16 die in plane crash

WARSAW, Poland — A Soviet-built airplane carrying 29 passengers and crew crashed today in southeastern Poland, killing 16 people, the official PAP news agency said.

The agency said the propeller-driven aircraft took off at 9:30 a.m. from Warsaw and was headed for the southeastern city of Rzeszow when the accident occurred.

PAP said the plane carried 25 passengers and four crew members, and "according to initial information 16 people were killed" in the crash.

Aeromexico trial begins

LOS ANGELES — Two years after a light plane strayed into the congested air space over Los Angeles, clipped off the tail of an Aeromexico DC-9 and sent both planes plunging into the suburbs below killing 82 people, the trial has begun to determine who was responsible.

Attorneys for the victims made opening statements in U.S. District Court Tuesday, with lawyers for the airline and the U.S. government expected to outline their cases today.

Election results announced

JERUSALEM — Ultra-Orthodox religious parties made a surprise showing in Israel's parliamentary elections, becoming the probable key to a coalition government that most likely will be led by the right-wing Likud Party.

Likud and the center-left Labor Party, the two largest parties, won nearly the same number of parliamentary seats in Tuesday's election. But Likud was in a stronger position to form the next government because religious parties in the past have allied themselves with Likud.

Reds' Sabo NL's top rookie

NEW YORK — Cincinnati Reds third baseman Chris Sabo Tuesday won the Jackie Robinson National League Rookie of the Year Award, the Baseball Writers Association of America announced.

Sabo, who batted .271 in 137 games, becomes the sixth Reds player to be so honored and the first since 1976, when pitcher Pat Zachry tied with Butch Metzger of San Diego.

In 538 at-bats, Sabo had 146 hits, including 40 doubles (third in the league), two triples, 11 homers and 44 RBI with 74 runs scored.

The 26-year-old Detroit native, drafted in 1983, was an All-America at Michigan his junior year, helping the Wolverines to third place in the College World Series.

United Way tops goal

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE

SANFORD — United Way officials for the Seminole area reported at a reception yesterday that $744,103 was collected during this year's fund raising campaign, exceeding their goal by $11,103.

It is the first year that Seminole County has been part of the tri-county Heart of Florida

United Way.

Joseph Vaccaro, board chairman for Seminole area and representative of Stromberg-Carlson, gave the opening remarks at the reception.

"This has been a special year for Seminole County going fully under the Heart of Florida. As a group, we're going to move forward to be a major force to help people. We're on our way to a $1 million goal," Vaccaro said.

Vaccaro credited several people for the campaign's success including Les Sisson, campaign chairman, and Carmen Fogarty, deputy chairman.

Contributions from major retailers included Burdines department stores, K-Mart, Sam's Wholesale, and area supermarkets, for a total of $88,112.

Major firms were divided into local and metro. In the local category, NCR, Simplimatic Engineering Company and Florida Power and Light totalled $118,311.92. Metro firms and their Mother dies in train mishap

SANFORD — A young Sanford mother was killed and her 3-year-old daughter was seriously injured when the car they were in was hit by a train Tuesday afternoon.

Lynn M. Cole, 22, of 214 Sir Lawrence Drive, died at Orlando Regional Medical Center (ORMC) about five and a-half hours after the accident, according to authorities. Her daughter, Jessica E. Hammond, was listed in serious condition at ORMC Wednesday.

A Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said Cole was driving her compact car south on Hester Avenue near its intersection with County Road 427 when she drove onto the CSX Transportation Company tracks about 2:30 p.m.

The railroad crossing does not have signals, and a driver's view down the tracks is blocked by trees.

Charter tax power won't be used

HOME RULE

Analyzing the proposed Seminole County charter

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series dealing with the proposed Seminole County charter.

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

The proposed Seminole County Charter that appears on the Nov. 8 election ballot is called a "starter charter" because it does not substantially change the current form of Seminole County government.

If voters approve the charter, Seminole County commissioners nevertheless would gain new taxing powers. County officials said they have no plans to impose such a tax.

The charter would retain the current five-person, elected-at-large commission with an appointed county administrator, renamed "county manager." None of the five constitutional officers, such as sheriff, would be affected, and county government would continue as it does now, according to charter proponents.

However, the state allows charter counties to have the same powers over unincorporated areas as city governments have over municipalities. One of those powers is a tax that non-chartered counties may not impose.

It is called the municipal public service tax. It has been in effect since 1973 and allows cities and charter counties to tax electricity.

Atlantis moved to launch pad

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — With little fanfare, the space shuttle Atlantis was slowly hauled to its ocean-side launch pad early today for blastoff at the end of the month on a top-secret mission to carry a Pentagon satellite into orbit.

"We've put another bird out on the pad and we're looking forward to a launch," said Conrad Nagel, director of Atlantis's launch processing.

As dawn broke over the Kennedy Space Center, Atlantis, mounted atop a ponderous crawler-transporter, had reached the top of launch pad 39B after a 4.2-mile trip from the Vehicle Assembly Building that began at 1:23 a.m. EST, more than an hour late because of last-minute work.

"I think overall, things have gone very well the last few days," Nagel told reporters early today. "We had a few problems getting her out of the VAB but the crew, the team, really came together and it's impressive to watch these people work. We're excited about the roll out this morning."

Only a handful of off-duty space workers, reporters and photographers were on hand for the shuttle's chilly departure from the VAB, in stark contrast to the cheering crowd that gathered for Discovery's trip to the pad July 4 that set the stage for the first post-Challenger flight.

Atlantis, beelined up and modified in the wake of the Challenger disaster, is scheduled to blast off around the end of the month — Nov. 28 is the current internal launch target — to carry a classified military satellite into orbit.

On board will be commander Robert "Hoot" Gibson, co-pilot Guy Gardner, Richard "Mike" Mullane, Jerry Ross and William Shepherd. The secret payload will be taken to the pad Nov. 10 and all five astronauts plan to climb aboard Atlantis Nov. 14 for a practice countdown.

"I know of no problems right now that would be a schedule impact," Nagel said of the launch target. "The last week in November really looks good for us right now. The

Three-county group focuses on problem of child abuse

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Ursula Sunshine Assaid died nearly six years ago, a victim of abuse and neglect. She was five years old.

The death of the Seminole County child brought about changes in Florida law, and focused attention on a problem that claims the lives of two to five children daily in this country, according to the National Commission for the Prevention of Child Abuse.

In Seminole County, along with Orange and Osceola, that focus now is on a child abuse prevention project entitled "Someone Heard." It is sponsored by members of Help End Abuse Today, a local nonprofit organization that seeks to educate the public about child abuse.

Through business donations, training manuals were prepared and soon will be distributed to 10,000 instructors in the tri-county area. The manuals will accompany the book "Death From Child Abuse... and no one heard." It details the Assaid case.

"Children spend 50 percent of their time with teachers," said Diana Healy, H.E.A.T. executive director. "They are our first line of defense and we want them to be well-armed educationally so they can not only detect child abuse but will be able to facilitate."

In Seminole County a group of educators met Monday to discuss methods of distribution.

"We could have just given teachers the booklets, but we wanted to do more than that," said Dr. Hortense Evans, administrative assistant to the superintendent. Evans attended a training seminar sponsored by H.E.A.T., and said a similar workshop approach may be used to instruct teachers. The group will meet again in three weeks to confirm plans.

The goal of "Someone Heard" is to help educators recognize abused children and guide both children and parents to the appropriate agencies for help. Evans said the school system must coordinate with law enforcement agencies, social service agencies, mental health organizations, and community groups to create safe environments for children.

Both Healy and Evans state that abused children are everyone's responsibility. In the Assaid case, more than 80 people were aware or suspected abuse, and yet failed to act.

Snipes' temporary injunction denied

INDIANTOWN — A circuit judge Tuesday rejected an attempt by Lewis Snipes to gain control of $31.5 million his ex-wife and her sister won in Florida's LOTTO, claiming he paid for and picked the winning numbers.

Martin County Circuit Judge Martha Warner found although Snipes influenced his ex-wife, Ellen, to play Lotto the week of Oct. 23, there was no evidence he suffered irreparable injury by not receiving the entire jackpot.

The judge refused to grant Snipes a temporary injunction, which would have precluded Ellen Snipes from receiving the initial $1,570,000 installment on Wednesday. Andrew Coutant, Lewis Snipes' attorney, said his client still would try to get the jackpot.

"It's just one step that definitely does not end the litigation. We certainly are going to continue because we feel Mr. Snipes is being honest," Coutant said. "The judge simply ruled on the temporary injunction... she did not find on the facts in the case."

Worker compensation rate hike sought

TALLAHASSEE — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter said Tuesday he has been asked to approve a $500 million workers compensation insurance rate increase that would be felt by thousands of Florida employers.

The increase is being sought by the National Council on Compensation Insurance, which represents Florida companies offering worker compensation coverage. It would take effect Jan. 1 if approved by Gunter.

The requested rate increase, filed two weeks ago, would affect companies with three or more employees that purchase worker compensation coverage from commercial insurers and would raise premiums an average of 47.7 percent.

Florida companies already pay about $1.5 billion for the coverage.

The cost increases cited by the council have also affected group self-insurers, which may also be forced to seek approval for rate hikes, said Jill Chamberlin, an aide to Gunter.

Manatee gets human antibiotic drug

MIAMI — A badly injured manatee struggling for life at the Miami Seaquarium has received daily injections of a powerful drug used to combat life-threatening infections in humans, the veterinarian said Tuesday.

Dr. Gregory Bossart, Seaquarium veterinarian, said the manatee named Maxwell began receiving shots of ceftriaxone, "the heavy cannon of antibiotics," last week after its white cell blood count climbed to seven times the normal level.

He said the manatee remained in guarded condition. The animal was rescued from the Miami River Oct. 19. Bossart said severe internal injuries show it apparently had been crushed by the hull of a very large boat.

The manatee suffered four broken ribs, a punctured lung and was anemic from blood loss and lack of nourishment. It developed a high white blood cell count a few days later, Bossart said.

Bossart said he believes the drug has never been used on a manatee, although he has used it to treat serious infections in dolphins. "I haven't lost a dolphin from an infection that has been on that drug," he said.

Five indicted for cocaine distribution

TAMPA — A federal grand jury indicted five people Tuesday on drug trafficking charges for distributing cocaine and crack in Tampa, Atlanta, Greenville, S.C., and Mobile, Ala.

Law enforcement officials also seized more than $3.5 million worth of crack cocaine.

Authorities said John Christopher Jr., 44, of Tampa, operated as ring leader for the group. The U.S. Attorney's office said Christopher organized and led a "continuing criminal enterprise" from August 1981 to August 1988.

The indictment charged Christopher with organizing, supervising and managing a cocaine trafficking operation. If convicted of all seven counts, he could be sentenced to life in prison and fined up to $13 million.

Others indicted and arrested include Catherine Allen, 35, and Shelle Lipscomb, 49, both of Tampa; Belinda Logan, 27, of South Carolina, and Tameka Pressley, 29. Authorities did not have a residence for Pressley.

All the suspects were arrested in Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina and were being held in Tampa.

State to seize $5.5 million in property

FORT LAUDERDALE — State officials Tuesday filed suit seeking to seize $5.5 million in assets from a Tennessee businessman and four corporations authorities said was acquired with money from drug operations.

Statewide Prosecutor Peter Antonacci said the action could result in the largest seizure of property under a law which allows the government to confiscate goods bought with illegal money.

Case of missing officer refuses to die

United Press International

PENSACOLA — A Laotian claim that an American missing for 15 years was recently seen is the latest indication that a man the government considers dead may have walked away from a Vietnam-era helicopter crash.

The latest claim was brought to light Monday through a Pensacola woman's suit against the government. The report given to the Defense Intelligence Agency by the Lao resistance claims Lt. Col. Thomas Hart III and four other men are alive in the Eastern Savannakhet Province.

The U.S. government considers the report unreliable.

But the "sanitized" DIA report has now been added to the growing pile of documents filed in federal court in Anne Hart's 2-year-old suit against the federal government.

The case apparently came to a close last month when U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow awarded Mrs. Hart, her daughter and mother-in-law more than $600,000 in damages for their emotional distress.

Arnow said the government caused the distress when it misidentified bones as Hart's remains in 1985. The identification was later recanted, but Hart is still listed as "accounted-for."

On Oct. 13, the week after testimony in her suit ended, a captain with the casualty office called Mrs. Hart to tell her about a report DIA received in September.

The report said a foreign national received information from the Laotian resistance indicating Hart, two Air Force captains and two sergeants were being held captive in Laos.

The government said it considered the information unreliable in part because two of the names on the list were of men previously accounted for. They were Hart and another member of his gunship.

The government said "efforts to follow up on the report are under way."

Documents in the case show the most recent alleged sighting is just the latest indication that Hart may have survived the December 1972 crash near Pakse, Laos.

In a September 1987 affidavit a retired member of Air Force intelligence said he compiled a list of 300 Americans captured alive, including Hart. He said only 5 percent of the personnel on the list have been returned.

Jerry Mooney was an intelligence analyst between 1968 and 1974. During the Vietnam War he was involved with matters relating to North Vietnam's war effort.

He said he placed Hart on the list because of information from intercepted Vietnamese transmissions, data gathered after the crash and other intelligence, including finding Hart's initials at the crash site.

Mooney said that when he retired in 1977 he believed the United States would try to get personnel back. But his belief "was shattered" when he heard the government had positively identified the 13 men from Pakse incident.

"I knew this to be in error, since five had bailed out before the crash and three were captured alive, one being Thomas T. Hart III," the affidavit said, adding the information that Hart's remains were recovered "is impossible."

Another affidavit the previous month came from former Rep. William M. Hendon of North Carolina, who was a former consultant on POW-MIA affairs at the Pentagon and member of the House POW-MIA Task Force.

Hendon said while in Congress he received intelligence reports gathered at the crash site the day after the gunship went down. The information came from Laotian search teams.

Hendon's affidavit said they found five deployed parachutes, two of which were partially melted by fire, even though fully operational. The teams also found two piles of bloody bandages.

Settlement sought in Everglades suit

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez said Tuesday he has asked U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh to consider out-of-court agreements instead of letting a lawsuit over protecting Lake Okechobee and the Everglades go to trial.

The governor said he sent a letter last Friday in which he told Thornburgh that the suit filed by U.S. Southern District Attorney Dexter Lehtinen could take six or more years to settle and would divert funds better used in protecting the crucial watershed.

Peter Dunbar, Martinez' top counsel, predicted that as many as 50 other entities could become involved in the suit, including three federal agencies, five cities and two counties, two Indian tribes, uncounted environmental groups and 21 separate agricultural interests.

Dunbar estimated the suit could cost the state $1 million.

He could not estimate how much it would cost other involved parties.

"While all of that litigation is taking place, the substantial enforcement efforts which my administration and other agencies have already put into place may be impaired and intended new initiatives may be delayed or jeopardized," Martinez wrote.

"Resources of time and money which would otherwise be targeted on this important problem will obviously be diverted into complex and time-consuming litigation."

Lehtinen's suit was filed against the South Florida Water Management District and the state Department of Environmental Regulation. It charges the state agencies have failed to take adequate steps to protect the Okechobee-Everglades system.

Martinez hand-delivered the letter to Thornburgh in Gainesville last Friday, when both men were at a Florida Blue Key dinner.

Dorm fire prompts stepped-up training

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Fire roused more than 500 University of Florida students from a dormitory, injuring four people, sending 43 residents hunting for homes and prompting officials to step up fire-training efforts.

Police said the two-alarm blaze erupted about 3 a.m. Tuesday in Room 328 of Jennings Hall, one of the older dorms on the campus. Officials said the building lacks smoke detectors and sprinkler systems. It was built before codes required the detectors and sprinkler systems, officials said.

Officials said the fire, which caused about $10,000 in damage, gutted one room and damaged adjacent rooms. There were no serious injuries.

Larry Humes, a university spokesman, said someone on the third floor turned on an alarm in a hallway. He credited a training program for minimizing injuries in the fire, which was extinguished in about 30 minutes.

"The resident advisers had been trained on what to do," Humes said. "Everybody did what they were supposed to do. That's why we had a minimum of injury."

Fire officials said the cause of the blaze probably was an electrical short circuit in a stereo that ignited a pile of clothes. They said arson had been ruled out.

Most of the students returned to their rooms on other floors before dawn, while students living on the third floor were moved to other rooms or to the lounge, said Angie Tipton, spokeswoman for the university police.

"Most of the third floor rooms are expected to be reopened within the next 48 hours," Tipton said.

She said two students cut their feet on glass during the evacuation and two students were taken to Shands Teaching Hospital for precautionary treatment of smoke inhalation.

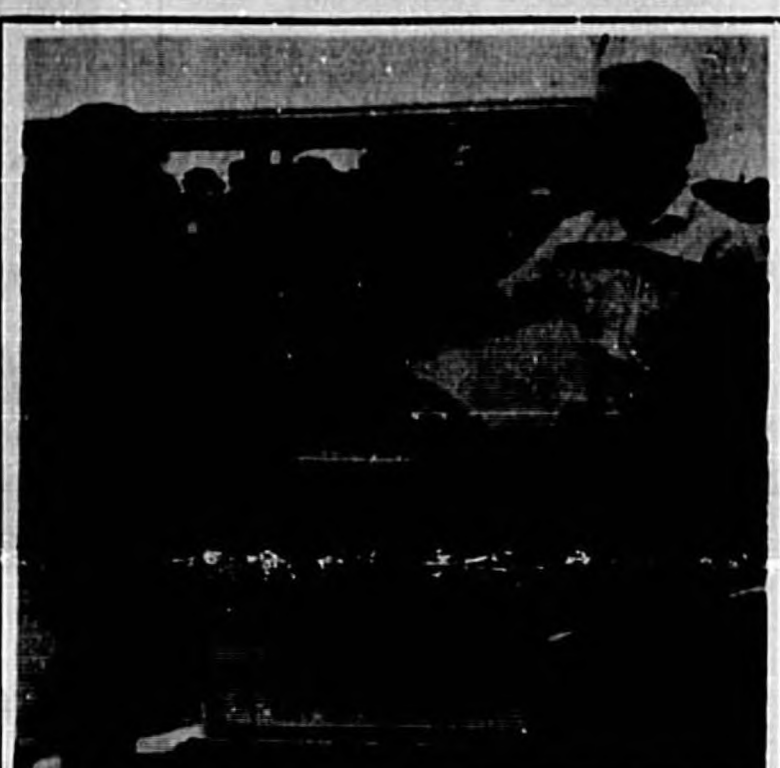

University officials credited students and staffers in the building for their quick evacuation.

They said three dorm residents attempted to put out the fire themselves with a fire hose next to the burning room's door, but they inadvertently twisted the nozzle off the hose, leaving them with no pressure to fight the blaze.

Last Dec. 6, a fire destroyed Johnson Hall, causing $4.7 million damage to the structure used for administration offices and a cafeteria. A new building is under construction.

Humes said the university recently produced a videotape showing students the proper procedure for evacuating a building in case of fire, although the tape has yet to be shown university wide.

Fifth man arrested in turf war

SANFORD — A fifth suspect has been jailed in connection with a rural Sanford turf war between residents of two communities, which left one man dead and five others wounded, including the latest suspect to be arrested.

Michael Summers, 18, of Sanford, is held in lieu of $4,000 bond in the Seminole County jail, charged with two counts of aggravated battery.

Summers is accused of firing shots into a crowd during a Sept. 17 street brawl in Goldsboro, west of Sanford.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies said this was the first stage in a battle between some Midway and Goldsboro residents, which ended a few days later with the shooting death of Antonio Denmark, 22, of Midway.

The night after the initial incident, sheriff's deputies report that Summers was wounded when a gunman, accompanied by two other men, including Denmark, opened fire inside the Deluxe Bar on Southwest Road. There were further acts of violence motivated by revenge, deputies said. Summers was hospitalized several days as deputies arrested four other men in connection with the violence.

Policeman holds on to gun

SANFORD — A Sanford policeman reported he had to hold on to his service pistol with two hands as he fought with a suspect who tried to take it from him after a traffic stop.

Willie Williams, 37, of 23 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, was charged with battery on a policeman, fleeing to elude police, resisting arrest with violence, culpable negligence, and as a habitual traffic offender following the noon incident Tuesday.

The policeman reported spotting Williams driving with an improper tag and knew his license was suspended when he began pursuing Williams' car in the Castle Brewer Court area.

At one point when the officer approached Williams' car on foot, he said, Williams almost ran over him as Williams again sped away.

The final confrontation occurred when Williams drove into a Castle Brewer Court yard and got out to struggle with the officer, who had drawn his pistol.

Another policeman arrived to aid in the capture of Williams, who is held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Man arrested in stabbing case

SANFORD — A 20-year-old Sanford man is charged with aggravated battery and has been accused of being involved in the Monday night stabbing of Gregory Mills.

Mills was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, for the knife wound. Marvin Turner, of 2201 Alexander Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 6:35 p.m. Tuesday after questioning at the police station. Bond is $1,000.

Man, boy charged with theft

OVIDO — A 16-year-old boy has been arrested along with a 19-year-old man in connection with the theft of three auto radios from cars parked at Publix in Oviedo.

Instructor Manuel Cestero, of 1197 Geneva Drive, Oviedo, and the boy were arrested at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday on charges of burglary to an auto and grand theft. Cestero's bond is $2,000. Oviedo police said the total value of the radios is less than $800.

Man arrested on forgery charges

SANFORD — Sanford police report charging Joan Martin Smith, 43, of 804 E. Eighth St., Sanford, with three counts each of forgery, uttering a forgery and theft.

Smith is accused of the unauthorized use of three checks totaling $163 and belonging to Juanita Harold, of Sanford. The checks were stolen Aug. 1, police said. Bond is $1,000. The arrest was made at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at the police station.

Residents discuss proposed prison plan

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Only about 25 people showed up at a federal Bureau of Prisons informational meeting at the Sanford Civic Center Tuesday night, and the majority of them were from the Geneva area, the location of the proposed site.

As in a meeting in Geneva Monday night, the two representatives of the Bureau told the audience that federal correctional institutions make good neighbors, and showed a video tape of comments from residents of a New York community where a federal prison was built — and then listened to questions and comments that this was the wrong location for a prison.

W.E. "Pete" Knowles, Sanford resident and former city manager, questioned what benefit the city of Sanford and its residents would receive in return for donating 250 acres of the property it owns southeast of the city limits for the prison site.

Knowles contended the donated land would be worth $1.8 million over time. He said the site is 16 miles from Sanford and that development would grow up between the prison and Sanford, and on the other side of the site toward east Orlando, and wouldn't benefit the city.

The proposed site is actually less than eight miles from the Sanford city limits.

Knowles said he does not disagree with the Bureau's contention that the prison would bring jobs to the area, and that some of the construction costs and payroll of the prison would be spent in the area. "I don't disagree that it would be an economic benefit to the area — but most of that benefit will be to areas outside of Sanford. What will the city and Sanford residents benefit in return for their donation?" he asked.

The question was answered by City Manager Frank Faison, who was also in the audience. Faison said locating a prison on the city-owned land, and a Veterans Administration hospital, which the city has also invited to locate there, would help pay for the city's $40 million sewage treatment project.

He explained that state and federal grants are only available to pay about 20 percent of that $40 million and Sanford residents face high utility rates in the future unless more customers for water and sewer services are found, or if new customers will help pay for some of the costs.

The 2,200-acre site, of which the proposed prison land is a part, was bought for use as a spray irrigation field to dispose of treated wastewater, he explained. The Bureau of Prisons has offered to pay the cost of extending water and sewer lines to the site, as well as pipe to move treated wastewater from Sanford to the site.

"The cost of extending those lines is probably something over $1 million, which is a benefit to the city of Sanford," Faison said.

Patricia Sledge, coordinator of the Bureau of Prisons facilities procurement division, said Sanford would also be a beneficiary of job creation as a result of having a prison here. She said an estimated 125 people would be hired locally at salaries beginning at $16,000 and averaging $26,800 annually. People would also be hired locally during the construction of the prison, she said.

John Ferguson of Sanford argued that the prison would be a detriment to the local economy because it would keep industry out.

J.Q. "Slim" Gallagher of Sanford said he is a former sheriff's deputy and has visited federal prisons. He disagreed with Sledge's contention that federal prisons are better run and don't have as many problems as state prisons.

He also argued that local people wouldn't necessarily be hired for jobs at the prison.

Sledge had said that all prison employees would be required to attend three weeks of training in Georgia before beginning work. "Aren't those jobs, as federal jobs, open to anyone in the country?" he asked. Sledge said they were.

"Then I think people from outside the state will take those

Girl's death baffles police

By SUSAN LODEN

LONGWOOD — The Halloween night death of a 14-year-old Sweetwater Oak's girl has Seminole County sheriff's deputies baffled.

Julie Waterhouse, of 201 Cove Lake Drive, rural Longwood, died after taking out the trash at her house at about 5:47 p.m. Monday, sheriff's deputies reported.

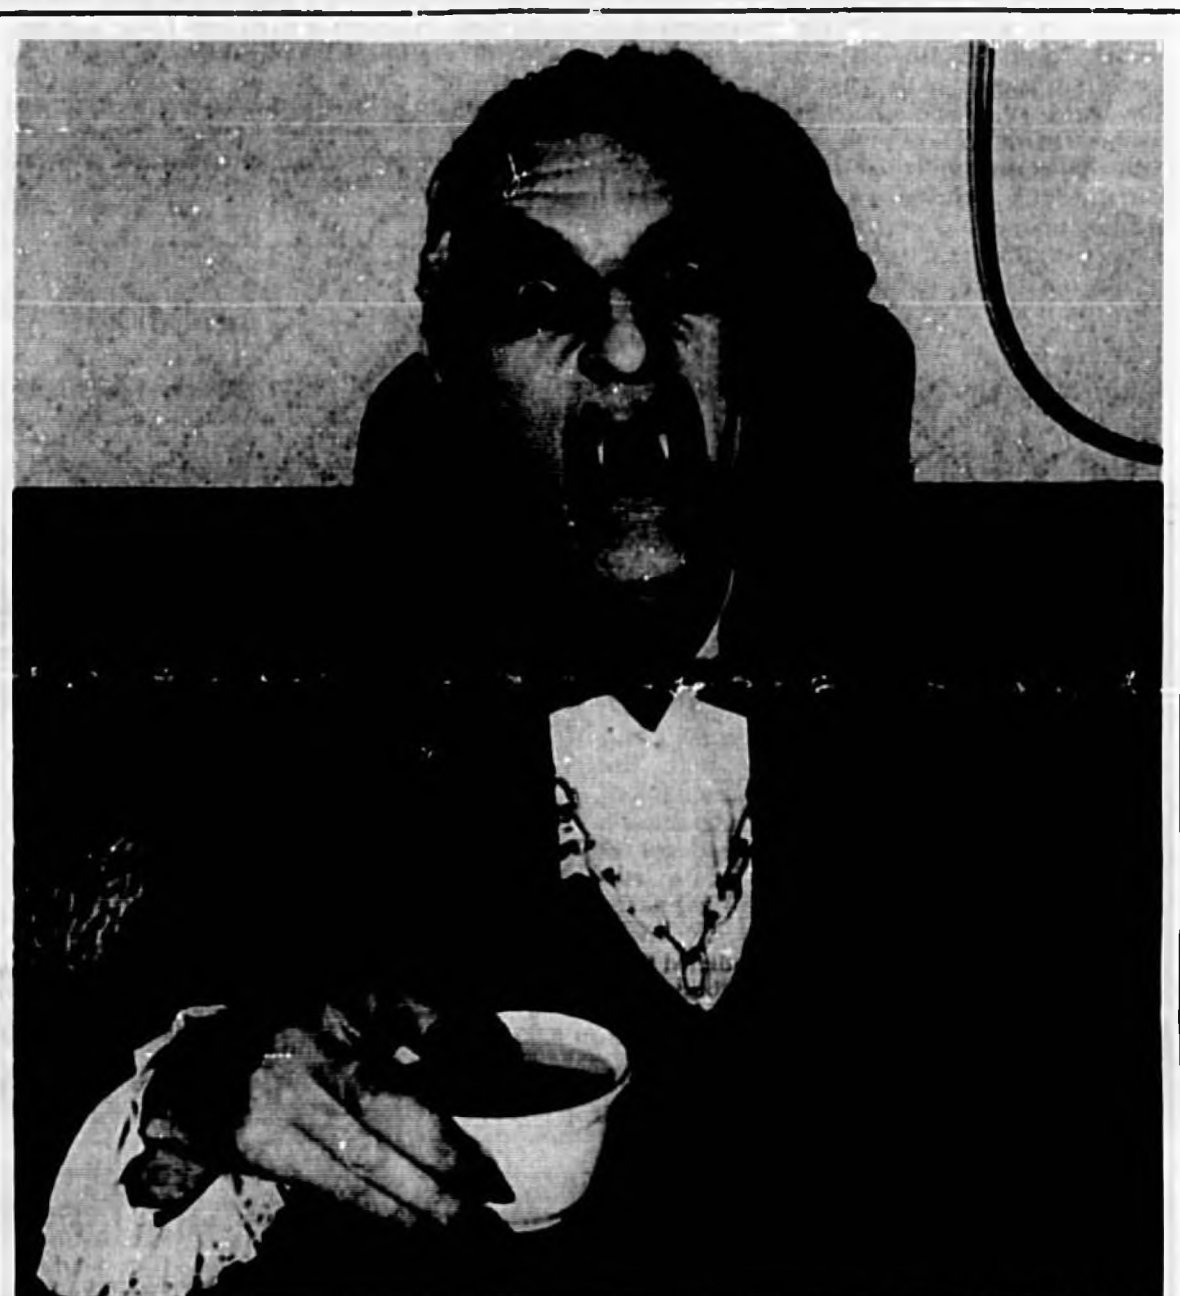

An autopsy performed Tuesday in Orange County failed to show a cause of death. Sheriff's investigator Bob Jaynes said today he is waiting on a toxicology report to determine if the girl was poisoned, or perhaps bitten by a snake.

Jaynes said Julie and her mother Nancy Waterhouse, 45, had a sandwich together at their house at about 5:30 p.m. Then, at her mother's request Julie took out the trash.

When she hadn't returned within 10 minutes, Jaynes said, Waterhouse went out and found her daughter lying unconscious in the back yard. Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene at about 5:47 p.m. and reported Julie was transported to Florida Hospital-Apopka, where she was pronounced dead.

Since the hospital is located in Orange County, the autopsy was performed in that county, Jaynes said.

Tuesday he said the Orange County Medical Examiner reported finding no sign of trauma and no apparent natural cause of death. Jaynes said his investigation shows that Julie was "a perfectly normal, healthy, happy girl who collapsed."

Prescription drugs could quell alcohol cravings

United Press International

SAN DIEGO — Research on drugs that reduce a person's craving for alcohol could provide a "therapeutic window" through which doctors can help alcoholics kick their habit, scientists say.

Studies in animals and humans have shown that chronic alcohol consumption can increase the brain's supply of chemicals that reduce anxiety or increase feelings of pleasure. Dr. James Murphy reported Tuesday at the second National Conference on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Drugs that regulate the supply of these chemicals have proven effective in curbing the desire for alcohol and show promise in alcoholism treatment, said Murphy, a scientist with the Indiana University School of Medicine.

"Should such drugs become available, their principal usefulness would be during that critical period when a person who has been through an alcoholism treatment program would be at high risk of relapse," said Dr. Kenneth Warren of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Murphy and his research team at Indiana have conducted studies on rats bred with a genetic predisposition for alcohol craving. At birth, the rats showed a depletion of three key brain chemicals: serotonin, which helps regulate anxiety; dopamine, which is linked to feelings of reward or pleasure; and GABA, a chemical that inhibits various brain activities.

Alcohol consumption raised the level of all three chemicals in the rats' brains. The animals continued to drink heavily until they were given drugs that reduced the level of the brain chemicals, at which point they seemed to lose interest in alcohol, said Murphy.

"Compounds like these might provide a 'therapeutic window' where animals or humans consuming an excessive amount of alcohol might begin to reduce their intake," he said.

Early trials in humans have indicated that the most promising therapeutic agents are those which effect the brain's serotonin, or anti-anxiety, system, said Murphy.

But alcohol's multiple actions in the brain probably will require a combination of treatment drugs, he added.

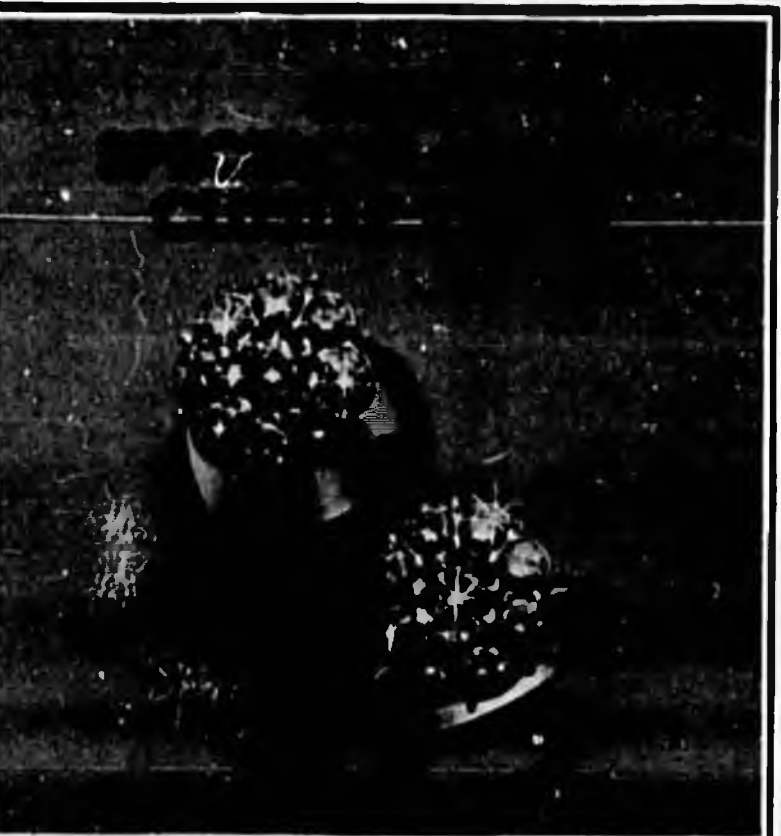

"It seems that alcohol has reward properties and anxiety-reducing properties, both of which may be modulated by different systems in the brain," said Murphy.

"Blocking one system will not completely block the reasons that somebody drinks alcohol. They drink not only because it makes them feel good but also because it reduces tension."

A federal health official agreed that research on anti-craving drugs has shown promise, but cautioned the chief value of such drugs would be as a short-term measure to prevent relapse.

Gardner merits senate position

Winston W. "Bud" Gardner, Democrat of Titusville, has held offices of public service since 1972, the last 10 years as the representative to the Florida House of Representatives from District 31. He served on the Brevard County School Board for six years prior to his election to the House.

Mr. Gardner now seeks the office of State Senator, District 17, which includes portions of Seminole County.

During his tenure in the House, Mr. Gardner has been a part of the leadership for the past eight years serving as chairman of the appropriations subcommittee on general government for six years, then as chairman of the finance and taxation committee during the 1987 session and chairman of the committee on rules and calendar during the 1988 session. His leadership qualities have been widely recognized, not only by his colleagues in the House and Senate, but also by independent organizations and groups with numerous awards. His work during the 1988 session as chairman of the rules and calendar committee was recognized with the Alan Morris Award as most effective in committee, Florida House of Representatives.

Mr. Gardner is well prepared to assume the responsibilities as a state senator. He has established himself as a legislative leader and his platform and goals coincide with the expressed desires and needs of the citizens of this county. He has the potential of making a significant contribution to the progress of Florida, especially in coping with the challenges of the environment and growth management.

The Herald recommends Bud Gardner for State Senator, District 17.

Jenne recommended for state treasurer

The race for State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner is probably the clearest defined of all state contests. Tom Gallagher, Republican, and Ken Jenne, Democrat, are seeking the office. Mr. Gallagher resigned as secretary of the department of professional regulation, a post to which he was appointed by Gov. Bob Martinez following his failed bid for the governorship, to make this race. Mr. Jenne has served the past ten years as a state senator.

Mr. Gallagher has sought and received the bulk of his campaign financing from the insurance industry and related businesses and his platform reveals that commitment to the industry. His indications of support for artificial coastal protections such as seawalls or revetments as a member of the cabinet indicate an individual either ill-informed or ill-advised.

Mr. Jenne has set forth a platform of independence from, and strict enforcement of, insurance laws and regulations and a commitment to protection of the state's coastlines. He opposing "armouring" of the coastline, except where offshore renourishment is necessary or protection of built-up areas is mandated. He shows special concern, and well thought out programs, for the problems facing Florida's school system.

Mr. Jenne has demonstrated his leadership abilities in the state senate and should make a valuable contribution to the cabinet and the office he seeks. The Herald recommends Ken Jenne for Insurance Commissioner.

How George Bush turned the tide

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Thursday, May 26, may go down as the pivotal date in Campaign '88. That was the day that George Bush's backers decided that, to get to the White House, he would have to attack his opponent.

On May 26, Bush's brain trust gathered in the offices of a New Jersey consumer research firm to watch as a "focus group" of potential voters were grilled concerning their views of probable Democratic candidate Michael Dukakis.

The GOP team that traveled to New Jersey was led by Bush campaign manager Lee Atwater and head Bush media adviser Roger Ailes. The two knew they had big problems, but thought they could see a way out.

At that time, private polls indicated that Bush was going to have a surprisingly hard time defeating the Massachusetts governor. But to these hardened political pros, that wasn't the worst news.

In most political polls prospective voters are not only asked who they will probably vote for but also whether they have generally positive or negative feelings about the opposing candidates.

Atwater, who cut his political teeth on campaigns in his native South Carolina, knew from experience that any candidate who is viewed negatively by more than 40 percent of the electorate has a tough time being elected.

Once those negatives reach 50 percent, any candidate is just about dead.

The Bush campaign's polling was showing that Bush had a negative rating of around 40 percent. This did not bother the aides too much because they were confident they could lower the vice president's negatives by Election Day.

What really worried them was that by a margin of more than 5-to-1 respondents to their polls had a positive view of Dukakis. The staffers believed this was because most voters really didn't know much about the Massachusetts governor. They hoped that by Election Day they could "drive up" Dukakis' negatives. That was what the trip to New Jersey was designed to confirm. The research organization had found 30 prospective voters, all Democrats who had voted for Ronald Reagan in 1984 and who said they intended to vote for Dukakis in November. Each of the 30 had a positive view of Dukakis.

The Bush operatives came to the session armed with reams of negative information about Dukakis. As the staffers watched from behind a one-way mirror, the 30 voters heard detailed descriptions of the Massachusetts prison furlough program, the saga of Willie Horton, Dukakis' veto of Pledge of Allegiance legislation, the pollution in Boston Harbor and a dozen other issues that the Bush researchers thought could be used against Dukakis.

Reportedly, much to their delight but not their surprise, when the 30 prospective voters were polled at the end of the evening, 15 had completely changed their minds. They now said that they would vote for George Bush. Five others said they were now unsure how they would vote but that they viewed Dukakis in a negative light.

Lee Atwater has told associates that as the 30 filed out of the room, he knew that George Bush would win the election.

Women on cutting edge

BOSTON — The woman beside me is, by any measure, a success story. The business she started three years ago already has shown more than a respectable profit. She has a dozen people working for her now.

She talks eagerly about the advantages of being her own boss, the excitement of running her own show. She tells me her plans for the future.

But when I ask why she left the corporation, some of the sheen of optimism dulls. It's hard to explain, she says. She had been there for years. They were pretty good to her.

Then, she sighs uncomfortably, as if reluctant to complain or even to remember. For many years, she had been "the only woman" in one meeting after another.

"One day I was sitting there while the men were talking about the game Saturday. One of the guys made his usual crack about cheerleaders. Suddenly I was just so tired of it. I was tired of having to fit in, tired of being an outsider. I felt like I was wasting so much energy."

It was like trying to work, she said, in clown-sized wing-tipped shoes. They slowed her professional pace.

This entrepreneur from Tennessee doesn't know the businesswoman I met last spring in Michigan. But her success story had a similar subtext. Why did this Midwestern woman leave a major bank to set up her own business? After a decade, she was told that she would never become vice president unless she made some changes in her style. Not her management style, her personal style.

The powers that be thought her hair was too red, her car too flashy, her presence too, uh, feminine. She was also a kind of misfit.

The third "misfit" I met last month was in Florida. Her story was even more common. The corporation she left had no room for mothers. She had not been able to be manager and mother in the same schedule. There was no room in their business structure for change and so she went into partnership with another young mother. Their financial and family planning are now in a profitable sync.

These are not the only management "misfits" that I have met. Not by a long shot. But sooner or later, all three of these women will pop up in some puff piece, some personality profile praising the new wave of women entrepreneurs. And it is clear to me that their success is in many ways a corporate loss.

Women-owned small businesses are the fastest growing part of the economy. Something to brag about. Nearly four times as many women as men have gone into business for themselves in the past decade.

We don't keep records on how many of these women are refugees or deserters or escapees (choose one of the above) from larger corporations. We don't have the data on how many of these women left because they got tired of adapting to the corporate style or lifestyle.

Inced their former bosses and colleagues might be surprised, because these were not the kind of women to cry sexism at the meeting. Nor are they the kind to sign their letter of resignation. "Your former misfit." The best and the brightest are also, by my sample, the most likely to just pack up their energy and leave. But anyone who talks to these successes hears the same set of stories.

There are similar tales, I am sure, from male entrepreneurs. There are bluejeaned men who feel trapped in three-piece corporations. There are men who feel they can't push through the ceiling, men who want to make their own rules and hours. They, too, choose to be on their own.

But women are still, almost by definition, aliens in most corporate cultures. Those who were once satisfied, even pleased just to be allowed in to this male world, are increasingly restless in the place.

The new breed are among the liveliest, most exciting businesspeople I meet. I don't want to read failure into their personal success. But few are starting the next IBM. Few will become the employers of hundreds and thousands.

And as they leave larger firms, those work places are diminished. They lose another agent for change. More to point, as these entrepreneurs walk out the door, one by one, American corporations lose another source of ideas, of innovation, of energy.

And sometimes, after I have heard these success stories, I wonder how many of their old colleagues and bosses ever realize the gap left by another "misfit" who dropped a pair of old floppy wing tips beside the exit door.

Women-owned small businesses are the fastest growing part of the economy.

Mafia may have hired Oswald

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we have unraveled the mystery of the century — who really killed John F. Kennedy. We have studied evidence that had been covered up, and we have interviewed witnesses who had been silent for 25 years. We will present our findings to the nation tonight (Nov. 2) in a television documentary. Here are the highlights:

The Central Intelligence Agency dispatched assassins to Cuba in 1961 to kill Fidel Castro. The operation was so sensitive that only six people had knowledge of it. No written record was kept until May 14, 1962, when a summary was prepared for President Kennedy's brother Robert at his request. Only one copy was kept by the CIA.

The killers were hand-picked for the CIA by Santo Trafficante who had been the Mafia boss of the pre-Castro underworld in Havana. After six professional hit teams failed, the CIA reportedly learned that Trafficante had double-crossed them and had tipped off Castro. The CIA immediately cut the Mafia out of the conspiracy, but continued the operation.

Without Trafficante to alert him, Castro no longer knew when or where the CIA assassins would strike. So, in September 1963, he delivered a public warning that if the CIA continued its attempts to kill "Cuban leaders," then "American leaders will no longer be safe."

Participants in the plot on Castro's life claim that the Cuban ruler then enlisted Trafficante to turn the Mafia guns against President Kennedy. Trafficante allegedly got the blessing and backing of two other Mafia godfathers, Sam Giancana and Carlos Marcello, who had come to hate Kennedy bitterly for his vigorous crackdown on the mob.

For a crime of such magnitude, the Mafia would have needed someone to divert suspicion from themselves. They allegedly were led to Lee Harvey Oswald, a perfect fall guy. He was a political crackpot who once defected to Russia. Yet, he had also been a Marine Corps sharpshooter with an assassin's skills. To the public, he would look like a misfit who could well have acted alone.

Two months after Castro's warning, President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas. The Mafia scheme, our sources say, was to pin the assassination on Oswald, then eliminate him before he could incriminate any conspirators. But the police found Oswald first.

That made it all the more urgent for the Mafia to get rid of Oswald. But who would pull a gun in front of dozens of armed police and shoot their prize prisoner? Such a killer would have to be crazy, or under terrible pressure. The man who did it, Jack Ruby, was not crazy. Our sources say he was a small-time hood under Mafia pressure. He had no choice, one source said.

The CIA veteran who directed the abortive attempt to assassinate Castro, William Harvey, told his superiors that the operation had backfired against President Kennedy, associates recalled. They were told that the CIA had confirmed this from other sources. Then-CIA Director John McCone shared this shocking report with the late president's brother, Robert Kennedy, and the new president, Lyndon Johnson, our sources said.

In a private conversation with television commentator Howard K. Smith two years later, Johnson declared, "President Kennedy tried to get Castro, but Castro got Kennedy first." Johnson made similar comments to others including television's elder statesman Walter Cronkite.

Stocks open slightly down

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly lower today in light trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 2.31 Tuesday, was off 1.25 to 2149.71 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 341-242 among the 1,004 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,260,000 shares.

Stock prices closed narrowly mixed in moderate trading Tuesday as many investors eased their enthusiasm for takeover issues and took to the sidelines to wait for Friday's employment figures and next week's presidential election.

Analysts said investors have become concerned over the extent in which the market's recent upward bias has been limited to a rather small number of issues.

"It's been takeovers or nothing in the last couple of weeks," said Don R. Hays, director of investment strategy at Wheat, First Securities in Richmond, Va.

"There have been scores of takeover-related deals since Labor Day, and they alone have been fueling the market," Hays said.

Dollar mostly lower; gold, silver higher

United Press International

The dollar was mostly lower today on major foreign currency markets after falling to a five-month low in Tokyo. The price of gold edged higher.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar plummeted below the 125-yen level to hit a five-month low in Tokyo despite central bank intervention for the third straight session.

The Bank of Japan said the dollar closed at 124.69 yen, down 0.62 from Tuesday's close and the lowest since May 26, when the dollar closed at 124.50 yen.

Dealers said institutional investors sold the dollar to trim their excessive dollar holdings on the belief the dollar will decline further after next Tuesday's U.S. presidential election.

The Bank of Japan stepped in soon after trading began and sold 1.2 billion dollars in an effort to prop up the sagging U.S. currency, they said.

The scale of central bank intervention was not immediately known.

The dealers said the market sentiment remained bearish for the dollar and the central bank's intervention was not effective enough to stop the dollar's fall.

The yen's rise dampened buying enthusiasm on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, where prices fell back after six successive bullish trading sessions.

New home sales plunge

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sales of new single-family houses plunged 7.8 percent in September, the largest drop in 16 months and another sign of a long-standing slump in the housing industry, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Single-family homes sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 659,000 in September, down 7.8 percent from August, the department's Census Bureau said.

That rate was 2.3 percent better than September 1987 but was the largest drop since May 1987, when sales fell 10.9 percent, the bureau said.

an estimated 51,000 new houses were sold in September at a median sales price of $116,900, according to the bureau's report. More than that and half sold for less, the bureau said.

That was a healthy jump in price from August, when the median sales price for a new house was $110,000. The average sales price rose from $140,000 in August to $146,300 in September, the bureau said.

Candidates dig for late converts

United Press International

Michael Dukakis concedes he has no "magic wand" and George Bush acknowledges he's no "mystic," but each man is trying to come up with late converts to his cause as polls show their presidential race running in place.

The Democrat and the Republican remained in the industrial heartland today, each with a stop in Chicago, campaigning for support in the Rust Belt states that Dukakis clearly has to win if he has any chance of stopping Bush.

Dukakis urged voters late in the game to reject the status quo he claims the Republican offers while the vice president worked to gain a wider margin over the Massachusetts governor to ensure a Democratic loss.

Two national polls provided fresh evidence, however, that Bush's lead appears to be holding at a general level. An ABC News-Washington Post survey published today found a 13-point lead while CBS News judged it a 12-point edge.

Specifically, the ABC-Post poll showed Bush with 55 percent support to 42 percent for his rival among 1,099 voters questioned Wednesday to Monday. The CBS survey came up with 53 percent to 41 percent among 1,000 voters contacted Friday to Monday. The error margin for both was 3 percentage points.

If there was any good news for Dukakis, it was that 22 percent of voters in the CBS poll said they had not yet firmly decided on either candidate.

The ABC-Post effort noted many voters in each party are disturbed by the tone and tactics of this year's campaign, are dissatisfied with their nominees and would like to change the way their party chooses its next standard-bearer.

A Pennsylvania Poll published today showed the two candidates deadlocked in the Keystone State. The poll, conducted for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and Philadelphia Daily News, had Bush and Dukakis running even at 46 percent apiece. The survey was taken from Friday to Sunday and had an overall margin of error of 3.5 percentage points.

Abuse

This apathy or fear of action is exactly what H.E.A.T. members want to change.

For some, the involvement is a personal one, as it is for Healy, who is one of the "superkids" — survivors of abuse.

She knows first-hand the isolation abused children experience, how they wait to be rescued, and how they love and want to be loved by their parents. It is her hope that increased awareness will result in greater sensitivity by the peers of abused children. And by bringing the topic forward for conversation, children in need of help will ask for it.

jobs in order to come to Florida — they won't go to people who already live here," Gallagher said.

Sledge explained that the meetings being held in the area this week aren't for the purpose of taking comments about the proposal, but later hearings will be. "We're here to tell you about the federal prison system," she said. "In telling you about us, it's natural that we hear something about you, but that is not why we are here this week," she said.

The first meeting at which public comment will be officially solicited will probably be in January, she said. That hearing will not be to take comments about the proposal, though, only about what should be included in an impact study of the site.

The meeting, called a "scoping" meeting, will be used to determine the scope of the study, which will take about six months. "The meeting will be very strictly controlled and limited to comments about the study," she said. It will solicit comment about such things as water and air pollution, traffic and noise impacts of the prison, she explained.

Sometime while the study is underway, a public hearing soliciting comments for or against locating a prison on the site will be scheduled, she said. Those comments, along with the results of the impact study, will then be forwarded to J. Michael Quinlan, director of the Bureau of Prisons, who will make the final decision on whether a prison will be built on the site.

If the prison is located here, it will be called the Sanford Correctional Facility, not the Geneva facility, Sledge said. Monday she had said that prisons are named according to the nearest post office, so this one, if built, would probably be named for Geneva.

However, Tuesday night she said the city of Sanford is donating the property and Sanford appears on all the correspondence about the proposal. "Geneva is a community I knew nothing about until I came here and I have no reason to believe the prison would carry any other name than Sanford," she said Tuesday night.

Sledge and Larry Long, a Bureau site acquisition specialist, were to present their program to Sanford Chamber of Commerce members at a noon luncheon today, and to a meeting of the general public at the civic center again tonight at 7 p.m. employees including United Telephone, UPS, Southern Bell and Stromberg-Carlson collected $331,583.

The total collected from major areas was $447,895, or more than 60 percent of the total goal for Seminole County. Officials said some of the reports are "still to come across."

Other contributions came from individuals, medical organizations, government, and professional, financial and education groups.

The reception for the Heart of Florida United Way was held last evening at Maison et Jardin Restaurant. Altamonte Springs Campaign volunteers, agency officials and board members ate, drank and mingled in the elegant dining room before the reports were given.

Sanford City Manager Frank Faison was the government chairman. He reported $29,659 was taken in by state employees, "just a tad short" of their $30,000 goal, he said. "It started off slow. The push really came on strong late in the campaign," Faison said.

Cities that received special recognition for their contributions included Lake Mary, Longwood and Oviedo. These municipalities each exceeded prior years, officials said. Education contributions exceeded the $40,000 goal by $5,000.

The Seminole County School System contributed $40,000. Officials said $5,000 from private schools and Seminole Community College came in "at the last minute."

Lake Mary High School was recognized as the number-one contributor.

Shannon Nugent, a teenager who recovered from substance abuse with help from United Way funds, was special guest and honorary chairman.

"She's one of our winners," said Robert Walko, United Way chairman for the Seminole area. The Heart of Florida United Way is comprised of Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

The report last evening was specifically for the Seminole area. The campaign officially ends tomorrow and the final report for the tri-county area will be given 6:30 p.m. tomorrow evening at Contemporary Resort Hotel in Disney World. Goal for the tri-county area is $7,850,000.

Charter

telephone, telegraph and water service, as well as bottled gas or liquefied petroleum service.

The state law allowed up to a 10 percent tax to be imposed on the services, although a recent state amendment permits a maximum of 10 percent on only local telephone service and a 7 percent rate if both local and long-distance services are taxed, according to David Regga, staff director of the state Senate Finance, Taxation and Claims Committee.

Such a tax, if imposed, would have to be paid by all unincorporated residents, not just homeowners who provide ad valorem tax revenues. Usually, it would be added to monthly service bills.

Sarasota County, one of the several charter counties in the state that impose the tax, raises about $8.5 million annually from its residents, said Phil McGuire, deputy Sarasota County administrator.

Larry Arrington, deputy Volusia County manager and county charter researcher, said Volusia County raises about the same amount as Sarasota County and used a portion of the taxes to lower municipal service taxes for unincorporated residents.

Other uses of the money could include road maintenance and additional sheriff's deputies, Arrington says.

Seminole County officials are quick to point out they have no intention of seeking the tax if the charter is passed.

"I certainly have no ulterior motive in presenting the charter to the voters to get to that end," said County Commissioner Chairman Fred Streetman, a charter supporter.

"I have no plans to even think about such a tax," said Seminole County commissioner Bob Sturm, who also supports the charter.

Although commissioners stated at a public hearing on Sept. 20 they had no plans to impose the tax, the possibility of the tax made some county residents nervous.

"I oppose the charter strictly on the fact that it can be a method to raise taxes," said Robert Daves of Longwood.

Because the tax might be placed on top of city franchise fees imposed on unincorporated residents receiving city utilities, Casselberry councilman Phyllis Sheppard also opposed the utility taxing ability.

"No matter what you call it, it is a form of double taxation," Sheppard said. "It is two costs on top of the same service and I disagree with that."

we have says that's the ballpark, the 28th, 29th, somewhere in that ballpark."

Atlantis' roll out came two days later than planned because of problems encountered over the weekend when engineers had to remove a 3-inch piece of wire lodged between a washer and the orbiter at one of the three points where the 100-ton shuttle is bolted to its external fuel tank.

With Atlantis on the pad, engineers faced several days of work to make dozens of electrical and mechanical connections before Gibson and his crewmates fly to the Kennedy Space Center for the traditional "terminal countdown demonstration test."

Chavez released from hospital

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez was released from the hospital Tuesday following two days of treatment for injuries he suffered in a fall at his home.

Chavez, 62, broke a wrist and suffered bruises on his head, back and chest when he fell off his porch on Sunday. He was released Tuesday from Kern County Medical Center, a nursing supervisor said.

Chavez has been slowly recuperating from the effects of a 36-day water-only fast to protest the use of pesticides in California agriculture. He ended the fast Aug. 21.

His son, Paul, described him as "real banged up" from the fall, and said he was kept one night in the neurological unit for observation. Chavez was scheduled to be released Monday night, but was kept an extra night.

Scientists want to study cholesterol

DALLAS — With all the public awareness of the dangers of cholesterol in the diet, doctors need to know more about how it affects human health, and researchers today called for better tools to study the substance.

A report released by 80 scientists sponsored by the American Heart Association said more research is needed on genetics and cholesterol, what happens to cholesterol in the body, and the development of new anti-cholesterol drugs with fewer side effects.

It also sought development of new ways to study atherosclerosis, the buildup of waste materials in vessels that restricts blood flow. Cholesterol is a cause of atherosclerosis, which can lead to heart attacks, strokes and kidney failure.

Americans generally are aware that too much cholesterol and saturated fat in their diets can be dangerous, but those factors alone do not explain why some people get heart disease and others do not, the researchers said.

Health experts recommend that no more than 30 percent of calories consumed daily should come from fat, with no more than 10 percent of total calories coming from saturated fats, and the researchers agreed.

Tropical bird to leave Virginia for Florida

BLACKSBURG, Va. — A tropical sea bird, fully recovered after turning up weak, hungry and dehydrated at a Southwest Virginia trout farm last month, was ready to embark on a trip to Florida today to be returned to the wild.

"I've enjoyed working with her, but I'll be glad to let her go," said Rose Norris, who has nursed Maggie, a magnificent frigatebird, since it crashed into a trout pond in Rural Retreat Oct. 13. "If she takes off and flies across the water it'll just be exultation. It'll feel so good to see her doing what she's supposed to do."

Norris, who runs New River Wildlife Center in Blacksburg, said Maggie steadily has gained weight and strength during her stay at the Wildlife Center, and the last phase of her recovery — getting her salt glands reactivated — was accomplished last week. Sea birds have special glands that get rid of excess salts, and Norris primed the glands by feeding Maggie a saline solution.

"She's flying, she's eating, she's doing everything," Norris said. "I feel real good about her condition."

Reagan stumps for GOP candidates

United Press International

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — President Reagan, concluding a weeklong campaign swing today, hoped to boost Republican Senate candidacies in Wisconsin and Ohio as he kept up his attacks on Democrat Michael Dukakis.

Ronald Reagan

Reagan, a former Democrat, told campaign crowds in California Tuesday that Dukakis is wrong to claim he represents the traditional values of Democratic leaders such as Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Harry Truman and John Kennedy.

While trying to co-opt those leaders as his own political heroes, Reagan is charging that the Democratic presidential nominee has left the "mainstream" and is a "liberal" who opposes "tough-minded judges... voluntary prayer in the schools" and favors "tax hikes, gun control and a weak-kneed defense."

Aides predicted more of the same when Reagan campaigned today at a brunch in Milwaukee for Republican Susan Engeleter, a state senator opposed by food merchant Herbert Kohl for the seat of retiring Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Reagan also arranged to address a rally at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio, near Cleveland. Former Cleveland Mayor George Voinovich is trying to thwart the re-election bid of Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

The president's appearances at countless GOP fund-raisers has raked in an estimated $11 million while giving him an opportunity to contrast Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, with Vice President George Bush, the Republican White House candidate.

"The election this year is a referendum on liberalism," Reagan declared at an airport rally in Reno, Nev., Tuesday for Sen. Chic Hecht, R-Nev.

"The opposition, even after finally admitting their liberalism, is still trying to deny that they've left the mainstream behind and now belong to the party of McGovern and Mondale," he said. "That's the type liberals they are."

"No, the fact is that today, if you want America to be what F.D.R. called 'a great arsenal of democracy,' if, like Harry Truman, you want to continue to help those resisting communism; if you believe in lowering tax rates like John F. Kennedy did; and (if you believe) in the traditional values that you grew up with, then you should vote for our Republican ticket, because that's what we believe in and the self-proclaimed liberals don't."

While pickets have been a rarity on Reagan's current campaign, he encountered a vocal group of hecklers Tuesday at a rally at California State University in Fullerton. Hecht campaign aides tried to grab two posters reading "Stick with Chic" when a couple of protesters changed the language to "Stick It Chic."

Reagan will spend Thursday clearing the decks for more campaigning later in the week. He plans to visit several big cities in his political trips Friday and Saturday.

Justices take on two drug-testing cases

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, in two cases that could lead to an expansion of drug testing in the workplace, must decide the constitutionality of two government programs affecting railway and Customs Service workers.

Oral arguments in both cases scheduled today marked the start of public review by the court, which never has ruled on whether mandatory tests for narcotics are legal under the Constitution.

In the railway case, the justices must decide if the government may require drug tests of workers involved in train accidents. The Customs case poses the question of whether the government may test new employees and those seeking promotions in jobs that involve the carrying of a weapon, fighting drugs or dealing with classified material.

At issue is whether the tests violate the Fourth Amendment barring the government from conducting unreasonable and warrantless searches. Nationwide, workplace drug testing is becoming more common — and while the Constitution's Bill of Rights does not apply to private action, the court's decision could go a long way in deciding the future of such programs, both public and private.

If the court should find the testing constitutional, legal scholars believe the programs will expand greatly in both sectors. If the court finds testing unconstitutional or limits such application, a general contraction is likely.

The rail case, which Attorney General Richard Thornburgh decided to argue personally today, involves rules adopted by the Federal Railway Administration that require blood and urine testing of all train crew members involved in accidents that cause death, major injury, property damage or release of a hazardous substance.

The rules allow tests, but do not require them, of workers who are suspected of contributing to an accident or who have committed a rule violation, such as speeding or passing through a stop signal. Those who fail can be dismissed or suspended and refusal to take a test is subject to a nine-month suspension.

Soon after they took effect in 1986, the regulations were challenged in court by the Railway Labor Executives Association, a coalition of various unions, on grounds such tests are a violation of the Fourth Amendment.

A district court upheld the tests, but the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals declared them unconstitutional in February, prompting the government's appeal.

Federal court upholds ruling against Indians' land claim

United Press International

NEW YORK — The Oneida Indians have lost their battle for 5.5 million acres of pricey land to New York state, which the native Americans contend purchased the property illegally 200 years ago.

A federal appeals court upheld a ruling Tuesday dismissing the Oneida Indians' claim.

The legal and financial stakes in the court battle, which pitted the Oneida Indian Nation against the state of New York, were massive and defense lawyers for local landowners said Tuesday that had the Indians won, several municipal governments would have defaulted, sparking chaos for more than a million people.

Portions of 12 counties stretching from the St. Lawrence seaway to the Pennsylvania border were involved in the suit.

"The appeal is unusual because it requires a federal court, perhaps for the first time, to determine whether actions of a state violated the Articles of Confederation," said the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' 52-page decision.

Under the treaties the federal government claimed the right to manage Indian affairs.

Navy dolphins allegedly mistreated

United Press International

SEATTLE — The Navy's secret program to train dolphins as underwater security guards for the Bangor, Wash., Trident submarine base and other sites is in serious disarray due to mistreatment of the animals and high staff turnover. It was reported Wednesday.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer quoted sources, including unnamed former trainers involved in the program, who said four of the program's three dozen dolphins have died in the past 18 months due to mistreatment.

A Navy spokesman denied that dolphins are being mistreated and said there are no problems with the program.

The training project is based at the Naval Ocean Systems Center in San Diego. The Navy said the marine mammals are not being used in situations that threaten their lives.

But the Post-Intelligencer said Wednesday that two former dolphin trainers who asked to remain anonymous said the dolphins have been trained to cripple or kill underwater intruders, which could result in harm to the dolphins.

Religious parties key to Israeli rule

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Ultra-Orthodox religious parties made a surprise showing in Israel's parliamentary elections, becoming the probable key to a coalition government that most likely will be led by the right-wing Likud Party.

Likud and the center-left Labor Party, the two largest parties, won nearly the same number of parliamentary seats in Tuesday's election. But Likud was in a stronger position to form the next government because religious parties in the past have allied themselves with Likud.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, leader of Likud, and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, head of Labor, planned to meet today with the leaders of the religious parties in an attempt to form coalitions.

A confident Shamir told jubilant supporters that Likud would begin forming a government immediately, while Peres acknowledged that the result "goes against us, but we will continue to negotiate."

Results based on a count of 85 percent of the vote gave Likud 40 seats in the 120-member Knesset, or parliament, and Labor 38, state-run Israel Radio reported.

In all, the four religious parties increased their share of seats from 10 to 17, according to the results.

The small left-wing parties captured 10 seats, while the small right-wing parties won eight. Arab parties received seven.

If the four religious parties, with 17 seats, allied with Likud as they have in past elections, Shamir and the other right-wing parties would have a majority of 65 seats, according to the results announced on Israel Radio.

Labor and its left-wing allies had a total of 48 seats and at most 55 seats if the Arab parties joined their coalition.

The religious parties, whose main concerns are religious and social rather than political, could join the party that can offer them the most.

"We feel we have reached independence," said Avner Shaki, head of the National Religious Party and a parliamentary candidate. "We have certain basic conditions on the land of Israel, Jewish education and Jewish identity. If we hear some change from Labor on these issues, we can negotiate."

Likud faces the difficult task of forming a coalition of the extremely ideological religious and right-wing parties. Many analysts said another "national unity" government of Likud and Labor cannot be ruled out.

The main issues of the campaign have been peace and security, especially Israeli policy toward the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip where a bloody Palestinian uprising has raged for nearly 11 months.

"The key lies with the religious parties," said Labor Party campaign chairman and candidate Ezer Weizman. "The speculation only begins now. But not all of them might go toward one of the two blocs."

Shamir, speaking to joyous supporters, said there was no need to analyze the results which were shifting slightly hour by hour.

"The situation looks like it will allow the Likud to form the government of Israel. From tomorrow we start the work of making a government," the prime minister told cheering supporters at party headquarters in Tel Aviv.

Shamir vowed to pursue the peace process in the Middle East. "When Likud stands in government, it will do all in its power to bring forward peace with the Arab neighbors," he said.

A somber Peres, in an address to glum followers at the Dan Hotel in Tel Aviv, was pessimistic about his party's chances, but vowed to attempt to form a coalition.

"The results are not final, but the approximations are very clear — within the religious bodies there's an increase in number," Peres said.

Bus crash kills 42

SRINAGAR, India — A bus skidded off a road and hurtled into a deep gorge Wednesday in India's northern Kashmir region, killing 42 passengers and injuring two others, police said.

Police said the accident occurred near the town of Kishtwar when the vehicle bound for the regional capital of Jammu jumped a concrete barrier, crashed through a safety rail and plunged down a 100-foot-deep gorge, killing 42 people.

A rescue team found two survivors in the wreckage, both of whom suffered serious injuries.

Rebels attack national guard barracks

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — In a day of heavy guerrilla activity leftist rebels attacked a national guard barracks with mortar and machine-gun fire, leaving at least six soldiers dead and 29 people wounded, the army said.

The assault Tuesday on the main barracks of the El Salvador national guard came as rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) attacked a prison in Cabanas province and municipal and communications offices in Chalatenango province. No casualties were reported.

Fishermen rescue all hands from ship

MANILA, Philippines — Fishermen rescued all 21 crewmen of a ship carrying a load of logs that sank earlier this week off the northwest coast of the Philippines, the Philippine coast guard said Wednesday.

The coast guard said the Panama-registered vessel Maria Pilar was battered by strong waves for hours before it sank Sunday off the town of Cabugao in northern Ilocos Sur province, 220 miles north of Manila.

Fishermen, alerted by emergency flares, rescued all 21 crewmen from the vessel, which was on its way to South Korea from Malaysia to deliver its cargo of logs, the coast guard said.

Earlier an extensive at-sea search turned up no trace of the crew, raising fears that all had drowned.

South Africa, Angola reiterate hopes

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa and Angola said they remain hopeful an independence plan for Namibia will be implemented soon despite the failure to meet a target date set by Pretoria.

"It is over to them," South African Foreign Minister Roelf "Pik" Botha said of Angola and Cuba in an interview Tuesday with state-run television. "South Africa has proved beyond any doubt or argument today that it has held firm to its commitment to Namibia's sovereignty."

Angolan President Eduardo Dos Santos, in an interview published Tuesday, held out hope that another round of negotiations under American auspices could allow for implementation of the Namibian independence plan by January.

South Africa had proposed Nov. 1 as the date for implementation of U.N. Security Council Resolution 435 paving the way for Namibia's independence, assuming agreement on an acceptable timetable was reached in the U.S.-mediated peace talks for a Cuban troop withdrawal from Angola.

Hijacker admits killing American, Israeli

VALLETTA, Malta — A Palestinian accused of taking part in the bloody 1985 hijacking of an Egyptian jetliner told a court he killed an Israeli passenger "on principle" and a U.S. citizen because he believes Americans are imperialists.

Omar Mohammed Ali Rezaq, 24, went on trial Tuesday in a tightly guarded courtroom in a military fort for his role in the hijacking that ended with the bloodiest rescue in aviation history.

Judge Wallace Gullia was expected to sentence Rezaq today. Sixty people, including the two other hijackers, died in the two-day siege that ended Nov. 25, 1985, when an Egyptian commando unit stormed the Boeing 737 at Valletta's Luqa Airport.

The Abu Nidal Palestinian guerrilla organization claimed responsibility for the hijacking.

Rezaq pleaded guilty to seven of the nine charges against him, including the murder of the American and Israeli women passengers, and Prosecutor Vincent Degaetano agreed to drop the remaining charges of illegal entry into Malta's air space and possession of firearms.

Rezaq told the court the hijacking was "an act against Egypt's policy, which was destroying the future of the Palestinians."

He said the jet, which was hijacked on a flight from Athens to Cairo, landed at Malta only to refuel en route to an Arab country, which he refused to name.

Rezaq identified one of his fellow hijackers as an Egyptian named Salim who lived in Lebanon and whom he met for the first time in Athens. He said he did not know the name of the other hijacker.

When asked why the hijackers fired at Israeli passengers, he said, "This is our principle." He said Israelis are terrorists because they occupied Palestinian land.

The hijackers also shot Americans, he said, "because they are imperialists and we are against imperialists." He added, "There are other reasons too."

Rezaq, a Palestinian born in the Sabra refugee camp in Beirut, pleaded innocent to 17 charges at the start of his closed-door pre-trial hearing, which lasted 16 months. It ended in April.

Walesa warns of protests over shipyard closure

United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa warned that workers angered over plans to close the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk could stage a "spontaneous protest" coinciding with the arrival in Poland of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Thatcher was to arrive today on a three-day state visit that will include a meeting with Walesa Friday in the Baltic port city. She was to meet new Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski and Roman Catholic Cardinal Jozef Glemp on her first evening in Warsaw.

In Gdansk, meanwhile, meetings were scheduled among workers today to decide what to do about Rakowski's decision to close the shipyard on Dec. 1. The government says it is shutting down the facility, the birthplace of Solidarity, because it is losing too much money.

Walesa said he would go the shipyard to try to talk to the management, including director Czeslaw Totwinski, and representatives of the official trade unions as well as local leaders of the banned Solidarity.

He said the announced closing of Solidarity's birthplace has aroused dissatisfaction among its 11,000 workers.

"I don't rule out a spontaneous protest to occur in the shipyard Wednesday," he added. "Their daily bread is at stake for them."

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said Warsaw is determined to close unprofitable plants like the Lenin shipyard and conceded that strikes may erupt as a result.

"We take into account the fact that various measures (by the government) can cause protests and strikes," Urban said in a nationwide television news broadcast. He said economic reforms "cannot take place without conflict."

But Walesa described the decision to shut down the shipyard, where Solidarity's birth in 1980 propelled him to international fame, as an "irresponsible political provocation."

"It is a shame and a challenge," he said.

Walesa said the shipyard could be run by an independent workers' council. "We can take it over," he said, but such a solution is considered highly unlikely.

Tuesday was a day off for millions of Poles who went to cemeteries on All Saints Day to

Lech Walesa

Margaret Thatcher

He said several hundred people were buried at night in mass graves. Among the victims was Gen. Emil Fieldorf, the last commander of the Polish Home Army.

Dissident Wojciech Ziembinski said about 200,000 Poles were murdered during former dictator Josef Stalin's rule in the Soviet Union.

Ziembinski vowed to appeal a government rejection of his request to form an official committee commemorating the Polish victims of Stalinist terror.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has led a campaign of exposing and sharply criticizing Stalin, who oversaw the executions of millions of Soviets during his reign from the mid-1920s to 1953.

Iran, Iraq agree to direct talks

United Press International

GENEVA — Iran and Iraq have agreed to hold further direct negotiations at their latest round of peace talks, ending a series of indirect meetings in which U.N. officials acted as go-betweens.

"It was a minor breakthrough," one official of the United Nations said Tuesday of the procedural agreement proposed by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Perez de Cuellar won acceptance of direct discussion at a full plenary meeting of delegations Tuesday afternoon and evening.

But the U.N. chief executive cautioned that Iran and Iraq had related their basic conflicting positions that have kept talks in stalemate since the first round Aug. 25 to Sept. 13.

Bail hearing set for Marcos

United Press International

NEW YORK — Imelda Marcos's lawyers took just a day to agree with prosecutors on how the former Philippine first lady would post $5 million bail while most of the family's assets are tied up in litigation.

U.S. District Judge John Keenan scheduled a hearing for 9 a.m. today to consider the bond proposal, which would let Marcos return to Hawaii to join her husband, ailing former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos. Imelda Marcos need not appear at the bond hearing.

Her lawyer, John Tigie Jr., said Tuesday. "We have reached agreement in principle" on the bond during a day of intense negotiations with prosecutors.

"We need to work out the details to comply with the court's order, but we expect to do that within the next few days," Tigie said. He said a source for the bond had been found but declining to identify it.

Until bail arrangements are final, Marcos has been ordered to remain in the New York area. Her husband was excused from the arraignment and remained at the couple's Hawaii home-in-exile because of ill health.

Imelda Marcos, 59, pleaded innocent Monday in federal racketeering charges that she and her husband embezzled more than $100 million from the Philippine government.

At her arraignment, Keenan gave Marcos 72 hours to post $5 million in cash or property as security to remain free pending trial and said he would hold a bond hearing Thursday if Marcos could not make bail by that time. That meeting was moved up a day after the two sides reached agreement.

Imelda Marcos spent Tuesday in seclusion with her advisers in a suite at the exclusive Waldorf Towers, apparently eschewing the whirlwind New York City shopping spree she was known for in happier days.

"She has no plans today; she's resting," said a retainer who answered the telephone Tuesday at the lavish 37th-floor suite that was used by President Reagan during a recent visit and reportedly costs $1,800 a night.

At her arraignment Monday, Marcos's lawyers told the court she and her husband could not immediately post bond because their assets have either been seized or are the subject of litigation being pressed by the government of Philippine President Corazon Aquino.

Researchers find possible early-warning cancer test

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Many steps remain before scientists may be able to use a new test intended to help reduce lung cancer death by detecting tumors in an early stage easier to treat.

Researchers from the National Cancer Institute and Johns Hopkins Medical School are optimistic about preliminary findings that their test can catch lung cancer about two years before symptoms or before X-rays find a tumor.

However, according to Dr. Melvin Tockman, head of the research team and associate professor of environmental health sciences at Johns Hopkins. "This is only the first of many steps before this technique can be useful."

In a telephone interview from Baltimore Tuesday, Tockman estimated it would take at least five years before the test might be used in clinical screening.

"Ultimately, the hope is that there would be fewer deaths from lung cancer by finding the cancer early," he said. "The primary problem with current therapy is that by the time the cancer is found, the disease has usually spread beyond the lung."

Currently, about 90 percent of lung cancer patients die within two years of diagnosis, mainly because the cancer had metastasized or spread to other areas of the body before detection. The American Cancer Society estimates 139,000 Americans will die this year of lung cancer, the most common fatal cancer.

Reporting Tuesday in the Journal of Clinical Oncology, Tockman's team said it used monoclonal antibodies derived from mouse immune cells to test samples of sputum, the mucus-like material coughed up from the lungs.

The antibodies stick to proteins produced by human lung tumors but not found in healthy people. When the researchers applied a stain to sputum treated with the antibodies, cells bearing the cancer-generated proteins showed up.

Tockman's team tested 69 specimens taken from patients during a previous lung cancer study at Johns Hopkins in the 1970s. A total of 5,226 people provided sputum samples in that study, with about 12 percent showing atypical but not cancerous cells. Of those who went on to develop cancer, a disproportionate share — about 40 percent — came from the group with atypical sputum cells.

Because the normal sputum samples were not preserved, the latest study could only examine samples of atypical cells.

Former housekeeper says Capasso, Myerson upset about alimony payments

United Press International

NEW YORK — Bess Myerson called alimony her boyfriend Carl Capasso paid his ex-wife "ridiculous" and he once asked the former Miss America to do something about reducing it. Capasso's former housekeeper testified in the couple's alimony fixing trial.

Shirley Harrod, who said she was fired for disobeying an order after working for 11 months as housekeeper at the millionaire sewer contractor's posh home in Westhampton Beach, N.Y., testified Tuesday that Capasso and Myerson were upset by the alimony payments and often talked about the divorce during the summer of 1983.

Harrod, speaking with a distinctive British accent, also described a conversation with Myerson in the kitchen in which Myerson said, "It was ridiculous that this woman was getting $1,600 a week," an apparent reference to alimony payments to Nancy Capasso.

"I just agreed," Harrod said. Myerson, Capasso and retired state Supreme Court Justice Hortense Gabel face bribery and related charges in U.S. District Court. Myerson is charged with hiring Gabel's daughter, Sukhreet, to influence the judge to rule favorably in Capasso's alimony case.

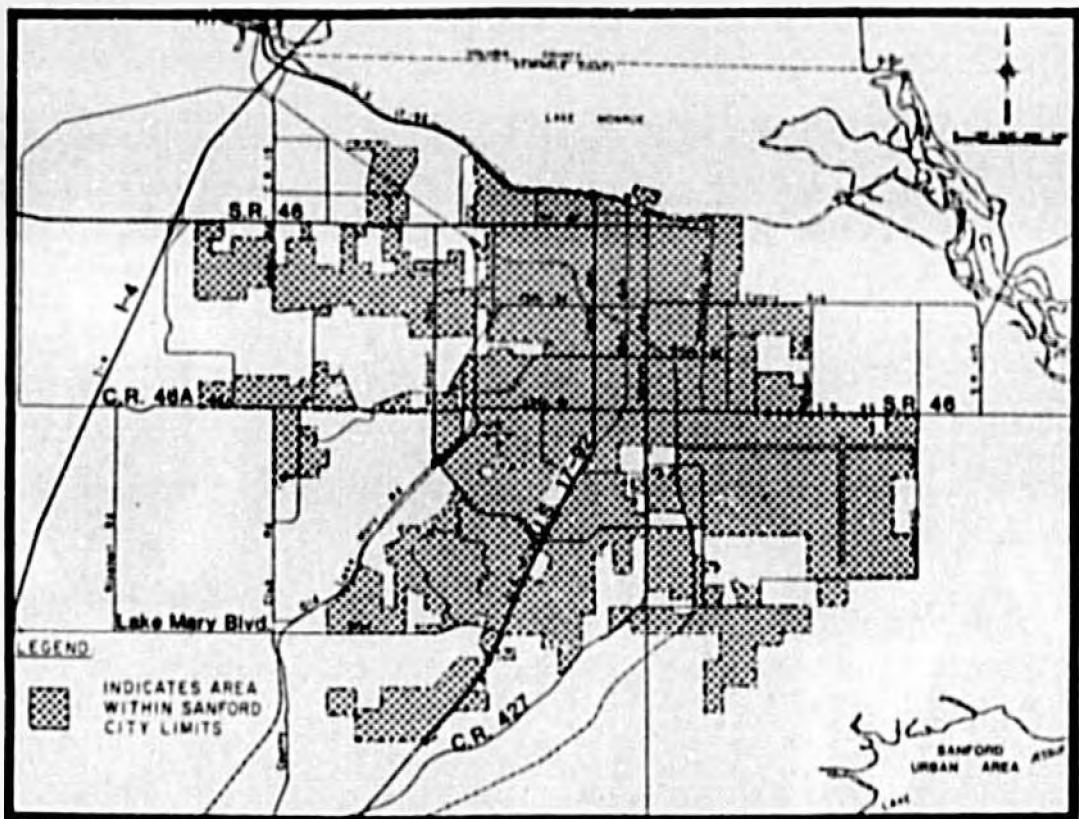

Harrod said that on one occasion, Capasso threw his divorce papers on the dining room table and asked Myerson, "Isn't there something you can do about this?"

Jets rout Islanders, 8-1

The Winnipeg Jets, with some players still mourning the firing of former general manager John Ferguson, took out their frustrations in their first game under Ferguson's replacement.

Dale Hawerchuk and Pat Elynuik scored two goals each and Thomas Steen added a goal and three assists Tuesday night as the Jets handed the New York Islanders their worst home defeat with an 8-1 rout.

Winnipeg scored on their first two shots of the game. Dave Ellett beat New York goaltender Billy Smith on his glove side just 52 seconds into the game. Hawerchuk then beat Smith with a 55-foot shot 48 seconds later to give Winnipeg a 2-0 lead.

In other NHL games, Montreal clubbed Hartford 5-3, Los Angeles topped Quebec 3-1, Pittsburgh beat Vancouver 5-3, New Jersey edged Philadelphia 3-2 and Washington and Detroit skated to a 3-3 tie.

BASKETBALL

Clippers win Fame game

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Rookie Charles Smith scored 23 points and Kenoit Benjamin added 22 Tuesday night to lead the Los Angeles Clippers to a 110-104 triumph over the Detroit Pistons in the 16th annual Hall of Fame game.

Ken Norman had 21 points and 10 rebounds for the Clippers. Dennis Rodman's 21 points and 14 rebounds paced Detroit.

Los Angeles, which led 82-78 after three periods, opened the fourth quarter with an 8-1 run. The Clippers got a pair of jumpers from reserve guard Grant Gondrezick and a rebound follow by Norman during the run to take an 88-78 lead with 9:47 to play.

Detroit closed to within 1 when Darryl Dawkins' jumper made it 98-97 with 2:59 left but the Pistons were forced to foul down the stretch as the Clippers scored their last 12 points from the free-throw line.

Los Angeles, which trailed 56-51 at halftime, went ahead for good with 1:10 left in the third period on Norman's slam.

TENNIS

Navratilova wins easily

WORCESTER, Mass. — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova needed just 47 minutes to defeat South Africa's Karen Schimper 6-3, 6-0 Tuesday and advance to the second round of the $300,000 Virginia Slims of New England.

Other seeded players to advance Tuesday included No. 3 Gabriela Sabatini, No. 5 Helena Sukova, No. 6 Natalia Zvereva and No. 8 Larisa Savchenko. Second-seeded Chris Evert and defending champion Pam Shriver play their first-round matches Wednesday.

Navratilova struggled in the first set, letting a 4-0 advantage go to a 5-3. She quickly regained her form, losing just eight points in the second set.

Jockeys end 13-day strike

NEW YORK — A group of 30 striking New York jockeys ended their 13-day walkout Tuesday after signing contracts with individual horse owners to increase fees for winning rides at the Aqueduct Race Track.

Brian Meara, a spokesman for the Jockeys Guild, said the jockeys were "pleased" the strike was over and planned to return to work Wednesday.

No formal agreement was signed between the Jockeys Guild and the New York Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, which represents the horse owners, said Gerard McKeon, president of the New York Racing Association, which was mediating the strike.

"The jockeys have gotten contracts from individual owners agreeing on what rate they will be paid for individual races," he said. "We will honor any agreement between jockeys and owners on an individual race-by-race basis."

Lady 'Noles rip Edgewater

By CHUCK BURGESS
 Herald correspondent

KISSIMMEE — It is a scientific fact that the universe remains in a state of continuous disorder. The Lady Seminole netters of Sanford found out that their universe was also in continuous disorder but they overcame their early rotation troubles to shoot down the Lady Eagles of Edgewater 15-6, 15-8 in first round action of the District 3A-6 volleyball tournament in front of 101 fans at Gateway High.

The Lady 'Noles upped their record to 10-6 and have a chance for their first 20-win season under head coach Beth Corso with a win over the Lady Hornets of Hithop Moore who defeated the Kowgirls of Ocoola 15-12, 15-4. The Lady Seminoles have a good chance for the 20 plus season as they awaited the Lady Hornets in their only meeting of the year 15-6, 15-8. The two teams battle each other tonight in the semifinal nightcap at 7:30 p.m. with Oviedo dueling Jones in the first match at 6 p.m.

Mistakes came early for the Lady Seminoles as they began their district play with a bit of confusion with two players unintentionally switching numbers which threw the entire Seminole rotation into complete chaos, according to Corso.

"We had a little trouble at the beginning with two of our players switching numbers," Corso said after the match. "Right off the bat that threw us into turmoil. I had to substitute where I didn't want to and we played in more different rotations than we ever have."

In the opening game, the Lady Eagles jumped out of the starting blocks on the serving of Vivian Jenkins who caught the Lady Seminoles off guard with a powerful blast. Then after an official's timeout Renee Dopson came in to serve two points and a 3-0 Edgewater lead.

The Lady Seminoles, trying to muster up some enthusiasm, came right back though as senior co-captain Adrian Hillsman knocked down a kill to put the Lady 'Noles on the board. Hillsman then went to work on her serve as she used the hitting of teammate co-captain Liz Long to go ahead 5-3.

Long, who had 10 kills, two blocks, and three kills on the night, took control of the game with a block and two kills to give the Lady Seminoles the lead, despite the early confusion.

"If it looked like we were confused and the girls didn't know where they were going that's because we were out of sync and they weren't used to playing next to the people they were

UCF's Jill Knutson puts up a set during Tuesday night's match vs. Rollins.

Rollins' experience stops UCF

By TONY DeBORNIER
 Herald sports writer

ORLANDO — In a game that rides the rollercoaster of emotion like volleyball, experience can mean as much as talent when it comes to winning.

On Tuesday night at the University of Central Florida, for example, the Rollins College Lady Tars defeated the UCF Lady Knights 15-12, 10-15, 15-4, 15-8.

While the Lady Tars (now 24-11 with the win) played a staple yet solid match, the young Lady Knights (14-13) showed equal signs of their talent and their youth (five freshmen and two sophomores on the squad of 11).

"I think that's volleyball," said Suzanne Patterson, the first-year coach of Rollins. "We're a more experienced team in terms of player years than UCF, but we're just as up and down as they are."

"That's more the game than a particular team. It doesn't bother us."

In the first game of the best-of-five match, Rollins came back to tie the score 11-11 on a UCF ball-handling error, then went on a 4-1 run to take the game.

The final run of points was an indication of how the match would go as Kathy Fields, Faecia Douglas, Janet Wozniak and Pam Hopkins all contributed kills for points or assists as setter Anne Bolling passed out the assists.

Wozniak's outstanding play carried over from efforts in the University of Missouri-St. Louis tournament last weekend, where she was named to the all-tournament team.

"She just came on strong," said Patterson. "When we played UCF the first time this season, she had a good match. There's something about playing against UCF that makes her come on strong. I don't know what it is, but I like it."

Game No. 2 was much like the first, a tight match that saw the Lady Knights show what they're capable of, going on an 11-0 run to turn a 7-3 deficit into a 14-7 lead.

The run was all the more impressive when you consider that the points came on the serve

Cincy's Sabo NL's top rookie

NEW YORK — Cincinnati Reds third baseman Chris Sabo Tuesday won the Jackie Robinson National League Rookie of the Year Award, the Baseball Writers Association of America announced.

Sabo, who batted .271 in 137 games, becomes the sixth Reds player to be so honored and the first since 1976, when pitcher Pat Zachry tied with Butch Metzger of San Diego.

In 538 at-bats, Sabo had 146 hits, including 40 doubles (third in the league), two triples, 11 homers and 44 RBI with 74 runs scored.

The 26-year-old Detroit native, drafted in 1983, was an All-America at Michigan his junior year, helping the Wolverines to third place in the College World Series. He turned later that year with Cedar Rapids of the Class A Midwest League, where he was MVP.

Sabo spent the next two seasons at Vermont in the Double-A Eastern League, leading all third basemen in fielding. In 1986 at Denver of the Triple-A American Association, Sabo again led his position in fielding with a .969 percentage. He spent 1987 at Nashville, batting .292 and was the team's MVP.

Lyman's Kevin Padgett (left) and Seminole's Dalvin Davis were the top two sophomores in last week's Seminole Athletic Conference championships. Padgett finished sixth and Davis came in seventh. UCF women in NCAA tourney

By DAVID CORCORAN
 Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida women's soccer team earned a bid to the NCAA Division I Tournament and will play host to the University of Virginia in an opening-round match this Sunday at 2 p.m. at UCF's St. Claire Field.

UCF's chances of making the 12-team field looked dim after the Lady Knights (9-2-2) were upset by Wisconsin, 2-1, in overtime Sunday in the finals of the UCF Halloween Classic. It left Coach Bill Barker concerned about his team being left out as in 1986, when UCF finished 15-3-1 and was ranked ninth in the final regular season poll.

In fact on Sunday night, Barker was not sure of his team's chances of getting a berth in the postseason playoffs. "I have no idea if the Lady Knights will get a bid to the playoffs," Barker said.

But on Monday afternoon, the players and Barker got a call from the playoff committee at 2 p.m. that the Lady Knights made it.

"I have been told by several coaches in other regions that we had done all we needed to do to get

Brantley can't overlook district foes

By GENE PETER
Herald sports editor

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots, 27-2 overall, are 10-0 against competition in District 4A-9 this season. Brantley may have state potential again, but certainly can not overlook what the district has to offer.

There are a few teams who would like nothing better than to spoil the Lady Patriots' season. The first that comes to mind is Lake Mary's Lady Rams. Lake Mary has already taken Brantley to three games this year and if the Rams can play consistently for an entire match, they have a shot to beat anybody.

Other teams who hope to put it all together this week are Lyman, Lake Howell, Spruce Creek, Mainland and DeLand. The 4A-9 District Tournament opens tonight with three matches at Lake Brantley High.

Lyman and Lake Howell play the opener tonight at 4:30 followed by Spruce Creek vs. Mainland at 5:45 and Lake Mary vs. DeLand at 7. Lake Brantley, the top seed, gets the first-round bye. Semifinals will be Thursday at 4:30 and 5:45 with finals Thursday night at 7:30.

"The key thing for our kids is they have to play every point like it's the last point," Lake Brantley coach Wolfgang Halbig said. "They have to do whatever it takes on every point. If the kids do that, we'll be in good shape."

The way the tournament shapes up on opening day, the Lyman-Lake Howell match could be the most interesting. Neither team has overwhelming power but both are scrappy on defense and have good servers.

Lyman is led up front by Julia Callarman while Emily Roenfeld has come up with a number of good service strings this season. Lake Howell has had its ups and downs this season with almost an entirely new team. Leading the way are Debbie McDonough, Heather Brann and Leslie Barton.

The other two games today could be runaways as Spruce Creek faces the weak sister of the district, Mainland, and Lake Mary goes up against a DeLand team that was winner in the Semis of the Florida Conference.

Spruce Creek got the number two seed by virtue of its 3-1 record against Class 4A opponents. The Lady Hawks have not been tested against a good 4A team, though, playing only in Volusia County.

Lake Mary figures to be the main competition for Lake Brantley. The Lady Rams have one of the top power players in the district in Tammy Scott while Terri Peters is a solid all-around performer and Fara Mirza and Nina Lovstrand provide strength on the front row. Freshman Tara Calvin has made a big impact in her first season with the Lady Rams.

"I think Lake Mary is the team to look out for," Halbig said. "If they get fired up, they can do very well in this tournament."

Lake Brantley also can do very well if it gets fired up and plays the way it is capable of. The Lady Patriots have a team that returns seven players from last year's state runner-up team in seniors Dawn Gebhart, Marianne Rodriguez, Barb Billmyer, Pam Wittig, Dana Bush and Gretchen Mull and junior Jeanne Seidel.

"We have to continue to attack," Halbig said. "We can't wait for the other team to fall apart. I think these kids are capable of taking charge. They need to set goals for themselves and go out and do it."

The winner of District 4A-9 will take on the 4A-10 (Orange County) winner on Tuesday at the 4A-10 winner's home gym.

Oviedo opens with rout of St. Cloud

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

KISSIMMEE — Oviedo High School opened defense of its title by whipping St. Cloud, 15-2, 15-2, in the opening round of the District 3A-6 Tournament Tuesday night before 51 fans at Gateway High School.

The Lady Lions improved to 19-2 overall this season and will play Jones, a 5-15, 15-13, 15-13 winner over Gateway, today at 6 p.m. St. Cloud finished its season at 5-14.

"This was a good match for us to open with," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "We were a little flat and didn't play very well in the first game but Suzanne (Hughes) started hitting well in the second game and gave us a little boost."

The Lady Bulldogs scored the first two points of the match on the service of Michelle White. Hughes, though, put down her first of eight kills to give Oviedo a sideout.

Shannon Wilcoxson put the Lady Lions on the scoreboard with a single point before Heidi Steiner put her team in the lead for good with two service points aided by a Hughes kill.

Kerstin Colon upped the lead to 5-2 before Anna Hollis, who served well all night for Oviedo, reeled off six consecutive points to increase the lead to 11-2, including two aces and two other serves that were not returned.

Wilcoxson added two more points to give the Lady Lions a more than comfortable, 13-2, lead with Carlson being able to adjust her offenses and try out a new combination.

Betsy Hughes upped the lead to 14-3 with a single service point powered by a Colon kill. Suzanne Hughes completed the game with a service point as Hollis put down a dink to register the final score and give Oviedo a one game advantage in the match.

The Lady Lions picked up the tempo in the second game and continued to dominate their weaker opponent. Oviedo was never tested in the match and played well enough to keep St. Cloud from getting into the game mentally.

"It took us a while to get started but things got better in the second game," Carlson said. "Our service was poor tonight but that will improve as the tournament goes on."

St. Cloud opened the scoring in the second game when White put down a serve with the aid of a Lisa Emmons kill to give her team a 1-0 advantage. Dawn Battaglioli gave the Lady Bulldogs a two point lead when she put down an ace to up the lead to 2-0.

Anna Hollis and S. Wilcoxson

Oviedo, though, for the second straight game, came back to score 15 consecutive points to end the match. The Lady Lions received a sideout when Suzanne Hughes hammered an errant pass for a kill. That sent Betsy Hughes to the service line where she tied the game up with two consecutive serves.

After trading sideouts, Suzanne Hughes put Oviedo up for good with three straight points with Hollis and Wilcoxson each contributing a kill in the rally.

Michelle Wynn upped the lead to 10-2 with a single point before the teams traded sideouts. Hollis then came on and served the game out and put Oviedo one win away from its fourth consecutive 20-win season.

"We need to keep hitting well and pick up our serving," Carlson said.

Deltona bows out in semifinals

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

DELTONA High school advanced to the semifinals of the District 3A-4 tournament before being ousted by top seeded St. Augustine, 5-15, 15-5, 15-11, in prep volleyball action Tuesday at Middleburg High School.

Deltona, who won its opening match against Palatka, 15-5, 15-3, finished its opening season at 9-10. St. Augustine went on to face Daytona Seabreeze in the finals.

"We played real well in the first match and didn't have any trouble," Deltona coach Jan Stevens said. "We were serving and hitting well and pretty much controlled the entire match."

Deltona was led by strong team play in its first match with Jennifer Dekoski coming up with a strong serving effort to pace the attack. The Lady Wolves were also led by the net play of Sandy Bradley, Joy Clover, Tanya Gwynn, Patty Berry and Julie Chapman. Stephanie Beaudouin added a strong service performance in the second game against Palatka to aid in the opening match victory.

Deltona came out flat in the second match and it cost dearly as St. Augustine went on to win the third game to decide the match. The Lady Wolves made unforced errors in the opening game before coming back to get into the match and make things rough on the top seeded team.

"We made a bunch of mental mistakes in the first game against St. Augustine," Stevens said. "It wasn't what they (St. Augustine) were doing to us. It was what we were doing to ourselves. We didn't play well at all and got behind early."

The Lady Wolves, though, refused to go quietly and came back to dominate their opponent in the second game. Deltona displayed what kind of volleyball it can play.

"We got fired up in the second game and we really got after them," Stevens said. "We served well in the match and played well at the net, our hitting was on."

It was the dinking of St. Augustine, though, that caught the Lady Wolves off balance and provided the final margin of victory. St. Augustine, who had a much taller team than Deltona, constantly dinked instead of spiking to keep its opponent off balance.

"I think Palatka had a better offensive attack overall," Stevens said. "We just couldn't adjust to the dinking of St. Augustine, they consistently dinked the ball over all night."

Stevens was pleased with her team's effort in their first year of competition and was pleased with their performance in the district tournament.

"I knew coming in not to have high expectations," Stevens said. "We were very inexperienced coming in and didn't have a very big team. I saw a lot of improvement this season and that's what it's all about. We had a shot to reach the finals of the district tournament, we have nothing to be ashamed of."

1A-8 SET TO BEGIN
The District 1A-8 Tournament opens today with one game and continues with four matches on Thursday. All games will be played at Orangewood Christian in Maitland.

In today's preliminary game (3 p.m.), Loch Low Prep takes on Wymore Tech with the winner to face top-seeded Montverde Academy Thursday night at 6:45. Also on Thursday, No. 4 seed Trinity Prep faces host Orangewood Christian (3 p.m.); Masters Academy battles No. 3 seed Lake Highland (4:15) and Mount Dora Bible goes up against No. 2 seed Orlando Luther (5:30 p.m.).

Semifinals (4 and 5:30) and finals (6:45) will be played Friday.

of six different Lady Knights, getting a couple points at time to crawl back into the game and scratch ahead into the lead.

Much like Rollins' win in the opening game, UCF gave an impressive display of diversity, picking up kills from freshmen Linda Santiago, Chris Talbert and Shannon Pack, sophomore Jennifer Owen and senior Marena Potts. Owen and senior Kelly McFarlane also provided some emotional lifts, combining for several key blocks of Rollins' kill attempts during the run while freshman setter Jill Knutson, an Oviedo High graduate, guided the attack.

But when the Lady Knights got to game point, they went into a stall. As the Lady Tara scored a few points to close to 14-10, UCF squandered no less than seven possible game points. The 15th point finally came when Fields' kill attempt was wide.

With Maitland's Jolee Johnson serving, the Lady Tara forged a 4-0 lead, three coming on UCF errors. The Lady Knights got a point back when Rollins committed an error, but they gave the serve back when a kill attempt by Santiago went long.

Rollins increased the lead to 9-1 and, after a three-point mini-surge by UCF, finished the win with a six-point service run by Johnson. Nicole Wells contributed three of the points with a dink, a block and a kill.

The fourth and, as it turned out, final game, was only a shade better. Rollins went out to a 7-1 lead, only to have UCF close the gap to 7-6. But from then on, it was all Rollins as the Lady Tara finished with an 8-1 streak. "It only went four games, which was a good sign," said Patterson.

playing next to," Corso said. "We had a little bit of the jitters coming out tonight, but if we can come out here and win the way we did after measing up, then I have to be pleased."

Finally getting on track, the Lady Seminoles took command for good with the serving of senior setter Bobbie Osborne. Osborne also had 14 assists on the night with her exceptional setting which lead to spike after spike from Long and Hillsman.

With the lead 11-4, Krickett Snow served three straight points before Edgewater's Davina McNeil served two service winners to pull the Lady Eagles to within eight. However, on the next Seminole sideout, Yolanda Baker slapped a wicked serve across the net and the game was history.

"I told my girls before the match that we have to play hard to win," Corso said. "We need to stay in our rhythm the entire tournament. We need to know that in district play anybody can beat anybody. It doesn't matter how many times you beat them in the regular season, they can still come back and get you in the tournament."

The Lady Seminoles must have had that thought on their minds in the second game as they turned the intensity knob up a level with Long and Hillsman doing much of the damage.

Hillsman, who put down eight kills of her own, took control at the beginning of the second game with a kill, a block, and a dink as the Lady Seminoles built a 12-5 lead. The Lady Eagles pulled to within 13-8, but Long would not let them get any closer.

With the Lady Eagles serving, Long signed her autograph on a kill to give the ball back to the Lady Noles, and junior Heather Brown and Baker served the last two points, both of which were ended by Long.

in," Barker said. "But after 1986 that was my worry. I could see them making an unnatural decision."

Barker said this year is special because it is the final year for All-American forward Michelle Akers, who holds every UCF scoring record and was named player of the year by Soccer America. She leads the team with 10 goals and four assists.

"She's been the key for our success for us for the past four years," Barker said. "You want to see a player of her caliber go out as high as possible."

UCF has only two other seniors, defender Ellie Golembiewski and midfielder-forward Danielle Thomas.

"It's going to be great experience for a pretty young crew,"

Barker said. "It's like a new season. We start over right now."

UCF's strength, as in the past several years is its defense. Sophomore goalkeeper Karen Rietter has allowed just eight goals, and UCF has held opponents scoreless nine times. The two goals allowed Sunday against Wisconsin were the first UCF has given up at home this season.

Barker said the winner of the UCF-Virginia match is scheduled to play at top-ranked North Carolina (15-0-3) the following week.

Florida to benefit from Kentucky woes

United Press International

The Florida Gators needed a chance at Kentucky and a weak league to gain a first, a favored status in the Southeastern Conference.

The Gators, who have tried unsuccessfully for 55 years to win the SEC, appear the league's class, especially if temperamental 7-foot-2 Dwayne Schintzius plays consistently.

But the real key within the league is the rash of problems at Kentucky.

Last season, the Wildcats won the SEC regular season and tournament, finishing 27-6. But promises for more of the same became bleak when sophomore star Rex Chapman turned pro, top prospect Shawn Kemp and Sean Woods showed up academically ineligible, and Eric Manuel, the lone remaining returning starter, had his school entrance test challenged, leaving it uncertain if he will play this season.

That's only part of Kentucky's woes. A series of NCAA charges, including one alleging assistant Dwayne Casey sent incoming freshman Chris Mills $1,000, could land the Wildcats on probation by season's end.

The SEC didn't figure to be all that strong, even if Kentucky hadn't been so troubled, and that combination appears to put Florida, which won 23 games last season, in command.

"We have talent, I'm not doubting that," Florida Coach Norm Sloan said. "But we'll be a very young club. Our strength should be up front (with returning starters Schintzius and 6-7 sophomore Livingston Chatman). I'm looking for this team to mature as the season goes and hopefully by tournament time it will be a factor."

Auburn tied Florida for second place in last season's SEC race. But the Tigers must replace 6-8 Chris Morris and 6-7 Jeff Moore, the guts of last year's team.

"When you look at what our four seniors (from last season) accomplished, it's truly amazing," Auburn Coach Fony Smith said. "They made four trips to the NCAA Tournament. With those losses, we've got a major rebuilding job on our hands."

With Kentucky and Auburn downgraded, Florida's main challenge should be Tennessee. The Volunteers return four starters, including 6-7 senior Dyrone Nix, the SEC's leading scorer last season at 22.3 points per game.

"This is the most experienced team, in terms of numbers, we've had returning in my 11 years at Tennessee," Vol Coach Don DeVoe said. "I have always felt it is better to go into battle with an experienced basketball team. If these seniors want to finish their careers by getting into the NCAA Tournament, I think they have a chance of doing so."

Georgia returns three starters from a 20-win team, but not its top two performers: Willie Anderson and Toney Mack. At Louisiana State, Coach Dale Brown signed a lot of talent, but five of his recruits are academically ineligible and, with three starters running out of eligibility and junior guard Feas Irvin switching schools, the Tigers have only eight scholarship players eligible.

The SEC sleeper is Vanderbilt, which returns four starters from last year's 20-win squad. But missing is 7-0 Will Perdue, the SEC player of the year as a senior. The Commodores' chances hinge heavily on how 6-11 sophomore Fred Benjamin or 6-10 junior-college transfer Alberto Ballestra of Bologna, Italy, fill Perdue's 21-AAAAAAA shoes.

As for the other three teams in the 10-school SEC: Mississippi should be better with Delta State transfer Gerald Glass; Alabama is coming off its first losing season (14-16) in 17 years; and Mississippi State, which has had only one winning season (1983) in the past nine years, is counting on five returning starters, three of them sophomores.

In the smaller Southern Conference, Tennessee-Chattanooga and Marshall are the front-runners, as usual. But Marshall, which was 14-2 in the conference and 24-8 overall, isn't likely to be as strong with the departure of its top three scorers, including league MVP Skip Henderson.

That should enable Chattanooga, which won the Southern Conference tournament and 21 games overall despite an 8-8 regular-season league record, to win the conference although it lost muscular center Lance Fulse.

However, don't discount East Tennessee State, which appears to have the league's best big man in 6-11 Greg Dennis, last year's Southern Conference freshman of the year.

In the even smaller Big South Conference, Baptist College of Charleston, S.C., 12-2 in league play last year, and Campbell, of Buies Creek, N.C., 10-4, are likely to lead the league again. Coastal Carolina, of Conway, S.C., is the Big South darkhorse.

NEW COLLEGE RULES

One of basketball's foremost problems appears when a college team plays a touring foreign squad in an NBA arena.

On the court, there might be three different lines for 3-point shots and a maze of blocks representing the different three-second lanes used in the NCAA, NBA and international competition.

Luckily, not all three shot clocks would go simultaneously in the exhibition, though they could institute a special rule granting 3 points for a basket within the NBA's 24-second shot limit, 2 points for a basket in the Olympic 30-second limit and 1 for a score in the 45 seconds college ball allows.

Though the situation isn't quite that confused, it would be practical if the rules were the same no matter the skill or language. Many believe that day is coming, albeit slowly.

The ultimate winner in the rules debate, surprisingly, will be the international style: a 30-second shot clock, a 3-pointer a step longer than in college but two feet closer than the NBA's and a three-second lane that goes from 12 feet wide at the free-throw line to 18 feet under the basket.

"I feel as strongly as ever that our highest priority has to be a wider lane," said Sun Belt Commissioner Vic Bubas, who has been involved in basketball for 40 years.

"I'm very concerned about the muggings that go on in the lane. It's not the officials' fault. The fellows playing the game are just too big, too mobile and too good."

The college lane is 12 feet wide and the NBA 16 feet. The international trapezoid lane takes the best of both with its funnel-like shape.

"It forces you to play behind on defense and that opens up the floor and makes for a more slashing game," Bubas said.

Spotlight falls on underrated coaches

United Press International

Jeff Mullins was a 42-year-old successful businessman when he decided to gamble his future. He sold his car dealership and became a rookie college basketball coach in 1985.

Mullins didn't pick a can't-miss school either. He chose North Carolina-Charlotte, which had lost 62 of its previous 64 games and was 5-23 the season before.

"There weren't four other coaching jobs I would have considered," Mullins said. "I wouldn't leave North Carolina. I wasn't going to a small town, or (one) that wasn't near a major airport, and I wasn't going to a program I couldn't sell."

UNCC officials found Mullins so attractive they also made him athletic director. The combination has turned the 48ers — named for the highway that goes by campus — into one of college basketball's better teams. UNCC won 22 games last season and is a Top-20 prospect this year.

Mullins has become one of the sport's better coaches, albeit not one of its best known. The name is recognized. Mullins was a two-time All-American at Duke, played on the 1964 Olympic team and lasted 10 solid NBA seasons. But few outside his profession have recognized Mullins' work the last three years.

In that respect, Mullins falls into a large and diverse group. Call them underrated, underpublicized, maybe underappreciated. They are coaches whose work is rarely seen on TV, and their teams aren't in the high-profile leagues.

A few, such as Don Haskins of Texas El-Paso, have been around a long time. This will be the 28th season for Haskins, who has 516 wins, including the 1966 national championship. That's more than twice as many victories and one more national title than Duke's Mike Krzyzewski, Michigan's Bill Frieder, Georgia Tech's Bobby Cremins and Ohio State's Gary Williams, just to name four who regularly appear on best-coaches lists.

Year after year, no coach receives more from his personnel than Haskins.

Mass production makes perfect

She has more kids to feed than Old Mother Hubbard

By JANE HALE
Herald correspondent

Think it's a hassle to pack your child's school lunch so that you keep him both content and nutritionally fit? Imagine fixing lunch every weekday for more than 500 children and adults, and at the same time keeping everyone happy with what they sink their teeth into, as our Cook of the Week does.

Bobbie Jean Reeves (better known as B.J.) was born in Albertville on northern Alabama's Sand Mountain, but moved to Sanford when she was just a year old.

"I was raised in Sanford so I really consider it my birthplace because this is where all my friends are and this is where my family is," Reeves said. She attended Sanford schools and graduated from Seminole High School.

Her mother worked for many years as a bailiff for the Seminole County's Court System, but has since retired to lead a life of luxury.

"My dad is well-known in Seminole County," Reeves said. Her father, Slin Galloway, retired from the Seminole County Sheriff's Department where he worked for many years.

Reeves also has a brother older than she, who lives in Rockledge.

"My mother taught me how to cook," Reeves said. "But my aunts and both my grandmothers also taught me how to cook."

"Every summer, my brother and I would go to Alabama as soon as school was out and stay until the day before school started to come home from our vacation," Reeves said. While there, she said she learned how to cook many of her aunts' and her grandmothers' favorite Southern dishes. "My grandparents lived on a farm where there was always plenty of fresh vegetables and fresh meats," she said.

"My mother is an excellent cook and I remember growing up thinking that I would like to cook just the way that she does," Reeves said. Her father also is an excellent cook, she said. He cooks as often as possible and usually cooks for the Elks Club's annual barbecue, for which he is famous all around the Sanford area.

"Mom let me start cooking when I was 9 years old, and I have been cooking ever since," Reeves said. "When in Alabama, I learned to fix lots of fresh vegetables the way the people of the South like them fixed."

Reeves met her husband, R.L. (Bobby) in Lake Mary at a Saturday night community youth party. Bobby, a native of Lake Mary, was raised there, although his grandfather, E.E. Spjokom, was from Sweden and was one of the original settlers of Lake Mary. Bobby also attended local schools and graduated from Seminole High School.

The Reeveses were married in the First Baptist Church in Sanford and have been married for 36 years. Bobby is a conductor with the CSX Transportation System, better known as the Seaboard Coastline Railroad.

The Reeveses have one son, Lance is married and lives in Deltona with his wife, Sharon. They are the parents of a son and a daughter. Lance is a technician for a company called Jammal and Associates.

Reeves works as a Food Service Manager at Woodlands Elementary School in Longwood. There she tries to fix what the children like, yet serves a well balanced meal. "It is not easy planning menus for that many children every day, but it is something that I really enjoy doing," she said.

Reeves also teaches a ladies Sunday School class at the Central Baptist Church in Sanford.

She is a member of the Adult Choir and the Ladies Trio at the church.

Cooking and gardening are among Reeves' hobbies. She and her husband have a lovely rose garden along with an immaculate, beautiful yard. As a cookbook collector, Reeves has as one of her prized possessions a cookbook that belonged to her grandmother. "The book must be at least 50 years old and the pages are a little yellow and brittle, but it belonged to Grandmother and it is in her handwriting. I would not take anything for it," Reeves said.

"I enjoy cooking, and I like reading the cookbooks to see what different dishes I possibly can come up with," she said. "I like trying out new recipes. Sometimes I take several and add them together just to see what they turn out to be and how they taste. Sometimes they taste good, then other times not so good, but we eat them just the same!"

Reeves' philosophy on life is "Do not put off until tomorrow what you can do today," because you never know what tomorrow might bring and you should always be prepared.

Here are a few of Reeves' family recipes:

RANGER COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
2 eggs
2 cups plus 2 tablespoons plain flour
1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup of oats
1/2 cup coconut
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped nuts
1 tablespoon vanilla

Cream shortening and sugars. Add eggs. Mix well, and add dry ingredients. Coconut, raisins and nuts may be varied according to taste. Form heaping teaspoonful into ball shapes and place on cookie sheet. Do not flatten. Bake approximately 15 minutes on 325°F.

PARTY CONOCOPIAS

Cut thin-sliced sandwich bread diagonally with round cookie cutter. Flatten with rolling pin. Brush both sides of bread with mayonnaise. Roll to form conocoopias and fasten them with toothpicks. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 350°F for 12-15 minutes until lightly brown. Remove toothpicks and fill with favorite sandwich filling. Use various garnishes. This makes an attractive party tray.

PIE CRUST

2 cups plain flour
1 cup shortening
1 egg
2 tablespoons vinegar
Ice water
Mix flour and shortening well. Mix in beaten egg and vinegar. Add enough ice water to make a dough firm enough to roll. Makes two crusts.

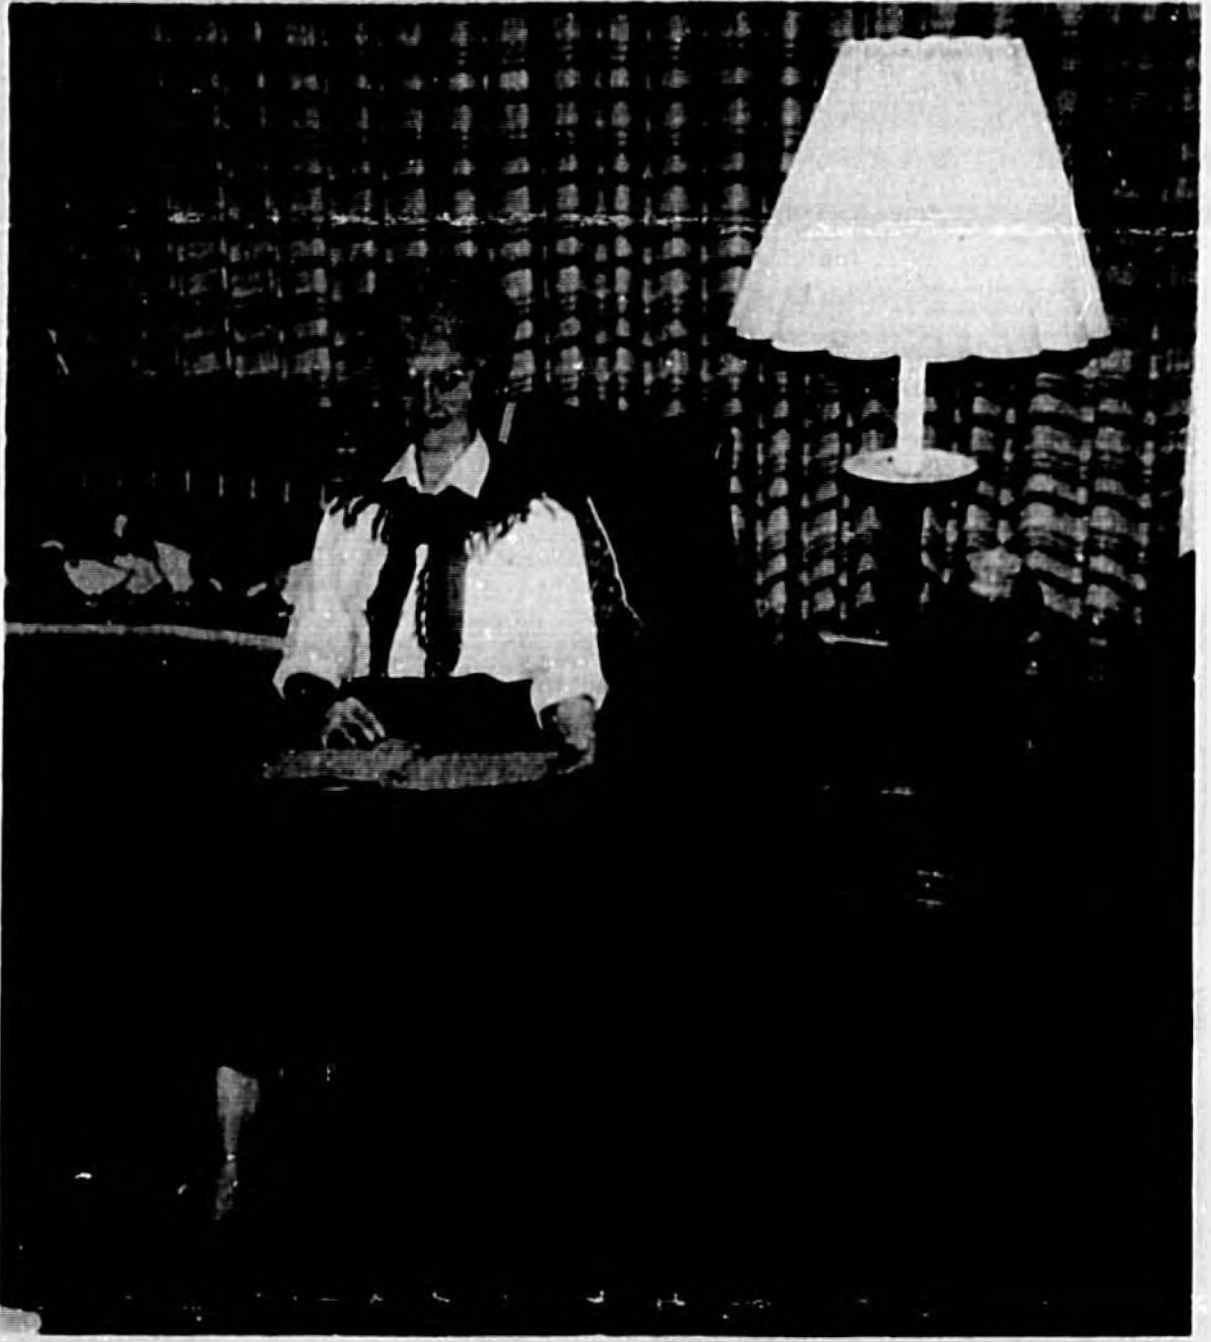

BOUR CREAM LEMON PIE

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup lemon juice
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 cup milk

Cook in double boiler until thick. Fold in 1 cup sour cream and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into baked pie crust and refrigerate. Garnish with whipped cream.

NO-BAKE PUMPKIN PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 can Eagle Brand Condensed Milk
1 can (16 ounces) pumpkin
In medium saucepan, mix gelatin, spices and salt. Blend in eggs beaten with milk. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved, about 10 minutes. Blend in pumpkin. Turn into baked pie crust. Chill until firm. Garnish with whipped topping.

ENGLISH CHERRY CAKE

1/2 pound candied cherries
1 pound white raisins
1/2 pound candied pineapple
1/2 pound butter or margarine
1 cup chopped nuts
6 eggs
3 cups plain flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
1 teaspoon lemon flavoring

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and dry ingredients, milk and flavoring. Sift 1 cup flour over fruit and nuts, which make a fourth cup of flour. Mix together. Increase the amount of candied fruit. Pour into tube pan that has been greased and lined with brown paper. Bake about 2 hours on about 300°F.

ORANGE-DATE CAKE

2 sticks butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
1 1/2 cups buttermilk
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons orange peel, grated
1 cup pecans, chopped
1 pound chopped dates
4 cups flour

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time. Dissolve soda in buttermilk; add alternately with flour; add fruit, orange peel and nuts. Turn into greased and floured tube pan. Bake at 325°F for about 1 1/2 hours.

Orange sauce for Orange-Date Cake:

It is important to make this sauce before mixing cake so it may stand and keep it stirred often to dissolve sugar.

Mix:
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons orange peel

Do not cook these ingredients. While cake is hot, pour sauce over it in baking pan. Let cake cool overnight in the pan. By this time the sauce will be absorbed.

GLAZED NUTS

1/4 cup butter
1 1/2 cups mixed nuts
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg white
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/4 cup plain flour

Melt butter in large skillet over low heat. Add nuts, sprinkle with salt. Toast nuts stirring frequently for about 3-5 minutes. Beat egg whites until stiff; stir in sugar and flour. Add mixture to nuts quickly, coating all nuts. Continue cooking over low heat. Stir until mixture is thick and dry, about 5-7 minutes. Spread out on cookie sheet. Cool, then break apart.

Use the following suggestions to turn leftovers into new, tasty dishes that your family will enjoy and you will be saving food and money at the same time.

Leftover ham teamed with pasta and vegetables is sure to be a pleaser.

RAMITALIENNE

8 ounce linguine noodles
1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas and carrots
1/4 cup margarine
1 can mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 cups cubed cooked ham
1 1/4 cups milk
1 tablespoon flour
2 egg yolks, beaten
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

M/W on 100 percent power, the peas and carrots in package for 4-5 minutes or until tender. Drain and set aside. Drain noodles and place in 3-quart casserole dish. Mix in to coat noodles. Add peas and carrots, mushrooms and ham.

Combine milk and flour in 2-cup glass measure, mix until smooth. M/W on 100 percent power, uncovered, for 3-4 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once or twice. Stir small amounts of hot mixture into egg yolks. Return mixture to 2-cup measure, mix well. Stir in Parmesan cheese. Pour over noodles; toss lightly. Cover with casserole lid. M/W on 100 percent power for 8-10 minutes or until hot, stirring once.

Wild rice transforms leftover turkey into a special casserole. Put this recipe aside to use after Thanksgiving.

TURKEY-WILD RICE CASSEROLE

1 small onion, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup margarine
1 can (14 ounces) chicken broth
1/2 cup uncooked wild rice
1/2 cup water
2 cups cubed, cooked turkey
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/4 cup sliced almonds
Combine onion, celery and margarine in 2-quart casserole dish. M/W on 100 percent power for 4-5 minutes or until almost tender. Mix in chicken broth, wild rice and water. Cover with casserole lid. M/W on 100 percent power for 5-6 minutes or until boiling. Then microwave on 30 percent power (low) for 30 minutes. Stir in turkey, white rice and soup. Cover. M/W on 100 percent power for 5-6 minutes or until boiling. Then microwave on 30 percent power for 15 minutes or until rice is almost tender, stirring once. Sprinkle almonds on top. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Leftover or canned vegetables can be used in this delicious casserole. It makes a large casserole, good for pot-luck suppers.

SHOE-PEG CORN CASSEROLE

1/2 cup margarine
1 1/2 cups (1 stick) round butter-flavored crackers, crushed
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese

1 can (15 ounces) shoe-peg corn, drained (whole kernel corn can also be used)

1 can (15 ounces) french-style green beans, drained

1 can (10 1/2 ounces) cream of celery soup

1 cup sour cream

Microwave margarine on 100 percent power in 2-cup glass measure for 45-60 seconds, or until melted. Mix in crushed crackers until coated, set aside.

Combine remaining ingredients in 3-quart casserole dish. Cover. M/W on 100 percent power for 5 minutes; stir. Sprinkle with cracker crumb mixture. Cover. M/W on 100 percent power 9-10 minutes, or until mixture is hot. Let stand for 3 minutes before serving.

The best way to use leftover bread and rolls is in an old-fashioned bread pudding. Serve it with a lemon or brandy sauce.

CINNAMON BREAD PUDDING WITH BRANDY SAUCE

Padding:
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
6 slices bread, cubed (about 5 cups)
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 1/2 cups milk

4 eggs
Sauce:
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon brandy or rum

M/W in 1-quart casserole dish for 30-45 seconds. Add bread, sugar, and cinnamon. Toss to mix. Combine milk and eggs; beat until smooth. Pour over bread mixture. M/W on 50 percent power for 13-15 minutes or until center is almost set. Sprinkle with additional cinnamon, if desired. Serve warm or chilled with sauce.

For sauce, microwave butter in 1-cup glass measure for 30-45 seconds. Add sugar; stir well. M/W for 1-1 1/2 minutes or until sugar is dissolved, stirring once or twice. Add small amount butter mixture to beaten egg, beating fast so egg will not curdle. Add remaining butter mixture to egg and continue beating until smooth. Add brandy. Serve warm over pudding.

Refrigerate any leftovers. (Midge Mycoff is a certified home economist and coordinator of the Single Parent Displaced Homemakers Program at Seminole Community College. Phone: 323-1450, ext. 380.)

Corn bran may cut deep into cholesterol

CHICAGO — Adding corn bran to one's diet may lower blood cholesterol levels by as much as 20 percent, according to research published in the Journal of The American Dietetic Association.

The research, conducted at Georgetown University School of Medicine, indicates that when subjects supplemented their daily diets with 18 grams of corn bran for the first six weeks and 36 grams for the second six weeks, cholesterol and triglycerides levels dropped. Also, fat as a percentage of calories tended to drop, according to the Journal.

When the fiber supplementation was stopped for 20 weeks, the subjects' cholesterol and triglycerides rose to pre-study levels.

Research shows adding other types of dietary fiber, such as oat bran, into a daily meal plan has been successful in lowering cholesterol levels. However, corn fiber has far fewer calories per gram than other cereal fibers.

Bakeless pie combines ap-pie-tizing ingredients

Treat your group to the sweet taste of victory with Peanut Butter Puddin' Pie. It's so easy to make that the kids can help—there's no baking, hardly any fuss and you can be certain of no leftovers! Make the pie the day before and cover with plastic wrap to retain freshness. Keep the pie chilled until serving time. The combination of peanut butter, chocolate and banana tastes great and travels well to any picnic site.

PEANUT BUTTER PUDDIN' PIE

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1 package (3 1/2 ounces) banana cream instant pudding and pie filling
- 3/4 cups cold milk, divided
- 1 cup creamy peanut butter, divided
- 2 8-inch or 9-inch graham cracker pie crusts
- 1 package (4 ounces) chocolate instant pudding and pie filling
- 2 tablespoons sugar

1/2 cup coarsely chopped or whole peanuts, divided
 • Combine gelatin and 1/2 cup cold water in small saucepan. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until dissolved.

Combine banana cream pie filling mix with 2 cups of the milk in a mixing bowl. Beat 30 seconds. Beat in half (1/4 cup) of dissolved gelatin, then add 1/2 cup of peanut butter. Beat 30 seconds longer. Equally divide and spread between 2 pie crusts in glass pie plates.

Combine chocolate pie filling mix with 1 1/2 cups milk in a clean bowl. Beat 30 seconds. Beat in the remaining dissolved gelatin, then add sugar and remaining 1/2 cup peanut butter. Beat 30 seconds longer. Divide and spread over first layer. Sprinkle top of each pie with 1/4 cup peanuts. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate at least 2 hours. Cut wedges to serve. Makes 2 pies, 8 servings each.

Cassoulet means warm seafood for cold days

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A hearty seafood cassoulet is a perfect dish for cold winter evenings. The cassoulet, traditionally prepared with a base of white beans and meats, is one of France's most famous provincial dishes. It originated in Languedoc, France, where it was baked slowly in an earthenware utensil known as a "cassole d'Isle"—thus its name.

A surimi-based product made from Pacific whitefish and fresh crab saves money. This cassoulet is high in protein, and low in fat, calories and cholesterol. Prepare ahead of time and reheat when ready to serve, adding more liquid if needed.

HARBOR CASSOULET

- 1 pound mild Italian sausage
 - 1 medium onion, chopped
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1 12-ounce package Sea Legs, crab salad style
 - 4 15-ounce cans cannellini (white kidney beans), drained
 - 1 28-ounce can peeled tomatoes, drained, chopped
 - 1 cup white wine or cider
 - 1/4 cup chopped parsley
 - 3 tablespoons fresh chopped thyme, or 2 teaspoons dry thyme
- In a large skillet, cook sausage. Drain on paper towel. Reserve 2 tablespoons fat. Chop sausage and set aside.

Saute onions and garlic in reserved fat for 3 minutes; add crab, and saute for 2 more minutes.

In a large saucepan, combine crab with cooked sausage and remaining ingredients. Cook, covered, on low heat for 1 hour. If mixture appears dry during cooking, add more wine or cider.

Serve immediately. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Ever thought of breakfast pie? This one's hot

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Try a different breakfast for a lazy Saturday or Sunday. A green-chili cheese pie is easy to make and quite filling.

For families who prefer a three-alarm version, substitute hot chilies for the mild. Or make the mild cheese pie and serve hot salsa on the side.

GREEN-CHILI CHEESE PIE

- 4 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 4-ounce can chopped mild green chilies, drained
- 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- 1/4 teaspoon red pepper sauce
- 1 butter-flavored ready-crust pie crust

In a medium bowl, combine all ingredients except pie crust. Mix well. Pour into crust. Bake at 350°F. for 45 minutes.

Serve warm or at room temperature. (Note: Use hot chilies, if desired.) This kitchen-tested recipe makes 1 9-inch pie.

Emigration of Soviet Jews rises

United Press International

GENEVA — Emigration of Soviet Jews rose sharply again in October to the highest monthly total since early 1980, the Intergovernmental Commission for Migration reported today.

The agency said 2,473 Soviet Jews arrived at the ICM reception center in Vienna, bringing the total for the first 10 months of this year to 14,288.

The October figure was the highest since March 1980, when 3,050 arrivals were recorded, the agency said. "Gorbachev is now clearly honoring his promise to make Jewish emigration easier," one official said.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev pledged to reduce restrictions on Jewish emigration in late 1986 and the results were immediate, with departures rising from month to month.

Only 943 Soviet Jews were allowed to depart in all of 1986 but the figure jumped to 8,011 in 1987. At the current rate, 1988's total will easily be double that figure.

So far in 1988, emigration totals have risen from month to month, starting with 658 in January and then progressing to 723 in February, 944 in March, 1,077 in April, 1,145 in

May, 1,470 in June, 1,639 in July, 1,864 in August, 2,295 in September and 2,463 in October.

Estimates of the number of Jews wanting to leave the Soviet Union range anywhere from 100,000 to 1 million.

Officials at the ICM as well as several Jewish assistance agencies believe the true figure is around 400,000 or 500,000.

Emigrants first report to the ICM reception center in Vienna, after which some travel directly to Israel while others are transferred briefly to another center in Rome. There they are processed for final settlement in other countries of choice, usually the United States.

The ICM was established after World War II to help refugees and displaced persons in war-torn Europe.

In 1971, it began helping the increasing numbers of Soviet Jews arriving in the West.

That year there were 12,681 arrivals, and annual totals rose steadily to reach a record 51,330 in 1979.

The Kremlin then reversed policy and introduced tight restrictions on Jewish emigration.

Close call for duke and duchess

United Press International

PERTH, Australia — The duke and duchess of York narrowly escaped injury Wednesday when a steel cable snapped above their heads as they waved goodbye to each other at Fremantle Harbor.

Britain's Prince Andrew, who was preparing to set sail from Australia with his crewmates on the HMS Edinburgh following a bi-centennial visit, was standing on the destroyer's lower deck and his wife, the former Sarah Ferguson, was standing on what crews from him when the mishap occurred.

A steel mooring cable suddenly snapped and lashed whip-like above the duchess's head, then struck the side of the destroyer a few feet from where the prince was standing, witnesses said.

A crowd of about 50 spectators gasped and the duke and duchess looked shocked, apparently realizing the danger they had been in.

Witnesses said the cable, which was attached to the Victoria Quay and the stern of the destroyer, snapped with a loud crack "like a gunshot."

Sailors ducked for cover as the cable snaked back toward the rear of the ship, barely missing Prince Andrew.

"It was pretty close," said a wharf worker.

Polish government, Solidarity heading on collision course

UPI analysis

WARSAW, Poland — Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski apparently has decided to fight Solidarity in the streets again rather than at the negotiating table.

That seems to be the thinking behind his decision, announced Monday, to close the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk where the outlawed trade union was born in 1980.

As a result, Poland is likely to be in for another round of serious labor unrest.

Rakowski, who was the point man for the Polish leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, when martial law was used to crush the union in 1981, has said he has one goal to turn around Poland's troubled economy, including the liquidation of inefficient enterprises.

Now he has made the shipyard, a burning symbol of workers' rights, the first — and so far only — target on his hit list.

Economically, a case could be made that the decision makes sense. Production at the shipyard has plummeted in the past decade from 24 ships in 1979 to only nine last year, and much of its equipment is obsolete.

But opponents of the government believe that politics, not economics, is the driving force behind the closing of the shipyard, even though Rakowski has insisted the move is not aimed at Solidarity.

Several other industries, including steel and metalworking, are worse off. The closing comes as planned talks between Solidarity and the government over the future role of the union might play in economic reform have been put off indefinitely.

The talks, which were to consider re-legalization of Solidarity, were promised in exchange for Walesa's agreement to end a 20-day strike in August.

But that was before Rakowski took over in September. Now he says the talks are secondary to getting the economy back on track.

Walesa said, "I'm not going to withdraw from the round table talks, but under this situation, the talks are pointless."

VOTING BOOTH

In use every shopping day — and we never forget it!

Freedom of choice is the very heart of the supermarket business. And it starts with your freedom to choose where you shop. So we work hard to make our stores the most inviting and most pleasant places to shop. And we price our items competitively. Some people have the idea that it costs them a few pennies more each week to enjoy the many happy differences at Publix. Not so! Comparison shoppers tell us that their total food purchases for equal quality averaged over a period of time cost no more at Publix. Yes, your freedom of choice is why we keep our standards high and our prices competitive at Publix. Thanks for your vote. Exercise your freedom of choice at the polls. We hope you'll take time to vote in Tuesday's election. Remember, voting is a right and a responsibility of every U.S. citizen. Protect it!

Welcome...

The 14th Annual Golden Age Games will officially open on Monday, November 7, 1988. Once again we look forward to your visit and hope each of you have an outstanding week. We want to especially welcome the softball teams as this is the first team sport offered in the Golden Age Games.

Best of luck to all those who are here to qualify for the United States National Senior Olympics which will be hosted by St. Louis in June, 1989.

Compete in good health and sportsmanship.

Horner, Arnett will be torch bearers

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Two of the spark plugs who helped get the first "Golden Age Olympics" off the ground 14 years ago will serve as the official torch bearers to kick off this year's games at opening ceremonies Monday.

Jack Horner, former executive secretary of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, which has co-sponsored the games since they started, and Vic Arnett, who shepherded the original idea for senior games to the reality of the first event, will be honored as torch bearers.

Arnett said the idea of holding an Olympic-type event for seniors first came up in the Commercial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in April of 1974. "I remembered reading about the pancake races in Liberal, Kan., and the frog jumping contest in Calaveras County, Calif.," Arnett said. "Those are both small towns that received national, and even international recognition for those events, and I thought, 'Why can't Sanford do something along that line?'"

As a result of discussions in the Commercial Committee, whose main interest was improving business in downtown Sanford, a steering committee was set up to plan a senior Olympics.

The group was at first interested in patterning the event after an Olympic-type event in Irvine, Calif. that they had read about. However, after contacting Irvine officials, they learned the type of event wasn't what they had in mind — the California event was open to anyone 25 years old or older.

The Sanford group realized it would be striking out on its own, creating an event that possibly had never been held anywhere.

Horner says a Senior Citizen Committee had been formed at the Chamber and its members became active in planning the event.

"One of our chief problems was financing, and how we would gather the manpower to run the events," Horner recalled. "So, we went to the civic clubs and asked for their help. Kiwanis was the biggest men's civic club and they agreed to sponsor the track and field events, which require the most manpower to run. The Red Cross agreed to sponsor all the aquatic events, and the local McDonald's restaurants helped out financially. Other service clubs agreed to sponsor other events, according to their membership and capability." A logo was designed by the Seminole County Schools audio visual department, and programs were printed.

Horner said the committee decided to charge $1 per entry to pay for the insurance. "We got the Hartford Insurance company to write a special policy for us, which we still have," he said. "It insures the participants only for the time they are participating and is the only policy like it, written especially for us."

The first event drew about 300 participants, almost all drawn from local residents. About 14 events were held, roughly half the number that make up this year's 14th annual games. Horner says some of the earlier events, such as wheelchair races, eventually were discontinued. There were no diving events, and swimming events were held in the Holiday Inn pool.

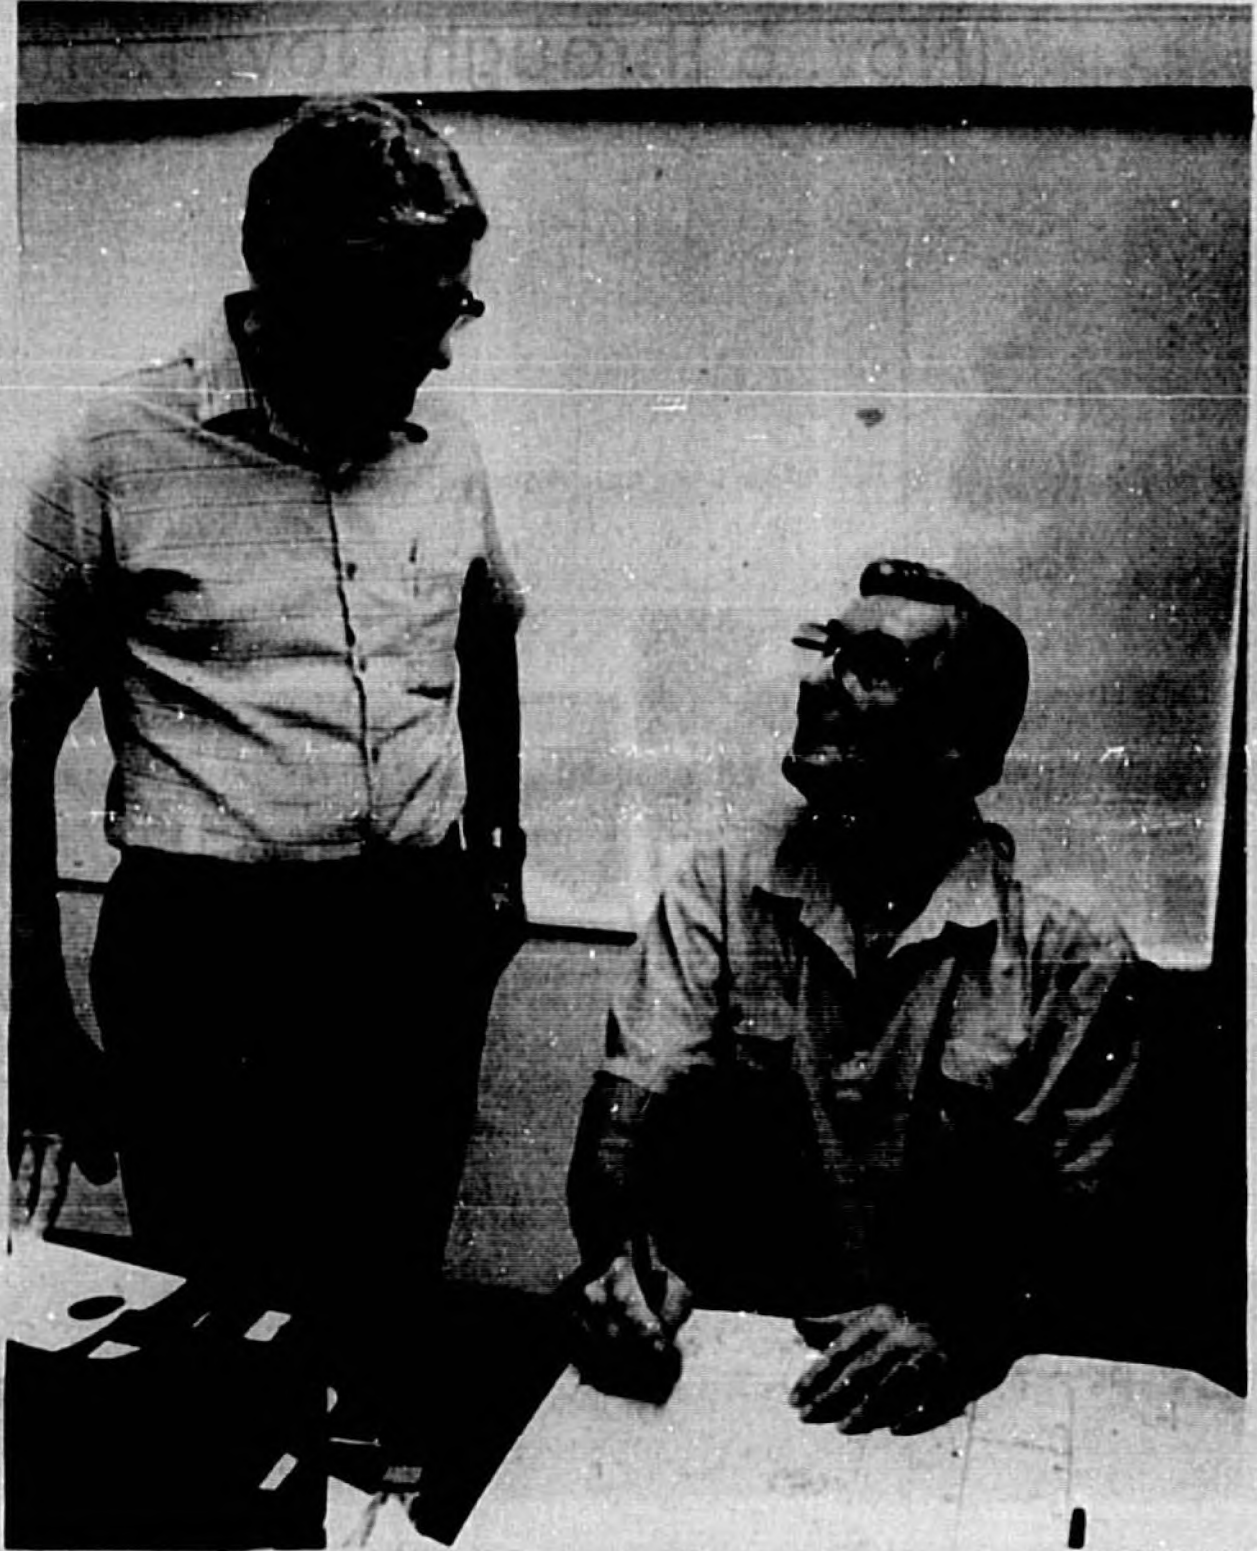

Contacting the Red Cross to take charge of aquatic events led, in a roundabout way, to the national publicity the organizers of the games wanted.

Gene Keltner, Central Florida director of the Red Cross, is on the aquatic subcommittee for the U.S. Olympic Committee. As such, he was acquainted with Clarence "Buster" Crabbe, 1932 Olympic gold medal winner who gained later fame playing Tarzan in the movies.

Keltner got Buster Crabbe to come to Sanford for the second Golden Age Olympics, and the third and fourth, and national publicity followed.

"We got all kinds of calls from radio stations and newspapers all over the country who had seen a little squib on the (news) wire service or something," Horner said.

The national publicity resulted in seniors from outside the immediate area registering for future events, and also resulted in the relationship with

General Foods, parent company of Post cereals. Post agreed to co-sponsor the event, with the Chamber. However, the company said it could not get permission from the U.S. Olympic Committee to use the word "Olympics" in the title. Therefore, the name was changed to "Golden Age Games."

Buster Crabbe was the first of many famous Olympians to be honorary chairmen of the games. Others were Bob Matthias, Jack Kelly, Seminole County's own Betty Robinson Schwartz and, this year, Dr. Sammy Lee.

The success of the Sanford games, and the publicity, also resulted in the event becoming a model for other senior games. The first to be established was in Illinois.

Arnett said Dr. Alfred Kamm of the University of Illinois was in Seminole County visiting his daughter when one of the first Games was held. He was impressed, and came back as a contestant the next year, then went home and organized the Illinois Senior Games.

The explosion in the popularity of senior games led to the organization of the Senior Olympics last year in St. Louis. The second Senior Olympics will be held there next summer, and the Golden Age Games will be one of two official qualifying events for the national event to be held in Florida.

Arnett said Dr. Kamm went to the Illinois Agency on Aging to arrange financing for the Illinois Games, which is a distinguishing factor between the Sanford Games and games that were organized in other states.

"All the other games have obtained some type of public funding," Arnett said. "We have remained unique in that the entire event is planned and managed by volunteers," he said. "The civic groups, businesses and individuals who volunteer every year to plan and run this event are what make it unique and successful," he says. "They put in countless hours, with very little public recognition for it."

Horner said the Golden Age Games, like most of the events that were established later, have a common problem — attracting spectators. "I really wish the townspeople would come out in droves — they don't realize how exciting these events are and how seriously the competitors take their contests."

Softball, wind surfing added to events list

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Two new events have been added to this year's Golden Age Games competition — wind surfing and slow pitch softball.

Wind surfing, along with sailing, will kick off the week's events at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6.

Wind surfing was a demonstration sport at last year's games and drew about 10 or 12 entries, according to Patrick O'Neill, owner of Sunset Sailboards, who is sponsoring the event. As of Friday afternoon, five people had signed up for the event.

O'Neill said he expects most of the contestants to be experienced wind surfers and to bring their own boards. He will have a limited number of boards for rent, he said.

The course will be run as an open class regatta. O'Neill said, with contestants broken down into five-year age categories, as in other events. They will be judged in their individual age groups, as well as one overall class.

O'Neill said the contestants will probably run a simple triangular course, with each leg of the triangle less than a quarter mile. Or, if the contestants agree, a little more complicated course may be set up requiring a couple of extra jibes, or turns.

Contestants are to meet at 1 p.m. Saturday at Sunset Sailboards and, based on the interest of the competitors, additional races may be scheduled for Monday. A practice race is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday.

O'Neill points out that sail boarding has been an official Olympic sport since 1984 and that the United States' only entry in the 1988 Olympics was from the Panhandle of Florida and won a bronze medal.

The other new event in this year's Golden Age Games is slow pitch softball — the first team sport to be part of the Games.

Jim Jernigan, chairman of the Games, and a member of the National Senior Olympics Committee, said the national event includes several team sports.

"We've never included team sports before because they couldn't be organized according to age category as other events are," he said. "It's impossible to get teams together in age categories of five-year increments like the other events are set up," he explained.

As a result, there is no age category for the softball teams — only that players be 55 or older.

Jernigan said four teams expressed an interest in entering the Games this year, but by Friday only three had signed up.

The softball competition will be set up as a regular softball tournament, with all games played on the field at Fort Mellon Park. The opening games is scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday. Successive games will be played at 2 and 4 p.m. Wednesday, and 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

The official rules of the American Softball Association will be followed, except for certain exceptions. They include:

- No metall spikes.
- No sliding permitted.
- To retire an advancing runner, a defensive player must tag the base ahead of the runner after the runner has advanced over one half the distance to the next base. A defensive player may also retire the advancing runner by touching the base the runner is attempting to return to. The overrun of first base by the batter-runner is excepted.

● Free substitution means the starting player may leave and return to the lineup once during the game. Free substitution is permitted only by the team on defense.

Players who are used as substitutes may be used as "pinch hitters" or "pinch runners." All regular rules shall apply as listed in the rule book on "pinch players."

● Courtesy runners will be permitted upon request. The opposing coach must select the runner.

Keplers will get a chance to strut their stuff.

idents Nixon, Ford, Carter and Reagan.

He was named 1953 winner of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy given to the outstanding American amateur athlete based on achievement, leadership, character and sportsmanship, and was the first non-caucasian to receive the award. In 1954 he served a sports ambassador to Southeast Asia, speaking on Americanism and the Olympic spirit.

Dr. Lee served as the U.S. women's diving coach for the 1960 Olympiad in Rome, and also coached Bob Webster to a gold medal in high diving at those games. At the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, Dr. Lee was coach of the Korean diving team and also coached Webster to his second gold medal.

He was inducted into the International Swimming and Diving Hall of Fame in 1968.

At the Montreal Olympic Games in 1976, Dr. Lee coached Greg Louganis, who won a silver medal in high diving at the age of 16. Louganis won the gold at this year's Korea Olympics.

He has been married to the former Rosalind Wong since 1950 and the couple has two children. A daughter, Pamela A. Ayers, is a doctor of pharmacy and has her Master's of Business Administration. A son, Sammy II, is a graduate of Occidental College and a Beverly Hills police officer.

Dr. Lee has also received many honors connected with his Korean heritage. The American Korean Society voted him most outstanding American-born Korean of the past 50 years in 1967. He received the Asian Pacific American's Achievement Award the University of Southern California and the University of Pennsylvania awarded him the Asian Alliance Association Award, both in 1985. He was voted Outstanding American of Korean Ancestry by the League of American Koreans at the first Ethnic American Day.

A biography of Dr. Lee, titled Not Without Honor, was written by Moly Frick Wampler, and published in 1987.

Welcome Golden Agers!

Opening ceremonies set for Monday

Athletes, residents will gather at City Hall to kick off games

SANFORD — A gala opening ceremony in front of City Hall will kick off Sanford's 14th annual Golden Age Games at 9 a.m. Monday.

Games Chairman Jim Jernigan, Mayor Bettye Smith and Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, will welcome contestants to the Games and hope that Sanford citizens will turn out to help them.

bleachers will be set up to accommodate observers of the ceremonies.

Torchbearers for this year's games will be Jack Horner, former director of the chamber of commerce, and Vic Arnette, two of the men who were instrumental in getting the first senior games off the ground 14 years ago.

The band from the U.S. Naval Training Center in Orlando will present a 30-minute concert before the ceremonies begin.

The Knights of Columbus Color Guard will present the flags at the ceremony.

Special guests at the ceremony will be Dr. Sammy Lee of California, a two-time gold medal diving champion in 1948 and 1952, who is this year's honorary chairman; and representatives of the sponsors of the Sanford Games and the National Senior Olympics.

Helen Harris will be at the Games representing General Foods, White Plains, N.Y. parent company of Post Cereals. This year's games are underwritten by a $20,000 contribution from Post Natural Bran Flakes and newspaper ads throughout the Southeast have included coupons for Post Natural Bran Flakes and other General Foods product. For each coupon redeemed five cents goes into the fund to support the Golden Age Games, up to a maximum of $10,000.

Also scheduled to visit the games for three days is Harris Franks, president of the U.S. Senior Olympics. The Senior Olympics was held for the first time last year and will be held next June in St. Louis.

Representatives of two of the corporate sponsors for the National Senior Olympics, Holiday Inns of America, and McDonald's restaurants, are also scheduled to be at the opening ceremonies and observe some of the events.

Representatives of McDonald's at opening ceremonies will include Ronald McDonald and Mr. Hamburglar.

Most of the events at the Sanford Games, which are the oldest senior games, will be qualifying events for the National games.

The National Senior Olympics includes more team sports than the Sanford Games, such as volleyball and slow pitch softball. Slow pitch softball has been added to the Golden Age Games events this year for the first time.

Jernigan expects this year's games to draw 8-9 percent fewer contestants than last year's because the general election falls in the middle of the week-long event.

Jernigan said golf has traditionally drawn the most competitors, with 440 entered last year. Swimming events, tennis and track and field are also traditionally events with many entrants. The first events will actually take place before the opening ceremonies when sailing and wind surfing, a new event this year, will begin at 2 p.m. on Lake Monroe.

Several events are scheduled for Monday, including bowling at Bowl American beginning at 11 a.m., and tennis, beginning at noon at the Bayhead Raquet Club.

Synchronized swimming will begin at 12:30 p.m. Monday at the Lyman High School pool, quarter-mile bike races will be held at the Seminole High School track at 1 p.m., canoe sprint races are scheduled for 2 p.m. at Sanford Landing apartments, followed by canoe obstacle course at 3 p.m. Eight-ball billiards for men will begin at 2 p.m. at the Civic Center.

A social reception for contestants and guests will be held from 6-7 p.m. Monday at the Civic Center, followed by a part I of a sports medicine program presented by Central Florida Regional Hospital. The second part of the program will be presented at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Tuesday's events will include golf, which begins at 7:30 a.m. at Mayfair Golf Course. Also scheduled to begin at 7:30 are the four-mile run, and triathlon, both starting at the civic center.

Hobby and photography displays will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall. Checkers and dominoes competition will be held at Howell Place at 9 and 10 a.m. Table Tennis competition will be at 8:30 a.m. at the Salvation Army.

Diving and synchronized swimming competition will begin at Lyman High School at 10 a.m., and bowling will continue at 9:30 a.m. at Bowl America.

The walking race will begin at 2 p.m. at Seminole High School.

One-on-one basketball will kick off Wednesday's competition at 9 a.m. at Lakeview Middle School. Also beginning at 9 a.m. will be women's eight-ball billiards at the civic center, badminton at the Salvation Army, and the decathlon at Seminole High School. Other Wednesday events are half-mile swim at Lyman High School at 10 a.m., gold long-driving contest at Mayfair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., cribbage at Howell Place at 1 p.m., and the dance contest at the Civic Center from 2-5 p.m.

The hobby and photography events will be open from 2-5 p.m. at City Hall and a midweek social will be held beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Civic Center. Tickets for the social must be purchased in advance at the Chamber of Commerce building or from a

You Have To Be Really Sick To Stay Here

And when you are, you will receive special care from people you know.

When you're not at your best, returning you to good health and keeping you healthy is our most important concern. But, being a patient isn't the only way you can use our hospital. This hospital offers many special services that you can use without being admitted to the hospital overnight.

We're concerned about you and the care you receive. We know it is important to you to have prompt service and a lot of TLC (tender loving care). Your good health is our greatest priority.

We hope you never need a hospital, but when you do, trust us to provide the healthcare services that assure you the best possible care. Come to us to get special care from people you know.

Dr. Sammy Lee

Dr. Lee honorary chairman

SANFORD — Dr. Sammy Lee, Olympic gold medal diver and coach, and sports advisor to presidents, is the honorary chairman of the 1988 Golden Age Games.

Dr. Lee, whose parents emigrated to the United States from Korea, was born in Fresno, Calif., in 1920.

He has his M.D. degree from the University of California in 1947 and received that school's Outstanding Alumnus Award in 1984. He served 13 years in the U.S. Army Medical Corps and resigned as a major in 1955. He is a diplomate of the American Board of Otolaryngology (medicine dealing with disorders of the ear, nose and throat) and his private medical practice was limited to diseases of the ear.

Dr. Lee won the gold medal in high diving at the XIV Olympiads in London in 1948, becoming the first American-born Asian to win a gold medal. He also won a bronze medal that year in three-meter springboard diving. In 1950 he became the first American diver to win back-to-back gold medals when he again topped the high diving competition at the XV Olympiads in Helsinki, Finland.

He has remained active in Olympics activities, as personal representative of presidents Eisenhower, Nixon, and Reagan to the Olympic Games in 1956, 1972 and 1988. Dr. Lee also was appointed to the President's Council on Physical Fitness by president Reagan. See Dr. Lee, Page 14
