High Water Now Perils Eastern North Carolina

Streams Receding To Reduce Flood Menace In Western Part Of State; Rivers Have Reached New Record Level

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 18.—(INS)—With the waters of rivers in western Carolina rapidly receding, eastern North Carolina today faced the menace of floods due to rising streams in that section.

The Roanoke, Cape Fear, Neuse and Tar rivers were all rising and the local meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau predicted they would be out of their banks by Sunday due to heavy rains in central North Carolina and Virginia.

The Roanoke River, which has caused the most trouble in eastern Carolina, was out of its banks near Weldon today and flooding farms and doing other damage to property in that vicinity.

The dam at Lake Lure, in western Carolina, became a menace to persons living in the lowlands last night when a leak developed near one end of the immense concrete structure.

Ford Foresees Tires Made From Weeds

SUBBURY, Mass., Aug. 18.—(INS)—Automobile tires made out of common roadside weeds and potato culls fueled with alcohol was the prediction of Henry Ford, made before leaving to spend this weekend with his son, Edsel, at Bar Harbor, Maine. Thomas Edison, the automobile magnate said he had discovered that rubber can be made from every weed that grows. Even the milkweed contains some rubber. Most success has been obtained with elderberry. The Detroit manufacturer let it be known that he was not worried over the supply of fuel for his cars. Alcohol, he said, will run cars as well as gasoline, and alcohol can be produced from grains.

DRIVE OPENED AGAINST NIGHT CLUB PATRONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Scared stiff by the sharp-fanged prohibition has yet barred, numerous Park Avenue fashionables who like their cocktails today were fleeing, receive of subpoenas that would bring them before the federal grand jury Monday. One hundred and 25 subpoenas already have been served on ritzy folk from the avenue, actresses, politicians, and business and professional people.

Rich and socially prominent night club habitués professed a desire to start at once for Europe, Australia, Asia, New Zealand or any far clime—and distant port in a dry storm.

TOPEKA TAKES ON GALA DRESS FOR BIG EVENT

Throng Pack Kansas Home Of Curtis To Hear Formal Acceptance Of Nomination

Ideal Weather Is In Prospect

Colorful Ceremonies Will Take Place On State Capitol Steps

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 18.—(INS)—Today is the big day for Topeka.

Not since the historic flood of 1903 has there been so much excitement in town. For in the shank of the evening when the big green copper dome of the state house throws its sprawling shadow across the velvet expanse of yard beneath and above, the large temporary speakers stand erected below, the largest gathering in Kansas history will look on while Old Cap Curtis' boy Charley is formally notified by the Republican party that he has been chosen to run on their ticket for the office of vice president.

S. D. Flora, the state meteorologist, who is undoubtedly the most interested among the citizens of this state over the first nomination of a major political party in Kansas history, has been consulted enough to forecast ideal weather for the big doings. Fair and cooler is what Senator Curtis and his audience are in expect. The latter part of the prediction is particularly promising for those who have experienced the sweltering post-harvest season of the Kansas plains.

But rain or shine Senator Curtis will be notified on the south steps of the state house at five o'clock central standard time. This is the final decision of the sub-committee chairman of the general Curtis committee who have taken into consideration the radio audience of twenty million who will listen in through the wireless ears of the loud speaker, as well as the immediate audience of thirty thousand which will throng over the spacious grand grandstand of the state house yard.

That threatened invasion of Kansas City by the farmer during the Republican national convention which failed to materialize, promised to sweep in upon Topeka today. But it was far from the wilder advertised "river" invasion. Streams of gleaming new touring cars and sedans bought by bank accounts accumulated through the season's bumper wheat crop, poured in upon Topeka from surging over the numberless channels of finely paved state roads.

COUNTY TO SHIP SECOND EASTER LILY BULB CROP

Gross Revenue Per Acre On New Product Is Placed At $4,000 By Pioneer Grower; Production Cost Near $300

Next Easter thousands of Easter lilies raised from bulbs grown in Seminole County will grace churches and private homes in all sections of the United States. The second annual crop of bulbs from this county is going to market this month.

In an interview today, F. W. Bender, who is bringing his second season as a grower of lily bulbs for the commercial markets to a close, outlined the possibilities of bulb culture in Seminole County.

He does not advocate the production of Easter lily bulbs here as a pursuit to supplant even to a small extent the growing of celery or other staple truck crops. He believes in the development of this new industry as an alternative source of income for celery and truck farmers. That is, he advocates the average celery farmer devoting perhaps an acre or two to bulb raising to insure himself, in case the event of the celery market falls from one cause or another.

According to Mr. Bender, the income from Easter lily bulbs raising will average in gross revenue approximately $4,000 per acre. The cost of growing, he said, depends largely upon the skill and knowledge of the farmer and varies from $100 to $300 per acre, leaving a net profit of well over $4,000.

Easter lily bulbs, he said, are grown practically nowhere else in the United States, and the Florida crop is centered principally in Seminole County. While there is no competition from other sections of this country, there is competition to be met in the crops from Bermuda, where the lilies have been raised for many years, and from Japan, where there is a large production.

The raising of Easter lily bulbs is an endless process once it is started. The seed bulbs are planted in about one year. When they reach maturity there is one large bulb suitable for the commercial market and grouped around it anywhere from six to a dozen seed bulbs suitable for replanting to make the next year's crop. Thus the commercial bulb and the seed bulbs are grown at once.

The commercial bulbs from which finally come the lily stems are harvested and sold in August and September. The bulbs are purchased by "forming houses" which plant them and bring them into full bloom the next spring. These "forming houses" are green houses for bringing the bulbs to full maturity rapidly. Each bulb gives

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

GOD'S WORKS PRAISE HIM

All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power. — Psalm 146:10.

PRAYER: O God, bless the church, the glory of God, and the firmament of heaven. His handiwork.

Witnessing

"So he dies for his faith, that is fine, more than the most of us do."

But say, can we add to that line that he lived for it too?

In his death he bore witness, at least as a martyr to truth; Did his life do the same in the past?

From carrels, or passion or pride, was it harder for him?

But to live, everyday to live out all of the truth, that he dreams.

While his friends met his conduct with doubt, and the world with contempt.

Was it thus that he plodded ahead, never tiring aside?

Then we'll talk of his life, never mind how he died. — Selected.

This is the day they tell Senator Curtis the great secret.

"Funny but when they go after my goods they call it a dry raid."

Headline in Valdosta Times says "Jim Hunt's Deal Broke." So's four old men.

The Atlanta Constitution says "Love Sees the Light." That may be so, but we were under the impression that it preferred the dark.

Southern Pines, N. C. had a little tornado all of its own the other day, but in all fairness to us, they didn't call it a Florida storm.

Without extending himself a great deal, Mr. Rockefeller could add a buck to his usual dime tip and beat Mr. Ford's dollar gratuity all to smash.

And now grape growing is to be started on a large scale in this county. Seminole's agricultural possibilities are receiving greater recognition than ever before.

Styles may come and styles may go, but a skinny old maid has nothing to show. — Phil Armstrong in the Times-Union. Now just for that, Phil, you'll have to go to the foot of the class.

Senator Moses has described the Volstead act as a Jackson law, but apparently finds no difficulty in supporting the Republican position in respect to prohibition. — Boston Globe.

We don't mind abbreviating with reason in our headlines but we have a distinct aversion for calling Chicago "Chi," Democrats "Dems," or "Demos" and prohibition "probi."

Sanford schools will employ sixty-one teachers for the approaching term. The number and qualifications of the instructors compare very favorably with those of any other city in the state.

The grouches who complain that there's nothing funny in the newspapers these days probably overlooked the piece telling about the New York man who stole a Model T being charged with petit larceny. — Macon Telegraph.

Bob Holly claims that the kick in a kias is electricity. But there is nothing shocking in that statement. — Times-Union. But where does Bob master? — Aesop's Chief, Wg. at her ohm. — Madison Enterprise-Recorder. Watt's that? — Cuba Banner. — The above circuit seems to be overloaded and we hope Bob doesn't blow a fuse as a result.

All-Air Transportation

The airplane has made rapid strides toward becoming a commonplace transportation vehicle during the past year. Scattered throughout the United States are four thousand, one hundred and thirty-four civilian-owned aircraft, including airplanes and a smattering of free balloons and airships, according to the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce.

A number of factors have contributed to the rapid increase in the number of privately owned or commercially operated planes. The wide publicity accorded long-distance flights and the spreading network of air mail routes are probably the two most important.

But, while public attention is centered on the daring flights and commercial development of heavier-than-air machines, there are being completed in Europe three gigantic air liners—two in England and one in Germany. Within a few weeks or at most several months one or more of them will make test flights to the United States.

The combination of these two types of air transportation seems the next logical step in the development of aviation. The big dirigibles will be the ocean grayhounds of the air. They will make the long over-water flights where ability to stay aloft and keep going under the most trying conditions is essential.

Other Fields To Conquer

The most stupendous expedition in the history of exploration will leave New York next week when Commander Richard E. Byrd, heading a group of twenty-seven men, departs for the Antarctic regions for what is expected to be a stay of two years.

Figures recently given out by financial backers of the Byrd party show that eight hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars will have been expended before the group leaves, while the difference between that amount and a million dollars is expected to be spent before its return.

Commander Byrd's largest item of expense will be that of salaries for twenty-six men, comprising crew and scientists. This will be forty-five thousand dollars a year or ninety thousand for the two-year period.

All of these figures give some idea of the enormity of the undertaking. It has been only a few years since such an extensive project would have been out of the question, but recent progress made in exploring the Arctic regions has served to whet scientific interest and to draw greater financial support for such pioneering endeavors.

The whole world will follow with interest Byrd's attempts to conquer the uncertain regions around the South Pole. He will carry with him the best wishes of every nation, and from his own country a united prayer for success and God—speed on his mission.

MORE AND MORE LAW.

DAYTONA BEACH NEWS-JOURNAL

Industrious legislators in the forty-eight states added a total of 20,402 new laws to the statute books in this year's sessions, according to records recently compiled. This would be an average of more than 400 new laws for each state, but the actual distribution gives some of them a burden much heavier than that impressive figure, while some get off fairly light.

New York state citizens have an impressive task on their hands should they endeavor to take full cognizance of the measures enacted by the legislature this year.

There were 721 new laws adopted out of a total of 3,401 bills considered. The vast majority of citizens remain comfortably in ignorance of all but the few outstanding new laws of which the purpose and necessity are generally recognized, or which are related to their immediate interests.

THE PERFECT BRIDGE HAND

NEW YORK WORLD

The voracious chroniclers by cable report that in the United Berkeley club of Knightsbridge, London, a hand dealt at bridge the other night revealed four perfect hands. One had all the clubs, one all the diamonds, one all the hearts, one all the spades.

With analysis the wonder grows: At the Berkeley club, averaging 40 to 50 tables, something like 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 hands may have been dealt in 25 years.

Take a wider view: The population of the world is somewhat short of 2,000,000,000 people. Savage tribes, Orientals, babies, persons in madhouses and a few others are not playing bridge, but probably one table at bridge has been in play every night for 25 years to each 100 of world population. The tables might average 33 hands to the evening; that would be correct us if we are wrong—6,000,000,000,000 hands dealt in that time. Even so the odds would be 655,555,555,555,555 to 1 against the dealing of four such hands anywhere in the world at any time in a quarter of a century.

From which we may conclude that if the basis of calculation correctly states the chances, the dealing of the Knightsbridge hands was indeed an amazing happening and well worth cable tolls. Unless some smart aleck stacked the cards.

In an attempt to prove something or other, a Princeton educator points out that the average American each year spends $11 on candy and eight cents to pay professors but it wouldn't be much fun eating a professor.—St. Augustine Record.

CITY EXPENSES

DAYTONA BEACH NEWS-JOURNAL

Daytona Beach has been plugging along, officered by a group of men who are earnestly reducing and keeping reduced the expenses of government and thereby the taxes on property. As Colonel Earl Wheeler the city manager truly said, part of this is due to efficient and cooperative work on the part of all employees.

Myriads of problems come up daily with which the city's leaders must cope, some of them problems that would stagger those of us who are able only to sit on the sidelines and applaud or boo. It is a period of retrenchment seasoned with sound permanent construction. Decisions may be made in the interests of economy or constructive building of the city that do not meet with your approval. If so, it is well to reflect that the city is being operated by business men who are construing the city's needs, sometimes with information at hand that we do not have, and to the best of their abilities. To the end that you keep yourself in touch with the city's needs and achievements, it is well to read your newspaper, study the problems of the city hall in a sympathetic way. In your city hall, your business is being transacted in a businesslike manner.

HOW DO YOU BUY?

When you enter a store to buy anything, how do you ask for it? Do you call for the articles by name, or do you generalize—a can of tomato soup; a bag of flour; an aluminum kettle; so many square yards of linoleum; a meat grinder?

It is much better and far more satisfactory to specify the articles you want by name, for merchandise that is good enough to be sold by name is almost always better in quality, and usually no higher in price, than goods of uncertain lineage and less certain quality.

The advertising columns of this newspaper carry advertised names that are familiar to millions of people. Soap, flour, sugar, cereals, kitchen ware, rugs, linoleum, automobiles, etc. They represent those articles that stand for the best in their respective classes of merchandise—quality all through.

Advertising keeps these names before you constantly. Advertising is a constant reminder that the articles you want are the same articles that you see advertised day after day—that justify their being by the service they render. And advertising brings you news—of inventions, discoveries, improvements that keep you up to date.

Tell the sales-clerk what you want by its advertised name. You'll get it—and your money will purchase full value. It pays to read advertising and remember advertised names.

Smart Frocks Worn By Estelle Taylor In Milane Picture

Estelle Taylor wears the most beautiful clothing seen in any motion picture for a long time. This production will be the attraction at the Milane Theater today.

Miss Taylor's wardrobe in "Honor Bound" is not lavish but is distinguished by good taste and extreme simplicity of line. One very striking ensemble is a dress of black tulle with a slight fullness at the skirt. It is trimmed in rich cream lace on the yoke and cuffs. The accompanying coat is of black tulle, with wide, contrasting collar. This wrap is trimmed in rich red fox.

Another ensemble, equally lovely, is a dress of front crepe dress with front fullness bordered in sable fur. The coat is of corse broadcloth trimmed with velvet bands and a bow tie on the waist line.

Two negligees, especially lovely with Miss Taylor's brunette type of beauty, are shown to advantage. One is of peach chiffon velvet with large sleeves and trim of gold lace. The other is of gold lace trimmed in hand made pastel flowers and caught with pastel ribbons at the side.

All these designs are original and in the very latest mode. George O'Brien plays the stellar role in "Honor Bound" and other included in the cast are Louis Hyams, Tom Santorel, Sam De Grames, Al Hart and Harry Gripp. Alfred E. Green directed.

7 Actors In Cast Of 'We Americans' Are Foreign Born

The picture, sponsored by the American Legion to be shown here Monday at the Milane Theater, are naturalized Americans, having come here from their native lands.

This is "approximate" since "Americans" is a term since the pathos and tragedy often followed in the Americanization of the immigrants.

The picture was born in New York City. It is the story of a young man who came to America in 1900 and who, through the help of a friend, became an American citizen.
