Collapse Probe Hassle Didn't Happen Here

While officials in Orange County are trying to determine who should investigate the cause of the collapse of a roof at a furniture store that killed one person and injured another, Sanford officials recalled that a similar occurrence in the city 11 months ago brought major investigations by state and federal authorities.

In addition the Sanford Police Department conducted a preliminary investigation.

The roof of Aaron Sells Furniture store, 5152 S. Orange Ave., Edgewood, collapsed during a heavy rainstorm Monday afternoon. One woman died and another, Mrs.

Karen Miller, 24 of Winter Springs, was injured in the accident. Mrs. Miller was treated for an arm injury at Orlando Regional Medical Center and released.

Edgewood city officials, at a meeting Tuesday night, determined it is not the city's responsibility to investigate the tragedy, but rather the responsibility of the building's owners, W.F. Howard and C.E. Buchanan of Melbourne, and their insurance company.

Howard and Buchanan purchased the structure in 1973. The building is said to be about 15 years old.

An Edgewater building official said the flat roof of the structure apparently fell in after it became overloaded with water.

If this happened in the city of Sanford, said Assistant City Manager Steve Harriett, it wouldn't be treated any differently than the situation with the Burpee building.

On Friday, Aug. 13, 1982, a wall of the Burpee Seed building, which was being razed collapsed, killing three men and injuring two others.

The Sanford Police Department, after a preliminary investigation, concluded that the collapse was caused by a strong gust of wind.

Investigators from the state's Department of Labor's Occupational and Health office as well as agents from the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) looked into the incident.

OSHA found that a "serious" violation in failing to have adequate engineering studies of the building to insure workers' safety had occurred. The serious designation meant there was a hazard that was or should have been recognized that caused employees' death or serious physical harm, OSHA investigators said.

Harriett said Sanford's major responsibility in the Burpee Seed building matter was to investigate from a public safety aspect, while the official cause of the collapse was left to federal and state agencies.

Don Marblestone, an assistant in State Attorney Douglas Cheshire's Sanford office, said today that if there was any negligence involved in the collapse, it would not be considered from a criminal point of view.

To look at the matter from a criminal point of view would require "hard evidence" that someone deliberately intended the roof to collapse, Marblestone said.

'RAISE' May Cost Seminole $1 Million

The impact of the "RAISE bill," on the Seminole County school system could reach as high as $1.04 million annually and require the hiring of 45 new teachers.

This was the message given by school administrators to state Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, and state Sen. Toni Jennings, R-Orlando, at a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the county school administration office on Mellonville Ave., in Sanford.

Dan Dagg, assistant school administrator, said the impact of the 22 credit graduation requirements for school years 84-85 and 85-86 dictates that Seminole County high schools mandate a six period day for all students in grades 9, 10 and 11.

"In addition to the logistical problem of rescheduling every high school student at significant cost, the contractual necessity of adding additional teaching personnel to accommodate this sixth period would have a major impact on our budget," Dagg said.

Estimating 9,000 students in grades 9, 10 and 11, Dagg said some 65 percent of that number would be required to add a sixth period, computing to 5,850 additional teaching periods daily. Since teachers meet 130 students per day average, 45 additional teachers would be needed, he said.

The average salary per teacher in the county is $23,094 when the costs of fixed charges and insurance are included, he said, noting the cost per teacher times 45 teachers would be $1,039,230.

Dagg said this $1 million plus is not available in the school district's essentially "status quo" budget. "Thus, (unless additional state funding is made available by the state) it would require cuts in line items of the budget below what was available last year," the assistant superintendent said.

"Even if the state board of education would grant (Seminole County) an exception to the 22 credit requirement, we would still need to schedule incoming ninth graders for a sixth period. This would require 15 additional teachers," Dagg said, at a cost of $348,410.

It was noted that 35 percent of the county's high school students are now taking an optional sixth class daily, but those eligible for the class are limited to students with a B average.

The meeting with school administrators was requested by the County Hires Construction Manager

A construction manager has been hired to oversee Seminole County Commission-approved building projects, some of which are six months behind schedule.

Harold L. Verhalen, construction superintendent for Iron Bridge Regional Sewage Treatment Plant when it was built two years ago, began work Wednesday for the county.

Selected from 15 applicants, Verhalen will earn $29,995-a-year.

He will oversee about $4 million in the drawing boards. Among his responsibilities will be construction of a new Health Department clinic in Sanford, renovation of the County Services Building (formerly Seminole Memorial Hospital) the Courthouse and other facilities which will be used as county office space.

Construction of the health clinic is expected to begin sometime in August with completion scheduled for next year.

Renovation of the County Services Building was supposed to be complete by now under original time schedules. The move into the building by commissioners, their staff officials, the property appraiser, tax collector and supervisor of elections was originally set for this month, then delayed until August. The move-in schedule now begins in early 1984.

Verhalen may help to expedite construction on the projects. His job is to iron out difficulties between contractors and the county which could delay construction.

Bids will be advertised on the hospital renovation beginning Monday with the bid-opening set for Aug. 3.

Renovations are expected to be completed by late December of early January with the county offices scheduled to move in shortly after. The property appraiser, supervisor of elections and tax collector are scheduled to move in by April.

The renovation project is expected to cost about $1.47 million. That's down from earlier estimates of more than $2 million.

When those offices are in their new quarters, the Courthouse will be renovated to be used for court-related activity. —Michael Beha

Heat On Rose Sees Gas Tax Despite Public Say

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Even with "political heat" expected to intensify, a gas tax will be levied by the Seminole County Commission, regardless of what happens at a July 26 public hearing, in the "personal" opinion of County Administrator T. Duncan Rose.

"It will be a difficult decision to make, but I'm inclined to believe they will make it," Rose told delegates at the meeting of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County Wednesday night.

He said even if there are many opponents to the tax at the July 26 hearing, he expects commissioners to say, "I hear what you're saying that you don't want it, but we need it anyway."

The Seminole County Commissioners early in June adopted a resolution of intent to levy the tax and set the public hearing, however, commissioners said at the time the resolution does not necessarily mean a tax will be levied. The commissioners said it merely gives the county the option of imposing the tax.

Commissioners Sandra Glenn, Barbara Christensen and Bob Stum support the tax, while Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff hasn't taken a position for or against the tax, and Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather has said he will support the tax only if it is tied to specific road projects.

Rose reminded delegates from all of Seminole's seven cities at the Altamonte Springs city hall meeting that state law requires an extraordinary majority of four commissioners to vote to levy a gasoline tax of 3 or 4 cents per gallon and a simple majority of three to levy 1 or 2 cents.

Rose said that language clarifying the state law which gave counties the option of imposing the gas tax arrived at the courthouse last Friday. He said the clarifying language set a deadline of July 1 for counties to negotiate interlocal agreements with cities on sharing the revenue from the gas tax.

"The capacity now to negotiate interlocal agreements has gone by the gate" because of the time limit, Rose said. The county administrator, Mrs. Glenn and other county staff in conference with officials of each of the cities in May said that the county was willing to levy a 4 cent per gallon tax and allocate the revenues from one of those cents to the cities to be shared on a population basis. It was estimated that each cent would bring in revenues of $850,000 annually.

Rose said the only option left open to the county now is to follow the exact language of the law and allocate a share of the resulting revenues with the cities based on an average of expenditures by each city over a five year period for transportation.

He added that while the law permits the county to impose the tax for 10 years, rather than five years as originally reported, the county must share the funds, according to a specific formula for only one year.

And while Mrs. Glenn and her team told the cities during conferences that the resulting revenues from the tax would be used to improve "critical segments" of roads in the county system, Rose said commissioners now have differing opinions on how the revenues should be used.

He said the commissioners are discussing whether the additional funds should be spent to acquire rights of way for new segments of road, or just put aside for use as matching funds for proposed state projects and to solve drainage problems.

"The ball is entirely in their court now," Rose said, adding that there seems to be a continuing general interest by the commissioners, nonetheless, for significant input from the cities.

He said the purpose of the county's seeking input from the cities on the possibility of a local gas tax was to get an answer to the question of whether the city officials were "willing to share the political heat" of the tax being imposed as well as sharing the resulting revenues. Rose said the commissioners felt the cities' response was a "quiet no" to sharing the heat.

He urged the city officials to get on the telephone to discuss the issue quietly with the county commissioners.

Knowles also urged the city officials to look at countywide road needs under the broad concept, including roads within the cities. He said the cities have to consider, "Do we want growth to continue?" and, "If nothing is done about the roads, what will it be like in 10 to 15 years?"

"If there is a need, are we willing to go out and educate the public?" Knowles asked.

Longwood Mayor June Lormann said that if the public who put each of the officials in office to represent them say they do not want a tax, that doesn't change because the county, Knowles or the Council of Local Governments say one is needed. "I am against the tax," Mrs. Lormann said, adding she had already told the group that the people in Longwood do not want it.

Lawmakers Call Session Best In History

Second of Two Parts

Water quality legislation labeled "a helluva law" by one of its sponsors, a construction industry reform bill, and sentencing guidelines made the 1983 regular session of the Florida Legislature one of the best in history. In the view of Seminole County's three state senators.

State Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont, who served on the conference committee of the two legislative bodies that set final language in the bill said the state's new comprehensive water protection bill "is the best in the nation."

"It identifies hazardous waste, calls for capping artesian wells, and provides $100 million for sewer systems for small cities. It's a helluva bill," said Langley.

Langley also points with pride to expanded legislation on driving under the influence as well as a coastal protection fund. "We did a lot," he says.

A spokesman for the Audubon Society who thought it was anti-environmentalist, said he didn't really know me," said Langley, who was declared the second most effective state senator in debate early in the 1983 regular session.

Meanwhile, Sen. John Vogt, D-Cocoa Beach, said his biggest accomplishment during the session was requiring significant changes relating to design and construction of substantial building projects.

The legislation was brought on by the collapse of a condominium under construction in Brevard County last year in which several persons were killed.

Vogt, the only Democratic member of the Seminole Legislative delegation, said he is disappointed that all the changes called for in his original bill didn't get approved.

Among those items which didn't pass was mandatory state certification of building officials.

There are several features in the bill which will make the construction industry easier to regulate, Vogt said, adding the new law requires a special inspector for structures typically over three stories.

A special inspector who is an architect must inspect for structural items and a structural engineer must certify at the beginning of construction that it complies with building codes, and at the end certify that the building was built according to the building codes and the permitting documents, Vogt said.

There also has to be a "shoring and reshoring plan" on "green concrete" (yet uncured concrete) by a professional engineer. This plan must be submitted and made part of the building plans, the senator said, adding significant changes are coming into play.

Sen. Toni Jennings, R-Orlando, had about 25 bills, all of which but one passed.

"I have a philosophy about introducing legislation," Miss Jennings said, which is that "legislation comes about because there is a problem and a suggestion on how to solve the problem. This has been very successful for me personally."

"With water resource and hazardous waste policy and sentencing guidelines this year, as I look back, these are among the best things the state has ever done," she said.

Noting the number of local bills which Graham vetoed contrary to tradition, Langley pointed specifically to one which called for planning money for Lake-Sumter Community College.

Saying there are a lot of personalities involved in the vetoing process, Langley said some of Graham's actions are nothing less than "low level vindictive politics."

Among the far-reaching legislation adopted during the regular session of which Langley is proud are increasing driver's license suspension time from 3 to 6 months for those persons who refuse to take the breathalyzer test and mandatory revocation of driver's licenses for those convicted of manslaughter while driving under the influence. He noted that new law also calls for a one-year probation period for those convicted of driving under the influence.

"We passed some meaningful legislation," Langley said.

"It was a very productive session," Langley said, even though new liquor taxes he was proposing for jail programs are to be used for educational needs. He was also proposing a change in the formula for applying the $25,000 homestead exemptions by allowing the second $10,000 in value of a home to be taxed.

"We really don't need that until next year," Langley said. He added the Legislature was also successful in getting a good criminal law passed.

Miss Jennings said the bill she and state Rep. Carl

Officials Deny Report Of Arms Control Disputes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration denied a report that the nuclear arms control talks in Geneva are in serious trouble because of conflicts within the U.S. delegation and shouting matches with Soviet negotiators.

Spokesmen for both the White House and State Department said Wednesday the report by the Knight-Ridder newspapers was "erroneous." The spokesmen did say, however, that U.S. and Soviet teams have had "spirited and vigorous" negotiations.

Comment from the White House and State Department did not deal with other aspects of the news story, which said there is continuing friction between the head of the U.S. START team, Edward Rowley, and the head of the U.S. team in the parallel negotiations on reducing intermediate range nuclear missiles in Europe, Paul Nitze.

Lavelle To Stand Trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has discounted arguments by Rita Lavelle that a contempt of Congress citation against her was politically motivated, ordering the former Environmental Protection Agency official to stand trial July 21.

Ms. Lavelle is the former head of the EPA's toxic waste cleanup program. President Reagan fired her Feb. 7 after she refused to resign as numerous congressional panels intensified investigations into alleged wrongdoing in the agency, specifically that the program was manipulated for political purposes.

The probes led to the departure of 21 political appointees at the agency, including former Administrator Anne Burford.

Ms. Lavelle is the first EPA official to face a criminal trial as a result of the controversy at the EPA. If convicted, she could go to prison for one year and be fined $1,000.

NATIONAL REPORT: Thunderstorms, tornadoes and winds gusting to 85 mph ripped through the Northern Rockies, uprooting giant pines at an Idaho campground and killing a Boy Scout leader. Heavy rains threatened flooding in South Carolina. Repair crews used utility poles in an effort to plug a leak in a 12-foot pipe that threatened to erode the Pinopolis Dam at Lake Moultrie today and push floodwaters down the Cooper River toward Charleston, S.C. Civil defense officials feared that if the dam gave way, a deadly wall of water would be unleashed on Charleston and the upstream towns of Moncks Corner, Goose Creek and Hanahan. More than 3,000 people living near the dam fled their homes Wednesday. Showers and thunderstorms were scattered from Arizona and New Mexico to Montana. Rain chilled the air in the northern Rockies, setting up downdrafts that caused tornadoes and wind gusts in excess of 80 mph. Winds gusting to 85 mph struck a camping area south of the Snake River near Pallasades Reservoir in Idaho, toppling a dozen giant pines onto a group of 100 men and boys. A Boy Scout leader was killed, two other people were hospitalized and several more suffered cuts and bruises. Several cars were crushed by falling trees at Pinedale in west central Wyoming near the Bridger National Forest. A pair of tornadoes near Phillipsburg in western Montana killed livestock and blew down trees, fences and power lines. Wind damage was reported at West Yellowstone, Mont., near the western gateway to Yellowstone National Park. Storms blasted across the High Plains, with gusts of 65 mph reported at Great Falls, Choteau and Fort Benton, Mont., and Gunnison, Colo.

An Altamonte Springs woman and a Winter Park man have been arrested in connection with a cocaine bust by undercover police detectives.

Altamonte Springs police said the incident began Wednesday when a detective met with a suspect in the Freedom savings and loan parking lot at the Altamonte Mall and the man allegedly agreed to sell the detective one-eighth ounce of cocaine.

James Merlin King, 20, and the detective then drove to a residence at 699 Shady Court in Altamonte Springs where the detective gave King $300 and King entered the residence and returned a few minutes later and gave the detective a plastic bag containing a white powdery substance and $25 change, according to a police report.

The two drove back to the Altamonte Mall parking lot where King was arrested.

Altamonte police then obtained a search warrant and searched the residence at 699 Shady Court where they found a small quantity of cocaine in a bedroom, police said.

Police also arrested an occupant of the home, Eva Joan Kortum, 27, and charged her with possession of a controlled substance.

King, of 222 Sorrento Apartments, Winter Park, was charged with sale and delivery of a controlled substance (cocaine) and conspiracy to traffic in a controlled substance.

King was being held in the Seminole County jail under $8,000 bond. Kortum was in jail under $5,000 bond.

Accord Near On Tax Hikes For School Improvements

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham today said he and legislative leaders have reached agreement on a $227.8 million package of increased spending for Florida's public schools.

Graham, joined at an early morning press conference by House Speaker Lee Moffitt, D-Tampa, and Senate President Curtis Peterson, D-Lakeland, said he would call the Legislature into special session either Monday or Tuesday to consider the plan.

Graham vetoed the public schools portion of the state budget approved by the Legislature last month, saying it did not do enough for public education.

The new spending plan includes $70.5 million in additional taxes on liquor, wine and beer, $95 million in taxes on business profits and other incomes derived from transactions in foreign countries and $62.3 million in increased property taxes.

Graham said the new education proposal was an exercise in compromise and indicates the willingness of state leaders to make a firm commitment to education.

"We'll fund our schools at a level adequate to keep us within striking distance of our goal of national leadership in education," Graham said.

Both Moffitt and Peterson said they were optimistic they would be able to sell the agreement to their membership.

Graham has spent the last several days in secret meetings with Peterson, Moffitt and other legislative leaders, successfully convincing them not to attempt to override his veto of the $2 billion public schools portion of the new state budget, but to get right to work on an alternative education budget.

The two officials said their agreement includes specific funding now and in the following years for the extended school day, which was Peterson's top priority along with the statewide, tough high school graduation standards.

Many House members, Speaker-designate James Harold Thompson of Quincy in particular, had been unwilling to raise taxes because they felt the Senate wouldn't be willing to raise enough to fully fund the extra period and costs created for the school districts by the tougher graduation requirements.

Peterson said he is willing to raise taxes not only to provide reasonable funding for the extra period, but to implement a meaningful merit pay plan for public school teachers, which has been Moffitt's major education reform priority.

It is important, Peterson said, that the state begin its major education improvements during the upcoming year, even though the changes won't be fully implemented for several years.

"If we don't act now on these reforms, it will never happen. It's now or never," Peterson said. "If we don't provide adequate funding ... then the things we want to happen won't happen or we won't move forward as rapidly as we would like."

The agreement also includes more money for re-training of math and science teachers who aren't certified in their subject area than included in the vetoed budget, Peterson said, so this training can be organized over the next few months and begin next summer.

Graham said the package includes the across-the-board raises for teachers and faculty and increases in general education funding needed to continue Florida's drive to become at least the 12th state in the country in salaries and funding by 1985-86.

Ski Boat Plows Into Canoe, Killing Woman

PINE CASTLE (UPI) — An Orlando woman was killed and her daughter seriously injured Wednesday when a 17-foot motor boat smashed into their canoe on Lake Conway, Orange County authorities said.

Cynthia Yeomans, 33, was killed by the impact of the larger boat, said sheriff's spokeswoman Joyce Drazen. Heather Yeomans, 8, suffered a severe leg injury and was reported in serious condition today at the Orlando Regional Medical Center. The victim's husband, Orange County paramedic Don Yeomans, escaped injury.

Ms. Drazen said the motor boat, with three people aboard and a skier in tow, was traveling across the suburban Orlando lake shortly before noon. The craft's driver, Nancy King, 22, apparently did not see the Yeomans canoe.

The boat, being propelled by a 105-horsepower outboard motor, crashed through and over the middle of the canoe. Mrs. Yeomans and her daughter were injured by the boat's propeller, said Ms. Drazen.

No charges have been filed, but the sheriff's department is still investigating the incident.

Covering Up In Keys

KEY WEST (UPI) — An ordinance designed to halt an "epidemic" of nude sunbathing in Key West has received preliminary approval from city officials who want local women to cover up.

After debating for nearly two hours, the city commissioners voted 5-0 late Wednesday on an ordinance that would require women over the age of 9 to cover their private parts in public places.

The ordinance would also ban partial or total nudity from all public areas of the city, along with some private places where the public would be "reasonably expected to go" — like hotels and restaurants.

The ordinance will not become law until a final draft is voted on July 18.

Poland's Future Negotiated Topic

Poland is once again at a crossroads now that its freedom-yearning millions have said farewell to Pope John Paul II.

There is little doubt that the massive demonstration of popularity for the pope also amounted to an equally massive show of disdain for the Soviet puppet regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski. That could number the days of the leader of the "reformist" wing of the Polish Communist party. Hard-liners in Warsaw and Moscow must be cringing over the papal rebukes of communism broadcast to millions.

Fortunately, Rome and Washington also have a say in Poland's immediate political future. Although he was belittled by John Paul, Jaruzelski can claim with some justification that the papal pilgrimage shows a return to normalcy in Poland — to the extent that there were no major incidents. Moreover, he is certain to argue that if he is not allowed to negotiate an end to martial law with the church and is replaced by a harsher ruler, resistance by the Polish people will continue. That will only be to the detriment of both the Polish and Soviet economies.

Any compromise between the Roman Catholic Church and the Polish government can only be galling to the Soviets. Yet, according to Edward Derwinski, the State Department official responsible for Poland, the Soviets don't have too much room for maneuver. There is no replacement for the discredited Jaruzelski regime, except for one that may prompt more serious opposition.

A change also would shatter the delicate national reconciliation process under way. The general already has hinted at a possible martial law lifting on July 22, a Polish national holiday. The pope is scheduled to receive a delegation of Polish church leaders, headed by Cardinal Jozef Glemp.

A critical element to the negotiations is the response of the Regan administration. Already, the president has indicated he will accept a freer Poland, even one not involving Solidarity — a past condition for lifting U.S. trade sanctions. This possible breakthrough came in the form of a little noticed statement at the president's press conference the other day. It followed a meeting between the president and John Cardinal Krol, the archbishop of Philadelphia, who accompanied the pope in Poland.

President Reagan, on the other hand, has not gone so far as to gamble with the advice of Zbigniew Brzezinski, the Carter administration national security adviser, who urged that sanctions be immediately lifted for Jaruzelski's benefit.

While the negotiations are on-going, the president is prudent not to play his hand. It is significant, however, that he has indicated a willingness to help Poland get a fresh start once there is a reasonable change in the political atmosphere.

He could have very easily taken another course — one that would encourage political warfare in Poland. That he chose to extend the olive branch demonstrates a serious desire to maintain peace in Europe and not jeopardize arms control negotiations with the Soviets.

Ironically, while the current Polish regime may survive the pope's visit, a more likely casualty is Solidarity and Lech Walesa. Although the pope met with the repressed union's leader and allied himself with its goals, he did not encourage Solidarity stalwarts to provoke the government. Nor does it appear that he will involve Solidarity in any negotiations with the Polish government. Solidarity may live on in the hearts of all Poles. Otherwise, it is being sacrificed to save the Polish nation.

VIEWPOINT

It's A Pilgrimage Of Hope

By John P. Cregan

(Editor's Note: Mr. Cregan, a former legislative assistant to the late Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, holds a master's degree in Soviet and East Europe history from John Carroll University. His columns are distributed by the USC Writers Group).

In the 1960s movie adaptation of the book, "The Shoes of the Fishermen," a Russian-born pope travels to Red China in a dramatic attempt to avert a confrontation between the two communist super-powers. The presumptions seemed bizarre even by cinematic standards.

The pictures and stories broadcast from Poland last week were another indication that Hollywood histrionics are often a pale imitation of real life drama. With Pope John Paul II's return to his native land, the symbol and substance of the great ideological struggle between the forces of materialism and spiritualism were merged.

Although the Vatican had insisted that the Pope's trip was a "pilgrimage of hope" without political overtones, there was no doubting the New York Times' assessment that this was "the most political act" of a most political Pope. This shouldn't startle anyone. Throughout Poland's thousand year history, religion and politics have been inseparable. Poland's own communist dictators realize this, and unabashedly attempted to use the papal visit to consecrate the legitimacy of their regime. Their calculation was badly mistaken and proved to be an embarrassing failure. John Paul was shown to be a much more astute student of Polish politics.

The pomp of a papal procession always makes for good theater. When poised against the backdrop of posters of the outlawed free trade union, Solidarity, and tense confrontations with the Polish dictator, it ensured preeminent coverage on the nightly news. What is uncaptured by the camera, what is left unsaid in the newspapers' descriptive accounts, is the remarkable nature of this Polish revolution which cannot be extinguished.

The Polish situation is so unlike the leftist revolutions that the world has witnessed in recent years. The Marxist guerrilla wars, with their orchestrated professions of "national liberation," and "the people" have become clones of one another. Their lack of genuine support and spontaneity is best measured by the similarity of outcome.

Whereas the Marxist movements are fueled by hatred, the Polish revolution is spirited by hope. The so-called "national liberation" movements take place in Third World countries that lack coherent national identities. The Poles have a long and proud history with a culture that, as John Paul reminded his countrymen, is "above all, Western European." Solidarity is partly the story of their repulsion at the foreign ideology of Marxism-Leninism.

Thus, the return of the Pope to his homeland becomes an unavoidable and powerful political event. Solidarity is above all a movement born on the altar of a passionate Christian faith. The world has once again witnessed the resiliency of Solidarity, which has been pinned under the jackboot of martial law for more than eighteen months. Its romance was unleashed by the visit of one man who commands no armies, who holds no political office. The events of this past week remind us of the French writer, Victor Hugo's suggestion that no amount of military might can stop an idea whose time has come.

Surinam Now Leftist Dictatorship

Surinam, the former Dutch colony in South America, is now regarded as a leftist dictatorship by the White House. But it wasn't always so.

President Gerald Ford wanted to cultivate Surinam as a friend after its independence in 1975, and thought a good way to start would be to grant a Surinamese request for a small number of recoilless rifles.

A secret memo signed by Ford gives his reasoning: "Our ability to accede to reasonable requests from newly independent Surinam to purchase defense articles and services will serve to Sanford's Little Major American League All-Stars cannot be accused of lacking class.

When last week's Sub-District Baseball Tournament opened at Leesburg, several of manager Lawrence Hawkins' players arrived at the game courtesy of a parent's limousine.

American pitcher "Steady Eddie" Charles promptly greeted everybody he met with, "We came in a limousine." When informed that maybe it would be a good idea for him to turn in a "Cadillac Performance" on the mound that evening in order to reserve his seat for the ride back, Charles just kind of gave the questioner a confused look.

And confused was what could describe the Clermont batters when they tried to hit Charles' offerings. He pitched a one-hitter and the Americans posted an easy victory. Definitely a "Cadillac Performance."

Now, if the Americans could only do something about the Sanford Nationals, this would be quite a playoff...

Most of the Sanford fans — and there a lot of them who made the trips last week to Leesburg — were impressed with the beautiful two-diamond facility which is maintained by the city.

The park contained two well manicured baseball fields with finely cut grass infields. Adjacent was a full-length soccer and football field.

Baseball Top Team Tournaments were concluded last week with Oviedo's Seniors and Altamonte's Indians earning runners-up positions. Both learned how tough it is to come through the loser's bracket, but both showed amazing pitching depth, too.

Next on tap for area teams is the all-star competition. By the looks of some of the top teams, it should be another strong year for Altamonte and Oviedo squads.

Oviedo's Seniors have Dave Wood, Craig Duncan, Terry Gammons and Randy Ferguson as standout players. They will be joined by standout catcher Mark Hofmann for the all-star competition. Wood, Duncan and Hofmann played varsity baseball as freshmen for Oviedo.

Altamonte should field four strong teams — two Majors, one Juniors and a Seniors. The Junior League Top Team, managed by Terry Hagen, didn't a good Top Team Tournament, dropping two games, but it is a very talented group with Randy Green, Chris Brock, Eric and Ernest Martinez, Greg Ebbert, J.W. Waring and Anthony Laszalic, just to name a few. Look for it to bounce back for the all-star competition...

WASHINGTON WORLD

It's A Capitol 'Whodunit'

By Helen Thomas

UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan White House is battling the hatches for a new storm that could have far-reaching effects.

The mystery of how President Carter's pilfered briefing papers wound up in the hands of President Reagan aides during the campaign is threatening to hang over the White House all summer.

The evidence is there. Literally hundreds of Carter papers were found, listed under "Afghanistan." In the fifth-floor files of the Executive Office Building next door to the White House.

Like the Nixon tapes during the Watergate scandal, no one thought to destroy them.

But it is up to the FBI, which is conducting a criminal investigation, to determine "who done it."

Carter aides, who are outraged, do not believe the documents were purloined by one person — one disgruntled Carter aide as some first speculated. Instead, they are inclined to believe there was a systematic flow of unauthorized information from the Carter White House to the Reagan campaign.

They also contend that there may have been a breach of national security with some of the papers that were passed on in the classified category.

So far, four aides, Chief of Staff James Baker, Communications Director David Gergen, Budget Director David Stockman and Frank Rodsell, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts, attest to having seen the papers. Gergen found the papers in his files after first reporting he didn't know where they were.

Baker said he believed they came from William Casey, but Casey, now the CIA director, said he has "no recollection" of turning over such documents to Baker.

So far, neither Reagan nor aides admit to any wrongdoing in obtaining or using the documents for Reagan's campaign purposes. Reagan repeatedly refused to say at a news conference whether it was "right" to do so.

"I never heard anything about all this until you started talking about it," he told reporters. "No one on our side ever mentioned to me anything of this kind."

Clearly, the White House first decided the report that pilfered papers were used to coach Reagan in the big 1980 debate with Carter would be a one-day story. They chose to view it that way. Regan first called it "much ado about nothing." His spokesman Larry Speakes one day expansively lectured reporters "that this was nothing new in politics."

But within a few days they changed their tune and now Speakes keeps reminding reporters that Reagan wants a "vigorous" investigation of the affair.

Meantime, other sidelights of campaign intelligence are beginning to surface.

A former White House aide says a network of ex-military officers kept an eye on American airbases at home and abroad to learn whether Carter planned any move to bring the American hostages home from Iran before the November presidential election.

White House aides insist that the entire affair is being "overblown." It also has led to some internal sniping and divisions in the White House ranks. At the same time, the pressure is on Casey to refresh his memory.

Meantime, aides are attempting to keep Reagan aloof from the fray. They promote the image of a candidate who was totally unaware of any of the strategic operations of his campaign, and of a president who does want to know even now what went on then.

Tobacco Firms Besieged

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For decades, the tobacco lobby was among the most firmly entrenched on Capitol Hill. In the days when the seniority system determined congressional control, Southern Democrats controlled both the Senate and the House — and since they represented the tobacco states, the industry was used to getting its way in Congress.

But power in both the House and the Senate has shifted away from the Southern delegations, and the tobacco industry is now besieged as never before.

The industry is now being attacked on two fronts: Its highly lucrative federal support program is up for renewal — and at the same time, critics of smoking's health hazards are increasing their efforts to bring the industry under even tighter regulation.

Tobacco farmers have long benefited from a program that offers cheap loans, production controls to hold down crop sizes and a fixed minimum price that is guaranteed by a very complex price-support program.

The support program is up for renewal, and it's taking a beating from both ends of the political spectrum. Many conservatives attack it from the economic angle, saying that it's too costly and opposes the free-market concept, since it guarantees a price and holds down competition. Liberals, meanwhile, say that the federal government should not support a product that is a proven health hazard.

Health is also the crux of another issue: Anti-smoking forces and their friends in Congress are trying to force the tobacco industry to sharpen the warning printed on its products.

The warning label now reads: "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health" — but this, say critics, is too vague and too general to be effective.

They want a new statement: "Warning! Cigarette smoking causes cancer, emphysema, heart disease; may complicate pregnancy and is addictive."

This two-pronged attack on tobacco comes when the industry already is beset by rising costs and declining sales. The sales drop was caused by a combination of factors, including the sharp decline in smoking and in foreign sales, as well as U.S. cigarette makers' increasing use of cheaper foreign tobacco.

Opponents of the tobacco support system argue that price supports have artificially inflated the cost of U.S. tobacco so that it can no longer compete with the foreign-grown product. But the industry says that tobacco — like any other commodity — suffers from the strong dollar and from heavily subsidized foreign crops.

There seems little doubt that the present Congress will make major changes in the tobacco price-support system. The congressional leadership is willing to work out a compromise with the industry, but it has hit a stumbling block: Various segments of the industry can't agree among themselves on what that compromise should be. It's likely, however, that a compromise would include a freeze, holding support payments at current levels.

As for package labeling, a Senate committee has sent a bill to the floor that requires the stronger warning. The bill also would give the Department of Health and Human Services statutory authority to collect research data on smoking and to develop and disseminate anti-smoking information and ads. The same legislation is moving through a House committee.

The industry doesn't want the new label, but it seems clear that some change is forthcoming — so the industry is trying to negotiate with HHS for a warning whose wording falls between the present one and the one now in Congress. The tobacco industry hopes that if an agreement can be worked out with HHS, its friends on the Hill will be able to derail the stiffer warning label.

sent out new color slides of Secretary James Watt to the television networks and a few local stations. The idea, as one slack explained it, was "to replace the rather unflattering ones that are normally used."

Unfortunately, lacking a technical TV expert, Watt's people had the slides mounted wrong. If used as received, the secretary would have appeared on the screen lying sideways. Even so, the department received a few expressions of thanks for the slides.

So she has designed "No Watts" bumper stickers and T-shirts bearing a cartoon likeness of Watt, and is peddling them out of her home. "You can do only so much PTA," explained Dougherty, who has 10 children. "I wanted to do something different."

Back in the late 1960s, she and her physician husband were responsible for designing and marketing the Spiro Agnew wristwatch.

At the right, "Sugar Tex" takes a big swing and miss while striking out in the first inning. McCloud was winging them and stinging them Wednesday, allowing two hits and clubbing a three-run homer as the Sanford Nationals whipped the Americans, 12-6. The Nationals advance to the District 2 Tournament at Leesburg, beginning next Wednesday. Sanford will play the Ormond Beach representative at 6 p.m. Leesburg's Americans and the Ocala seed play at 8 p.m. The tournament is double-elimination.

McCloud Fires 2-Hitter As Nationals Win Title

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

LEESBURG — Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud hurled a two-hitter and slugged a three-run homer to lead the Sanford Nationals to a 12-6 drubbing of the Sanford Americans Wednesday as the Nationals claimed the Little Major League Sub-District 2 Tournament title.

The Sanford Nationals will now go on to the District 4 Tournament which will also be played in Leesburg. The Nationals go up against Ormond Beach on Wednesday, July 13, at 6 p.m.

"We started making mistakes in the early innings and the guys started to get down on themselves," Nationals manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin, Jr. said. "If we keep getting down on ourselves we aren't going to be in the tournament too much longer. But, if we don't get down on ourselves, this team is going to go places."

The Sanford Americans took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning as Kyle Faulkner led off with a walk, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on an RBI single by Von Eric Small. The Americans did not get another hit off McCloud until the bottom of the sixth.

The Nationals responded with three runs in the top of the second to take a 3-1 lead. George Gordon walked to lead off, went to second on a wild pitch and took third on the same play as catcher Bernard Mitchell's throw sailed into center field. Gordon also scored on a wild pitch. The next hitter, Tim Graham, was also issued a walk. He stole second while Mitchell was talking to his coach with the ball still in play and then took third on a passed ball. One out later, Anthony Merthie drew a walk and he stole second to put runners on second and third. Harry Chibberton followed by stroking a two-run single down the left field line.

The Americans regained the lead in the bottom of the second, thanks to two Sanford National errors and four walks. Scooter Leonard reached on an error to lead off and he advanced to second and third on a pair of wild pitches. One out later, Pat Dougherty was issued a free pass and he advanced to second on a passed ball. Gerald Morris then reached on an error to load the bases with only one out. McCloud then struck out Faulkner for the second out, but walked the next three hitters to force in three runs and give the Americans a 4-3 lead.

Both sides went down in order in the third inning but the Nationals came on in the fourth to break the game wide open with six runs on four hits and three Sanford American errors. Graham drew a walk to lead off and went to second when Americans' pitcher Ronald Cox balked. Mike Merthie followed with a single to put runners on first and third and Anthony Merthie followed with a two-run single to right. A. Merthie took second and third on the same play when the right fielder mishandled the ball and he scored when Dougherty cut the throw off but threw wildly attempting to get Merthie at third. With two outs in the inning, Jeff Blake reached on an infield single and Hubert Williams drew a walk. McCloud followed by belting a line drive over the center field fence for his third homer of the tournament and a 9-4 Sanford National lead.

McCloud came back on the pitching mound to set down 12 straight hitters after the shaky second inning. Meanwhile, the Nationals tacked on three runs in the top of the fifth to take a 12-4 lead. Graham led off with an infield single and Mike Merthie followed with a single to left. Both Graham and Mike Merthie scored when Anthony Merthie reached on an error and Merthie scored on an RBI groundout by Denny Clayton.

The Americans scored two runs with two outs in the bottom of the sixth, but it was too little, too late.

Blake led the Nationals at the plate with three hits including a triple. Blake had three hits in the final two tournament games. Mike Merthie added a pair of hits while McCloud's homer was his third three-shot in four games and he was honored as the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Sanford National suffered a bit at the plate to begin with due to the long layoff between games. The Nationals last game was last Thursday.

"The long layoff hurt the bats," Franklin said. "Because of the rain, we only go in one day of batting practice over the layoff. The bats are the only thing I was worried about."

The Nationals played without shortstop Dwight Brinson who went on vacation to New York.

Lynn's Slam Opens Door For AL Victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — If the American League had its way, it probably would try to make Chicago the permanent home of the All-Star game.

The junior circuit, which has enjoyed little success in the midsummer classic in recent years, tapped the tradition set by the first generation American League all-stars 50 years ago by powering past the National League 13-3 in the golden anniversary game Wednesday night at Comiskey Park.

The American League, which snapped the National League's 11-game winning streak with the win, has won only three times in the last 21 years and twice it's been in the Windy City. The AL won the second game played in 1962 at Wrigley Field and last won in Detroit in 1971.

But the AL's win on a clear, crisp July night before a sellout crowd of 43,801 was one directly descended from the original win at Comiskey Park in 1933. The AL banged out a record 13 runs, including a seven run outburst in the third — also a record. The junior circuit also belted seven extra base hits, which tied a record. The 15 hits was the second highest in history, surpassed only by the 17 in 1954.

The key blow was Fred Lynn's grand slam — the first in 120 All-Star homers dating back to Babe Ruth's shot (also in the third inning) in the first game in 1933 — which came off former American Leaguer and now San Francisco southpaw Alton Hamaker, the principal victim of the post-World War II firestorm.

"We just happened to get on one of their pitchers for a change, that's what we have not been doing in the all-star games I've played in," said Lynn, whose fourth All-Star homer earned him most valuable player honors. "One advantage might be that Hamaker was in our league once and our guys knew a little bit what to look for and he had an off night."

While Lynn was one of several AL heroes — Dave Winfield had three hits, Jim Rice ignited the third inning rally with a homer and starter and winner Dave Stieb struck out four in three innings — Hamaker was clearly the goat in the NL's 19th loss against 34 wins (and a tie).

"To put it bluntly, it's probably the worst exhibition of pitching you'll ever see. And, I couldn't have picked a worse spot for it, either," said Hamaker, the leader in the NL in ERA with a 1.70. "I hung a slider to Lynn. They tell me in the dugout that I had Lynn struck out; but that doesn't mean anything. I was too terrible to alibi."

Hamaker's performance wasn't the only sub-par effort on a NL squad that had always managed to get the key hit, great fielding play or strong pitching effort in the past two decades.

The NL made three errors that contributed to three unearned runs, two in the first two innings when the AL took a 2-1 lead. The NL failed to take advantage of early scoring opportunities and managed only one extra base hit — a double by Al Oliver in the fourth, in the game.

"It was just a good, old-fashioned (butt)-kicking," said NL Manager Whitey Herzog. "(starting pitcher Mario) Soto threw a lot of pitches the first inning, but if we played better behind him, we could have gotten out without any runs against us. Of course, you could say the same thing about Stieb."

The NL always seemed to play with more confidence, some would argue with more enthusiasm, during the streak. AL manager Harvey Kuenn said he noted a different attitude on his club before the game.

"I really had the feeling that the ballplayers wanted to do it," Kuenn said. "I think they were determined."

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt, who hit into a double play in the fourth inning to thwart a potential NL comeback, had a more specific reason for the lopsided loss.

"Basically, we had a pretty inexperienced team this year, a lot of young players," Schmidt explained. "Not to make excuses, but this year a lot of guys who were involved in the 11 straight NL all-star wins weren't here tonight. We have to pretty much start over."

Outside of Rick Honeycutt, who was tapped for the only two earned runs the NL could muster, the combination of Stieb, Bob Stanley, Matt Young and Dan Quisenberry contained the usually potent NL bats.

The contest, played exactly one year to the date of the AL's 4-2 win in the inaugural game 50 years ago, started out like it would be another typically long night for the AL when the home club committed two errors in the first inning.

Steve Sax reached on a throwing error by Stieb and stole second. Tim Lincecum tapped to Stieb whose throw to first was missed by Rod Carew who was battling the sun and Sax scored. But instead of a big NL uprising, Stieb struck out Andre Dawson, Dale Murphy and Schmidt to end the threat.

"When we escaped the first inning, I thought it was a big part of the game. I just couldn't believe I could go out with just one run," Stieb said.

The AL then turned the tables, loading the bases off loser Soto. A single to Carew, a walk to Lynn and an error by Schmidt loaded the bases before George Brett's sacrifice fly. In the second, Winfield doubled, went to third on Sax's throwing error and after Carew was intentionally walked, scored on Yount's sacrifice fly.

The roof fell in the third. Rice, who had homered in four of his last six games, led off with a homer. Brett tripled. One out later, Winfield singled home Brett. Trillo singled and Carew singled home Winfield. Yount was intentionally walked and Lynn ripped a 2-2 pitch into the right field bleachers.

Murphy's RBI single and a RBI single by Sax in the fifth cut the lead to 9-3. But that was it for the NL. The AL tacked on a pair of runs in the seventh on Lou Whitaker's RBI triple and Willie Wilson's RBI double, and put the icing on the anniversary cake with Pedro Guerrero dropping Whitaker's fly ball for a run and another tally coming in on an infield out.

Raines, Like NL, Has Poor Night

Like his National League teammates, Sanford's Tim Raines didn't have a very good night in Chicago.

Raines reached on Dave Stieb's error in the first inning, speeding all the way to third base when Rod Carew lost the throw in the sun as Steve Sax scored.

In his next at bat in the third inning, Raines was caught looking at a third strike. In his final appearance, Raines hit the ball hard, but right at third baseman George Brett who turned it into a 5-4 double play. Raines, who leads the N.L. in steals, stole second several pitches later, but was stranded.

The Montreal left fielder was kept busy in the outfield, running down fly balls and returning many of the American League hits to the infield.

On one occasion, Dave Winfield threatened to go from first to third on a single, but Raines "smiled" Winfield back to second with a fake throw and a laugh.

enjoyed it very much." The other crowd favorite was Ron Kittle, 25, of the host Chicago White Sox. The hometown partisans stood and roared when he trotted to left field in the seventh inning, when he beat out an infield single later in the inning and even when he struck out in the eighth.

"Those ovations were thrilling, the biggest thrill I've had in my life," said Kittle. Most of the American League players agreed they had removed a stigma they had carried for 11 years.

"Next year they won't be asking us why we can't win an All-Star Game," Winfield said. "Next year the National League will be asking, 'How do we keep the American League from scoring all those runs?'"

American League Record 15-Hit Attack Unharnesses Frustration Of Losses

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American League unleashed more than 15 hits in its record-smashing triumph in the 50th anniversary All-Star game — it unharnessed the frustration of 11 consecutive losses in classic midsummer contest.

The 13-3 victory Wednesday night was the American League's first in the All-Star game since 1971 and it halted a streak that had the National League win 19 of the last 20 games.

The 13 runs broke an All-Star team record, which the AL had set in a 12-0 win in 1948. The winners also tied a record with seven extra-base hits, a mark which had stood since 1934.

The AL jumped out to a 9-1 lead after three innings and never looked back.

"We just happened to get on one of their pitchers for a change," said the California Angels Fred Lynn, the game's most valuable player.

Lynn hit the first grand slam in All-Star history off Alton Hamaker in the AL's seven-run third inning. "I've played in eight All-Star Games and had never won before," he said. "It feels great to finally play in a winning All-Star Game."

There were other stars as well for the AL.

Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees had three hits, scored two runs and made a fine catch of Andre Dawson's fly to end the fifth inning. Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox hit a line-drive home run to lead off the fourth. Winning pitcher Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays allowed no hits and one unearned run while striking out four batters.

All-Star Game

"This is a big thrill for me, not only to play in the game, but to start the game and be the winning pitcher in the game that we broke the losing streak in," Stieb said.

The game did not begin as an AL rout. Two errors in the first inning helped give the NL a 1-0 lead, but the AL tied it with a run in the bottom half, took a 2-1 lead in the second, and blew the game open with seven runs in the third.

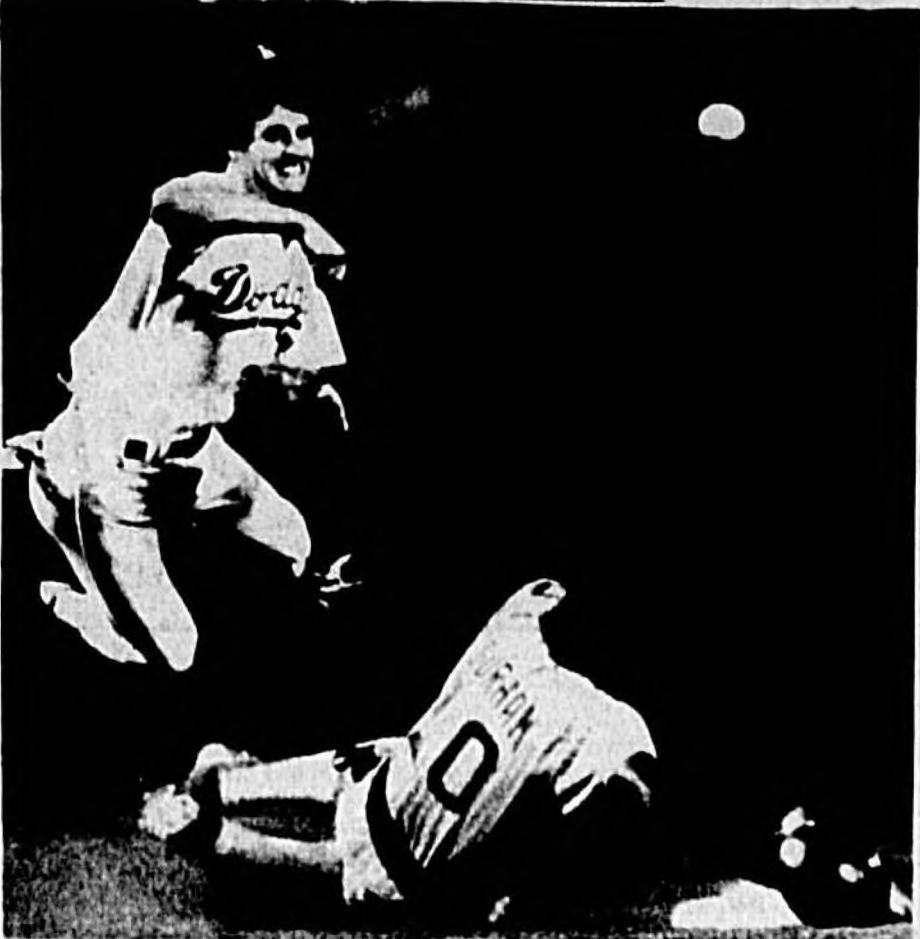

"This is a very special win for me," said Milwaukee Brewers manager Harvey Kuenn, who piloted the AL. "This is one of my biggest thrills in baseball. Everyone on the bench was hoopin' and hollerin' like it was the first game they had ever played."

The crowd of 43,801, which was fervently behind the American League from the beginning, saved two of its loudest cheers for the game's oldest star and one of its youngest.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, 43, who has announced he will retire at the end of the season, was given a special roster spot on the AL squad by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Yastrzemski struck out when he pinch hit in the seventh inning, but not before a long standing ovation.

"I didn't expect it; I was taken aback a little bit," Yastrzemski said. "I would have expected it in Boston. I appreciated it and

The chances of this throw by Steve Sax reaching its destination are slim and none. Sax, the NL's All-Star second baseman, has already made more errors (24) than any second sacker all of last year.

American Leaguers Mug Hammaker En Route To Snapping 11-Game Slide

CHICAGO (UPI) — What started out as a comedy of errors turned into a laughter for the American League and a tragedy for a young National League pitcher whose first All-Star appearance was nothing more than a record-breaking bust.

Soon or later, the American League All-Stars had to beat up on somebody — an they mugged Allee Hammaker, breaking open Wednesday's night All-Star game with a spectacular third-inning rally on the way to a 13-3 win, the AL's first in a dozen years.

Nine AL batters clubbed Hammaker for seven runs, an All-Star single-inning record. He gave up six hits, also an All-Star record for a single pitcher in a single inning.

Two of the hits were home runs, Jim Rice's lead-off solo shot in the bottom of the third and Fred Lynn's grand slam, the first in All-Star history.

"I've given up two home runs all year, and then two in one inning," said Hammaker. "To put it bluntly, it's probably the worst exhibition of pitching you'll ever see."

All-Star Game

It had looked at first — after the American Leaguers opened the contest with errors on the first two plays and staked the Nationals to a 1-0 lead — as if the 11-year NL monopoly on the mid-summer classic was due for yet another extension.

But the tide turned with a vengeance almost as soon as Hammaker threw the first of his 30 pitches in the third, with his club trailing 2-1.

Hammaker kept getting ahead of the batters, but then kept serving up just what they were looking for. Rice put a 1-2 pitch into the seats, and Lynn's grand slam came after what most of National Leaguers thought should have been a called third strike.

"I was ahead of the hitters, but I didn't throw the pitch that would put them away," said Hammaker, who came into the All-Star break with a 9-4 record and a healthy 1.70 ERA. "I have no excuses. I was too terrible to atibi."

The forlorn 25-year-old had at least one consolation. NL starter Mario Soto also pitched ineffectively.

Neither of the runs Soto allowed in an error-filled first two innings was earned, but that didn't ease the Cincinnati right-hander's disgust.

"I just wasn't comfortable out there tonight," Soto said. "I wasn't throwing strikes. I wasn't concerned about the errors. I just wasn't throwing well myself."

NL Manager Whitey Herzog said he didn't think the shellacking his All-Stars took proves anything more about the relative strength of the two leagues than the 11 in a row won by the senior circuit since 1971.

"If they win the next 10 or we do, it doesn't mean a thing," Herzog said. "It's a showcase for the fans."

The 43,801 fans in Comiskey Park — predominantly American League rooters — resigned themselves to seeing the Nationals make it an even dozen in a row after the most haphazard of AL defensive efforts in the first inning.

Leadoff man Steve Sax reached when AL starter Dave Stieb overthrew first baseman Rod Carew. Sax scored when Carew dropped Stieb's toss on an easy grounder by Montreal's Tim Lincecum.

Both players and umpires put part of the blame for the succession of errors on the settling sun peeking over the third-base roof at Comiskey, the site of the first All-Star game exactly 50 years earlier.

"When the National League was up in the first inning, I couldn't see the ball at all and I'm sure Carew couldn't either," said first-base umpire Harry Wendelstedt. "It was blinding."

Sax said he was sure that the sun had interfered with Carew.

"It was very tough to see over there," Sax said. "It was clear the sun was a factor."

But the sun went down and so did the NL's chances. The Nationals managed to score again only in the fourth and fifth innings. Atlanta's Dale Murphy and Sax each collected an RBI.

Win Or Lose, You Can Bank On Ernie

CHICAGO (UPI) — Win or lose, my man is Ernie Banks.

Nothing gets him down. He keeps his perspective no matter what that score is up there on the board.

You should've seen him putting away some of that finger-licking fried chicken in the losers' lockerroom Wednesday night after the National League All-Stars took their worst lumps in 37 years from the American League, which suddenly threw off its yoke following 11 straight setbacks and 19 in the last 20.

Not since 1946 when they were annihilated, 12-0, did the Nationals ever absorb such a through beating as they did in this 50th anniversary contest at Comiskey Park that turned into a 13-3 laughter for the Americans.

Banks, the National League's honorary captain, shook his head a bit sadly over the outcome.

"It wasn't such a great night to play two, was it?" he offered, and even Phillies manager Pat Corrales, one of the National League coaches, undressing alongside him, had to laugh over that one.

After the third inning when the American Leaguers hammered Allee Hammaker, San Francisco's ace lefty, for six runs, including Jim Rice's bases-empty homer and Freddie Lynn's grand slam to go ahead 9-1, what else was there to do but laugh?

Nobody on the American League bench was laughing in the first inning when the Nationals jumped in front, 1-0, on a pair of back-to-back errors by starting pitcher Dave Stieb and first baseman Rod Carew less than three minutes after the game began. It happened this way:

Steve Sax, the Dodgers second baseman who has been having so much trouble with his throws lately, led off with an infield chop to Stieb, who had plenty of time to get him. But the Blue Jays right-hander got a little excited and ballooned the ball over Carew's head for the first error.

Sax stole second and Montreal's Tim Lincecum also tapped back to Stieb, whose throw to first was perfect this time. The sun setting just above the roof of the left field grandstand got in Carew's eyes, causing him to miss the ball completely for another error. When the play was over, Sax had scored after getting into a shoving match with catcher Ted Simmons at the plate, and Raines had reached third.

On the American League bench, Carl Yastrzemski thought to himself what a way this was to go out. The Red Sox' 43-year-old future Hall of Famer was participating in his 18th All-Star game and his final one because he's retiring at the end of this season.

"After those two first-inning errors, I said 'here we go again,'" said Yastrzemski later on.

Fortunately for the American League, it didn't turn out that way.

Stieb settled down nicely, getting out of the inning on only one run. First, he struck out Andre Dawson and although he walked Al Oliver, he also struck out two of the National League's most dangerous hitters in Dale Murphy and Mike Schmidt.

He retired the side in order in the second inning and again in the third without yielding a single hit during his entire stint. By the time he turned over the pitching to left-hander Rick Honeycutt of the Texas Rangers in the fourth, the American League already had the game on ice.

Kansas City's George Brett, who played the whole game for the winners and had a triple, double and sacrifice fly, seemed to speak for all the American Leaguers. In commenting about the end of their long losing slide, he said, "It's about time."

Brett called attention to the important part Simmons played in the American League's victory. The Milwaukee receiver was making his eighth All-Star appearance, the first six of which were in the National League as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Simmons started behind the plate for the American League Wednesday night and played the first three innings before being replaced by Detroit's Lance Parrish. He failed to get the ball out of the infield in his two trips to the plate, but Brett said Simmons was the only American Leaguer who stayed in the dugout for the entire game even though he played only three innings.

"He was the one leading the cheers on the bench," Brett revealed. "He never let up. He kept hollering 'Action... action... we want action.' I always knew he was a very good competitor. I didn't think he was that kind of cheerleader."

When asked by a newsmen why he stayed on the bench for the entire game while so many of the other players who were removed from the contest left for the clubhouse, Simmons pointed to himself and said, "I wanted to win."

Whitey Herzog, the Cardinals manager who handled the National League, did not regard his team's loss as any enormous calamity.

"We just got our butts kicked," he said.

Commenting on the seven runs the American League scored against Hammaker in the third inning, Herzog said all the National Leaguers felt that the pitcher had struck out Lynn on the pitch before his grand slam. Plate umpire George Maloney had called it a ball.

Informed that the majority of National Leaguers felt that Hammaker had struck him out before he hit his home run into the upper right field seats with the bases full and two out, Lynn merely smiled and joked, "history won't record it that way."

"I'll admit the pitch was close but I thought it was outside and the umpire agreed with me," Lynn added. "I can remember a similar situation in the 1975 World Series I was in against the Reds. Don Gullett threw me a two-strike pitch that I thought was outside but the umpire disagreed with me."

"You know how that goes. You win some and you lose some."

The American League had any number of heroes in its victory. Fellows like Lynn, Stieb, Brett and Dave Winfield, who collected three of the winners' 15 hits.

But I thought the real hero of the ballgame was a fellow on the losing side. I mean Hammaker, who never so much offered a single alibi and said he was completely at fault for all the third-inning carnage. He felt badly, but managed to stay upbeat all the way.

"I hope to be back someday and I hope to do better," he spoke up. "I guess you could say I'm down as far as I can go, but I can't attribute to any nervousness or anything like that. I just didn't have good stuff and it showed."

Giant teammate Darrell Evans made a point of trying to cheer up Hammaker.

"I'm glad you got it out of your system," he told Hammaker. "You haven't had a bad outing since spring training, so you had to have one coming. The good part about this is that it won't bother your ERA a bit."

Cubs' Noles Gets 16 Days In Jail

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Chicago Cubs pitcher Dickie Noles is serving a 16-day jail term for assaulting a Cincinnati police officer.

Noles, 26, was convicted Wednesday of assault and began serving his sentence at 5 p.m. EDT Wednesday at the century-old Cincinnati Workhouse. He is to be confined until July 22.

Hamilton County Municipal Court Judge David Albanese rejected a plea by Noles' attorney, Robert Hastings, to delay the sentence until the end of the baseball season in October.

Hagler, Duran Set For Nov. 10; Peete Eyes Milwaukee Open

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Marvin Hagler will put his World Boxing Association middleweight championship on the line Nov. 10 against Roberto Duran in a 15-round title bout which could earn each fighter $10 million.

Dunes Hotel vice president Sidney Gathrid said Wednesday the two fighters and promoter Bob Arum reached agreement with hotel officials Tuesday night.

Plans call for the fight to be shown on closed circuit television in the U.S. and 28 foreign countries.

Gathrid said the fight would officially be announced today in New York.

Duran, one of seven people to hold world championships in three separate divisions, will seek to become the first to capture four when he meets Hagler.

The former world lightweight and World Boxing Council welterweight champion returned from 2 1/2 years of disgrace recently by scoring an eighth-round TKO on his 32nd birthday to take Davey Moore's WBA junior middleweight crown. The bout erased the stigma of a November 1980 rematch with Sugar Ray Leonard, when Duran quit in the eighth round.

Duran, whose record is now 76-4, earned about $400,000 in the Moore fight.

Hagler, who had been talking about quitting because of there were too few opponents who could attract a large purse, watched at ringside when Duran displayed his ring savvy and punching power of old to take Moore's crown. Hagler said he was impressed with Duran's return to form.

Hagler easily retained his crown last month by beating Wilford Scypton.

Arum, who has promoted Hagler's recent title fights, also has options on three Duran fights. Arum saved Duran's career after the boxer was upset last year by Kirkland Laing.

FRANKLIN, Wis. (UPI) — For Calvin Peete, a two-time winner of the Greater Milwaukee Open, the GMO is more than just a tournament. It is the birthplace of a career that placed him among the game's top players.

Roundup

"This has been a very important tournament in my career," he said Wednesday on the eve of the 1993 GMO. "It is very special to me because it was the first I played."

"When I won the first time it gave me the confidence to go on after several lean years. And when I won last year it boosted my confidence again. Right now I feel my confidence is at an all-time high and I'd like to win number three."

His pro debut came in the GMO in 1976, and even though he missed the cut it was special as his first PGA outing. Three years later, Peete got his first tournament win by taking the GMO, establishing him as a rising star.

His second GMO win last summer ignited his finest year, as he went on to win three more tournaments and finish fourth in earnings with more than $318,000.

Marvin Hagler...To fight Duran

Peete says another victory will not be easy, even though the field that begins play today in the $250,000 PGA event is not a star-studded one — he is the only one of the top 20 tour money-winners in the GMO.

Fledgling NASL member Team America met the New York Cosmos Wednesday night, and although its much-talked-about physical game may not have been enough to win, the Cosmos were hurt.

Though the Cosmos won 4-0, they may have lost the services of veteran Giorgio Chinaglia. Chinaglia pulled a hamstring chasing down a pass and may be sidelined for as much as three weeks.

Steve Moyers headed in the only goal of the first half at 26:02 after a pass from Julio Cesar Romero during the game. Romero, who is making a comeback from injuries, added another assist and a goal.

"I had a lot more confidence today," said Romero. "I felt good for the first time this year."

The Cosmos broke the game open with three goals within a 17-minute span midway through the second half. Romero scored on a header at 55:40, Roberto Cabanas on a soft shot from the middle at 65:06 and Vladislav Bogicevic on a left-footed blast at 72:33.

Goalkeeper Hubert Birkenmeier anchored a steady Cosmos defense with eight saves.

Blizzard 2, Roughnecks 1

At Toronto, Blizzard forward Jimmy Nicholl scored two second-half goals including the game-winner with less than three minutes left. Nicholl opened the scoring off a Pasquale Deluca pass at 76:38. Tulsa's Barry Wallace retaliated at 86:45 on an unassisted goal, but Nicholl bounced the winner in 44 seconds later off a free kick.

Earthquakes 3, Sounders 2

At San Jose, Calif., Golden Bay's Jan Goossens, Mihajl Kerl and Germain Iglesias scored in the shootout to lift the Earthquakes to a 7-0 home record. In regulation, David Kemp of Seattle opened the scoring at 52:45, followed by two goals by Goossens to give the Earthquakes a 2-1 lead at 69:42. Seattle's Steve Daley tied the score at 82:44, but neither team could score in two overtime periods.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Furious 4th-Quarter Press Lifts Cook's Corner To Win

A furious fourth-quarter press enabled Seminole Cook's Corner to outscore Osceola, 23-7, en route to a 68-60 come back victory Wednesday night in AAU Basketball action at Seminole High.

Osceola had opened up a 10 point lead, 53-43, by the end of the third quarter, but Cook's Corner put on the press in the fourth quarter and Osceola ran out of gas. Willie Mitchell led the way for Cook's Corner with 21 points followed by James Rouse with 18.

In Junior Varsity action, Seminole ran to a 77-43 victory behind Robert Hill's 18 points. Darryl Williams added 12 points, Mike Wright tossed in 11 and Jerry Parker added 10 for Seminole.

Seminole Cook's Corner will try to make it three wins in three days tonight in a matchup with Lake Brantley at Lake Brantley High. The Junior Varsity game begins at 6:30.

Clark 'Conditionally' Quits

Eugene "Torchy" Clark, the only basketball coach the University of Central Florida has ever known, has submitted a "conditional resignation" letter to UCF athletic director Bill Peterson.

Clark was reportedly not happy with the support given the basketball program as it tried to move up to a Division I status with the football program. Clark asked for a two-semester sabbatical and said he would like to continue as a physical education professor at the school. The resignation is effective on Aug. 31.

During his 14-year career at UCF, Clark won 276 games and lost just 89. He consistently had his Knights vying for post-season honors, going to the final four six times. UCF has won four Sunshine State Conference titles in the past eight years.

Sanford's Ruben Cotton was one of the many talented performers to play for Clark. Clark's move leaves UCF without a coach or an assistant with Zeke Kinney having resigned in May to pursue his doctorate.

Kaat, 44, Gets Waived

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals have asked waivers on veteran pitcher Jim Kaat, perhaps signaling an end to his illustrious career.

Unless he is claimed by another team, the 44-year-old Kaat's major league career will end after 25 seasons, 898 games, 283 victories and 4,528 innings pitched.

The Cardinals asked waivers on Kaat Wednesday for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release. The move came a day after they acquired left-hander Dave Rucker from the Detroit organization, completing the trade that sent Doug Bair to the Tigers.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A grievance will be filed this week or early next week by the Major League Players Association on behalf of relief pitcher Steve Howe, who was fined $54,000 and placed on three years' probation by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lake Mary May Buy Water From County

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Commission at its 7:30 p.m. meeting today will consider whether to approve the concept of Seminole County providing water to a planned new subdivision off Country Club Road.

The planned 43.14-acre subdivision, Country Downs, is to be comprised of one-half acre minimum sized lots.

A contract with the county would have to be executed providing for the city to buy water in bulk, then re-sell it to the homes in Country Downs much like it currently buys water from the city of Sanford and re-sells it to some 951 customers within Lake Mary.

The meeting will begin with a work shop session at 7:30, followed by the official meeting at 8 p.m. at city hall, 158 N. Country Club Road.

In other business, the commission will consider changing the zoning from agriculture to single family home residential on a portion of the 223-acre tract owned by Residential Communities of America. It will also consider a change to multiple-family district for a portion of the property.

The RCA tract is located at Raintoul Lane and State Road 46A.

More than 700 housing units are to be built on the parcel.

A request from RCA for the zoning change was tabled on June 17 to give City Attorney Robert Petree time to prepare a legal opinion. The opinion was requested after City Commissioner Kenneth King expressed concerns that portions of the 86.69 acres planned for townhouse development are in a flood plain which he described as some of the highest water recharge area in the city.

It was also noted that RCA currently plans to concentrate much of the townhouse development in a corner of the section to leave the flood-prone area vacant and yet build the six units per acre which would have been allowed on the entire parcel. This is the portion of the property rezoned for multi-family units.

Some 136.28 acres also are requested to be rezoned for single family homes.

Petree's opinion is to say whether the city can legally permit the developer to build a total of six units per acre, concentrated in one corner of the property while leaving another section vacant.

The RCA proposed development is called "The Hills at Lake Mary."

The City Commission will officially tally the votes and announce the city's mascot tree, selected by the people of Lake Mary.

Memos Point To Carter 'Mole'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Memos written by two aides to President Carter were sent to top Reagan campaign aides less than a month before the election by a volunteer who said they were provided by a "White House mole," it was reported today.

The memos were among a stack of Reagan campaign documents obtained by The Washington Post from a collector of campaign memorabilia given permission to take material from a dumpster behind Reagan's campaign headquarters.

The newspaper said the Carter administration documents, some written on formal White House stationery, were provided to the Reagan campaign by volunteer Daniel Jones.

The Post said the information included White House memos on economic policy written by Carter presidential aides Anne Wexler and Alonzo McDonald, documents from Carter's budget director, James McIntyre Jr., and Council of Economic Advisers Chairman Charles Schultze.

Jones told the Post he had only met the mole once and never knew the man's name. He said the material was given to him unsolicited. He also denied having anything to do with obtaining the Carter debate papers.

Jones wrote one covering memo addressed to William Casey, Ed Meese and Robert Gray, all then top officials of the Reagan campaign, saying: "According to latest information from White House mole (at) 6:30 on Oct. 27, the following is President Carter's itinerary for the remainder of the campaign."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Anti-Khomeini Hijackers Begin Freeing Hostages

PARIS (UPI) — Armed Iranian hijackers, acting under orders from their leader in exile, today began freeing 179 hostages aboard an Iranian jumbo jet that was commandeered from Tehran to Paris via Kuwait.

The first group of about 50 hostages walked to an airport bus waiting on the tarmac only moments after exiled Iranian leader Massoud Rajavi arrived at the airport and barked the order for the captives release over a control tower radio.

"Open the door of the plane, free the passengers, stay in the plane and I will come to talk to you," Rajavi told the five or six hijackers, who earlier threatened to blow up the plane with all aboard.

"Yes, commander. I will follow your orders," the leader of the hijackers said on the radio monitored by journalists.

The hijackers, who commanded the Iran Air jet on a domestic flight Wednesday from Tehran to the summer resort of Shiraz, had not specified any demands, the spokesman said.

'Arafat Should Step Down'

TUNIS, Tunisia (UPI) — Palestine Liberation Organization mediators arrived from Syria carrying rebel demands that Yasser Arafat temporarily step down as leader of the mainstream Fatah guerrilla group.

Mediators had agreed with the rebels on several principles, including a pledge not to solve Palestinian differences by force, a decision tantamount to a formal cease-fire between the rebels and Arafat loyalists in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

The rebels have demanded that Arafat openly reject President Reagan's Middle East peace plan and a return to a policy of military confrontation against Israel.

Hostages Still Alive

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Sudanese guerrillas backed off their threat to kill five Western aid workers, including two Americans, today and said they would continue ransom negotiations.

The Southern Sudan Liberation Front guerrillas had threatened to kill the hostages at 8 a.m. local time (1 a.m. EDT) if their demands for 150 pairs of shoes, 150 sets of clothing, drugs and $189,000 were not met.

The abductors originally said they would shoot their captives Wednesday but were persuaded to postpone the execution.

Selph, R-Casselberry, sponsored calling for the refund of state taxes cities, counties and school boards paid for gasoline will mean significant dollars for local government to use elsewhere.

Another piece of legislation she sponsored includes definitions of development needed by the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council since the Florida Supreme Court struck down some language effecting that organization, composed of delegates from local governments in seven East Central Florida counties.

While Altamonte Springs is brand new to Miss Jennings' district, she sponsored legislation granting state funds of $85,000 toward the $110,000 cost for an Altamonte Springs drainage project.

With the public concern about restitution by criminals for the cost of housing and the existing authority of judges to assess court costs to those defended by the public defender, it is now a mandate situation, Miss Jennings said.

"There is now a significant way of recovering funds, if these people have anything that can be recovered," Miss Jennings said, adding "bleeding hearts don't love it, but rest of the people do."

"I couldn't believe that there was still a crack in finding missing children," she said, noting new law now requires law enforcement to immediately feed information on missing children into the Florida crimes information computer, providing a statewide computer network. Also fed into the statewide network are dental records of missing persons.

"My greatest disappointment and a continual one is that we didn't get home on time," Miss Jennings said, adding while Florida's legislative process is the best in the work, it has the human element which makes it great on the one hand and causes problems on the other.

...'RAISE' Costs Predicted

two members of the legislation delegation to get information to assist them in making decisions on funding bills expected to be considered during a special legislative session next week. Administrators attending the meeting were: School Superintendent Bob Hughes, Daggs, Assistant Superintendent for finance Roger Harris and Lyman High School principal, Carlton Henley.

Hughes urged the two legislators to push for giving the county school board more discretionary money if the plan is adopted to take away some of the power boards now have to make decisions locally on a portion of the school taxes levied.

The current plan being talked about in Tallahassee is to require boards to levy a tax which now they can either levy or not. Hughes said school boards need the flexibility to shift funds for special needs.

Asked about Seminole's ranking in teacher salaries, Hughes said the county is in the top six in the state. Daggs noted that this isn't correct as far as the entry level teachers which have a starting salary of $12,700, but rather it is true for teachers at the top end of the scale, who have been in the profession 10 years or longer and earn an average $19,000 per year.

Miss Jennings gave Hughes a copy of a study by the state Department of Commerce showing that teacher salaries in Florida when adjusted for cost of living and cost of taxes in comparison with northern states rank 16th in the nation.

Referring to Daggs' earlier report, Selph said that Gov. Bob Graham has not yet signed the "RAISE bill" into law, but it is expected that he will.

Henley noted that a clause in the teachers' contract calling for the teaching of five class periods daily could be negated when the new law takes effect, according to another contract clause. But Henley added if that clause were used, it could not be renegotiated in a new contract.

Daggs responded that it is unrealistic to expect a teacher to teach six 55-minute classes per day and

Hughes added that teachers must have time for class preparation.

Daggs said if state funding for the additional teachers that will be required by the "RAISE" bill is not provided, "the only thing we can do is go line item by line item in the budget to find $1 million."

Daggs added that it could not be expected that seniors and juniors who have paced themselves all through high school to meet the requirement of 20 credits for graduation would suddenly be required to have 22 credits.

"The new requirement would have to be phased in with freshmen and sophomores," he said. Classes would have to be changed from 55 minutes each to 50 minutes each. Daggs said, noting this would lose the schools some state money based on 55-minute classes.

Hughes called the "RAISE" bill and its concept commendable, but, he added, "we are now talking about a lot of rescheduling for students before school starts in late August." —Donna Estes

Bulgarians Deny Involvement In Pope Shooting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bulgaria's ambassador in Washington has vigorously denied his communist-ruled country was anyway involved in the assassination attempt against Pope John Paul II in 1981.

Stoyan Zhulev, the Sofia government's envoy in Washington since late 1980, met Wednesday with reporters at an unusual news conference.

The soft-spoken diplomat only once expressed some anger at a question suggesting the Soviet KGB spy agency ran the Bulgarian secret service and might have been ultimately responsible for a plot to kill the pope because of his influence in Poland.

Zhulev denied complicity, said none of the allegations had been proved and blamed the Western press for "an artificially created campaign of slander."

Ellen Wilke, A.H. Donaldson Repeat Vows

Ellen Marie Wilke and Stephen Harry Donaldson were married June 18, at noon, at the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford. The Rev. Dr. Virgil L. Bryant Jr. performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride's aunt, Miss Joan Wilke, was organist and presented nuptial selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Wilke, 1401 Sanford Ave., Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan Donaldson Jr., 13 Chipola Trail, Sorrento.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal white poly-organza gown fashioned along the empire silhouette. The Chantilly lace bodice, lavishly embellished with seed pearls, featured a Queen Anne neckline and bishop sleeves.

A triangular insert of cascading layers of Chantilly lace highlighted the front of the flared skirt that gracefully extended into a chapel train edged in Chantilly lace. A Juliet cap secured her waltz-length veil of imported illusion enhanced with lace trim and reemboledered Chantilly lace appliques. She carried a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses, baby's breath and fern showered with delicate white lace streamers.

Miss Ann Goemmel of Palatka attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a pale blue floor-length gown of sheer organza over bridal taffeta styled with a sweetheart neckline accented with a soft bow and short puffed sleeves. The full skirt was bordered with a double ruffle, shirred knee-high on the side. A Dior bow with trailing streamers defined the low back of the fitted bodice. She wore a blue lace headpiece adorned with a spray of baby's breath and carried a traditional nosegay of white daisy pompons, baby's breath and fern with blue lace streamers.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Christie Graham, cousin of the bride; Susie Anderson and Dawn Donaldson, sister of the bridegroom. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

Daniel Donaldson of Sorrento served his brother as best man.

Usher-groomsman were Bernard Wilke, brother of the bride; Rick Gardner and John Donaldson, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Stephen Harry Donaldson

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's aunts, the Misses Jean and Joan Wilke, were hostesses to a wedding luncheon in fellowship hall of the church.

After a wedding trip to the Florida Keys, the newlyweds are making their home in Sanford. The bride is a June, 1983 graduate of Seminole High School. The bridegroom is employed by Brown Boveri Electric.

Ex's Altar Duties Defended

DEAR ABBY: I did not agree with "Sentimental's" desire to have her mother walk her down the aisle and give her away instead of her father because her parents were divorced. And worse yet, you said there was nothing "improper" about it, and encouraged her to do so. What an insult to her father! I'm glad I wasn't invited to that wedding.

My ex-husband and I have been divorced for 18 years, but he walked our two daughters down the aisle, which made everyone very happy. After all, he is their father; he did give them life.

He may have been a lousy husband, but if it weren't for him, I wouldn't have my wonderful children.

GRATEFUL: "Sentimental" said she preferred to have her mother walk her down the aisle instead of her father, not because they were divorced, but because her mother had raised her alone — with no help from her father.

This, in my book, makes him a "lousy" father who did not deserve the honor of giving his daughter away. (He gave her away years ago.)

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the boy who chose to get his high school diploma even though he was in jail: Hurray for him! Send me his address and I'll send him a graduation present.

EX-"CON" COLLEGE GRADUATE

DEAR GRAD: Sorry. Neither the name of the boy nor his location was disclosed in the letter, but thanks for a sweet and generous thought.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: How can I persuade my husband to start getting professional haircuts at a barber shop? He is quite content to have me cut his hair, although I have had no training and the results are mediocre — to say the least.

When we married 10 years ago and we both were in graduate school, he asked me to cut his hair in order to save money. I did, and it's been my job ever since.

We are both working professionally now and he can well afford to go to a barber shop, but he doesn't see any sense in "throwing out" money.

I have stalled, hoping he would go to a barber, but he just waits until I cut his hair. He has never been vain about his appearance and doesn't care whether his hair is long, short, stylish, or not. If he were your husband, how would you handle it?

HIS LOVING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I would say, "Honey, you deserve to look spiffier. If you don't want to go to a professional barber for yourself, please do it for me."

DEAR ABBY: I married when I was 22. Three years later I had a baby girl. (She was planned.) When our daughter was 4, we had another child. Before I gave birth, my husband and I decided that if we had a boy, our family would be complete.

We were lucky. We had a beautiful baby boy, and I had my tubes tied.

The Lord took our son from us last November, and now we want another child. Is it possible to have my tubes "untied" now? I am 33.

DEAR HOPING: Depending on the type of tubal ligation you had, your chances for becoming pregnant again following a reversal operation are between 70 percent and 80 percent. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: With the battle for bigger defense budgets going on in Congress, would it not be appropriate to remind your readers of the enclosed remarks from a speech Dwight D. Eisenhower delivered before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in April of 1953?

M.E.G., ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.

DEAR M.E.G.: Yes, indeed. And thank you for it.

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children...This is not a way of life at all in any true sense. Under the cloud of war, it is humanity hanging on a cross of iron."

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Consumer Research Has Fund Raising Programs

The Central Florida Chapter for Consumer Research has named Kathy and Ken Brindle as its research directors for Orange, Seminole, Osceola, Lake, Polk, Volusia and Brevard counties. The local chapter will concentrate on fund raising programs for church organizations, civic clubs, service clubs, athletic and band booster clubs, fraternity/sorority projects, social groups and any non-profit organizations in the designated area.

The idea is simple: every day, millions of Americans simply discard their grocery store cash register tapes. The UFI Grocery Tape Purchase Plan is a way to turn these discarded tapes into hard cash. Under the fund raising program, United Financial Incentives, Inc. (UFI) will purchase these tapes each month as outlined in their rules and regulations.

UFI is a well-known, respected and recognized leader in the area of financial marketing and promotions. The millions upon millions of grocery tapes that UFI purchases each year represent a "gold mine" of valuable marketing information. This data is made available to the grocery marketing industry — at a good price.

Anyone belonging to an organization who wishes to learn more about the UFI Grocery Tape Purchase Plan for Fund Raising can call the directors at 305/695-3135 or write the chapter at 242 Twelve League Circle, Casselberry, 32707.

Abscam Figures Heading To Jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven men, including four former congressmen, headed to prison today, the first major defendants to begin serving jail terms as the result of the FBI's controversial undercover Abscam operation.

The four politicians — former Democratic Reps. Michael Myers and Raymond Lederer of Pennsylvania, Frank Thompson of New Jersey and John Murphy of New York, were scheduled to report to various federal prisons today to begin serving their terms.

Also ordered to start serving jail time were Angelo Errichetti, former mayor of Camden, N.J., Louis Johanson, a former Philadelphia councilman, and Howard Criden, a Philadelphia lawyer.

A total of 19 people were convicted on a variety of charges, including conspiracy, bribery and receipt of unlawful gratuity, as a result of the FBI's undercover Abscam operation, in which agents posed as wealthy Arabs offering bribes to politicians during secretly videotaped encounters.

But the seven are the first of the major defendants to go to jail.

In the wake of the investigation, which began in 1976, three members of Congress were defeated, three resigned in the face of disciplinary action, and Myers was expelled by the House.

In addition to the four former congressmen beginning their prison terms today, former Sen. Harrison Williams, and former Reps. John Jenrette D-S.C., and Richard Kelly, R-Fla., also were convicted.

The Supreme Court and various other courts have refused to overturn the convictions of the defendants.

Interest Rates To Rise To Slow Down Recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve officials facing an economic recovery they think could speed out of control, will tighten credit conditions next week and let interest rates rise, it was reported today.

The Washington Post reported Federal Reserve sources say some senior Reagan administration officials, including Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, Martin Feldstein, are worried about the pace of the recovery and have encouraged the Fed to slow it down.

Rates have already been going up as financial market participants anticipate that step at a meeting next Tuesday and Wednesday of the Fed's policymaking group, the Federal Open Market Committee, the newspaper said.

Some short-term rates are more than a full percentage point higher than they were in mid-May. Long-term rates, including those for home mortgages, also are rising. Any tightening by the Fed would quickly boost all those rates, along with the prime lending rate at banks.

The Post said inside sources predicted the Federal Reserve moves likely will soon include at least a one-half percentage point increase in the central bank's 8.5 percent discount rate.

The discount rate is the rate the Federal Reserve charges when it lends reserves directly to financial institutions.

Huge Sun Bank Center Planned For Orlando

ORLANDO (UPI) — Sun Banks Inc., destined to become the largest bank in Florida as a result of recent acquisitions, has revealed plans to construct a huge corporate headquarters in downtown Orlando.

The new complex will be built on a 6-acre site that currently includes Sun Banks current 12-story headquarters, Joel Wells Jr., bank chairman and president, said Wednesday.

No definite dimensions have been approved, but bank officials reportedly are considering a structure between 34 and 42 stories tall. Downtown Orlando's tallest building is the CNA tower, which stands 280 feet high.

The project, to be called Sun Bank Center, will include a hotel, retail shops, restaurants and parking facilities.

A developer will be named for the project by the end of 1983, Wells said. Although no timetable has been set, Wells said it is hoped construction can begin by 1985 so the building can be occupied by 1987.

Bank officials would not comment on the price of the undertaking, but reports indicate the complex would cost more than $100 million.

Reagan Hails Court Ruling On Pensions...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said the Supreme Court's ruling barring employers from offering pension plans that discriminate against women because they live longer than men is a move toward greater legal equality for women.

Legislation on Capitol Hill said legislation is still needed to make that equality a reality for women in other areas — especially insurance — besides pensions.

Reagan called the high court decision Wednesday consistent with his State of the Union promise "to achieve greater equality for women in the pension field."

"Today's court ruling has largely achieved this goal, and marks a major step forward in making America an even more fair and just society," he said.

Reagan, who opposes the Equal Rights Amendment, said the decision is "a milestone for working women (that) represents the kind of real legal equity between men and women which I believe we can achieve through existing statutory and legal processes."

But Judy Goldsmith, president of National Organization of Women, warned that because the high court's ruling was based on federal law — not the Constitution — sexual equality remains at the whim of Congress.

"We are going to continue to be plagued with these absurdities about how much sex discrimination can dance on the head of a pin until we get the Equal Rights Amendment," she said.

Using insurance industry statistics that show women, on average, outlive men by eight years, the deferred compensation plan paid women less each month, calculating their total benefits would work out the same over a longer lifetime.

The court majority agreed that sex-based actuarial tables "constitute discrimination on the basis of sex in violation" of part of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

"An individual woman may not be paid lower monthly benefits simply because women as a class live longer than men," wrote Justice Thurgood Marshall, writing for five justices.

The pension decision was among a series of rulings released by the court on the last day of its 1982-83 term, which Burger described as "one of the heaviest in the court's history."

In other action, the justices also:

— Without comment granted a request from the Reagan administration and issued an order blocking U.S. tourist travel to Cuba until at least next fall.

— On a 7-2 vote, turned down two new challenges to the legislative veto, indicating its decision last month against Congress has settled, at least for now, the debate over lawmakers' power to check actions of the Reagan administration.

Congressmen were quick to react to the pension ruling since a battle is underway over legislation to end use of sex-based statistics in the insurance industry. Insurance firms have vigorously resisted the proposals, and the Supreme Court's opinion said it was not forcing the industry to abandon its traditional ways.

An aide to Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., chairman of a committee considering the legislation, said insurance companies "are going to have to offer unisex policies, because if they don't, someone else is going to step in and do it."

Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., agreed, saying, "Let's face it — insurance companies are nothing but the employer's agent ... If no employer is allowed to buy insurance or pension plans that way, whom is the insurance company going to sell to?"

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., also a sponsor, said the ruling was "great news for future retirees," but noted that women "already retired will continue to be subject to discrimination."

He was referring to that portion of the high court's splintered decision that refused to make up benefits that retired women already have lost because of sex discrimination.

"It is now up to Congress to make non-discrimination on the basis of sex the standard in all insurance for all people," he said.

Arizona state employee Nathalie Norris, who challenged the state pension plan at issue, said women still need legislation to protect them from unequal benefits paid by insurance plans sold individually.

"What I've got is an equal shot," she said. "When I retire, I will know that I'll get equal benefits with my male counterparts."

Ms. Norris, a 17-year veteran of state government, first applied for the compensation plan in 1975 and decided to challenge it when she saw the plan differentiated between men and women.

...Executions May Come Sooner For Some

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's 1,202 Death Row inmates received bad news from the Supreme Court that may cut six months or more off their lives and prompt a sooner-than-expected spate of executions.

On the last day of its 1982-83 term, the high court upheld 6-3 a legal shortcut Wednesday that may speed up the pace of executions of condemned inmates who have almost run out of ways to put off their sentences.

Death penalty supporters, who have protested years-long delays in executions, called the ruling a "milestone" in criminal justice.

"We will see more executions. Justice will finally be carried out," said Paul Kamenar of the Washington Legal Foundation, which favors the death penalty.

Mississippi officials tried to put the ruling to immediate use to clear the way for the execution of child-killer Jimmy Lee Gray before his death warrant expired Wednesday at midnight. But their efforts failed.

Meanwhile, opponents of capital punishment expressed hope that any future speedups in court processing will not be at the expense of the rights of death row inmates.

Only seven men have been executed since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment in 1976. But more than 100 are in the last stages of their appeals.

Until last year, it had been routine for federal appeals courts to automatically postpone executions — usually four to six months — to consider a condemned inmate's last-chance appeal.

But the trend of automatic postponements was broken when the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans refused to stay the Texas execution of Charlie Brooks and, hurriedly rejecting his legal claims, let him be put to death by poisonous injection on schedule Dec. 7, 1982.

Only 1 1/2 months later, the same court used the same accelerated process again to say Texas could execute Thomas "Andy" Barefoot for killing a Harker Heights, Texas, policeman. Officials are now moving to set an execution date for Barefoot.

Writing for the court, Justice Byron White concluded the 5th circuit's handling of Barefoot's case was "tolerable," although not a model that "should be accepted as the norm" in every way.

Jack Greenberg of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund stressed the court preserved death row inmates' rights to have their appeals heard and decided, even if the time is shorter.

"It remains to be seen what the courts of appeals will do with it."

...Police Get New Power To Search Cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court granted the nation's police officers broad new powers to search automobiles for weapons — without a warrant and without first arresting the motorist they have stopped.

The 6-3 decision Wednesday provoked a vigorous dissent from two justices who accused the court of handing down another in a series of decisions that limit the Fourth Amendment's protection of citizens against unreasonable searches and seizures.

The justices struck down a ruling that had declared unconstitutional the search of a car stopped for speeding in Barry County, Mich.

Police searched the vehicle after spotting a hunting knife on the floorboard, but instead of more weapons they found marijuana.

Up to now, the Supreme Court has upheld the search of a car without a warrant after a motorist has been lawfully arrested for a crime, but not when the driver merely has been stopped, for example, for a traffic violation.

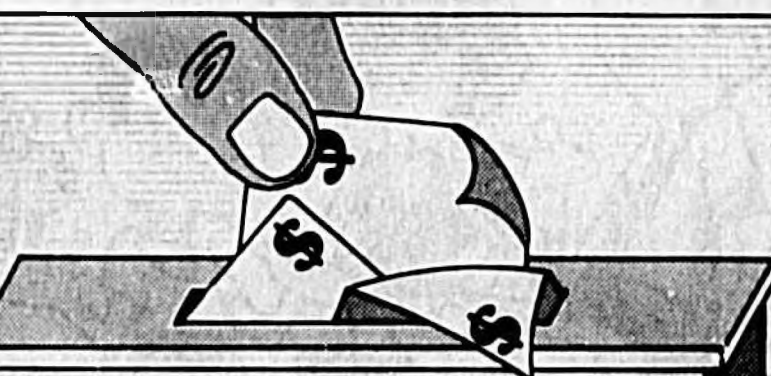

Writing for the majority, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor declared, "The search of the passenger compartment of an automobile, limited to those areas in which a weapon may be placed or hidden, is permissible if the police officer possesses a reasonable belief ... that the suspect is dangerous (and) may gain immediate control of weapons."

In Wednesday's ruling, the majority relied heavily on a landmark 1968 decision, called Terry vs. Ohio, that ironically set out many of the basic limits on automobile searches.

In bitter dissent, Justice William Brennan accused Mrs. O'Connor of "distorting" the Terry ruling "beyond recognition and forcing it into service as an unlikely weapon against the Fourth Amendment's fundamental requirement that searches and seizures be based on probable cause" of wrongdoing.

...For 1984 Presidential Campaign

Candidates taking advantage of federal matching funds in their primary campaigns for next year's presidential nominations will be able to spend close to $20 million each, according to preliminary estimates of the Federal Election Commission. Acceptance of federal funds obligates candidates to observe a ceiling on total campaign spending and state-by-state expenditures. There is no limitation for candidates who do not participate in the matching funds program. The state limits are set according to a formula based on voting-age population. The range next year, subject to adjustment in the spring to reflect the latest population data, will be from $391,400 in states with smallest populations to California's $5,710,995.68 per candidate.
