Governor's Appointees Panned; SCC Has Black On Board

Gov. Bob Martinez' 43 proposed appointments to community college boards — including two at Seminole Community College in Sanford — would leave at least four panels with no black members — in direct conflict with a long-standing state-federal agreement.

SCC President Dr. Earl Weldon said today the college will still have a black on its board of trustees even though the 43 recently proposed appointments to community college boards by Gov. Martinez contain none.

SCC board members Beverly

Freeman and W. Garnett White are completing their four-year terms at the end of this year and being replaced by the governor's new appointments.

Weldon said, however, the term of Julius C. Ringling, the only black member of the five-person SCC board, doesn't expire until June 30, 1990. Other current members on the SCC board besides Ringling, White and Freeman are Dora Lee Russell, chairman, and Carolyn Stensstrom.

Freeman are Mrs. Mary Bell Siretman, and Larry A. Dale. Both are white, according to Dr. Weldon.

"To the best of my knowledge Ringling is not up for reappointment at this time, Weldon said. Weldon even attempted to verify that statement with the state board of community colleges, saying he was told his assumption that Ringling was still on the board was correct. The state Department of Education has carried Ringling as a white person, according to United Press International reporters. An inquiry to UPI from the Evening Herald has resulted in those records being corrected, according to the wire service.

If Gov. Martinez' appointments are approved, the entire 13-member State Board of Community Colleges would also be comprised solely of white men and women, state Division of Community College records show.

College boards at Edison Community College, Palm Beach Junior College, Pasco-Hernando

Community College would also be left with no black members.

Two other black men, Benjamin Pete of Chipola Junior College and Alvin Cowans of Valencia Community College, have been notified they will not be reappointed. If Martinez appoints whites to replace them, those two boards will also be white-only.

Martinez' proposed appointments must be approved by the Cabinet and the Senate. They went before the Cabinet on Aug. 25, but were postponed at the

Hit-Hire Woman Jailed

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A woman's apparent plot to hire a man to beat and rob her alleged cocaine dealing ex-roommate fell through with her arrest, as well as the arrest Tuesday evening of the intended victim and an unidentified man in Altamonte Springs. Each of the three face drug charges.

The woman didn't realize it, but when she allegedly negotiated the assault on her ex-roommate she was hiring an undercover City County Investigation Bureau agent to do the job.

The agent reported the woman wanted the victim to be "severely injured" and robbed of his money and cocaine. It was reported that she wrote on a piece of paper, "kill him."

Karen Joyce King, 22, of Orlando, was arrested by CCIB agents in the parking lot of the Altamonte Mall, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, at about 8:45 p.m. Tuesday. She was armed with a .38-caliber revolver agents found in her purse.

King has been charged with solicitation to commit aggravated battery and armed robbery, conspiracy to traffic cocaine, delivery and possession of cocaine and carrying a concealed firearm. She was being held without bond in the Seminole County jail.

Because of information the undercover agent had received from King a search warrant had been issued for the home

Incumbent, Former Commissioners Buried In Record Voter Turn-Out

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

A record 850 Lake Mary voters turned out for Tuesday's city election to elect Randall Morris.

George Duryea and Thomas Mahoney to city commission seats one, three and five respectively and approve two city charter amendments.

One incumbent and two former commissioners were defeated by large margins.

Lake Mary City Clerk Carol Edwards said the 42.2 percent voter participation in this year's election was the highest she had ever heard of in the city's history. "I hope there's this much turnout in future elections," Edwards said. "It's nice to see this much interest."

With the additional 43 absentee ballots cast for the election Lake Mary's total participation by its 2,012 registered voters this year was 44.4 percent. The city only had a 21.9 voter percent turnout during its last election in 1985. There were 1,981 voters registered that year.

In all three commission races the winners were elected with more than 50 percent of the vote.

Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess said the new commissioners will be sworn into office on Oct. 5. "Their first regular meeting will be on Oct. 22," Fess said.

In the fight for commission seat one, Randall Morris defeated both incumbent Charlie Webster and former commissioner Raymond Fox.

Morris received 542 votes amounting to 61.7 percent of the

Cyclist Injured In Fall In Improved Condition

Robert Sehrer, who was severely injured as he was riding his bicycle to work in the I-4 Industrial Park on July 30, is improving but is expected to remain in Orlando Regional Medical Center for several months.

Sehrer, 42, who was on his way to work at International Time Inc., was found by another employee of the company when she arrived for work. He was lying in a pool of blood, his head split across the top.

Although Sehrer's wife, Virginia, said doctors questioned whether her husband's injuries could have been caused by the steel pole found under his head on the ground, the Seminole County Sheriff's office concluded the injuries resulted from an accident and that no crime was committed.

It had also been believed by some that he was attacked by someone, but officers said there is no evidence to support that theory. Investigators said they are satisfied Sehrer fell from his bike.

Sehrer's attorney, James M. Matthews of Altamonte Springs, says he is satisfied with that conclusion.

Matthews, who said he is representing Sehrer on a workman's compensation insurance claim, said Sehrer has

No Stamps By Phone In Sanford

By Jane Caselberry
Herald Staff Writer

U.S. Postal Service customers will be able to order stamps by telephone and pay by credit card under a new service to be tested in Miami and eight other cities, the postmaster general announced Monday.

The "Stamps by Phone" program, announced in Boston by Postmaster General Preston R. Tisch at a forum for business mailers, will first be available to business and individual customers in Sacramento, Calif., on Sept. 1, postal officials said.

Chances that the "Stamps by Phone" program will ever be available in Sanford are slim to none, according to Sanford Postmaster Fred Rader. He said he had not heard of the new concept, but it is conceivable that it might be offered someday in Orlando and other larger postal centers.

Rader said Sanford does have a service by which stamps can be ordered by mail. The customer includes an envelope and check with the order and the stamps are delivered the next day.

A $2 charge will be added to the minimum $11 order to cover costs including credit card fees.

"At no time in our history have we ever done more in such a short time frame to make mailing more convenient for even the smallest-volume mailer," Tisch told about 1,400 business mailers attending the Northeast Regional Postal Forum in Boston.

Other test cities include Boston, Baltimore, New York, Minneapolis, San Diego, Dallas and Norfolk, Va.

"We believe it will provide a higher level of customer convenience," said Tisch. "This is the technology of the 1990s, and there is no reason our customers should not be able to tap into it to purchase their stamps."

John Wargo, assistant to the postmaster general, said the test phase will make use of a toll-free telephone number in some cities and a local telephone number in others to determine which seems more memorable to customers.

Wargo said the service is available to everyone but is expected to benefit mainly small business clients.

"We've tried to aim it to small businesses and consumers because research shows many businesses have only one secretary who can't get to the post office," Wargo said.

Charter Changes Adopted

An amendment to change the Lake Mary city charter to allow for a stronger city manager form of government and another to change the city's annual election date were both approved by voters in Tuesday's city election.

The referendum to end the sharing of authority and responsibilities between the mayor and the city manager in the day-to-day operation of Lake Mary received 662 votes of the 861 cast on the ques-

Martinez Calls Special Session Sept. 21

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A special session of the legislature will be called Sept. 21 to consider the service tax referendum and possible alternatives. Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, told the Herald today.

Further, House Republicans who met with Gov. Bob Martinez Tuesday said there is maybe a 30 percent chance he will reconsider his proposal for a March 8 referendum on Florida's controversial services tax.

Grindle, who was at the meeting with Martinez, said the governor is receptive to alternative proposals to the service tax.

"I found the meeting to be very good. It was an open meeting, an open exchange and very productive," said Grindle.

Various alternatives that may be considered include scrapping the service tax and instituting a one-cent or 1 1/2-cent sales tax for 18 months; or, having a series of ballots asking the public if they want to eliminate the service tax on specific services such as advertising, legal fees or real estate transactions.

Grindle said there no alternative is in the lead for consideration.

"I think he's flexible," said House Republican leader Dale Patchett. "He's still 70 percent inclined to go with a constitutional amendment, but he's allowing us to look at alternatives."

Patchett said some House Republicans are pressing for a non-binding straw ballot next March, rather than the binding constitutional amendment the governor proposed. Others want to repeal the tax and start all over again, perhaps with a new version of the services tax or a different revenue source altogether.

When Martinez unveiled the service tax referendum proposal Aug. 26, it caught lawmakers off guard, and has prompted a political furor.

Martinez began a meeting with Senate Republicans as soon as the House Republicans filed out of the governor's office after a two-hour session.

Until this week, Martinez had maintained he was absolutely

Environmental Reorganization Proposed

Tallahassee (UPI) — A legislative task force is considering a major environmental reorganization plan that includes a new state department similar to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

During a meeting at Cape Canaveral Monday, the Environmental Efficiency Study Commission adopted preliminary recommendations for the new wildlife agency and extensive new permitting power for the five water management districts.

Commission chairman Jay Landers, a Tallahassee lawyer, emphasized Tuesday the recommendations are tentative and said, "It was agreed that anyone can change their mind."

But the group has concluded "too many agencies are doing exactly the same thing" under the existing setup and some major reorganization is essential, Landers said.

The recommendations call for creation of a Florida Department of Fish and Wildlife to oversee all fishing, hunting and wildlife management. It would absorb the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and saltwater programs in the Department of Natural Resources.

DNR would be left chiefly as manager of the park system and other state lands.

In addition, the five water management districts would take over several permitting responsibilities that now rest with the Department of Environmental Regulation.

These would include regulation of wetlands dredging and filling, landfills, large septic tank systems, and sewage and industrial wastewater. DER would be left regulating air pollution and hazardous waste.

Developers and other groups have complained to the Legislature for years about unnecessary red tape and overlapping environmental regulation and have demanded "one-stop permitting".

The 1986 Legislature responded by creating the commission. The group is to submit its final report by Jan. 31.

Landers is a former secretary of both DER and DNR. The committee's vice chairman is David Gluckman of Tallahassee, a prominent environmental lobbyist and lawyer.

"The most significant decision was that all water-related activities need to be together — water quality, water quantity, ground water protection, control of dredging and filling," Landers said.

The preliminary recommendation said the way to accomplish this goal is to take away power from DER and give it to the water management districts. However, Landers said, permitting already done by the water management districts and certain other powers could be moved up to DER to accomplish the same goal.

"What we're trying to do is look at all the environmental agencies and come up with a logical approach that will best serve the public in terms of permitting needs, as well as environmental protection," Gluckman said.

Fires Raging Across West

United Press International

An army of professional firefighters from all over the country flew to the blazing West, where lightning bolts zapping the ground at the rate of 10 a minute touched off 1,500 forest and range fires that resulted in one death, blackened more than 110,000 acres and drove hundreds from their homes.

More than 12,000 firefighters, including National Guardsmen and prison inmates, were on the lines in five states. So many crews had been flown in — from as far away as Alaska, New Hampshire, Ohio, Virginia and the Carolinas — that officials estimated there were only about 1,000 professional forest fire fighters available in the rest of the country.

Most of the fires, about 825, were burning in northern California, especially in the tinder-dry Sierra Nevada. Another 600 were reported in Oregon, and several were burning in Idaho, including a 2,600-acre blaze that forced 1,000 residents from their homes. Several small fires were burning in Nevada and Wyoming, including one near Yellowstone Park.

About 69,000 acres were ablaze in California, where an unidentified U.S. Forest Service firefighter standing by the side of a road died Tuesday after being struck by a motorcycle.

Art Wirtz, spokesman for a combined U.S. Forest Service-California Department of Forestry headquarters, said Tuesday night that fires were burning in 12 of California's 17 National Forests.

"Too many fires, not enough people and not enough equipment. Many fires are burning unchecked because we have no personnel on the line," said Department of Forestry spokesman John Silvius of the Klamath National Forest, where 168 fires were reported.

Temperatures of up to 110 degrees added to the misery and danger for the fire crews, many of which have been on the lines since the onslaught began during the weekend.

Don't Sell Rope To Hangman

Vladimir Lenin's acerbic aphorism that the last capitalist will be hanged with the rope that he sold to his executioner is especially appropriate nowadays, given the eagerness of banks in the free world to lend money to Soviet-bloc nations.

Last year, the Soviet Union and Eastern-bloc countries received more than $8 billion in low-interest loans from banks in the United States and Western Europe, and Japan. This ready access to hard currency enabled the U.S.S.R. to help shore up its sluggish economy as well as to expand its global empire that extends from Managua to Hanoi. Fortunately, two measures are wending their way through Congress that are designed to curtail this misguided largess on the part of U.S. banking institutions.

The House bill, introduced by Reps. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Toby Roth, R-Wis., would require American banks to report to their shareholders the number and the total amount of all unconditional loans to Soviet-bloc nations. It would also allow the president to regulate these loans on national-security grounds.

The Senate bill, co-sponsored by Jake Garn, R-Utah, and William Proxmire, D-Wis., would simply give the president greater discretion to limit such loans.

Ordinarily, loans to foreign countries are linked to a verifiable purpose, such as debt service, equipment purchase, specific commercial projects, or short-term commodity transactions. During the last three years, however, Soviet-bloc nations have received bargain-basement loans from Western and Japanese financial markets with no strings attached.

Several months ago, First Chicago Corp. was the lead bank in a $200 million loan to the Soviet Union, unrelated to any specific purpose, with a magnanimous interest rate of 7.5 percent. Inasmuch as First Chicago reported a second quarter loss of $698 million, one would assume that its stockholders might be wary of this transaction. Obviously, American farmers faced with foreclosure would jump at the chance to restructure their loans at the interest rate accorded the Soviet Union. So would many small-business men or home buyers who are paying 12 percent or more on their loans.

Western and Japanese bankers rationalize their low-interest loans, citing the excellent debt repayment record of Soviet-bloc countries. Even if one accepts their flimsy premise, which is contradicted by the shaky credit histories of Poland, Romania, and Cuba, it hardly justifies subsidizing an adversary that has sworn to destroy us. Indeed, Rep. Kemp was on target when he suggested that it is insane to help the Soviet Union finance "aggression abroad and oppression and the military buildup at home."

The first step in reversing this counterproductive course is for Congress to approve and for President Reagan to sign the Kemp-Roth measure. Public disclosure requirements combined with enhanced presidential discretion to regulate such loans would discourage U.S. banks from giving the store away to Soviet-bloc countries.

Next, the United States ought to help develop a joint allied policy to eliminate untied loans to the Soviet-bloc countries. A bipartisan letter to that effect, signed by 18 senators and representatives, was delivered to President Reagan last month. Such an agreement is essential because 90 percent of these low-interest loans are granted by banks in Western Europe and Japan. Clearly, it is in the interest of free world banks to scale back these loans for financial as well as security reasons.

This isn't to suggest that Soviet-bloc nations be denied access to Western and Japanese credit markets. But such access should be governed by the prevailing interest rate and be strictly monitored. The alternative is to sell more rope to the hangman.

Don't Ever Fear, Congress Will Return

By Robert Shepard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Congress was about to begin its August recess, it first had to dispose of a technical matter which, if left unattended, could have prevented the lawmakers from returning.

In the view of some people, both in and out of Washington, that might not be such a bad idea.

The almost year-round sessions of Congress that now occur were not always the case. In fact, the legislative reorganization act of 1946 declared that Congress would adjourn for the year by the end of July, except in case of war or unless otherwise provided.

In these days, however, Congress can usually keep busy well into October or November, so it is necessary to waive that 1946 law each time Congress prepares to take its month-long August break.

As a result, you can count on your representatives and senators being back at their old stand Sept. 9.

But when the House passed the recess resolution July 29, there was some wistful discussion of the possibility of sticking with the law, and calling it quits for the year.

"I have many constituents who think the country would be better off if in fact we lived within the law," said Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa.

That prompted House Democratic leader Tom Foley of Washington to recall that in years long past, the congressional schedule was largely dictated by the weather — by the miserable Washington summers that used to force members of Congress to finish their work and flee. But that was before air conditioning.

Foley noted the argument of a former senator who maintained "the worst mistake that was ever made by the Congress in this century was to air-condition the Capitol in 1938." That allowed Congress to stay around through the summer, if it chose.

Foley further recalled a former House member who, air conditioning and the plans of his colleagues notwithstanding, strictly adhered to the 1946 law requiring Congress to adjourn by the end of July.

"There was a former member of this body, I am told, who always adjourned himself personally on the 31st of July in accordance with the statute not regarding the actions of the House or the other body," Foley said.

"The member used to go to the well and say that it was his purpose to obey the law as well as to make it; and since the statute was in existence, he hereby adjourned himself sine die."

House Republican leader Bob Michel identified the member as Noah Mason, whom he described as "very precise."

"He used to get up and say, 'Mr. Speaker, it is July 31, and I just want to inform the membership that this member is going to abide by the law and return to his home district for benefit of his constituents.'"

Mason died in office and no other member of Congress seriously expects Congress in return to the work schedule of yesteryear.

It was suggested, during discussion of the recess resolution, that Congress should "repeat the anachronism" of 1946. Walker said it would "make far more sense" to do so and end the need to waive the law each time Congress prepared for summer vacation.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Sport Of Misleading Liberals

Kevin Phillips, the author of that 1969 masterpiece "The Emerging Republican Majority," decided he could sell more of his subsequent books if he baited them with titles that liberals would find more agreeable. So in the 1970s he entitled one of his tomes "Post-Conservative America," and the liberals all rushed to buy it like the Gadarene swine, though they soon discovered that the America Phillips envisioned wasn't to their liking at all.

I suspect my good friend Bob Tyrrell, editor of The American Spectator, of similar duplicity in calling the principal article in his magazine's September issue "The Coming Conservative Crack-Up." Not that Tyrrell and most of the heavy thinkers he invites to comment on that subject aren't genuinely worried about conservatism's present and future; they are. But what they are all arguing about is how best to up-end the liberals.

Tyrrell himself thinks conservatives lack initiative: They "simply do not take much interest in the world around them" and "have not even thought of maintaining enduring institutions comparable to those of the liberals." Tom Bethell concentrates on what he regards as conservatism's too-meddlesome notions of foreign policy: The United States should "(withdraw) its hardware and its destructive dollars from around the globe," and "all covert operations should cease forthwith."

Richard Brookhiser fears conservatives may have "lost sight of the goal — which should be, not to maintain a permanent set of parallel institutions, but to march through the institutions which exist." Victor Gold worries that "conservatives may win political battles but liberals are still winning the cultural war, in the end dictating the true national agenda." Lew Lehrman thinks conservatives should "begin by elevating to primacy... the inalienable right-to-life."

My, my, aren't we discouraged easily. Just think — Ronald Reagan has been president for 6½ years, yet there are still liberals around in positions of influence! Worse yet, we conservatives haven't really created "enduring institutions" of our own, let alone taken over the pre-existing ones. Why, the liberals are even still "dictating the true national agenda."

But that is the work of two or three decades. Cheer up, conservatives. The best is yet to be.

Biden, Simon Battle For Headlines

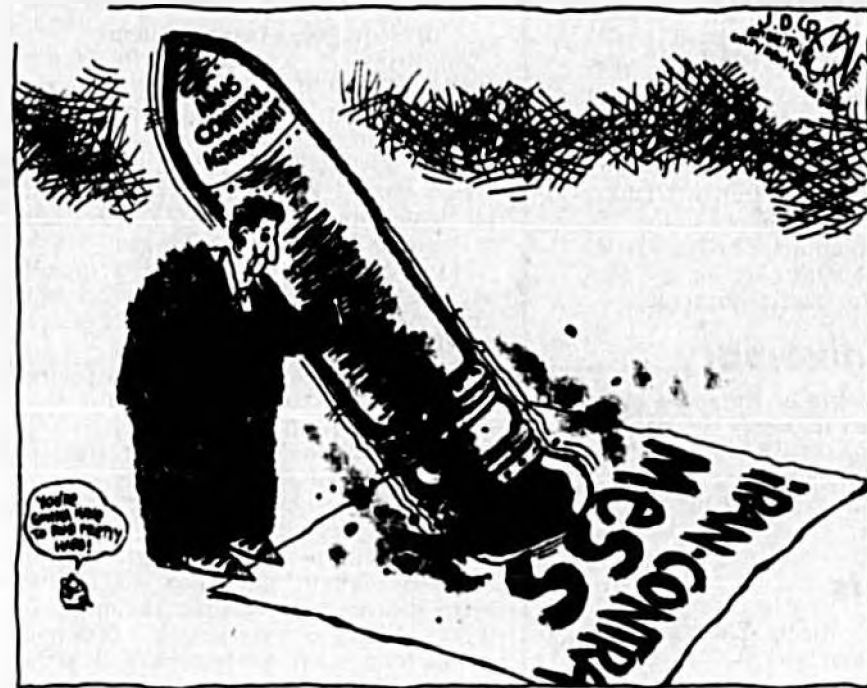

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Will White House Fever touch off a feud between two liberal Democratic senators?

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., has been in the headlines because of his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee, which will hold confirmation hearings on President Reagan's nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court. The pundits haven't decided yet whether Biden's role will be a plus or a minus in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination, but there's no question that the publicity has already helped his name recognition in the country at large.

Now it appears that Biden has found another use for his committee chairmanship: keeping another presidential contender out of the headlines.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., is a junior member of the Judiciary Committee and chairman of its subcommittee on the Constitution. He proposed

The Peace Offensive

It is very difficult to know what to make of the current Reagan-Arias-Wright peace plans for Nicaragua. There are those who have kept faith with Ronald Reagan over the years, and they like to believe that this was an adept move.

We are talking about a cease-fire in the civil war there, contingent upon the communists' willingness to hold genuine elections complete with international supervision, plus freedom of the press and religion, plus the removal of all foreign troops and advisors.

Those who believe in Reagan believe that the Ortega dictatorship will agree to no such thing. It holds power in Managua, buttressed by a billion dollars in Soviet military aid, plus thousands of international communist volunteers.

But, say those who believe in Reagan, when the Ortega dictatorship refuses this package, it will be clear to everyone who has eyes just what the nature of that regime is. Then the administration will ask Congress for $150 million for the Nicaraguan anti-communist resistance, the Democratic party will split on the issue, and the aid will be voted in.

There are, unfortunately, other ways of viewing all of this, with ample historical precedent. This whole thing went forward without any consultation with the civilian leaders of the resistance. It was simply sprung on them, and they tried to put the best face on they could.

Putting your lives and your cause in the hands of the United States is just not, on the record, very prudent. We trained an anti-Castro guerrilla force under Eisenhower, put it ashore at the Bay of Pigs, and then Kennedy cancelled the airstrike that was part of the plan and would have wiped out the Cuban air force. The men either died on the beach or rotted for years in Castro's prisons.

Under the terms of the SEATO agreement, we came to the aid of a beleaguered South Vietnam. At the end, with Congress cutting off aid, the South Vietnamese army was down to four bullets per soldier, while the enemy rolled forward with tanks and rockets. The last helicopter leaving the roof of the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, with Vietnamese clinging to the landing gear, is a good symbol of what U.S. allies seem to be in for.

Under the weak Ford presidency, the War Powers Act, which is probably unconstitutional as violation of the separation of powers, tied our hands and turned Angola and Mozambique over to tiny communist factions.

Are we doing the same thing, now, in Nicaragua? Many think so. With fighting forces in the field, it is very risky to propose a cease-fire short of victory. If things do not work out, it is very difficult to regain lost battlefield momentum. Following World War II, U.S. strategic management has been too subtle and complex, full of too many "signals" and "moves." When shots are being fired in anger, the best strategic doctrine is "on to Berlin," "on to Tokyo."

In Vietnam, it was immoral to ask our men and our allies' men to put their lives on the line, all the while refusing to destroy the war-making capacity of the North — which could have been accomplished over a weekend, given the vulnerability, for example, of the dikes.

On September 30, the administration plans to ask Congress for the funds to support the Nicaraguan resistance.

Acne Drug May Help Wrinkles

By Jeri Clauson

HOUSTON (UPI) — A face lotion that has become common treatment for acne sufferers may also offer hope to sun worshippers worried their bronzed skin will mean early wrinkles.

"There is no medically proven product available now that will completely reverse the natural aging process or eliminate wrinkles, but there is a glimmer of hope for some people with skin damaged by overexposure to sunlight," said Dr. John Wolf, chairman of dermatology at Baylor College of Medicine.

That hope comes from Retin A, a derivative of vitamin A acids, that has been prescribed by dermatologists for more than 10 years to help treat acne. Now, those doctors are beginning to find the product may also reverse some of the damage that causes premature aging to skin long exposed to the sun.

"After Retin A was developed we discovered it was useful for a lot of other things besides acne," Wolf said. "Some people have observed, in patients using it that the patient felt that the skin looked younger and looked better using the Retin A. Other people had speculated that Retin A does some things which make sense in terms of helping reverse some aging changes in the skin."

Dr. Albert Kligman, professor of dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania, said at a conference on aging at the National Institutes of Health last month that retinoic acid, of which Retin A is a variety, was one of the few promising weapons in the war on wrinkles.

Long-term exposure to the sun causes a thickening of the epidermis, the outer layer of the skin, as melanin, or pigment, surfaces in an attempt to repair damage to the skin. Sunlight also damages blood vessels and collagen in the dermis, the deeper layer of the skin, which allow the skin to stretch and snap back into place.

The effects of the damage are dry, leathery skin that wrinkles, sags and looks old prematurely.

Retin A seems to have the capability of accelerating the skin's normal tendency to repair itself by promoting new blood vessel growth, which increases blood supply to the outer and deeper layers of the skin, Wolf said. It also may stimulate regrowth of the epidermal cells on the outer layer of the skin.

taneous assignments on more than two major committees.

The Judiciary and Foreign Relations committees have publicity potential that other candidates would envy. The Bork hearings will be just the opening round of a long series of encounters that could make or break either senator's presidential aspirations.

In the months to come, foreign policy will become an issue of overriding importance in the presidential campaign, and the Foreign Relations Committee will be an ideal forum for both Biden and Simon. Since both senators' foreign-policy views are essentially the same, the contest will be more of form than substance, with each man trying to avoid sounding like an echo of the other.

Aides to both senators insist that, while the two men are not close personally, they have great respect for each other's abilities. That rapport will be tested as they share common stages.

his subcommittee hold a hearing as part of the city of Philadelphia's celebration of the Constitution's bicentennial.

But as a subcommittee chairman, Simon had to get the Judiciary Committee chairman's permission to hold the hearing. And Biden said no.

A Biden aide said the chairman refused because the proposed hearing would have been an "intrusion" into the celebration planned in July by the Bicentennial Committee. But Fred Stein, executive director of "We the People — 200," the group that coordinated Philadelphia's celebration, told our reporter Gary Clouser the Simon hearing would have been a welcome complement to the day's events.

Simon's supporters suspect that Biden was less concerned with the intrusion of Simon's committee into Philadelphia's celebration than with the possible intrusion of Simon's mug into the evening news shows and the next day's headlines.

There was a hint in 1986 that Biden and Simon would not always see eye to eye on major issues. Simon sponsored a balanced-budget measure that would have prohibited the government from spending more than it took in. It lost by one vote; Biden voted against it. The Delaware Democrat's version of a balanced-budget law had been soundly defeated two years earlier.

If a feud is indeed in the making, Biden and Simon have a unique stage on which to slug it out. They are the only presidential candidates who serve on the same committee. They share two Senate committee assignments: Judiciary and Foreign Relations. Simon, in fact, is the only non-lawyer on the Judiciary Committee.

Ironically, Simon would not be serving on Foreign Relations, save for a special waiver granted by the Senate leadership guaranteeing he could serve on Foreign Relations, Judiciary and Labor simultaneously. Senate rules forbid simul-

Reagan Aides Play Wait And See With Special Prosecutor

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — White House aides are waiting for independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh to force their hand before announcing whether President Reagan would submit to interrogation in the criminal probe of the Iran-Contra scandal.

"We just don't know what he's up to," a senior White House official said Tuesday of disclosures that Walsh may ask to interview Reagan for his broad criminal investigation. "Our response is that this is an issue for them to decide and bring to us."

Sources close to Walsh said a meeting with Reagan might be needed to address directly the question of where presidential authority was given in secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

While there is legal precedent for a president to be questioned on matters under investigation, chief White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was careful Tuesday not to commit Reagan one way or the other.

Rockefeller Bucks Battle Begins

NEW YORK (UPI) — An inheritance battle being waged in a Manhattan court pits two blue bloods from the Rockefeller line against their younger stepfather, a Chilean diplomat whose lawyer insisted his marriage was not "a typical gigolo case."

The challengers in the court battle that got under way Tuesday are two disinherited great-grandchildren of oil baron John D. Rockefeller, who claim their mother was duped into leaving her millions to their stepfather, 52-year-old Raymundo de Larrain.

The estate of Marchioness Margaret Strong de Cuevas de Larrain was worth anywhere from $14 million to $70 million when she died at the age of 88 on Dec. 2, 1985.

"The marquesa," as she is referred to in New York Surrogate Court, is the granddaughter of the Rockefeller patriarch and cousin of Nelson and David Rockefeller. Her children and plaintiffs in the case are sculptor Elizabeth de Cuevas, 58, and John de Cuevas, 56, who teaches scientific writing at Harvard University.

The lawyer for the marquesa's Chilean second husband insists that this isn't "a typical gigolo case."

Anti-Cholesterol Drug OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One patient calls lovastatin, the first approved drug in a new class of compounds that lower blood cholesterol, a "miracle drug," and doctors hail it as a potential key weapon against coronary heart disease.

The prescription drug was approved Tuesday by the Food and Drug Administration and endorsed at a news conference by two Nobel laureates, doctors and patients, like Naomi Blick, who were helped by the drug during its experimental phase.

Lovastatin will be commercially available in two to three weeks under the brand name Mevacor, said its manufacturer, Merck Sharp & Dohme, of West Point, Pa.

Dr. Michael Brown and Dr. Joseph Goldstein, University of Texas cholesterol researchers who shared the 1985 Nobel prize in medicine, hailed the drug as the first in a class of drugs whose discovery drew on their research on the body's natural production and processing of cholesterol.

Barged Garbage Meets Fiery End

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some 3,186 tons of ripe garbage that once languished on a barge spurned by six states and three countries now has sanitation workers toiling round the clock, feeding the retched refuse into a fiery incinerator.

Beyond an occasional yo-yo and old tire, most of the trash that workers began unloading at an incinerator in Brooklyn Tuesday was "just boring commercial garbage," said Sanitation Department spokesman Vito Turso.

Sanitation worker Vincent DiPeri, whose team of city employees will man the 24-hour burning operation, said he did not spot anything unusual. "I don't get that close to my work," he explained.

Report: Waite Will Be Freed

KUWAIT (UPI) — Church of England envoy Terry Waite, kidnapped nearly eight months ago in Moslem west Beirut, will be released within 10 days, the state-run Kuwait News Agency said.

"Waite will gain his freedom within 10 days," the news agency quoted unidentified "security sources" as saying Tuesday.

There was no way of independently judging the veracity of the latest in a series of unconfirmed reports about Waite's fate.

...Charter

tions by city residents. That amounts to 76.9 percent of the vote.

Opponents of the charter change could only manage 199 votes for 23.1 percent of the total votes cast.

Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess said he's been pushing for the change to a city manager form of government ever since he was serving as a city commissioner. He said at that time (1981 or 1982) the city hired the outside firm of Long and Associates to do a study of the city's organization.

Under the new charter change the city manager will now be directly responsible for the actions and efficiency of all city departments and staff. He will have the authority to hire and fire all city personnel with the approval of the commission.

The charter change also makes the city manager the chief budgetary officer for the city. He is now responsible for the drafting and presentation of the budget to the commission.

Fess said the city had to have an administrative head and an elected head of the city in order for the government to run efficiently. "Everyone knows who they have to report to at that point," Fess said.

"I'm extraordinarily pleased the city charter amendment was passed, said newly elected seat one commissioner Randall Morris, that's what I've been working on for a year." Morris said that seeing the referendum question pass by such a resounding vote was an indication city residents want a responsive government.

The other referendum question passed by the voters on Tuesday's election ballot will move the city's annual election date from Sept. 1, to the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. The new date is that traditionally used as the state election day.

Fess said a local newspaper was critical of his effort to change the election day because it felt voters would be more informed if it had its own special date. Fess said having the city election on the same day as the state does will bring more voters to the polls and hopefully lessen the chance of special interest groups taking control of Lake Mary government. "Everybody has the right to vote," Fess said. He added the everybody has the responsibility to be informed on issues and candidates when they do so.

Riot Police Charge Strikers, 10 South Africans Injured

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — At least 10 demonstrators were hurt by glass from a shattered storefront when heavily armed riot police, who had been monitoring a memorial service for two executed black activists, turned on a crowd of striking postal workers in downtown Johannesburg.

In Welkom, about 160 miles southwest of Johannesburg, rescuers abandoned hope late Tuesday of finding alive any of the 40 miners trapped following an explosion Monday at the St. Helena gold mine.

Rescuers now assume an elevator cage, believed to have been carrying 40 men, fell about 1,500 feet to the bottom of the mine shaft and is buried under a pile of shattered concrete and twisted steel, a mining company official said. Ten bodies have been recovered, bringing the estimated death toll to 50.

The clash Tuesday in Johannesburg occurred after police were deployed to monitor, photograph and search people leaving Khotso "Peace" House, headquarters of the South African Council of Churches.

Politicians Agree To Reforms

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The leaders of Korea's two main political parties agreed today on a timetable for democratic reforms, and President Chun Doo Hwan reaffirmed his pledge to keep the military out of politics.

Roh Tae-woo, president of the ruling Democratic Justice Party, and Kim Young-sam, leader of the opposition Reunification Democratic Party, agreed on a timetable for implementing a new constitution and holding presidential elections.

Under their agreement, a new constitution providing for direct presidential elections and expanded human rights would be presented to the National Assembly by Sept. 10. A national referendum on the document would be held by the end of October and presidential elections would be conducted by Dec. 20.

As the two political leaders were working on the timetable, Chun was reaffirming his pledge to keep the military out of Korean politics, despite labor protests and renewed unrest among students returning to college for the fall term.

'Red Square' Pilot Pleads Guilty

MOSCOW (UPI) — Less than two hours after his trial opened, the Tass news agency reported Mathias Rust pleaded guilty today to all charges stemming from his sensational flight to Red Square.

The West German teenager listened as Soviet prosecutors leveled three charges, which could mean up to 10 years in prison, against him.

"Asked whether he admitted his guilt," Tass said, "the defendant answered in the affirmative."

With his parents and brother looking on, Mathias Rust went before a tribunal in the Supreme Court building just over a mile from where he landed his Cessna 172 May 28. The incident prompted a major Soviet defense shakeup.

A few dozen curious Russians and scores of foreign reporters gathered outside the pale green court building in a light drizzle, but Rust was apparently brought in by a rear entrance.

State Fire Marshall To Report On Blaze At AIDS Brothers' Home

ARCADIA (UPI) — The state fire marshall's office today was expected to release its report of an investigation into what caused a suspicious fire that gutted the home of three young brothers who test positive for AIDS, and forced their family to flee town.

The Ray family's home was devastated late Friday by a fire. The next day, the family announced they were leaving town, never to return.

DeSoto County Sheriff's Maj. Vernon Keen said it did not appear a firebomb caused the blaze and the investigation was turned over to state authorities.

The Rays' lawyer, Judith Kavanaugh, said Tuesday the children "are upset" about the incident, but their spirits remained steadfast.

Pope's Visit Defended

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Pope John Paul II's Miami visit next week will cost the public up to $4 million for security alone, but south Florida Archbishop Edward McCarthy says the spending is justified.

The estimated 500,000 people who will see the pope, plus Dade County residents who will be inconvenienced by traffic congestion and other problems "are all tax paying citizens" entitled to a return on their investment, McCarthy said.

The archbishop concluded a two-day Florida swing to promote the pope's 23-hour Miami stop Sept. 10-11.

Miami is the first stop on the pontiff's nine-city tour of the United States, his first since 1979. He will be greeted in Miami by President and Mrs. Reagan.

The 500,000 people expected for the special mass could fill "seven Orange Bowls," McCarthy noted when justifying taxpayer spending for security and other services.

"This is a tremendous number of people. All these people who are coming, as well as people who are not coming, but who are going to be affected by this congestion of traffic, they all happen to be tax paying citizens. It's a responsibility of our state to provide for that type of safety and security."

New Objections Raised To Fort George Project

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Attorney General Bob Butterworth said Monday the company behind a controversial development planned for Fort George Island has claimed nearly twice as much marshland as the state originally alleged.

State officials had previously challenged the claim by Fairfield Communities, Inc., to 100 acres of marshland also claimed by the state on the barrier island in northeast Jacksonville. Now Butterworth says the acreage might total about 191 acres, including some land improperly filled during the 1960s by previous owners.

The attorney general also says Fairfield needs the permission of the governor and Cabinet to build a bridge planned for the development. The filled land amounts to 46 acres where Fairfield plans a "utility center" including shops, waterworks, a sewage plant, parking lots and sales office, Butterworth said.

Butterworth said an investigation by his office and the Department of Natural Resources turned up records indicating the additional 91 acres might really be sovereign submerged lands that belong to the state.

Fairfield's development plans for a 1,343 unit residential and retail complex are based in part of its assumption of ownership.

The state has been pursuing its claim to the disputed land in Duval County Circuit Court. The attorney general's office filed papers Monday expanding its claim to cover the additional 91 acres.

"If Fairfield is unable to meet its illegal burden to prove it owns this land, then it is clear that the local approval of the project was based on a significant amount of misinformation," Butterworth said in a prepared statement.

Fairfield has been trying to develop 757 acres on the island since 1982, but the project has been sidetracked by lawsuits filed by the state, small property owners and environmentalists who fear damage to the island's fragile ecology.

The island is home to rare species of birds and plants, and Butterworth has joined efforts to have it declared a state or national preserve. The Florida Wildlife Federation proposed Monday the Fairfield property be purchased under the state Conservation and Recreation Lands program.

The federal government was also considering restricting use of federal funds for improvements on barrier islands including Fort George, and withholding flood insurance to discourage development.

'Knowing Mowing' Safety Course Could Save Lives

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reply to a letter from "Counting by 19s Now," who spent thousands of dollars and weeks of pain following a tragic accident with a power lawn mower. To address the problem of 60,000 mowing accidents a year, the American Red Cross developed a two-hour lawn mower safety course titled "Knowing Mowing." It includes the safety features of a power lawn mower, maintenance, emergency first aid, and an obstacle course to practice new skills.

Too many people who have used a power mower for years think it can never happen to them. "Counting by 19s Now" pointed out how easily such an accident can happen to an experienced and careful mower.

Abby, please advise men, women and children to contact their local chapter of the American Red Cross to sign up for a class. Or better yet, volunteer to learn how to teach this simple, fun course that can save needless pain and tragedy.

PTL Asks Court Stop Disabled Youth's Suit

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Lawyers for PTL asked federal bankruptcy court Tuesday to block a state court lawsuit requiring the financially strapped television ministry continue operating "Kevin's House" for a disabled youth and his family.

PTL asked the U.S. Bankruptcy Court to prevent Kevin Whittum's lawsuit from being heard in York County Court of Common Pleas and permanently enjoin any further proceedings or action on the teenager's complaint.

PTL has given Whittum, 19, and his family until Sept. 10 to vacate the house.

Whittum filed suit in the York County two weeks ago to try to block his eviction from Kevin's House, built by PTL with contributions it solicited for that purpose while Jim Bakker, later deposed in a sex scandal, was in charge.

Whittum's state court suit is scheduled to be heard Thursday in York.

Lawyers for Whittum, who weighs only 22 pounds and suffers from brittle bone disease, have also asked the bankruptcy court to issue an order temporarily and permanently enjoining PTL from evicting Whittum, his parents and his adopted sister, Caroline.

Whittum asks the federal court to order PTL officials to keep operating the house for him and six foster children as originally intended by Bakker before he resigned in March and turned over the ministry to the Rev. Jerry Falwell.

Whittum, who is confined to a wheelchair and has been often seen on the PTL television programs to promote Kevin's House, claims in his bankruptcy court complaint that "large sums of money were donated and contributed" for Kevin's House and held in trust.

He alleges these funds "may have been inadvertently, carelessly or recklessly commingled" newspapers, packages and mail delivered daily during your absence.

'87 U.S. Open Is Wide Open

This year's U.S. Open is a very hard one to call. It seems that lately everyone is beating everyone, both on the men's side and on the women's side.

I should have enough sense to quit trying to pick the winners of the top four tournaments, (the U.S. Open, Wimbledon, the French and the Australian). After all, I've been completely shut out this year. Oh well, nothing ventured, nothing gained.

It really has been crazy lately. Last week Pam Shriver beat Chris Evert in the Canadian Open. It was the first time that Shriver had ever beaten Evert. This should give Pam a lot of confidence going into the Open. It at least will make her a darkhorse contender for the title.

Chris will, of course, also be in the running but I really believe that Chris is a bit past her prime and will probably never win another major title. This will be the first year she has failed to win at least one Grand Slam event.

Gabriela Sabatini has really been playing well as of late and should go a long way in this year's open. Gabby is very close to reaching her full potential and is still very young. As soon as she wins a major title there may be no stopping her. Not this year though, not the U.S. Open.

It will come down once again to Martina and Steffi. These two have been ranked one and two all year long and should meet in the finals again. Everyone is picking Steffi Graf to win it all. Not me — I'm going to give the edge to Martina.

Navratilova loves to play in the Big Apple and the New York crowds love her. They are some of the wildest and most frantic tennis fans anywhere and they can literally "carry" the favorite home.

This will be the scene in the finals: Steffi and Martina on center court — the crowd will not let Martina lose.

On the men's side, it is really wide open. Ivan Lendl lost last week to David Pate (Who?). Jimmy Connors lost to Leconte, and Cash lost to Jonas B. Svenason. John McEnroe has been hurt. Mike Pernfors has gotten fat and happy, and Becker is in love, and I don't feel so good myself.

Anyway, this is going to be the most wide open U.S. Open in recent times. The one guy I did not mention is Stefan Edberg. All the experts say that he is at the top of his game right now and is playing better than anyone else in the world.

He is playing great but I think Stefan will fold at the Open. In fact I do not think that any of the Swedes will make it to the semifinals. McEnroe and Connors carry the hopes of the U.S. but Connors is not physically able to play several three of five set matches and will fall early and Mac is simply too weak between the ears.

So, who is going to win it on the men's side? I pick the new touring pro from Lapland. His name is Knut Skaho — I'm kidding of course. Actually I'm going to be very boring and go with Ivan Lendl. He is still the best men's player in the world and does well at this tournament.

I can't wait to hear his interview after he wins the final. "I played very well this day and Stefan was somewhat off."

TAMPA (UPI) — A U.S. magistrate set bond Tuesday at $200,000 for former Detroit Tigers pitcher Denny McLain, who is awaiting his third trial on racketeering, extortion and cocaine-possession charges.

Eager 'Noles Eye Jamboree

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
"When the potential is high, the anticipation is great."

The potential has never been higher and the anticipation never greater for one head coach, four assistants and 44 football players.

Seminole coach Roger Beathard, assistants Emory Blake, Bill Zeiss, Al Lewis and Greg Register, along with 44 Fighting Seminoles step onto their first warpath together Thursday night at Lyman High School.

This one does not count in the standings. It is only a jamboree, but the ferocity will be there just the same. After nearly three weeks of beating on teammates, those Kissimmee Osceola jerseys will look very inviting.

Football

Seminole and the Kowboys will play the first half, beginning at 7 p.m. Host Lyman and Oviedo lock helmets in the second half. Admission is $3 at the gate.

Beathard, who was named interim coach when Dave Mosure resigned June 8, said the team and coaching staff echo his first-paragraph words. "We feel good about this year," he said.

Eight returns on defense, which will be coordinated by Zeiss, have a lot to do with that feeling. The return from injury (broken leg) of quarterback Jeff Blake, along with hard-charging fullback Curtis Rudolph, give offensive coordinator Emory Blake some interesting balance. Jerod Jones, who also missed last year with an injury (broken ankle), joins the backfield. Backups Kevin Richardson, Eric Williams and Julius Bennett are pushing for more playing time. Richardson led the runners with 75 yards in Saturday's intrasquad scrimmage.

Beathard said Seminole will use the jamboree not so much as to locate strengths, but to determine weaknesses. "We plan to get a good look at everybody," he said Wednesday. "Depth is a big concern. We have to find some backup players who can help us." Along with the backups, Beathard and staff will scrutinize the performances of Dwight Brinson, Ralph Hardy, Jerry Governall, Eugene Byam and Paul Newell.

Although all are good athletes, none has the experience usually associated with juniors or seniors. Brinson and Hardy, both juniors, along with senior Newell, did not play last year. Governall and Byam played a part of a season.

"Brinson had some trouble with coach Mosure, but that's behind him now," Beathard said. "He's done everything asked of him this year. He has the best hands on the team and great athletic ability. He can run with the ball after he catches it." Hardy, after a strong freshman season, did not come out as a sophomore. The super-quick 170-pounder, however, has not wasted anytime moving into a starting position. "Ralph came out and said he'd play wherever

Becker Escapes Wilkinson Scare

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twelve hours after Ivan Lendl made U.S. Open history with a three-set shutout, Boris Becker came within one set of repeating personal history.

Becker, seeded fourth, Tuesday night recovered from a two-set deficit for the first time in his career to outlast unseeded Tim Wilkinson 4-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 in the opening round of the U.S. Open. The American, who wears a baseball cap for all his matches, missed handing the West German his second major upset of the year. In the second round of Wimbledon, Becker lost to unheralded Australian Peter Doolan.

"He played better and better, the crowd got into it and he was just another Doolan," Becker said of Wilkinson's performance.

After playing inconsistently for most of the first three sets, Becker settled down and began hitting his serve and passing shots with greater accuracy. Wilkinson, the only American man to reach the 1986 Open quarterfinals, appeared to fire in the final set and lost the last three games at love.

Lendl, the top seed and defending champion, defeated Barry Moor 6-0, 6-0, 6-0 in the day's first match, requiring only 71 minutes to win.

John McEnroe continued his return to form with his first Grand Slam singles victory in two years, scoring a convincing 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 triumph over Matt

Anger, never losing his own serve while breaking Anger's service five times.

Martina Navratilova, the defending women's champion, followed Lendl on the Stadium Court and came close to achieving a shutout of her own. She swept the first five games before settling for a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Kate Gompert.

Adding to the historic tone of opening day at Flushing Meadow, Michael Chang of La Costa, Calif., became the youngest male to win a match at the U.S. national championship, Chang, 15, with a world ranking of 920, defeated 32-year-old Australian Paul McNamee 6-3, 6-7 (5-7), 6-4, 6-4.

Former Seminole Community College standout Mikael Pernfors was forced to retire with an injury after falling behind Christian Bergstrom 6-3, 3-0.

The only seeded player to fall on the first day was No. 15 Barbara Potter, a 7-5, 6-3 loser to Japan's Akiko Kijimuta.

Among the men, winners also included No. 11 Henri Leconte, No. 13 Brad Gilbert and No. 16 Anders Jarryd. First-day winners in the women's draw also included No. 4 Hana Mandlikova, the 1985 Open champion; No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini; No. 9 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch and Caterina Lindqvist.

Upshaw: Clubs Release Reps To Break Union

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the NFL players' union Tuesday accused clubs of releasing player representatives in an attempt to break the union before a possible strike.

Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, called the New England Patriots' decision Tuesday to trade veteran offensive tackle Brian Holloway a "blatant" example of the treatment accorded players active in the union. Holloway is the team's union representative and the NFLPA's first vice president.

New England Coach Raymond Berry denied that Holloway's union work was a factor in the team asking him to retire or be traded. Holloway, entering his seventh season, was a member of the union's executive committee that met Monday in Washington to set a strike deadline as the collective bargaining agreement expired at midnight Monday.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the league's negotiating arm, said through a spokesman both sides will return to the bargaining table Wednesday for the first time since Aug. 14.

Football

Neither the Management Council nor the union disclosed the site of the session.

One of the union's eight bargaining issues is protection for union representatives.

Upshaw said Holloway would be the fifth union representative to be cut or traded since mini-camp, joining the New York Jets' Johnny Lynn, San Francisco's Bill Ring, Tampa Bay's Jerry Bell and Cleveland's Curtis Weathers.

MIAMI — Dan Marino said Tuesday he is ready and wants to play as much as possible in Friday night's exhibition game against Buffalo, but Miami Coach Don Shula plans on playing his best quarterback sparingly, if at all.

Marino is recovering from a dislocated ring finger on his right, and throwing, hand suffered in the Aug. 16 exhibition opener against Chicago. He threw Tuesday and said his arm and hand felt fine. Marino said he has no problems throwing, but his finger hurts when he takes the snap from center.

NEW ORLEANS — First-round draft pick Shawn Knight, who missed the first five weeks of practice before signing with the New Orleans Saints, Tuesday expressed confidence he could quickly make up lost time.

Knight, a 6-foot-6, 290-pound defensive end from Brigham Young, also said he would be ready for limited action against Cincinnati Friday.

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Detroit Lions Tuesday waived Leonard Thompson, one of the top wide receivers in the franchise's history.

Thompson, who reported to training camp late this year due to a contract dispute, played 12 seasons with the Lions. He is fourth on the team in receptions with 277, third in career yardage with 4,682.

BOSTON (UPI) — Chuck Sullivan, executive vice president of the New England Patriots, could face a $100,000 fine for passing on confidential information to CBS analyst John Madden, the Boston Globe reported.

Corso: Potent Trio Needs Setter

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Senior Cindy Benge and juniors Liz Long and Adrian Hillsman make up a pretty potent trio, but Seminole High volleyball coach Beth Corso knows that power alone can't buy you wins.

Corso is hoping for improved back row play from the Lady Tribe in 1987, but the biggest concern is the gigantic hole left at the setter position. Last year's catalyst, Sheri Peterson, one of the best all-around athletes at Seminole High the last four years, has graduated.

Seminole has a good athlete in junior Bobbie Osborne taking over at setter, but this is her first year in volleyball. How quickly Osborne learns the position will be a key for the Lady 'Noles.

"This is only Bobbie's first year in volleyball, but she's a good athlete and a quick learner," Corso said. "She's being asked to learn 1,000 things in two weeks and be able to start at setter."

Seminole, which came within seven points of going to the 4A-9 District final last year, opens the 1987 season Wednesday, Sept. 9 at home against Seminole Athletic Conference foe Lake Brantley. Since Seminole High is now in Class 3A, the Lady Tribe will compete in District 3A-6 along with county power Oviedo, Orlando Bishop Moore, St. Cloud, Leesburg and Kissimmee Osceola.

Volleyball '87

At this point, the only thing Corso is sure of is that the Lady Seminoles have a lot of work to do before the start of the season.

"We're still trying to get the summer rust out of all of them," Corso said. "This year's motto is we have to prove what we can do instead of talking about how good we can be."

Benge, Hillsman and Long were all starters on last year's team and all three have good power at the net. Corso is hoping all three will be improved all the way around this season.

"Cindy (Benge) is very consistent all the way around," Corso said. "Liz (Long) has improved every year and I hope for the same this year. Adrian (Hillsman) is also working hard on her back row."

Also returning to the team for the senior seasons are Kim Walsh and Rachelle Denmark, two more players Corso is counting on for solid back row play.

"I'm hoping Kim (Walsh) will be able to play all the way around this year," Corso said. "Rachelle (Denmark) might not play as much on the front row, but her back row play is looking good."

One other junior who may figure in Corso's plans this season is Kerry Fosselius while sophomores Heather Brown and Yolanda Baker are trying to work their way onto the varsity squad.

Liz Long, left, and Adrian Hillsman can spike with the best of them.

"Everybody has been working hard so far," Corso said. "Nobody is awesome at this point, but they're all trying their best to improve by the start of the season."

One disappointing note is that junior Aretha Riggins will not be playing volleyball this season. Corso said Riggins, a starter as a freshman who played most of the last half of the 1986 season, had knee surgery over the summer and is trying to work her way back to 100 percent. That, Corso said, may not be until track season.

Strike Deadline Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The executive committee for the NFL Players Association will recommend a strike deadline for the second week of the regular season if negotiations with management do not result in a new contract, the Washington Times reported today.

The paper, quoting sources, reported the deadline could be Sept. 22 or 23, following the Monday night game between the New England Patriots and New York Jets. The union said it set a strike deadline Monday, but did not disclose the date.

The Players' Association and league management return to the bargaining table today amid charges the league is trying to "break the union" by having teams cut and trade player representatives.

Union Executive Director Gene Upshaw blasted the New England Patriots' decision Tuesday to trade veteran offensive tackle Brian Holloway, the team's union representative and the NFLPA's first vice president, and said it was part of a league-wide attempt to subvert the union before a possible strike.

"This is just the most unbelievable act I've ever seen," Upshaw said in an interview with United Press International. "They're not just harassing (union representatives), they're just getting rid of them, they're firing them. They first attack our leadership and try to destroy it and try to get rid of the elected officials figuring they can break the union."

New England Coach Raymond Berry denied Holloway's union activity was a factor in the team's trading him to the Los Angeles Raiders for a 1988 draft choice.

Holloway, entering his seventh NFL season, was a member of the union's executive committee that met Monday in Washington to set a strike deadline. The collective bargaining agreement expired Monday at midnight.

Officials of the NFL Management Council, the league's labor relations unit, denied the owners are harassing the union representatives.

"The timing by the Patriots is unfortunate because it leaves open this kind of question," said Management Council spokesman John Jones.

"A player representative is around the club longer and he has seniority before he gets to be a player representative."

Concepcion's Hit Ends Cards' Streak

United Press International Dave Concepcion, a 39-year-old veteran who played in four World Series with Cincinnati in the 1970s, is trying to help a new generation of Reds to the pennant.

"This is the time of year veterans should be out there," Concepcion said after doubling home the winning run to lift the Reds to a 7-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"You need experience in the stretch run and I'm here," Eric Davis, Nick Esasky and Buddy Bell belted home runs to help the Reds end the Cardinals' six-game winning streak.

Cincinnati scored four runs in the seventh for a 7-3 lead. Pinch hitter Tracy Jones led off with a single and went to second on a sacrifice. Concepcion greeted reliever Bill Dawley with a double to right field that scored Jones.

At Pittsburgh, Zane Smith pitched a four-hitter and Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer to lead Atlanta and stop the Pirates' winning streak at seven games.

At San Diego, Keith Hernandez hit a three-run homer and David Cone and Randy Myers combined on a five-hitter to lift New York.

Dollar Low; Gold Higher

United Press International
The dollar opened lower in light trading on major world money markets today. The price of gold pushed higher. Earlier, the dollar continued its slide against the Japanese yen, closing at 141.13 yen, down 0.47 from Tuesday. Traders in Japan said Japanese central bank officials bought an estimated $200 to $300 million to prop up the dollar, but the currency declined against the yen on speculation the U.S. Federal Reserve has failed to adequately support the dollar. The Bank of Japan said Japan and other advanced nations would continue coordinated intervention in foreign exchange markets to stabilize exchange rates. In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly lower against key foreign currencies in moderate trading. Traders in New York said the Bank of Japan's modest intervention earlier in the day had not altered the market's fears of concerted central bank intervention. In European trading, the dollar began the day lower in Frankfurt at 1.8075 German marks, down from Tuesday's close of 1.8106. The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.492 Swiss francs, down from 1.4935, and in Paris at 6.051 French francs, down from 6.0565. The dollar also opened lower in Amsterdam at 2.0375 Dutch guilders, down from Tuesday's close of 2.0435 and in Milan at 1,309.25 lire, down from 1,311.50. The opening dollar rate was not available in Brussels. In London, the British pound sterling opened at $1.6435, up from Tuesday's close of $1.6395. Gold opened $2.50 an ounce higher in Zurich at $456 an ounce.

request of Commissioner of Education Betty Castor. All-white boards would be in direct conflict with a 1983 U.S. District Court ruling requiring the federal Department of Education to make Florida comply with a state equal access-equal opportunity plan that had been approved in 1977. Part of the Florida plan states that "Each district board of trustees will include in its membership not less than one black person and not less than one woman." A 1986 review found that Florida's colleges were in compliance with the plan, and had been throughout the administration of former Gov. Bob Graham. The review noted Florida's university system had fallen short of its goal of a racial student and faculty mix comparable to the racial make-up of the state's general population. Weldon said the college was naturally always concerned about the racial balance on both the state and its own board of trustees. "Of course, we always hope any board has as broad a scale of representation as possible," Weldon said. Castor said when the appointments came up she was concerned about racial balance, but she refused to get specific. Aide David Voss later said she was concerned that, while Martinez' appointees were all qualified and would stand on their own, when taken together they would upset the board's racial balance. "The commissioner plans to make recommendations for the next state board meeting on the appropriateness of the current appointments, and express our concern for the racial composition of the boards," Voss said. The Cabinet, which is the state education board, next meets Sept. 9. Voss said Castor would inform the five other Cabinet members and Martinez of her concern in letter that was to be mailed Tuesday. Joe Williams, a vocational instructor at SCC and chairman of the Seminole County School Board, said Martinez doesn't appear concerned about minorities in regard to his appointments. "I think his appointments speak for themselves," Williams said he feels the minority community around the state sees itself as being left out of the decision-making process in Florida by Martinez. He said that may cause problems down the road for the governor at election time. "What I see is that leaving a sector (minority) out of the decision-making process you can get no idea of what those people are thinking or feeling," Williams said. "You can't just disregard those people," he said. According to community college records, Martinez filled 43 vacancies on the various boards with 34 white men, eight white women, one black woman, no black men and no Hispanics. Nine of those were reappointments of current board members. Those appointees would replace 21 white men, nine white women, three black women and one black male. Martinez has not yet named replacements for a black woman who resigned from the state board and an Hispanic man he did not reappoint to the state board. Martinez' Press Secretary Susan Traylor defended the governor's minority appointment record. She said Martinez' lawyers had learned of the 1983 court order only late last week and are studying it. "We're certainly not discriminating against blacks. We're just looking for good quality people," Traylor said. Traylor said Martinez would redo his appointments if his lawyers determine he is bound by the agreement. She also said Castor knew of the problem weeks ago, and should have spoken of her concerns earlier. "Discrimination is in the eye of the beholder," she continued. "The next thing we're going to hear is that we are not appointing enough Chinese." Traylor noted Martinez had also appointed two black males to the Postsecondary Education Planning Commission. PEPC is an advisory-only board, while the State Board of Community Colleges sets policy for the 28 colleges and hires and fires the director of the Division of Community Colleges. Each local college board controls policy on issues affecting its college, including the hiring and firing of presidents. Dr. J. A. Sawyer, vice president for student and information services, said board members may remain past the end of their terms until they are replaced by an appointment from the governor. "As long as I've been associated with the college we've always had at least one minority on the board," Sawyer said. — Richard Whittaker committed to the constitutional amendment, and has pointedly refused to consider any alternative levy should the voters reject the services tax. If the special session were delayed until October, it would let lawmakers consider the medical malpractice crisis and perhaps some other issues without requiring a second special session. Patchett, R-Vero Beach, said House Republicans would agree upon a position sometime this week. The constitutional amendment would repeal the tax. If three-quarters of both houses vote to place the measure on the ballot, Martinez would lead a multi-million-dollar campaign for its defeat. He says he still supports the tax he lobbied so fiercely through the Legislature this spring, but wants to head off a petition drive to place a similar referendum on the November general election ballot. By extending the 5 percent sales tax to services, the levy will raise $750 million this year and more than $1 billion each subsequent year, money most state leaders say is desperately needed so the state can cope with its staggering growth. Numerous Martinez supporters have expressed concerns about his referendum pitch. The board of governors of the Florida League of Cities, which supports the tax, voted in Tampa Monday to oppose the strategy. The wording of the league motion has not been released publicly, but lobbyist Mike Sittig told the Tampa Tribune any glitches with the tax should be fixed by the Legislature. House leaders have been openly hostile to the referendum idea, but have not yet offered any alternative. House Speaker Jon Vogt was meeting with various interest groups this week to hear what they have to say. Senate President John Vogt was initially supportive of the governor, but has been wavering. Some Republican lawmakers say Martinez is only trying to switch the political heat for the tax to the Legislature. Few lawmakers were consulted about the referendum strategy, and even then it was at the last minute. Many learned of it in newspaper accounts.

879 ballots cast in the race. Fox got 188 votes for 21.4 percent and Webster received 149 votes for 17 percent. "I think people spoke loud and clear that they wanted change," Morris said of his victory. He also said the city will see a very smooth transition of the council because the three candidates elected are very compatible in their thinking. Morris said his only concern at this point is that the present commission takes no major actions on personnel or financial matters until the three men take office. "The present commission is a lame duck commission," Morris said. The actions Morris said he was most worried the commission would take are giving City Manager Bob Norris a contract and making decisions regarding major expenditures for the proposed city hall complex. Webster said he was a little surprised at the election results, but that it had been a thrill for him to be associated with the mayor and the commission. "Their a bunch of fine people," Webster said of them. Webster told Fess he wanted him to proceed with trying to establish a center for senior citizens in the city. "Lake Mary really needs one," he said. Fess told Webster he would continue the efforts and that he would like him to chair a committee on the seniors center issue. Fox said he was surprised not only by the amount of votes Morris beat him by, but also by how badly Linda Beckham was defeated by Thomas Mahoney in the Seat five race. "The voters have spoken," Fox said. George Duryea won seat three by 57.8 percent of the 881 votes cast in the race. Duryea received 509 votes in all. Penny Gunn was the closest candidate to Duryea with 168 votes for 19.1 percent. David Cruise was third with 135 votes for 15.3 percent and suspended commissioner Arthur "Buzz" Pessos finished last getting 69 votes for 7.8 percent. Duryea said it was naturally a pleasure to win the race, but that he was a bit surprised by the results of the seat one contest. "I thought there would have been more of a race between Mr. Fox and Mr. Morris," Duryea said. One of the first things Duryea said he wants to work on after he's sworn in are the length of commission meetings, which Morris had also said he wanted to shorten. Duryea said he thought the use of workshops and giving the city's appointive boards more authority to make decisions might help to make the meetings shorter. Duryea said he also wanted to take a better look at the new city hall issue when he gets on the council. "I was so surprised I lost so badly," Gunn said of her defeat by Duryea. "I must have been fooling myself or people must have been lying to me," she said. Gunn said she had no idea she was that far behind Duryea. Gunn, who was making her second unsuccessful bid for the council said she didn't intend to run for the office again. "The one thing I feel very good about is that the people I respect the most in this town supported me," Gunn said. Cruise said he was disappointed in the way the election turned out, but that he wished the best for Duryea. "He's (Duryea) got a lot of work ahead of him," he said. "I wish the new commission and the city the best of luck in the future," Pessos said today. He said he would be happy to give any assistance he could to help Lake Mary. When asked if he thought his being convicted of burglary charges last month played a major role in his defeat by Duryea, Pessos said he felt it did. "I do believe the voters are concerned what the outcome of my impending trial will be," Pessos said, "and I only wish everything would have been resolved prior to the election." Thomas Mahoney took seat five with 53 percent of the 880 total ballots cast in the race. Commissioner Kenneth King didn't run for another term in the seat because he said he wants to spend more time with his family and on his job at Seminole Community College. Coming in second to Mahoney was Linda Beckham with 382 votes for 41.1 percent of the ballots cast. H. Richard Joslin captured only 52 votes for 5.9

percent. "I'm very, very excited about the results of a great many weeks and weeks of work," Mahoney said. It's nice to know the hard work paid off," Mahoney said the campaign had been physically draining on him. Mahoney said the work required of him as a commissioner was going to be much more of a mental type. "I'm ready to end the physical (work) and start the mental," Mahoney said of his election to the commission. Beckham wished Mahoney the best of luck as a commissioner and said she would still remain very active in city issues. Beckham said she doubted very much if she would ever run for the city commission again. "I like the idea of serving," Beckham said, but not the idea of campaigning," Beckham said the whole campaign process was exhausting to her. Joslin, who received the fewest number of votes of any candidate running for the commission, refused to comment on the election. — Brad Church

He said Sehrer cannot talk and still has a tracheotomy tube in his throat, but recognizes his wife and children. At the time of the accident, Sehrer and his wife and four of their seven children were living in a storage shed at the I-4 Industrial Park during the week, and in a truck camper on weekends. A representative of International Time Inc. said Mrs. Sehrer is living in a house in Altamonte Springs which was found for her by Bob Rowe, owner of the company. Sehrer was airlifted to the Orlando hospital shortly after he was found in the industrial park and underwent several hours of brain surgery.

where she had lived with the intended victim, an accused cocaine dealer, at 892 Lake Ave., Altamonte Springs. CCIB agents in serving that warrant at about 9 p.m. Tuesday arrested the target of the hired assailant, Jeffrey Scott Buetto, 32, of that address, on charges of trafficking in cocaine and possession of over 20 grams of cocaine. Also arrested on a charge of possession of cocaine was a man identified only as John Doe. He was held in lieu of $1,000 bond, and jail officials early today said he has not been identified. Buetto, was being held without bond. An arrest record said he is the owner of Greenscape. King had reportedly told the man she allegedly hired to attack Buetto that he had tunnels under his homesite where he allegedly stashed cocaine. The arrest reports did not say if those tunnels were found. King was reportedly angry with Buetto because he had made her move out of his home. Her arrest report said she is unemployed.

Cook Of The Week

Deboning Chicken Is Child's Play To Bonotto

By Dorothy Greese
Herald Correspondent

Make room, ladies, for some tough competition from our Cook of the Week, John Bonotto of Sanford, who makes deboning a chicken look like child's play. With a nonchalant sweep of his sharpened blade, he can disembowel the defenseless fowl in about two minutes flat, resulting in perfectly beautiful boneless breast filets with nary a spot of meat left on the frame. "It's so easy," he says. "There's nothing to it." The rest of the chicken is put to very good use in a variety of recipes right down to the tummy-tapping pot of home-made soup.

It seems our cook took advantage of all the things he learned in his Norwegian grandmother's kitchen, mostly by observing and then by doing. "She lived with us," says Mrs. Bonotto, "and she used to make pies, cakes and all kinds of pastries. She couldn't tell you how she did it, though. You'd ask her how she made a pie and she'd say, 'I don't know. I just put it all together and I felt it and it felt right.' But to tell you how much of everything she put in it, no, she couldn't do that. We had a grapevine in the back yard, and every year towards winter time we'd pick all the grapes and she'd make grape jelly, and that's what us kids would live on all winter. She'd use regular jelly jars that you get from the store and seal them with wax. And, oh, she used to make rhubarb pies and all kinds of stuff. She was a real good cook."

The other half of John Bonotto is Italian, so that speaks of another phase of his cooking that is hard to beat. "I got interested in cooking because I liked to cook my own stuff," says Bonotto. "I like to eat different things. You know, meat and potatoes, meat and potatoes, meat and potatoes, you get tired of that after a while, so you kind of try different things to go with

It. I like to make soups. You just take chicken, throw it in the pot, put some seasonings into it, cook it all up and you've got chicken soup. Pour it out and strain it, pick the meat off the bones and put it back in there with some rice." A rice lover, Bonotto adds that he discovered an easy and delicious way to make fried rice. "Just take raw rice, put it in a frying pan with a little butter and fry it," he says. "When it turns golden brown, then you cook it like you normally cook rice. If you want pork fried rice, you put pork in it and whatever seasonings you like, soy sauce or whatever, and you have fried rice. That's all there is to it."

Bonotto is a transplanted native of the College Point section of Queens, N. Y., where he and his brother Tom and sisters Harriet and Michele did all the things that city kids do while growing up. "We used to play football and baseball a lot during the season," he recalls. "My family was not wealthy and I used to belong to the Big Brother movement," he remembers. "My brother and I were pretty close in age and every year we'd go to camp in New Jersey and we had a good time." Part of those good times were spent participating in water sports and Bonotto remembers taking top honors in a swim meet for underwater racing. "I took the top award for underwater swimming, and my brother took the top honors for the older kids, so we both won awards that year. We had a good time, but that was a long time ago, a long time," he adds.

Bonotto's profession as an auto mechanic began with his interest in repairing bicycles. "I was a bicycle mechanic," he says. "I used to work on everybody's bike in the neighborhood and as I got older, I started playing around with cars and that's how I became an auto mechanic." There's nothing like on-the-job training, and Bonotto owes his mechanical expertise to his early years working in gas stations changing oil, pumping gas and tinkering with engines. "Then I was drafted into the Army," he says, "and they put me in the motor pool, so I wound up as a mechanic in the service." Nowadays, Bonotto performs his mechanical duties at Seminole Ford in Sanford.

On the home front, the Bonotto household is usually bustling with the comings and goings of two teenage sons, a working wife and mother, and a delightfully spry mother-in-law. Bonotto's wife of 18 years, Maryjean, is employed in the mold lab at Electone, Inc. of Longwood, a hearing aid manufacturer. They met at a dance in Long Island City, N. Y., and after a slow start became husband and wife eight months later in June, 1969. "After we got married," says Bonotto, "we moved to Middletown, N. Y., and we lived in this apartment that was in heaven. I mean it was five stories up — you had to alk up to the heavens! My wife could cook — she could make meat and potatoes and put a steak on — but we met this couple and the wife was a very, very good cook and Maryjean went over there a lot and she taught Maryjean pretty much how to cook. She taught her how to make spaghetti sauce and this and that, and, of course, my sister helped her out on the Italian end of it with Italian cookies and Christmas cookies and things like that."

Bonotto has an older son, John, 22, from a previous marriage, who lives in Orlando and works at Central Florida Electric as an electrician. The younger

Bonotto boys are Edward, 17, and Jimmy, 13, who enjoy camping and fishing with their father and mother. Boating is another water sport that tickles Bonotto's fancy, but he also admits to being a golfer who likes to "bat the ball around," scoring about 100 to 105 strokes. "I just enjoy it," he says. "And I love camping." says Bonotto. "I usually go camping where I can go fishing. We go to Jetty Park near Port Canaveral a lot or to Long Point Park at Sebastian Inlet." He says he is a salt water fisherman who likes to cook his own catch of the day. "A while back, I caught two drumfish," he explains, "about eight pounds between the two of them, and I didn't skin them or dehead them or anything. Just gutted them and put them in aluminum foil, sprinkled them with salt, pepper, garlic, butter and oregano, wrapped them real tight and put them on the grill for about 20 minutes on each side. What's so good about it is that when you open the aluminum foil, the skin comes right off with it. So you don't have to worry about skinning or scaling it and you have nothing but the

Microwave Magic

Greek Salad Perfect For Labor Day Gathering

The best way to incorporate fruits and vegetables into a meal these hot days is in a salad. Using the microwave to prepare chicken and vegetables makes the preparation fast and easy. Add a good bread and a cool beverage and the meal is complete. The meal can be nutritious and satisfying, light and economical too.

A mixture of vegetables and pasta is interesting and flavorful. This would make a good salad for a Labor Day get together.

meat. It's delicious, and the seasonings cook right into it."

For about six years the Bonottos have shared their home with Maryjean's mother, Mary Dechairo, a 70-year-old bundle of energy who definitely adds a spark to the atmosphere and helps to keep things running smoothly around the house. "She does a lot of the cooking," says Bonotto, "and helps take care of the kids while we're working. She sometimes has supper ready when we get home from work and does laundry and things like that. She's quite active. She likes to walk and shop," he adds.

Bonotto admires his wife's talent at the sewing machine and mentions the fact that she has just finished making herself a gown to be worn at a wedding in October. The whole family is looking forward to traveling to New York for the occasion.

Together, the Bonottos enjoy being with friends and take turns visiting each other's homes for informal gatherings.

And since their families are so large, says Bonotto, it is much easier to go out to eat than to have dinner at home. "My family down here," he says, "with sisters, brothers, uncles, cousins and all their kids is about 30 or 40 people, so it's a lot easier to just go out and eat." But just get the family together on holidays and it's another story, he goes on to say. "That's when we take turns at a different house each time to celebrate Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving or the Fourth of July."

The Bonottos are members of the Moose Lodge in Sanford and enjoy the weekly dances and other functions.

A perfect example of Bonotto's "exotic" cooking is his variation of the infamous creamed chipped beef on toast. His version is made with ground beef and from all reports, it's delicious. "The kids love it," he says. "I fry up two pounds of hamburger in a pot and get it good and brown. Pour most of the grease off. Then I make a nice cream sauce and pour the sauce over the meat and serve it on toast."

Bonotto has come up with some favorites that have been in his collection for a long time.

NY GRANDMOTHER'S SALMON FRENCH TOAST

1/2 cup cooked salmon, flaked
2 stalks celery, chopped
8 ripe olives, chopped
8 sweet gherkins (pickles), chopped
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 egg, beaten
2 to 3 cups milk
1/2 stick butter
Salt, pepper, celery leaves to taste
8 slices bread

Blend salmon, celery, olives, mayonnaise and pickles. Beat egg until foamy in a separate bowl. Add milk, salt and pepper to taste. Spread salmon mixture on 4 slices of bread. Cover with 4 remaining slices. Fasten together with toothpicks. Dip in egg mixture. Melt butter in large skillet over medium flame. When hot, saute sandwiches in the hot butter, about 2 minutes on each side. Garnish with fresh celery leaves. Serves 4.

FRANKFURTER STEW

6 onions, quartered
6 carrots, sliced
6 potatoes, peeled and cubed
2 pounds frankfurters
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) tomato soup

Cook vegetables in small amount of boiling water until almost done. Do not drain. Cut frankfurters into bite size pieces. Combine all ingredients. Simmer for 15 minutes until all vegetables are tender. Serves 8.

RHODE ISLAND CLAM CHOWDER

3 pints shucked clams, or 3 cans (8 ounce size) minced clams and 1 bottle (8 ounces) clam juice
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 quart milk
2 to 3 slices salt pork, about 1/4 inch thick (1/4 pound)
2 medium onions, chopped
3 large potatoes, pared and finely diced
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes

In large kettle or Dutch oven, cook salt pork until golden brown and crisp. Life out with slotted spoon, discard. To hot fat in kettle, add onion and saute over medium heat just until tender not brown. Add potatoes and undrained tomatoes, breaking up tomatoes. Drain clams, reserving juice. Add drained juice (and bottled juice if using canned clams) to potato mixture in kettle, along with salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat. Cook, covered, until potatoes are almost tender, about 15 minutes. If using fresh clams, chop finely. Add clams to potato mixture. Simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Add milk, over low heat, just until hot. Do not boil. Serve at once. Makes 3 to 3 1/2 quarts.

EGGPLANT ITALIAN STYLE (For microwave)

2 slices uncooked bacon, diced
1 medium green pepper, diced
1 garlic clove, chopped or pressed
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 medium eggplant, peeled and cut into one inch cubes
Salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In 2-quart covered glass baking dish, cook bacon on high power for 3 minutes. Do not drain. Add green pepper and garlic. Cook on high for 3 minutes, or until green pepper is tender. Add tomato sauce and eggplant. Cover, cook on high for 5 minutes, or until eggplant is tender. Add salt and pepper to taste. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Serves 4 to 6.

BROCCOLI PIE

1 bunch broccoli, cooked and cut into bite size pieces
1 package shredded cheese
1 package Italian sausage, cooked and chopped
2 green peppers, chopped
1 onion, chopped
1/4 cup Bisquick, sifted
1 1/2 cups milk
3 eggs

Donor Sperm Is Usually Considered Very Safe

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Because of my husband's extremely low sperm count, both of our children have been conceived through artificial insemination with donated sperm. Now I'd like a third child but am concerned about AIDS. The sperm bank says that the sperm is donated by medical students who have been screened genetically and physically, are of good moral character and excellent health. What do you think?

DEAR READER — AIDS is spread by transmissions of body fluids, primarily blood and semen. Therefore, there is a risk of AIDS during artificial insemination. Banked semen is carefully checked and is generally considered safe because of meticulous screening. Nonetheless, no medical tests are perfect and, in theory, no semen sample can be guaranteed free of the AIDS virus, no matter how fastidious the donors and the testing procedures are. However, I believe that you are safe in conceiving another child, providing the semen comes from a reputable facility and the procedure is completed under competent medical supervision.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My dentist recommended large doses of vitamin C during treatment. The other day, looking back so to speak, I spotted one of the 1,500-milligram time-release tablets lodged intact in my stool. Is this due to a faulty tablet or inefficient digestive system?

DEAR READER — Pills sometimes do not dissolve during digestion. The reasons for this are not clear. Although it is probably normally efficient, your digestive system was unable to break down the time-release coating of the pill. Time-release pills — and some other medications — usually have a shell-like coating that may be harder to digest.

I suggest that you change to regular vitamin C tablets. You'll have to take more (because the dose per pill is less than that of the time-release variety), but they are more likely to dissolve.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In 1969 I had a blood clot the size of a large lemon removed from the right side of my brain. It was discovered at the time that I have Von Willebrand's disease. Would this explain my frequent nosebleeds?

DEAR READER — Yes. This disease is an inherited clotting disorder that causes easy bleeding. Patients with Von Willebrand's disease lack a particular blood protein that is required in the clotting process. This deficiency can be corrected by the transfusion of the protein, obtained from concentrated human donor blood. Von Willebrand's disease is usually not as serious as hemophilia, but if excessive bleeding is present, it is treated in a similar manner: by replacement of the clotting factors that are absent.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

No bridge player likes to let the opponents play one spade if there's a chance he and his partner can play and make a part-score or even a game. So it is very common for a player to compete when the bid is about to be passed out at the one-level. Unfortunately, sometimes your partner may think you have a better hand and get you to a dangerously high level. Thus today South found himself in three hearts, wondering how he could best make nine tricks.

The opening lead of the two of clubs led to the first inference — apparently West did not hold A-K of spades. (He would have led the king.) Declarer won the jack of clubs with his king. Now how would you play the heart suit? Normally the right play with eight cards between your hand and dummy and with the Q-10-9 missing is to play to the ace and then back to the jack.

You hope that the queen is outside. However, you have seen the club jack played from the East hand, you can infer that he has the king of spades, and so you have to ask yourself if it is possible for East to also hold the heart queen. The answer to that question should be no, because with that queen East would hold six high-card points, enough to respond to the one-spade opening. So declarer played a heart to dummy's ace and then a heart back to his king, dropping the doubleton queen in the West hand and making his contract.
