wants to drive without helmets

TALLAHASSEE — James D. Richenbach says it should be a biker's choice to wear a crash helmet, and he asked the House Transportation Committee to give motorcycle riders permission to go without on Sundays.

"We believe it should be freedom of choice," Richenbach said Tuesday. "We are 21 years of age."

Current law requires bikers to wear helmets at all times. But a bill introduced by state Rep. Tony Hill, D-Jacksonville, would give bikers 21 or older one day a week to ride without a helmet.

Sunday is the most popular day of the week for motorcycle riders in Florida, Richenbach said.

At the end of a year, the state would conduct a study to determine if helmets improve safety. In the meantime, bikers could ride without one.

His bill facing immediate doom, Hill asked the committee to temporarily pass the proposal so he can rework it and try again later.

Another proposal to require children younger than 16 to wear helmets while riding bicycles passed unanimously.

Warden to retire amid allegations

BELLE GLADE — The superintendent of Glades Correctional Institution has decided to cut short a nearly unblemished, three-decade career by retiring amid allegations of sexual harassment.

John L. Shaw said he was leaving to "go on with the rest of his life." He plans to retire Monday.

In 1963, Shaw began his career in the prisoner classification department at Florida State Prison in Starke. He worked through an explosion in the prison population in Central Florida before coming to Belle Glade in 1991.

He had been known as the "elder statesman" of Central Florida prisons.

Allegations of misconduct surfaced last year when an employee at the Belle Glade prison filed an anonymous complaint of sexual harassment, said DOC spokeswoman Laura Levings. Officials investigated the complaint and found reason to believe that misconduct had occurred, she said.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission received a formal complaint charging sex discrimination several months ago, she said. Details of the complaint will not be released pending the EEOC investigation, expected to last about 18 months.

Shaw, 56, could not be reached at his office for comment Tuesday.

10 contend for city administrator

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — City commissioners will review the qualifications of 10 city administrator applicants during a work session Thursday night before narrowing the list to five candidates.

In all, 108 people applied for the administrator job vacated in November by James McFellin who served for about a year and a half. Gerald Korman has served as acting administrator since McFellin resigned. The short list of applicants was submitted to the commission from a selection committee in accordance with the city code.

Three of the 10 applicants are from Florida. The 10 applicants are: Douglas A. Clark, Peella, Iowa; Barry R. Evans, Deerfield Beach; Elly F. Johnson, New Smyrna; Walter M. Johnson, Portland, Ore.; John D. Marquati, Naperville, Ill.; Thomas Reber, Fairmont, Miss.; W. Shelton Smith, LaGrange, Ga.; Dodo A. Southern, Miami Springs; Larry D. Stoeve, Greenville, Ill.; and Robert J. Taylor, Leawood, Kan.

The commissioners are also receiving input in the administrator selection process from the Winter Springs-Longwood Chamber of Commerce. After the list of candidates is narrowed, applicants will be interviewed by the commission.

The administrator's salary is about $54,000. McFellin also had the use of a city car in his contract. However, Korman opted to use his own vehicle and have the city pay a car allowance. Mayor Paul Lovstrand said he does not think the city will offer the new administrator a city vehicle to drive. Under the tax laws, the administrator must pay tax when a city vehicle is provided for his use.

During the work session, the commissioners will also discuss applicants for city attorney. Six individuals or firms applied to represent Longwood after the resignation of attorney Becky Voe. Richard S. Taylor Jr., who is serving as interim city attorney, has applied for the position full time. The other firms or individuals seeking the post are Killgore, Pearman, Shepard & Stamp, P.A.; Stenstrom, McIntosh, Julian, Colbert, Whigham & Simmons, P.A.; James R. Leone & Assoc., P.A.; Joseph Galletti, Esquire and Astrid de Parry, P.A.

The commissioners may also discuss hiring an attorney for the Code Enforcement Board.

The work session will be in the commission chambers of Longwood City Hall.

Chiles, Cabinet delay report on minority teachers

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet have refused to accept a report on a shortage of certain kinds of teachers because the list didn't include minority educators.

State law requires the Department of Education to identify critical shortage areas to help target scholarships and loans. This year the agency concentrated on exceptional education needs at a time the number of minority teachers continues to dwindle.

Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher said Tuesday he was concerned the report didn't identify the state's need for more minority teachers.

"The percentage of African-American teachers is lower than it was 15 years ago," he said, citing a statistic in the report. Fourteen percent of Florida's public school teachers are black, compared with 18 percent 15 years ago.

By the turn of the century, 52 percent of Florida's students will belong to an ethnic minority group, but only 3 percent of the state's teachers will be minorities, said Education Commissioner Doug Jamerson.

"I agree with you we ought to consider keeping the spotlight on the need to go out and recruit minority teachers," Jamerson told Gallagher.

Laurey Stryker, deputy education commissioner, promised to get back to the Cabinet on why minorities were not listed as a priority.

The exceptional education priority remained the same as a year ago.

Senate, House piece together budgets

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — How to finance $300 million in prison construction appears to be the biggest difference in budget plans moving ahead in the House and Senate.

The Senate wants to pay for more than 14,000 new prison beds with cash from existing taxes and avoid selling bonds. The House has proposed a revised version of the governor's plan to use bonds to pay for the new beds as part of his $38 billion budget plan for 1994-95.

Like the governor's budget, neither the House nor Senate plans include any new taxes. Chiles said Tuesday Florida needed to build enough prison beds to make sure inmates serve at least three-quarters of their sentences, a goal lawmakers approved last year.

The governor said he wanted to see how the Senate plans to pay for the expansion if it rejects the idea of bonding.

"Where did the money come from?" he asked. "I suspect that money had to come from somewhere."

The Senate wants to use about $200 million in additional tax dollars economists expect from a lower-than-expected number of Medicaid recipients next year to help finance the prison beds, said Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Ken Jenne, D-Fort Lauderdale.

The House, meanwhile, has proposed using a 15-year bond issue instead of a 30-year bond recommended by the governor. The shorter repayment period would save the state about $196 million compared with the governor's plan, said Pete Mitchell, staff director of the House Appropriations Committee.

Mitchell said the House would rather leave intact the tax dollars earmarked for Medicaid so they can pay for expected increases in health care costs for low-income families in the future.

The appropriations committees in both chambers plan to pass their respective budget plans Thursday and send them to the full chambers next week.

The numbers are close in many areas, prompting some lawmakers to speculate the final negotiations next month won't be as acrimonious as prior years.

Minor released to self custody

By The Associated Press

SANFORD — A judge has taken the unusual step of releasing a 15-year-old repeat offender and runaway to self custody.

"I'm going to try something different," said Judge Leonard Wood. "I'm ordering him released to himself. He can choose who he wants to live with."

The judge concedes his action may be illegal, but he says he wants to send a message the state juvenile justice system needs revamping.

"If what I've done here today is not legal, maybe it will capture someone's attention to do away with the antiquated system we've got and correct it," Wood said.

The judge on Monday released the Seminole County boy, who was charged with stealing his father's car to run away. A 39-year-old St. Petersburg man who lives near one of the boy's friends agreed to care for the boy.

Laura Bosco, chief of the state attorney's juvenile division, told Wood during the hearing it was illegal to release the boy to self custody. She said the boy should be consigned to an HRS shelter because he is too young to be responsible for himself.

"I understand where you're coming from, but HRS will not do its job," Wood replied.

The boy was sent once to a shelter during an HRS investigation into an abuse complaint against his father. But HRS sent him back to his father's home, saying it could not prove abuse.

The boy also spent nearly a month in a juvenile detention center because his father neither picked him up or shown up in court.

The boy has run away several times from the home of the father, who has custody. The mother's current husband refuses to take in the boy for fear he would corrupt their young son.

"I don't think the kid's that bad," Wood said. "I think he feels totally rejected by both parents. What's the sense of going through this whole pattern again?"

HRS refused comment on the case citing confidentiality laws, and would not say Tuesday if any action would be taken against Wood.

However, HRS spokesman Andrea Kobrin and Wood said it is illegal to keep teens indefinitely sheltered.

"I don't know if the right answer is to give a child to a stranger, but we have to respect the judicial opinion," she said.

Traffic shrugs shoulders

Traffic along the lakefront will be somewhat restricted for the next several weeks. DOT has contracted with Hubbard Construction to add four feet of paved shoulder to each side of U.S. 17-92, from Central Florida Regional Hospital to just east of the Interstate-4 overpass. DOT spokesman Steve Homan said the construction company has been requested not to block traffic more than necessary during peak hours, but it may be necessary from time to time due to the nature of the work.

CIA spy Millions said paid for secrets

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The KGB develops a mole in the top ranks of the CIA, state secrets are spilled, double agents are fingered, million-dollar payoffs are made, and FBI agents skulk through a suspect's household trash to find clues.

And that's just the opening chapter in one of the biggest espionage cases in CIA history.

The Justice Department on Tuesday charged Aldrich Hazen Ames and his wife, Rosario, with conspiracy to commit espionage.

Ames, a 31-year CIA veteran and former senior Soviet counterintelligence officer, is accused of selling U.S. national security secrets to Moscow for eight years starting in 1985.

A federal magistrate ordered the Ames held without bail until a hearing on Friday. If convicted on the conspiracy charge, they could face life in prison. Neither of them spoke to reporters when they left the magistrate's office.

President Clinton called the case a "very serious" breach of U.S. national security.

Sources familiar with Ames' CIA career said he compromised more than one Soviet double agent, including a KGB counterintelligence investigations officer — code named GTPROLOGUE — who was feeding information to the CIA.

Ames had access to vast amounts of classified information at the CIA. And because during at least part of his long CIA career he specialized in recruiting Soviet officials and intelligence officers as spies, he would have been able to disclose to the Soviets the identities of CIA agents inside the Soviet Union.

The Justice Department wrote in an affidavit released Tuesday that Ames, 52, began spying for the Soviets in 1985 at a time when he was the chief of the Soviet Counterintelligence Branch in the CIA's Soviet-East European Division. He is accused of continuing his espionage until his arrest on Monday.

Ames' wife, Rosario, 41, is a part-time student at Georgetown University. The affidavit said she was a paid informant for the CIA from about April-December 1983 while serving as a cultural attaché in Mexico City. Ames met her while working for the CIA in Mexico City from 1981-83. They were married in 1985. They have a young son.

LONGWOOD — Longwood motorcycle police officer Troy Hickson had a number of close calls Monday, before making a traffic stop, Willie M. Spurling, 25, of Eatonville, was eventually arrested.

The officer reported seeing Spurling driving erratically on U.S. Highway 17-92, and attempted to conduct a traffic stop. When Spurling reportedly attempted to hit the motorcycle, Hickson reported he had to run onto the median to avoid being struck. He continued the pursuit, and reported that Spurling tried to hit his motorcycle again on Rangeline at S.R. 434, again at Tollgate Trail at S.R. 434, and the fourth time on Raymond Avenue.

Although the motorcycle had to be driven off the roadway on several occasions, Hickson was not injured, and the pursuit was able to continue.

The officer said Spurling at one time was traveling west on an eastbound lane on Raymond Avenue.

Near the intersection of North Street and Raymond, the arrest report said Spurling apparently lost control of his vehicle and collided with a brick wall, after which he left the vehicle and attempted to flee on foot.

Spurling was eventually located by officers in the 1000 block of Virginia Avenue, in Altamonte Springs, and placed under arrest.

Spurling has been charged with aggravated assault with a vehicle on a law enforcement officer, fleeing and attempting to elude an officer, driving with a suspended/revoked license, and driving on the wrong side of the road.

After booking at the Longwood Police station, he was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held under $5,000 bond.

Prisoners should serve their time

Several dozen members of STOP, (Stop Turning Out Prisoners) rallied at the Capitol in Tallahassee Monday. The group is pushing a proposed amendment which would make criminals serve every single day of their sentences.

On the national level, such a bill is supported by U.S. Sen. Connie Mack. He said it would restore the public's faith in the criminal justice system.

Another bill in Tallahassee, sponsored by State Sen. Ron Silver of North Miami Beach, is slightly more lenient. It would call for prisoners to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences.

Presently, felons in Florida serve an average of 40 percent of the jail terms given them by our judicial system.

We believe the 100 percent proposal is best.

Law enforcement statistics have, time and time again, proven that the same criminals are being arrested over and over. A study of the Sanford Herald police reports over any length of time will show that many of the same names are repeated.

The same burglars continue to burglarize. Armed robbers continue to rob.

The hope at this time, is that the Florida Legislature will agree to place a referendum on the November ballot and allow the citizens to speak their minds at the polls.

Various organizations compile crime statistics. Regardless of which study is reported, Florida continues to rank at or near the top of the list. This isn't occurring because our law enforcement is not good.

We believe increased crime levels are in direct proportion to the lack of punishment.

Let's work on getting the measure on the ballot in November. It will give us an opportunity to show that Florida people are not as timid as the criminal element may believe.

On police union

I see by the Sunday, Feb. 13 edition of the Sanford Herald that the police department overwhelmingly passed the union. Congratulations to all of the men and women of our police department. I truly believe that this will be one of the best things that you've ever done for yourselves.

I have heard from a large majority of officers and a growing number of citizens of their disappointment in Ralph Russell and Joe Dillard. It's really too bad, for I really hoped that the cynicism and the business as usual attitude would not be carried over into this new administration. But one cannot solely lay the blame for this on Russell's shoulders. This type of cancer starts at a much higher level than the police department. It starts with such characters as city government officials. These people are too blind or stupid or both to realize that the citizens are sick and tired of elected and appointed officials misusing and abusing their office or position. Our men and women in blue need the protection that is afforded them by the union. It's just too bad that the rest of our city workers haven't got this protection. The people of my hometown want an honest government that doesn't pander to special interest groups, or approve measures that only benefit certain groups of citizens. It is time that we took our city government back from them.

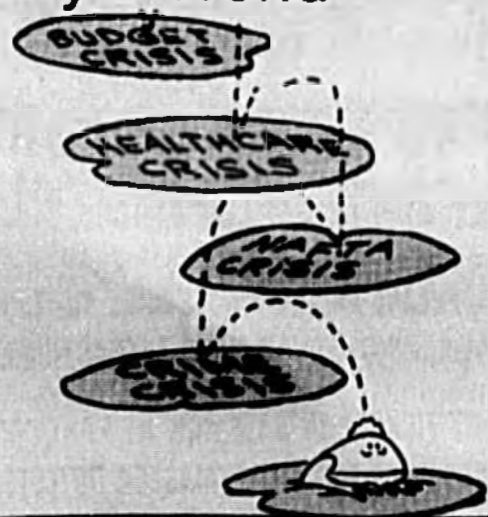

I am considering at this time running for Lon Howell's seat come the next election.

In any event, our town needs new leadership that will try to bring honesty and integrity back to our city government. The citizens want people in office who will respect their right to freedom of speech without having to worry about retaliation against their livelihoods. We do not want people running our city with intimidation and coercion like our present regime does. Their way mirrors the Fascist way.

Again, congratulations to those who voted for FOP, and a big thanks to Bill Dantschisch who worked so hard and long to make this a reality. All I can say to the opposition is live with it.

Olympic committee should be ashamed

The wicked witch of the West, Tonya Harding, takes to the ice this week in Hamar, Norway. The Olympic flag should be flown at half-staff.

It is a tragedy for the thousands of international athletes who made it to the winter games by the sweat of their brow (rather than the sweat of a crowbar) that their moment of glory is overshadowed by the Harding spectacle.

That the topless-dancing figure-skater has been allowed to represent the American flag is nothing less than a travesty. Both the Portland, Ore., district attorney's office and the U.S. Olympic Committee share culpability for this national black eye.

The Portland district attorney had everything necessary but the smoking crowbar to indict Harding. Her on-again, off-again husband, Jeff Gillooly — who follows Joey Buttafuoco as tabloid cover boy and butt of late-night talk-show jokes — swore under oath that Harding not only knew beforehand about the assault on rival skater Nancy Kerrigan, but also took part in hatching the scheme.

Harding actually lent credence to Gillooly's testimony against her by 'fessing up that she had lied when she originally said that she was shocked, shocked to find that both her husband and bodyguard were involved in the attack on Kerrigan.

"I am responsible," Harding said, two weeks before the games, "for failing to report things I learned." And although she had dissembled about that salient piece of information, the 23-year-old figure skater asked that the public believe that she had "no prior knowledge" of the assault.

But for many who were willing to give Harding the benefit of the doubt, the fact that she did not come forward with what she knew as soon as she knew it strongly suggested that she had something to hide. It sounded suspiciously like a cover-up.

There is an old saying that a grand jury will indict a hamburger. If that is true, any district attorney worth the salt on the burger would have pounced on Harding's admission and brought her up on charges.

That the Portland district attorney failed to do so, after more than a month of investigation, suggests that a political decision was made not to charge the local gal before the Big Show.

The USOC is not based in Portland and therefore was immune to local sentiment. And when Harding publicly admitted that she hadn't told the whole truth about the Kerrigan assault — after FBI investigators first caught her in a lie — the Olympic Committee talked tough about dropping the little tart in leotards from the skating team.

The USOC asserted, correctly, that there is no "right" to represent one's country in the Olympic Games. Membership on the national team is a privilege. And that privilege may be revoked if an athlete fails to uphold certain standards of conduct.

But then, just as Harding was to receive her comeuppance, she launched the legal equivalent of a pre-emptive strike.

The eyes of the world will be focused on Harding when she finally skates for a medal. It will be poetic justice, at least, if she falls.

Psychological warfare sings a new tune

WASHINGTON — As conventional weapons give way to psychological warfare, military mind games could put the Pentagon's arsenal at the top of the pop music charts.

The United States has secretly trained thousands of American soldiers for mental combat. Their weapon of choice: rock 'n' roll.

In three recent large-scale operations — the standoff with David Koresh and the Branch Davidian cult in Waco, Texas; the Gulf War; and the invasion of Panama and the capture of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega — highly secretive units of the Army called Psychological Operations Groups have aimed their boom boxes at the enemy. With blaring loud music, the military tactic is to deprive the enemy of sleep and peace of mind, forcing them to surrender. So far, PSYOPS' antics have only had dubious success.

Among the first contingents of American troops who landed in Panama in 1989 were a 200-strong PSYOPS force armed with bullhorns, leaflets and loudspeakers. When dictator Manuel Noriega holed up in the Vatican diplomatic mission, PSYOPS deprived the opera-loving dictator of sleep with "Nowhere to Run" by Martha and the Vandellas, "Take the Money and Run" by the Steve Miller Band, "Smugglers' Blues" by Glenn Frey and "You're No Good" by Linda Ronstadt.

Military officials most familiar with the operations say three factors more than the ear-splitting music wore down the general: the papal nuncio's own efforts inside the embassy; telephone calls from Noriega's friends that PSYOPS allowed through urging him to surrender; and, the most effective, the PSYOPS-instigated parade of thousands of hateful Panamanians calling for Noriega's death. In the face of the lynch mob, Noriega soon chose to surrender to the relative safety of the U.S. military forces.

Secret Pentagon documents we have obtained concluded that PSYOPS' antics are most effective when harmonized with a concerted military effort. "Psychological operations can be most effective in a joint operation when they are planned for and closely coordinated from the first moments of planning," stated the classified report obtained by our associate Dale Van Atta.

In the Gulf War, PSYOPS boosted morale for U.S. troops by frequently responding to Iraqi SCUD attacks with Pat Benatar's "Hit Me With Your Best Shot" played over military radio.

Against the Iraqis, however, music only played a minor role, according to PSYOPS sources. Far more effective were the millions of leaflets encouraging Iraqis to surrender, followed by detailed information on how to surrender blared over loudspeakers. On a single day, in fact, U.S. planes dumped 1,027,620 leaflets on the Iraqis.

Another effective method of confusing the Iraqis was to drop leaflets on troops warning them they were about to be bombed, followed by a quick strafing run, and more pamphlets urging them to surrender. One Iraqi division commander told the allies that leaflets were second only to the bombing in demoralizing Iraqi soldiers.

One of the sneakiest secret operations of this war, used by both Army PSYOPS units and the CIA, was to immediately broadcast propaganda in Arabic on the same frequency as a just-bombed radio station. The CIA even employed a Saddam Hussein impersonator who was so good, and so confused Iraqi troops, that Saddam Hussein himself went on radio to warn his people that it was an impostor calling for surrender.

The United States has secretly trained thousands of American soldiers for mental combat.

Performing rare act of citizenship

BOSTON — There are no television cameras rolling as we dutifully arrive at the courthouse. No Court TV reporter covers our descent into the whitewashed brick basement. No psychologist waits to scientifically test our soft or hardheartedness.

In the public world, jury duty may come these days with a whiff of celebrity. Jurors have become as notorious as defendants. In the trials of Rodney King and Reginald Denny, of the Bobbitts and the Menendez brothers, they have gone from the courtroom to the green room.

But the closest any of us comes to high drama is in the words of the Juror's Creed that arrived in the mail with our summons. "I am a juror," it reads, "I am a seeker of truth."

This is what my fellow "seekers of truth" look like this frigid morning. Thirty-odd strangers, men and women in every shape and size — from the woman with a portable phone in her right ear to the man with an earring in his left — drinking coffee out of vending machines, watching Dr. Ruth on a rickety television set, waiting to perform their civic duty.

The jury system in America has changed but not only in terms laid out by the tabloids. As recently as the 1970s, a jury was still picked in many places according to the Key Man system. A prominent man or a group of men in a community would literally choose the pool of jurors — sometimes from a telephone book.

Political theory said that juries were to bring community values into the courtroom. But for a long time, the value they brought were often those of the few, key, white, men.

Today, computers do the picking randomly. More of us are put on jury duty and fewer of us let off. By now, more than 17 percent of adult Americans have served on a full trial.

To say that the jury system is more democratic than it was is to put this case mildly. And yet we seem to be more, not less, critical. The last trusted institution is being doubted.

On television, those who serve on the most celebrated cases are analyzed and criticized. In print, they're accused of bias on the basis of race or gender. In the public mind, there is an emerging suspicion that a verdict represents nothing more than the idiosyncratic views of 12 individuals.

Jurors take their seats today at the risky intersection of changing demography and changing community values. They bring different life experiences and reflect diverse views. Some of these changes enhance our faith in justice. Some diminish it.

In 1964, the man accused of killing Medgar Evers was let off by two hung juries of white men. It took 30 years and a racially mixed jury before Byron De La Beckwith was found guilty this month.

Justice may emerge over time. It may also seem to change with venue. In the Rodney King case, two juries — one from a white suburb, the other from the city — came to different conclusions about police brutality.

As for changing values? In the not-so-distant past, a husband who killed his wife when he found her in bed with another man was rarely charged with more than manslaughter. It was considered a crime of passion.

Now a battered woman or a battered child can present abuse as a mitigating circumstance. It's why one jury decided Lorena Bobbitt had gone nuts when she took the knife to her husband. It's why two other juries got hung up on the level of the Menendez brothers' guilt — manslaughter or first-degree homicide.

However many doubts there are about these verdicts, there are fewer doubts about the legitimacy of this line of defense. In the words of Diane Wiley of the National Jury Project, "This is how community standards evolve. We have decided that crimes of passion can include things that happen to women and children."

The Juror's Creed may tell Seekers of Truth to check our emotions at the door, but people cannot hang up a life experience. Juries are more diverse and so, perhaps, are their decisions.

We value this diversity in American when it allows new voices to be heard. We worry about diversity when it seems to fracture us according to race, gender, class, geography. Our attitudes toward the jury and toward justice are no exceptions.

But what a shame that we judge the system on a handful of tabloid cases.

On this icy morning, this standby juror — dismissed with a thank you and a good afternoon — saw a different story. Not a story of a nation or a legal system splintering. A story rather of a thousand small courthouses, where strangers come together from separate lives every day to perform a rare act of something called citizenship.

There are no television cameras rolling as we dutifully arrive at the courthouse.

During one home burglary on Park Ave., a woman fired a gun after hearing a noise. Smith jumped out of his shoes and ran from the scene, Sanford Police commander Dennis Whitmore said.

Smith also faces charges of sexual battery, burglary and grand theft in Volusia County. He is the suspect in the June 21 rape of a 65-year old DelRay woman. The woman was sleeping on a screened porch of her mobile home when she was awakened by a man wearing a hood, standing over her, holding a knife to her throat. Investigators reported the suspect dragged the woman into a bedroom where he sexually assaulted her. After the assault, the woman's car was found abandoned in the 2500 block of South Myrtle Avenue in Sanford. The case is awaiting trial according to the Volusia County state attorney's office.

Smith is being held in the John F. Polk Correctional Facility. After his sentencing in March, Smith may be transferred to Volusia County to face the pending charges.

During the summer, police investigating the cases said Smith was not living with his father in Orange City nor his mother in a Sanford trailer park. Both parents had kicked Smith out of their homes, according to police.

County fair opens

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY — With much fanfare and excitement, the Seminole County Fair and exhibition will open on Thursday afternoon.

The fair will take place at the Seminole Greyhound Park in Casselberry and will run through March 6.

According to Gregory Bean, the fair's president, the event is the nation's newest county fair. He said he is excited by the assistance this fair has received from fair organizers across the country who are hoping to make this fair a successful venture.

"We've been offered advice and assistance from all over," he said. "I think that will help make this one of the best fairs around."

Bean said the fair has tried to shed the image of country music and livestock that characterizes the stereotypical county fair.

While he said there will be plenty of that, the Seminole County Fair hopes to offer something for everyone.

Entertainment will range from elementary school choruses from around the county to the Sea World of Florida Americana Rhapsody laser light show and everything in between.

There will be livestock and information on farming advances and equipment, but there will also be demonstrations on home decor and building a backyard deck, Bean explained.

"We'll be keeping the traditional county fair theme," he said. "We've just added some modern touches."

There will be extensive competitions and exhibits in home arts and hand crafts, fine arts, creative arts, agriculture, horticulture, technology and education.

There will also be featured displays of custom and antique cars, boats and recreational vehicles.

"And what fair would be complete without a midway?" he asked.

There will be over 80 thrilling rides, games and shows for the brave and the more feeble-hearted as well. Bean said many of the same rides were recently at the Florida State Fair in Tampa will be erected here in Seminole County.

In addition to the non-stop performances on the community stage by local singers, dancers, actors and other entertainers, the fair will be presenting an abundance of free national entertainment daily, including the popular Robinson's Racing Pigs, the Grandpa Cratchet Puppet Show, Korky the Clown Prince of Magic, the 5-H Ranch Exotic Petting Zoo and Martin Lee, the Arkansas Troubadour.

Most of the fair's midway and show areas are paved and the majority of the exhibits will be indoors, Bean said.

The fairgrounds are located at the Seminole Greyhound Park, 2000 Seminole Blvd. in Casselberry. The site is between State Roads 434 and 436, just off of U.S. Highway 17-92.

Politicians, economists at odds over fed strategy

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Most economists agree the Federal Reserve is wise to start damping inflation pressures now rather than later, but many politicians are leery.

The way the Fed fights inflation is by bumping up interest rates and that could slow the economic growth the country is finally starting to enjoy after the long recovery from the 1990-91 recession.

It's a hard pill to swallow for politicians who don't see inflation as a problem. Prices rose just 2.7 percent last year, the second-best in 29 years.

"It seems you almost have a phobia when it comes to inflation," Rep. Toby Roth, R-Wis., told Greenspan on Tuesday.

On Feb. 4, the Fed engineered the first increase in short-term interest rates in five years. It was just a quarter of a percentage point, but Greenspan told the House Banking subcommittee on economic growth and credit formation that further increases are likely.

Economist Robert G. Dederick of Northern Trust Co. in Chicago predicted at least three more increases this year, pushing the federal funds rate to 4 percent by the fall, and more after that.

"A quarter of a percent is a flea bite, and you're going to have to have a lot more bites than that to affect the economy," he said.

The Fed's job often has been likened to taking the punch bowl away just as the party's getting good — in other words, slowing down growth before soaring inflation brings the economy to a crashing halt.

But, Roth complained, "many of us feel you're taking the punch bowl away while the guests are still taking their coats off."

Noting the 96-point stock market drop that followed the rate increase earlier this month, Rep. Paul Kanjorski, D-Pa., the subcommittee chairman, said, "Like many Americans, I am concerned that the Federal Reserve's action may impede or even end our slow economic recovery."

Only Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., a longtime Fed supporter, spoke up in Greenspan's defense. He said the politically independent central bank should act in the economy's long-term best interest even if that doesn't suit the short-term political interests of lawmakers.

"There's no element of our economy that doesn't benefit from the lowest possible rate of inflation," he said.

President Clinton, speaking to reporters after Greenspan's appearance before the subcommittee, avoided picking a fight with the Fed. But, he said, "We ought to keep relatively low interest rates" because inflation is not a problem.

Greenspan justified this month's rate increase by saying the Fed was seeking to head off inflation that would not have shown up for a year or more.

"If the Federal Reserve waits until actual inflation worsens... modest corrective steps would no longer be enough to... avoid a build-up of inflation expectations," he said. "Instead, more wrenching measures would be needed."

In other words, interest rates would have to be raised much more sharply, dramatically slowing the economy.

Participation increases slightly in summer meals program

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — A summer feeding program for needy children who get free or cut-price meals during the school year is growing, but most eligible youngsters remain unserved, a nutrition advocacy group said today.

In its second annual progress report, the Food Research and Action Center said only 2.1 million needy children were fed last summer through the Summer Food Service Program for Children.

That is one-sixth the 13.2 million children who received free or reduced-price lunches each day during the last school year, the group said.

The program was created in 1968 to carry those children through the summer months. With schools closed, other groups including local park districts, churches and organizations such as Boys' Clubs and YWCAs ran the programs.

Despite the gap, progress has been made, in narrowing it, the action center said. Participation last summer was 12 percent higher than in 1992, and has grown nearly 30 percent since 1989, the group said.

Although they are criticized for being high in salt and fat, school lunches do help nourish children. Government studies have found they provide at least one-third the nutrients children require each day.

Participation in the summer feeding program is still far below the 2.7 million reached in the late 1970s.

last few days.

They are hoping to have composite drawings or photographs of the suspects prepared by police artists available later today.

"We have to wait for the victims to go back to the police department and give their information to the artists," Ed McDonough, public information officer for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, explained.

According to McDonough, the rapes, which occurred in Fern Park and in Geneva, were not at all related.

In the first case, he said, a 24-year-old Deltona woman was forced to go to a wooded area behind The Station (a rock and roll club) in Fern Park with a man she did not know.

She told investigators that he raped her. She did not indicate at the time if her attacker had a weapon.

McDonough said she described her attacker as a white man, about 25-years-old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 140 pounds. She said he was slim, he had long, straight blond hair and a pockmarked face.

Then at about 1 p.m. Monday, a man entered the unlocked trailer of a 26-year-old Geneva woman.

She knew her attacker slightly and told investigators that she believed his name was Steve and that he lived in Sanford.

Investigators said that she was forced to have oral sex with the man.

The suspect in that case is described as a white man, about 40-years-old. He is slender, about 6 feet 4 inches tall and 200 pounds. He has hazel eyes, dark skin and long brown hair, a beard and a mustache.

Investigators said she told them that he left her trailer in a brown car.

According to McDonough, investigators are still looking at the information they have and are hoping that the composites will help them find the men.

Meanwhile, anyone with information in either case is being asked to call the sheriff's office at 330-6600.

Graduations-

Board members did not decide one way or another on the issue of subsidizing the mandated move indoors.

Board member Larry Strickler believed the board should help pay for the cost of the graduations and said he thought it was a cost effective expense.

"The $3,000 or $4,000 per school is cheaper than a lawsuit like the ones we have already settled," he noted.

He felt the board should pay the subsidy because by "mandating that they not be out of doors, we are mandating a cost."

Board vice chairman Sandy Robinson had strong reservations about giving the schools money.

"Why do we have to subsidize it?" she asked, echoing the sentiments of other board members.

"We have better things to spend our money on," said chairman Barbara Kuhn.

The board agreed, in the end, to mandate only that the ceremonies be held indoors in an air conditioned facility and that they would try to make arrangements to have as many of the schools as possible hold the graduations at the UCF Arena (the most reasonably priced facility) this year and in the future.

The issue of subsidizing the programs will be decided later.

The last day of school is June 10. Graduations will take place June 10, 11, or 13.

it would suggest consideration be given to the city and its residents by the Airport Authority, based on our input from members of the general public."

On Feb. 3, the commission held its first public meeting on airport development. Steve Cooke, executive director of the Central Florida Regional Airport was on hand to give a report on the FAR-150 study presently underway dealing with landing pattern development and noise problems.

Although the discussion took over an hour of the commission meeting time, it was scheduled for a continuation on Feb. 17.

Once again, Cooke was on hand, along with Will Mallie, who is air traffic director at Orlando International Airport.

Mallie presented charts showing the landing patterns at Orlando International, Orlando Regional, and Sanford airports. He explained how, if planes landed and took off using Sanford's north-south runway, it could cause more air traffic problems in landing patterns for the Orlando airports.

"It can be arranged," Mallie said, "but it is a very critical element to weave the air traffic around and make it safe." He explained, "After all, air safety is my primary role for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) in this area."

Commissioner Gary Brender disagreed with the traffic problem. "I don't see using the south approach to Sanford as being impossible to work out," he said. "We're not talking about 20 to 30 major flights a day in Sanford, that wouldn't be normal. But there must be some way to work this out during heavy flow areas into the Orlando airports."

Several citizens stepped forward to ask questions regarding reducing noise in the Lake Mary/Sanford area. T.A. Black questioned Mallie about no-fly zones over Orlando, specifically in the Conway area.

"The Orlando airports, responding to a good-neighbor policy, have determined that the Conway area would be avoided without affecting flight safety," Mallie responded.

"Then I want to go on record."

Blake said, "In urging the city of Lake Mary to apply for a similar no-fly zone." His suggestion drew a large round of applause from the audience.

Tim Connery, who spoke during the first hearing, also commented Thursday, "I fully believe a flight pattern could be worked out. It's not the present time we should be concerned with, but ten years from now, if the noise grows, we'll have no residents, no houses, just commercial business. I am opposed to any kind of development at the Sanford airport."

Connery also drew applause from the spectators.

Mayor Lowry Rockett questioned if the commission would want to enter into some type of noise-abatement agreement. "We could do it as a combined effort with the city, the Seminole County School Board, and others," he suggested.

He also proposed establishing a set pattern of meetings which could be held with the Airport Authority, possibly monthly, to work on noise problems.

Commissioner Brender volunteered to help draft the necessary resolution. "We have to do anything we can," Brender said, "to keep us from developing like the area around the Midway Airport (Chicago), and we easily could 20 years from now if we don't start on this problem today."

"I believe those two meetings and the efforts shown by the city commission will start being heard," said Commissioner David Meador. "I won't be able to attend the next regular meeting if this is brought up at that time, but I assure you, you have my complete support in the action you have been discussing tonight."

Rockett encouraged the establishment, as soon as possible, of regular meetings with members of the Airport Authority, citizens, and any other interested parties.

Litton said he was not certain at the present time if the resolution would be fully prepared for presentation at the next City Commission meeting, which is scheduled for March 3. "If not," he commented, "we'll have it ready as soon as possible for the commission consideration."

Cable TV rates

What the FCC rate cut means to you

By JEANNINE AVERSA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators have ordered a second round of cuts in the rate charged for most kinds of cable television.

This rate cut, 7 percent, covers the most popular services and equipment. Regulators say that'll affect the vast majority of the nation's 57 million cable subscribers.

But figuring out just how the reduction might affect you is difficult, since people pick from a variety of services offered by the nation's 11,000 cable systems.

Here are some commonly asked questions and some answers that may help.

Q: The FCC told cable companies that it must cut rates for most services by 7 percent. Does that mean my bill will automatically be cut by 7 percent?

A: No. The new price cuts will only apply to rates in effect after mid-May, when the new regulations are expected to take effect. Cities (cleared by the FCC to regulate) must first review a system's basic rate for programming and equipment to determine whether the 7 percent cut is warranted.

For rates beyond basic, a consumer or local government must file a complaint to the FCC. The FCC will conduct a review to determine whether rates should be further reduced.

Q: When will I see a change in my bill?

A: Because the new rates are effective in mid-May, you probably won't see a lower bill until June.

Q: What's covered by the rate cut?

A: Most cable channels except for pay-per-view and premium services like HBO and Showtime, and some equipment, like special remotes for digital radio services and modems for information services delivered by your cable system.

Q: When the FCC ordered a 10 percent rate cut last year, a lot of people said their bills didn't go down. Some even went up. What's different about this rate cut?

A: The most recent rate cut is based upon a new FCC formula that is expected to bring rate relief to more subscribers than under the old one. So, people who got hit with an increase the last time around should enjoy some sort of rate decrease.

Q: Why did my rates go up with the last set of rate rules?

A: One of the main reasons was that the rate rules required operators to charge for equipment and not have these costs built into the rate for programming services. Virtually every operator has already made those changes, eliminating this shifting the second time around.

Q: Last year, I started getting a more detailed cable bill with charges for things like franchise fees and copyright fees. Will those prices go down, too?

A: Franchise fees are not regulated by the FCC's price rules, but the amount shown on a bill may fluctuate. Copyright fees are not regulated, either, and fluctuate as well.

Q: What if my bill doesn't go down this time?

A: If you think you should be paying less for basic service, contact your local government. To question a rate for "expanded basic" service, file a complaint to the FCC. Consumers may request the necessary complaints forms by calling 202-416-0919.

Q: Will everybody's bills go down?

A: No. Some bills may go up or remain unchanged, depending on what the subscriber buys and how it is offered on his or her cable system. Consumers may get help from the FCC on this and other rate questions by calling 202-416-0856.

Q: Will my local government automatically oversee cable rate regulation?

A: No. Local governments must become certified with the FCC. Cities can obtain the appropriate forms by calling the FCC at 202-416-0940.

Q: If my local government doesn't choose to regulate, what happens?

A: Basic cable rates will not be regulated.

Q: Are there any situations in which the FCC will step in and regulate basic rates?

A: The FCC can step in if the local government asks the FCC to do so and shows the FCC that it does not have the resources to regulate. The FCC can take over local regulation if the agency revokes or denies a local government's certification.

Execs recount Disney successes

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA — When Michael Eisner and Frank Wells took over the operation of Walt Disney Co. in 1984, its revenues from films were $245 million and profits a mere $2 million.

Last year, film revenues were $3.7 billion and profits $622 million.

Those figures epitomize the kind of revolution the two have been leading at the giant entertainment company. Ten years ago, the bulk of the company's operating income and profits — about 78 percent — came from theme parks. Twenty-one percent came from consumer products, and less than 1 percent from TV and movies.

"Our three core businesses back in 1984 remain the same today in name only," Eisner told Disney's annual shareholders meeting Tuesday. Theme parks and resorts contributed 43 percent in operating income in 1993, while filmed entertainment was at 36 percent and consumer products 21 percent.

Its smallest division racked up higher revenues last year than the entire Disney company reported in 1984.

"Disney is no longer critically dependent on the success of any one division as we were back in 1984," Wells told the 6,000 stockholders at the Magic Kingdom.

The full-length animated films "The Little Mermaid," "Beauty and the Beast" and "Aladdin" all have been record breakers, each setting new box office and home-video records. Disney's newest for 1994 is "The Lion King," to be followed by "Goofy" and "Pocahontas."

But the major announcement of the day was made by Roy E. Disney, nephew of company founder Walt Disney, who said the film vaults will be cracked open long enough this fall to release "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" in a home-video version.

The landmark, full-length film made half a century ago is the highest-grossing animated film in history and has been released in theaters only nine times, at least once a generation since its debut.

"Now, finally, we have come to the conclusion that it is a mistake to lock away such a treasure," said Roy Disney, who is company vice chairman.

The release will involve the largest worldwide marketing effort yet undertaken by Disney for a video, he said. After that, it will return to the vaults, where it will be guarded "as fiercely in the next 50 years as we have in the past."

Eisner announced Denmark would build the 12th foreign pavilion at Florida's Epcot Center. And three proposed new parks — Disney's America in Virginia, Westcot Center in California and Tokyo Sea in Japan — will get under way soon, depending on economic and political conditions, he said.

But Eisner and Disney President Frank Wells deftly sidestepped questions about efforts to stem the losses at Euro Disney by saying delicate negotiations were under way to restructure its $100 million debt.

Disney owns 49 percent of the French park. Disney's chief financial officer, Richard D. Nanula, said Disney lost $165 million in 1993 and recorded a charge of $350 million during the fourth quarter to reserve its funding commitment to Euro Disney.

Most nuns older than 40

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Fewer young women are becoming nuns in the United States but those who are sisters say they're happy with the lives they've chosen, according to a newspaper poll published Monday.

Only 3 percent of nuns surveyed in the United States and Puerto Rico were 40 or younger, the Los Angeles Times poll found. The median age of the 1,049 nuns surveyed was 65.

As the Roman Catholic church approaches the next century, greater numbers of nuns are leaving its ranks.

In 1993, there were 94,022 nuns in the United States, compared to a peak of 181,421 in 1966. In 1988, there were 106,912 sisters. "American Catholics have no idea how very soon there will be no nuns," said Sister Patricia Wittberg, a church sociologist at Indiana University.

Eighty-seven percent of nuns responding to the poll said they were satisfied with their lives and 60 percent indicated their lives were better than they anticipated.

An overwhelming majority of 88 percent said they would definitely or probably enter their professions if making the choice again. More than nine out of 10 nuns said it was very unlikely they would ever abandon their vocation.

The poll was conducted by mail and followup interviews from September 1992 through January of this year. It has a margin of error of 4 percentage points.

A majority said they would favor ordination of women as priests, but 89 percent said they would not seek to become priests if the church allowed it.

The superiors of the orders received high approval ratings. Eighty-two percent of the sisters said their superiors' moral views were just about right.

When nuns were asked to name the most important problems facing the church in the United States today, 22 percent mentioned the shortage of clergy and nuns. Sexism and a male-dominated clergy was the second-most common response, with 18 percent of respondents mentioning it.

But the homesteading Jacksonville Beach-Fletcher Senators (14-2) for fifth in this week's Florida Sports Writers Association's Class 5A state poll) were a little too much for the Greyhounds, holding on for a 72-63 win in sub-regional play Tuesday night.

LONGWOOD — Winter Park High School walked its way to a 6-3 win over the host Lyman Greyhounds Tuesday night and a berth in the championship game of the Lyman Invitational baseball tournament.

In Tuesday's losers' bracket contest, the Lake Mary Rams eliminated DeLand 10-2.

This evening at 7 p.m., Lake Mary and Lyman will meet in the losers' bracket finals, the survivor advancing to meet Winter Park Thursday and, if necessary, Friday night.

With the score tied 2-2 in the fourth inning, Paul Marcialis and Marcel Torres each drew a bases-loaded walk to give Winter Park a 4-2 advantage. David Constantino's ground ball then was misplayed, allowing two more runs to score.

Torres led Winter Park (2-0) with two singles and two RBI. Josh Hunter scored three runs.

Cook of the Week

SPD officer calls herself a 'dump and pour' cook

SANFORD — She's a police officer who can take the heat in and out of the kitchen. After her shift as a law enforcement officer with the Sanford Police Department, Claudia Webber, Cook of the Week, is often seen at the kitchen scene preparing her favorite recipes.

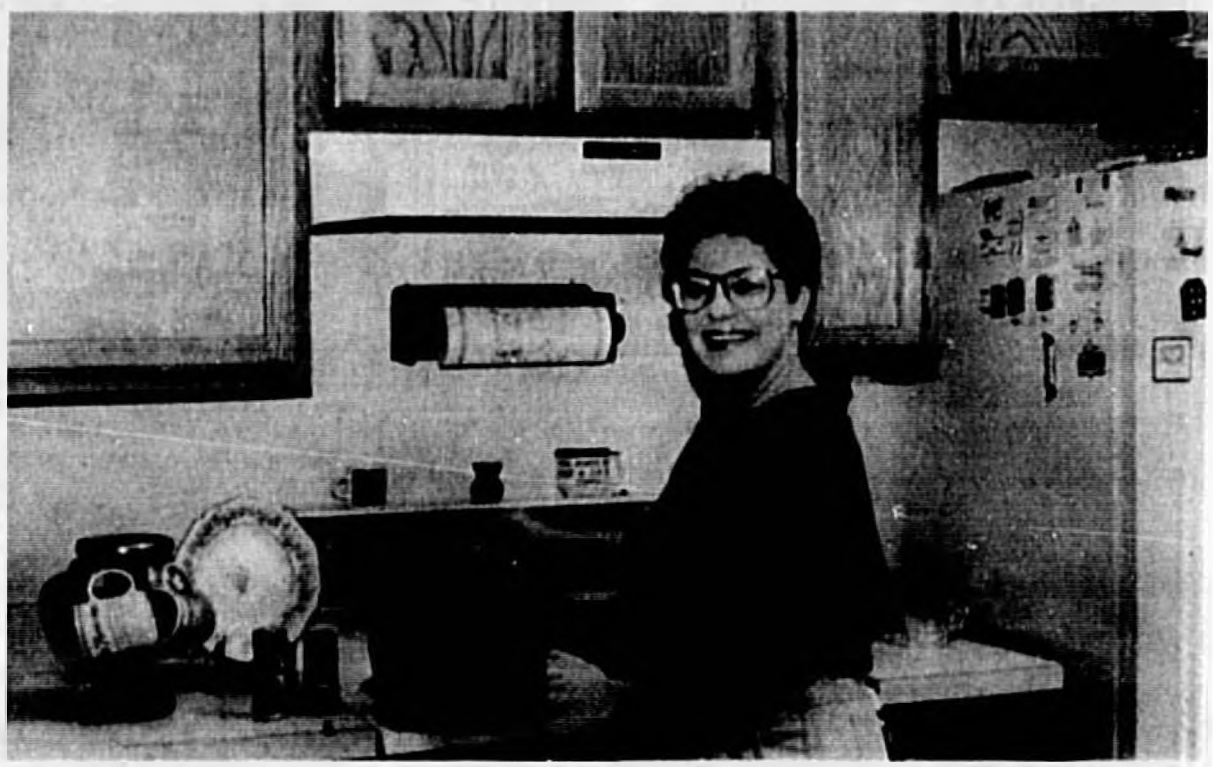

Webber, who will proudly tell you that she is a native Floridian, has lived in Sanford for the past eight years. She has a long, impressive and rewarding career within different aspects of law enforcement.

From 1981 to 1986, Webber was a probation officer with the state of Florida Department of Corrections. She found that she wanted to further her career and decided to enter the field of police work. "I went to the police academy in the evening and I worked as a probation officer during the day," said Webber. Upon graduation Webber worked on the auxiliary of the Sanford Police Department for six months prior to being hired as a fulltime police officer. Today, seven years later she is still a police officer with the Sanford P.D.

Although her police work keeps her busy, Webber still finds time to enjoy some of her favorite hobbies. She does a little experimenting with photography and will get in a game or two of golf. However, her real challenge and enjoyment comes from the delight of having her crafts sell at the many craft shows that she attends. "I'm really best making things with a country theme," Webber said. And as she shares with you some of the many items displayed in her lovely home, there is no question as to her "craft talents."

Webber also has a love and a good eye for antiques. One of her favorite items is a school desk that is somewhere around 50 years old. "I really wish I could find a place in the living room to set this out," Webber said. "It would make a great conversation piece."

The ruler of the roost, this lovely home, beautifully furnished and impeccably kept, is 2-year-old "Winston", and according to Webber, "this Chinese pug knows just how to get his way."

COOK OF THE WEEK
RENEE KEITH

When it comes to cooking, Webber, for the most part, is a self-taught cook. "I'm a dump and pour cook," said Webber. "I like to experiment with different spices and recipes." She goes on to say that "if I have something at a restaurant that I like and hadn't had before, I'll come home and try to recreate it and serve it to my friends."

Chicken Teriyaki is a recipe that Webber has had for many years and has made so many changes to it that it virtually has become her own creation. The same holds true when it comes to her recipe for Spaghetti Sauce and, Webber's own recipe for Pasta Salad.

CLAUDIA'S PASTA SALAD
1 box Trio Twists pasta
1 small onion

1 small green pepper
2-3 stalks of celery
Salt and pepper to taste
1 pkg. of Hidden Valley Ranch Dressing with milk, chilled
Bring a large pot of water to boil. Add pasta and boil 7-10 minutes or until tender. Drain, remove pasta and chill. Dice onion, green pepper and celery. Mix pasta and diced mixture in large bowl. Add chilled salad dressing to desired moisture and mix all ingredients well.
Sprinkle paprika on top.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE
1 1/2 lbs. ground beef
1 medium onion
1 green pepper
1 tsp. minced garlic
1 tsp. Italian seasoning
1 can of mushrooms or 1/2 lb. sliced fresh mushrooms
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 large can crushed tomatoes
1 medium can tomato sauce
1 medium can tomato paste (use about 2/3 of the can)
Salt and pepper to taste
Parmesan cheese to taste
Brown meat in large pot. Cut up onion, green pepper. Add these ingredients to the pot along with garlic, Italian seasoning, salt and pepper, stirring well. Then add all canned goods topping off with some Parmesan cheese. Simmer on low for about 1 1/2 hours. Serves approximately eight people.

BAKED CHICKEN WITH GRAVY

1 small can of mushrooms
1 tsp. minced garlic
1 can cream of mushroom soup

1/4 cup milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Place chicken in a Pyrex baking dish. Mix diced onion, garlic, mushrooms and cans of soup in a bowl and thin it with a little milk. Mix well. Pour mixture over chicken and bake at 350°F. for 1 hour or until chicken is done. Use gravy over rice or potatoes.

BLACK BEANS AND RICE
1 bag of black bean soup mix

Soak beans in pan of water for several hours. Dice onion, green

Fish adds variety to meal planning

Fish can add variety as well as economy to meal planning. It also can be a low calorie entree; that of course, depends on the preparation. Fresh fish is readily available in this area as are many varieties of frozen fish. (You may even be fortunate in having a fisherman with a steady supply). One recipe included here will use a canned fish which is an old standby.

Fresh fish cooks in a very short time — 3-4 minutes per pound. Overcooking causes toughness. Frozen fish fillets need to be thawed before cooking in the microwave oven, unless otherwise instructed.

Allow an hour or so for the fish

MICROWAVE MAGIC

to marinate before cooking for this low-calorie fish dinner.

TERIYAKI FISH FLATTER
1 lb. fish fillets (cod, sole, orange roughy, pollock)
1/4 cup soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced
1 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 Tbsp. chopped onion
1 Tbsp. vinegar
1/4 tsp. ginger
1 cup sliced cauliflower
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup sliced zucchini
1 Tbsp. sesame seed
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Cut fish into long, serving-sized pieces. Place in plastic bag set in another dish. Combine soy sauce, garlic, brown sugar, onion, vinegar and ginger; mix well. Pour over fish in bag. Secure bag; turn to coat fish evenly. Refrigerate about 1 hour.

Combine cauliflower, carrots and zucchini in 1-quart casserole. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 3 1/2-4 minutes or until just about tender, stirring once. Set aside. Remove fish from marinade. Roll up fillets, secure with toothpick if necessary. Arrange seam side down in center of microsafe serving plate. Spoon vegetables around fish, cover with plastic wrap.

Microwave on 100 percent power 4-5 minutes or until fish flakes apart easily with fork. Let stand covered. Combine sesame seed and butter in small glass dish. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered 30-45 seconds or until melted. Spoon over vegetables. About 5 servings — 125 calories each.

This attractive combination makes an alternative to the usual tuna-noodle casserole. Serve in about 25 minutes.

TUNA-NOODLE SQUARES
4 cups uncooked noodles (about 7 ounces)
1 Tbsp. margarine or butter
1 Tbsp. instant minced onion
1 can (6 1/2 oz.) water-packed tuna, drained
1 Tbsp. parsley flakes
2 eggs
1/4 cup milk or cream
Dash of pepper
1 1/4 cups frozen broccoli; carrot and cauliflower combination
1 Tbsp. margarine or butter
2 Tbsp. flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup milk
1 medium tomato, chopped
1 Tbsp. Parmesan cheese
Cook noodles as directed on package. Drain. Add 1 tablespoon margarine and toss until melted. Mix in onion. Place in 8-inch square baking dish. Add tuna and parsley; toss lightly. Beat eggs; beat in 1/4 cup milk and the pepper. Pour over noodles; mix lightly. Cover with vented plastic wrap.

Microwave (100 percent) 4 1/2-5 minutes or until center is just about set. Let stand covered. Place vegetable combination in 1-quart batter bowl. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave (100 percent) 4-4 1/2 minutes or until hot, stirring once. Stir in 1 tablespoon margarine, flour, salt, nutmeg and milk until blended.

Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 3 1/2-4 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens; stirring once. Pour over noodles; top with tomato and Parmesan cheese. Microwave (100 percent) uncovered 2 1/2-3 minutes or until heated through.

A light wine sauce enhances the flavor of snapper or other fish fillets.
RED SNAPPER WITH WINE SAUCE
1 lb. red snapper fillets
1 Tbsp. margarine

2 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. dry white wine
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash of paprika
4 slices lemon
Fresh parsley
Cut fillets into serving size pieces. Arrange in 8-inch square baking dish with thicker portions to the outside. Cover with wax paper. Microwave (100 percent) 4-5 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork. Set aside. Combine margarine, lemon juice, wine, and salt in 1-cup glass measure. Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 45-60 seconds or until melted. Arrange fillets on serving plate; drizzle with sauce. Sprinkle with paprika. Garnish with lemon and parsley. About 4 servings — 140 calories each.

What are options of kidney stones?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is the best and safest procedure to handle a kidney stone that is too large to pass normally -- surgery or lithotripsy? Is there any approved medication that can be taken to dissolve a stone?

hazardous and uncomfortable than surgery. This is something you should discuss with your urologist.

DEAR READER: Kidney stones are one of the most ubiquitous -- and painful -- human health problems. Although they are composed of various substances (such as calcium), when they become wedged into a ureter, the tubes leading from each kidney to the bladder, they often cause excruciating spasms called "renal colic."

On the other hand, large and sharp stones may lodge in the ureter and, if not mechanically removed, obstruct one kidney. This can cause serious consequences because the kidneys are vital organs that rid the body of many waste products. Therefore, when a stone doesn't pass, doctors become worried and begin analyzing what can be done.

In the past, the only satisfactory option was surgical removal -- either through a cystoscope (a tube introduced into the bladder) or, less commonly, by direct surgery on the ureter itself. Now, however, urologists have a powerful non-surgical method of breaking up stones, so that the smaller fragments pass more easily into the bladder. Called "lithotripsy," the technique involves aiming harmless electromagnetic waves at the stones, causing them to disintegrate.

I don't know which choice would be right for you. Certainly, lithotripsy is far less rebid either two no-trump or three clubs, according to choice. This is the so-called double negative. Cue-bidding and Blackwood followed.

After the club lead, almost all declarers would think they had 12 easy tricks: four spades, six hearts and two minor-suit aces. They would win with dummy's club ace, cash the A-K of hearts and play off the A-K of spades. However, here West ruffs and exits with any card, leaving declarer with an unavoidable diamond loser: one down. Then you would hear a lot of grumbling about bad luck.

Welshman Tony Haworth foresaw this possibility. After winning trick one with dummy's club ace, he called for a low club and discarded a flamboyant spade ace. Now the contract was safe.

Chicken and rice: Perfect pair

Chicken goes with everything but undoubtedly one of its most frequent dinner companions is rice.

There aren't many chicken dishes with which rice is not a compatible side dish. Indeed, rice is included in the list of ingredients in many recipes for preparing chicken.

Chicken is the complete, low calorie, low fat protein which is often the basis for nutrition-wise diets. Chicken and rice are both foods recommended in "Dietary Guidelines for Americans" issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Add vegetables and/or fruits and you are well on the way to a balanced daily diet.

TV's 'Grace Under Fire' inspires real-life Mom

DEAR ABBY: I recall an episode of ABC's "Grace Under Fire" (Wednesday nights) that had a powerful effect on me, because I, too, am a divorced mother of young children.

In this particular episode, the divorced mother had bought and gift-wrapped some Christmas presents and put their father's name on them. The young son was upset because his father didn't show up or call him on Christmas, which would have meant more to him than the gifts his father supposedly had sent, which he told his mother — through his tears.

His mother then assured the boy that his father really loved him very much, but like some men, he just wasn't very good at expressing himself. She then told him how very proud his father was when he was born, and she emphasized that although "Dad" didn't spend much time with him, really loved him very much.

Abby, I was emotionally overcome with this episode, because I'm sure many divorced mothers identified with it, as I did.

Grace sacrificed the momentary "satisfaction" she might have gotten from making a few nasty remarks and pointing out what a heel the father was. Instead she built him up to be more of a loving father than he really was, and avoided saying anything negative about him. Let's face it, if the father really is an insensitive slob, the kid will figure it out for himself soon enough.

Grace refused to reinforce the boy's feeling that his father didn't love him. (What kind of mother would want her child to have to deal with that kind of pain?)

Unfortunately, too many divorced parents are quick to criticize the other parent — some even make up lies if the truth isn't "bad" enough. They also try to outdo each other with gifts, deny each other access to the child, and generally make the child feel miserable. How I wish more divorced parents would show a little more "grace under fire."

A DIVORCEE, WICHITA, KAN.

DEAR DIVORCEE: I second the emotion.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the battle of the thermostat between husband and wife.

The same battle was waged by my parents, until a new furnace was installed. The installer said, "Set it at 68 degrees, and leave it alone!" He explained that it took more oil to raise the house temperature each morning than to keep it constant.

My mother bought slacks and a sweater, and Dad put away his short-sleeve shirts.

D.L. IN MAINE

P.S. Now in their 70s, they report that the warmer night temperature setting makes those late-night trips to the bathroom more comfortable.

Mama, don't raise no victim of technology

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

TENAFLY, N.J. — Emily Zuckerman has just learned to tie her shoes. She is still too young to read. But late one afternoon a few weeks before her fifth birthday, Emily is punching the letters of the alphabet on a computer keyboard.

It's not that the sandbox is too crowded; Emily is in a glassy storefront classroom in this affluent suburb, taking her weekly computer lesson. Her mother Donna explains why:

"In the future, everybody'll be using a computer. And if she gets comfortable with a computer now, she'll be a step ahead in school."

A step ahead. A growing number of parents think that's what their kids need in a world where recorded knowledge supposedly will double every two years and the computer supposedly will change education like the steam engine changed transportation.

Most educators agree that personal computers and information networks have the potential to help all students, from college prep to special ed.

So why is everyone within sound of the morning bell feeling so anxious? Because the chalk salesman may not be the only victim of the new technology, pity.

—The teacher who feels upstaged by an electronic instructor with infinite patience and all the answers.

—The principal who can't get computers into classrooms fast enough to satisfy parents.

—The superintendent who must make million-dollar technology decisions at a time when the technology is changing overnight.

—The child who can't afford the new technology at home, or who lives in a school district where voters won't approve technology bond issues.

But parents, unprotected by tenure and untended by consultants, are the most nervous of all.

Apple Computer ads urge them to "give your kids an edge" and buy a Macintosh, "which makes it easy to turn out impressive-looking homework" with artwork, charts and photographs.

That probably isn't possible in the classroom. Though the schools now have a computer for every 13 students — compared to one for every 100 five years ago — almost no one is happy about how these machines are being used.

More than half of school computers are older Apple IIs. They are far inferior to newer, faster machines such as Apple's Macintosh or various IBM-compatibles, and cannot handle the latest educational programs' jazzy graphics and sound.

Many school computers languish in labs, rationed in 40-minute periods and divorced from daily classroom work, and many schools still use computers primarily for rote learning — "drill and kill," critics call it — instead of developing the more profound ways of thinking that lead to broader horizons and better jobs.

Less than half of U.S. schools offer teachers introductory computer courses.

Which may explain why FutureKids, Emily Zuckerman's computer school, is one of the world's fastest-growing franchise operations. In an era when people worry about becoming victims of technology, FutureKids promises to produce "masters of technology."

Founded a decade ago, FutureKids has 366 learning centers and almost 1,000 school programs in 25 nations. The company opens two new franchises a week and enters one new country a month. It's growing so fast that no one at Los Angeles headquarters knows to the nearest 10,000 how many students are enrolled, the press kits printed last month already are outdated.

Students range in age from 15 to 3 (that's right, 3 — children who suck pacifiers, who drool on the keyboard, who wet their pants).

FutureKids of Beverly Hills even takes 2-year-olds — if they're toilet-trained. Jeremy Michaelson started before he could talk. Kayla Surrey could only use her right hand on the keyboard, because she sucked her left one. They're doing better now that their hands are big enough to grasp the mouse.

The idea that such children should learn computers came to Peter Markovitz while he was studying film at the University of Southern California. He started FutureKids in a semabandoned building in Los Angeles with two computers and some homemade furniture. Parents like kiddle computer classes, he says, because "they don't want their kids to be like them."

"They fear their kids won't be prepared for the future, because even good schools don't provide a level of computer literacy they think will be necessary."

Becky Bailey, an early childhood education specialist at the University of Central Florida, says computer school confers status. "Like a BMW," and assuages guilt. "We try to buy our kids the best, because we don't have time to go on a picnic with them."

Although two-thirds of U.S. households still do not have personal computers, almost half of those with school-age children do. Sales of children's computer software increased 45 percent last year — faster than those of general entertainment software.

For about $20 a lesson, FutureKids provides what most schools can't: specially trained instructors, at least one (IBM-compatible) computer for every two students, and the latest educational software.

Slain rookie was mother who held onto her dream

By JAMES ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Armed with a mother's wisdom and driven by a dream, Christy Hamilton seized the chance to become a cop at age 45. She paid with her life.

Hamilton, one of the oldest recruits ever to graduate from the academy, was gunned down Tuesday by a 17-year-old who then shot his father and himself, police say.

Barely a month into her new career, Hamilton became the city's second woman officer killed in the line of duty. The first, Officer Tina Kerbrat, was also a rookie when she was gunned down in 1991 at age 34.

Just Friday, Hamilton received the Tina Kerbrat Award from her academy classmates, who voted her most inspirational officer.

"I've waited 23 years for this," the smiling Hamilton said after receiving her diploma from Chief Willie Williams.

She spent those years nurturing her dream and her family. The daughter of a police detective, Hamilton married early and raised a daughter, Kelley, 24, and a son, William, 20. She divorced, married a firefighter, and raised two stepchildren. "I always wanted to be a police officer, but I got married when I was 19, started a family, and my life kind of changed," she said last week.

Until last year, the police department didn't accept applicants over 35, but finally, Hamilton got her chance.

"Last October my father called me and said, 'They lifted the age ceiling, why don't you take the test?'" Hamilton said. "I did, and I just followed it through and here I am."

Hamilton started working the streets the day of the Jan. 17 earthquake, which delayed her graduation ceremony until Friday.

"She was a breath of fresh air," Lt. Dan Hoffman, Hamilton's watch commander, said Tuesday. "She brought an enthusiasm and a caring for her position as a Los Angeles police officer that we actively strive to get on this department."

Hamilton's rookie status played no part in Tuesday's shooting, said Officer Rigo Romero, a department spokesman.

Hamilton was responding to a domestic disturbance call in suburban Northridge when she was shot in the chest, above her bulletproof vest, before she got out of her patrol car, Romero said.

He characterized it as an ambush-style shooting, "an incident where anybody, regardless of tenure, would have been vulnerable."

Michael Reyes, president of Hamilton's academy class, said she was the "mother" of the class, a quick wit who could shake anyone out of a bad mood.

"If you were having a bad day, she could have been having a worse day but she'd make you laugh," he said.

Through 28 weeks of training, Hamilton never let her age become an obstacle, Reyes said. Again and again, she practiced scrambling over a six-foot wall, required of all graduates.

And despite the danger of a cop's life, Hamilton never showed fear. "She knew what the job entailed and she wanted to do it," Reyes said.

Hamilton's life inspired her classmates; her death stunned the city.

"I just thought she was pretty terrific to start all over at 45 and become an officer," said Kim Winesburg, who brought flowers to the police station.
