Employers Stand In Line To Sign Recovery Pact—headlines. Employers line takes place of bread line.

As we understand it, President Machado freed some of the Cuban political prisoners, because the jails were getting so full they couldn't hold 'em any more.

Now Jack Garner has become the forgotten man—James Montague. Let's see now, wasn't he the fellow who won the heavy weight championship from Jack Dempsey?

The United States is preparing to spend over $200,000,000 on new battleship construction but Japan has appropriated about $180,000,000 for the same purpose. In view of the fact that a dollar will go a lot further in Japan than it will in the United States, the former can build more ships with its smaller appropriation than we can with ours.

The suggestion that the European nations be allowed to pay their war debts with liquor seems to be gathering momentum. For the American public to consume $11,000,000,000 worth of beverage would certainly leave an awful hangover for this country.

The state of Missouri has the distinction of being the only one in the union to have a death sentence for a woman. William McGowan, who was convicted of murdering his wife, was sentenced to hang.

Know The Code

Much of the confusion and uncertainty which has existed with regard to the President's re-employment code has been materially clarified by the announcement today that the interpretation of such ambiguous phrases as "equitable readjustment of all pay schedules" will be left largely to the individual employers and that the application and enforcement of the code will to a certain extent devolve upon local agencies and local public opinion.

Much additional misunderstanding can be removed as soon as the people realize that the country is confronted not with one code but with literally thousands of separate codes, the provisions of one of which have nothing whatsoever to do with the provisions of another, but that the one main code, and the code with which every employer of labor is primarily concerned today, is President Roosevelt's own blanket code for all business and industry.

Many people are "writing into" the President's code many provisions which actually are not there. They get them out of other codes, the automobile code, or the textile code, or the lumber code, and, probably honestly confused, attribute them to the President's code. The grocer, for instance, is not at all concerned with the textile code, and never will be. Nor is the lumberman concerned with the provisions of the grocer's code. The only code they need to study and apply to themselves is the President's code and, ultimately, the industrial code which will be adopted for their particular line of business.

Another thing which is leading to considerable misunderstanding among all classes of people is the vast amount of rumors and general misinformation which is being circulated, some of it perhaps maliciously, by completely uninformed or disgruntled individuals who have some axe to grind or who are just naturally rumor-mongers. Many of the commonly heard statements about what must be done or what must not be done under the terms of the blanket code have no basis of foundation whatever.

It would behoove everyone to secure a copy of the President's code which was published in The Sanford Herald on Wednesday afternoon, to study it particularly as its provisions apply to each individual case, and also to keep a copy of this code close at hand at all times so that when some self-appointed agent of the federal government undertakes to expound on the requirements of the code, he can at once be confronted with the document itself. That is the law, and cannot easily be explained away.

Undoubtedly many rumors will continue to circulate for some time. In any great emergency, as it was during the World War when many battles were won and lost which in reality were never fought, there are many people who like to talk without knowing what they are talking about. There will be many business houses which will be closed, the rumors will go, for not complying with federal regulations, and many of them, the facts will ultimately prove, have not had the slightest difficulty. All such stories should be taken with a grain of salt.

In the meantime compliance with the President's request should go forward rapidly, and the agreements to raise wages and reduce labor should be promptly signed and put into effect so far as possible. One of the provisions of the code provides that any employer who cannot comply with the letter of the law but who desires to comply with its spirit, may do so by signing the agreement and by setting forth in a petition sound reasons why its strict application in his case would work an undue hardship and prove unreasonable. These petitions will be investigated by local committees and passed on ultimately by the N. R. A headquarters.

The spirit of the law is simply to reduce unemployment and increase minimum wages to a decent living level. No one should object to that.

Snakes Are Useful

The suggestion has been made to the public works administration in Washington that 10,000 jobless men be put to work killing snakes throughout the country. Most all of us who look upon these reptiles with much the same affection as a dog regards a cat, will, at first consideration, say: "A swell idea."

There is something about the slithering form of a snake, with its beady eye and furtive manner, which makes it extremely repulsive to the average individual, so that to call a man a snake is about the most ignominious thing you can say of him. Our dislike is not based on the fact that certain snakes are poisonous and might cause us bodily harm but more because of the "general nature of the beast."

However, it may surprise many that the snake is, aside from rare poisonous bites, a great benefit to mankind. It is one of the worst enemies of rodents. It eats weasels, gophers, chipmunks and such things detrimental to the welfare of the farmer. It is declared that if it were not for snakes, field mice would soon destroy much of the grain crops.

It is for this reason that objection has been raised to the idea of a blanket campaign against all snakes. Those who know point out that such a drive would be disastrous. It is true that objectionable poisonous snakes would suffer but it is also true that many others which are beneficial and necessary would be eliminated.

The whole thing goes back to the idea that man cannot voluntarily and wretchedly change the laws of nature. He cannot cut down the forests without increasing the food danger. He cannot kill all the birds without having an avalanche of bugs and worms. He cannot build a seawall along the ocean without losing his beach. And he cannot kill all the snakes without suffering from the devastation of rodents and the like.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

The majority of the people of Sanford are heartily in favor of bulkheading the lake front and at the next meeting of the city council some action on this important matter will be taken. Ten years ago there were something like 10,000 automobiles in use in the United States. The number has increased now until there are nearly a million automobiles and over 10,000 trucks. The increase in the use of automobiles in this country in 1933 over 1932 is estimated at 25 percent. The sidewalks of Sanford Florida will be started in a few weeks as the city council has ordered plans to be built at once. These sidewalks will be a great improvement in this flourishing suburb. Miss May Thrasher made her first trip alone recently when she went to visit her grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Perkins, at their home in Rustie, she was quite proud of the exploit which she plans to repeat. J. H. Overman has succeeded in launching his new boat with appropriate ceremonies. Arthur Yowell breaking a bottle of Coca-Cola over the prow and W. J. Higgins pronouncing the name in a loud voice. The boat will be named the Progress and will be used in surveying all the fish out of the Water. Mrs. Cross Barnes was the charming hostess of the Every

MONTANA SEEKS HEAD OF PUBLIC TO INSURE HOME WORKS BOARD TO OWNERS IN STATE STAGE MEETING

Absolute Security Is Purpose Of Revolutionary Proposals

HELENA, Mont.—In the hope of making absolute security for the American home a part of the "new deal" of the present administration, a plan is being prepared here looking toward freedom from taxation and immunity from liens of all kinds for property used as a home. This revolutionary scheme, developed on the ideal that a home once acquired should be permanently insured against loss, is being sponsored by I. M. Brandjord, commissioner of state lands and investments for Montana, who has had a hand in several other important pieces of legislation.

Mr. Brandjord hopes to have his project introduced in the next session of Congress, believing it must be made a federal issue to accomplish its purpose. The idea of exempting the home from taxation, which is one of the basic features of the plan, is not entirely new, Mr. Brandjord declares, but other features, such as making it impossible to place a mortgage on a home once the home has been acquired in full ownership, he declares to be entirely new.

To accomplish absolute security for the home, Mr. Brandjord urges, government "must extend well-planned aid toward actual, full, unencumbered home ownership; make the home exempt from taxes of all kinds; make it legally impossible to place a mortgage on it, or to hypothecate or pledge it in any manner whatsoever for the payment of debts; make it legally exempt from liens of all kinds, and from attachment, judgment and execution."

Such a plan, he admits, cannot be put into complete operation overnight, but may require 10 years of gradual development; however, the time to begin was never more propitious, he adds, considering the other things being attempted in the "new deal." Mr. Brandjord makes it plain, of course, that the provisions against mortgaging and otherwise encumbering the home would apply only after it had been fully acquired, and that aid in acquiring homes, either from the government or building and loan associations, still would be necessary. "It would, however, be a crude blunder to calculate the value of home security in the terms of dollars alone," he points out. "The reaction on the life of each person of the family so protected would have more subtle values which cannot be calculated in cash. It would give to the old folks a sense of security in their declining years which they do not now enjoy. It would add to the freedom, the dignity and the richness of their lives. It would give them the opportunity and incentive to do useful productive work under conditions of the fullest freedom."

and recently appointed member of the State advisory committee on the federal public works program in Florida, yesterday said the committee soon will hold an organization meeting and make every effort to speed up the program in this state. Other members of the committee are Thad G. Buckner, of Jacksonville, and William H. Burwell, of Miami. This committee will pass on all applications for federal public works funds in Florida and make recommendations to Monroe Johnson, regional administrator at Atlanta. Treadway, who returned to his office here yesterday after two weeks' vacation, said about 50 applications for public works funds have reached him thus far. Many of them, he explained, were turned over to him by the Florida Agricultural and Industrial Relief Board, which was created by the 1933 Legislature as agent to act between the people, the state, and the federal government. Applications now in his possession, Treadway said, include requests from both public and private interests, there being a number from Florida municipalities seeking to start or complete improvements. The highway commission, at its meeting at Miami Aug. 3, he said, will approve a road construction and improvement program extending into 60 counties and financed by federal funds. Florida recently received about $5,500,000 in emergency federal aid road funds in addition to about $1,000,000 in regular federal aid road money. All projects, Treadway said, must be approved by federal authorities, after being recommended by the State Highway Commission. Most of the work, he added, was placed in the Road Department's 1933 budget last February, with the understanding it would be done if funds became available. Some brand new road projects will be undertaken, he said, but most of these will be roads of a secondary or "feeder" nature.

Un-Employment In England Shows Big Decline This Year

LONDON.—In the first half of 1933 unemployment in Britain decreased 508,000, according to the latest government statistics. Added significance attaches to the figures because the increased employment at the end of June was recorded when the time for seasonal jobs has passed. In June 135,000 additional men found occupations. The announcement of the Ministry of Labor says improvement is most marked in iron and steel manufacturing, shipbuilding and ship repairing, metal goods, textile industries, distributive trades, and the hotel, boarding-house, road transport, shipping dock and harbor services. Increases of 10,000 in the general engineering and 11,000 in the cotton textile industry are regarded as promising signs.

Wife Says Banker Never Recovered From Son's Death

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—Joseph W. Harriman never recovered from the shock of his son's death in 1928, the banker's wife testified yesterday at a hearing to determine if Harriman is mentally competent to stand trial on an indictment charging falsification of accounts. The white-haired wife of the man who founded the Harriman National Bank & Trust Company, said their son, Alan, was killed in an automobile accident. "That was a shock from which

Palace Now University

What To Do With Va. Beach Palace Has Been Public Puzzle

MADRID, July 29.—King Alfonso's former summer residence, the palace of La Magdalena at Santander, has been converted into an international summer university and the first course began last month. What to do with the various palaces in Spain was one of the problems which confronted the king when King Alfonso left in April, 1931.

After the fall of the monarchy, all the magnificent crown properties were taken over by the republic, including the palaces of Madrid, Avila, La Grana, El Pardo, Rio-Frio, the famous Escorial, one of the most remarkable buildings in Europe, which comprises a monastery, a church, a palace and a museum; the Alcazar of Seville, a palace comparable in interest and beauty with the Alhambra of Granada; and the royal palaces and residences at Spain's premier seacoast resorts, Santander and San Sebastian.

The royal palace at Madrid, the most important of all, now known as the "palacio nacional" is the official residence of the president of the republic. At least, Alcala Zamora has a suite of rooms there where he conducts his official business during the day, but he prefers to sleep in his private residence in November, 1931, the greater part of the Madrid palaces were thrown open to the public as a means of payment of an additional tax on one of the crown's treasures. Money in the world's most priceless tapestries, about 400 pictures, including the best of Goya's best, jewels, furniture and an armory which is supposed to be the best collection of the world's armory.

It is reported that the arrangements being made by the republic that most of the palaces are to be used as museums.

Attention is to be made with the palace of La Magdalena, the king's summer residence at Santander. This palace is situated about two kilometers from old Santander, on the highest point of a peninsula jutting out into the sea on one side, and the beautiful beach of the Sardinero on the other. Besides the palace and other buildings there are large pine trees, a beach and pier, tennis and polo grounds. King Alfonso and the royal family usually passed July and part of August in this palace.

The so-called international summer university, established under the auspices of the Ministry of Education, has invited professors, lecturers and students from Spain and other countries to participate in a ten-week course of general studies, the intention being to promote the ties of good fellowship between different nations through the daily intercourse of those who are dedicated to intellectual pursuits.

The lectures at the international university will be given by professors from Spanish universities and will be attended by more than 200 Spanish university students. It is a unique occasion, therefore, for any one desiring to get in touch with Spanish university life at a time of the year when all the other Spanish universities are closed for the summer vacation.

The international summer university of Santander is organizing general courses on various literary and scientific subjects. These are intended primarily for Spanish students, but they may be attended by foreign students, if desired. Apart from these courses, the university has taken charge of the courses for foreign students which have been conducted

Fines And Prison Terms Likely For Code Violations

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP)—Both fines and prison sentences are provided by the national recovery law for violations of codes of competition.

There is a fine of $500 for each violation of the terms of a code approved and promulgated by the President. No provision is made under this section for imprisonment, but each day that the offense continues is regarded as a separate violation.

Also, violation of any standard set by a code is considered a breach of the federal trade commission law, punishable like any violation of the anti-trust statutes.

When the President finds it necessary to impose licenses on any business because of activities contrary to the policy of the industrial law, persons who continue operating their business without obtaining a license are liable to be fined not more than $500, or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, each day again to be considered a separate offense.

Violations of regulations promulgated by the President, such as those now set up for amplification of the voluntary re-employment agreements, also are punishable both by the $500 fine and six months imprisonment, but no provision is made for each day of violation being considered a separate offense.

This last provision has been interpreted at the recovery administration as applying to any one fraudulently displaying the blue single insignia devised for those who sign the re-employment agreement.

BARWICK, GA.

The population of Barwick, save for a few of the old folk, is traveling en masse to the Chicago Fair, Niagara Falls and points south in celebration of a profitable watermelon crop.

Their mode of transportation is a big produce truck rigged up with comfortable seats, electric lights and huge placards on each side proclaiming to the world that they're from "Barwick, Ga., heart of the Georgia watermelon."

Citizens of the town have just finished shipping 300 carloads of melons for which they were paid $45,000. Such wealth put them in a traveling mood, particularly the young folk. Somebody mentioned the World's Fair and the idea spread like wildfire through the town.

C. R. Simmons, a merchant, wrote the Chicago hotels for rates and one of them came right back with a long distance telephone call. A telephone call from Chicago. The cry rang through the town, for such a thing is an epoch in Barwick.

The hotel said it would give good rates and that settled everything. And so the celebrants started packing for the trip.

Incidentally, if the Chicago hotels run a short of victuals, they can call on the Barwick folks for a little help. In the truck were stored a dozen juicy hams, a stock of fat hens, many crates of tomatoes, canned goods, coffee, tea, sugar, a dozen cakes, 15 pounds of onions and a jug of grandma's blackberry cordial just in case somebody gets sick.

Twenty-four persons, the bulk of Barwick's population, are in the party.

Shopping with YOURSELF

IN MANY of our larger cities shopping has become a profession. Experienced women who know the stores and shops, who know merchandise and values have gone into business as "Shopping Guides."

To a stranger, a trip with one of these professional shoppers is a great saver of time and trouble. No matter what the visitor wishes, her Shopping Guide knows just where to go—for quality, materials, styles, sizes, prices, specialties.

And where do these professionals get their information? They are probably the world's most conscientious and thorough readers of daily newspaper advertisements.

Clever? Yes! But any woman can be just as smart. Just turn to the advertisements in this paper and let them be your Shopping Guide. No professional shopper can take you to more reliable or smarter stores than the ones that advertise in this paper. No professional shopper can give you such accurate or intimate details about merchandise, about newness, about style, about quality, about bargains.

The merchants and manufacturers who advertise in this paper are dependable. You can believe in their advertisements. They have spent their money to tell you what their expert buyers know to be the truth about the merchandise they have selected for you. Their salespeople know their goods intimately.

Study the advertisements. Make a list of the things you need and the stores where they may be had. Be your own professional shopper.

Designs For Right Living Said Must Come From Bible

CHICAGO (AP)—Designs for right living must be founded upon teachings of the Bible, Dr. F. F. Plotenhauer, president of the Missouri Lutheran Synod, recently told the International Waltham League Convention.

Addressing 4000 youthful adherents to the Lutheran faith from 26 states and 15 foreign nations gathered for the league's forty-first international convocation, Dr. Plotenhauer reviewed the religious principles of the Reformation which insisted upon the Bible as the sole guide for conduct and faith.

U. S. Has Its First Unfavorable Trade Balance Since '31

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The first unfavorable trade balance since August, 1931, was shown recently in export and import figures for June announced by the Department of Commerce. Exports amounted to $109,900,000, while imports amounted to $122,000,000. In August, 1931, there was an excess of imports of $1,871,000.

For the six months ended with June this country had a favorable trade balance of $77,544,000, compared with $93,238,000 in the same six months of last year.

In the 1933 period exports totaled $669,478,000 and imports amounted to $591,931,000. The United States lost $3,244,000 in gold in June, having exported $4,380,000 and imported $1,136,000.

It gained, however, $15,129,000 of silver, importing $15,472,000 and exporting $343,000. For the six months of the year gold exports have been far below the imports, with a total of $93,703,000 going abroad and $182,514,000 coming into this country.
