First Street Gallery display open

SANFORD — The First Street Gallery's latest display is now open to the public. Seven prominent area photographers are displaying 21 separate works of art. The gallery's first invitational photographic show was opened during a special reception this past Friday, attended by over 200 persons. Among photographers displaying their works are Anna Tomczak of Lake Helen, Bob Eginton, Patty Margerum, Steve Vaughn, Randy Smith, Linda Bulmer and Peter Schreyer. While most of the works are in the photographic area, some include paintings on photos, which add a different character to the works.

The display is now open to the public, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Tuesdays through Fridays, and 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturdays. There is no charge for admission. The First Street Gallery is located at 203 E. First Street, in the heart of the downtown Sanford historic district. For information on the gallery, phone 323-9178.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The outside, right lane of Interstate 4 between State Roads 434 and 436 will be closed Monday and Tuesday nights beginning at 8 p.m. Crews will be placing beams across the interstate for the Central Parkway bridge. The lanes will reopen at 6 a.m. the next morning.

Beasley house taking shape

SANFORD — Twenty volunteers, who are employees of four Seminole County branches of Barnett Bank spent the day Saturday helping build a home for Ella Beasley. Thanks to those volunteers and the Habitat for Humanity organization, Beasley's new home, built on the same property as her present dilapidated home, will cost her nothing.

The volunteers converged on the site, at 1516 West 18th Street, to work on the walls and roof of the new house. Beasley, a disabled widow who is helping raise three children, lives in a structure next to the new house.

Her present house, which was built some time before 1949, will be torn down when the new one is completed. Habitat for Humanity in Seminole County is dedicated to "removing all the shacks" from the county, according to Don Nolt, who heads the local effort.

Beasley's house is one of two projects currently being undertaken in Sanford. The projects are provided for by volunteers, like those from Barnett Bank who are working on Beasley's house and supporters of Habitat for Humanity.

Ticket sold in Miami wins jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — A single ticket purchased in Miami has won the estimated $6 million jackpot from latest drawing of the Florida Lotto game, lottery officials said. Computer records showed that ticket was the only one sold for Saturday night's Lotto drawing that matched all six winning numbers — 6-8-34-44-47-48. Lottery Secretary Marcella Mann said.

SCC prof takes a look at future through video

Dr. Pat Fitzgerald who heads the honors program at Seminole Community College takes his job very seriously, but he has a lot of fun with it just the same.

"I really enjoy what I'm doing," he admitted. Before he arrived at SCC four years ago from Logan Community College in Carterville Ill., school administrators had relegated honors classes to the status of options to be added to the regular curriculum.

"That's how it is done at most community colleges," Fitzgerald said. Fitzgerald worked with Barbara Hunnicutt to develop a full honors curriculum using the integrated team approach.

"I'm a charter member of the Florida Honors Council and I'd have to say that our interdisciplinary approach to teaching is looked upon as exemplary," Fitzgerald said.

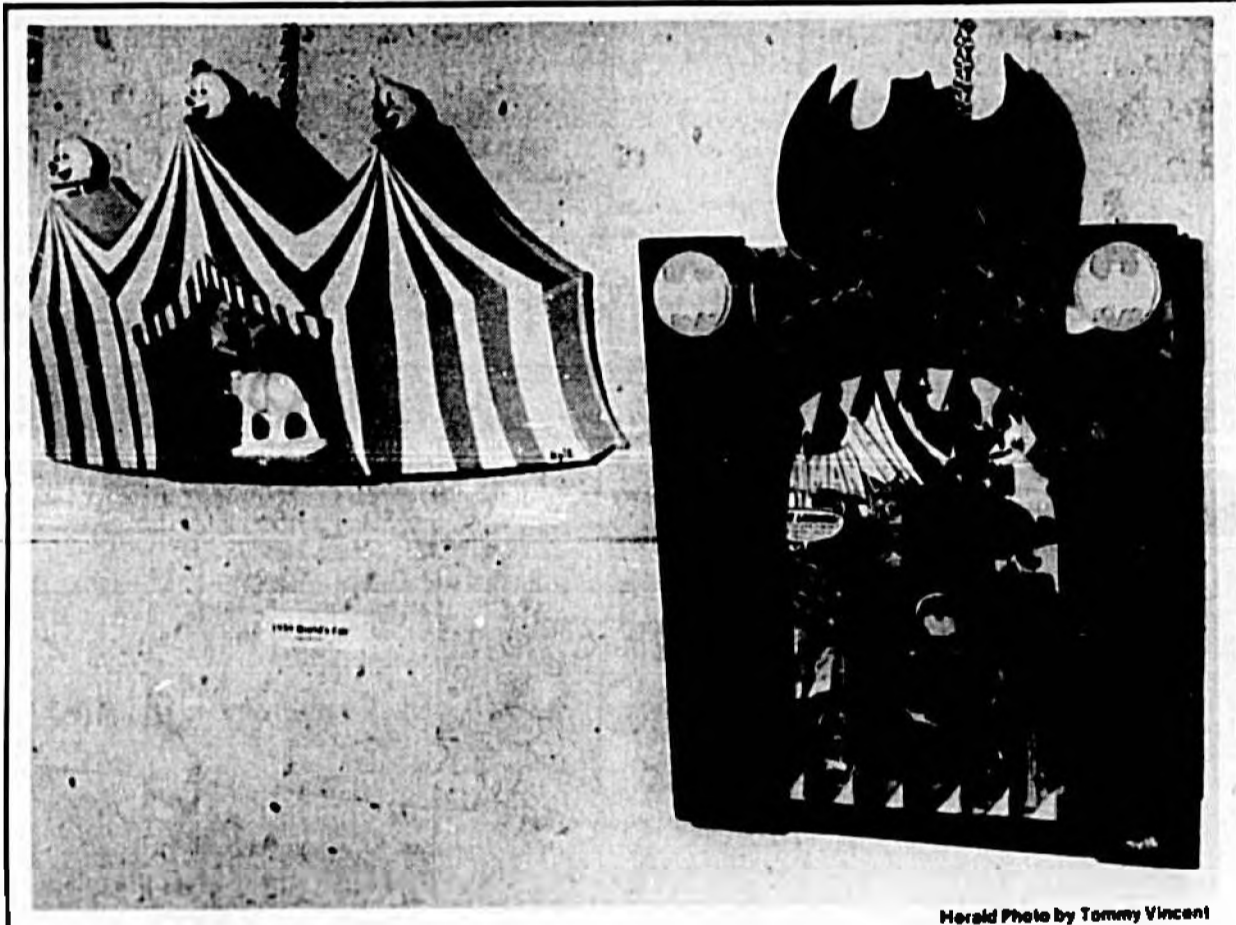

He said that he leaves much of the day-to-day operation of the honors program to Hunnicutt so

'Saturday Afternoon at the Movies' is on exhibit at Lake Mary City Hall

Batman, dinosaurs on display in Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — A new art exhibit is on display in the lobby of the Lake Mary City Hall. It is highly unusual for many, ignites the memory to various levels.

Jeff Henley, who uses the professional name "Kyle", is displaying eight of his mixed media works. They combine painting and sculptures, in presentations that depict present as well as past television adventure programs.

The exhibit is part of 20 in a series referred to by Kyle as "Saturday Afternoon Movies." Shown in the Lake Mary display are Batman, Flat Top & Itchy from the old Dick Tracy programs, and several others that range from prehistoric dinosaurs to futuristic spacemen such as those in the work entitled "The Man from Planet X".

Kyle presently lives and works at the Maitland Art Center, where he is employed as a caretaker. He recently graduated with a degree in arts from the University of Central Florida. "I hope to eventually get my Masters of Fine Arts, specializing in Painting and Sculpture," he said. "But at the present time, UCF doesn't offer it." He said he intends to remain in Central Florida until such a course becomes available. "I love my job here at the Maitland Center," he said. "It keeps me in direct contact with top artists in the area and provides me with ideal working conditions." Eventually, he wants to teach at the university level.

According to reports, Charles W. Cooper, a worker on board the train, and brakeman Ronnie Sallie, said they saw an object on the tracks in front of the train, but did not realize it was a person until the train was only 10 feet away. They said they attempted to make an

Free basketball clinic open to community youngsters

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — "Defense! Defense! Defense!" shouts Gary Mathews to the pair of young boys shuffling across the concrete basketball in the gymnasium of the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club on Persimmon Avenue in Sanford.

He gives a short blast on his whistle and the two scurry back to the line and another duo takes off on a defensive drill.

Mathews said that as coach of the Boys and Girls Club teams, he has noticed that while a lot of youngsters want to play the game, most lack the basic skills.

Mathews has started a month-long Saturday basketball clinic for youngsters 14 and under. "We wanted to give these kids the basic skills so they could learn to really play the game," he said. Mathews, assisted by former Seminole High School basketball player Robert Moore, is starting from scratch with the kids.

Moore, who will play for Seminole Community College next year, demonstrated to the youngsters how to dribble, how to defend against an opponent and how to shoot the ball.

"We're offering them discipline too," Mathews said. Those youngsters who failed to adhere to the simple ground rules set down by Mathews were made to run laps around the gym. Loud whistle blasts were frequent.

Mathews' gentle voice and Moore's demonstrations and words of encouragement helped give the ten young boys who were in attendance on Saturday morning the start they needed in learning to play the game.

Mathews said he hoped to have more youngsters each week and if the program were successful enough, he hoped to continue with it next month.

Miss Florida named

DAVIE — Sharon Belden, a 25-year-old actress and model who appeared on "The New Leave It To Beaver Show" as Beaver's son's girlfriend, has won the Miss Florida pageant. Miss Belden, of North Bay Village, beat out 63 other finalists representing cities throughout the state Saturday night for the chance to become the 1992 Miss USA next February. "I've been preparing for this pageant for almost a year... it's a dream come true," said Miss Belden, who is majoring in interior design at the Art Institute of Fort Lauderdale and wants to become a yacht designer upon graduation. Miss Belden will get more than $50,000 in cash and prizes. Selected as first runner-up was Julie Ogle of Tampa. Susan Rogers from Orlando was the second runner-up. Shannon Mack from Yalaha was voted Miss Photogenic and Susan Naakrant of Hallandale was voted Miss Amity.

Gardner wants to name replacement

TALLAHASSEE — Tom Gardner, the embattled chief of the Department of Natural Resources, has lobbied Gov. Lawton Chiles to consider hiring his top assistant to replace him if he resigns, a newspaper reported. Virginia Bess Wetherell was summoned to a private 15-minute meeting with Chiles at the governor's mansion Friday after Gardner told his staff she was interested in the job. "I'm interested and I would put in an application if and when it opens up," said Ms. Wetherell, adding that Gardner has encouraged her to seek the position and told her he thinks she would do a good job. She told The Tampa Tribune for Saturday's editions that the governor made no commitments and indicated there were other candidates.

Accused prostitute's defense planned

MIAMI — Attorney Ellis Rubin plans to defend accused prostitute Kathy Willets by showing she's a nymphomaniac who needed many sex partners and now says there were other factors. Rubin says her husband Jeffrey, who allegedly pimped her services, is impotent. "I did not make this up," the Miami attorney said. "Jeff had spells of impotency, and Kathy was hypersexual. You can imagine what went on." Rubin reached his conclusion after interviewing the Tamarac couple Friday and after doing research that included reading Masters and Johnson's Human Sexual Inadequacy. Jeffrey Willets, 41, a suspended Broward sheriff's deputy, often spied on his wife in bed. The men she entertained were surrogate partners, and watching them was therapy for him, Rubin said. "What happened to the Willets was right out of the textbooks, and they didn't read any of the textbooks," Rubin said.

Nominees for PSC vacancy named

TALLAHASSEE — Two former state senators and a government lawyer have been nominated for a state Public Service Commission vacancy created by the death of longtime commissioner Gerald Gunter. The nine-member PSC nominating panel on Friday forwarded the names of John Vogt, Pat Frank and Susan Clark to Gov. Lawton Chiles, who has 60 days to make his choice for the $90,000-a-year position. Vogt, of Merritt Island, was Senate president from 1987-88 while still a Democrat. He switched to the Republican Party after leaving the Legislature and ran unsuccessfully in 1990 for Congress. Frank, from Tampa, served in the state House for two years and the Senate from 1978-88. In 1990, she ran for lieutenant governor on a ticket with George Stuart — now secretary of the Department of Professional Regulation — before Stuart dropped out of the governor's race. Clark, of Tallahassee, is currently the PSC's general counsel. The five-member PSC regulates Florida utilities, including electric and telephone service. Gunter, who had served since 1979, died in June following a heart attack.

Judge follows jury's recommendation

MILTON — A judge has followed a jury's recommendation and sentenced a Florida Panhandle man to life in prison for murdering a state attorney's investigator. He could have received the death penalty. Circuit Judge Nancy Gilliam ordered the sentence Friday for Patrick "Sonny" Salgat, 38, for the June 18, 1990 shooting death of investigator Steve Bolyard in the Gulf Breeze home of Salgat's former girlfriend. Gilliam sentenced Salgat to life without parole for at least 25 years for first-degree murder to be followed by two concurrent unlimited life terms for attempted murder of the ex-girlfriend, Charlotte Blevins, and burglary of an occupied dwelling. She also sentenced him to 15 years for shooting into a dwelling and use of a firearm during a felony.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Injured workers protest benefits

Associated Press

NAPLES — Florida's workers' compensation law is fine in principle, but in reality, injured employees are being denied benefits they should be getting, demonstrators at a rally said. "These people don't have the money or resources to affect the legislators," said Naples attorney Dale Krout. "They're the least vocal people out there, the least likely to create waves. (Cutting benefits) was potentially the easiest thing to do."

Some 50 demonstrators rallied Saturday for changes in the state's workers' compensation law. The demonstration was organized by a grass roots group, which collected nearly 50 signatures on a petition for changes in the state's workers' compensation insurance law. Injured Workers of Florida plans to set up chapters in various areas, said Trudy Kinney, Kinney and her husband, Gerry Kinney, an injured worker, helped spearhead the rally. The chapters will gather statistics and work to change the laws, said Kinney. Lawmakers rewrote the workers' comp law in 1989, then revised it again in 1990 and 1991 in the wake of skyrocketing workers' compensation premium rates. Some employers were shelling out more than 50 cents in premiums for every dollar in payroll, and the costs were threatening to put some out of business. Jim Brainerd, an attorney with the Florida Chamber of Commerce in Tallahassee who helped draft the law, said he thought it was "working very well." Premium rates were decreased last year by 25 percent and although insurers may request an increase next January, it won't be the 80 to 85 percent increase that might have been needed without the changes. Insurance rates can't go down unless costs go down, he said. "We never intended to hurt somebody who's looking for a job."

Parents of transfusion-infected baby want identity of AIDS donor

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — The parents of Baby Doe aren't satisfied with knowing that the donor whose blood gave their infant AIDS is likely dead. They want to know the donor's name. But state law says the parents don't have the right to know who donated the pint of blood that infected their infant. They aren't even entitled to find out for sure if the donor has since died. Baby John Doe and his parents ran into the law in 1989 when they filed suit in Palm Beach County against the American National Red Cross, the South Florida Blood Service and three hospitals — two of them later dropped. For two years, the suit bogged down as attorneys repeatedly collided with confidentiality requirements. "The Does should be able to see this person, eyeball to eyeball, how good the screening process was," said attorney Jeffrey Liggi, who represents the Does in the suit, transferred last week to Circuit Court in Broward County. "But the Supreme Court says they can't." In 1987, the court ruled that protecting donors' names is of the "utmost public interest," overriding other concerns. Liggi and the Doe family discovered recently — through unofficial means — that the unnamed donor is dead, presumably from AIDS. But even with the donor's death, they are stymied at nearly every turn by a system designed to protect the identity of blood donors at all costs. "This is the leprosy of our generation, but we're up against this conspiracy of silence," Liggi said. "It's made things extremely difficult." The family has invoked its own shield of anonymity, fearful of the rejection that public disclosure has brought others in the past. "The Does don't want to be another Ray family," Liggi said. "There are people out there who wouldn't let their children play with the Doe child or even go to the same school, if this came out. These people are deathly afraid of that happening to them." The Rays, of Arcadia, were ostracized when it became known in 1986 that their three hemophiliac sons contracted the AIDS virus from transfusions. A public school tried to ban the boys, and someone burned the family's house. In 1987, the family moved to Sarasota to escape the hostility. The Doe child, like the Ray brothers, contracted the disease when government regulation of blood products was just beginning. Until 1985, blood was screened with the ELISA test, which was extremely sensitive to AIDS antibodies but also produced many false results. The U.S. government licensed a new, highly accurate test — the Western Blot — in the spring of 1985 and ordered blood suppliers to use it.

'Mercy killer' home one year

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — It's been a year since so-called Mercy killer Rowell Gilbert came home a free man, and some of his friends wonder if he didn't just change one prison for another. Gilbert was released from a life prison term on Aug. 2, 1990, after politicians and an ex-prosecutor agreed that he didn't need to die in prison for killing his wife, Emily, 73, who suffered from Alzheimer's and osteoporosis. But in many ways, say worried friends, Gilbert, 82, remains a prisoner of age, health and loneliness in his retirement condo in South Florida. "Any widow or widower can tell you that you can die of loneliness in these apartments," said one good friend, Lillian Irvin. "They are another type of prison." Gilbert, a retired electrical engineer, still lives in the 10th-floor condo he shared with Emily for 18 years, until he put a pistol to her head as she slept. "He talks about Emily all the time," said Jackie Rhodes, another close friend.

Two lawmakers: Politicians and businessmen

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A federal program designed to steer business at airports to minorities has led to lucrative contracts with companies owned in part by two state lawmakers. But the two Democratic legislators said political clout didn't have anything to do with the business deals. "I think the story is that Jim Hargrett runs a company in the finest airport in the world, that Marriott-Host has a hard time keeping up with," Rep. James Hargrett of Tampa said. "My contribution was to be the local partner because of my ties to the community," Rep. Alzo Reddick of Orlando said. "My prominence gives credibility. In terms of winning the contract, it played no role." Hargrett and Reddick have stock in airport concessions in their cities valued at $140,000 and $500,000, respectively. In Hargrett's case, his initial investment in 1988 was $3,500. Reddick said he invested no money. Paul Curtis of Tampa, a regional representative of the National Association of Minority Contractors, expressed some

Lawmaker accepted help to finance speaker bid

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The Panhandle lawmaker in line to become Florida's next House speaker accepted more from special interests — $65,000 — than either of his two predecessors in his bid for the leadership post. Rep. Bolley "Bo" Johnson, D-Milton, said running for House speaker is expensive because it entails flying throughout the state to meet with lawmakers, which racks up bills for air fare, hotels and entertainment. "It got to a point where expenses came to an amount I could not afford, and I didn't want to charge them to the state," Johnson told The Tampa Tribune in a story published Sunday. "I felt for me to gain support, I would have to travel more. It wasn't always pleasant... but I was willing to make that commitment." But a government watchdog said the fund-raising method used by Johnson in his bid for the leadership position lacks accountability and increases the corrupting influence of money on politics. "The horror is in how much money special interests are giving to those people and what they're doing with that money," said Bill Jones, executive director of Common Cause of Florida. "I have serious problems with that." Johnson's account of his expenditures satisfies state law, Jones said, but he says the law needs to be changed to provide greater accountability. "The book needs to be rewritten," he said.

invested no money and isn't responsible for the $1.7 million loan to start Concessions International of Orlando. He was made vice president of the company when it was formed in 1986. The co-owners operate concessions elsewhere and are responsible for the Orlando business. Reddick said he had no previous experience in the restaurant business, but he's now planning to open a sandwich shop in Orlando. The 1990 financial disclosure form Reddick filed as a state lawmaker shows he owns 250 shares of stock in Concessions International of Orlando valued at $500,000. Reddick said Concessions International Inc. asked him to be their local representative in return for an interest in the Orlando airport. Bill Jennings, the airport's operations manager, said Concessions International hires a local businessman to represent it at each of the company's other operations. "The fact that they have Alzo Reddick... didn't bring a lot to the table," he said. "Concessions... had the best proposal."

Secretary faces grand theft

Woman admits she took about $3,000 from county funds

By VICKI BOBROWMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Joanne Lillian Guiffreda, 33, of Deltona was arrested at the Sanford Police Station Friday and charged with grand theft.

According to the police report, Guiffreda was employed as a secretary in the planning department at the Seminole County Service building. Her duties included accepting cash when purchases were made of maps, photos or other documents, the police reported.

According to the arrest report she began taking small amounts of money from the cash drawer and throwing away checks. Planning department officials estimated that the total losses to the county were $2,942.87.

According to officials in the planning department, the cash receipt drawer was supposed to be closed out each week, or at the very least, at the end of each month. Money and checks were to be turned over to the county finance department.

The planning department investigation into the matter revealed that receipts for several consecutive months had not been turned in to the finance department.

Planning department receipt books reveal, however, that Guiffreda had accepted the money. She turned herself in to Sanford Police and made a taped confession to officers.

Police said that she said she had taken the money to pay bills and buy food. She reportedly told police that she had intended to pay the money back, but that she had never become financially able to do so.

She was arrested by Sanford Police and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Man arrested for DUI

Miguel Angel Amoro, 30, of 118 W. 2nd St., in Sanford, was arrested Saturday morning. He was charged with driving under the influence, driving without a driver's license and resisting arrest without violence.

According to the Highway Patrol report, Amoro was arrested on the corner of U.S. Highway 17-92 and 4th Street after he was stopped for driving erratically. He failed the roadside sobriety test, the report said.

When asked for his driver's license Amoro told officers that he did not have a license and that he was in this country illegally.

Officers added the charge of resisting arrest without violence when it was discovered that Amoro had given officers his father's name when first stopped.

His father is a legal immigrant from Mexico. Amoro is being held without bond at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

License suspended nine times

Tammy Renee Horvath, 23, of 2319 Hartwell Ave., in Sanford, was arrested Saturday and charged with making nine counts of driving with a suspended license.

Horvath was stopped by a Lake Mary Police officer for making an illegal turn at the intersection of Rinehart Road and County Road 48A. Officers reported that they followed her and that she was driving erratically. She was found to be sober, police said.

A computer check of her driver's license showed that it had been suspended nine times.

She was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held without bond.

Parole violation brings arrest

John Daniel Fryar, 32, of 1133 E. 7th St., in Sanford, was arrested Friday. He was charged on an active warrant.

According to Sanford Police Department reports, Fryar was arrested at the intersection of 8th Street and Olive when officers, with knowledge of the active warrant, saw him on the corner. He was wanted for violation of his probation, police said.

The report added that there were other warrants for his arrest.

He is being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Disorderly intoxication charged

James A. Goemmer, 38, of Sanford, was arrested Friday and charged with disorderly intoxication.

According to the arrest report, Sanford Police officers determined that his loud, violent outbursts outside the Wareco store on French Avenue showed that he was not safe to himself or others.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Woman, granddaughter arrested for theft

Dorothy Bush Hodges, 47, of 50 Castle Brewer Court, in Sanford, was arrested Saturday and charged with retail theft, child abuse and resisting arrest without violence.

She was taken into custody at the Winn Dixie on Airport Boulevard in Sanford.

Hodges' 11-year-old granddaughter was also arrested for retail theft.

There were several items from the store in both their purses, police reported.

Further checks of their vehicle revealed that there were many items from an area Wal-Mart store, but no store receipts, the report said.

When asked her name, Hodges gave a false name, police said.

Hodges was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Center and held on $2,000 bond.

Pair jailed on marijuana charges

Cynthia Marie Pratt, 41, and Steven Kenneth Smith, 28, both of 242 Ibis Drive, in Longwood, were arrested Saturday.

They were charged with possession of one pound of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, cultivation of marijuana, and possession of marijuana cultivation equipment.

A search warrant was used to gain access to the residence where the drugs and plants were found, police said.

The pair was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where they were each held on $3,000 bond.

Marijuana grower arrested

Jesse Eugene Moore, 51, of 501 Old Monroe Rd. in Lake Monroe was arrested on Friday and charged with marijuana cultivation and possession of 25 grams of marijuana.

Moore had two five foot tall marijuana plants growing in his back yard, police said. The plants were observed by officers doing aerial surveillance of the area, the report noted.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $3,000 bond.

Open container ordinance violated

Terry Wilson Limbaugh, 32, of 615 Park Ave., in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday and charged with violating the city ordinance against having an open container of alcohol.

He left the Wareco store on French Avenue with a 12-ounce can of beer and proceeded to walk down the street drinking it, the police report said.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $100 bond.

Belting girlfriend leads to arrest

Anthony Reed Eden, 20, of 2017 French Ave. in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday. He was charged with aggravated battery.

According to the police report, Eden got into an altercation with his girlfriend when he was told by a third party that she wanted to sever their relationship.

The report stated that while the couple was discussing their differences, the girlfriend attempted to slap him and he countered with a flat to her mouth.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $4,000 bond.

Grand theft auto charged

Tommy Shayor Hampton, 18, of 2207 Greenway, in Sanford, was arrested on Friday. He was charged with grand theft auto and was arrested at the Kings Inn, 4750 State Road 46, in Sanford, when he was found driving a 1990 Honda with Virginia license plates.

A check of the plates revealed that the car had been reported stolen in Virginia. Hampton's brother, Ronald, of Virginia, was also in the car and was arrested as well.

Both were transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where they were held on $4,000 bond.

SCC boosts televised class offerings

By VICKI BOBROWMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Any college student who's been accused of spending more time in front of the television than studying has a new excuse.

A program, co-sponsored by Seminole Community College, Storer Cable and Cablevision of Central Florida, is designed to let students learn from the comfort of their own home.

Several classes have been offered to SCC students for the past few years, but the seven classes being offered during the fall semester will be the most that have been offered by the college.

"We're looking to expand the program this year," Dr. Jim Sawyer, vice president in charge of student services, said. "We want to expand the size of all the classes."

Classes being offered during the fall semester range from basic business principles to child development to marine science.

The concept of a televised campus is not a new one. It has been used for nearly two decades in some places where overcrowded classrooms have forced colleges to seek alternative spaces for teaching.

Bob Ledford, who coordinates the program from SCC's satellite campus in Hunt Club, said that the cost of the classes is the same as that of attending in person.

Each of the classes being offered this semester is a three-credit class. SCC charges $30 per credit hour for these classes.

While students can listen to lectures from the comfort of their easy chairs, they are required to be on campus for the mid-term and final exams and for an orientation session prior to the first class.

Several written assignments will be required throughout the semester as well.

The classes are ideal, Sawyer said, for people who can not get to campus on a regular schedule due to work, family obligations or other restrictions.

"This way, they are required to be on campus only a few times a semester," he said.

Sawyer said that the short-term plans do not call for making it possible for a student to take all the classes required for a degree via television, but such a plan has not been eliminated for the future.

The classes can be viewed on Storer Cable channel 22 and Cablevision channel 39.

Drowning victim found

The body of Paul Creel of Longwood was recovered from the St. Johns River near State Road 44 Sunday.

Creel's body was found after a two-day search. He had apparently fallen off the bow of a motorboat at about 2 a.m. Saturday morning, said Maj. David Starling, of the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission. Starling said the body had propeller marks on it, substantiating the stories of the other two occupants of the boat.

Starling said the accident was reported at about 3:30 a.m. and was believed to have occurred at about 2 a.m. The search was complicated because the boat occupants were uncertain exactly where the accident occurred between the Showboat Lounge at SR 44 and Lake Beresford, a 4 1/2-mile section of river.

An investigator with the Volusia County Medical Examiner's Office said this morning the cause of death is not known as yet.

Starling said preliminary investigations revealed the boaters had been drinking. An investigation is continuing, Starling said.

Space dividends

The Freedom space station has survived for at least another year. The Senate has turned back an attempt by Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., to slash Freedom's funding for the 1992 fiscal year from $2 billion to $100 million. Had Bumpers succeeded, he would have dealt a possibly fatal blow to the nation's manned space program and jeopardized a number of multinational big-science projects in the process.

The space station is the centerpiece of NASA's plans for the decade. The agency already has sunk $5 billion into the project and expects to spend a total of $30 billion through the year 2000, when Freedom is expected to be ready to accommodate a four-person crew.

Several other nations have signed on to the space station. Japan, for instance, has begun construction on a $2 billion laboratory that would be attached to Freedom.

The credibility of the United States as a partner in big-science projects was on the line with the Senate vote. Tokyo has warned that if the United States abrogates its agreements on the space station, the Japanese will not be inclined to participate in future joint projects. Washington currently is seeking Tokyo's backing for several expensive science ventures, including the $10 billion supercollider.

Once Freedom is aloft, it will provide advances in basic science that shortsighted critics like Bumpers cannot foresee. "I guarantee you," said Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, a space station supporter, "we will have additional discoveries that are beyond our imagination now if we are willing to invest in the future."

And that is precisely how the Freedom space station should be viewed — as an investment in America's future. If the United States is to retain its world leadership in the sciences into the next century, it must maintain its primacy in space.

The Russians, the Allies

The pace of economic aid for the Soviet Union decided at the London summit was exactly right. Those who claim the West missed a great opportunity in London first need to answer two questions:

What if massive Marshall Plan assistance to Moscow resulted in shoring up communism? What if, following substantial Western credit and investment to reformers, communists regained control?

Mikhail Gorbachev got as much in London as he expected. In just sitting down with the world's leading capitalists, he made his point: He wants to join the Western capitalists' club.

And he was told he could, after a slight waiting period. First, there are a few tests he must pass.

The West avoided repeating two historical mistakes in London.

The first mistake was made by the French in the early 1900s, when they provided massive economic aid to czarist Russia. The aid did not save the czar, and the French lost all their money in the Russian Revolution.

The second mistake avoided was one made at Versailles in 1918. Rather than promise to help rebuild a defeated Germany and reintegrate it into the West, the Allies forced Germany to pay massive reparations, a policy that spawned German revanchism and led to the death of Weimar democracy.

This time, the Soviets were given a lesson in economics: Do you want credits and investment? Fine. Then create a good economic climate and the money will come. That means reforms in the following areas: market prices, property rights, the money supply, government expenditures, privatization and civil law.

But the West offered Gorbachev more than a lesson in economics: By promising him technical assistance from the World Bank, International Monetary Fund, Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the West is making available the same tools that helped create Western prosperity.

Ironically, they are the same tools Josef Stalin was offered after World War II, and which he rejected.

Half a century later, Gorbachev came to London to avow the mistake. He can now begin to make up for half a century of wasted time.

SARAH OVERSTREET

Will workers of future be happier?

I'll admit I didn't like it, but I adjusted. I figured, this is the way things are these days, and at least modern workers have jobs. My father and mother, who lived through the Depression with only half a job, had reminded me of that at least a bazillion times. So I just got used to it.

Plants lay off older workers just before they've had their 20 years in so the company won't have to pay them the retirement they'd planned their futures around? Hey, I understand. It's nothing personal; just business. "Bottom line, you know. Stockholders, heh-heh. If we don't show a decent profit this year, our necks'll be on the block, hee-hee. Don't forget to turn in your washroom key on the way out."

Put more and more work on fewer and fewer workers, then reduce our insurance benefits? No problem. We know there are new college graduates willing to work our jobs for lots less, because you've brought them in and set them right down next to us. And you'd like us to sort of ignore the labor laws, too, in the spirit of being a team player? You got it. I got a wife and three kids.

Then just when we're all getting acclimated to fewer and fewer employee rights, the business pages start profiling businesses which are becoming "worker-oriented," operating under the theory that happy workers show up for work and make great products. At the Tandem Corp., there are Friday-night beer parties. Wang Laboratories has abolished the "Us" and "Them" camps by letting any employee who wants to attend any company meeting. And — any of you too comfortable with indentured servitude better stop reading now, or risk a potentially health-threatening shock — the United Services Automobile Association has created a veritable employee heaven of its 286 flowering acres in San Antonio, Texas.

There are tennis courts, jogging trails, lighted softball fields, picnic groves and a stocked fishing lake for employees. In addition, there's a steady stream of art and cultural exhibits in the complex courtyard, a team of professional counselors on call for employees' psychological problems and a host of other amenities including a four-day work week that's been in place for 20 years. Employee turnover is the industry low of 7 percent, and absenteeism went from double digits two decades ago to below 2 percent.

The business gurus are drumming the same beat: James A. Autry, president of the publishing group that puts out Better Homes and Gardens magazine and Ladies' Home Journal, was in St. Louis recently to tell businesspeople to merge the words "love" and "profit," and they'd reap a gold mine of good will and money. Nurture an atmosphere of trust and community in the workplace, where people can do good work, he said, and you'll see better results.

Someday, he told The Associated Press, jobs will be more plentiful than workers, and "people will simply not work in places where they're not well-treated, where they don't feel a sense of connection and community." Speakers' bureaus all over the country are sending forth missionaries to speak on the virtues of using humor in business, exhorting corporate types to lighten up.

Put more and more work on fewer and fewer workers.

"We have an application for a federal grant that would be used to assess damage to taxpayers caused by silly federal grants."

Bush loyal to the Company

George Herbert Walker Bush is, above all else, a Company man.

In the mid-'70s, he won high marks from the Company professionals at the Langley, Va., home office for being a CIA director who stood firm when critics attacked.

G.H.W. Bush pays off in loyalty to those who loyally serve. And that goes a long way toward answering the question that has even prominent Republicans scratching their heads: Why would Bush shatter his uneasy Iran-contra truce with Congress by forcing upon it his in-your-face CIA nomination of Robert M. Gates — who had been tied to Iran-contra, and whose confirmation hearings would surely force a new look at the old scandal?

To understand Bush's decision on Gates, we need only recall his decision on another ex-CIA man who loyally served — Donald P. Gregg. For the careers of Bush, Gates and Gregg are wound with common threads.

Gregg and Gates are Company men who served loyally but became stained by that snafu, Iran-contra. In the administration of almost any other president of our time, Gregg and Gates would have been honorably but quietly discharged to sanctuaries in private enterprise.

Not so under Bush. These men who took their hits for his honor were rewarded with promotions — damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead!

Bush's reward for Gregg was the U.S. ambassadorship to South Korea. In 1989, in a honeymoon mood at the outset of the Bush presidency, a supine Senate confirmed Gregg's ambassadorship in the face of evidence that still makes Democrats cringe, knowing they'd baldly abdicated their consent role.

That abdication in brief: Gregg, then Vice President Bush's national security adviser, sent a memo to Bush saying one of Ollie North's key operatives in the illegal operation was coming in to talk to the vice president about the "resupply of the contras." Whoop! — that was illegal and Bush has publicly said he never heard anything about it. Gregg blithely explained this must have been a secretarial typo — the memo meant to say "resupply of the copters," not "contras." Right.

Senators pretended they believed that one. Otherwise, they'd have to conclude that our new ambassador was just an old liar — which, of course, would bring up the question, too tacky to broach during a honeymoon, of whether our new president was one as well.

There is, in fact, reason for the Senate to take a new look at Gregg. Former Carter national security aide Adm. Gary Sick says sources of questionable reputation have identified Gregg as having accompanied Reagan campaign chairman William Casey to a meeting in Paris with Iranians, in an effort to delay the release of Americans held hostage until after the 1980 election. Gregg, though a Bush loyalist, was on loan by the CIA to the national security council staff of then-President Carter. Gregg says he was at the beach with his family on that October day and produced a photo as proof — but weather experts say the picture couldn't have been taken on the day in question, because the weather was too chilly and cloudy. Maybe someday an official body will chase the clouds away on the Gregg affair.)

Perhaps Bush hoped to recapture his honeymoon bliss when he sent the Senate his latest loyalist, Bob Gates. He might have slipped Gates through if it were not for the new evidence revealed by ex-CIA official Alan Fiers, a Gates subordinate, who just pleaded guilty to Iran-contra crimes. Now the Senate can't ignore mounting evidence that suggests while Gates was No. 2 at the CIA, there was lawbreaking going on all around him — by his subordinates and his superior.

But those mystified by Bush's decision to choose Gates and taunt the Senate into probing anew would do well to remember how Bush was willing to stick with Gregg — even if he had to stick it to the Senate. That also wasn't smart politics. It was just Company policy.

These men who took their hits for his honor were rewarded with promotions — damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead!

Physician-owned labs under fire

WASHINGTON — Florida is a land of opportunity if you happen to be a doctor who isn't above referring your patients for frivolous tests so you can get a legal kickback on the fees.

A soon-to-be-released report on medical self-referrals exposes the sleazy profits doctors earn by investing in medical labs where they send their patients for overpriced and needless procedures.

The doctors who line their own pockets this way say the proliferation of medical labs increases the patient's access to proper care, especially in rural areas. But the statistics from Florida tell another story.

The research was done by Jean Mitchell and Elton Scott, two associate professors at Florida State University. Their report has not yet been released, but our associate Scott Sisek has obtained details of the contents. It shows that residents in the sunshine state are being bilked through doctors' self-referrals.

The only other explanation for the data is that people in Florida have more complicated ailments than the rest of us.

The most attractive investment tool of the '90s for Florida doctors is the Magnetic Resonance Imaging machine, or MRI. They are as numerous as street-corner vendors in Florida. Mitchell and Scott found that nearly all of the centers in Florida with MRI machines are owned by doctors who refer their patients there. And nearly all of the exams conducted at those facilities are done on people with insurance. We have to believe either that people with insurance need more complex diagnostic procedures, or that poor patients are not being run through the same hoops because they can't pay for it.

The number of billings made to patients covered by insurance contradicts the claims of medical groups such as the American Medical Association and the Florida Medical Association that doctor-owned labs and clinics promote better care for the poor.

The three labs in Florida that are not owned by doctors do far less business than the doctor-owned MRI labs.

The researchers found that MRI machines are overworked, but certainly not underpaid in Florida. The study compared urban Broward County Florida with Baltimore, which has two medical schools but almost no doctor-owned MRI facilities. The rate of MRI procedures in Broward County was about 38 for every 1,000 residents compared to 12.3 per 1,000 in Baltimore. And the average charge in Broward County is $783 compared to $450 in Baltimore.

The Health and Human Services Department has announced new rules to curb self-referral abuses by doctors. HHS wants to allow doctors to stay in the business, but with limits set on the percentage of the business that comes from self-referrals. The rules are timid and would require a nightmare regulatory setup to make sure doctors weren't skirting the law with hidden ownerships and bogus billings.

Rep. Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., wants to take it a step further. He is considering a bill that would forbid doctors from referring their patients to any medical lab in which they have a financial interest, plain and simple. The doctor lobby claims that Stark's bill punishes the entire profession for the greed of a few. But Stark is sticking to his guns. He thinks self-referrals are a scam resulting in overcharges, including tens of millions of dollars sucked from Medicare.

The stories of questionable referrals aren't hard to find — like the 18-year-old patient who underwent a $1,000 MRI exam. The diagnosis was that he had bruised his thigh.

Residents in Florida are being bilked through doctors' self-referrals.

Former nun defends X-rated stores as criminal attorney

Associated Press

DEDHAM, Mass. — Regina Quinlan was a nun living in a convent 23 years ago, but now she is a lawyer defending stores that rent X-rated films and sell sex magazines.

"At one time I had a vocation. Now I have a profession," said Quinlan, a criminal attorney specializing in pornography cases.

Her Catholic Church experience taught her "great respect for the concept of free choice," she said.

"I have full respect for a person to say (pornographic materials) are sinful and should be avoided. But I recognize that not everyone shares that moral belief," said Quinlan, 48.

"In representing clients, it's not my position to make moral judgments about the quality of films or nature of the business," she said. "As a lawyer, I have respect for the concept of separation of church and state. I don't see any inconsistencies about where I came from and where I am."

She is defending Video Haven in Norwood and Video Expo in Dedham against obscenity charges.

The Boston native joined the Sisters of St. Joseph in 1961 at age 18, she said, because of a strong spiritual calling and an admiration for the Brighton-based order.

She graduated from Regis College as a nun with a degree in history and taught in parochial schools for several years. But after eight years, she left the order.

She took night courses at Suffolk University Law School while teaching, and passed the bar in 1973.

Quinlan has defended about 20 clients in the adult entertainment industry since 1979, and her work has won the respect of her courtroom opponents.

"She's very well-versed on issues of obscenity law," said Brett Vottero, a Hamden County assistant district attorney. He is trying to ban one of her clients, Video Expo, from selling adult magazines.

Woman shoots self at couple's wedding

Associated Press

PERRYVILLE, Mo. — A woman who began firing a gun at the wedding of two former schoolmates and then shot herself to death apparently never got over a crush on the man, police said.

Sherry Ann Korando, 25, shot herself in the head Saturday and died about five hours later at a hospital.

No one else at the wedding of Jeff Fientge, 25, and Deena Peot, 25, was injured, police said.

"It looks like it was possibly one of those ... the way the groom described it, it was a crush," police Maj. William Jones said.

"She was never a girlfriend of this boy, they never dated, they never went out," he said. "She was acquainted with the bride and groom only in the fact that they went to school together."

The couple were exchanging

emergency stop, but it could not be stopped in time. The report said the train went for approximately 300 yards before it could be brought to a stop.

George Prochel, Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman said, "The 6-car freight train, was headed north at approximately 50 miles per hour. The woman was sitting on the tracks, facing east with her hands repeatedly held on her head." Prochel said the woman's body was thrown approximately 80 yards after she was struck.

The Seminole County Sheriff's department is conducting an investigation into the incident, and was still seeking the identity of the woman as of 10 a.m. this morning.

he can pursue several special projects at the college.

Teaching several classes in the humanities and a section of Television Programming takes up quite a bit of Fitzgerald's time.

For the third consecutive summer, he is assisting the Television Programming class in the production of a video based on the community.

Money had, in the past, been provided by a grant from the Governor's office. Those videos recorded the oral histories of various ethnic groups in Seminole County.

This year, though the grant money was cut by the state, the college supported Fitzgerald's program.

A video, called 'A Matter of Eternal Vigilance,' is entering the final editing stages this week.

Cablevision of Central Florida donated equipment and editing facilities for the six-week project.

The title of the film, which takes a look at how development is effecting the environment of Seminole County, Fitzgerald said, was taken from the answer given by an environmentalist to the question of how we will be able to save the planet for future generations.

Fitzgerald said that his bachelor's degree in the arts with a concentration on photography and his doctorate in philosophy make him uniquely qualified to lead the project.

"We are looking at the human side of this issue as we did with the others," he noted.

Students interviewed a dozen subjects, ranging from Randy Morris, the mayor of Lake Mary, to Department of Environmental Regulations officials to Wally Temple who developed Tusawakilla.

Fitzgerald said the interviewers got fascinating insights from a number of Seminole County experts about how change, brought on by growth has effected the environment.

Fitzgerald, who lives in DeLtona with his wife and two children, said he enjoys working at SCC because the administration "encourages innovation."

That freedom to explore the doors to learning with his students is Fitzgerald's motivation.

"My work is always a new challenge," he said.

Volunteers being sought to check area lake water

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — How good is the water quality of lakes in Lake Mary? A volunteer testing program is about ready to get underway.

Brian Loe, president of the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association is heading up the local program, through the cooperation of the Lake Mary City Engineering department. Known as "Eutrophication", the project is part of the Lakewatch Program of the University of Florida.

"The purpose of the program," Loe said, "is to see what kind of water is in Lake Mary's lakes, according to the Eutrophication cycle." The cycle determines how clean and clear, or how dim and cloudy a lake might be.

The program requires two volunteers to check each of the city's lakes. Loe said, "It will take between a half hour and an hour per month to take the appropriate water samples. People should own or have the use of a boat, and should either have waterfront property, or regular access to the lake."

Volunteers have already been obtained to check Lake Mary, Little Lake Mary and Crystal Lake. Help is needed however, on the other lakes, including Bingham, Como, Dawson, Emma, and Little Crystal Lake.

Two training sessions, on Aug. 16 and 17, will be held to instruct the volunteers in conducting the tests.

The City of Lake Mary has suggested volunteers contact City Clerk Carol Edwards, at City Hall, for information on how to sign up for the project. She will make arrangements for sign-ups.

"The University of Florida's Lakewatch program is one of the best in finding out what our lake water is really like," Loe said, "It will help not only Lake Mary but the entire area."

Depending on their location to the various lakes, volunteers will be accepted on a first call basis.

YMCA introduces real heroes

By LACY BOWEN
Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — Keith Caselman recently introduced some real heroes he knows to children in Lake Mary.

Caselman, community programs director at the Seminole County YMCA, welcomed county and city firefighters, police officers, police dogs, and ambulance and rescue personnel to visit each day for a week honoring local real life heroes.

"We wanted to educate the kids on how everyday people are the real heroes in life. It's really not Batman and Superman we need to talk about when we talk about heroes. It's these people," Caselman said.

Close to 200 children participate in the Y's summer day camp full of planned activities. One day during heroes week, Longwood firefighters streaked into the parking lot at Greenwood Lakes Park, with sirens clanging, to give kids a tour of the fire truck.

The Medivac helicopter descended and an ambulance with flashing lights was open for inspection.

Sheriff's Department Sgt. Jonn Hawkins introduced Boomer the bloodhound, who sniffs the trails of wanted crooks. Boomer demonstrated his keen sense of smell when he sniffed a golf ball and then chose Lake Mary resident Joey Marcum, 6, as the boy who had previously handled it.

"That was really well done," Amber Eells, 11, said. "The children are wild about the dog."

"Yeah, the dogs are pretty cool. Teaching kids about being protected is great," Chuck Robinson, 11, said.

Sheriff's Department Sgt. Jonn Hawkins and Boomer the bloodhound caught their man, Joey Marcum, age 6 of Lake Mary.

Also introduced was Deputy Tim Wedding's Czech German Shepherd, Eros, who accompanies Wedding on patrol work and in narcotics searches and arrests. Officers carefully demonstrated how Eros attacks bad guys. "That dog could pull your arm off!" David Donaldson, 6, noted. "What a great dog!" Tommy Adrianson, 6, said. "I like how he attacked but I'm glad I'm not a bad guy."

The 'Y' is a busy place these days

LAKE MARY — YMCA Community Programs Director Keith Caselman and Sectional Director Becky Creamer said the Seminole County 'Y' in Lake Mary is a pretty busy place during summer Day Camp at which kids can have a great time and learn something new.

The Day Camp program serves between 170 and 205 children from 7:30 a.m. to as late as 6 p.m.

It's a full summer of field trips, bowling, ice skating, roller skating, and pizza feasts, Caselman said.

"The biggie is anything cool and wet, like our trips to Rock Springs and Wet and Wild," Caselman explained.

Parents pay a low weekly fee for the program.

"It's as low as $50 for members but we also have between 15 and 25 kids on scholarships. The 'Y' gets United Way money and we turn around and offer kids with economic need a scholarship. Parents end up paying about $6.50 a week for the program," Caselman said.

Kids at the 'Y' also eat about 50 slices of pizza a day. They are treated to storytime, games and sports activities, including swimming twice a week, riflery and archery.

"The oatmeal toas and jell-o throw are very popular. They all love to throw things at each other, and this way nobody gets hurt," Caselman said.

Another move taken toward bond issue

LAKE MARY — The City Commission made another move toward requesting a $5 million bond issue. The money would be used to finance four major city projects.

During a special called meeting recently, the commissioners voted 3 to 2 to instruct the city staff to prepare the wording of the bond issue, which includes specifics on how much money is to be allocated for the four projects.

The projects include Phase I of the Lake Mary Sports Complex construction, beautification of Lake Mary Boulevard, undergrounding power lines along Lake Mary Boulevard, and paving and drainage improvements.

The bond issue was discussed during a special meeting last Thursday, but any further action was withheld until the city could discuss financing of the beautification project with the Seminole County Commission. That meeting was held yesterday afternoon.

According to Mayor Randy Morris, the work now will be to draw up specific recommendations regarding how much funding will be earmarked for each of the four projects, which is required in a bond proposal.

The total amount to be bonded was originally $5,013,000, but Commissioner Tom Mahoney led a move last week to drop the amount to an even $5 million. "That amount is the amount to be obtained from the bonds," Morris said. "The figure is a maximum, that doesn't mean we have to spend every cent of it."

Following preparation of the final wording and monetary distribution planned, the bond proposal will be brought up for final its final reading and vote at tomorrow night's regularly scheduled meeting of the Lake Mary City Commission.

Lake Mary's Lewis earns medal at AAU Junior Olympics

From Staff Reports

TALLAHASSEE — Lake Mary's D.J. Lewis was the only Seminole County runner to win a medal in the 1991 AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) Junior Olympics being contested in Tallahassee.

Lewis, running in the Senior Boys Division (17-18 year olds), posted a 9:08.16 to earn a sixth-place finish in the 3,000-meter run. It was the best finish by a Florida runner. The top six finishers in each event earned a medal.

The Central Florida Gliders (made up of runners from Seminole and Orange counties) also were in represented at the meet in the form of the 4 x 400-meter relay team of Odey and Kamal Wise, Brian Sams and Beryahith Adams, who placed fourth in the Bantam Boys (10-and-Under) to earn a medal.

Other Seminole county runners ran well but just missed the finals.

In the Bantam Girls, the Central Florida Gliders team of Dara and Defina Wise, Rebecca Colon and Amber Turner had the ninth-best time at 5:11.67. It took a 5:10 to qualify for a spot in the final eight.

Also finishing with the ninth-best time in the 100-meter dash was Oviedo High School rising senior LaTonya Thomas in the Senior Girl Division.

Tiffany Gibson had the best high jump for Florida girls in the Bantam Girl Division with a jump of 3 feet, 3/4 inches, which was good enough for an 11th place finish.

Other Seminole county competitors at the Olympics were Steve Platt, Alex Green, Matt Bowman and Omari Wise.

The finishing positions and times of the Seminole county athletes:

Bantam Girls:

4 x 400-meter relay — 9. Central Florida Gliders (Dara Wise, Defina Wise, Rebecca Colon, Amber Turner), 5:11.67

Long jump — 15. Tiffany Gibson 9 feet, 3/4 inches.

Playing shortstop in slowpitch softball is difficult enough; under the best of circumstances. But as Seminole Mobile Radio's Ted Freyenet (left) and the

Leagues try to wrap things up

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department's Spring/Summer Slowpitch Softball Leagues were supposed to have completed regular season play this past week. But as with most other outdoor activities, unless you have a dome, Mother nature had other plans.

Because of the unusual amounts of rainfall this spring and summer, Jim Schafer, Recreation Supervisor, and Lisa Jones, Recreation Program Specialist, have been really put to the test to get the season in before the Fall Leagues start in mid-September.

If all goes as planned, the men's leagues — except for the Monday Night League — will all end this week while the women's league will end next week.

Here is a look at the most recent schedule of make-up games for this week, weather permitting.

Smith, Pauldo both in battles for playing time

By TONY DESORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

DAYTONA BEACH — In his 15-year career as head coach of the Florida State football team, Bobby Bowden has developed a philosophy of preferring to redshirt freshmen, giving them a year to get acclimated.

This year, with 19 starters among the 64 returning lettermen off of last year's 10-2 team that finished ranked No. 4 in the final Associated Press poll, there would seem to be even less of an opportunity for a freshman to break in.

But there are always exceptions. Addressing the Florida Sports Writers Association and its annual preseason college football meeting, Bowden said that Lake Howell High School graduate Marquette Smith would get an opportunity to work his way into the Seminole lineup.

"We'll try to give Marquette the opportunity in scrimmages to show if he's ready," said Bowden. "I don't know right now if he'll play or if he'll redshirt. We'll have to see."

"We'll give him the opportunity to play and we'll see what happens. If he does well, I'll play him somewhere." Bowden can afford to hedge his bets. The Seminoles return Junior Amp Lee and sophomore Sean Jackson and freshman Sam "Tiger" McMillon at tailback. Lee, the MVP in FSU's win over Penn State in the Blockbuster Bowl, rushed for 825 yards and 16 touchdowns while catching 34 passes for 380 yards and two touchdowns. Jackson rushed for 427 yards.

Smith also possesses impressive credentials. Selected as the nation's most valuable offensive player by USA Today and the national player of the year by Gatorade, Smith gained over 2,400 yards rushing and scored 31 touchdowns last season alone. For his career, Smith rushed for 6,733 yards and 88 touchdowns.

"It'll be tough for him," admitted Bowden. "He'll be competing against the three of the best we have. But we're going to get him some reps with the football to show if he has something special."

"If nobody can tackle him, we'll have to put him up some."

Smith is not the only Seminole County product who goes into the

See Smith, Page 28

While he may have been one of the top high school players in the country last year, Lake Howell graduate Marquette Smith finds himself back at the bottom of the pile this fall as a freshman at Florida State University.

What happens when you mix Seminoles with Rams?

When is a rivalry not a rivalry? As the Church Lady would say, when it's convenient.

Take, if you will, the Seminole Colt All-Stars. As you read this, the Seminole Colts are in Lafayette, Ind., preparing for their first game in the Colt World Series.

What makes this team unique — other than it's the only Seminole County summer baseball team still playing — is the very balanced nature of its roster. Of the 15 young men on the team, seven are from Seminole High School and seven are from Lake Mary.

Representing the Seminoles are David Eckstein, Scott Ferguson, Matt Freeman, Jeremy Chunut, John Lugering, Corey Gochee and Robby Morgan.

Representing the Rams are Matt Diemer, Mike Werner, Chad Kessler, Jay Black, Brian Milner, Mike Carr and Hank Tooke.

The man with the deciding vote, so to speak, is Rob Bologna, who attends Lake Howell.

While the rivalry between the

SPORTS

TONY DESORMIER

Seminole and Rams may not be on the same level as the Hatfields and McCoy's, the Red Sox and Yankees or the Gators and Seminoles. It's close enough for high school athletics.

In the last year alone, for example, the Rams came to Sanford and ruined the Seminoles' Homecoming Game. The two schools banged on each other in basketball, the Seminole girls sweeping Lake Mary while the Rams boys took a 2-1 series win over the Tribe.

And so on and so on. By and large, it's a healthy rivalry that's blossomed in a relatively short time. Lake Mary having first opened its doors in the fall of 1981. Before that, Seminole had to look northeast to Volusia County and DeLand for its "arch rival."

Given that competitive nature of the relationship between Seminole and Lake Mary high schools, it's unusual that this summer we would have a team consisting of equal parts of Noles and Rams, especially considering that many of these 14 players have also played against each other this summer as members of their respective high school summer teams.

Considering that most high school baseball coaches are loath to "share" their players with other organizations during the summer out of fear of injury or burnout, it'd be interesting to know how Seminole High varsity coach Mike Powers and Lake Mary head coach Alan Tuttle feel about this co-op effort.

This may be the first and last time such a hybrid team, born of the Seminole PONY League, exists. As the Sanford Recreation Department's youth baseball leagues continue to grow and Lake Mary begins to lay the ground work for starting a program of its own, there may not be the same opportunity for a similar team to be put together.

In a way, that'll be a shame. Any time a new school opens, it takes a long time — longer than 10 years — for fans to let go of the idea that those players at the new school (especially the good ones) could still be going to the old school. And what a team those players from the new school would make combined with those players at the old school.

For a few weeks this summer, we've had a chance to enjoy the rare answer to that "What if . . . ?" question: What if some of the best Seminole and Lake Mary players were on the same team?

Under manager Rod Ferguson and coaches Jack Diemer and Bob Carr, the Seminole Colts have surprised possibly everyone but themselves with the answer.

And they're not done yet.

Lone armadillo may cause damage

Eventually, an armadillo will wander into your landscape even if you do not live near a woods or field. Armadillos are interesting animals that have an incredible ability to survive and flourish despite their loss of habitat by the rapid urbanization of Central Florida.

If armadillos are a problem for you, there are a few things about their lifecycle that you should know. Surprisingly, all that damage that you are seeing is probably caused by only one armadillo. They are solitary animals and their home and range seldom overlap with other armadillos. Therefore, your control measure will be directed towards the one and probably only armadillo that is causing the problem.

The damage will likely continue at a fairly constant rate until the armadillo problem is effectively addressed. Armadillos generally do not leave their home range unless they are forced to do so. The only effective technique to resolve your armadillo problem is to trap the critter and relocate it. As with other urban wildlife problems, there aren't any "miracle" solutions. Some controls that are recommended really don't work so clear of them. Scent repellents, like mothballs generally will cause the armadillo to move a few feet away and dig a new hole. Scare devices or ultrasonics are totally ineffective. Fences and screens don't work either. Armadillos can dig under such a structure if they choose to.

GARDENING

You will not cause an armadillo to leave by filling the hole or burrow with water or soil. They will simply reexcavate themselves. There aren't any poison baits to use. Armadillos are insect eaters so they will not feed on poison baits designed for grain-eating rodents like rats and mice.

Another ineffective method often suggested is to spray the lawn to reduce the insects, their food source. Since armadillos do eat insects, this would appear to be good advice. However, armadillos will continue to search a treated lawn for food. In fact, their digging can increase because it is harder to find food when some of the insects have been eliminated.

Are you discouraged yet? What does work to control armadillos is to trap them live. Armadillos are more difficult to trap than other animals like raccoons or opossum. In fact, you will probably trap a raccoon or opossum before you catch the armadillo. Live traps are available from county animal control, local farm and feed or hardware stores, mail order or you can make one yourself. Bait the trap with overripe soft fruit and vegetables. This creates a "mulch" that will attract insects. Armadillos will come in search of the insects. Set the trap in an area that already receives a lot of digging by the armadillo. Cover the wire-mesh bottom of the front of the trap with leaves or mulch. Armadillos are shy about walking directly on the wire bottom of a trap.

Once the animal is trapped, animal control may remove and relocate it for you. If you plan on relocating it yourself, check first with the property owner or park personnel before releasing any wild animal. Relocate armadillos in an undeveloped area at least 10 miles away. Relocating them by a shorter distance may result in having the armadillo return wiser now and more difficult to trap a second time.

For more information about armadillos, call or drop by the Agriculture Center for a free fact sheet.

Honeymoon hideaway was the wrong place at right time

DEAR ABBY: Your readers are sending in their crazy wedding night stories, so here's ours:

When Rick and I married, Dec. 14, 1985, we had only a weekend to honeymoon, so we took my aunt's advice and rented a condo on the beach in Rosarito, Mexico. After the wedding, we made the two-hour drive, arriving at the gated entrance after dark. We asked the Spanish-speaking guard to point us in the right direction to our rented unit, showing him the street address.

Upon finding our condo, we could not imagine why the key wasn't in the potted plant by the door where the owner promised it would be. Also, my aunt had told us that the unit was right on the beach — this one was across the street. Finally, Rick climbed the balcony and entered the condo through the sliding glass door; then he opened the front door for me. We had brought along groceries and even logs for the fireplace, so we made a delicious dinner and built a romantic fire in the fireplace. It was a perfect wedding night.

The next morning, I decided to go outside and try to find the key. When I looked on the wall above the potted plant, I saw a ceramic plaque with the condo's full address — a completely different street name than the condo we had reserved! I don't think I have ever washed dishes faster than I did that morning! We made the bed, cleaned up the place and ran out the door as fast as we could — scared to death, but laughing hysterically. We drove as fast as we could to the right condo — just a few blocks down the street.

We never did find out who owned that first condo, but if the owners happen to see this in print, I thank you, and we are sorry!"

KRISTA AND RICK TOBERIO, SAN CLEMENTE.

CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 11, my parents divorced and my mother moved to another state and took me with her. I saw my father only three times until I was 15. I've talked to him over the telephone a few times. (I called him — he has never called me, not even on my birthday.) He is now remarried and living a comfortable life with his second wife and two stepchildren.

How can a father ignore his own blood child? I have tried over and over to build some kind of relationship with him, but it hasn't taken hold. I admit, I've had some problems growing up. I dropped out of high school, and every time I called him he mentioned it, saying I didn't live up to his expectations so I finally quit calling him.

I haven't called him in two years. I am 21 now. Should I give up or keep trying? It probably shouldn't bother me after 10 years, but he is still my dad. Well, maybe if he reads your column he will recognize me. Sign me...
"ORPHANED" IN IDAHO
P.S. I am engaged to be married. Should I ask him to pay for my wedding?

DEAR "ORPHANED": Apparently your father isn't as eager to build a relationship with you as you are to build one with him. How sad. Let him know that you are engaged to be married, and if he offers to help pay for your wedding, fine — but don't ask him. If you expect nothing, you won't be disappointed again.

You deserve some happiness in your life. I hope you have it. Congratulations and all good wishes.

DEAR ABBY: My brother's son is getting married soon in Chicago. The number of family on the groom's side will be limited, as none of us live in Chicago. We will have to fly in the night before in order to attend the wedding, which is scheduled for 2 p.m. We will not be able to leave for home the day of the wedding because there are no evening flights.

So — after the airfare, hotel for two nights, meals, car rental, etc. — the wedding will cost each of us well over $700, not including the gift.

I have just found out that the groom's family will not be invited to the rehearsal dinner, even though we are all from out of town. (There will be only six or eight of us.)

We are very hurt to think that we will be left alone in a hotel in a strange city after all of the effort and expense we will go through to attend this wedding.

Don't tell us it is our choice to go or not. We know that, but his wife would never forgive us if we didn't come, and besides, we really want to be there to see this nephew married.

Please try to explain why my brother and his wife are excluding us from the rehearsal dinner. It can't be the cost — they can well afford a few more dinners. What do the etiquette books say?

HURT IN NEW YORK
DEAR HURT: I don't know why your brother and his wife are excluding you from the rehearsal dinner if — as you say — they can well afford it.

The etiquette books say that all out-of-town guests should be invited to the rehearsal dinner, which is traditionally hosted by the groom or his family.

DEAR ABBY: To the Caucasian couple with the adopted Korean child; I, too, have been confronted by many unthinking strangers with rude comments. My most memorable occurred while grocery shopping with my blond-haired, blue-eyed biological son and my dark-haired, dark-complexioned adopted daughter.

A woman approached me and asked, "Are these your children?"
"Yes," I answered.
"Different fathers?" she asked.
"Yes, and different mothers, too," I replied.
"Oh," she said, looking confused. "With people sleeping around so much these days, I just thought —" I didn't let her finish. I just walked away and left her with her big mouth hanging open.

Blood disorder calls for follow-up treatment

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 67-year-old diagnosed with thrombocytopenia. As I understand it, there is a problem with the production of platelets. Can you give me any more information on my condition and advise if it is curable?

your affliction, the tests that have been performed (a bone marrow examination is mandatory to examine the cells that manufacture platelets), and what therapy would be appropriate in your case. Don't delay.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

(C)1991 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: Thrombocytopenia is a deficiency of platelets, the tiny blood cells necessary for proper blood clotting. The condition results from failure of platelet production, increased rate of platelet destruction or accelerated use of platelets.

Thus, common causes include leukemia, certain types of anemia, allergic drug reactions, liver disease, chronic alcohol ingestion, autoimmune disorders (such as lupus), kidney failure, severe infections and cancer. As you can see, these varied causes encompass a wide range of diseases.

In order to cure the thrombocytopenia, a doctor must first identify the underlying affliction and treat it. To complicate matters further, some patients exhibit low platelet counts without an identifiable reason, called idiopathic thrombocytopenic purpura.

Regardless of cause, thrombocytopenia leads to easy bruising, bleeding from the intestinal tract or respiratory tree and — in severe cases — bleeding into the brain.

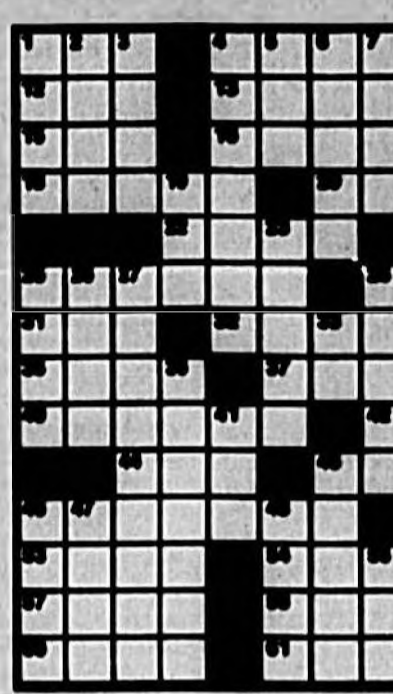

Many types of thrombocytopenia are curable. For instance, if a person is in the throes of an allergic reaction to a drug, immediate discontinuation of the offending medicine will permit the platelet count to rise. Obviously, causes such as leukemia and cancer are more difficult to control.

Therefore, my answer to your question about cure must be a qualified "maybe." I encourage you to meet with your doctor to review the possible causes of

BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
There is something thrilling about making a deceptive play — bamboozling the declarer (or the defenders), persuading him (or them) to misguess the play.

Cast your eyes over today's diagram. Most pairs would reach four hearts, and every West would lead the diamond king.

Faced with five possible losers (one heart, one diamond and three clubs), you have to hope for some friendly breaks. After winning the first trick with your diamond ace and unblocking the A-K of spades, you have two logical continuations. You could cash the heart king and cross to the heart ace. If the heart queen drops doubleton, the spade queen needs to stand up. If the heart queen doesn't appear, the spade jack must drop under the queen.

Alternatively, you could play a heart to dummy's ace immediately and follow with the spade queen. If that card lives, you will take the heart finesse in an effort to avoid a trump loser.

At the table, the declarer went for the second line, which was destined to succeed. He played off the top spades, crossed to the heart ace and cashed the spade queen, discarding his diamond loser. When he did that, East dropped the spade jack. Now declarer thought he saw a winning play: he called for the spade 10 — and East produced the nine. South discarded a club loser, but West ruffed, the defenders cashed two club tricks, and East still had the heart queen to come for one down.

A brilliant coup by East? Certainly, except that East said: "I'm very sorry, partner. I had the spade nine stuck behind another card. I didn't realize I had it." At least he was honest.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osoil
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 6, 1991

Several social contacts could play very important roles in your life in the year ahead. One may be of big help to you in the business realm, the others will help enhance your popularity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're trying to save money at this time, don't get involved socially with a good friend who always gives the credit cards a workout. You can't handle the pace. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your greatest gratification will be gained today from situations where you use your mental agility to meet and overcome challenges and obstacles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Under most conditions, it isn't wise to offer unolicited advice to others. Today, however, could be an exception. If you have suggestions that could help a confused friend, speak up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Joint ventures should work out quite well for you at this time — if each of the parties involved is making an equal contribution. If they aren't, speedy adjustments are imperative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be required to decide an issue where the alternatives appear to be of equal worth today. Lean toward the alternative which was previously successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may have an opportunity today to put down someone who hasn't treated you too kindly of late. The temptation will be great, but if you don't, you'll earn the respect of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A recreational break today, even though it is early in the week, will help prevent tensions from building up. The looser you are, the better you will be able to perform in all areas.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Two matters you've been a r ing to wrap up can be finalized to your satisfaction today. After you do what needs doing, you may wonder why it took you so long to get around to them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There isn't much that is likely to escape your notice today. You're both curious and observant, and you'll be eager to share what you learn for yourself with companions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep your wits about you in financial or commercial dealings today. You're a quick thinker, and you should be able to improvise something advantageous and profitable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're endowed with a talent that enables you to juggle several projects simultaneously. What will baffle observers today is your ability to do an equally good job with each one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to fulfill an ambitious objective today, secrecy is essential. Keep a low profile and don't talk about your intentions to anyone.
