

THE GREAT WALTZ

BEATRICE FABER

Byronne: In 1945, young John Byronne, called Schani by his friends, decided to follow his free calling by composing music. There are hundreds of songs he has written, but only a few are considered "hits." Schani, however, organized his orchestra and became moderately successful. He married Charlie Donner, a famous soprano, and turned against her when she decided to marry a rich man. He and Charlie, his child hood sweetheart, are married and settled down contentedly. One day though, stirred by the rising revolution, Schani composed a march which led to the rebellion. He was shot and Charlie, his child hood sweetheart, was shot and killed. Schani was shot and killed. Schani was shot and killed.

Chapter Six

Now the horse's hooves were falling into the distance. The Vienna had missed them by inches. "We must get to a safer place," Schani muttered.

"A safer place is safe with you," she returned exasperatedly. "I want to go home."

"Where do you live?"

"I won't tell you," she retorted. "I'm not taking any chances."

Schani's patience had worn thin. "Madame, if you're a man, reveal me a kindness, I am that man."

"You? Kind? She stamped her foot with indignation. They both tensed, hearing a flourish driving along the street.

Schani peered out. "Past. Coachman. Are you engaged?"

"A man has to sleep sometime," the coachman's face lighted up as he noted Schani's reply. "There was a place for romance in his marriage. How long have you two been a revolution?"

Charlie sighed and sank back. "Vaguely. Hecate's Number Eight."

He shook his head. "I guess you haven't heard of the barricade yet. Schani now gave his address but again the coachman shook his head. "How long have you two been in there? That's barricaded, isn't it?"

Charlie jerked forward impatiently. "Is there any place in Vienna you can go — except around this city?"

He scratched his chin meditatively. "The Vienna woods." With a sigh he looked at Schani. "A lovely idea."

"Will you decide Madame?" Schani asked with polite sarcasm. "Her voice was just a shrill shrill. "Frankly, I don't care. I don't care where I am or where I go or whether the sun goes up or down or whether I live or die. I just don't care."

"The Vienna Woods," Schani directed.

"The Vienna Woods," the coachman sang out and smiled. "Schani and Charlie both. "Giddyap, giddyap. They started off."

Comfortable and warm beneath their robes they both fell asleep. Schani opened his eyes. Charlie's smooth waltz was being closed and for a long time Schani gazed at her. Then, for one instant, he put his lips to her hair. He hid drooped and he slept again.

The gray of dawn lifted and it was morning, clear, bright and sunny. The birds were trilling and everything had come to life, rejoicing in the new day.

Now the smiling horse stopped and the coachman awoke with a start. Then, smiling at Schani and Charlie, he stepped close to each other, he began to take off the top of the carriage.

They awakened at the same moment and with the realization that they were in each other's arms. They looked at each other and smiled. "Where are we?"

"Where you wanted to be — in the Vienna woods. And it's only six o'clock in the morning. You have a long and beautiful day ahead of you."

She rolled her beautiful eyes back at him. "The road helps me."

"Ames," Schani said automatically, and was aware of a curious mixture of feelings within him. Way back in his mind there was a picture of a woman, a woman who was worrying, wondering what had happened to him. Yet there were other things, a picture that made him want to dance and sing. Those Vienna woods were stirring melodies in his mind. He was able to hear. "Giddyap, giddyap," the driver called and they were off again.

(What has happened to the Vienna woods? The driver called and they were off again.)

Charges Of Farm Program Collapse Bring Reactions

farm purposes for the needy and added that cost of such a program would be small compared with the billions of dollars spent upon armaments, actual losses farmers now are suffering because of reduced prices, or the cost upon future generations of taxes to provide for the under-look.

Senator Logan (D-Ky.), administration supporter, said previous difficulties with the farm program resulted from some of the "largest crops that have ever been raised."

"Farm incomes have just about been doubled by Mr. Wallace's program and that counts with the farmers," the Kentucky senator said. "The Republicans had plenty of chances to aid the farmers in the past. Everybody knows what they did."

Senator Donahay (D-Ill.), said he was confident that farmers in Ohio and elsewhere "will listen to Hamilton and then do their own thinking for themselves."

Lee Opposes Control Plan

Sen. Lee (D-Okl.), usually an administration supporter, took a different view. "We are going to have to do away with this compulsory production control," he said. "I predicted that on the Senate floor last Spring."

Lee advocated a system under which the government would guarantee farmers a certain percentage of the price of their crops produced for domestic use. The remainder would be sold abroad at world prices.

Assistant Secretary Wallace, who now is in the corn and wheat belt stumping under auspices of the domestic congressional committee, disputed Hamilton's attack on farm imports. He said history showed such imports were largest when farmers in this country were most prosperous.

Meanwhile many farmers are considering whether to default on farm loans the government has advanced them. If large numbers decide that it is to their advantage to default and turn the loan over to the government, it will make the government the largest owner of corn in the world.

Turn prices recently have averaged well below the government loan offer of 57 cents, a lashed Department of Agriculture official said. That about 12,000,000 bushels of corn from previous crops now are under government loan.

The department's records indicated that cotton prices this season had averaged near or slightly below the loan rate of 8.25 cents a pound. The government now has about 7,500,000 bales of cotton under loan. The bulk of these loans were made in previous years; 5,400,000 bales being under nine cent loans and 1,600,000 bales under 12-cent loans.

Wheat prices have averaged above and then below the government loan rate this season of 60 cents a bushel. Wheat prices were stimulated for a time by the European crisis. There was no wheat loan before this year.

grapefruit, insisting that alone would solve his state's orange problems. California producers relatively few grapefruit, but leased the nation in orange production.

The Californian also urged that canners use only first and second grade fruit, contending the canning of inferior grades was unfair to the fresh fruit trade.

Such restrictions, AAA officials explained, contemplated the use of low grade fruit for purposes not common in the industry—livestock feed, fertilizer, oils, and various other by-products.

Illustrating the extent of possible new uses, one citrus man said it had been learned orange juice made an excellent dentifrice.

Nazi's Philippine Activities Cause Speculation In U.S.

Germany Believed To Be Eyeing Outlets In Orient As Well As South America

Hitler's Peace Price Too High

France Must Give Back Colonies In Return For German Accord

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Guarded German inquiries of commercial prospects in the Philippines caused official speculation today whether the Hitler regime was eyeing the Far East as well as South America as a trade outlet.

The most recent inquiry made by a business man in Manila in Nazi trade contacts caused government officials concerned with Far Eastern affairs to scan commercial reports.

They learned that Germany, along with Japan and Italy, shared last year in the increased trade with the Philippines despite the islands' free trade ties with the United States.

Germany is building a second new ship for the Philippine government and has increased its shipping lines with the island.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler's reported price for a guaranty of Franco-German peace appeared too high to France yesterday.

In preliminary conversations Germany was said to have offered to guarantee French frontiers against attack if France would return Togo and the Cameroons, pre-war German colonies in West Africa; if France would recognize that Germany should have numerical superiority in war planes and if France would assure Germany a free hand in central and eastern Europe and renounce the Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact.

The possibility remained, however, that sufficient common desire existed on that kind of an agreement might be reached.

In the willingness of both France and Germany to explore possibilities of a non-aggression pact some arid observers professed to see a diplomatic game aimed at Italy—a warning by France that Italy should confine itself to the Mediterranean and a hint by Germany that unless Italy abandoned its support for Hungarian claims Germany could find a powerful friend in France.

Premier Daladier's friends hoped an agreement with Germany would improve his domestic position. He had conversations with the Soviet ambassador, Jacob Suris, presumably as to what effect a Franco-German agreement would have on Franco-Soviet relations.

In a drive against spies the French government forbade foreigners to settle in the Paris region without special authorization. Resident foreigners and tourists are exempt.

Ash Appointed City Director Of Recreation

Highly Recommended Supervisor Selected By C. O. C.

Gerald L. Ash of the Works Progress Administration staff in Jacksonville was yesterday appointed recreation director for the City of Sanford, according to announcement this morning by W. R. McCracken, chairman of the Recreation Committee of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, through which group the city's recreational program will be supervised.

The new director, who is being provided by the Recreation Division of WPA with a salary of $1,000 a year, will be in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Mr. Ash came to Sanford with the highest recommendations, and his appointment was made from a group of applicants trained and experienced in recreational work, after careful consideration by the Chamber of Commerce.

A native of Lansing, Mich., Mr. Ash attended Springfield College at Springfield, Mass., and Battle Creek College at Battle Creek, Mich., graduating from the latter with a degree in Social Science and Physical Education.

Upon graduation from college in 1911, Mr. Ash joined the staff of the National Committee of Y. M. C. A. with headquarters in New York City, and was with this national organization for 12 years as traveling organizer and director in different cities throughout the United States.

During this period he assisted in organizing the Y. M. C. A. at Miami and became well acquainted with Florida.

Leaving Y. M. C. A. work Mr. Ash was for four years water sports director in the Bahamas. He was in summer sports director at Chautauque, Mich. In 1911, he joined the faculty of the Cranbrook Foundation School in Detroit and remained in this position until 1934 when he became affiliated with the Florida Emergency Relief Administration and later the Works Progress Administration.

Unemployment Is Cut By Business Upturn

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A leading government economist estimated today that business improvement since June has reduced unemployment by 1,000,000 men and women.

The economist, who declined to be quoted by name but whose figures are relied on by several agencies, figured there were 10,250,000 persons out of work in June and about 9,250,000 now.

On that basis, about one-fourth of persons who lost jobs in the recession have been re-employed. While unemployment has been shrinking, WPA payrolls have been rising. The lists went up from 2,800,000 at the beginning to about 3,120,000 now—a new record.

Plans for the participation of the local camp in the Orlando meeting were made at the regular session Tuesday night. Mr. Collins reported that the local uniform rank had accepted the invitation of the Orange county group, to take part in the degree parade to be held before the opening of the business session.

All Woodmen and their families who desire to attend the district meeting were asked to meet at the Woodmen Hall this evening at 6:15 o'clock. Transportation will be furnished those who do not have their own cars. Mr. Collins said. He also reported that the Orlando camp has planned an entertainment program following the meeting which included a dance for which the Woodmen's String Band will furnish the music.

Bond Issue Is Contingent On Federal Grant

County Board's Resolution Clears All Doubt On Authority To Build Hospital

The issue of the proposed bond issue for the construction of a County mental hospital will be contingent on a government grant of at least 50 percent and up to 75 percent will be secured, according to a resolution passed by the County Board of Supervisors today.

The unanimous action of the commissioners removed one of the principal objections against the construction of the proposed institution in the last referendum and was another step of the Commission to clear the way for the final election of the issue which is again set for the free election on the election on Nov. 8.

Although the number of names on the new list could not be obtained, it was indicated that it would be somewhat lower than the number who were registered to vote in the election on Sept. 27.

Communists Seek To Rule Or Ruin All Labor Unions

House Committee Told "Reds" Engineered Michigan Strikes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—James Mitchell of Detroit, formerly in charge of the welfare activities of the local union of the United Automobile Workers, (UAW), told House investigators today that communists apparently "have a lot of influence on John L. Lewis."

Testifying before the committee investigating un-American activities, he said communists had "engineered" the sit-down strike in a Detroit plant of the Murray Body Works in 1936 and 1937.

Earlier, the committee heard that communists had tried to control a union, and if they failed, to destroy it. The "rule or ruin" testimony came from Melvin Kells of Detroit, who said he worked with an Americanization committee of American Legion in uncovering subversive activities.

"They wanted to create a struggle among workers and to sell the union out," he added, explaining "they" were leaders of the trade union league in Michigan automobile manufacturing area.

Before testimony began, Chairman Dies (D-Text) said he was calling on the Labor Department for a list of deportation cases now pending to find out "what is preventing deportation of Communist aliens."

Nearly 19,000 residents today crowded their homes in Jerusalem's old city, where 250 British troops and police, having stormed the walls, wiped out the guerrilla resistance of Arab rebels in the Muslim quarter's crooked streets.

The British forces smashed their way through the old gates that stood in Christ's time and shortly after dawn seized the old city from the Arab Damascus gate on the north and St. Stephen's gate to the east while Royal Air force planes swooped with machine-guns trained on the scattering Arabs.

Few Casualties
The actual entry into the old city was accomplished with few casualties, because of the lightning-like attack on all sides.

Two British constables and a Galilean constable were wounded and eight Arabs and an Arab woman were killed in the street fighting before the main force of the rebels fled to shelter in the vicinity of the mosque of Omar and Akas in the south-eastern section.

A Royal Air force corporal and an aircraftman were wounded when fired upon along the Jericho road, south of Jerusalem.

The fighting planes flew over the squat, crowded old city today, dropping thousands of leaflets in the three official languages—English, Arabic and Hebrew.

The frightened inhabitants—Christians, Armenians, Jews and Moslems—were instructed to remain in their homes during the "mopping up" operations.

Take Refuge in Mosques
There was scant possibility the Arabs would be driven out of the old city because they have taken refuge in the mosque area.

British authorities, determined not to desecrate the Moslem shrines, are reluctant to shell or invade the area.

The troops, acting under a form of martial law extending through-

The hunt for victims of "bluebeard" Joe Ball goes on as Texas Rangers use highway department equipment, as pictured above, to search the sand dunes near Ingleside, Tex. Parts of the bodies of two of the roadhouse proprietor's victims already have been found in these dunes. Ball killed himself after he was questioned by police concerning disappearance of several women employes over a six-year period. Police were told by a man who said he helped Ball slay one woman, that Ball fed parts of his victims to pet alligators.

All by himself—and very uncomfortable, too—was Bob Van Lengen, Princeton halfback, pictured just as he was about to become the victim of a mass assault by a levy of Pennsylvania tacklers in the Tigers' 13-0 victory over Penn at Princeton. Len Warner, on the ground, had missed his try at the ball carrier, but Bal Smith, No. 9; Stan Lorber, No. 34, and Irv Yard, No. 14, swooped down on Van Lengen just a split second later to complete the job very nicely.

FOLLOWING THEIR third quarter touchdown, via the aerial route, the Tar Heels from the University of North Carolina make sure of their victory over N. Y. U. in New York, by last and manful tackling. Above Joseph La Massa, violet half back, is tossed by two Tar Heel tacklers, with two more, George Radman, No. 67, and Jack Kraynick, No. 97, adding their weight for emphasis. The Violets never regained the lost points, and the game went to North Carolina, 7-0.

She said Snyder kidnaped her husband, and forced him to go to the Etting home, where they found Miss Etting and Snyder's daughter Edith. The singer said Snyder threatened to kill them all, and, when she defied him, shot Alderman.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, pictured leaving his Washington home for the opening of Supreme Court fall term, eulogized the late Justice Benjamin Cardozo in his address opening the court. Chief Justice Hughes, who is 76, spoke of Cardozo's death "at a time when he should have enjoyed the full exercise of his powers." Cardozo was 66.

Physically weakened, but still spiritually determined, Rev. Lazar Kirchenko, above, pastor of St. George's Greek Orthodox church at Palmerton, Pa., seeks solace from his Bible while fasting to force young people to attend church. Brig. Gen. Louis Eugene Faucher, above, resigned his post as chief of the French military mission to Czechoslovakia and placed himself at the disposal of the Czech army because he was reportedly "stabbed" by the part France played in bargaining with Hitler over cession of Sudetenland to Germany.
