Hawkins' Records Stay Shut

ORLANDO — An Orange Circuit Court judge today denied a request by three newspapers to have the medical records of Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., released to the public.

The judge's ruling indicated it was because the medical records are contained in files that have never been recorded at the courthouse or became public records.

But both attorneys for the newspapers and Hawkins' lawyer said at a hearing Wednesday evening they will immediately appeal an adverse decision by Judge William Gridley.

The Miami Herald, The Florida Times-Union of Jacksonville and Orlando Sentinel told Gridley voters are confused by conflicting reports of Hawkins' health and need access to the documents.

The records and medical testimony sought have been exchanged by lawyers — but not filed at the courthouse — in Hawkins' personal injury lawsuit against WESH-Channel 2.

Although Hawkins has said on the campaign trail her health is fine and not an issue, her lawsuit says she was permanently injured and her ability to work impaired when a prop fell on her neck during a 1982 interview at the television station's Winter Park studio.

"It is nothing but a grandstand play on the eve of the election to embarrass," said Hawkins' lawyer Larry Stewart.

And in questioning the late date of the request for the medical records, Stewart said,

Grand Jury Hears Land Testimony

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A grand jury heard testimony Wednesday accusing Seminole County officials of violating state law by purchasing sewer facility property without proper public notice.

Testifying before the grand jury and its governor-appointed special prosecutor were Grant McEwan, a developer from Casselberry, Art Davis, a developer from Sanford and Nikki Clayton, attorney for Seminole County.

A special prosecutor, Robert Egan, state attorney for Orange and Osceola counties, was appointed to the case at the request of McEwan after he accused the Seminole-Brevard State Attorney's Office of impeding justice by refusing to take the matter and related issues before the grand jury.

The grand jury issued no report after their 4½-hour hearing.

The grand jury agreed to hear the issue after McEwan met with the jury's foreman to make several allegations regarding the 2900-acre tract also known as Yankee Lake.

McEwan alleged that the $7.5 million land purchase was made without public notice, without appraisals, without disclosure of the property's trust owners and approved without prior notice at the 2:30 a.m. end of a county commission meeting Nov. 6.

The accusation, similar to ones raised earlier when the city

United Way Exceeds Record $600,000 Goal

United Way of Seminole County climaxed its 1986 campaign at Wednesday night's Victory Dinner by exceeding its record $600,000 goal. Campaign Chairman Al Stimac, with the help of Miss Seminole Jodie Strickland, told the 200 campaign workers and agency representatives gathered in the grand ballroom of the Altamonte Hilton Hotel that $637,740 had been raised in pledges and donations.

Optimism rose as one division head after another rose to report topping their goals. As usual, with 60 percent of the total goal on their shoulders, the Major Industry division came through to put the drive over the top. With a goal of $365,000, Division Chairman Les Sisson announced a total of $372,440.

With two of their men, Stimac and Deputy Campaign Chairman Joseph Vaccaro, heading up the Seminole campaign, Stromberg-Carlson of Lake Mary and its subsidiary Astronet, raised a total of $95,625. This included the employee pledges of $80,625 (up 27 percent from last year) and the $15,000 corporate gift.

United Telephone System pledged $48,166 from company and employees — up 27 percent from last year. NCR Corp. of Lake Mary pledged totaled $39,569 exceeding its

Sanford Picks Site For Effluent Disposal

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

A multi-million dollar effluent disposal site east of Sanford and a $400,000 well site west of the city were approved for potential purchase by city commissioners Tuesday night.

Acting on staff recommendations, commissioners authorized purchase negotiations to begin with both parcels' owners as a prelude to a special session Monday for further consideration of the acquisitions. Commissioners' authorizations drew no opposition from residents during Tuesday's public hearings.

Sanford has had both sites under option since May. Acquisition of the 2,250 effluent disposal site would be a hedge against the city's possible loss of a state lake disposal permit, while the 16-acre well site would accommodate city growth.

Both parcels are privately owned, located beyond the city's borders in unincorporated Seminole County, and under county zoning for agricultural use. Sanford would probably have to seek a zoning variance from the county Planning and Zoning Board to use the eastern site for effluent disposal, said Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons.

The city is still looking into whether the same consideration would be necessary for the well site, he said.

The effluent disposal site is offered for $5,317,000, although the city will use two appraisals, $4.9 million and $1.8 million, in attempt to pare the owners' asking price, Simmons said. The parcel is located off State Road 46, extending south from the road's Lake Jesup crossing.

The well site lies north of County Road 46A, near the city's Oregon Avenue well field. The new site could be used for up to four wells, which Sanford will be in need of by 1996 at the latest, Simmons said.

Staff is reasonably confident the well site can be purchased at a price not to exceed $400,000, Simmons said. The purchase would be covered by monies in the $17 million sewer and water revenue bond issue Sanford floated last summer.

County Roads To Be Widened

By Paul C. Schaefer

Seminole County commissioners authorized their staff and financial consultants Tuesday to begin drafting documents in preparation for a $35-million bond issue for the widening of 16.5 miles of major county roads.

Ten projects are on a priority list which will see road widening along Lake Mary Boulevard, Red Bug Lake Road, and a $6-million northerly extension into Seminole County from Orange County's East-West Expressway.

County Administrator Ken Hooper said the total cost for the first 10 projects is $56 million, $35 million of it from the bond issue and $21 million from projected transportation impact fees.

The 30-year bond issue will be repaid from the county's share of local option gas tax money. County Public Works Director Larry Sellers said the program is "the most significant set of road improvements the county has ever seen."

Design work on the initial 10 projects is expected to be completed in June or July, Hooper said, and construction will begin "as soon as funding is available."

Commissioners recently designated $6 million in money for the expressway's initial half-mile extension into Seminole County from the county line to State Road 426.

In all, 17 projects are planned, and Hooper said the estimated cost of right-of-way acquisition amounts to $32.5 million.

The top 10 projects include:
—Six-laning of Red Bug Lake Road from Eagle Circle to Dodd Road, $8 million.
—Four-laning Red Bug Lake Road from Dodd Road to Tuskawilla Road, $2.5 million.

Drug Testing Could Begin In December

Mandatory drug testing of Sanford employees suspected of substance abuse and all city job applicants is expected to start by mid-December under a municipal screening program city commissioners funded Tuesday night.

Staff will use the $5,000 expenditure to contract with a private lab for testing and revise city application forms, civil service rules and policy handbooks.

Staff will also work with city counsel and the Sanford Civil Service Board before presenting a final program to commissioners.

Commissioners term the program a preventative effort amidst the nation-wide proliferation of drug abuse. They began discussing it last summer, soon after the city and local community members began sponsoring drug abuse prevention seminars for city residents.

Commissioners also endorse an employee assistance plan to provide counseling through a private organization to staffers and their families. The organization has yet to be selected. Services, in addition to substance abuse counseling, will include assistance for financial, personal and legal problems.

Commissioners agreed Tuesday to set aside $10,000 for the program.

Also allocated was $3,000 for a series of four drug abuse prevention seminars Sanford will host next month. The sessions will be open to all city residents, employees and their families. They will be held at the Sanford Civic Center, Nov. 6, 13, 18 and 25. Each session will be offered twice, from 3 to 5 p.m., and 7 to 9 p.m.

They will be conducted by representatives from the Grove Counseling Center, Winter Springs.

Phys Ed In Hallways Irks Lake Brantley

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

"We're now doing physical education in the hallways. We have leaky roofs and paint falling off. We want a master maintenance plan," said Jerry Thurston, PTA president at Lake Brantley High School in Altamonte Springs.

"We haven't addressed existing facilities. We need to know on some type of time-frame, not something down the road somewhere."

He was imploring the school Board to get Lake Brantley High School expanded and fixed up as soon as possible. At Wednesday's meeting of the School Board, phase one of Lake Brantley's three-phase renovation project was approved with more plans to come before the Board Nov. 18.

With space limited on the campus, Board member Bill Kroll suggested making at least two-story buildings in the renovation project, but that was something the architects hadn't considered. Per the Board's instructions, the architect will come back with alternate two-story buildings on the next phase plan.

An additional 100 students are expected soon on the 2,600-population campus. And so the bond facilitator and architect suggested an additional 10 classrooms be built for future use. The Board appeared amenable to that suggestion, but will wait until Nov. 18 to make further decisions. It would be an addition to the $7 million bond project already approved.

A number of plans for the school, totaling almost $6 million, were looked at by the Board and interested school patrons. Among the plans were relocation and expansion of the media center, a science suite of 14 classrooms and a demonstration room; a new auditorium, a new library to be situated where the "commons area" is now; a new cafeteria and full kitchen (the students now eat in the commons area and are served from another school kitchen); 86 additional parking spaces, art classes and two labs and two classes moving from the old media center to where the science suite is now; a guidance suite if money permits; 10 additional classrooms if $700,000 extra can be found; recarpeting throughout if possible; skills development labs and other renovation work.

NATION IN BRIEF

Trade Deficit Falls To Lowest Level In Five Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. merchandise trade deficit fell to $12.56 billion in September, the lowest level in five months, the Commerce Department said today.

Following a comparatively low $13.32 billion shortfall in August, September's results tend to reinforce the view that the competitive pricing effects of the dollar's yearlong depreciation are finally having an impact on the flow of trade.

Imports, which fell by nearly $5 billion in August, dropped off another $847 million in September, suggesting that higher prices are discouraging some import consumption in the United States.

Exports dropped off fractionally to $17.5 billion last month.

Despite the improvement, the deficit is still headed toward a record $170.5 billion at year's end, barring a dramatic improvement in the last three months. The figure is derived by extending the deficit in the first nine months of the year for 12 months.

Federal Bond Interest May Be Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The guaranteed 7.5 percent interest rate on U.S. Savings Bonds, which made them enormously popular with small investors, now may be cut to "avoid excessive competition" with other forms of savings.

Treasury officials said Wednesday the administration is "still considering" whether to slash the guaranteed minimum 7.5 percent interest rate.

A White House aide also told United Press International that Treasury Secretary James Baker would hold a news conference today on the matter, but Treasury officials would not confirm that report.

Reports indicated a reduction would take effect Nov. 1, and the aide also said it was likely Reagan would "approve some sort of drop."

Smoke Detectors Now Required

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than three years after 23 people perished in a fire aboard an Air Canada jetliner, a federal regulation finally is in effect requiring smoke detectors in lavatories of large airliners.

Federal officials said the regulation, which went into effect Wednesday, could save lives along with other safety measures adopted by the Federal Aviation Administration.

A fire of undetermined origin swept through a portion of the Air Canada DC-9 jetliner as it was flying near Cincinnati on June 2, 1983. Twenty-three people died of smoke inhalation and 23 survived.

The smoke detectors will alert crew members of fires that might not be otherwise noticed because toilets are closed most of the time, officials said.

Crews Clean Up Spilled Asphalt

HARAHAN, La. (UPI) — Maritime workers set up containment booms to corral a 10-mile-long asphalt slick leaking from barges hit by a British cargo ship in the Mississippi River.

The asphalt floats on the surface and is not likely to enter the water system intake pipes that draw water from below the surface, Coast Guard Petty Officer Ken Kittel said.

At least two barges began leaking late Tuesday after a 615-foot British cargo ship collided with a line of nine barges being pushed along the river. The collision damaged the barges and released the slick that extended 10 miles downriver to New Orleans, said Coast Guard spokesman Keith Spangler.

New Evidence In Murders Claimed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A television news program has revealed what it says is new evidence Atlanta police may have ended their search for the killer of 28 young blacks prematurely when they arrested Wayne Williams.

ABC's "Nightline" reported Wednesday night that after months of investigation it had determined a man who persuaded jurors that Williams was the child murderer lied when he said Williams secretly hated poor members of his own race.

Williams, a self-styled talent scout, was convicted of the first-degree murder of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the victims of what became known as Atlanta's "Missing and Murdered Children." He was sentenced to two life terms.

Federal Appeals Court Rules Against Marcos

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal appeals court has ruled the government has the authority to hold $8.5 million in pearls, currency and other assets brought to Hawaii by exiled Philippine leader Ferdinand Marcos and his entourage.

In overturning a lower-court ruling Wednesday, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals cleared the way for the Reagan administration to decide how to dispose of the jewelry and cash, said Mark Bernstein, a lawyer representing the Philippine government.

Judge J. Clifford Wallace, writing for the three-member appeals court panel, said the decision by the U.S. Customs Service in Honolulu to hold the assets falls within the agency's broad discretionary powers to keep property during disputed ownership claims.

Marcos has sued to regain control of the goods transported by two Air Force planes that carried him and a party of 90 family members and supporters to Hawaii on Feb. 26 after he fled Manila.

But the Philippine government of President Corason Aquino also is seeking to recover the goods, claiming they are part of the national assets plundered by Marcos and his wife, Imelda, before they left the country.

The valuables include pearls, 22 boxes of currency including nearly $29 million in Philippine pesos, certificates of deposit and $1,570 in U.S. currency, Bernstein said. The value of the goods has been estimated at $7 million to $8.5 million.

"Our position was and is that it was stolen and should be returned to us," Bernstein said on behalf of the Aquino government.

He said the executive branch of the U.S. government now has several options: releasing the money to Marcos, which he said was highly doubtful; awaiting the outcome of a civil lawsuit over the assets; returning the assets directly to the Philippines; or issuing a Customs Service order denying entry of the assets and sending the goods back to the Philippines.

Reagan Focuses On Senate-Summit-SDI

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — What did not play so well in Iceland has been a hit for President Reagan on the stump, despite doubts about his ability to put pizzazz into Tuesday's elections and keep the Senate in Republican hands.

Three weeks after he traveled to Iceland's capital city for his summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Reagan has gone to great lengths to draw political capital from the rendezvous in Reykjavik.

His efforts come at a critical time, entering the home-stretch blitz of the fall campaign that has taken him into some of the hardest-fought political battlegrounds of what he has termed "make-or-break" mid-term elections.

At campaign stops Wednesday in Indiana and South Dakota, Reagan won cheers for his refusal at the summit to accept an arms control pact at the expense of his "Star Wars" space defense program, the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The same message was on tap for today, as Reagan continued a drive to give endangered Republicans a chance to grab his coattails by injecting himself into close Senate races.

In Colorado, Reagan is touting his SDI on behalf of Rep. Ken Kramer, who has trumpeted his support for the defense project to underscore differences with Democratic Rep. Tim Wirth in their dead-heat contest for the seat of retiring Democratic Sen. Gary Hart.

In Nevada, the summit and SDI figured into a presidential rescue mission for former Rep. James Santini, who is trailing Democratic Rep. Harry Reid in their race to succeed retiring GOP Sen. Paul Laxalt, a close friend of Reagan.

However, whether the president can convert support for his summit stand into GOP votes remains to be seen. Few analysts, even on the GOP side, view the summit as an issue capable of swaying decisions or moving voters to the polls in order to retain the Republican majority in the Senate.

Nevertheless, the post-summit state of superpower relations is the only fresh element of a White House campaign to depict votes cast for GOP candidates as votes for the ever-popular Reagan.

At stop after stop, Reagan has laid into Democratic candidates for criticism of the SDI and has declared the summit a success that brought Washington and Moscow "closer than ever before" to an arms agreement, despite the differences over strategic defense.

Nader: Reagan Selling 'The Big Lie'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has put on "a mask of fantasy and deception" as he campaigns for Republican candidates, practicing deception rather than telling the truth about the economy, consumer advocate Ralph Nader charged.

"The big lie, the deception, the happy talk prevails day after day," as Reagan stumps the country to save the GOP's 53-47 Senate majority, Nader said of Reagan's cross-country campaign trip that began Wednesday and will end on Election Day.

He said Reagan is bragging about his economic recovery, when in fact his policies "have put more Americans in poverty and unemployment, widened the gap between the very rich and the very poor, ground economic growth to a snail's pace ... and broken the $2 trillion debt barrier."

Jefferson's Letter Brings World Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — A one-page letter by Thomas Jefferson decrying anti-Semitism and "the universal spirit of religious intolerance" was sold for $395,000 — the most ever paid at auction for a letter or presidential document.

The 1818 letter, sent to a Jewish-American diplomat, was purchased Wednesday during a sale of Americana at Sotheby's galleries by a collector who intends to donate it to Yeshiva University in honor of its 100th anniversary.

The collector's name was not given but The New York Times identified him as Ludwig Jeselson, 75, retired chairman of Philipp Bros. Inc., a metal trading firm. The Times called the German-born Jeselson a major collector of Judaica.

The previous auction record for a presidential document was $397,000, paid in 1984 by publisher Malcolm Forbes for one of 48 copies of the Emancipation Proclamation signed by Abraham Lincoln. The previous record price for a letter was $132,000 for one written by President William Henry Harrison.

Jefferson's letter, dated May 26, 1818, and written at his Monticello, Va., home, never appeared in his published papers and apparently was unknown to historians. It is in good condition except for scattered spots and stains.

Jefferson sent the letter to Mordecai M. Noah in New York thanking him for Noah's gift of a printed copy of a speech he made dedicating Synagogue Shearith Israel in Manhattan.

Noah, a journalist, diplomat and Democratic politician, said in his speech that bigotry and commercial jealousy cause anti-Semitism. Jefferson told Noah the speech taught him "valuable facts in Jewish history."

"Our laws have applied the only antidote to this vice, protecting our religious, as they do our civil rights by putting all on an equal footing."

Stormy West, Cloudy East

By United Press International

A storm that knocked out power with lightning and 82 mph winds in the Pacific Northwest pushed to the east today, spreading rain and snow.

Rain fell from Washington and Oregon to Idaho and northwest Montana, and snow dusted the mountains of western Washington, the National Weather Service said.

Travelers advisories for snow were issued for mountain passes in Oregon and Washington, where up to 6 inches of snow was expected in the Cascades.

Gale warnings covered the northern Pacific coast.

The storm came ashore in Oregon Wednesday with winds of 82 mph at Cape Blanco. Winds gusted above 40 mph at Astoria and to 30 mph in Portland.

Power outages caused by wind and lightning Wednesday night in Portland knocked out traffic signals, causing traffic jams on roads and highways. About 2,500 homes lost power for about two hours, utility officials said.

On the same day, a reading of 85 degrees in Seattle broke the record high for the day of 84 set in 1988.

Elsewhere, rain will Wednesday from South Carolina to Florida and in the lower Great Lakes. Rain also fell in the northern and central Appalachians and in the northern Plains, and light snow showers were scattered over upper Michigan.

Skies were cloudy over the central Atlantic states, the Ohio Valley, the upper Mississippi Valley, the northern Plains and the northern Plateau.

Skies were generally fair over the remainder of the nation Wednesday.

Anti-Viral Substance Discovered

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a discovery that may prove helpful against a variety of diseases, two scientific teams reported Wednesday that a human protein known to fight tumors also has a potent ability to fight off viruses.

Researchers from Genentech Inc., of San Francisco, said the substance called tumor necrosis factor or TNF appears to work in the body with interferon, another anti-viral protein.

"In a viral attack, the body produces both," said David V. Goeddel, a molecular biologist at Genentech. "The combination of the two is more effective than either of them alone."

The scientists said the discovery could lead to animal and laboratory trials of TNF on a variety of viruses, including those responsible for herpes and AIDS.

"We have discovered TNF may be more important as an anti-viral agent than as an anti-cancer agent," Goeddel said.

Researchers at Genentech and doctors in West Germany discovered the anti-viral properties of TNF simultaneously and published their findings in the British science journal Nature.

TNF was originally discovered in the mid-1970s as an anti-tumor agent released by a number of cells in the human body. It has been used in clinical cancer trials since then with limited success and researchers who work with the chemical said they still have much to learn about its properties.

Until recently, only traces of tumor necrosis factor could be derived from the human body but genetic engineering technology has enabled researchers to create mass quantities of it since 1984, enabling it to be tested more widely.

Researchers at Genentech said they tested TNF against several different types of viruses, including the virus responsible for herpes, and discovered it has the ability to both protect healthy cells from viral invasion and to selectively kill viruses that had already infected host cells.

"TNF can destroy viruses, which is very significant," said Grace Wong, another Genentech researcher.

Scientists Clone Genes Of 8,000-Year-Old Brain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scientists have cloned genetic material from the brains of 8,000-year-old Indians buried in a Florida swamp and say they may hold a key to discovering the role of genes in evolution.

The biologists at the University of Florida College of Medicine in Gainesville, reporting Wednesday in the British journal Nature, duplicated pieces of DNA — the cellular blueprints of heredity — from the shriveled, preserved brains taken from dozens of skulls.

The intact brains were taken from the skulls of Indians buried in muck on the bottom of a shallow pond in a Titusville housing development.

Microbiology professor William Hauswirth, who lead the research team, said it is the oldest segment of human tissue ever cloned. He said last year scientists cloned a single piece of DNA from the brain of an Egyptian mummy estimated to be 4,000 years old.

The scientists cloned the genes from the dead cells by splicing them into the genetic material of live bacteria, which in turn replicated them, Hauswirth said.

"The potential is there to compare genes from 8,000 years ago to genes of modern man today and see how they have evolved," he said in a telephone interview. "We could view genes as a process and find out how old specific genes are."

But Hauswirth said scientists were able to clone only pieces of DNA from the ancient brain cells, and he said they have no idea what genetic information the stray bits hold.

"It's like tearing one corner from a page of the Encyclopedia Britannica," he said. "We have a number of these little pieces and no idea what they're telling us about."

Hauswirth said the more scientists learn about the genetic structure of modern brain cells, the easier it will be for him to piece together the DNA puzzle offered by the ancient brains. Once the structure is known, he said, scientists could compare the brains of modern Indians to that of their ancestors.

"There are problems that will not be easy to solve, such as finding direct descendants," he said. "This is a resource for the future."

Human Body Mechanism Fights Diets

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The human body apparently has a built-in defense against dieting, a medical researcher says.

A trait that helps people survive famine in such nations as Ethiopia also leads to overweight in prosperous nations such as the United States, where people fall into a "yo-yo" syndrome of weight loss and gain, Dr. Kelly Brownell of the University of Pennsylvania said Wednesday during an interview at the American Dietetic Association convention.

Studies show that the more frequently a person repeats the cycle of dieting and gaining the more difficult it becomes to lose excess pounds, Brownell said.

"Some people say they eat like a bird and can't lose weight," he said. "Those people really exist. There are women on 800 calorie diets and they are not losing weight."

He said the trait is believed to be related to heredity, metabolism and the body's instinct to survive.

"It's great if you are starving in Ethiopia, but it is not good here," said Brownell.

He said, for example, a woman who cuts her intake to 1,600 calories and loses weight, then relapses and regains weight, will find that the next time she diets the calorie intake must be reduced further and it will require longer to lose the same amount of weight.

"The body mechanism that makes you survive in a famine is bad news if you live in the U.S. and have a tendency to diet all the time," said the researcher.

"Our theory is that it is a tendency that is passed along and inherited and has been selected out through evolution."

Brownell, associated with the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, recently completed a one-year study on rats that he said will be published soon in professional journals.

Ned Julian For Circuit Judge

There are two candidates for Judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit Court, Group 4: Ned N. Julian, Jr. and O.H. "Bill" Eaton.

Voters in Seminole and Brevard counties are in a win situation.

The two candidates are about the same age, Julian, 44, and Eaton, 43. Eaton is a Florida native and Julian has lived in Central Florida since 1959. Both are graduates of fine colleges of law within the state. Eaton from the University of Florida and Julian from Stetson University. Both have practiced law in Seminole County for many years and each is a past president of the Seminole County Bar Association.

Eaton is a veteran of the Vietnam War and has served the county as chief assistant state attorney and as the domestic relations commissioner for the Circuit Court.

Julian is a former police officer in Sanford, former city attorney for Longwood, former public defender and former municipal judge for Winter Springs. He has served as Seminole County School Board attorney since 1979.

Responding to questions concerning sentencing guidelines, Citizens Alternative Dispute Boards, insanity defenses and budgeting, the two are very similar in beliefs and opinions. Only in the area of plea bargaining is there a seeming difference with Eaton rejecting the process totally and Julian citing it as a matter between the defendant and the defense in minor cases, thus relieving jury courtroom time for consideration of serious criminal matters not susceptible to such pleas.

Both candidates are family men with excellent reputations as would befit a judge. Their legal skills have been finely honed through years of experience.

One of the candidates will win and one will lose. But either way, the citizens of this area can only win.

However, the Evening Herald believes that the weight of experience by Ned Julian as attorney for the county school system, and his background as a law enforcement officer, municipal judge, and city attorney tips the scale in his favor.

His thoughtful approach to issues facing the courts today makes a case of creative thinking which will be vital in the years ahead. He is a hard worker and committed legal tactician, yet has demonstrated the ability to maintain an open mind. As counsel to the school system, he has spiced his legal opinions with the common sense so essential to legal and judicial guidance.

Therefore, the Evening Herald endorses the candidacy of Ned N. Julian, Jr. as judge for the 18th Judicial Circuit, Group 4.

Bob Butterworth Is Our Choice

Robert A. "Bob" Butterworth, Democrat, and Jim Watt, Republican, are the candidates of their respective parties for the post of Attorney General for the state.

This post will take on added importance if the voters approve the constitutional amendment to give the Attorney General the authority to appoint a statewide prosecutor. The choice for that appointment will set the tone for that powerful new office, whether it be strong and aggressive or weak and pondering.

Mr. Butterworth has been the trouble-shooter for governors of Florida in the past. His public service has included the office of secretary of the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles, an appointment to clean up the department when it was ravaged by scandal, mayor of Sunrise, an appointment when the mayor was convicted of crimes and removed from office, prosecutor and sheriff of Broward County, and as a county judge.

Mr. Watt has served as assistant, then city attorney for West Palm Beach. He has been a member of the Florida Legislature since 1978 and served as Republican floor leader for the 1982-84 term. He was an organizer of Legislators Against Casino Gambling.

Whereas both have distinguished records as public servants, Mr. Butterworth has been called upon to solve severe problems of the state in the past and his successes have been impressive. Indeed, his leadership in the Highway Safety Department helped restore the prestige of the Highway Patrol and confidence in the management of that vital department. His diverse experience gives confidence that he will serve with distinction as Attorney General.

The Evening Herald endorses Robert A. Butterworth as Attorney General.

Some Football Teams Know How To Score

By Joseph Milanoway
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The University of Miami Hurricanes may be the top spot in college football, but they can't compare with the University of Texas and LSU, a pair of schools that called Congress off the bench to help where it really counts — the profit column.

To the Longhorns of Texas and the Tigers of Louisiana State University, offensive and defensive strategies are strictly push league. Long bombs, blitzes and draw plays are kids' stuff.

Let the other schools worry about winning games between the sidelines. The Longhorns and the Tigers showed they are champions in a tougher arena — the closed caucuses of Congress that produced the new tax reform bill just signed into law by President Reagan.

But even though they won this season, LSU and Texas will have a difficult time finding their tax reform title next year and may find it easier to compete on the real football field.

As much of America is apparently just beginning to realize, the new tax reform law that sponsors boast will bring fairness to the convoluted tax code is also laden with hundreds of special goodies — tax breaks for items near and dear to lawmakers' hearts.

The one special break that seems to have hit home the most is an item hidden deep in the law and written in obscure language strictly for the benefit of LSU and Texas.

Under the new law that Reagan has proclaimed is "less a reform than a revolution," boosters of those two schools — and only those two schools — will be able to deduct contributions they make to the universities in order to get good seats at athletic events. Not only that, but the provision is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984.

This cute little giveaway wasn't even known until the last stages of the tax reform battle. But once word got out, the provision raised enough eyebrows to prompt an effort to kill it late in the congressional session.

Alas, in the rush to adjourn for the year, the House and Senate could not agree on a technical corrections bill that would have removed the tax break and Texas and LSU went into the tax reform locker room still holding on to their loophole.

However, with columnists and even comic strips lampooning the tax break. It is a prime candidate for removal when Congress returns next year and tries to fix numerous technical problems with the radical new tax law.

Unfortunately, the Texas-LSU item isn't the only screwball part of the sweeping plan. The most reliable predictions point to some very disturbing facts — such as estimates that while about 75 million Americans will get tax cuts under the law, about 20 million others, mostly in the lower- and middle-income classes, will suffer losses.

And those tax increases will not come because those lower- and middle-income people abused tax shelters or tried to avoid paying their fair share. They will come because Congress, in its rush to lower the top tax rate for the wealthy as much as possible, chopped or limited popular tax deductions the lower- and middle-class relied upon — write-offs for sales taxes, medical expenses or union dues.

Wen expires or have to wait until 1987 taxes are due in April 1988 to see if the public really believes them. Until then, the best thing to do may be to buy 80-yard-line seats for LSU and Texas.

WILLIAM RUSHER

So Called Redbaiters Correct

One of those long-missing chickens from the 1950s has at last come home to roost, and this time it's our friends in Canada who are in for a shock — two shocks, in fact.

In 1981, the U.S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee received public testimony that E. Herbert Norman, a high-ranking Canadian foreign service officer who was then acting head of Canada's delegation to the United Nations, had been (and for all anybody knew might still be) a member of the Canadian Communist Party. But Canada's external affairs secretary, Lester Pearson, managed to still the resulting uproar, and Norman sailed on.

In 1957, however (when I was serving as associate counsel to the subcommittee), Norman's name cropped up again — this time in the course of an investigation the subcommittee was conducting into the activities of John K. Emmerson, an American of foreign K service officer who was a longtime friend of Norman's. Once again, Pearson (then a candidate for prime minister) pronounced his protégé clean as a hound's tooth. But Norman, who was by this time Canada's ambassador to Egypt, reacted unexpectedly: He committed suicide.

Need I tell you the reaction of the media, both here and in Canada?

But time, as someone has remarked, wounds all heels, and after the passage of nearly three decades, the truth is at last out — and not only the truth about Herbert Norman, but the truth about his powerful protector, the late Prime Minister of Canada, Lester Pearson.

In a remarkable book just published in Canada, "No Sense of Evil — Espionage: The Case of E. Herbert Norman" (Deneau, 1986), Prof. James Barros of the University of Toronto establishes that Herbert Norman was indeed a lifelong member of the Communist Party, and very probably was involved in espionage for the Soviet Union as well. Using the Canadian equivalent of our Freedom of Information Act, Barros has obtained documents from both the Canadian Foreign Ministry and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police that make it reasonably certain that Norman "was enmeshed in Russian intelligence work."

Congress: Foul-Ups, Feats And Blunders

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Viter

WASHINGTON — Voters have been hearing wondrous storytellers, like unto Scheherazade, limning the achievements of the recently departed 99th Congress. The fabulous tales come mainly from members of that august body who would like to return for even greater glory next January.

The 99th can in fact boast of some solid accomplishments. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., were the largely unsung architects of tax reform; Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., engineered the spending-limit legislation that bears their names.

Without wishing to belittle any of the substantive results of the outgoing Congress, we'd like to remind you that the 99th was pretty typical in its share of winners and losers who have avoided either the rosettes or the brickbats they richly deserve. Our associate Stewart Harris has selected a few standouts from each category. Here they are: — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., celebrated his 20th year in Congress

ROBERT WALTERS

Rash Of Kickbacks

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (NEA) — As manager of the purchasing department for Technology Service Corp., Ronald E. Gilbert selected the subcontractors who shared his firm's profitable Defense Department contract work.

Like purchasing agents employed by many other military contractors in the Los Angeles area, Gilbert accepted kickbacks from companies anxious to participate in those lucrative Pentagon projects.

Earlier this year, he was formally accused by the U.S. Attorney in Los Angeles with accepting secret cash payments equivalent to 4.5 percent of the value of the subcontracts he issued to various vendors and suppliers.

Gilbert, who subsequently pleaded guilty, is among 19 people most recently charged with crimes by a task force of federal investigators probing kickback schemes related to military contracts. The bribes ranged from less than $2,000 to as much as $70,000 per individual.

That latest round of charges includes formal allegations of criminal activity against employees of some of the nation's largest military contractors — McDonnell Douglas, Rockwell International, Lockheed, Teledyne, Magnavox and others.

Public funds were siphoned from programs including the Air Force's F-15 and F-16 fighters, B-1 and B-52 bombers and the cruise missile system.

Other contracts involved include the Navy's F-18 fighter-bomber, its A-6 bomber and the Army's radar surveillance system, as well as specialized work for the National Security Agency and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The investigation, which has produced almost 40 indictments since it was launched two years ago, is coordinated in Los Angeles by Assistant U.S. Attorney Fred D. Hecker. Cooperating agencies include the FBI, Internal Revenue Service and Defense Criminal Investigative Service.

Undoubtedly the most intriguing case involves William A. Reinke, a Northrop Corp. engineer who pleaded guilty to defrauding his employer by convincing it to award approximately $600,000 contracts of Defense Department subcontracts to a company he secretly owned.

Investigators discovered that Northrop hired Reinke in 1984 to work on the Air Force's Stealth bomber, one of the Pentagon's most highly classified projects, without ever checking his background. Such an investigation would have revealed that Reinke had a long record of arrests for auto theft, larceny and check fraud dating back to 1945. During the period when he told Northrop he was in graduate school, Reinke was actually serving a three-year prison term.

Prior to being employed by Northrop, Reinke worked for Rockwell International, where he also held a top-secret clearance and worked on a classified military project. Rockwell had also made no attempt to check on his background.

Finally, he was fired by Rockwell after being caught inflating travel expense vouchers — but Northrop never knew about that.

Swine Flu 10 Years Later

By Charles S. Taylor
ATLANTA (UPI) — In a northeast Atlanta warehouse, more than 40 million doses of swine influenza vaccine, in cold storage since 1976, await a government decision for disposal.

The vials of vaccine, reminders of the country's big swine flu scare a decade ago, have not been checked for potency in the last two years and their eventual fate is unknown, said officials of the national Centers for Disease Control.

Ten years ago, federal health authorities launched an unprecedented national campaign to vaccinate millions of Americans against an expected onslaught of a potent influenza strain they believed would strike 50 to 60 million U.S. citizens.

Virologists said the virus was the same, or closely related to, the flu agent that in 1918 killed 548,452 Americans and 21 million worldwide in the greatest plague of modern times.

On Oct. 1, 1976, after many delays, the $135 million federally funded inoculation program got under way at public clinics across the country. The funds were sufficient to pay for 200 million doses of vaccine in history's first national effort to immunize an entire population against a major disease.

Ten weeks later, on Dec. 16, 1976, the CDC suspended the program after it received reports that some vaccine recipients contracted a type of paralysis known as Guillain-Barre syndrome. It was indefinitely called off Dec. 29, when evidence mounted that the vaccine and the paralysis might be linked.

A total of 43 million Americans received inoculations but the expected swine flu epidemic never occurred. After initial cases among Army recruits at Fort Dix, N.J., in February 1976, one of them fatal, only a handful of similar infections were reported to the CDC's nationwide surveillance system.

The government, which had insured the vaccine manufacturers against damage suits, was faced with millions of dollars in claims by individuals who said they became paralyzed after being immunized with the vaccine. So popular were such lawsuits that a legal specialty developed around filing Guillain-Barre claims against the government. One federal judge awarded a Scranton, Pa., woman $3.9 million.

Mistreated Dogs Taken Into Protective Custody

A Seminole County Humane Society investigator and a deputy took four dogs into protective custody Tuesday after finding them without food, water or shelter in the back yard in an Altamonte Springs home.

The deputy reported two of the dogs, Irish setters, appeared malnourished and bony. The condition of the other dogs, Yorkies, was not mentioned in the report. The inspection occurred at 4:35 p.m.

The dogs were taken to a vet and then to the Humane Society, according to the report. They were in the yard of Arthur H. McDaniel, of 152 Hattaway Drive.

No further action was mentioned in the report.

CANDID SURVEILLANCE CAMERA

A Jacksonville woman was arrested in an Altamonte Springs store after a security guard watched her put $484.50 worth of unpaid clothes into a plastic bag and give them to a male accomplice who took them from the store.

The guard was watching a camera trained on the junior clothes section of Sears in the Altamonte Mall when he saw a woman glancing around the aisles. A man joined her and took a large empty plastic bag out of his pocket. He dropped to his knees, held the bag open, and the woman filled it with clothes. The man and the woman then left in separate directions, according to the report.

When the man was confronted by security guards outside the store, he dropped the bag of clothes and ran. The guards gave chase but lost sight of him in a parking lot. The woman, however, accompanied guards back to the store.

Charged with theft was Linda Hughes, 34. Miss Hughes' bond was set at $1,000.

EXTRADITED FROM CALIFORNIA

A former Altamonte Springs man who failed to show up for September trial on charges of sexual battery to a 7-year-old girl has been extradited from California.

Being held without bond in the Seminole County Correction Facility was Dominick Bellochi, 45, of Ontario, Calif., in the county of San Bernardino. Bellochi used to live at 649 Dunn Drive.

He was arrested at the jail at 7:51 p.m. Tuesday.

While no information about the alleged incidents were on the arrest report, a sheriff's report in May accused Bellochi of 10 sexual assaults on a neighborhood girl prior to March 1980. The alleged incidents may have occurred as long ago as Christmas, 1977.

Bellochi failed to appear in early September for trial on three counts of sexual battery to a child under 11. Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor issued a bench warrant Sept. 12 for Bellochi's arrest.

BURGLARY ARREST

A Longwood man has been arrested in connection with a Sept. 12 burglary at Lyman High School.

According to an arrest report, the man was taken into custody after a juvenile told an investigator that the man was involved in the burglary in which tools were stolen.

Arrested at the high school Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. was Vincent Curtis Florence, 18, of 661 Lake Mobile Drive. His bond was set at $1,000.

THEFT OF CASH

A Sanford woman told a sheriff's deputy that her boyfriend took $280 from their motel room.

The 27-year-old woman, Beverly J. Holley, of 1500 Roosevelt Ave., said the money was taken sometime between 4 a.m. Tuesday and 8:15 a.m. Wednesday. She said she has been living with the suspect at the McCallister Motel on Southwest Road in Sanford.

SPEEDING BRINGS POT ARREST

A Winter Springs man was arrested on marijuana-related charges after he caught an officer's attention by reportedly speeding in his truck.

The officer said he saw a red, GMC pickup southbound on S. Moss Road at a high rate of speed. He stopped the truck and on approaching the vehicle smelled marijuana burning. The incident occurred Tuesday at 5:10 p.m.

The driver of the truck denied there was any marijuana in the vehicle. The officer searched the truck and found a homemade pipe still warm. Tools next to the pipe were not warm suggesting it was just placed there, according to the report. The officer said there was what appeared to be marijuana residue in the pipe's bowl.

Arrested and charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia was Robert James Stowell Jr., 18, of 610 Tina Lane, Winter Springs. His bond was set at $500.

ASSAULT AT SCHOOL BUS STOP

The mother of a 10-year-old boy told police a woman who thought her son was someone else assaulted the boy at a school bus stop in Longwood.

The woman, in her 30s, reportedly grabbed and shook the boy because she believed him to be a boy who had pestered her son a few minutes earlier at the bus stop. The pestered boy went home and told his mother he was being bullied. The incident occurred around 8 a.m. Tuesday. It was reported around 10 p.m. Tuesday.

While the first woman was shaking the boy, another woman came along and said if the boy was a bully she too would beat him. A third woman, however, told the other women it was a case of mistaken identity and the 10-year-old was not the bully. The mother of the shaken child said she did not want to prosecute but she did want the incident reported.

BURGLARY AND THEFT?

A Sanford man reported $15,000 worth of items taken from his home but the scene was not searched for clues because the suspect used to live there.

Alan Anderson Smith, of 1741 Beacon Drive, accused a 22-year-old Sanford woman of taking the items. He said he owes the woman, his former girlfriend, $800 and she has reportedly threatened to use out-of-state "boys" to get the money.

Missing from the boat mechanic's home was more than $10,000 worth of tools and $5,000 worth of stereo equipment and records.

The loss of the items occurred between Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. and Wednesday at 5:30 a.m.

Scientists To Search Galapagos For Natural Remedies To Disease

FORT PIERCE (UPI) — A team of scientists is preparing to voyage to the Galapagos Islands and examine marine life for chemicals to develop drugs that will combat cancer and other diseases, officials said Wednesday.

The research vessel Seward Johnson, based at the Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution, is scheduled to leave the Fort Pierce inlet Friday for a trip to the Pacific Ocean islands off Ecuador.

With a submersible, divers will forage for algae, soft coral, and sponges. Scientists hope those organisms and others yield new secrets in the war against disease.

"We are looking for anti-tumor drugs, anti-viral drugs," said Dr. Ed Armstrong, a research scientist.

He said research into marine life at Harbor Branch has uncovered chemicals successful in laboratory tests involving mice injected with cancer cells.

Yahwehs, Tenants In Stand-Off

OPA-LOCKA (UPI) — Tenants sat tight and their white-robed landlords watched silently Wednesday at a drug-plagued apartment complex now owned by the Yahweh religious sect.

The Yahwehs, who claim to be descendants of tribe of Judah, reportedly took possession of the house by assuming a $480,000 mortgage Monday. Six busloads of robed members arrived at the five-building complex Tuesday and ordered tenants to leave.

But residents of the complex refused to go, and a hearing has been scheduled for Nov. 6 before Circuit Judge Frederick Barad.

"The tenants have a perfect right to be there. If the Yahwehs want them out and the Yahwehs are the owners, the Yahwehs will have to get a court order," said attorney Barbara Malone of Legal Services of Greater Miami. "That's the only way a landowner can evict somebody in the state of Florida."

Meanwhile, residents went about their business while several Yahwehs either stood or paced around the complex.

"They came knocking on my door," said Anthony Brown, who shares one of the apartments with five other people. "He and his gang told me he owns my property now. I told him I'm leaving when I see an eviction notice."

"This is a trip," said Denise Broussard, who lives in the complex. "Who would believe it? What would you say if men in white sheets came to your door one morning and told you to get out."

Parrot To Appear In Court

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — More than 300 beach goers have signed a petition to stop police from throwing Donovan the blue and gold parrot off Hollywood beach.

Donovan's owner, David Donovan Hagen, 34, has been cited three times for violating a city ordinance banning pets from the beach. The last citation was issued Tuesday and Hagen, accompanied by his four-pound parrot, will be arraigned Thursday.

The misdemeanor charge of "carrying a bird on the Broadwalk" has a maximum penalty of $500 in fines, 90 days in jail and a possible order to keep the bird off the beach.

"I'm going to try to walk into the court with Donovan on my arm. I'd like to ask the judge to put him on his arm to see how gentle he is," Hagen said. "I'm going to ask him to give Donovan a break and dismiss charges."

Hasenfus Case 'Moral Outrage'

MIAMI (UPI) — Former Attorney General Griffin Bell returned to the United States from Nicaragua to prepare statements for the Sandinista court trying Eugene Hasenfus, the American flier captured when a plane carrying supplies to U.S.-backed Contra rebels crashed.

Speaking in Miami Wednesday en route to Atlanta, Bell said he hoped the Nicaraguan government would not use Hasenfus as a scapegoat, but doubted that Hasenfus would be found innocent.

The former attorney general said Hasenfus' lawyer saw him Tuesday in jail but was not permitted to speak to him.

"It is a moral outrage that an American can't see his own lawyer wherever he is, particularly when the law of the country would allow him to see a lawyer," Bell said.

"KEEP PROVEN LEADERSHIP"

A recent editorial in the Orlando Sentinel states that one of the problems with public education today is that it is controlled by bureaucrats and union rather than by parents and teachers. The time has come to stand up to the educational bureaucracy. As your representative on the School Board, I will continue to be outspoken and if need be controversial. I will continue to represent you in the many important issues affecting our children.

Robbery Victim Became Feast For Mosquitoes

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Kenneth Stanford said being kidnapped, having his car stolen and then being tied naked to a pine sapling overnight was bad, but the worst part was being the main course for a pack of hungry mosquitoes.

Two men, one carrying a gun and the other a knife, accosted Stanford, 25, as he walked out of a restaurant about 11:30 p.m. Monday, and told him to get into his car and drive south on Interstate 95.

When the two bandits finally let Stanford stop, they led him into woods near a high school, made him strip down to his socks and used duct tape to bind him to a small pine tree.

They taped his arms together, taped his head to the tree and gagged him with the heavy gray tape.

There they left him — naked to the elements — and drove off in his car, which they later wrecked on an I-95 exit ramp before fleeing on foot. The robbers are still at large.

"I was just glad I didn't get shot or stabbed," Stanford said. "Once the mosquitoes found out I was there, though, it was open season on my bare skin. I'll bet I got bit a hundred times."

Early Tuesday morning, a steady stream of high school students passed within a few yards of Stanford. He let the younger ones pass, saying he wanted to spare them the sight of a naked man taped to a tree, but tried to call the older, more experienced students.

"I was still gagged pretty well and there was too much traffic for anyone to hear me," Stanford said. "So no one saw me before school."

During the day, he worked the gag loose enough so he could mumble. About 3 p.m. Tuesday, after spending the better part of 15 hours kneeling at the tree, Stanford's muffled cries were heard by 17-year-old Brian Hodges, who was walking home from school.

"When I saw him I didn't know what was going on," Hodges said.

Hodges told two other boys, who went to look at the 6-foot-5, 200-pound Stanford before they called the police.

WORLD IN BRIEF

South African Mine Strike Ends; 35,000 Return To Work

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Striking gold miners returned to work today with full shifts reporting at the three mines affected by a four-day walkout by 35,000 blacks, mine owners said.

"For the first time since Sunday, all three principally affected mines — Deelkraal, Doornfontein and Kloof — had fully manned night shifts followed by full turnouts this morning," a statement by the Gold Fields group said.

The Gold Fields statement, issued in Johannesburg, said the group would honor its agreement to hold "discussions on the substantive issues associated with illegal strikes."

The strike began Sunday when Goldfields rejected an industry settlement granting increases of 19 to 23 percent on average wages of about $180 a month.

It is the third mine stoppage since blacks won the right to strike for better wages in 1984.

In another development, International Red Cross officials said they would reveal plans today for continuing their work after the government's Nov. 30 deadline for their departure from South Africa.

Weapons Sales To Syria Banned

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The government has announced a series of measures against Syria in response to Britain's call for sanctions because of the Damascus government's alleged role in international terrorism.

Government spokesman Friedhelm Ost said Wednesday West Germany is banning weapons sales to Syria, would suspend a $27 million foreign credit to Damascus and might ask some Syrian diplomats and airline personnel to leave the country.

But while Ost said the government might leave its top embassy post vacant when its ambassador to Syria, Heribert Woeckel, switches jobs next month, he said West Germany will not break diplomatic ties with Damascus.

Enrile-Aquino Tension Eases

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The Philippine armed forces chief, Gen. Fidel Ramos, declaring himself "squarely in the middle," said today that tension between Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and President Corazon Aquino has eased.

Ramos, who with Enrile led a civilian-backed military uprising that ousted Ferdinand Marcos from power, was a central figure in bringing Aquino and Enrile together for a private meeting last week to heal the rift in the 8-month-old government coalition.

Pro-Aquino groups, meanwhile, called a rally in the Makati financial district to support her efforts to negotiate a peaceful settlement to a communist-led insurgency that has left more than 2,000 people dead since she took office.

Britain Acts Against Argentina

LONDON (UPI) — Britain, in a statement described by diplomats as one of its strongest verbal attacks on Argentina since the 1982 Falklands War, declared an exclusive fishing zone around the wind-swept south Atlantic isles.

Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told Parliament Wednesday that Argentina engaged in "aggressive" patrolling in the area and infringed on the Falklands rights by signing agreements allowing Bulgaria and the Soviet Union to fish in the region.

He said a 150-mile Fisheries, Conservation and Management Zone would be established around the islands effective Feb. 1 and that Britain reserved the Falklands' right, under international law, to declare a limit of up to 200 miles.

Korean Students Continue Protest

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — About 800 student dissidents, their food supply dwindling, occupied five university buildings for a third day today in an anti-government and anti-U.S. demonstration.

A police helicopter hovering over the sprawling campus of Kunkook University in the southeastern part of Seoul this morning dropped leaflets and broadcast messages promising leniency for students who come out of the school premises carrying the police leaflets.

After the mid-morning helicopter flight, the students went back into classrooms apparently for a meeting. When they came out a short time later, they continued shouting anti-government and anti-American slogans.

China Moves To Reduce Role Of Communist Party

PEKING (UPI) — China took its first step Wednesday toward nationwide implementation of a radical plan to reduce the role of the Communist Party in government and redistribute political power.

In a circular described by one Western diplomat as "very intriguing," the Communist Party Central Committee and the powerful State Council called on rural party officials to cease "running all the practical affairs of government."

"Village party committees should concentrate on carrying out the party line, principle and policy," said a summary of the directive published in leading national newspapers.

Rural communist officials should "work hard on ideological construction and grass-roots party organization, strengthen the leadership of the Communist Youth League, the Women's Federations and the People's Militia," the document said.

They should also look after the political and ideological education of the peasants and "promote good party conduct and social trends," the circular said.

But it is the role of the village government is to "control the economy, and particularly to implement economic, legal and administrative policies to develop commerce and production" it said.

The circular called on rural governments to support the independence of village enterprises. Peking has been trying to reduce government and party involvement in business decision-making for more than two years.

The directive called on county governments, whose authority is one step higher than village committees, to give the villages more autonomy.

"Many county departments have set up sub-departments which exercise suffocating control" over the villages, it said.

"The basic principle of the reforms is to simplify administration and distribute power," said the circular.

It also called for training of rural officials over a three-year period in subjects such as Marxism, science and technology and modern management theories.

China's senior leader, Deng Xiaoping, first called for political changes in 1980 as a necessary accompaniment to his wide-reaching economic reforms. But Western diplomats say the issue only began receiving serious attention this summer.

"I find it very interesting that they've actually gone out with an announcement saying, okay you guys, we've got to move ahead," said one Western diplomat.

In August, Peking designated 16 cities as pioneers for the changes, but observers did not expect that nationwide implementation of political reform would begin before the 13th Communist Party Congress next autumn.

Analysts also were surprised that Peking would decide to begin the separation of party and government at grass-roots level.

Diplomats believe the aim of the reforms is not to reduce the party's supreme power but to curb meddling in day-to-day government and economic affairs. Western diplomats believe the changes are likely to anger many of China's 44 million Communist Party members, especially middle-ranking officials who feel their positions are threatened by Deng's sweeping reforms.

Halloween Handicapper: Can Cassadaga Revive Fearless?

It's said to be the Salem, Mass. of Central Florida. Rumor has it that the city was doomed from the start when a dyslectic warlock wanted to name it Cassadaga — but it came out Cassadaga.

There haven't been any recorded witch burnings at Cassadaga, but it's not a place you want to go when there's a full moon. Especially this close to Halloween.

However, with no place left to turn after a mortifying 4-6 week of predictions, I gathered up a few garlic cloves, loaded up my 357-magnum with a silver bullet, conjured up enough courage and headed for the mystical city.

My destination was the crystal ball of Madame "Grid I. Ron."

I had to know what force was turning the Fearless Fister Forecast into a farce.

Madame "Grid I. Ron" gazed into her crystal ball and started murmuring, "I see a word that starts with a 'D'."

What could it be, I wondered? Dull, desperate, divine intervention.

"Dunderhead," she said.

"I didn't come here to be insulted," I said.

"Where do you usually go?" she replied.

After I threatened to take my 20 bucks back, the sarcastic soothsayer got serious.

And somewhere between the palm reading, tarot cards and bloodletting (not really), I got the inspiration to continue picking football games.

The 4-6 week put the Fearless Fister Forecast season record at 38-24. What kind of percentage is that? My money ran out before I found out.

Lady Lions' 7th Player Provides FAN-tastic Roar

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

The only number retired by the NFL's Seattle Seahawks is 12. That number was retired in honor of the vocal fans, dubbed the 12th man, which give opposing teams fits. They are often so loud, the center can't hear the quarterback's signals.

Oviedo High School's volleyball team may consider retiring the number seven after the 1986 season. It's tough enough to contend with the six players Oviedo puts on the court at any time, but the seventh player in the stands can often keep the Lady Lions pumping and give them that extra edge in the big matches.

Support for the Lady Lions has been nothing short of "FAN-tastic" this season. At every match, since the season started, a group numbering anywhere from 25 to 75 students has cheered the Lady Lions in victory or defeat.

Going into tonight's match against Lake Mary's Lady Rams, which should decide the Seminole Athletic Conference championship, Oviedo has an impressive 20-2 overall record.

And, if you think having a big crowd behind you doesn't make a difference, think again.

"The first time we played Oviedo (at Lake Mary) I think our kids were a little shook by the crowd," Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry said. "They had never played in that kind of atmosphere before."

Tonight's match against Lake Mary has all the makings of a classic. With the nine-week exams over, and no school on Friday morning, the entire Oviedo High student body might just show up for this one.

"We know Oviedo's going to have a lot of people there."

Volleyball

Henry said, "So it's important for us to bring a big crowd as well."

Prior to the 1986 season, coach Anita Carlson has had a number of district championship teams and even had a team in 1984 that came within one win of advancing to the state tournament. But Carlson said none of those teams received the support the '86 squad is getting.

"I think the school spirit is higher this year than ever before," Carlson said. "It really helps the program to have that kind of support."

One of the original Lady Lion backers this season is Clinton Cooper, a basketball player at Oviedo High. Cooper can be seen at every match and he's the leader of the "Hey Lions" and "Gigolo" (ask them about this one) cheer-alongs.

"It started off with just a couple of guys coming to the games," Cooper said. "But then the team started to win and kept winning and more and more guys started showing up and we really got into it."

"The rest is history," Glenn "The Hat" Reichle, who played on last year's Oviedo baseball team that went to the 3A State Tournament, said the Lady Lions rarely disappoint the crowd and that draws more people to the ensuing matches.

"The girls really like to see us out here," Reichle said. "They ask us to come to the games and, when we come, they don't let us down. They perform when we're here."

Another contributor to the outpouring of spirit this season

Survey says... Oviedo's faithful volleyball fans get into their "Family Feud" chant (above) between points at Tuesday's match against Lyman. Below, they give the survey answer — another winning serve. The fans have followed the Lady Lions, home or away, all season and opposing coaches have said it gives a talented Oviedo team another advantage. There figures to be another huge throng tonight when Lake Mary invades for a Seminole Athletic Conference match which may determine the SAC champion.

Boston Salutes Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — About 750,000 Boston Red Sox faithful saluted their favorite team with a parade and rally, showing their support for a club that came within one strike of winning the World Series.

Red Sox enthusiasts turned out in force Wednesday for "Red Sox Appreciation Day" with a parade through downtown and a City Hall rally for the American League champs, who lost a seven-game World Series to the New York Mets Monday night.

"The World Series was tough," Manager John McNamara told the cheering fans who jammed City Hall Plaza. "You people and your reception makes this winter more bearable for me than it was when I got up this morning."

A huge, forgiving cheer was saved for first baseman Bill Buckner, whose 10th-inning error in Game 6 allowed the Mets to score the winning run.

About half the Red Sox players showed up for the rally because some had previous commitments. Red Sox announcer Ken Coleman said.

Fans clogged the streets, sidewalks and office windows along the sun-drenched parade route, many climbing trees and traffic lights for a better view.

"They did good, came close," said Frank Prusik of suburban Arlington, who skipped high school to attend the rally. "Come on, it's farther than they've made it in 10 years."

In their previous World Series appearance in 1975, the Red Sox lost in seven games to Cincinnati. Boston last won the World Series in 1918.

"We can't wait another 11 years," team captain Jim Rice told the crowd. "Maybe next year or the year after. Believe me, we're gonna do it."

Shredded computer paper rained down from office windows as team members rode by on the back of a flatbed truck, greeted everywhere by signs.

"Win or Lose, You're Still Champions," read one placard. "Thanks For a Great Season."

Pointing to his heart, star pitcher Roger Clemens said: "Don't let anybody kid you. Seeing you guys out here hits us right here. One other thing. The New York Mets fans have nothing over you guys. They got no chance."

The parade started at Copley Square, the traditional finish line for the Boston Marathon, and wound past Boston Common to City Hall.

"Beyond a shadow of a doubt, Boston is the sports capital of the world," said Mayor Raymond Flynn. "We are proud of our Sox. Let's show it."

A pair of 45-foot red socks hung from City Hall. Fans watched highlights of the season on a 40-foot television screen.

"There seems to be a negative attitude about the (Red Sox) fans," said Andrew Beise, a Bank of New England employee who took time out to watch the parade. "Something like this shows you. They support the team, they like the team. The team loses and they still like them."

At the Mets' victory celebration Tuesday, an estimated 2.2 million frenzied New Yorkers hurled a blizzard of ticker tape.

Howell Confronts Evans In Key 5A-5 Clash

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

There comes a time in the high school football season where the outcome of a single game dictates the success or failure of a team.

On Friday night when the 6-1 Evans Trojans play host to the 5-1 Lake Howell Silver Hawks in the Trojans' homecoming game, the game could determine a playoff appearance for the winner, while the loser may go bowl searching elsewhere.

The game is crucial since there is four-way tie for the lead in District 5A-5. Lake Howell, Evans, Winter Park, and Apopka all share the district lead with 2-1 district records.

In other 5A-5 action on Friday night, Apopka (5-2) will visit Lake Brantley (0-6). Winter Park (5-2) will travel to Winter Garden to take on West Orange (3-4).

With Winter Park (+ 4 1/2) and Apopka (+ 15) favored by the Dunkel Index, it makes the Trojan-Silver Hawk game all the more important.

"This is the biggest game of the year for both teams," Evans coach Bill Gierke said

Football

"The loser of this game will be eliminated from the playoff picture. The winner will have the inside track to the playoffs."

There are a number of different playoff combinations to consider. Lake Howell must beat Evans and Lake Brantley while hoping Apopka loses to Brantley or West Orange. Evans must win two and hope Apopka loses. The Trojans' end-of-the-season encounter with Winter Park could also decide the district winner.

The game provides an irresistible force vs. immovable object matchup. The strength of Lake Howell is its mammoth offensive line. The line has been the key to the Silver Hawks season so far. No team that the Hawks have played has been able to dominate the line of scrimmage. The Howell line has been knocking down defensive lineman like bowling pins.

The result has been the fifth leading rushing offense in Central Florida. Lake Howell is averaging 203 rushing yards a game. Running backs Nate Hoskins and Cornel Rigby have been ripping up huge chunks of yardage seemingly at will.

The Trojans pride themselves and their rushing defense. They are fourth in Central Florida giving up an average of only 75 rushing yards a game.

"We feel that the strength of our team is the defensive line," Gierke said. "I have been hearing that they have a dominating offensive line. It should be very good matchup. It is undoubtedly the key to the game."

"They feel that they will be able to run against us," Gierke added. "We feel that we can stop them."

Evans was ranked first in the state (5A) three weeks ago. A 17-14 overtime loss to Apopka dropped the Trojans down to number seven in the state. "We didn't execute very well at all in that game," Gierke said of the loss to brother Chip's Blue Darters. "If we would have executed we would have won the game by two touchdowns."

Johnson Keeps 'Canes Mum On Bowl Option

MIAMI (UPI) — It was five days before the top-ranked Miami Hurricanes played No. 19 Florida State, but Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson already was giving frantic signals to his players.

As defensive tackle Jerome Brown was about to be interviewed by a local television station Tuesday, he placed his hand over the microphone and glanced quizzically at Johnson, who was waving his hands in front of his face.

"No bowls," Johnson said. "Don't say anything about the bowls."

Johnson repeated the request to several other players, including Heisman candidate quarterback Vinny Testaverde, flanker Michael Irvin, and fullback Alonzo Highsmith, all of whom declined to discuss the bowl picture.

The Hurricanes have four games left to play, but since Penn State defeated Alabama last weekend, speculation has raged about which bowl game the Hurricanes will play in.

Both the Citrus Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl — neither of which are tied to a conference champion and can invite two independents such as Miami and Penn State — are said to be trying to raise enough cash to entice the Nittany Lions and Hurricanes to face off on New Year's Day.

Other possible New Year's Day bowls for the Hurricanes are the Sugar, Cotton, and Orange bowls. Each of those bowls are tied to a conference champion. The Sugar invites the Southeastern Conference champ, the Cotton invites the Southwest Conference champion, and the Big Eight champ goes to the Orange Bowl.

Penn State is 7-0 and ranked third behind Michigan and Miami. If Michigan of the Big Ten remains undefeated, the Wolverines will play the Pac-10 champion in the Rose Bowl.

Johnson believes his role as a coach is to insulate his players from bowl speculation and keep their minds on winning games.

"When the time comes, the team and I will decide where we would like to play," Johnson said. "Until the team and I decide where we will play, we really won't talk about the bowls. We'll leave that to other people to discuss bowl situations."

"When you start talking about bowls at this time of year, you really open yourself up for an upset. And I'm not looking to have this team upset by reading the paper about where they might be playing in a bowl game."

What Johnson did not mind talking about was the Seminoles, who have won three straight after a 1-2-1 start.

"We think it is going to be one of the better games of the year," he said. "Prior to the season, we felt that one of our more difficult games would be the Florida State game here in the Orange Bowl. They rush the passer as well as any team we'll face all year and they have a wide open offense. They can score a lot of points and score them in a hurry."

The Seminoles have scored 54, 59, and 54 points in winning their last three games against Tulane, Wichita State, and Louisville. Miami is fifth in the nation in total defense and fifth in scoring defense, allowing an average of 11.9 points per game.

The Hurricanes expect three injured starters — Brown, strong safety Kevin McCutcheon, and tight end Charles Henry — to be ready for Saturday's game.

However, four other players — cornerback Donnie Ellis, safety Selwyn Brown, wide receiver Brian Blades, and running back Melvin Bratton — are not expected to start against FSU, although they may see some action.

Bobby Bowden has a lot to think about concerning Saturday's clash with top-ranked Miami.

Testaverde injured his foot in Miami's last game, a 45-13 win at Cincinnati Oct. 18, but said Tuesday the foot was "100 percent."

COLLEGE PICKS

Red Sherman/UPI's College Picks
Miami (minus 13) over Florida State — Following Miami's victory over Oklahoma in late September that shot the Hurricanes to No. 1, it was obvious that Florida State was the lone major obstacle left on Miami's schedule. The Seminoles, after a tough start, have gotten healthy against three straight weak opponents, scoring a total of 187 points against Tulane, Wichita State and Louisville. The quality of competition improves greatly this week, and Florida State may be without one of its top runners, Victor Floyd, because of strained knee ligaments. An offense that features Vinny Testaverde and a load of talented contributors overshadows a defense that is No. 3 in the country. The Hurricanes had a week off, time to get a lot of their nicks healed.

Size Of Line, Lure Provides Natural Look In Clear Water

Jim Shupe
GOING FISHING?

Experienced bass anglers use special techniques for clear water fishing. They realize that bass in such waters are spooky and very discriminating because of the good visibility clear water affords.

Certain tactics can tilt the odds in the fisherman's favor if he wants to challenge the bass that live in these crystal waters.

One obvious trick is to use the thinnest diameter line possible. Thin line is not only less visible, it also allows lure and bait presentations to be more natural. Non-fluorescent green line is least visible, making it the best choice for bass with 20/20 vision.

Excellent lure choices for clear water would be those with the "naturalized" finishes. Their life-like colors resemble bream and other natural items in a bass' diet.

The size of the lure is also important. Bass in clear water definitely prefer small plugs. Flaws in lure detail are magnified as the size of the lure increases, and imperfections on a small lure are much less noticeable than those on a large lure.

If the water is clear and our bait is unnatural, such as a spinnerbait, the lure should be worked quickly in order to give a bass only a moment to inspect the fake. The bass will either have to hit it in a split second or let it "escape."

Bass pros typically scale down their tackle when fishing clear water. Many pros use light spinning outfits rigged with six-pound test. This light tackle can handle the light line and small lures necessary to trick persnickety bass.

When all else fails, use bait. There is nothing like the "real thing" for sure success in clear water. Many large bass are caught each year on live bait because it is totally natural. If a man invented a plug that could be worked like a terrorized shiner, he would become famous overnight!

Fishing in dirty water requires the exact opposite strategies. Use noisy, vibrating plugs for the best results. Bass rely heavily upon their lateral lines in off-colored waters, and lures that vibrate or rattle are often detected by a bass before they even see the bait.

In dirty water, a lure that flashes will attract bass from a greater distance than a darker lure. The vision of a bass is restricted, and the flash of a shiny lure can be picked up by a bass that might not even notice a lure with a dull finish.

Big plugs are most effective in murky water because they are easier for a bass to see. Small lures would often go unnoticed because of their low visibility.

Lures that are effective in dirty water would scare a bass to death in clear water. A big, flashy, vibrating plug would stand out like a sore toe. Bass would probably swim for miles just to gawk at such a spectacle.

Don't just start chucking lures the next time that you are bass fishing. Take into account the color of the water and choose your plugs accordingly.

If you do, fish stories won't be necessary at the end of the day. You will have bass in your live well to back up your tall tales.

SHUPE'S SCOOP — Spinnerbaits are deadly in murky waters because they combine all the features that attract bass — flash, vibration, and size.

WEEKEND FORECAST — Rick Rawlins at Highland Park Fish Camp said that larger bass are becoming more commonplace with the cooling water temperatures. Bass in the 6-8 pound range are being caught daily on wild shiners. Some speckled perch are being caught in the lily pads fields with jigs and Missouri minnows.

Deil Abernethy at Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports that just about every bass angler is catching some fish. The bass appear to be healthy, and some big bass are beginning to appear in the catches. Speckled perch are scattered, but some are starting to be caught in Lake Manera. Deil looks for fishing to continually improve until real cold weather sets in.

Snoek are still strong at Sebastian. Most of the fish are running between 10-15 pounds, and bucktail jigs are catching most of the fish. Use a one-ounce red and white bucktail and fish it just off the bottom. If you don't get snagged every one in a while, you aren't fishing correctly. Use a six-inch red plastic worm on your jig for a little extra appeal.

Captain Jack reports that offshore fishing has been restricted due to high seas. Look for dolphin, king mackerel, wahoo, and sailfin in 140 feet of water. The Sea Witch and Dallyhoo is the best overall combination for all species, although wahoo sometimes show a preference for deeper running baits. The busy line is slow due to dirty water, but some flounder are being caught in the Part. Use finger mullet for these delicious flatfish. Some snook have been caught around the jetties at the Part. Trout and Redfish are biting in the Banana and Indian rivers, but the action has been spotty. The anglers who locate the fish do well, but those who aren't so fortunate can get skunked.

Sheepshead, drum, redfish, bluefish, and flounder are making anglers happy at the new Smyrna jetties. Live shrimp on the bottom is the best bait, but finger mullet are very good for reds and flounder. Reds are being caught on the south jetties, and all species are being caught on the north side of the north jetties. Fish near the rocks for the best results.

Gibson's Motive? Test District Course

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
Saturday's Trinity Prep Invitational will draw some of the top 1A teams from around the state. So why are the 4A Lake Mary girls running it?

Either Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson is a bully and likes to beat up on the small schools, or he has an ulterior motive.

Although Gibson said he would like to see his team win the meet, he isn't bent on knocking off 1A competition. Gibson's main reason for entering the Trinity meet is that it is run on the same course the 4A-5 District meet will be run on the following week.

"There's incentive for the kids because they get to run against some people they haven't run against all year," Gibson said. "But the main reason I like to go to it is because it gives us a chance to get the feel of the district course."

The Trinity Prep Invitational begins Saturday at 4 p.m. with girls junior varsity followed by girls varsity at 4:30, boys junior varsity at 5 and boys varsity at 5:30.

Along with Lake Mary's Lady Rams, Seminole County will also be represented by the 3A Oviedo High boys and girls teams.

Lake Mary's runners in Saturday's meet will include Heather Heikkila, Lisa Shelby, Allison Snell, Debi Smith, Tabatha Gano and Kim Blackadar. If Gibson was really intent on winning the meet, he would enter number one runner Sue Kingsbury but he's holding Kingsbury out so she'll be ready for district.

"Sue (Kingsbury) could run Saturday but I want her to be at her best for district," Gibson said. "There's no sense in her hurting herself a week before it counts."

While Kingsbury is reserving her strength for district, junior Heikkila hopes to continue to move up the way she has the past few weeks. At the University of Florida meet in Gainesville last Saturday, Heikkila ran the two-mile equivalent of 12:59 for 3,000 meters.

"The way she (Heikkila) is coming on, she very well could get her all time PR (12:20) which she ran when she was a freshman," Gibson said. "She should break 13 this week."

Another runner who could break the 13-minute barrier for the Lady Rams Saturday is freshman Allison Snell. Snell ran the equivalent of 13:00.7 at the Florida meet and was the top Seminole County freshman finisher.

Gibson said Gano, a junior, may also run close to 13 if she runs the meet the way she has in practice this week.

Another good sign for the Lady Rams this past Saturday was the performance of Smith. Smith, a sophomore, has been bothered by a foot injury most of the season but Gibson said she appears to be completely over it. Smith ran her season's best by 83 seconds at the Florida meet.

Blackadar, a freshman, also improved significantly at Florida as she shaved 70 seconds off her previous best this season.

A year ago, Lake Mary placed second in the Trinity Prep meet behind eventual 1A State Champion Lakeland Christian. Lakeland Christian and Lake Mary are expected to be the two front runners again Saturday while Oviedo may slip in for a top five finish.

Gibson

The Lady Lions have a solid top two in Junior Cathy Champ and freshman Lyn Yost. Rounding out Oviedo's top five are seniors Michelle Guilmette and Silvia de Diego and sophomore Linda Williams.

Oviedo's boys have a shot at winning the meet after the Lions claimed first in the Luther Invitational two weeks ago. Oviedo's top five consists of sophomore Derek Bates, junior Brad Bolton, senior Mark MacDonald, junior Garth Bolton and senior Frank Aviles.

Lukas Holds 3 Favorites At Breeders

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Trainer D. Wayne Lukas has the favorites in three of Saturday's $10 million Breeders' Cup races, although the Santa Anita oddsmaker figures Gary Jones has the best entry in the $3 million Classic.

Lukas saddles 7-2 choice Capote in the Juvenile, 2-1 pick Sacahuista in the Juvenile Fillies and 4-5 shot Lady's Secret in the Distaff.

Jones has just one participant Saturday, but it's probably the one to watch. The late-closing Turkoman, winner of the Marlboro Cup and $1.47 million, was installed as the 8-5 favorite to win the third running of the $3 million Classic, the world's richest thoroughbred race.

The 4-year-old Alydar colt, who finished third to Proud Truth in last year's Classic, drew the rail for the 1 1/4-mile race.

Precisionist, 1985 national sprint champion and Turkoman's chief rival Saturday, is the 2-1 second pick in the field of 11. Precisionist, who won the 1985 Breeders' Cup Sprint, will break next to Turkoman in their first rematch since they ran 1-2 in last month's Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park.

Bold Arrangement, the English invader who finished second to Ferdinand in the Kentucky Derby and one of two 3-year-olds in the field, was listed as a 30-1 longshot after drawing the No. 5 post. Mogambo, winner of the Gotham Stakes and the other 3-year-old in the Classic, drew No. 10 and was listed at 20-1.

The only filly in the field is 4-year-old Triptych, a Kentucky-bred who has earned $853,586 running in France and England. She drew No. 7 and was listed at 15-1.

The entire field, with jockeys and odds, from the rail:

Turkoman, Pat Day, 8-5; Precisionist, Gary Stevens, 2-1; Skywalker, Laffit Pincay, 12-1; Hopedul Word, Patrick Valenzuela, 15-1; Bold Arrangement, Pat Eddy, 30-1; Alphabattim, Eddie Delahoussaye, 8-1; Triptych, A.S. Cruz, 15-1; Iades, Cash Amussen, 30-1; Herat, Jerry Bailey, 20-1; Mogambo, Angel Cordero, 20-1, and Nostalgia's Star, Fernando Toro, 12-1.

Dancing Brave, the once-beaten 3-year-old winner of the Arc de Triomphe, is the 9-5 choice to win the $2 million Breeders' Cup Turf, a 1 1/2-mile race.

Estrapade, the tiny 6-year-old California mare who upset the males in the Arlington Million, drew the sixth post in the field.

Driesell Resignation Completes Overhaul

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The resignation of University of Maryland Coach Charles "Lefty" Driesell completes an overhaul of the administration of the school's troubled basketball program since the death of star player Len Bias.

Driesell stepped aside after 17 years as Maryland's coach Wednesday and accepted a job as assistant athletic director. He will receive at least $886,400 over eight years in his new post unless he takes a coaching position at another school.

Driesell's resignation came just three weeks after Athletic Director Dick Dull stepped down.

"It has been a long ordeal (and) I don't know if I could characterize this as the end of it," University Chancellor John Slaughter said of criticism aimed at the athletic program following Bias's death from cocaine intoxication June 19 and subsequent revelations of academic shortcomings of basketball players.

"I think it is imperative that our basketball players be in a position to be more successful in terms of their academic pursuits at the university," Slaughter said. "I have not been satisfied for some time with the progress that has been made in that regard and I believe that in order to accomplish the goals that I have set for the university in this regard, it was necessary for a change in leadership."

School records show that since Driesell became coach in 1969, nearly half the players he recruited failed to earn degrees.

Basketball

redirection in our overall athletic program, particularly as it related to basketball," Slaughter said. "There needed to be a greater commitment to the development of the young men playing in the program and it is my belief at this time in order to make those changes, we would require new leadership."

Driesell, who also coached nine years at Davidson, left as the second winningest active Division I basketball coach. He compiled a 524-224 overall record, including 16 seasons of 20 wins or more, and a 348-159 record and one Atlantic Coast Conference championship at Maryland.

He never had a losing record at Maryland, and his only sub-.500 season came in his first year at Davidson.

Slaughter said he will name a new coach by Saturday, when the basketball team begins practice for the upcoming season. The chancellor refused to say whether he will name an interim coach or a permanent coach. Ron Bradley, an assistant coach at Maryland for five years, has been mentioned as a likely interim replacement.

"I'm looking for a person who is fully committed to the goals that we're setting for our intercollegiate athletic program and who can provide the kind of leadership both on the court and off the court that I believe our

Slaughter last week adopted tighter admissions requirements and higher academic performance standards for the school's athletes.

Driesell, 54, established the school as a national basketball powerhouse since taking over the program in 1969.

"I am proud of all that the basketball program has accomplished during the last 17 years, both on and off the court," Driesell said. "I am very proud of our success in winning basketball games, but I am even prouder of the fine men that have been a part of the Maryland basketball program."

Slaughter said the specific duties assigned to Driesell have not yet been worked out, although the former coach will be involved in promoting and marketing sports events at the school.

Horner Files For Free Agency, Says Braves Forced The Move

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atlanta Braves slugger Bob Horner, one of 11 major leaguers to hit four home runs in a game, headed a group of six players who filed for free agency Wednesday.

Others filing on the second day of the 15-day filing period were Cincinnati pitcher John Denny, Milwaukee catcher Rick Cerone, Seattle pitcher Jim Beattie, Oakland infielder Lenn Sakata and Minnesota pitcher Frank Pastore.

The group filing Tuesday included Detroit pitcher Jack Morris and Montreal outfielders Tim Lincecum and Andre Dawson.

"The Braves gave me no choice," Horner said. "I've given them every chance to sign me, and they haven't done it. Now, I have to do what I have to do."

Horner hit .273 with 27 homers and 87 RBI this season. Four of the homers came July 6 against Montreal.

Until the filing period ends Nov. 11, the Braves are the only team that can sign Horner, who earned a reported $1.8 million this year.

If by Dec. 7 the Braves have offered Horner the choice of going to arbitration, they retain negotiating rights until Jan. 8. If he is unsigned after Jan. 8, the Braves cannot sign him until May 1.

"We expected (Horner) to sign," said Braves general manager Bobby Cox. "There's nothing wrong with that. We're still talking. We think we put what was a nice package on the table. We want to keep Bob here."

Horner said he expects negotiations to drag on until the Jan. 8

Baseball

deadline arrives.

"I'll give the Braves every opportunity to give it their best shot," Horner said. "I have no reason to leave Atlanta."

HOYT TROUBLES MOUNT

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — For the second time this year, San Diego Padres pitcher LaMarr Hoyt has been arrested at a Mexican border checkpoint with illegal Valium and suspected Quaalude tablets.

Hoyt, who won the Cy Young Award three years ago with the Chicago White Sox and makes an estimated $1 million a year, was released Wednesday on $25,000 bail and ordered to appear in federal court Nov. 10. He faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Federal Magistrate Roger Curtis McKee said Hoyt must undergo random drug testing before returning in November for a preliminary arraignment on charges of importing a controlled substance.

The magistrate allowed Hoyt to return to his home in South Carolina pending the hearing.

Ballard Smith, president of the Padres, said the club had yet to determine what action it will take against Hoyt, who was 8-11 in 1986.

"We are looking into the circumstances of what happened," Smith said. "We have contacted the commissioner's office and his agent, Ron Shapiro. However, we have not talked to LaMarr."

IN BRIEF

TRC Doesn't Miss TR, Wins, 9-1; Six Flags Waves By Bill Knapp's

The Tim Raines Connection may be without its franchise owner but it hasn't missed connecting with the scoreboard in the Sanford Men's Softball League.

Bill Knapp, who is in California competing in a "Baseball Decathlon," was n't missed for the second game in a row Wednesday night as TRC used a five-run fifth inning to tame All-Sports Program, 9-1, at Pinehurst Field.

The victory ups the Connection record to 6-0 and maintains a two-game lead over Six Flags Nursery, Six Flags, 4-2, slipped past hard-luck Bill Knapp's, 5-3, in Wednesday's other game. Knapp's is 0-6. All-Sports is 2-4.

Brother Levi Raines slapped a homer and two singles for TRC while winning pitcher "Steady Eddie" Jackson singled three times. Fred Washington, who had a two-run single in the fifth, chipped in a pair of hits while brother Sam Raines also had two singles.

Rod Turner, who slugged a pair of homers in Monday's win, added two singles as did Billy Griffith. ASP scored its run in the seventh on a single by Terry Russi, an error and a base hit by Mike Rotundo. Russi had two hits for the losers.

Bill Knapp's, meanwhile, took a 2-0 first-inning lead on hits by Mike Reeder and Doug Emmons along with a sacrifice fly by Harry McCarty and an RBI single by Jeff Smith. Emmons and Mike Laurs had two hits each for Knapp's.

Six Flags, though, bounced back with three in the second when John Whigham and Donnie Williams single. Terrell Ervin followed with a hit for the first run and Mike "Harmonica Man" Galloway followed with a base hit for two more runs.

Joe Ervin and Buddy Stumpf had RBI singles in the fourth. Whigham, John Emerson, Willimas and Galloway had two hits apiece. Terrell Ervin led the attack with three singles.

Becker, McEnroe Struggle, Win

PARIS (UPI) — Top seed Boris Becker and fifth-seeded John McEnroe each struggled Wednesday before advancing to the second round of the $625,000 Paris Open indoor tennis tournament.

Becker, of West Germany, suffering from a case of jet lag, defeated Hugo Nunez of Ecuador, 7-5, 6-4.

McEnroe, seeking his fourth consecutive tournament victory since regaining his form after a six-month break from tennis, defeated qualifier Todd Nelson of the United States 7-5, 6-4.

Third-seeded Henri Leconte of France enjoyed a successful return from a back injury by defeating compatriot Thierry Champion, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Frenchman Guy Forget defeated Derrick Rostagno of the United States, 6-3, 6-2, in another first-round match. Rostagno had replaced seventh seed Brad Gilbert, who withdrew with a knee injury, in the 32-man draw.

Paul McNamee of Australia beat South Africa's Christo Steyn, 5-7, 7-6 (7-2), 6-0. No. 8 Tim Mayotte of the United States defeated Emilio Sanchez of Spain 6-1, 6-1 in a second-round match.

Defense Keys Cowboys' Victory

Defense was the best offense in Sanford Recreation Flag Football Junior League action Wednesday night as the Cowboys, behind a safety and an interception for a touchdown, claimed a 9-0 victory over the Bulldogs.

The Cowboys took an early 2-0 lead when DeArvis Troutman pulled out Bulldog quarterback Charlie Brown's flag in the end zone for a safety. Later in the first half, Craig Merkeron picked off a pass and returned it for a touchdown. Terry Jones then caught the conversion pass as the Cowboys took a 9-0 halftime lead.

In Midget League play on Tuesday, Cyrus Bradley's 35-yard touchdown run broke up a scoreless tie and lifted the Steelers to a 6-0 victory over the Bucs.

Bitter Not Bitter After 7 Bass

CLEWISTON (UPI) — Jim Bitter of Fruitland Park, caught seven bass weighing 19 pounds, 12 ounces Wednesday to take the first-day lead in the $137,500 BASSmaster Florida Invitational tournament on Lake Okechobee.

Dave Fenton of Conroe, Texas, was in second place, catching the seven bass limit for a weight total of 18 pounds, 8 ounces. Three time world champion Rick Clunn of Montgomery, Texas, is third with 18 pounds, 2 ounces. Larry Wright of Okechobee, caught the biggest bass of the day at 10 pounds, 14 ounces.

is the construction that is transforming the once outmoded Oviedo High into a brand new school and one of Seminole County's finest.

"We want to show our spirit because we feel like we're in the big leagues now," basketball and baseball player Randy Ferguson said. "And we want to tell Lake Mary to watch out Thursday night: everyone's coming to this game."

Another of the leaders of the Lions' boosters is Senior Class President Al "Prez" Smith. "The volleyball team has been awesome this year," Smith said. "But the spirit has been really great at all the factions."

While it doesn't take much to get the Oviedo crowd into a match, Cooper and Smith are the ones who usually inspire the fans to hit their fever pitch.

"Clint (Cooper) and Al (Smith) are the guys that really get us pumping," Ferguson said. "And Glenn Reichle's hat is worth at least a couple points."

Basketball player Juan "LTD" Diaz said the crowd can often shake the opposition to the point of losing its concentration.

"When we come to cheer, it not only helps our team but it intimidates the other team," Diaz said. "And when that happens, it's really hard to beat Oviedo."

While Oviedo has the talent to win in an empty or full gym, the players feel having the big group of supporters has been instrumental to their success.

"I think they're great," senior Kelly Price said of the fans. "This week is exams week and they're still here. That says a lot. I seriously doubt we could have done as well as we have without them."

Even in matches that have meant nothing in conference or district standings, the fans help keep the Lady Lions fired up.

"This is the first year we've really had a big crowd at the games," senior Barbara Malone said. "They're at every match and it really helps to keep us up."

Whether it's Orlando Luther or the state tournament, Oviedo fans want the Lady Lions to

Henry: Forget DeLand, Lady Rams Play Oviedo Tonight

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — Coach Cindy Henry doesn't know what it is, but something about DeLand's Lady Bulldogs brings out the worst in Lake Mary's Lady Rams.

For the second time this season, DeLand caught the Lady Rams off their game, this time claiming a 15-9, 15-11 victory Wednesday night at Lake Mary High.

"There was not one part of the game where we looked into it tonight," Henry said. "That's scary. Because good teams, like Oviedo, don't allow that to happen."

Henry hopes the Lady Rams will get it together tonight when they go to Oviedo to play for the Seminole Athletic Conference championship. Lake Mary, 13-6 overall, is 7-1 in the SAC while Oviedo stands at 8-1. Lake Mary finishes the SAC season Monday at Seminole. Oviedo swept Lake Mary on the Lady Rams' homecourt in the first meeting between the two clubs. Oviedo's lone SAC loss was to Lake

Howell, which it avenged.

The win for DeLand means the Lady Bulldogs will most likely get the second seed in the district tournament while Lake Mary gets the third seed. Spruce Creek, the host team, also figures to be the number one seed.

DeLand got off to a 3-0 lead Wednesday before Marnie Frey served five straight points for a 5-3 lead. DeLand regained the serve, though, and took the lead for good in the first game. DeLand took advantage of Lake Mary's confusion on the court to build a 14-7 lead. Lake Mary scored twice on Lora Splatt's serve but DeLand got a side out and closed out the first game.

Lake Mary jumped out to a 5-1 lead in game two but DeLand rallied to tie it at 7-7, then took an 11-7 lead on C.C. Hayden's strong serve. With DeLand leading, 12-7, Lake Mary put together its only decent rally of the night on Sharon Bonaventure's serve.

Bonaventure served four points, the last two aces, as Lake Mary pulled within 12-11. But a breakdown in communication gave the serve back to DeLand and killed the rally. DeLand went on to score the next three points to wrap up the victory.

"We looked awful," Henry said. "Girls were running into each other on free balls and nobody was in their correct defensive position. It's hard to take a loss like this because we've been playing really well lately."

CREEK ESCAPES BRANTLEY

Spruce Creek's Lady Hawks had to fight for the lives Wednesday night to come away with a 15-13, 15-13 victory over a vastly improved Lake Brantley team in nonconference play at Lake Brantley High.

The host Lady Patriots dropped to 5-17 with the loss. Brantley concludes the regular season tonight in SAC play at Lyman.

"We played a really good match but just couldn't pull it out," Brantley coach Stephanie Glance said. "We've really improved a lot since the beginning of the season."

After the close loss in game one, Brantley fell behind, 11-5. In the second game, but rallied back to take a 13-12 lead. But Spruce Creek regained the serve and ran off three points for the win.

Glance said Dawn Gebhart had a good night on the front row while Julie DelRusso led the defense. Pam Wittig contributed a solid all-around game. Shelly Wittig had some big serves and Marianne Rodriguez had a good night setting.

"I think if we saw Spruce Creek again we might beat them," Glance said. "We are not as bad as our record shows. I think people look down on us because of our record but we're not that bad. I hope we can prove that in district."

OVIEDO RIPS LUTHER

Oviedo's Lady Lions reeled off their 11th straight win Wednesday night with a 15-3, 15-6 rout of Orlando Luther's Lady Crusaders at Oviedo High.

Oviedo, 20-2 overall, concludes the regular season tonight at home against Lake Mary. Oviedo will also be the top seed in the 3A-6 District Tournament, which it is hosting next Wednesday and Thursday.

"The girls looked pretty sharp tonight," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "I just hope they can get up one more time and won't be tired from already playing three times this week."

Wednesday night, Carlson said Kelly Price, Barbara Malone and Jill Knutson had some big hits on the front row while Cindy Wood turned in a splendid defensive effort.

Pats Shift To Spoiler In District

By Mike Andrew
Special to Herald

The Lake Brantley Patriots, still searching for their elusive first victory, shift into the role of spoiler in District 5A-5 prep football the next three Fridays.

The Patriots, coming off a heartbreaking 6-3 loss to Winter Garden West Orange two weeks ago, face off against two of the top contenders for the 5A-5 crown in two of its next three games.

Challenge No. 1 invades Friday night as coach Fred Almon's team will host the Apopka Blue Darters. Apopka, like Lake Howell, Orlando Evans and Winter Park, is 2-1 in 5A-5 play with two games to go.

"I told my kids we're mathematically out of the race," Almon said about his 0-6 and 0-3 squad. "But we damn sure can decide who wins it. We play Apopka, and then play Lake Howell in two weeks. We definitely have a chance to be the spoiler in the district."

Almon's troops were idle last weekend, and the Brantley coach said the time off has been beneficial to his team.

"The layoff helped us a bunch," Almon said. "We've got our game legs back, and we're a lot sharper and crisper than we have been. We only practiced a couple of days last week, and tried to use the time just to heal up."

The recuperation period was necessary because of what Almon termed the "constantly overmatched" games his team plays. He expects that to remain the same this week.

"Apopka is huge," Almon said. "They have a lot of great athletes, especially on defense. They have the best defense in the area, their defense can play with anybody. It's even tougher than Lake Howell's."

Apopka coach Chip Gierke realizes the importance of the game to the Darters' district hopes, and doesn't want his team to take Lake Brantley for granted.

"Lake Brantley played very well against West Orange, and we can't be looking past them," he said.

Almon said his team will be ready for both. "There's no doubt in my mind we can beat them (Apopka)," Almon said. "We'll have to play without mistakes, an almost perfect game to win, but I'm looking forward to Friday's game."

Almon feels his defense will be the key to an upset of Apopka. "Our defense has played well, and we'll have to do the same this week," he said. "We've brought up 12 or 13 kids from JV, and some of them might start on defense for us. We're going to give them a heck of a game."

On offense, Lake Brantley has experimented with a multitude of players, including a pair of quarterbacks in Greg Ebbert and Jason Lanham. Ebbert and Lanham are ranked second and third, respectively in Seminole County. Ebbert has completed 32.7 percent of his passes (17-52) for 318 yards with three interceptions. Lanham has been slightly more accurate, but doesn't have the yardage. Lanham has completed 20 of 41 passes (county-leading 48.8%) for 210 yards and a touchdown.

Almon also disperses his rushing attack among Johnnie Griffin (278 yards), Mark Sepe (186) and sophomore Clegg Ivey (186).

Lake Brantley's defense is led by Grant Carpenter and Jeff Stanphill. Carpenter and Stanphill have combined for of 58 tackles and 54 assists.

Stocks Sharply Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened sharply higher today in heavy trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, helped by a strong bond market and a better-than-expected report on the U.S. merchandise trade deficit.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 6.33 Wednesday, was up 22.92 to 1874.72 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 727-196 among the 1,249 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 18,290,000 shares.

The market opened with the knowledge that the U.S. merchandise trade deficit fell to $12.56 billion in September, the lowest level in five months.

The stock market advanced in heavy trading Wednesday, fueled by a strong bond market, lower oil prices and interest in takeover situations.

Jerome Hinkle of Sanford C. Bernstein said bond prices climbed as crude oil prices plunged. World oil prices were down as much as 50 cents to between $12 and $13 a barrel. The Treasury's 30-year bellwether bond rose half a point, or $5 for every $1,000 of face value.

Dollar Opens High While Gold Falls

By United Press International

The dollar opened mostly lower on major European financial exchanges today, but strengthened in Japan. Gold fell.

The Bank of Japan said the dollar closed at 159.90 yen, up 0.55 over Wednesday's closing rate of 159.35, in active trading.

The dollar's rise was triggered by reports that Japan's official discount rate cut is imminent, dealers said.

In Milan, the dollar started at 1,395 lire, against the previous 1,401.25; in Paris at 6,5970 francs, against the previous 6,6230; and in Amsterdam at 2,2820 Dutch guilders, against 2,2915.

In Frankfurt it opened at 2,0180 German marks, against the previous 2,0275; and in Zurich at 1,8700 Swiss francs, against the previous 1,8735.

The only exception to the downward trend was in London, where it rose to $1.4085 per pound, against the previous $1.410.

Gold fell in Zurich to $404 per ounce, against Wednesday's 406.50; and in London to $403.25, against the previous $405.25.

The morning gold fixing in London was $404, down $1.25.

On the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, gold closed at $402.30, compared with a previous close of $410.30.

Silver rose in London to $5.63, against the previous $5.58.

In early trading on New York's Comex, the price of an ounce of gold was $406.60, up $1.30 from Wednesday's close. Silver traded at $5.615 an ounce, up 1 1/2 cents from the previous close.

Saudi Oil Minister Fired

KUWAIT (UPI) — Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the most powerful figure in OPEC who helped engineer the 1973 Arab oil embargo and oversaw an eventual 1,209 percent rise in oil prices, was fired Wednesday as Saudi Arabia's oil minister, the state-run Saudi radio said.

Hisham Nazer, now the minister of planning, was appointed to replace Yamani as acting minister of petroleum and mineral resources apparently until a full Cabinet minister could be appointed, to the post, the radio said in a broadcast early Thursday.

No reason was given for Yamani's sudden dismissal.

There was widespread speculation among oil analysts that Yamani, the most visible minister in the oil cartel, was removed because he objected to the kingdom's role as the architect of OPEC's eight-month pricing war that drove down the price of oil to less than $10 a barrel in late July from an average $28 a barrel last December.

The Saudi family agonized for months in 1985 before deciding that summer to abandon its role as OPEC's price defender because fellow cartel members were overproducing and un-decharging for their oil at the kingdom's expense.

Yamani kept his post and prevailed in the summer of 1985 in a royal family struggle to alter oil policy.

of Sanford was suing the county over the purchase, has been denied by county officials.

Sanford wanted the same land for its land-disposal wastewater treatment system.

Ms. Clayton has said the county is not required to get land appraisals beforehand and that the county simply opted not to solicit appraisals of the property before it purchased it. County officials also state the pending action was announced earlier in the day of the purchase and was done at a public meeting even though there was reportedly only one person still attending at that early hour.

McEwan, who was helped in his research by Davis, has asserted that the land purchase is part of a larger scheme, a conspiracy, to increase the value of land held by elected officials, provide sewer treatment capacity to the private development of Heathrow at taxpayers' expense, and punish the city of Sanford for bucking the county in various actions.

Kroll suggested making the new classrooms and science suite in a two-story building, similar to structures at Lake Howell High School. The architects agreed it would be a good suggestion, and they would bring back more plans at the next meeting. One problem addressed concerning two-story classrooms was the "circulation impact" of having a great number of students using clustered rooms.

Rather than stop the whole project while those plans proceed, Superintendent Robert Hughes urged the board to go on and approve phase-one plans and look at the alternatives at a later time. This the Board agreed to do.

In other action, the board approved:

—Phase-two plans for Midway Elementary School additions totaling more than $2 million;

—Phase-two plans for Goldsboro Elementary School additions totaling $2.5 million; and —Specifications for the new Consolidated Services Center where the buses will park, to be located centrally in the county near where state Road 419 intersects state Road 434.

New Home Sales Up 10.6 Percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sales of new single family homes increased 10.6 percent in September to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 890,000, largely offsetting the decrease in August, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

New home sales fell by a revised 10.2 percent between July and August, falling from 895,000 to 824,000 at an annual rate.

The September increase was the largest since March, when sales rose at an annual rate of 24.7 percent to 924,000, an 8-year high.

creases, will be a probable funding source for the effluent disposal site if the city moves on acquisition, said City Manager Frank Falson. Rate increases are, however, projected within two to three years as the city's wastewater management program progresses, he said.

While engineering staff negotiate potential purchase of the effluent disposal site, Falson will be discussing the new issue with bond counsel and report his progress to commissioners Monday.

Engineering staff's discussion of the effluent disposal parcel on Monday will involve either an update on negotiations or, if staff and the owners are near agreement, commissioners will be asked to authorize a firm offer on the parcel, Simmons said.

Staff has already received commission authorization to make the "not to exceed $400,000" purchase offer to the well site's owner, and if negotiations proceed as hoped, commissioners will be asked on Monday to approve a purchase contract, Simmons said.

If Sanford buys the effluent disposal site, it will be "banked" until the city knows more about possible loss of the lake permit, Simmons said.

Sanford was granted the temporary permit for lake disposal of 1 million daily gallons of wet weather effluent overflow. The permit was issued by the state Department of Environmental Regulation, which has mandated the city to cease the majority of its lake disposal through development of land application systems.

The lake permit is valid for about two years, until the DER completes water quality studies of the St. Johns River and Lake Monroe. Results of the studies will determine whether a permanent permit will be granted for continued lake disposal of the 1 million daily gallons, Simmons said.

The effluent disposal site, although slated for insurance against possible loss of the 1 million daily gallon lake disposal, has been estimated by city engineers as being able to accommodate up to 3.5 million gallons of effluent daily.

Simmons said, however, he is not looking beyond the site's being used to make up for the possible loss of lake disposal. He said the city is confident its average annual need for disposal of 4 million gallons of effluent a day, above the 1 million lake discharge, will be met by the spray irrigation systems slated for development on properties Sanford already owns.

These parcels include the Mayfair golf course, the Sanford airport and city parks.

Effluent generated by growth is expected to be disposed on-site at new developments after the wastewater is treated at the city's Poplar Avenue sewage plant. Simmons indicated an ordinance amendment under consideration will establish this requirement.

Simmons also said if Sanford receives a permanent lake disposal permit, the 2,250 parcel could be sold.

If the state invalidates the permit, the parcel's purchase price, the cost of running lines to the site and developing it to full 3.5 million daily gallon potential would come in around $12 million, he said. The proposed bond issue will not, however, exceed $5 million, and hopefully be less, depending on purchase negotiations, Simmons said.

If Sanford did ultimately develop the site for maximum potential, the excess disposal capacity could be contracted to other interests in this case, he said.

Barley Selected To Participate In Operation Raleigh

By Carol Gentry
Herald Correspondent
Seminole High School graduate and Lake Mary native Tim Barley has been selected as one of the few Americans to participate in Operation Raleigh. Operation Raleigh is a 4-year, around-the-world expedition organized by members of the Scientific Exploration Society, the Explorer's Club and local committees with the support and participation of numerous universities and foundations throughout the world. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Prince Charles, is the Patron.

Operation Raleigh's World Headquarters is located in London with its "tactical headquarters" aboard a 275-foot former sub tender, the Sir Walter Raleigh. Those participating are called "Venturers." The goal of this organization is to field 4,000 volunteers, including 1,500 Americans in projects worldwide. A highly experienced staff of international scientists and explorers direct the project including: marine biology, archeology, environmental conservation and community assistance to remote villages.

Tim first wrote to Operation Raleigh for an application when he was a senior at Stetson. Due to graduation and a change of address, he never received one. Last month, by chance, he visited a friend in North Carolina who had applied for the program. Tim immediately traveled to Operation Raleigh Eastern Headquarters in Raleigh, N.C. and applied in person. He and his friend were both invited to attend a crucial "Selection Weekend."

During these weekends, possible candidates are collected at selected sites, broken down into groups of 30, and subjected to unusual experiences and interviews. Organizers of this special camp stimulate conditions that could happen on expeditions and evaluate applicants on their leadership ability, physical fitness, ability to work in groups, and knowledge of world affairs. According to Tim, they were awakened at odd hours in early morning for personal interviews and allowed little sleep. The campers were also required to eat unusual foods like pig brains and dog biscuits. The group may be told to build a raft from available materials and fish for lunch. When this is accomplished they may not be allowed to eat until all members are high enough up in a tree to be safe from hyenas.

"They wanted to simulate some possible bad conditions that could occur on an expedition," Tim said. "The point was to see how we could cope."

The enthusiastic 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Barley of Lake Mary will be one of the 150 Venturers to fly to Melbourne, Australia in March. He is scheduled to take part in projects sited at three different geographical areas: Wilson's Promontory on the coast, alpine country around Omeo, and the Sunset Desert. Projects will include a land and marine archaeology research project around Wilson's Promontory, and a biological exploration of the Sunset and Big Desert Country.

This expedition concentrates on the Mallee Fowl with most of the travel on foot. There will also be a rock wallaby survey in the upper reaches of the Snowy River. This involves white-water rafting and canoeing on the river. To become a Venturer you must be 17-24 years of age, speak English, swim 500 yards, demonstrate leadership qualities, be chosen from the "Selection Weekend", serve 300 hours of community service when you return and raise $5,500 for transportation and fees. Tim could use some community help in raising his participation fee. You can get in touch with him, or send a tax-deductible donation to P.O. Box 172, Sanford, 32771.

Blondes Get Mixed Review In High-Flying Mini-Survey

DEAR READERS: While I was flying from Tampa to Los Angeles recently, I read an article in USA Today concerning the old theory that gentlemen prefer blondes. According to a recent survey in which 1,000 men were polled, over one-third said that they prefer blondes, brunettes were a close second, and redheads trailed. I decided to do my own mini-survey aboard Northwest Airlines Flight 1, so I dashed off this note on my Dear Abby stationery:

Fellow passengers: For years we've heard that gentlemen prefer blondes. Do they really? Please let me know how you feel about that age-old theory. You need not sign your name, but please indicate the city of your residence. Thank you! — ABBY

I sent the note to the two gentlemen in the cockpit first. Here are some responses:

DEAR ABBY: Blondes are not my preference. The color of the hair does not matter to me; it's what is under the hair that counts. I prefer an intelligent woman, personable, feminine, with a sense of humor and one who is knowledgeable about current events. In my work I meet many women — flight attendants, pilots and passengers. They are wonderful! Many surprise me with their depth and intelligence. Others open their mouths and their brains fall out.

YOUR CAPTAIN, RICK OSBORNE

DEAR ABBY: I always take a second look at a blonde, particularly if she's wearing dark clothes. I can't say that I really prefer blondes, but I tend to notice them more, simply because they stand out from the crowd.

GARY BERG, CO-PILOT
DEAR ABBY: Speaking as a brunette (former blonde), I don't believe gentlemen prefer blondes. Although the fair-haired beauties are more conspicuous and attract more attention initially, what men really prefer is a woman with a charismatic personality.

BALLY TRELAND, FLIGHT ATTENDANT

DEAR ABBY: I do not prefer blondes. In fact, I have always had an aversion to obviously dyed hair, and unfortunately, the majority of blondes seem to have become blondes via that route.

ED SIEGEL, PALM BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I prefer brunettes. I had better: I've been married to one for 20 years. But I have to admit if I am walking behind a blonde, particularly one with long hair, she arouses my curiosity more so than a brunette would.

STAN OLSON,
PALM HARBOR, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: As a native Japanese gentleman, my preference is naturally for dark-haired women. Perhaps it is because we tend to be more trusting of the familiar.

N.T., TOKYO

DEAR ABBY: After considerable experience, I definitely do not prefer blondes!

SHERMAN C. VOGEL,

FREEPORT, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I believe that most men, given a choice, really do prefer blondes, but only if they appear to be natural blondes. Men are greatly turned off by women with bright yellow, obviously dyed hair. It looks cheap.

J. FROM ST. PETERSBURG

DEAR ABBY: Living in the Scandinavian capital of the U.S.A. (Minnesota), where blue-eyed blondes run rampant, I may not be qualified to answer, but I think a gentleman may be attracted to a blonde the same way he would be attracted to a girl in a gold lame gown. There is something flashy about both.

Traveler's Ills Are Universal Phenomenon

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — As a child, I lived for a year in Mexico. I prowled the marketplace with a 12-year-old's appetite for all the delicious tacos, chicharones and other "forbidden fruit." A severe case of amoebic dysentery was finally cured in high school. Can amoebic dysentery be spread by migrant workers? And is it true that when Mexicans come to this country, they get the same "tourista" that we gringos get when we visit their country?

when I press it, and going up stairs or up a small grade tires me out. I've been told I have good circulation, and I've had all the tests for multiple sclerosis, since this has been going on for 17 years. Darvon and Valium help. Should I have more tests?

DEAR READER — Possibly, if your condition has remained stable for 17 years but you are still having symptoms, I am sure that your doctor would be willing to refer you to a neurology clinic in a university hospital. Darvon (a pain reliever) and Valium (a tranquilizer) may temporarily relieve the symptoms of many diseases. I believe you need a thorough medical analysis in a teaching hospital where the specialists are familiar with unusual disorders.

DEAR READER — Your question is composed of two parts. Amoebic dysentery is an acute infection of the bowel caused by tiny one-celled parasites. The amoebae can produce prodigious amounts of diarrhea and are carried out of the body in the fecal waste. In warm countries with poor sanitation, amoebic dysentery is endemic, which means that it is widespread and easily transmitted through the fecal-oral route. Similarly, an infected patient who immigrates north can spread the dysentery if living conditions are sub-standard.

Traveler's diarrhea is believed to be a somewhat different ailment. It is usually caused by specific toxins or poisons secreted by a common type of intestinal bacterium: E. Coli. Each of us lives more or less comfortably with our own intestinal bacteria; we have become used to each other.

When we travel, we unavoidably eat bacteria with our food. We have not adapted to the new strains of bacteria, so diarrhea will develop until our intestines adjust to the "newcomers." Therefore, travelers to any foreign country might have diarrhea until adaptation takes place. Mexicans eating American food in the United States or Chinese eating French food in France can suffer several days of diarrhea. The problem seems to be worse for people traveling from a northern climate to a southern one, but, as far as I know, traveler's diarrhea is a universal phenomenon.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My legs feel stiff and sore most of the time, as if I'm walking on boards. The sciatic nerve is sore

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It's no secret that, if each trick lost by sloppy defense since bridge began were one floor of a skyscraper, that tower of lost tricks would reach to the moon. Because that's true, it's easy for a declarer to be lulled into a false sense of security when it looks as if a defender may be making a mistake. That's when it pays to know the name and background of the careless defender.

Our declarer at four hearts took the diamond ace and played the Q-K-A of hearts as defender East threw a low club and a low diamond. South then gave up a heart to West's jack as East let go another low club. Of course declarer had kept all five spades in dummy, hoping that the defenders would try to cash two diamond tricks. He could then ruff the third diamond and perhaps run five spades for an overtrick. Sure enough, West led a diamond to East's queen, and dummy was now down to the K-8 of clubs and the five spades. And now East, the "careless" defender, played a third round of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, throwing dummy's low club, and then tried to run the spade suit. Unfortunately East's four spades to the jack prevented the suit from running, and now poor South had to lose two club tricks and go set in his game contract.

The East defender was Alan Sontag, winner of numerous North American championships and one World Team Championship, who would never have failed to lead a club back unless he knew that the spades were not splitting.

No 'Lost' Years For Loretta Young

By Frank Samello
BEVERLY HILLS (NEA) — Loretta Young has come out of a 23-year retirement. She will star in "Christmas Eve," an NBC-TV movie airing later this year concerning a feisty and rich woman who tries to reunite her family for the holidays.

The 73-year-old film and TV star has spent the last two decades out of the limelight, devoting herself to Catholic charity work and tending to her three children and grandchildren.

It has been a happy, busy retirement, so Young was surprised when she gave what she thought was a pleasant interview to a reporter in Hong Kong and the next day the newspaper ran a headline asking, "Loretta? Where are the lost 20 years?"

Over cocktails and cracked crab at the legendary Chasen's restaurant, Young quibbles with the term "lost."

"I don't feel they were lost," she says. "They were my reward for working very hard for years. I've been working literally since I was 4, when my mother got me a job as a film extra in silent movies."

Young almost came out of retirement last year, when Aaron Spelling announced she would be starring in his new gothic nighttime soap "Dark Mansions." Citing the usual "creative differences," however, Young dropped out of the show and was replaced by another film star of yesteryear, Joan Fontaine.

Over the years, there have been other roles for which the actress would have gladly abandoned retirement. But today, the only one she can think of is the 1975 TV movie "Love Among the Ruins," which starred Katharine Hepburn and Laurence Olivier as two senior citizens who rekindle a youthful romance.

"I remember thinking, 'Oh! I wish I had got a crack at that!'" she says. "But Katharine was better at it than I could have been."

Not that the actress can complain about not having a career's worth of meaty roles. She won a Best Actress Oscar for "The Farmer's Daughter" in 1948 and was nominated a year later for her work in "Come to the Stable" (1949).

She still keeps an eye on her Oscar when self-doubts creep up, which apparently is frequently.

"The Academy Award is awfully good for the actor's ego. And it keeps you sure when most of the time you're awfully unsure. You can always say to yourself, 'Well, I won an Oscar, so I can't be all that bad.'"

If she is insecure about her talent, she has always been firm in her moral code. It was while shooting "Come to the Stable," in which she played a nun, that Young may have laid the foundations for her reputation as a woman whose screen roles were not much different from her staunch personal morality, which earned her the nickname "The Iron Butterfly."

While shooting "Come to the Stable," Young instituted the notorious "cuss box."

"Here I was playing a nun, and the Lord's name was being tossed around on the movie set. The crew didn't know what they were saying, they didn't mean anything by it, but when you're going to Mass every day and suddenly you hear all this...." She closes her eyes and lets the profanity remain unspoken.

"Finally, I said, 'I can't stand this anymore! I'm playing a nice nun and you guys are all over the place.'"

One of the crew suggested she start a cuss box, charging 25 cents for taking the Lord's name in vain, and a dime for every "hell" and "damn."

Recalls the actress, "I was collecting well over $100 week on this thing, and I'd send the money down to St. Anne's maternity hospital for unmarried mothers."

Will there be a cuss box on the set of her upcoming NBC movie? "I don't think they'd go for that today," she says.

Although her Christmas TV film is a one-shot deal, the actress doesn't rule out a weekly series.

What would it take to lure her back to the grind of 18-hour days, six months a year? "A good role," she says. "I'm just a pig for a good role."

Balancing The Yuks And Lumps

By Guy MacMillin
 A lot of readers think the great shortcoming of TV criticism in newspapers is that it lacks a scientific basis. People complain that reviews are, well, subjective.

They've got a point. Take The New York Times. It has a conservative TV critic and a liberal TV critic. Whether the newspaper loves or hates a particular documentary depends on which guy writes the review.

As part of an effort to improve standards, I've invented a machine that takes the guesswork out of reviewing situation comedies. I call it the Yukometer. Here's how it works.

A good sitcom has to draw two reactions from the audience: laughter and an occasional lump in the throat.

I have plugged several episodes of each new network sitcom into my Yukometer, which rated them on a scale from 1 to 10 for yuks and, thanks to a special software package I developed, for lumps in the throat. To assure complete reliability, the machine was calibrated using episodes of "Cheers" and "The Cosby Show." (Please note that some low-scoring shows have already been canceled.)

Balance between yuks and lumps is critical. Laboratory analyses have determined that, when the yuk ratio gets too high, the show doesn't build rapport with viewers; when the lump ratio gets too high, people get depressed. So the ideal score here is 10 yuks, 3 lumps.

Here are the results.

"ALF" (NBC, Mondays). This is about a stuffed animal from outer space whose rocket crashes into Willie Tanner's garage. Willie's family turns out to be very sweet, and ALF turns out to be a very witty stuffed animal. Score: 8 yuks, 2 lumps. Very respectable.

"Amen" (NBC, Saturdays). Sherman Hemsley plays Ernest Frye, a character who closely resembles the depicable George Jefferson character Hemsley played on "The Jeffersons." The idea of making this guy a church deacon borders on blasphemy, but Frye and his klutzy daughter are good for a lot of laughs. Score: 7 yuks, 0 lumps. Not bad, but needs lumps.

"Better Days" (CBS, canceled). When Brian's parents break up, he moves from Beverly Hills to Brooklyn, where he lives with his grandfather and has trouble adjusting to a radically different high school. Along the way, the show teaches us that we ought to be nice to less fortunate people, that it's wrong to cheat on tests, that young people should respect their elders and so on. Score: 1 yuk, 3 lumps. Way out of whack.

"Designing Women" (CBS, Mondays). Four women of different generations and very different philosophies run an interior decorating company. Their adventures tend to be amusing and are obviously intended to highlight social issues affecting single women. Score: 4 yuks, 3 lumps. Needs yuks.

"Easy Street" (NBC, Saturdays). Loni Anderson plays a very wealthy widow who takes in her skid-row Uncle Bully and his scruffy friend, Jack Elam is suitably quirky as the uncle, and this preposterous idea has its moments. Score: 5 yuks, 1 lump. The lumps occur only when Uncle Bully tries to commit suicide, which is so frequently that it suppresses the yuk level.

Next time, the Yukometer will scan the rest of the new sitcom crop, from "The Ellen Burstyn Show" to "Together We Stand." Isn't science amazing?

Rotary Club Hosts Masquerade Party

The Sanford (noon) Rotary Club will sponsor a Halloween Masquerade Party from 8-12 p.m. Nov. 1 at the Sanford Civic Center.

Vic Richburg, chairman of the charity fund of the service club, said in his announcement that the $5-per-person donation to the charity fund is a "real bargain." He emphasized the dancing to the popular Shy Guys band, plus a "multiplicity of prizes" and the tasty tid-bits that are to be prepared by the club members' wives made for a "full evening of enjoyment."

Tickets for the gala are available from members of the "downtown" club, Richburg said.

Projects Get Nod Of Lake Mary P&Z

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

Developers got the approval of the Lake Mary Planning & Zoning board for four projects at its Tuesday night meeting.

Final authority on the matter rests with the city commission, which meets next Nov. 6.

First, the board recommended approval to construct a 1.4-mile roadway through Timacuan development. To be called Timacuan Boulevard, the roadway will start at Rinehart Road south of the cemetery and stretch southeastward toward the Hills of Lake Mary and eventually end at Rantoul Lane. Another leg will jut south and cul de sac before coming to Lake Mary Boulevard.

Timacuan, a project by Dr. Hubert R. Earley of Orlando, is planned for more than 1,000 homes and a golf course. The next approval needed will be for a clubhouse.

The board recommended amending a conditional use permit for Oxford Executive (office) Park at the southeast corner of I-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard. The amendment will allow two five-story buildings and one four-story building, instead of two six-story buildings and one two-story building. The board also allowed a reduction of open permeable space to 38 percent instead of the original 51 percent, partly to allow for interchange space in 1990.

The developer of that 240,000 sq. ft. project said it would add a half-million dollars to the local tax base and also provide jobs for about 1,000 people.

One suggestion, by board member Penny Gunn, was to tuck parking under one of the buildings to allow more open space. But the developer said that would be too expensive.

The board recommended approval of a conditional use permit with variance to the Land Development Code to allow a shopping center in the vicinity of Lake Mary Boulevard and Sun Drive. A portion of Sun Drive will have to be vacated by the city for that project, to be called Padawer Shopping Center.

The board also recommended approval of a six-foot buffer instead of 25-feet for the shopping center. One of the reasons was that a church and its grounds provide sufficient buffer along one side. Mrs. Gunn suggested the buffer should be as large as possible anyway and include higher shrubs or trees. The developer then agreed to a six-foot-wide buffer instead of four feet, and to put in a two-foot berm under three-foot shrubs.

Preliminary subdivision plans for Eagle Creek, a proposed development of 48.5 acres on Longwood/Lake Mary Road across from Lake Mary High School, were sanctioned by the P & Z contingent on the developer's agreement to put in a water main and drainage structure.

City Engineer Tim Weaver said the developer, Energy Development of Lake Mary, would be required "to build an overflow structure with pollution control and pop it off to Longwood Lake Mary Road."

The developers need the approval of the city commission on Nov. 6 in order to meet a closing date on their purchase of the property the following day.

"We wish you luck," said P&Z Chairman Jim Talmadge. "That project has tried to be feasible for five or six years."

County Imposes Growth Fee On Developers

By Paul C. Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

A new growth related fee was imposed on some county developers by Seminole County commissioners Tuesday afternoon. The two-tiered formula the commission initially considered adopting was set aside for the time being, and an interim fee of $500 was set.

The fee is to be paid by those who request amendments to the county's comprehensive plan. Twice each year amendment requests are considered by the commission. The plan designates land use areas across the county as a blueprint for growth.

The flat rate of $500 per amendment request went into effect immediately, and thus those wishing for spring requests will have an additional $500 to pay in the process. Filing for the spring requests ends Friday. Less than 20 of the latest requests have been received as the deadline approaches.

The commission considered a two tiered fee rate in a morning work session, but decided to yield to a request by the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida, Inc. to set an interim fee while they study the actual cost to the county for amendment request reviews.

Commissioners considered rates which separated proposed small scale and large scale developments. The small projects of five acres or less would have paid $400 per application, while the large scale requests would have been charged $1,000.

"We agree that users should pay fair and equitable fees," HBA official Howard Pomp told commissioners, "but we don't know if staff time spent on small projects is that much different that the time spent reviewing the larger projects."

"If the county feels the fees are necessary, then make it a flat fee," Pomp said. He suggested between $200 and $500. Deputy county administrator Woody Price said it is not only staff time that is costing the county money to review projects. Each public hearing on amendment change requests can cost about $300 to advertise, as is required by law. The ads are run to inform the public of amendment requests.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn suggested the fee be set at $500 per request, and commission chairman Bob Sturm suggested the fee be used on a 90 day interim basis.

The commission then took official action on adopting the interim measure during their afternoon session. Studies to substantiate the actual cost for request reviews should be completed when the 90 day period expires.

Commissioners are also continuing to research development impact fees, to pay for dealing with the impacts on growth to county services, and development review fees, which set rates for related applications during the project permitting process.

In Bombing Aftermath

Koch Promises Protection For Abortion Clinics

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bomb exploded in a midtown Manhattan abortion clinic early Wednesday, slightly injuring two passersby, but the blast did not stop the center from performing abortions later in the day or protesters from praying outside.

The device was hidden in a plant pot and detonated at 1:30 a.m., gouging a small hole in the ceiling of the waiting room of the Eastern Women's Center where about 260 abortions are performed each week.

No one was in the clinic, but there were several workers in other parts of the building. Two men passing by at the time of the blast were hit by glass, police said. They were treated at hospitals and released.

The bombing caused about $10,000 in damage, officials said.

Police said several phone calls to the bomb squad warned of the attack but no one has claimed responsibility.

The city offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bomber. Mayor Edward Koch called the attack "tragic and outrageous" and promised extra police protection for the city's abortion clinics.

"Irrespective of how one may feel on the issue of abortion, no sane person can justify engaging in violence against such facilities," Koch said. "It is unconscionable to seek to impose one's philosophy and morality by violating another's rights."

As investigators searched for clues to the bombing later in the morning, it was business as usual at the clinic. More than 50 patients arrived for their appointments, and two anti-abortion activists, holding rosary beads and carrying graphic pictures of abortions, protested outside.

"We always have bomb threats and all kinds of telephone threats... It is sad that this will continue to occur, that people will have to use this way of dealing with a law they don't agree with," said clinic director Barbara Methvin.

Robert Creighton, special New York agent for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said his agency has investigated 45 abortion clinic bombings nationwide since 1982. Twenty-seven cases have been solved, he said.

Pro-choice activists claim, however, there have been as many as 85 attacks this year alone. A blast last Dec. 10 damaged a Manhattan clinic but no one was injured.

Methvin said the center received as many as four threats a year but despite the bombing the 40 employees at the center would not be intimidated.

The clinic is licensed by the state and advertises birth control services, pregnancy testing and abortions to six months.

Carl Jonasch, deputy police inspector, said the bomb squad received phone calls about 15 minutes before the blast warning that "there would be an explosion."

The man called another two times during the next several minutes and asked whether the bomb had gone off. Detectives said the caller told them he "didn't like what was going on there."

Creighton said it was a small unsophisticated bomb, adding there appeared to be no link to last year's blast at the Manhattan Women's Medical Center.

"There is only one rational reaction that one could have about this and that is outrage," said Joan Coombs, deputy executive director of Planned Parenthood of New York City.

"What we're seeing is another example of the anti-abortion

Drug Seminar Bumps Games Talent Show

The Golden Age Games talent and variety show scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center has been moved to Friday Nov. 14 to make way for the first of four city drug awareness seminars. The original date was printed on the 1988 schedule which has been mailed out all over the country.

City Parks and Recreation Director Jim Jernigan, who is also general chairman of the Games, said it was his decision to preempt the show because it was the only time he could schedule the seminar and not disrupt the four-week program which is open to city employees, their families and city residents.

The civic center will be in use by the city that Thursday afternoon and night and is the only place the city has large enough to accommodate the more than 300 city employees plus the others attending. Jernigan said he did not foresee any problems in moving the talent show competition to another night because it was later rather than earlier and most of the participants would be arriving earlier in the week. He said there are a limited number who register in advance and they could easily be notified of the change in advance.

Two other events printed on the schedule have had location changes. The canoe events will not be held at Katie's Wekiva Landing, 12 miles west of Sanford on the Wekiva River, because the swift current their would make running the event difficult according to the American Red Cross, Jernigan said. The Red Cross sponsors the event. Canoeing will be back at Sanford Landings as it was last year.

Men's billiards will not be at Woogle's Pub, because it was closed and reopened as a restaurant. The event will be moved to the youth wing of the civic center. Since the men's rotation and women's 8-ball billiards are both at 2 p.m. on Thursday, Jernigan said it will be necessary to juggle the times of the two groups.

2 Tons of Cocaine Seized

MIAMI (UPI) — Federal drug agents have begun a new fiscal year with the biggest cocaine seizure in U.S. history, 4,620 pounds found secreted in a container's false compartment aboard a Venezuelan freighter.

Disclosure of the discovery came at a Miami news conference Wednesday where officials said the cocaine was worth $46.2 million wholesale and 10 times that amount in retail street sales.

"We believe this to be the largest seizure of cocaine in the United States," said Diogenes Galanos, district director of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Galanos said no arrests had been made and the investigation into the shipment was continuing so several details of the case could not be released.

The smuggled cocaine arrived at the Port of Palm Beach Oct. 9 aboard the freighter Malargo I from La Guaira, Venezuela. Two 40-foot-long containers, the kind that are attached to truck tractors for overland haul, were labeled as carrying household furniture.

U.S. Customs inspectors found that most of the furniture had been hollowed out, but none of it contained drugs.

On Oct. 17, the inspectors drilled into one of the containers and found a secret compartment that held cardboard boxes, taped shut, filled with cocaine, said George Heavey, Southeast regional commissioner of U.S. Customs.

'Boob And Lube' Shop Protested

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Topless service offered at the new "Boob and Lube" garage has provoked a protest from the National Organization for Women against what they say is exploitation, and the garage's owner couldn't be happier.

"You're gonna make me rich," proprietor Darrel Lafon yelled to about 50 NOW members carrying signs Tuesday in front of Darrel's Grease and Go near downtown Des Moines. He said the publicity from the protest would help business.
