Other Charges Issued After Accident

Miss Florida Arrested For DUI

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Miss Florida, Deanna Pitman, 22, of Apopka, was charged late Friday night with drunken driving following a single-car crash near Altamonte Springs.

She was alone and uninjured, police said. Miss Pitman was charged with having an improperly displayed license plate, driving without a license and careless driving in addition to the DUI charge following the 11:25 p.m. accident on Spring Lake Road near Altamonte Springs.

A spokesman for the Florida Highway Patrol which investigated the accident said Miss Pitman refused to take the DUI breathalyzer test. Refusal to take the test can result in suspension of a driver's license if the officer can prove the driver refused to take it, the FHP spokesman said.

Miss Pitman, of 6 W. Myrtle St., represented Sanford in the Miss Florida pageant held last month. She could not be reached for comment Saturday.

The FHP spokesman said Miss Pitman failed to negotiate a curve and her 1979 Datsun slammed into a large ornate mailbox in front of the home of Ted Sikes, of 900 Spring Valley Road. Trooper G.R. Caves, the investigating officer, said the accident caused $500 damage to the mailbox and $2,000 damage to the car.

A Miss Florida pageant official was shocked when informed of the charges filed against Miss Pitman. Bill Wolfe, of Orlando, chairman of the pageant board, said "from my point of view, I'm absolutely sick that it happened."

Wolfe said he was informed of the accident Saturday but had no knowledge of the charges against Miss Pitman.

"All I know now is that she was in an accident and her car was pretty badly damaged, but she was unhurt," he said.

Wolfe did not rule out the possibility that pageant officials might strip her of the title, because of the incident.

"I really don't know at this point," Wolfe said. He said the committee would investigate the incident thoroughly before any action is taken.

Miss Pitman, when she was booked into the Seminole County Jail, was given an opportunity to talk to Public Defender Tad Figgatt of Sanford by telephone. According to law, the Public Defender's Office is contacted in such cases for an initial conference with the defendant.

Figgatt was the duty public defender who was on call. Miss Pitman reportedly identified herself to him as Miss Florida and asked him to contact a Sanford lawyer, Jack Bridges. He contacted Bridges. But Bridges was unavailable for comment Saturday morning.

After consulting with Bridges, she was released on $500 cash bond.

Seminole-Brevard Public Defender James Russo said the meeting with Figgatt was routine. Figgatt was the public defender on duty and was called as a matter of course.

In his phone call with Miss Pitman, Figgatt told her that she would have an opportunity to appear before a judge to determine whether she qualified for representation by the public defender's office, Russo said. If she does not qualify, he said, she will need to see her own counsel.

Robert G. Pitman III, Miss Pitman's father said Saturday he didn't know much about the incident. He had been informed of the charges and the accident but had no comment until having the opportunity to discuss the situation with his daughter.

Miss Pitman's sister said Deanna was not at her parent's home. She said her sister had not come home Friday night but knew nothing more of the incident.

Carole Pegram, of the Sanford Junior Women's Club, sponsors of the Miss Sanford pageant, said Saturday she was surprised at the news of Miss Pitman's arrest but added it would have no effect on the local pageant.

Kathy Allin, Miss Manatee County, was first runner-up in the Miss Florida pageant and Mavel Rodriguez, Miss Miami, was second runner-up. Under normal pageant rules, if for any reason Miss Florida cannot fulfill her duties, the title is then offered to the first runner-up. If she does not or cannot accept it, the title is offered to the second runner-up.

Casselberry's new 24,000-square-foot municipal complex will include several modern energy saving devices, among them an overhanging roof to block out direct sunlight, a roof-mounted solar collection panel and a computerized air conditioning system. City departments are expected to move into the new building at the end of August.

Municipal Building Nears Completion

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Staff Writer

At today's prices, Casselberry Utilities Director Ed Keuling figures the city's brand new municipal building is a steal.

"It's an exceptional building at an exceptional price," says Keuling, who quietly had a hand in planning the facility and drove architects back to the drawing board on a few occasions to ensure everything was in the exact spot it is supposed to be for the 24,000-square-foot, two-story city hall scheduled to open Aug. 30.

Located directly next to the city's old city hall, which is at 95 Triplet Drive, the ultramodern building carries a price tag slightly above the $1 million mark and features a wide variety of energy saving devices as well as an attractive interior and exterior.

"The price tag breaks down to about $52 per square foot, and that includes the architectural fees and all the interior furnishings like carpet and office furniture," Keuling said. "The amount of building for $1 million is incredible."

Keuling estimates if the city were to start construction today on the same building, costs would run between $95 and 105 per square foot.

The new city hall was financed by stabilization fees paid by the city's 11,000 utility customers and from accrued interest on those fees.

The new building soon will be home to all city departments with the exception of the fire and police departments. They'll take over old city hall, currently being renovated in what will become the city's Public Safety Building.

Renovation of the old hall will cost about $76,000 and is scheduled to be completed when city departments pack up roof to block out direct sunlight, a roof-mounted solar collection panel and a computerized air conditioning system. City departments are expected to move into the new building at the end of August.

for the move into the new municipal building.

"Originally, we were supposed to be in there by the end of July," Keuling said. "But the shipment of some of the furniture from up north and North Carolina won't be made until Aug. 12."

Despite the delay, Keuling said he feels when city offices are eventually moved into the new facility, both employees and city residents will be impressed.

Double plate glass windows, a solar screen facing the front of the building, a computerized air conditioning system, polyfoamed panel walls and theatre type seats in the commission chambers are just a few of the building's features.

"I look for highly efficient energy usage — with the double glass, the insulation between the drywall and cinderblock, the solar panel and the overhanging roof, it will be very efficient," said the utilities director.

The overhanging roof and a second overhang slightly above the windows on the first floor will help screen out direct sunlight while the roof-mounted solar panel is positioned to make optimum use of rays throughout the year.

"The way the building sits, the overhangs just about completely cut sunlight from entering the windows while the solar panel can collect sunshine everyday of the year as long as it's out," he said.

Well positioned hallways will give the hall an open air effect and allow light to pass through a second floor skylight directly above the city council chambers.

The chambers will have 100 permanent, thickly padded theatre-type seats. More standard seating can either be put in or removed depending on the size of the council audience.

Keuling said the $1 million price tag includes a lot of extras, such as all sprinkler systems to compliment outside landscaping, a burglar alarm and security system and expanded parking facilities on the east side of the building.

"There's no wasted space, yet there's a lot of storage space in addition to the offices the new building will house," Keuling said.

The interior color scheme will be a blend of contemporary pastel colors including maroon, sapphire, white, raspberry and French gray. The exterior of the building is finished in white and a medium blue.

In addition to a theater-type atmosphere in the council chambers, overlooking the chambers will be a balcony.

"At first the architects came up with a lot of plans similar to those of the county courthouse. As a matter of fact, some of the preliminary drawings looked pretty much like a carbon copy of the county building," Keuling said.

"But I felt a more open, airy type of design would make for a much better facility.

"This is a building that we're proud of and I think the citizens of Casselberry will be proud of."

The old city hall won't just die and fade away. Slightly more than $76,000 is being pumped into the building for interior improvements, the addition of administrative offices for department heads and several cell blocks for the police department.

A connecting hall at the rear of the old building and the side of the new facility will adjoin the two complexes to virtually unite entire city operations.

"What we'll try to do with the inside of the old city hall is renovate it as much as possible to blend in with the interior of the new building," Keuling said.

Surprise! Tax Bills Going Up

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Have you been thinking about how you're going to spend all that money you'll be saving on your property tax bills in Seminole County this year?

If you have, stop. It's very likely that almost every property owner in the county will pay more property taxes this year than they did in 1981.

All nine governing bodies in the county have made it known they are cutting their tax rates.

But Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber's office has reassessed all real estate in the county and increased property values from 15 percent, with an average of 20 percent. This means a home valued by Suber's office last year for $50,000 may be valued this year at 160,000—or at $57,500 or $67,500.

Suber said after analyzing the tax roll, he determined it would not meet the state requirement of "just value", which is a necessity to obtain state approval.

Suber said a countywide reappraisal of all property was necessary. He said all properties were viewed by members of his staff and then property sales in proximity were analyzed.

Using those two methods, properties throughout the county were reappraised.

In five of Seminole's cities, the property tax bill will be slightly less than last year. Countywide, the taxes imposed by the Seminole County Commission also will be slightly less.

But countywide the school taxes for the public schools will be higher and in the cities of Casselberry and Lake Mary the city tax bills will be higher.

As an example, a Sanford homeowner whose house was assessed for tax purposes at $50,000 last year paid city, county and school taxes totaling $342.45. This year, he will pay $547.45, if he has lived in Florida for five years and filed for homestead exemption.

Last year the owner of a $50,000 appraised house in Sanford after a $20,000 homestead exemption paid taxes on a $30,000 valuation. The city taxes totaled $178.50 at a rate of $5.95 per $1,000 valuation. The owner paid county taxes of $157.20 at the rate of $5.24. State law allowed a $25,000 homestead exemption on school taxes, so the taxable value of that same home for school purposes was $25,000 and thus the owner paid $206.75 in school taxes.

This year with the appraised value increased by an average of 20 percent, the same $50,000 home would be valued at $60,000.

The homestead exemption for county, city, and school taxes is $25,000 this year.

The owner of that Sanford home will pay $154 in city taxes at the rate of $4.40 per $1,000, $155.75 in county taxes at the rate of $4.45 and $238.70 in school taxes.

The major reason for the school increase is that while that homeowner who had filed for homestead exemption paid on a $25,000 value last year, he is paying on a $35,000 value this year.

In Lake Mary, the owner of that home valued for tax purposes last year at $50,000 is going to pay a higher school tax, a

Sheriff Seeks 19% Funds Hike

The fiscal 1982-83 budget for the Seminole County Sheriff's Department is more than $7 million, about 11 percent of the total county budget.

The $7,312,693 budget is a 19 percent increase from the 1981-82 budget and includes pay raises for the 248 current members of the department and adds 19 people to the department's payroll.

The department's budget has grown by more than $2 million since fiscal 1980-81 but has not grown enough to fund extra deputies that Sheriff John Polk says the county needs to meet recommended manpower figures.

Salaries and other benefits take up more than 70 percent of the department's budget. About $5.4 million will be spent on salaries, social security taxes and other benefits to workers.

The sheriff said a new law passed by the Legislature has made his budget-making chores more difficult and resulted in the hiring of an additional person to help with paperwork created by the new law.

The law requires the sheriff to break down his budget into seven sections, one for each of the different duties the department carries out.

Polk will earn $41,832 this fiscal year. That figure is man-

Opinions Vary On Who Is Best Juror

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

If a lawyer doesn't like the way you dress, talk, sit or smile, chances are you won't be selected to serve on a courtroom jury. Also, a lawyer has every right to pass over you if you're elderly, young, male, female, black, white, Indian, or of any other nationality or ethnic background.

So, who is finally picked to serve on a jury and how are those people selected?

Among those state prosecutors surveyed at the Seminole County State Attorney's Office, the ideal juror for the state's case is an older male, who is conservative in appearance, possibly a retiree and gives the appearance of "a law-and-order type of guy."

On the other hand, lawyers surveyed at the Seminole County Public Defender's Office in Sanford said they view the ideal juror for the defense's case as a college student or graduate who gives the appearance of being objective, liberal and open-minded who sees the defendant on trial as a human being, not a criminal.

"Actually, there's no such thing as the ideal juror because each case, defendant and lawyer is different and other factors play in jury selections," said Prosecutor Steve Brady. "I really use just one criteria. When I worked as an assistant public defender in Orlando, I sought people with a good sense of humor. Now, I look for just the opposite person. I want someone stern and conservative and look for those people who hang on my every word."

"I agree that there is no ideal juror," said assistant Public Defender Vincent Howard Jr. "But I look for someone with intelligence and common sense who will be open-minded and listen to me without already assuming my client is guilty just because he's in a courtroom. I'm not looking for someone who is like a sheep and will follow the foreman or other jurors as a sheep follows without question."

With both defense and prosecuting lawyers looking for such opposite types of people to serve as jurors, how is anyone ever chosen to serve?

Lawyers are allowed three preemptory challenges in misdemeanor cases, six challenges in most felony cases and 10 challenges in capital and life cases, officials said.

Lawyers also are allowed challenges, which leaves the decision of whether someone will serve or not in the hands of the judge presiding at the trial. If a lawyer can show sufficient reason why a person should not be a juror at a specific trial, the judge may excuse him, officials said.

But how does a person become eligible to be ordered to report for jury duty as a potential juror?

"All registered voters are subject to being ordered to serve as jurors," said Camilla Bruce, supervisor of elections. "To register to vote, all a person has to do is be 18 years old or older, a U.S. citizen, meet residency requirements and come to this office behind the county courthouse or our branch office at the Interstate Mall in Altamonte Springs.

"Once a person is registered, a printout of those names is forwarded once a year to the Titusville office and the computer there chooses potential jurors completely at random," said Estes Brockman, court liaison officer.

But what if you don't want to serve as a juror?

"The state statutes clearly state who is exempt or

Moon Sentenced To 18 Months For Tax Evasion

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, sentenced to 18 months in prison for income tax evasion, was free today awaiting an appeal.

In addition to the sentence imposed Friday, Judge Gerard Goettel of U.S. District Court in Manhattan fined the 62-year-old Korean evangelist and founder of the Unification Church the maximum of $25,000.

Moon also must pay court costs, which Goettel did not specify but told Moon's attorneys would be more than the fine. Moon remained free on $250,000 bond.

Goettel, who presided at the trial, said he had considered a number of possibilities and concluded the crimes charged against Moon "require some sentence as a general deterrent."

Air Turbulence Hurts 50

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A sudden jolt apparently resulting from air turbulence bounced passengers over seats and tossed others into the ceiling of a United Air Lines DC10, injuring 50 people.

Flight 95, with 168 people aboard, encountered an unexpected pocket of severe air turbulence over the Hokey Mountains Friday flying from Boston to San Francisco, airline officials said.

The aircraft was met by doctors and ambulance crews when it landed at San Francisco International Airport about an hour and a half after the 1:40 p.m. EDT mishap.

Officials said the most seriously injured suffered back and neck injuries. One person sustained a broken arm.

Among the injured was former Boston Red Sox centerfielder Doim DiMaggio, 64, who had to have a brace put on his neck.

Tuition Tax Credit Debated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although President Reagan says his new tuition tax credit proposal is simply a matter of fairness, opponents claim it is unconstitutional and will destroy the public school system.

Nonetheless, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Education Secretary Terrel Bell urged quick approval of the measure during the Senate Finance Committee's first public hearing on the subject Friday.

Reagan, who promised such a program during the presidential campaign, has sent Congress legislation to allow parents a maximum $100 tax credit for private-school tuition in 1983, gradually growing to $500 by 1985.

During his news conference June 30, the president defended his proposal as "simply a recognition of the unfairness of people, who in an effort to improve the education of their children, are willing to pay the full burden of the taxes that support the public school system."

Dog Track Case To Be Appealed Soon

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Staff Writer

Attorney David Strawn, representing Seminole Greyhound Park in Casselberry, is teaching at Arizona's Judicial College for the next two weeks. Upon his return to Volusia County, the lawyer will file two appeals to the state Supreme Court dealing with a bond the track was ordered to post earlier this year and the issue of the track's parimutuel license.

Strawn's office has confirmed both appeals will be filed with the state Supreme Court in the very near future.

On April 6, Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler ordered Seminole Greyhound Park principal owners Jack and William Demetree to post a $300,000 bond against losses the Daytona Beach Kennel Club claims it has sustained over the past two years.

The Daytona club along with the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club last year filed suit against Seminole Greyhound Park, contending the track's license was invalid because state laws dictate two dog-racing parimutuel plants have to have a minimum of 100 miles between them. Daytona Beach's club is located approximately 55 miles from Seminole Greyhound Park while the Sanford-Orlando club is located less than four miles away in Longwood.

Last year, Daytona and Seminole ran identical race dates. Daytona Beach Kennel Club attorney J. Kermit Coble filed an original suit to recoup claimed losses last June that forced Seminole Greyhound Park to post a $471,000 personal bond.

Coble and Strawn reached a compromise in April on an additional $300,000 bond that permitted Seminole Greyhound Park to open for its second racing season on May 2.

Daytona Beach contends its 1981 income was down $7.2 million and that the Volusia County parimutuel lost more than $709,000 in parimutuel commissions and another $52,000 in concession monies because the two tracks were competing for sunnier betting dollars over the same race dates.

Leffler ruled in favor of the Daytona track's contention last June that Seminole Greyhound Park's racing license was invalid because it violated a statute governing the proximity of parimutuel plants. Leffler's decision was later upheld by the 5th District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach.

In a related development, a formal hearing to determine if Seminole Greyhound Park's alcoholic beverage license should be revoked is scheduled for Aug. 9 by the state Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco.

The state contends the Demetrees along with Paul Derveas of Brooksville and attorney Ernest Drosdeck of Orlando filed papers which falsely stated no other persons held an interest in the track.

Both the greyhounds and lingering legal matters are going round and round at Seminole Greyhound Park.

The state contends John Fountain, a convicted felon who no longer lives in Florida, had either an indirect or direct interest in the track because of a $160,000 loan Fountain made to Derveas in 1980 for track use.

The beverage license case is considered critical. If the state proves falsified papers were filed to obtain the beverage license, it would become a critical link in seeking revocation of the track's racing permit.

William Demetree said the state is on a politically motivated witch hunt spearheaded by rival track owner Jerry Collins.

Collins owns the Sanford-Orlando Club and Sarasota Kennel Club and years ago played a major role in writing state statutes governing parimutuel wagering.

Collins has denied he's behind the lengthy state probe.

When asked about the falsified beverage license application, Demetree said it was a case of a simple error on the part of the track's attorney who was unaware of exactly who had to be listed on the application.

"It was strictly a case of carelessness," said Demetree. "When the papers were filed, our attorney didn't know about the law."

"If this issue makes it to trial, I would think a jury would rule in our favor. The state can't be judge and jury too."

Death Sentence Sought In Jennings Case

A Seminole County jury has recommended that Bryan Jennings be put to death for kidnapping, raping and murdering a 6-year-old girl.

The same Circuit Court jury which found Jennings guilty of the 1979 death of Rebecca Elizabeth Kunash of Merritt Island recommended Friday by a 9-3 vote that the 23-year-old ex-Marine be given the death penalty.

Circuit Court Judge Clarence Johnson is not bound by the recommendation and withheld sentencing pending a presentence hearing.

The girl was taken from her Brevard County home, beaten, raped and drowned in a canal six blocks from her home on May 11, 1979.

Jennings was convicted of the murder previously but was granted a new trial on a technicality. Earlier attempts to get an impartial jury in Brevard County failed and the re-trial was shifted to Sanford.

PIT BULL PILFERED

Someone broke into a Sanford woman's home and stole her two-year-old pit bull dog between 6:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Annette Heskett, 45, of 1903 W. Third St., told police the brown and tan female dog is valued at about $500.

FIRE AT GENEVA HOME

An overheated lightbulb was the cause of a fire that caused about $20 worth of damage to a Geneva home at about 3:41 a.m. Thursday, county fire officials said.

James Raulerson, 48, of North Jungle Road, told deputies he was awakened by the smell of smoke in his home and upon investigation discovered a kitchen cabinet on fire.

Fire investigators said the overheated lightbulb caused the fire which ignited a bottle of starch in the cabinet. No one was injured.

DUI ARREST

State troopers arrested Howard Mack Judah, 41, of 312 Fairmont Drive, Sanford, at about 8:07 p.m. Wednesday on charges of driving under the influence of alcoholic beverages or drugs. Judah was arrested along State Road 46, about four miles east of Sanford, troopers added. Bond was set at $500.

AUTO ACCIDENT

A 20-year-old Sanford man has been charged with failure to yield the right-of-way and driving on a suspended driver's license following a two-car collision Monday in Sanford.

Reginald Walton, 67, of Lake Monroe Terrace, was charged after his 1978 Chevrolet and a 1975 Plymouth, driven by Frances Leahy, 68, of 106 Kingswood Court, Sanford, collided along West State Road 46A near the cemetery, police said.

Police said Walton's vehicle apparently pulled out from a side street and collided with Ms. Leahy's vehicle which was traveling eastbound along SR 46A.

MAN REFERRED FOR TREATMENT

A 29-year-old Sanford man, shot in the eye with a pellet gun Monday, has been referred by Central Florida Regional Hospital doctors to Shands Teaching Hospital, Gainesville, for specialized eye care.

William R. Strawder, of 1206 Park Ave., was reportedly helping Patrick Stenstrom, 17, of 308 Lake Blvd., load a pellet gun when it accidentally discharged, sending the fragments into Strawder's eye, police said.

Sanford doctors said one fragment lodged in Strawder's retina and urged him to seek more extensive care at the Gainesville hospital to prevent possible sight loss, police said.

SILVER DOLLARS STOLEN

About 3,200 silver dollars and three purses were stolen from a Sanford woman's home between 10:20 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

Sarah R. Hodge, 71, of East Church Street, told police the thieves entered her home after prying open the front door.

U.S. officials. Persons who are under prosecution for a crime or have been convicted of a crime without their civil rights being restored by the court also are disqualified as potential jurors.

Judges also may choose at their discretion to exempt practicing lawyers and physicians from serving as jurors, officials said.

"If a person just doesn't bother to show up as ordered by the court, they are in contempt of court and could face imprisonment and fines," Brockman said.

Jurors in Seminole County are paid $10 per day and 14 cents per mile traveled to and from the courthouse.

higher city tax and save $1.45 in county taxes. Last year, his city tax bill was $130.50 at the rate of $4.35 per $1,000 — $157.20 to the county and $208.75 to the school board, for a total of $494.45.

This year his school taxes will be $238.70 (an increase of nearly $32), $155.75 to the county (a cut of $1.45) and the Lake Mary City Council hasn't decided what its tax rate will be.

While a rate of $3.90 per $1,000 assessed valuation was mentioned at one time, the council Thursday night tentatively set a rate of $4.35. The council indicated the rate is only temporary until all figures are collected, then it may be reduced.

So that owner of a $50,000 home will pay somewhere between $138.50 and $152.25 in city taxes.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said Lake Mary has a unique problem with its tax roll this year.

Last year, Lake Mary's taxable value of property was $81,874,872 which included an inventory value of $9.85 million.

There is no longer an inventory so Lake Mary's total taxable value is $79.8 million, about $2 million less than last year. Lake Mary is the only city in the county whose taxable value has gone down.

The tax situation in Casselberry also is unusual. The owner of that $50,000 home which is now valued at $60,000 paid a city tax last year of $57 at the rate of $1.92 per $1,000, the lowest rate in the county at the time.

This year its tax rate is $2.08 per $1,000 assessed valuation. About $1 of that rate is for a paramedics service approved by voters last year.

So the owner of that example home in Casselberry this year will pay $72.80 in city taxes, nearly half of which will be used to fund the paramedic program.

The total tax bill in Casselberry of the $50,000 example house that now is valued at $60,000 will be $467.25. Last year, the homeowner paid $420.95.

The owner of the example home in Altamonte Springs paid a city tax last year of $113.40 at the rate of $3.78. This year, he will pay $99.75 at the rate of $2.85.

His total tax bill last year was $477.35 and this year it will be $494.20.

In Longwood, the owner of the example home will pay city taxes this year of $77 at the rate of $2.20. Last year, he paid city taxes of $42 at the rate of $1.20 per $1,000 assessed valuation, down from last year's $61.50 at the rate of $2.05.

The Winter Springs taxpayer will pay a total property tax bill this year of $436.45, up from last year's $425.45.

The Oviedo City Council is expected to set its tax rate at a meeting Monday night. However, according to law the highest tax rate that can be set is $2.45.

The owner of the example home in Oviedo, paid city taxes last year at the rate of $3.20 for a total of $96. His tax bill this year, if the $2.45 rate is set, will be $85.75. He will pay a total property tax of $480.20 this year compared to $459.95 last year.

In the unincorporated areas of Seminole County, the county levied a tax last year on the example $50,000 home of $244.50 at a rate of $8.15 per $1,000 assessed value. This tax includes fire protection and road paving.

This owner this year will pay $233.10 in county taxes, a savings of $11.40.

His total property tax bill this year will be $471.80, up from last year's $451.25.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Deer Hunters Frustrated By Order Halting Big Kill

MIAMI (UPI)—Frustrated hunters milled angrily around game commission checkpoints Friday condemning conservationists who won a last-minute stay temporarily saying 2,200 starving Everglades deer from mass slaughter.

"It's (the fault) of those damned people reading Doctor Suess books that's never been out here," said Dave Archer, 19, a hunter from Fort Lauderdale.

In halting a "mercy hunt" aimed at thinning the deer population from about 5,500 to 3,300, federal Judge Eugene Spellman appointed a committee of eight wildlife experts to report back to him at 9:30 a.m. Saturday so he can decide on his next step.

Opponents of the hunt want the starving deer relocated rather than slain, but the game commission contends it has tried moving deer before only to have them go into shock and die.

Lewis' Actions Criticized

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — State Attorney Don Modesitt says Comptroller Gerald Lewis is trying to turn a sensitive investigation of the Florida Highway Patrol into votes in his re-election campaign against Ralph Haben.

Modesitt accused Lewis Friday of disrupting and jeopardizing the investigation and demanded that Lewis back off.

"I am here to call for the comptroller, Gerald Lewis, to withdraw from the investigation of the Florida Highway Patrol and leave that investigation in the hands of trained criminal investigators," he said at a news conference.

Casino Hopfuls Give Up

MIAMI (UPI)—Forces seeking legalized gambling in the state have given up their efforts this year and will point for 1984, according to a report Saturday.

The Miami Herald said it has learned that Citizens for Less Taxes has decided pushing the issue over this year would be too much of a struggle and the pro-casino group will concentrate its efforts on the presidential election in two years.

The report came in the wake of two polls showing there is little support in the state for legalized casinos.

Michael Ledbetter, a leader of the state's anti-casino forces, said a poll by MGT of America in Tallahassee showed opponents outnumbered supporters 58 percent to 37 percent. He said another survey by the Hermitage Research Group in Tampa scored it 64-30 percent against Casinos.

"It's not a matter of winning this at the polls," Ledbetter said. "It's a question of getting it to the polls. I think the real reason they'd call it off is because the people of Florida just don't support it."

Fire Destroys Miami Hotel

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A vacated Miami Beach hotel was gutted by a fire of suspicious nature late Friday that quickly engulfed the three-story building collapsing the roof and part of the front wall.

Bright orange flames darted 30-feet into the air as firefighters struggled for almost two hours to get the fire under control. No one was injured in the blaze, but police and fire officials temporarily evacuated about 200 people out of nearby buildings.

Tom Hoolahan, Miami Beach Police spokesman, said the Whitehouse Hotel has been the scene of a series of suspicious fires since it was vacated in May. He said the 178-room hotel was built in 1939 and is owned by Indeco Holding LTD of Miami.

The blaze began in the rear of the building and quickly spread. A total of 14 fire trucks were called to the scene, including 10 from Miami Beach and four from the city of Miami.

Iraq Beats Back Iran Assault On Port City

United Press International

Iraq said it beat back Iran's assault on the port city of Basra but U.S. intelligence reports showed Iranian troops were regrouping today for a new pincer charge expected to begin within 48 hours.

In Washington, a senior U.S. administration official said Friday the United States may stage joint military exercises with nations of the oil-rich Persian Gulf to deter the threat of attack by Iran in its growing war with Iraq.

Tehran Radio said thousands of volunteers, including 30 Iraqi prisoners of war, registered Friday at special centers to reinforce the Islamic fundamentalist combatants in the latest flareup of the 22-month-old war.

Iranian exile sources said Tehran's military was planning a night assault to escape the adverse consequences of combat in temperatures that reach more than 125 degrees in the battle zone.

Israel Hits PLO Area

Israeli gunners dropped flares today over PLO-controlled west Beirut for the first time in nearly a week and Israeli troops tightened their hold on the Lebanese capital by clamping new restrictions on entering supplies.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Friday the United States was told Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin of its "urgent concern" that Israel must permit adequate supplies into west Beirut.

The flares, which fell over refugee camps in southern Beirut, began dropping shortly before midnight Friday and continued for more than an hour.

The fragile cease-fire held into its sixth day today despite limited clashes Friday on Beirut's southern suburbs.

... Sheriff Proposes Much In New Budget

dated by state law.

The sheriff's chief deputy, Duane Harrell, is paid about $32,000 annually. The department's only major is paid about $28,000. Two captains in the department average about $26,000 and 11 lieutenants earn an average of $21,589.

The department also has 103 deputies, whose average salary is $15,631.

Sixty-two people are employed in the jail, where the average salary is about $16,500.

The remaining 86 people in the department are classified as either communications or clerical employees, Polk said. Those salaries range from $16,000 for the highest paid communications employees to a low of $7,800 for starting bailiff and $7,400 for clerk typists.

The next biggest part of the sheriff's budget is $1,422,950 for operating expenses. Of that, $439,489 will be spent for operation of the county jail and $408,336 is budgeted for the patrol division. The patrol division has budgeted more than $270,000 for gas, oil, repairs and maintenance of vehicles.

Budgets for the rest of the divisions include: court services, $188,270; criminal investigations, $159,819; support services, $134,451; $87,868, administration and $4,717 for judicial.

The budget also contains $441,400 in capital outlays for the seven divisions. The largest single outlay is $307,750 for 33 automobiles.

Polk said the cars are an expense which the department must pay only once every five years. A car is assigned to a deputy and that deputy drives it for four years, unless it is destroyed in an accident.

The bulk of the capital outlays budget will go to the patrol division. That division will receive $210,654, most of which will be spent on new cruisers.

The criminal division will receive $106,806; the support services will get $65,452; court services, $30,343; administration, $18,072; and corrections, $10,073. The judiciary service division will have no capital outlays.

And It's About Time

A consensus appears to be forming in Congress on a national policy for disposal of radioactive waste from nuclear power plants. It's about time. As early as 1957 the National Academy of Sciences recommended that provisions be made for handling the by-products of the nuclear power industry then beginning to materialize.

Spent reactor fuel is accumulating at the 74 nuclear plants now in operation, and another 79 plants are under construction or on order. With a push from the Reagan administration, Congress is finally willing to tackle a problem that has been on the national agenda for 25 years.

The problem is more political than technical, since scientific and engineering work on safe storage of radioactive waste is largely behind us. What has led previous administrations and Congresses to procrastinate on bringing the issue to a head is the inevitable prospect of resistance by any state in which the federal government wants to locate a disposal site.

The 69-9 vote for a disposal bill in the Senate last April shows the high degree of bipartisan support for a formula which promises to unravel the political knot. Like a similar measure that received a favorable vote in a House subcommittee recently, the Senate bill provides for "consultation and concurrence" by the states in the process of selecting sites.

If federal officials find an ideal disposal site in a state that doesn't want it, the state could carry its objection to Congress, where a vote by either house could sustain the objection and send the government looking for an alternative site. The burden would be on Congress, then, to decide whether the national interest demanded that a state's cold reception to a disposal facility should be overruled.

It may never come to that, of course. If emotion can be sorted out from the facts about the long-term safety of waste storage, some states may find good reason to accommodate such federal installations. The pending legislation also provides for financial assistance to alleviate any "economic and social impacts" from a disposal project.

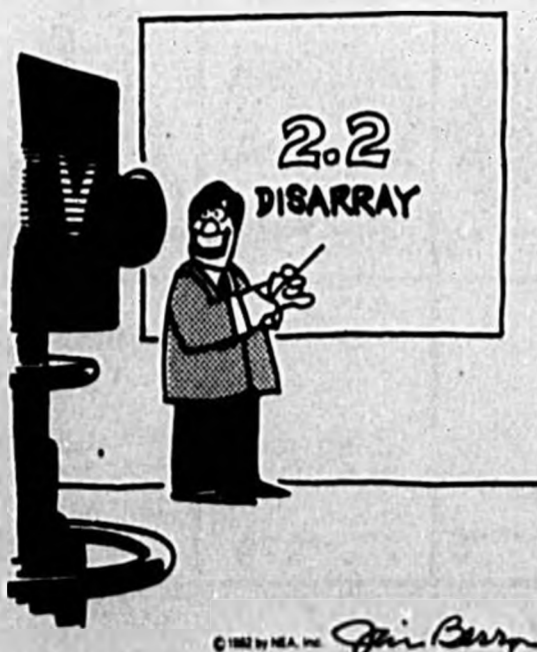

The nation cannot afford to delay any longer in laying down a firm plan for nuclear waste disposal. The technology for both permanent and retrievable storage of radioactive material is in hand. The bills in Congress provide for a tax of one mill per kilowatt hour on nuclear-generated electricity to pay for the storage program, which must be calculated into future utility rates as one of the costs of nuclear power which has been avoided up to now.

The Senate bill calls for selection of a commercial-scale repository site by 1986, which means the facility could begin receiving spent fuel elements by 1990. Having such a timetable in place will remove one nagging uncertainty from the future of the nuclear power industry in America, which remains beset by a variety of other problems.

Despite an appearance of stagnation, nuclear power is inching ahead in relieving the country of its dependence on fossil fuels for generating electricity. Nuclear overtook oil as a source of electric power in 1980, and is expected to outpace both natural gas and hydro-electric power in 1982 placing it second only to coal as the source of the nation's electricity.

Those statistics are a compelling reason for Congress not to let its current session end without putting a nuclear waste disposal program into place.

"...And tonight's administration status index according to the media..."

By DORIS DIETRICH

Shutting shop and hanging up a "Gone Fishing" sign is not exactly my idea of rest and relaxation during the lazy, hazy days of the good ole' summertime.

But there are those who would rather fish than eat — regardless of the season.

One day this week, I hurried home to lunch to munch a sandwich from Sunday's leftover ham — not too exciting. But it was exciting nibbling the edible while lazily absorbing the magnificence of my colorful rose garden overlooking the lake.

Startled by a splashing noise, I cautiously turned to observe an intruder, heavily armed with fishing gear. He shyly noticed me at about the same time.

"May I fish in your lake?" he inquired in a loud voice.

"I had rather you wouldn't," I yelled so that I could be heard loud and clear by the distant fisherman.

I threw several questions at him which he answered almost inaudibly. When I requested him to come closer, he balked. I was not about to wade through the thick grass in my good high heels to chew out the handsome fellow.

Innocently pleading for my permission so that he could get on with his casting and reeling, the enthusiastic and compromising sportsman assured me he would give me the fish "if I catch one."

Polite enough, he divulged his name, age and address — but reluctantly. I promised him I would not harm him, but he still wouldn't approach me too closely.

Let's call him Roger. I sensed that he has been brainwashed by doting parents on talking to strangers and the likely unhealthy, hazards that could result.

The blistering truth is that Roger, a stranger, wanted me to extend the hospitality of his using my back yard for a fishing hole, yet he didn't want to talk to me, a stranger.

We shy away from strangers, too, and become suspicious when they trespass on our property. Items have disappeared and the grounds have been severely defaced.

Roger informed me he had a slingshot that he could use as a weapon against a water moccasin. "My husband shot a snake out there last week," I brutally warned the youthful 8-year-old intruder in the distance.

It's not that I'm the neighborhood witch ready to pounce with my broom. I'm worse. I have a genuine concern for Roger and others who trespass the private property. I would never live it down if a kid — or an adult, for that matter — were bitten by a poisonous snake — or worse yet — drown.

Several years ago, I pulled a tiny tyke from the lake after he lost his balance and toppled into the murky water. Spotting him from the bedroom window, he was "gone" when I got to him, but with resuscitation, he survived beautifully. Me? I was scared out of my wits, and still am, even when I see unattended kids near a bathtub, to say the least of a snake-infested lake.

It's no place for a kid, period. So, Roger, go home. Please.

RUSTY BROWN

Clutter, It's Utter Clutter

I shrieked when I read it.

It was an article saying that politicians are going to snow us with a direct mail blitzard. Why? Because it has been found that letters with pleas for money and votes are more effective than campaign oratory.

Can you believe it? We are going to be enveloped with millions more envelopes.

I can't keep up with the humungous amount of things coming into this house now.

Sometimes I feel I'm drowning in clutter. Most of it collects daily on our kitchen shelf strategically located 8 feet from the front door and 10 feet from the door leading from the garage.

It's the perfect place to dump... keys, caps and catalogs or items just purchased at the drugstore. Every day, several daily newspapers (local and national) land on the shelf, too. Ditto four news magazines a week and at least one or two of our monthly publications. We subscribe to all this because as newspaper people, my husband and I are compulsive about "keeping up."

Unfortunately, it takes days to digest all that news and clip what we may need for future reference. So, even if the newspapers and magazines come and go, the clippings stack up on the shelf — along with the keys, caps and catalogs.

And did I mention the library books?

Then there's the daily deluge of mail; letters from friends and readers, letters to be put somewhere until they can be answered. Bills arrive non-stop and paychecks come occasionally. They, too, land on the kitchen shelf.

There is the mail we hang onto until a decision is made about it: invitations, a form for a T-Bill about to rollover, a questionnaire from a congressman on what new taxes we could stomach in order to get a balanced federal budget. That's hardly a thing to send back by return mail!

I haven't even listed the junkmail arriving uninvited every day. It goes right out, of course, but it still takes time to open, glance at and walk it to the wastebasket.

I sometimes find myself wandering through the house, both hands full of "things," trying to decide where to put them. Some items disappear for long periods, surfacing weeks or months later. Some things disappear, never to be found.

Some are lost and found only after desperate searches through drawers, desk nooks, shelves and closets. That just happened this weekend. Two paychecks "disappeared" overnight. An entire Saturday was spent in a blue funk, as I ran again and again to some new spot thought to be the likely hiding place. No wastebasket or garbage can was left unturned.

Only that evening was the nagging worry resolved. I reached into a drawer for a little-used evening purse and there were the paychecks... plus a letter, one magazine and two post cards from the carpet cleaners.

Suddenly, I remembered. I had carried the mail from the shelf to the table in the hall that day, intending to transport it to the desk later. Meanwhile, friends arrived unexpectedly and in an attack of clutter-consciousness, I whisked everything off the table and into the nearest drawer.

JACK ANDERSON

How Bobby Foiled Bugging Attempt

WASHINGTON — Some fascinating stories can now be told about the bugging of the Oval Office.

Every American president since Franklin Roosevelt secretly recorded at least selective Oval Office conversations. My associate Bob Sherman has dug into the technical aspects of the story and has turned up some unpublished historical sidelights.

There was a historical showdown, for example, between President Lyndon Johnson and Sen. Robert Kennedy in early 1968. It was before the New Hampshire primary; Johnson was still planning to run for re-election, and Kennedy was thinking of challenging him. He asked for a private meeting with the president.

LBJ gave a terse order to Jack A. Albright, head of the White House Communications Agency: "Let's record the meeting."

"We put in one microphone," recalls Albright, now retired. "It was hidden in the table. It should have worked beautifully. Except it didn't."

Albright later figured out why.

Kennedy had brought a briefcase into the Oval Office, and kept it in his lap throughout the 30- to 40-minute meeting. "We weren't listening, of course," Albright explained. "All we could do was record. When we tried to play it back, all we got was a 'bizzzzzzett.'"

Kennedy, no stranger to White House bugging, had carried a jamming device in his briefcase. When LBJ heard the bad news, Albright recalls, he drawled: "That son-of-a-b—"

The first White House bug (unless it turns out that Abe Lincoln had his secretary eavesdropping over the transom with an ear trumpet) was FDR's fairly elaborate "Sound on Film" device. Invented by John R. Kiel of Evanston, Ill., it used 35-millimeter movie film and occupied a floor-to-ceiling booth built by the Secret Service in a basement room beneath the Oval Office. The president had it installed as protection against being misquoted by reporters during the 1940 campaign.

The microphone was hidden in a small bronze lamp on FDR's desk, almost literally under the noses of reporters leaning over to catch the president's words. The patrician voice familiar to millions of Americans came through unusually clear.

The equipment apparently wasn't used after 1940, but was still in place when Harry Truman moved in five years later. Truman tested it a few times, but evidently didn't like the device. Only 10 hours of Truman conversation exist, all but 30 minutes before 1945, the year after FDR died. The 30-minute exception was recorded in 1947.

Lyndon Johnson, whose fascination with electronic gadgetry was legendary, used John Kennedy's rather primitive dictabelt recording system for awhile, but soon replaced it with a 24-hour recording system designed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Eventually, Johnson had bugs installed in the Cabinet Room and the president's lounge as well. He also ordered telephone taps (known as "Charlie Browns") put in his bedroom, the situation room and his office at the LBJ Ranch.

The Cabinet Room bugs were a nightmare for Albright. There was no way to pick the strongest signal. "We put mikes in about eight locations around the table," he recalled. "Every time someone sits down at one end of the table and coughs, and a guy pounds his pipe on the table and another guy is scraping an ashtray and another is rubbing his beard, every one of those sounds comes through."

To solve that problem, the engineers tried voice-activated mikes. But these worked only in one-on-one meetings — with someone other than Bobby Kennedy, that is.

Footnote: I've written a full report on the technical details of the presidential bugs in this month's issue of Popular Mechanics.

"Shultz and I agree, Mr. President—All this talk about Bechtel's White House influence is nonsense!"

Politics Of Hinckley

The Hinckley insanity-plea furor is shaping up as a political issue on which the liberals cannot hope to win, and it is permitting the Reagan administration to position itself very favorably on this and on the broader crime issue.

In addition, the eagerness of liberals to leap to the defense of the insanity plea tells us something very important about their mentality.

On the one side, we have Republicans and conservatives pressing for reform. The Reagan administration favors it, and Senator Orrin Hatch, among others in Congress, is sponsoring legislation to that end. Several states either have eliminated the insanity plea or are about to do so.

Hatch's bill would restrict the insanity plea to cases of blatant dementedness or moronic incomprehension. It would not be available to Hinckley, who carefully planned the shooting, knew very well what he was doing, and had a clear, if zany, motive for his deed; to inflict himself dramatically on the consciousness of Jodie Foster. Hinckley meant to shoot his way onto the front pages, and he certainly did so.

Hinckley himself stated in a recent interview that he is astounded to have been declared not guilty.

But, over on the liberal side, we find an aggressive defense of the insanity plea.

The New York Times has cautioned editorially against efforts to weaken it. Liberal columnists James Wechsler and Tom Wicker have come out as champions of the plea. Harvard lawyer Allen Dershowitz says he thinks justice was done in the Hinckley case, and opposes any change in the insanity defense.

(This may not be entirely due to Dershowitz's liberalism. Besides being a distinguished professor at Harvard, he is in the business of defending individuals whose cases appear hopeless. He freely admits that most of his clients are guilty. From his perspective as a desperate defense attorney, the insanity plea certainly possesses its practical attractions.)

Dershowitz, moreover, has a strategy for Hinckley's appeal that might actually succeed in springing him from the mental hospital.

In the trial, the prosecution was required to prove Hinckley sane "beyond a reasonable doubt." This the prosecution failed to do.

But when Hinckley appeals his confinement in St. Elizabeth's, the prosecutors will have to claim that he is insane in order to keep him there.

At that point, says Dershowitz, a "reasonable doubt" that he is insane will work on Hinckley's behalf. Dershowitz thinks the "reasonable doubt" factor should work on behalf of the defendant, even though it results in freeing Hinckley.

It is worth asking, however, why this issue is shaping up as a conservative-liberal argument. The liberals would answer, no doubt, "compassion" for the mentally disturbed.

But it seems to me that there is a darker side to that liberal "compassion."

Many liberals exhibit a strong animus against American society itself. They are seldom in the forefront of efforts to strengthen that society against its foreign enemies. They are not known for expressions of affection and admiration for it. There is a liberal mind-set which sympathizes automatically with the criminal rather than the victim, regarding the criminal as the real victim, the victim of society.

Upon reflection, therefore, it is not really surprising that, in their defense of the insanity plea, liberals seem cavalierly unaware of the society's need for enforceable laws against murder and mayhem, and disdainful of the social imperative that justice be seen to be done.

The defense of the insanity plea only partially masks a liberal desire to attack the society itself.

Rails Should Be Used

Recently you have been covering the fact that under the Seminole County Comprehensive Management Program 1982-7, Seminole Countians would pay $106 million over the next five years to maintain an "acceptable quality of life." Seminole County People's Transit Organization (PTO) believes our quality of life could be less expensive if Seminole County's elected officials change their funding priorities.

Even though the Comprehensive Program contained a mass transit element, this element was not even costed out as a real option. Over the entire country the cost of light rail mass transit systems is less expensive than building more and wider highways. For example: San Diego, Calif., and Tampa, Hillsborough County, Fla., have devised area-wide light rail mass transit systems using mostly existing rail lines that cost less to build than the monorail system envisioned for the Southwest corridor in Orlando.

We have an excellent North-South rail line running between Sanford and Orlando. Other rail lines crisscross the area, including Seminole County. More can be built where they are determined necessary. Light rail transit combined with connecting buses can be an immediate alternative to building and widening highways. It is irresponsible for Seminole County's elected officials to refuse to even consider mass transit as a cheaper alternative to its growth problems. Seminole Countians should make this an important campaign issue this fall when deciding who to support.

Sonarmen Form National Group

The National Association of Sonarmen is seeking sonarmen, both former and active duty, of the Navy and Coast Guard.

Almost everyone wishes to maintain his ties to the past, and sonarmen are no different. The "sonar gang", a closely knit, well-disciplined team, produced a spirit of camaraderie seldom found in any other shipboard group. This common bond never dies, but instead, creates a desire to learn the present whereabouts of old shipmates and to hear what is going on today. This Association will bridge that gap between the past and present.

Until now, meetings and communication have been haphazard. This national organization will change that. A publication will provide a clearinghouse for information of importance to get the membership. Reunions will be held to allow members to get together again.

One's service can be any time from the inception of sonar to the present. Any sonarman, regardless of specialty (surface snip, submarine, airborne, harbor defense, or oceanography), is invited to write for information to STCS Frank R. Crawford, USN (Ret.), P.O. Box 1280, El Cajon, Calif. 92022.

Capital Punishment Stops Some

In reply to the letter from Jan. T. Hendriksma of the Netherlands (The Herald, July 11) the death penalty is not "still enforced" in Florida. We have the law but when a date is set for an execution, lawyers appeal to the governor. That always falls but the judges who care more for criminals than their victims invariably save the wretches.

We don't need the Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations to tell us it is wrong to kill. The Ten Commandments said it several thousand years ago. But I'll wait until the writer from the Netherlands persuades the murderers, rapists and terrorists to obey the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights before I grab a placard and march against the death penalty.

The world is crowded (China alone has a billion people) and we are being warned that the time is not far off when we may not be able to feed them. People like Bundy and Joseph Peele should be destroyed to make room for decent people who respect the life of others.

Capital punishment may not be a deterrent to other would-be-murderers but we cannot deny that it stops the one subjected to it dead in his tracks!

Keep Track Of Politicians' Votes

Politicians are qualifying for the coming 1982 elections faster than mosquitoes can breed in a wet shady swamp.

They did away with poll tax and added it to the qualifying fee to run for office. If you are not a millionaire or make at least a hundred dollars an hour, you will never raise the qualifying fee. They did this to keep riff-raff from running for office, but there are more rich riff-raff than there are poor. There should be a law against a qualifying fee to run for office.

If you are supporting the politician already in office, don't support him till you know something about him. If you don't know his past voting record, you know absolutely nothing about him. If he is liberal, vote him out. If he supported the one cent sales tax, vote him out of office, because five cent tax is too much strain on your already squeaky dollar.

If you will jot down the promises the 1982 politicians will make to you, and check his voting record one year later, you will find that ninety percent of them belong to the National Liars Club.

Poetic Praise For Goat Lady

Oh come, my little children, and listen to my tale;

About a lady criminal they have carted off to jail.

She never murdered anyone. She never robbed a soul.

She merely raised some tiny goats out here in Seminole.

"For this great crime", the judge declared, "this lady has to pay,

And so I sentence her to jail. Go bring her in today!"

So Big John Polk, our sheriff here, sent deputies brave and true,

To fetch poor Ingeborg Morris, as they were told to do.

They shackled her with handcuffs and carried her to jail.

Her pleas that she had done no wrong were all to no avail.

Our noble state attorney had pursued this case with zeal.

The order seeking her arrest had his official seal.

"The law must be obeyed", he said, "no matter what the price!"

So he saved us all from baby goats. Now that is very nice!

For who can say what vicious things these tiny goats might do,

Like nibbling on our fingers or eating up a shoe!

Some men who were awaiting trial while this was going on,

For deeds of violence, robbing, and some other things they'd done,

Were let go free because the judge by whom they would be tried,

Declared their right to speedy trial and surely been denied.

For our noble state attorney was too busy then, you see,

Protecting us from baby goats, so the robbers he set free!

And now somehow I wonder, as I think this whole thing through,

What kind of "justice" is this? What are we coming to?

A lady carted off to jail because she raised some goats,

While thugs and robbers are set free and just might slit our throats!

What kind of mental process can bring such things to pass?

Good laws are made to guard us; they're not made to harass.

How would our Founding Fathers feel if they were here today?

I wonder how they'd view this; I wonder what they'd say.

They dared defy an Empire, and they dared defy a king,

To give us all our liberties as bells of Freedom ring!

Would they stand by in silence, or would they lift a warning hand

To caution us against such deeds running rampant in our land?

So listen well, my children, to what has happened here,

Lest we lose those very freedoms that we all now hold so dear.

Wildcatters Still Have Important Energy Role

By LLOYD N. UNSEIL
Public Research, Syndicated, 1982

Americans have the terribly mistaken impression that the petroleum industry is made up of a few corporate giants who are responsible for all industry decisions including the price motorists will pay for gasoline. One supposes that this impression is the result of the fact that most of us buy our gasoline at a service station operating under the umbrella name of Gulf or Exxon or one of the other big companies.

But the chances are pretty good that the gasoline purchased from Gulf or Exxon came from a "wildcat" well; a well owned by a small businessman.

There are today 15,000 wildcatters actively involved in the search for domestic energy in 34 states. For these independent businessmen, the risks of losing their investment is very high. Four out of five wells drilled by the wildcatter will be dry. And since the wildcatter owns neither refineries nor gasoline service stations, he has no way to pass these losses on to the consumers. Yet, despite these risks, nearly a third of all crude oil and natural gas is produced by independents. Unable to rest content on past accomplishments, wildcatters have taken the lead in the exploration for new oil and gas fields. They drill 90 percent of the exploratory wells directed at finding new oil and natural gas reserves.

One should keep these facts in mind when addressing the arguments of the petroleum industry's critics. Opponents of this industry think there is an industry-wide conspiracy to raise oil prices, to control gasoline availability and, in short, to gouge the American people.

As one who has been part of this industry for most of my life, I have never encountered such a conspiracy nor have I ever witnessed people in the industry talking about such a thing. Recent events support my own experience.

Up until a few months ago Americans were complaining about the high cost of petroleum products. Not long ago one could view consumer advocated like Ralph Nader on nationwide television telling the public that in the very near future consumers would be paying over $2.00 for a gallon of gasoline. Today, gasoline prices are half these predictions. Indeed, in many parts of the country there are gas wars again being waged, to the advantage of the consumer.

This is not to suggest that the energy problem has been solved. America still imports over a third of its oil. The more exotic forms of energy, solar power, geothermal and biomass conversion, for instance, even when fully developed, will only provide a small percentage of America's energy needs. Thus, for the foreseeable future, the nation's energy needs will have to be met by the oil and gas industry.

Most geologists agree that the industry can meet these needs. They are confident that there are enough oil and gas reserves left in the U.S. to supply the country well into the twenty-first century.

If these reserves are to be brought into production, however, drilling in this country will have to increase by 20 percent a year over the next twenty years. At this rate of increase, the industry fully expects to be able to discover a total of twenty one billion barrels of "oil equivalent": oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids. This new drilling will increase by nearly half the known reserves of fossil fuels available for development in the lower forty eight states.

But this new exploration and development will be expensive. In the last four years alone, the cost of drilling and operating an oil or natural gas well has doubled. And since the wildcatter is likely to be responsible for the vast majority of the new wells; those wells will be drilled only if he is certain that he will realize a fair return on his investment. And that, in turn, means that the free enterprise system, the laws of supply and demand, must be allowed to operate.

Excessive regulation will not provide a solution to the problem. Today we are finding airline travel cheaper than ever in the wake of the deregulation of that industry. Deregulation has heightened competition among the airlines and reduced prices. A similar effect can be expected with the deregulation of the oil and gas industry as the competition among the 15,000 independent producers to discover new oil and gas reserves shapes up.

If we are to put the United States on the road to energy self-sufficiency, we must provide the independent producers with the incentive to develop the more than 20 billion barrels of "oil equivalents" that have been hitherto too expensive for them to bring into production.

Grandparents Can Have Much Fun With Grandkids

By CLAUDE PEPPER
Chairman, House Select Committee on Aging

Q. My husband and I are in our 60s and will be taking care of our granddaughter, Debbie, for the rest of the summer. She's 10 years old.

There aren't any children her age in our neighborhood. Do you have some ideas of activities we can do together?

A. The best times you will have with your granddaughter will probably be unplanned and simply the result of sharing time together.

Children are curious about how you live, what you do and how you think and feel. Talk about yourself. Ask her about her life and what makes her happy and what makes her sad. Talk about your childhood.

Remember that children may not have that many opportunities to talk with caring adults. Parents often work; life is hectic. You may have a chance to slow things down a bit for your granddaughter.

The most important thing is to find out what Debbie would like to do. She probably has thought about visiting you and has ideas of what would be fun.

That doesn't mean you have to take up roller-skating, but you might take her to the rink. And you can suggest ideas, as well.

You might want to plant a vegetable garden that she can help to tend and harvest as the summer progresses.

If you have any projects around the house, like painting or antiques furniture, she will probably want to work with you. Projects that take hard work but show results are as satisfying for children as for adults.

Growing Older

You might enjoy reading to one another, especially if you own or could borrow a tape recorder. You could record dramatic readings or conversations or songs. The ability to play them back always adds some interest.

You also might make a permanent tape about your family and its history that she could take back with her when the summer is over.

I read a sad statistic about how few minutes a day are spent in real communication between children and their parents in many families. Something like two minutes, after all the business of the day is taken care of.

An active but unhurried summer with her grandparents will provide Debbie with a rich experience that she will carry into her teenage years. No doubt the experience will be a rich one for you and your husband, as well.

Q. I'd like to have my Social Security check sent right to the bank. Is that possible?

A. Yes, you may arrange for direct deposit of your Social Security checks quite simply. Go to your branch of the bank and ask for Form 1199-Request to Direct Deposit.

Just fill out the form. Then the bank personnel will forward it to the Social Security office for processing. That's all.

One word of caution to new beneficiaries: You should probably wait until you have begun to receive Social Security checks at home before asking for the direct deposit service.

Q. I am going to begin receiving a pension soon. Can you tell me if the IRS is going to withhold any of it for taxes?

A. At present, the IRS does not have authority from Congress to order the withholding of pension plan payments. However, committees in the Senate and the House are considering proposals to withhold pension income from all sources, including private pension plans, profit-sharing plans, IRAs and commercial annuity contracts.

Under these proposals, people with especially small pensions, who ordinarily do not have any tax liability, would be exempt from withholding. Other pension recipients whose income is too great to qualify for this exemption could elect to prevent the withholding of their pensions.

Note, however, that failure to notify the IRS not to withhold would lead to automatic withholding.

Congress has not yet given approval to these proposals. If you are concerned about the withholding of your pension income, you should talk to your legislators as soon as possible.

Reagan Back To Ranch

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

President Reagan will be heading back to his beloved California ranch around Aug. 12 for a couple of weeks. But his official schedule will keep him busy until he takes off on another vacation.

White House aides decided it would be better image-wise for Reagan to divide his summer vacation into two segments instead of stretching out a month in California. He did that last year and in some quarters he was criticized by those who said he was out of touch.

Unlike some of his predecessors, Reagan's aides do not mind saying he is on vacation when that is the case. In the past, aides dreamed up major decisions and make work that created an image of a president with his shoulder to the wheel even when he was lolling on the beach.

In a way the president can never completely take a vacation, or be out of contact with the real world. He has quick access to a telephone wherever he goes, and is always in communication with the White House switchboard. The pushbutton age demands that.

When Reagan was flying back to Washington from his recent 11-day sojourn at Rancho del Cielo, he confided he had a "just fine ... great" vacation and said "I'd like to be back clearing brush."

The president said he has no plans to buy a new horse to replace his favorite "Little Man" who died recently.

Instead he plans to ride Alamein, the Arabian horse given him by former Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo. Alamein is taking some breaking in and he is stabled at a nearby ranch in the Santa Ynez Mountains.

But Reagan has decided to start working him out.

President Reagan has a swimming pool in his backyard at the White House but he never seems to use it.

At Camp David aides say he swims and does some fancy diving.

On a weekend at the presidential mountaintop retreat, he taught Chief of Staff Jim Baker's 4-year-old daughter Mary Bonner how to do the jackknife.

Reagan also likes to ride the trails at Camp David and he and his wife Nancy take strolls around the heavily secured compound with armed Marines in camouflage standing guard every few paces at the wired fence.

The White House often sends out press releases on presidential statements but the release is not usually accompanied by a photograph.

Bell Adds New Calling Card Service

In the biggest change in customer dialing service Direct Distance Dialing (DDD), Southern Bell has brought Calling Card Service to Florida this year. This new service allows customers to make credit card calls without operator assistance.

Larry Strickler, Southern Bell spokesman in Sanford explained, "With Calling Card Service, a customer at a Touchtone phone will be able to dial '0' the telephone number he wants to call, and then his Calling Card number. This information will be instantly verified without any operator assistance. If the Calling Card number is valid, the call will go through automatically. If the customer dials his card number incorrectly, he will have a second chance to dial correctly before the call is disconnected."

Southern Bell's trials revealed that customers prefer to dial their Calling Card number rather than go through an operator because the service was faster and more private.

Bell expects to save more than $1 billion systemwide in operator expenses in the next 20 years while reducing fraud with the automatic verification of Calling Card numbers.

Strickler also said that with last year's tropical storm Dennis and with the recent storm of April 8 still fresh in employees' minds, Southern Bell is beginning its annual preparation of the 1982 hurricane season.

"While certain emergency precautions are in effect year-round, we put special focus on the hurricane season," said Strickler. "These procedures prepare us for a storm and provide a good review of our emergency capabilities."

Each year when hurricane season begins, Southern Bell completes special precautions such as briefing employees, checking emergency supplies, testing their batteries and generators, and reviewing the adequacy of emergency lines and civil defense circuits.

"Because of our efforts to bury as many of our cables as possible, many of the telephone cables in Seminole and Volusia counties are underground," says Strickler. "This change makes our facilities much less susceptible to damage from a hurricane's winds."

Strickler suggests several ways telephone customers can help Southern Bell if a storm approaches:

—Use a phone for necessary calls only and leave lines open for emergency calls.

—There is no need to call us about an outage or damage to telephone plant. We'll be aware of problems through our monitoring system.

—If there is difficulty in getting dial tone, we are experiencing high calling volumes. We will be working on this network overload condition, so there's no need to call about slow dial tone.

—Be patient. If you can't complete a necessary call, wait and try later. We'll be doing our best to help out with emergency communications.

Phone Firms Consolidate

United Telephone System-Florida Group of Altamonte Springs plans to consolidate its telephone companies operating entirely within the state and place them under one corporation and one name, it has been announced by E. P. Kittinger, chairman.

The consolidated company's name will be "United Telephone Co. of Florida," and will mean a name change for three of the five Florida Group companies: Florida Telephone Corporation, based in Leesburg; the Winter Park Telephone Co. and Orange City Telephone Co.

Kittinger said the full details of the consolidation have not been completed, but subject to various regulatory and legal approvals, the name change likely will become official in January, 1983.

"All of our Florida Group companies have been managed as one organization for several years," he said. "For roughly one half of our customers and employees, there is no change."

CEO No Stereotype

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's top executives are "dynamic, varied, highly individualistic business leaders who fit no stereotype," a recent study shows.

In-depth interviews with 50 chief executives of Fortune-1,000 companies also found the business leaders believe strongly in the viability of the American system, are optimistic about the future, and regard American workers much more highly than does the general public.

The unique survey commissioned by Warburg Paribas Becker, a New York-based international trading house, and conducted by New York's Roper Organization, found the CEOs "bear no relationship to the business tycoon portrayed in Grade B movies who has ice water for blood, a computer for a brain and a cash register for a heart."

The group's identities were kept confidential in order to promote maximum frankness in the loosely-structured one-on-one interviews lasting from 30 minutes to 2 1/2 hours — the first time such a method has been used, Roper Chairman Burns W. Roper said.

He said the respondents are not representative of CEOs as a whole since the fact that they were willing to do the interviews sets them off from CEOs who refused.

"They probably represent a new breed of CEO," he said. "Those who agreed to do the interviews tended to be younger — partly in actual age but particularly in ideas — more modern, more open ..."

Questions were asked in three overall areas: optimism or pessimism about the future of American society, challenges and problems of the U.S. economic system, and the rewards and penalties of success.

The executives also were asked a short list of objective questions posed to the American public at large in recent surveys.

To assess the interviews in tabular form "would be roughly akin to evaluating Rembrandts or Picassos by the number of square inches of canvas on which they were painted ..." the opinion research firm said.

But it said some wide-ranging themes "occurred with frequency throughout the interviews," such as support for President Reagan, concern in the short term about the economy, belief in free trade and a much higher regard for American workers than that felt by the general public.

The CEOs were nearly unanimous in saying success had been worth it, although most cited lack of time with their families as the penalty paid.

No Trophy For John Reagan's Sportsmanship

What do you say about a man who is so obsessed with winning a Little League game that when he loses he humiliates his players and the other team's players by returning a trophy because it didn't say CHAMPIONS?

That's exactly the attitude Groveland manager John Reagan reflected Wednesday night after his team was eliminated from the Sub-District Tournament at Sanford's Fort Mellon Park in the title game against the Sanford Nationals.

Reagan couldn't accept the fact he was beaten by a better team, so he blamed his team's shortcomings on "biased" umpires.

"The only way we could have won was with a lot of hits and home runs," Reagan yelled at Sanford Youth Baseball Association President Gary Taylor. "I hope they take that $1,240 (Taylor's bid for holding the tournament) and buy some umpires."

The umpires for the game included Bob Hartman, Willie Brown and Robert Meyers. Henry Debose was operating the scoreboard.

"I feel we have the best umpires around," said Taylor. "These guys were handpicked for this tournament. We use them every year and never get many complaints."

Then, when the two managers met at home plate after the game, "Reagan showed just what kind of an ingrate he is," according to Taylor, by returning the second-place trophy to the press box.

Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

"The kids didn't want it," he growled at Taylor.

A few minutes later he ordered his team back onto the field "to shout obscenities at the Sanford team, umpires and Sanford spectators," according to Taylor.

The entire Groveland team stood around second base and challenged the Nationals to a fight. "Don't ever pick a fight in another man's town," National manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin Jr. said to some bystanders.

Taylor, who directed the tournament, said he was flabbergasted at the behavior of the Groveland team.

"Two years in a row we got beat over there under the same circumstances (Clermont, who Reagan coached the two previous years, came back to beat Sanford) and we never put a show on like that," said Taylor. "I thought it was very poor sportsmanship and I talked to a lot of people who agreed with me."

All this happened under the watchful eyes of District 4 Commissioner Dave Fleming. Fleming downplayed its importance.

"They (Groveland) were just a little disappointed because they got beat," said Fleming. "I won't make anymore of it than what it is."

Fortunately for Groveland and Reagan, the Sanford spectators were intelligent enough to keep their cool in an intense situation.

Otherwise, a very serious problem could have arisen.

And, it shouldn't take a serious incident like a fight with possible injuries to shake people like Fleming up enough to take action against someone like Reagan, who has to be considered a negative influence on Little Leaguers. Reagan could not be reached for comment.

Aside from Groveland's unsportsmanlike conduct, the Sub-District 2, District 4 Tournament was a good one. The Sanford Nationals, after losing its first game, swept through the loser's bracket showing a lot of heart and determination. Another team that deserves a lot of credit is the Orlando Bruton All-Stars.

Orlando Bruton was eliminated from the tournament by Sanford, 27-8. Although they got hammered, Orlando showed excellent sportsmanship. They were a very well disciplined, well behaved baseball team. Sanford Youth Baseball Association President Taylor said he would send Orlando the trophy that Groveland didn't accept. The association hosted the tournament.

The Sanford Nationals were awesome at the plate. They scored 106 runs on 100 hits in seven games and compiled a team batting average of .459.

Included in the 100 hits were 16 doubles — five by Jeff Blake and four by Ronald Blake — and 21 home runs. Todd Revels hit six round-trippers and knocked in 13 runs. Leonard Lucas hit four homers and had 12 RBIs. Willie Grayson, Tim Graham, Ronald Blake and Willie McCloud each hit two homers.

And the attendance was overwhelming for the seven games Sanford played. It looked a little scary at first, when the Nationals were on the verge of elimination after losing the opening game, but the crowd was an important element in Sanford's surge to the top.

Sanford also will be the host of the District 4 Tournament which gets under way Monday at Fort Mellon Park. The big matchup is an 8 p.m. game pitting Sanford National against Sanford American.

Another overflow crowd is expected for the battle of the two Sanford teams in the opening round of the district tournament. Sanford has a 50 percent chance of sending a team to the state tournament in Tallahassee and the odds may be even better considering the Nationals impressive six-game winning streak.

Umpire Robert Meyers explains a ruling to Groveland's colatite manager John Reagan. Reagan's team lost to the Sanford Nationals in the championship game of the Sub-District Little Major Tournament at Fort Mellon Park in Sanford.

Altamonte 'Looks' Past West Volusia

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

EUSTIS — The "Look" was "in" here Friday night as the Altamonte Juniors battled West Volusia in the second round of the Division 14 Tournament.

Manager Gene Letterio's charges looked up and down and over at arch-rival Maitland taking care of Rolling Hills on the adjacent field.

Most of all, however, Altamonte looked at pitches out of the strike zone, utilizing 16 walks to easily dispose of the Deland boys, 11-5.

"It was pretty boring wasn't it?" said Letterio answering his own question. "We just couldn't get going. We tried patting the guys on the back and kicking them in the butt, but nothing worked."

Letterio felt a preview of the West Volusia game against West Oak Ridge may have been too much of a confidence builder for the Juniors.

"We watched them the other night and both teams looked horrible," related Gene. "I was watching the Maitland game myself and they looked about as bored as us."

Letterio, who guided most of this same group to a second place state finish as Majors, was quick to point out that Saturday night's clash with Maitland will be no "yawner."

Maitland and Letterio's Phillies' team split six games during the regular season. Maitland won by a total of three runs while the Juniors margin of victory was five runs. The other game was rained out after a 1-1 deadlock.

This was, of course, before Altamonte selected its All-Star team while Maitland will go with primarily the same bunch. Letterio will go with ace right-hander Mike Schmit and Maitland will go with "comparable" Jerry McGee.

Game time is 7:30 Saturday night at Winter Garden. Maitland and Altamonte are the only two undefeated teams in the tournament.

Friday's sleep inducer, meanwhile, was a tight pitching duel for three innings. Altamonte's Neal Harris, flashing a fancy slow curve, breezed through three frames with five whiffs. Catcher Ryan Lisle gunned down a would-be base thief in the second.

Deland's Joey Mohr was just as sharp, blanking the Juniors without a hit over his first three innings of work.

Altamonte struck quickly in the fourth. Schmit rifled a single to right, raced to second when the ball eluded the fielder and coasted to third on a wild pitch. Harris and Lisle both walked.

With the bases loaded, Marty Posey lifted a medium fly ball to right as the runners held. Letterio then flashed the suicide squeeze sign and Bruce Carlson somehow got his bat on a high and outside pitch to drive in Schmit with the first run.

With runners on second and third, Steve Chasey blooped one over the shortstop's head to score Harris and Lisle for a 3-0 advantage.

West Volusia responded with a run of its own in the bottom of the inning. After Stuart Eve grounded out, Kirk Nettles walked and stole second. Chris Howe grounded out to third, but when Nettles broke for third, first baseman Schmit threw the ball wildly past Carlson allowing the run to score.

In the fifth, Altamonte chased Mohr. The Juniors sent 10 batters to the plate and scored four runs to take a 7-1 edge. Five walks aided the effort. Bret Marshall doubled in Shane Letterio to start the outburst. Lisle who walked five times, and Beaty added RBI-walks.

West Volusia again came right back, this time with two runs on Stuart Eve's 375-foot single which chased home both runs.

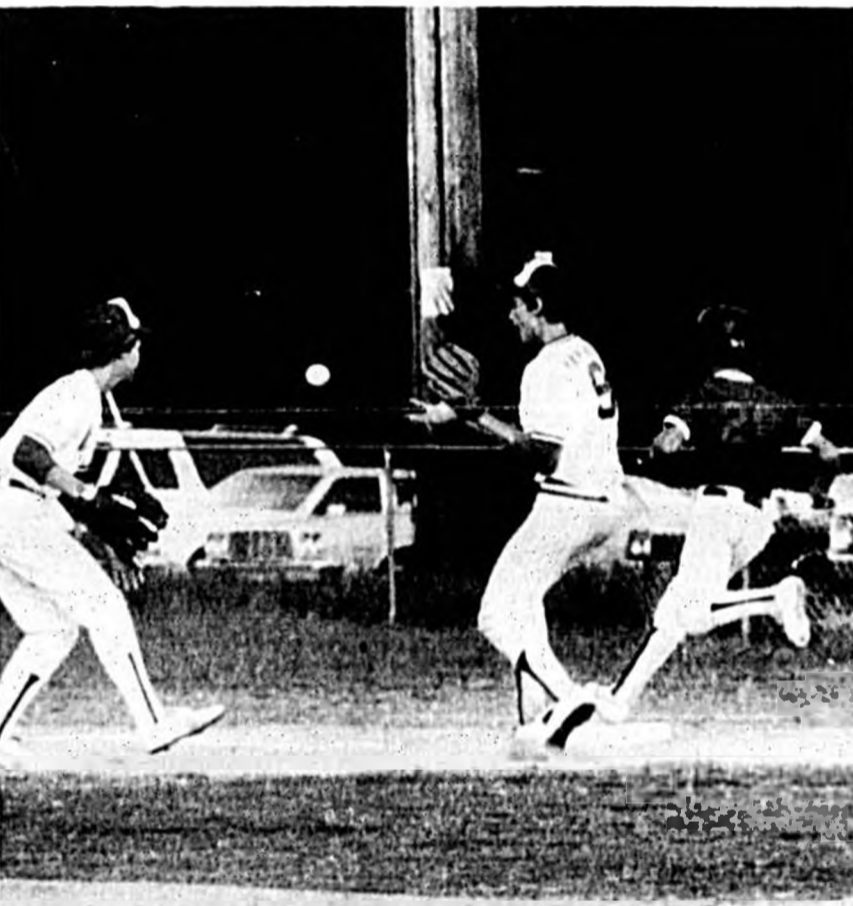

West Volusia again came right back, this time with two runs on Stuart Eve's 375-foot single which chased home both runs.

In the sixth, walks paved the way for two more runs on no hits and in the seventh Harris tripled in a run and scored on an errant pickoff attempt.

Letterio went to right-hander Bill Henley after the fifth inning and Henley nailed down the victory despite giving up two more runs on a Nettles' double in the last inning.

Despite the victory, Letterio was not too impressed.

"I don't care how bad a team is, you've got to hit in those situations," said Letterio. "If we don't hit we're going to be out of this tournament in a hurry."

Seminole Ponies Stampede To Title

By CHRIS FISTER

The Gainesville Pony League All-Star team might be renamed the "Dirty Dozen" after Friday night's game.

Gainesville committed 12 errors, six on errant pickoff attempts, and Seminole's Pony All-Stars scored at least one run in every inning as Seminole ran away with a 10-3 victory and the District Championship at the Seminole Pony Complex near Winter Springs.

Seminole advances to the state tournament which begins July 21 in Tampa. A trio of Seminole pitchers allowed Gainesville only four hits. Starting pitcher Greg Root got the victory as he hurled four innings of two-hit, shutout ball.

A pair of Gainesville moundsmen were hammered for 10 hits but gave up only three earned runs. Starter Chris Van Horn was the losing pitcher.

Seminole was turning walks into triples, and capitalized on nearly every Gainesville mistake.

In the first inning, Jeff Poindexter walked with one out. He went to second on a wild pickoff attempt, stole third and scored on a Gainesville miscue.

Danny Bridges led off the second inning by reaching on an error and went all the way to third on an errant pickoff attempt. Bridges scored on a solid single off the bat of Joe Rintharamy.

In the third inning, Poindexter clouted a double to deep left field, stole third and crossed the plate on Kevin Bass' sacrifice fly putting Seminole up 3-0.

Seminole picked up another run in the fourth as Bridges drew a walk, went around to third on another errant pickoff attempt and scored on Root's single to left.

Seminole made it 6-0 in the top of the fifth as Byron Overstreet led off with a walk, advanced to third on yet another errant pickoff attempt, and scored on Rob Dinkelacker's single. Dinkelacker reached second on a passed ball and scored when the pitcher's pickoff attempt got by the second baseman and rolled into center field.

Gainesville scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth off Seminole reliever Mike D'Amico. Bob Wood drew a one-out walk and stole second. Rich Sureleo also walked, Wood went to third on a passed ball and Sureleo stole second. Wood scored on a single by Van Horn and Sureleo scored on a single by Rod Geiger while Van Horn crossed on an error.

Seminole kept rolling with two more runs in the sixth. D'Amico lined a single, stole second and went to third when Poindexter reached on an error. D'Amico scored on a wild pitch, and after Poindexter stole third base he scored when the catcher's throw got by the third baseman.

The final two runs for Seminole came in the final two runs for Seminole came in the top of the seventh and nailed the coffin shut on Gainesville. With one out, Bridges walked, went to second on a passed ball, reached third when the catcher's throw went into center field and scored when the center fielder's throw got by the third baseman.

Brett Molle followed Bridges' antics with a booming double to the left field fence. Molle then stole third and scored on Mark Coffey's single.

Arrington, Hobbs Combine For Twin's Win Over Chicks

The Orlando Twins got a combined four-hit pitching effort from San Arrington and Jack Hobbs Friday night to post a 5-2 win over the Memphis Chicks at Tinker Field.

Arrington, getting a rare start thanks to the promotion of Bob Mulligan to the Twin's Class AAA squad in Toledo, spaced out four hits over six-and-two-thirds innings while striking out three and yielding just one earned run. Reliever Jack Hobbs mopped up with a scoreless relief effort to help the Twins improve 16-14 in second-half play in the Southern League and remain three games behind front running Columbus.

After Memphis took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on former Florida Stats slugger Mike Fuentes' 28th homer of the year, Orlando bunched five runs in the first three innings to give Arrington all the cushion he needed.

The Twins meet Memphis again Saturday in a 7:30 game at Tinker and face Memphis again on Sunday at Tinker Field.

Court Awards Woman Cash

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — A woman has been awarded $5,000 and a house in Concord from the estate of former New England Patriots' football player Robert Dee by a U.S. District Court jury in a "palimony" case.

The jury decision Thursday came after a three-day trial, in which Nancy Bechard of Portsmouth sought to collect on an oral agreement she allegedly made with Dee about a year before his April 18, 1979 death from a heart attack. Attorneys for Ms. Bechard claimed Dee had promised to guarantee her financial security if she would give up her two jobs and devote full-time to him as a live-in companion and personal secretary.

Johnstone's Late Single Lifts Cubs Over Atlanta

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jay Johnstone's RBI single with two out in the 10th inning delivered Bill Buckner with the winning run Friday, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a rain-delayed 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Junior Kennedy led off the 10th with a single off the leg of reliever Gene Garber, 6-4. After a 2-hour, 19-minute rain delay, Ryne Sandberg doubled off the wall in left center to put runners at second and third.

Buckner was intentionally walked to fill the bases but Leon Durham grounded back to Garber, who forced Kennedy at the plate. Gary Woods, batting for Keith Moreland, grounded to shortstop Rafael

America's Team

Ramirez, who momentarily bobbled the ball before forcing Sandberg at home.

Johnstone then sliced a single down the left-field line to make a winner of Bill Campbell, 2-4, who pitched a hitless 10th.

Atlanta knotted the score at 3-3 with two runs in the sixth. Dale Murphy singled, his third hit of the game, stole second and third and scored on Larry Whisenton's double. Whisenton scored when Bump Wills booted a routine grounder for an error.

Wills singled to lead off the Cubs' fifth, his third hit, moved to second on a sacrifice and advanced to third on a flyout. He scored on Durham's double to put the Cubs in front 3-1.

Wills also scored Chicago's first two runs. In the first, he singled off starter Rick Mahler, stole second, moved to third on a groundout and scored on Buckner's sacrifice fly.

In the third, Whisenton misplayed Wills' leadoff hit into a triple, and then dropped Sandberg's fly to allow Wills to score easily.

Atlanta's first run came in the fourth off starter Allen Ripley when Murphy doubled and scored on Bob Horner's double.

Ryan's Fast Feet, Fleet Fastball Foil Bucs, 4-2

United Press International
Nolan Ryan's feet got as good a workout as his pitching arm Friday night.

"All that base-running can get a man tired," the Houston righthander joked after he scored two runs to give the Astros a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ryan, 9-9, pitched a six-hitter and struck out 11, moving his career strikeout total to 3,384, third on the all-time list. It was the 142nd time in his career he has fanned 10 or more in a game.

"I didn't have as good a curve as normal," said Ryan. "My fastball was excellent and my changeup was really good too."

Pittsburgh would have to agree. The Pirates scored in the first on an RBI single by Dave Parker but got nothing more until it was too late.

"He was on the corners with his fastball and when he does that you're just in a hole all the time," said Mike Easler, who struck out four times.

National League

Larry McWilliams, 5-4, lost his first game as a Pirate, after three straight wins since being acquired from the Braves earlier this year.

In other games, Philadelphia blanked San Francisco, 1-0; Montreal nipped San Diego, 4-3; St. Louis downed Cincinnati, 6-4; Chicago beat Atlanta, 4-3, in 10 innings, and Los Angeles outlasted New York, 7-6.

Seattle's One-Two Punch Slams Door On Birds, 6-0

United Press International
Floyd Bannister and Richie Zisk showed how it should be done Friday night.

Zisk homered, singled twice and knocked in three runs and Bannister fired a two-hitter to snap a four-game losing streak for the Seattle Mariners with a 6-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

"The last five games we haven't done well," said Bannister, whose third shutout of the year tied him for the league lead with Toronto's Dave Stieb and Boston's Dennis Eckersley. "It was nice to get a few runs early — it makes my job so much easier. I threw all my pitches and mixed them well."

Bannister, 9-5, yielded a double to Gary Roenicke in the second and a single to Lenn Sakata in the seventh.

Zisk said the Mariners have learned something from the Orioles.

"Baltimore has shown that if you get good solid pitching and defense you can win," Zisk said. "That's what we're getting — plus some timely hitting."

American League

Baltimore's only threat came in the sixth when, with the bases loaded and two out, Ken Singleton's drive was caught by left-fielder Bobby Brown just in front of the fence.

In other games, Toronto blanked Texas, 6-0, California swamped Cleveland, 15-0, Boston whipped Kansas City, 7-3, New York beat Oakland, 6-2, Milwaukee topped Chicago, 5-3, and Detroit defeated Minnesota, 6-3.

Little Leads Indy Field By 2

Women's Golf

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Sally Little's golf game has been just a little bit off lately and she sat out last week's LPGA tournament in West Virginia to try to put it back on track.

But her problems could not have been THAT serious. She shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take a two-stroke lead through two rounds of the $200,000 LPGA tournament at the Country Club of Indianapolis.

As she put it, the problem with her game "is nothing a 66 won't help."

The 66 tied a tournament record held by Little, Amy Alcott and Cathy Reynolds, and was one stroke off the course record which Little shot in the U.S. Women's Open in 1978.

"It reminded me of my round at the Open," said Little, whose 36-hole total of 7-under-par 137 was two strokes better than Sandra Haynie's 139. "I didn't make many mistakes. I hit a lot of greens."

Little birdied the 16th and 17th holes to make a charging finish Friday, and said she almost holed her third shot on the par-5 16th, which would have given her a tie for the course record.

"I knew I had a good chance to tie the record here, which is a good feeling," said the 30-year-old South African. "This golf course has been very, very good to me."

Haynie was in second place after 36 holes, and Donna Caponi was one more stroke back at 4-under 140 following a 3-under-par 69 Friday. Caponi and Little were the only golfers to break 70.

Tied for fourth at 3-under-par 141 were Sandra Spuzich, Jan Stephenson and Chris Johnson, who was tied for the lead with Haynie and Kathy Hite after the first round.

Hite shot a 74 Friday for a 36-hole total of 2-under-par 142.

Haynie, who ranks second behind JoAnne Carner and just ahead of Little on the 1982 money-winnings list, shot a 1-under-par 71 Friday. That followed a 4-under 68 Thursday — but she is not very happy with the way she has played at CCI.

"I played terrible," said Haynie. "I was very fortunate to shoot 71 today. I did not hit it well at all. Thank goodness for my putter."

The cut was made at 156, but only a dozen golfers who completed two rounds were cut. The staggering heat, near 90 degrees Friday with high humidity, forced some golfers to drop out.

The top 70 golfers were to play rounds today and Sunday.

French, Gussow Qualify To Run

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County has another candidate for a County Commission seat.

Former County Commissioner Bob French, D-Casselberry, Friday qualified to run against Republican County Commission Chairman Bob Sturm of Lake Mary.

French, 48, served on the commission from 1976-1980 when he was defeated by Republican Barbara Christensen of Casselberry.

Since the county has redrawn its commission districts, French now resides in Sturm's district.

French is a native of Seminole County. He is the father of five children, two of whom still live at home — Jennifer, 6, a first grader at Sterling Park Elementary, and Jodi, 16, a sophomore at Lyman High School.

Meanwhile, Fern Park attorney Irving Gussow has filed qualifying papers with the state to oppose Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler in the upcoming elections.

Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. does not as yet have any opposition in his bid for election. Mize was appointed to the bench by Gov. Bob Graham in Jan. 1980.

Dorothy Glisson, state elections officer in Secretary of State George Firestone's office, said no one has yet qualified for the judgeship left vacant when Circuit Judge Richard Muldrew of Melbourne died July 10.

However, two Brevard County lawyers have announced they will seek the office.

Edward M. Jackson, 53, of Cocoa, a native of Brevard County, and Jere Lober, 41, of Merritt Island, have announced their candidacies.

Judgeships are non-partisan offices.

It is unlikely that any Brevard County attorney will run against either Leffler or Mize or that any Seminole County lawyer will run for Muldrew's seat, according to Harvey Alper, a former Seminole County Bar Association president.

Alper said it is generally understood by attorneys in the two counties that five of the 13 judgeships in the circuit will be filled by Seminole countians while eight will be filled by residents of Brevard county.

"Obviously, this is the way the circuit is administered, also," Alper said, noting that the five resident Seminole County judges do not travel to Brevard and the Brevard County judges do not travel to Seminole.

Residents in both counties can cast ballots for all the judicial candidates.

In Seminole, County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, Republican of Altamonte Springs, has not drawn any opposition so far in her bid for reelection to a second term.

The same is true for School Board member Pat Telson of Casselberry.

Sixteen year veteran School Board member Allan Keeth of Sanford is being opposed in his reelection bid by former two-term board member, Jean Bryant, also of Sanford.

And Bill Kroll, completing his first term on the School Board recently announced he would seek reelection, but he has not as yet qualified.

The candidate qualifying period ends at noon Tuesday.

Shuttle Launch Nov. 11

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The tentative Nov. 11 launch of the nation's fifth space shuttle mission will not be moved up; after all because commercial satellite operators said they needed more time, a space agency spokesman said today.

The next mission will take into space two communications satellites, Telesat for a Canadian government-owned firm and one for Satellite Business Systems.

The two firms and the National Aeronautics and Space Agency had tentatively decided to move the Nov. 11 launch date to Oct. 29 when it appeared the firms might be ready to operate the satellites earlier.

But, said NASA spokesman Jim Kukowski, the firms told NASA in the past week that although the satellites will be ready they want to be sure their support operations are ready and wanted to return to the November date.

Lake Mary Police Officer Linda Payne and her police horse, Jetaway, introduce themselves to some of the community's children.

And Kids Love It

Lake Mary Has Its Own Horse Patrol

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Orlando with his police horse patrol has nothing on Seminole County's smallest city, Lake Mary.

Lake Mary has its own horse patrol. Its single member is "Jetaway", a four-year old quarterhorse gelding. And since the "Jetaway" is owned by police officer Linda Payne, and she rides him, the service is not costing the Lake Mary taxpayers anything.

Just recently, Miss Payne and "Jetaway" found after only a 15-minute jaunt in the woods a young runaway who had been missing from his home for three days.

Jetaway, ridden by Miss Payne was shown to city residents at the July 3 "Fun Day". The children were particularly delighted with him.

She said the horse can cover a lot of territory that police cars or even the department's four-wheel drive vehicle cannot, such as orange groves, beach fronts and industrial spots off Lake Emma Road.

Linda bought her horse last September and she has him in training in Orlando. The training is to teach him to permit an officer to discharge a fire-arm while riding him.

Currently, Robson Marine is allowing the department to use a horse trailer free of charge to transport the horse from one location to another. Some of the horse's other needs are paid for through donations, she said.

Linda, 22, has been with the department for 2½ years, since her graduation from the law enforcement program at Seminole Community College.

She is the department's juvenile officer and runs the karate class in the city and does other community work with children.

A native of New Jersey, Miss Payne has lived in Longwood for the past 10 years. She is a graduate of Lyman High School.

Recession Is Deepening?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Analysts disagree whether the renewed surge of wholesale price inflation, like the climb in consumer price inflation that preceded it, is only visiting or is back to stay amid the recession.

The main government measure of wholesale price changes, the Producer Price Index, climbed 1 percent in June, a figure the Labor Department translates into a hefty 13.3 percent annual rate of increase — the biggest since March, 1981.

Economists in and out of government agreed a single maverick development — a turnaround in gasoline prices — was mostly responsible for the dramatic change from May's lack of increase and did not reflect a broad-based rekindling of price pressures.

The Consumer Price Index for May had shown the same dramatic growth, going to a 12 percent annual rate from only 3 percent in April. It was no coincidence, since both indexes were reflecting the very same event — higher gasoline prices two months ago — because their data collection procedures overlap.

The administration economists, like Robert Ortner of the Commerce Department, saw the change upward as only a one-month fluke.

Outside of government economists said the same "fluke" could repeat itself since gasoline prices continued to go up in June and may, in still later reports, be accompanied by anticipated increases in food prices.

Candy Stripers

Student Volunteers Begin New Season

By DORIS DIETRICH

Laughter and merriment filled a section of the spacious cafeteria of the Central Florida Regional Hospital Tuesday night when the hospital Candy Stripers were honored at the annual Installation and Awards Banquet.

Mothers joined their daughters for the genial event which also took on airs of a special mother-daughter fete.

On duty, the pretty Candy Stripers, wearing pink striped pinafore type uniforms, fill a special need at the hospital. They are students who assist the hospital auxiliary in fulfilling duties the dedicated volunteers perform.

Mrs. Muriel Brumbaugh has been the sponsor of the Candy Stripers for more than five years. And Muriel says she "enjoys every minute of it."

CFR Hospital administrator James B. Tesar installed the following officers: Sherry Dykes, DeLand High School, president; Candi Schaeffer, Seminole High School, vice president; Judy Andrews, Seminole High School, secretary; and Pam Brown, Seminole High School, treasurer.

Other students serving as Candy Stripers are as follows: Marthen Baskerville, Seminole High School; Tammi Basso, Seminole High School; Dawn Morgan, Seminole High School; Lynn Peterson, Lake Howell High School; and Michelle Robinson, Seminole High School.

Also: Mary Salvia, Bishop Moore High School; Donna Stevens, Seminole High School; Lisa Vincent, Seminole High School; Tammy Vincent, Bishop Moore High School; and Tina Vincent, Bishop Moore High School. Also: Michelle Wade, Seminole High School; Lori Dunn, Seminole High School; Tracy Hardee, Liberty Christian School; Terri Paris, Oviedo High School; Ida Heaps, Seminole High School; and Eirka Crockett, Seminole High School.

The incoming president Sherry Dykes presented the following awards: a 500-hour pin to Crystal Jamerson; a 400-hour pin to Lisa Vincent; a 300-hour pin to Pam Brown; and a 100-hour pin to Erika Crockett and Lynn Peterson.

Following the banquet and business session, 10 Candy Stripers served as models in a fashion show featuring styles from Lois' Place, Sanford. Lisa Barker, manager, was the fashion commentator, with Lois Dycus, owner, serving as coordinator.

Brown, treasurer; Judy Andrews, secretary; Candi Schaeffer, vice president; and Sherry Dykes, president.

Slim and trim describe the designer jeans and feminine blouse modeled in fashion show by Michelle Wade.

In the fashion show following the Candy Stripers annual banquet, Lynn Peterson showed a casual outfit from Lois' Place.

Dawn Morgan models a colorful print skirt and blouse with a matching orchid ruffled umbrella — just perfect for a summer day to shed either the sun or afternoon showers.

Sharing in the $1,000 check presentation to Pauline "Pete" Kriz, center, are from, left, Alan Edwards of Southway Marketing Inc., Jacksonville; Don G. West, president of Concord

Lake Monroe Woman Wins $1,000 In Recipe Contest

Pauline "Pete" Kriz is on Cloud Nine these days—and with good reason. She was presented a check for $1,000 Tuesday as the first place winner in a recipe contest sponsored by Concord Farms Inc., Concord, N.C.

"It's exciting. It was really great," Mrs. Kriz exclaimed excitedly. "It was my first try at a recipe contest. I couldn't believe it. I couldn't talk for awhile."

Mrs. Kriz, who came to Lake Monroe with her family when she was 3 years old, has lived there all her life. She attended Lake Monroe Elementary School through the eighth grade and then Seminole High School for another four years.

Through the years, Mrs. Kriz says she has won several drawings including a sewing machine at Roumillat and Anderson's, Sanford, after she graduated from high school, and a silver service at the grand opening of Gifts by Nan, Sanford.

Mrs. Kriz said she learned about the contest through refunding. She purchased the duckling at Winn-Dixie, French Avenue and 25th Street, Sanford, which had a refund value of $1. Along with the refund she received a notice of the contest.

According to Debbie Dusch, a spokesman for Concord Farms Inc., the Concord Duckling Florida Recipe Contest was held during mid-February, March and mid-April. Judging was based on simplicity, taste appeal and appearance. The three winners were selected from hundreds of recipes received, Mrs. Dusch said.

Mrs. Kriz said she and her husband, L.J., eat duckling frequently. "My husband and I like duck," she said. "I decided to do something different."

Mentioning that she kept putting off submitting her recipe until the final day—come tax deadline, she laughed at her husband's daily inquiry, "Have you sent that recipe yet?"

Explaining that they have never been to Colorado, Ann was impressed with the beauty of the mountainous state.

He's A 'Good Kid' — But Slovenly

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a 15-year-old boy who stuffs his dirty clothes back in the drawers with his clean clothes and doesn't want to wash his face? This boy is a good kid except for the above. For years I've been trying to get him to wash his face properly. He'll do it for a few days, then go back to his slovenly habits. He gets angry when his dad or I tell him how bad his nose looks because of the blackheads. He could be a very handsome boy with a little effort. I don't nag him about this constantly; I just bring it up every few weeks and keep hoping that the day will come when he'll care enough to do this on his own. He's getting to the age where he likes to do things with his pals. He's planning a fishing camp-out with his friends now, and I told him if he wasn't mature enough to wash his face, he wasn't mature enough to go with his friends. Am I handling the situation right?

Dear Abby

she wants to upset me she threatens to tell my friends. I really try not to wet my bed, but I can't help it. My mom is always complaining about the wash and I feel terrible, but I don't do it on purpose. I guess I must be a very heavy sleeper. I've been to doctors and they all say I will grow out of it. But what should I do now? BED WETTER? DEAR BED WETTER: Ask your mother to get a Wee Alert Buzzer (It's in the Sears catalog). It's a pad that goes under the bedsheet, and when the slightest moisture hits it, the buzzer goes off and awakens you before you wet the bed. I have been recommending it to my readers for years. It's the most effective solution to bed-wetting I have ever found. In the meantime, be assured that you are not alone. Many more kids your age wet the bed than you know, and it's nothing to be ashamed of.

You can have the long nails you always wanted ... Beautiful!

A CARING MOM
DEAR MOM: No. You are using your position of authority to "punish" the boy because you're angry with him for defying you. I know you mean well, Mom, but no boy ever dier of blackheads. Lay off. And one of these days when he wants the bestlooking face he can get, he'll clean up his act. And his nose.
DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old boy who still wets the bed. I am embarrassed about it and would die if my friends found out. My sister (she's 10) holds this over me, and when

Evening Herald

Your community newspaper touches the lives of everyone. Our children are taught to use their newspaper in the classroom to follow current events. Our teenagers are informed of community activities such as sports, entertainment and where their dollar stretches the most through local advertising.

Young and adult couples cash in on advertised bargains, discount coupons, food news and consumer accounts and save money on their family budgets.

Senior citizens on a fixed income treasure the everyday practical advice they obtain from their newspaper. They cannot get around as easily as they used to, so advertised savings and valuable coupons are very important to them. Special interest features, current trends and events keep them thinking young.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, July 18, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY July 18, 1982

This coming year, influential persons could prove quite fortunate for you in furthering your ambitious goals. Don't be shy about contacting any who you think could be of help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a possibility you'll be a slow starter today, yet once you begin something you'll be remarkably persistent in seeing it through. Find out more of what lies ahead for you for each season following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The one thing you don't want to be today is a loner. Involve yourself in a group activity, even though you may not be fond of everyone who participates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can be the catalyst to get the entire family to pull together today in matters relating to their security. Take the initiative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The only thing that could defeat you today would be the negative use of your imagination. Envision events as being successes, not failures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Rather than hide your true feelings today, share what's annoying you with those involved. Handled nicely, everything can be rectified.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-

Dec. 21) Don't prejudice companions or associates today. Chances are, they're working on your behalf. Treat them fairly and they'll do the same for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when you learn that responsibilities you thought to be solely yours are being taken care of by others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's important today to be a gracious winner or a good loser if you are involved or a social sport. Showing class will enhance your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't worry about things which may never happen. Even if they do, you'll be amazed at how well you handle them. You are both lucky and efficient today.

ARIES (March April 19) You should be rather lucky today financially, but either through indifference or an oversight you may not make the most of your opportunities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though this may be a day of rest for most, you should give priority to matters which affect your work or finances. Once they're attended to, relax and enjoy yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although your intentions may not be for personal gain, you could derive extra dividends today from being helpful to others. You get through giving.

For Monday, July 19, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY July 19, 1982

Although the past year may have been a trying one, don't let it influence your attitude toward life. By Christmas time those dark clouds will have moved on, allowing the sun to shine upon you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take care that you don't come on as being too authoritative today. You'll get far more cooperation from the family if you ask nicely instead of issuing orders. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take a closed-mouth position in areas where you lack understanding of situations. There is no shame in not knowing facts, but there can be in foolish expressions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's not like you to make purchases without practical, deliberate consideration, but today you're apt to follow the masses and fall prey to a wasteful fad.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A melancholy attitude could be your worst enemy today. If you hope to achieve anything worthwhile, you'll have to wipe away that gloomy outlook.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're such an intense person and when you decide to think negatively, it can be a humdinger. Don't antagonize yourself with fruitless conjecture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're having problems getting a venture started, perhaps it's time to evaluate whether you are teamed with the right persons. Changes may be called for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Favors are not easily obtained today, especially from those you may never have helped. Don't expect any indulgences and you won't be disappointed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Because you refuse to believe someone or something is not right to accomplish a task, you could repeat an old mistake today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't place yourself in a vulnerable position where a selfish person can take advantage of you today. Be kind, but don't let your generosity be abused.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An uncooperative attitude with the family will not be ignored today. Just because they looked the other way in the past doesn't mean they'll do so now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Heavier-than-usual responsibilities may be placed upon your shoulders today. Pace yourself wisely and you'll handle everything more efficiently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There comes a time when you have to meet those past-due bills. Today may be that day of reckoning. If it hurts, learn from the experience.
