PLANT BOARD'S JOB OF COOPERATION SOUGHT... The most destruction that foreign plant pests can do, once they have gained a foothold, has been demonstrated in this country several times to the distress of thousands of "good farmers and gardeners."

Some travelers, bringing in rare foreign plants or some delicious foreign fruits, have objected to their plants or plant products being confiscated and destroyed, but most travelers cooperate quite willingly with inspectors, once they understand the regulations that might result from bringing in such materials.

Then, too, the Navy argued, why would any power want to attempt a sneak attack with a desperate charge when a bomb at harbor depth, as at Bikini, could accomplish more?

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY
ON THE OTHER HAND SUFFERING FOR UNRIGHTEOUSNESS IS HARD, HARD INDEED, A CLEAR CONSCIENCE IS A MAGNIFICENT BALM: IF YOU SUFFER FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS ASK, HAPPY ARE YOU!—1 Peter 3:14.
 The Fort Myers News Press can't understand the appointment of Averell Harriman as Secretary of Commerce, at least the part about his not being from Mis-issippi. Senator Holland says he is inclined to back Secretary Byrnes foreign policy instead of Senator Pepper's. But we doubt if this will come as any great surprise to Senator Pepper.

 People who are deprived of red meat by government restrictions will find great help in keeping up their health and energy by taking vitamin pills. The B complex pills are especially good as a meat substitute, especially when medium rare.
 Henry Kaiser warmly defends the profit motive as a spur to victory during the war, and no doubt this is true, providing it is legal, but a 4,000 percent profit, as charged by the House committee investigating the Kaiser interests, would hardly seem to be strictly legal.

CIO organizers do not like the treatment they have received in some sections of the South. Seventeen CIO organizers have been assaulted or treated roughly. CIO headquarters in Atlanta charges, "since our organizing drive began." Since when did CIO organizers object to roughness in connection with their operations?
 Speaking of the Clearwater Sun editorial which insists that Senator Pepper politically is as dead as a doornail, the Tampa Tribune says it is evidence "of a mounting wave of anti-Perpetrator sentiment in Florida—a wave which may, however, subside by 1948, when and if the Senator runs for re-election." Unfortunately the Senator doesn't have to run for re-election until 1950.
 Some good common sense advice comes from Comptroller Jim Lee who says that this is no time for an ambitious building program, at least by the various political units of government. A public building program, he says, should be a cushion for labor in time of need where there is apt to be unemployment. "Instead of saying we are trying to compete in a scarce labor and materials market."

Governor Caldwell has lost no time in appointing Spessard Holland to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator Andrews. Although that is no prospect for a congressional session before next January, Florida can do with another senator of Holland's stature at this particular time. He is a good sound, level-headed thinker, neither radical nor reactionary, and can be depended upon to represent the views of the majority of his constituents.
 We suppose there is some truth to President Truman's recent assertion that the country is facing a major emergency, although the Republicans point out that it was only a few weeks ago that the President said there would be no special session of Congress this fall because there was no emergency to warrant it. However, it is worthwhile recalling that there hasn't been an election since 1932 that some great national emergency has not been exploited for the purpose of re-selecting the party in power. The New Dealers seem to thrive on emergencies, when what the country wants is a little respite from them.
 One thing that would do as much to root toward making Sanford a tourist resort as providing reliable accommodations is training store clerks, waitresses, and everyone else who deals with the public to be courteous toward customers, particularly toward strangers who might be tourists passing through. It is a little hard to see in the midst of our midland and possibly because permanent residents. In this time and time when there is as much a scarcity of gentlemen as there is a scarcity of ladies, it is the more appealing in our eyes to see them with respect and consideration.

When Mad Drive With Extra Care

Under the stress of a powerful emotion, such as fear, anger, or grief, a human being is dangerous behind the wheel of a car, states James E. Payne, in the Reader's Digest for October.
 Payne's article, condensed from Future, is based in part on the conclusions of Dr. Herbert J. Stack, Director of New York University's Center for Safety Education, who believes that most unsafe driving results from emotional upsets on the part of the driver. In 1940, the last year of normal driving before the war, 98 per cent of the drivers involved in the nearly 40,000 fatal accidents were experienced drivers. In most cases they were driving in good weather on dry roads. But they broke speed limits, passed on hills and curves, ran through stop lights and raced trains to crossings. Dr. Stack attributes most of this recklessness to the emotional stress of fear, anger, grief, or even joy.
 Emotions produce their lethal effects, the article says, by making muscles tense, upsetting ability to coordinate and dulling the sense of caution. "An angry man takes chances because he doesn't care. A frightened man doesn't realize he's taking chances. A grief-stricken man drives dangerously because his sight and hearing are dulled. An overly joyous man is like a drunk: he feels that he's impervious to danger."
 Instances of fatal or near-fatal accidents, all due to emotional strain, are cited in the article. "You can't stop emotion," the author concedes. "But when you feel emotional pressure rising don't be ashamed to use exaggerated caution."

Rescue Story

The story of the Belgian plane which crashed in the wilderness of New Foundland, and how the survivors were rescued, is one of the moving dramas of the year. The minute word came that the plane was lost, the search began. Coast Guard air men, long practiced in the technique of air-sea rescue, covered the area, mile after mile. They found the plane wreck and saw five persons apparently alive; then the real rescue job began.
 Army medical men approaching by land reached the party, administered first-aid, and requested food, blankets and medicines of the planes cruising above. The flying boats were unable to land in that wasteland of woods and soggy terrain, so two helicopters were packed aboard planes in New York and flown up to the air base at Gander. There they were reassembled for the risky job. The PBV's dropped timbers near the scene of the wreck and a platform was built for the helicopters to alight on. One by one the 18 injured and burned air liner passengers who had survived the accident were gently placed aboard and flown to the nearest hospital, in Gander.
 This was an elaborate operation performed by the Army and Coast Guard together. It called for skill and judgment, on the ground and in the air. The survivors, in spite of their ordeal, had nothing but praise for the men who took care of them and got them out of their helpless position in the isolated, mosquito-ridden spot in the forest. They knew that without question they owed their lives to the expertness of these men, who turned wartime experience to such important peacetime use.

Tires Of The Future

Scientists who spend their time in laboratories stewing up new kinds of rubber say the tire which will wear for 100,000 miles is on the way. They don't have one to show yet, but they're working at it.
 The chemists who predict future tires which will last as long as a car are not yet ready to attach the rubber to the wheel because they have yet to solve the puncture problem. They do have a synthetic rubber tube, though, which is partly self-sealing, enough so to let the air swish through without blowing out the tire all at once.
 These improvements will be fine when they come, but in the meantime just a plain ordinary tire to replace the most slippery, most patched one on the old car would be welcome.

SANFORD FORUM

Editor The Herald:
 West Sanford was an undesirable place to live. Apparently all the undesirables, throughout the County made Thirteenth Street their hang out. Disorder was evident—every where in our community. The decent and respectable people were afraid to walk the streets. It was not good for our children to go about to make purchases to our community stores.
 The Welfare League of West Sanford decided to do something about it. They formed a committee and related the condition to our Chief of Police Roy Williams, who has through the years been considerate of the welfare of our community life. After seeing our need for better police supervision Willie Sutton's name was submitted. It was approved by Chief Williams. Officer Sutton has most certainly improved the condition in West Sanford.
 We wish to commend Chief Williams and the City Commissioners for the help that has been given. We the citizens of West Sanford are by your side in what ever is done to retain Will Sutton and keep from loitering about the streets profanity users and other undesirable.
 The Welfare League wants the citizens and the body that governs the City of Sanford to know; we do not approve of unlawful citizens or law breakers, neither will there be any assistance given by the better class of citizens to encourage these characters. For this would only encourage breeding grounds where bad crimes originate. These crimes when allowed or encouraged will soon spread and make for us a bad reputation. There is any attention to the situation, and then started in on a comparison of Orlando and Sanford, asserting that "Orlando had far outstripped Sanford by its progressiveness, aggressiveness and public spirit—'ness.' Tired Of Waving Arms, Cop Rigged First 'Stop 'n' Go'

AP Newsfeatures JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Do you ever rave and rant when the traffic light turns red? Blame it all on Edward J. Lotsey, former Jacksonville policeman.
 Lotsey, 69, and now a federal court bailiff, is credited with originating the forerunner of the present day traffic signal system. Lotsey was a proud man back in 1913 when he rigged up a communication umbrella and traffic control device that later was to become a standard fixture on city streets. He devised a hand-operated, electrically controlled signal as a labor saving measure.
 "It got awful tiresome throwing my arms around day in and day out, directing traffic," he said. "It set me to thinking."
 The result was a device which, by the flick of a thumb, informed traffic whether to proceed or stop. "A three-cell auto battery operated the lights and a bell," Lotsey recalled. "There were red and green bulbs about the size of Christmas tree lights and a bell to ring for caution."
 Sardines were named after the island of Sardinia.

Mr. And Mrs. Volie Williams, Jr. Honored At Open House Last Evening

Last evening between the hours of 8:00 and 11:00 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Volie A. Williams, Sr. honored their son and new daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Volie A. Williams, Jr. with a beautiful open house affair at their home, 609 Magnolia Avenue.

Mrs. Williams, Sr. wore a gown of royal blue crepe with gold accessories and a corsage of Eddie McFarland roses and tuberoses. Mrs. Williams, Jr. chose a white gown of mousseline de soie fashioned with a moulded bodice and long sleeves that tapered in points over the wrists, with an extremely full skirt that lengthened to form a graceful train. The dress featured a flounce of satin cutwork which formed a bertha over the shoulders and extended in panels down the front of the tucked yoke to the waistline when it lengthened to create a "peplum." Her corsage was of white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Lott, mother of the honoree, chose a becoming model of blue crepe accented by gold necklaces and her flowers were rudiance roses and sweet alyssum.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. J. C. Mick II and escorted to the receiving line by Mrs. W. R. Dixon. The receiving line was formed by Volie Williams, Sr., Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Volie Williams, Jr., Volie Williams, Jr., Mrs. James Watson Pitt and Mr. Lott of Americus, Ga.

D.A.R. Observes Constitution Day

The Sallie Harrison Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Sept. 17 with the regent, Mrs. L. P. Hogan, in observance of Constitution Day.

Mrs. Edgar Mitchell compiled and read a paper concerning the history of the Constitution. She read: Today, Sept. 17, is Constitution Day. Let us turn our thoughts back to those times of 147 years ago. The Constitution was drawn up by an able body of men as ever assembled for a given purpose. Most of them were widely read scholars. Of the 55,029 were college men, and the others included Benjamin Franklin and George Washington.

The greatest achievement of the Constitution Convention was the formation of a plan of government that was theoretically sound and eminently practical. Every word is a word of plain speech, the ordinary meaning of which even the man of the street knows. It is a model of simplicity, and as it flows through the reaches of history it will always excite the admiration of those who love clarity and not rhetorical excesses.

Mrs. Mitchell told of the men who attended the convention in 1787. She closed with the following words of Calvin Coolidge: "To live under the American Constitution is the greatest political privilege that was ever accorded to the human race." Those attending the meeting were Mrs. A. R. Key, Mrs. Hy-

Salvation Army General Arrives In America For Tour Of United States

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 26. (AP) — One of the world's great spiritual leaders, General Albert O. Orsborn, international leader of the Salvation Army, arrived in New York yesterday for his first visit to the United States.

The general, who commands a worldwide army of great tradition serving in 97 countries all over the globe, will also make an extensive tour of this country, Canada, the West Indies and South America.

Like a military field marshal surveying his troops in the midst of attack, General Orsborn is constantly planning the strategy for his army. He is an army of the greatest battle the world has ever known—the battle against sin, despair, hunger, heartache and the countless problems of struggling humanity.

Unlike armies equipped to destroy humanity, the army that General Orsborn commands fights to save humanity. It is an army whose officers and soldiers, speaking 102 different languages and dialects, encircle the globe from the wilds of Africa to the wastelands of Lapland, from the bush of Australia to the jungles of South America. It is an army, symbolic of the blood of Christ and the purifying fire, marching in the front line of two world wars, giving spiritual and material aid to millions of soldiers.

Civic and community leaders will combine with Salvationists to give General Orsborn a welcome in every city he visits. This is indeed a contrast to the reception given Commissioner George Scott Railton and his little band of seven assies when they landed at Old Castle Garden in New York early in March, 1880, where a crowd of curious and skeptical on-lookers laughed at the courageous group of Salvationists.

Many times Salvationists were imprisoned in the United States as well as in other countries when they sought to hold street meetings. Yet these pioneer workers endured untold hardships in their selfless effort to aid mankind. Today they are loved and respected throughout the world.

The growth of The Salvation Army in the United States in the short span of a little more than two generations is almost unbelievable. Here, General Orsborn's army is divided into four territories, Eastern, Southern, Central and Western, each commanded by a Territorial Commander who has under him colonels, brigadiers, majors, adjutants, captains and lieutenants, each heading a corps of soldiers and volunteers.

In the United States alone, he commands over 5,000 officers giving full-time service. Evangelical centers for preaching the Gospel are found in all important cities, and on nearly every street bring spiritual aid to the churchless masses.

Flash Flood Sweeps Through San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 27. (AP) — A flash flood has inundated streets in nearly every section of San Antonio following a heavy cloudburst last night. Two meters swept away with their car when a bridge washed out, and two children are believed drowned in flood waters this morning.

Emergency squads are rescuing families marooned by rising waters throughout the city. Rivers are still rising and the public service board now fears if the San Antonio River goes up much more, it will inundate the Mission Road power plant. That would leave the entire city without electric power.

War Bride Gets Homesick, Takes GI Spouse Home

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., (AP) — A European war bride who's homesick is taking her husband back with her, in a reversal of the usual order.

She is 17-year-old Madeline Jacobs-Falkenstine who met her husband when he straggled into her parents' bake shop in Maastricht, Holland.

Husband Lawrence Falkenstine is a veteran of the Battle of the Bulge.

Madeline wants to return to Maastricht to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs, and her 20-year-old brother at the University of Delft.

Falkenstine said he would accompany his wife and try to land a job as a civilian employe of the government in Europe. He was honorably discharged from the army last February and Mrs. Falkenstine came to this country soon afterward.
