Torch relayed July 8

SANFORD — Official Olympic torch bearers will be running through Seminole and Volusia counties, connecting Longwood and DeLand, on Monday, July 8 beginning at 10:24 a.m.

On Saturday, a spokesman for the Torch Relay Committee said Harry Granoff and Ralph Perry will be the only runners carrying the torch in the Longwood area.

At approximately 10:51 a.m., Perry will hand off the torch to a cyclist, who will ride through Lake Mary, Sanford, DeBary, and Orange City along U.S. 17-92, before handing off to Wayne Dunn at Chelsea Street in DeLand.

The torch will then be passed to Raymond Willard, Dane Finch, Thomas Gurnot, and Diane Dislear. Finally, the torch will be passed to Ted Jakomys, who will take it to South Street where it will be passed to an unidentified bearer at 12:19 p.m., who will turn up U.S. 92 to Daytona Beach.

While the runners have been identified, a complete list of their hometowns and addresses was not available at press time from the Torch Relay Committee.

Road rerouting

Beginning today, the traffic in the west-bound lanes on old SR-434 will transfer to the newly constructed eastbound lanes of SR-434. The shift is at the intersection of SR-434 and SR-419 to the post office.

No garbage pick-up on July 4

SANFORD — There will be no refuse pick-up for residential and commercial customers served by Sanford's solid waste division on Thursday, July 4.

For additional refuse information, call the Solid Waste Division at 330-5679. For water and sewer information, phone the Utility Department at 330-5630.

Landfills closed for holiday

The Seminole County Central Transfer Station, located on State Road 419 and the Oscola Road landfill will both be closed Thursday, July 4. Both facilities will reopen for business on Friday.

Unincorporated Seminole County residential customers with regular collection every Thursday will have service resume on Monday. Those who normally have recyclables collected on Thursday will have service resumed the next Thursday.

For additional information, contact 322-2254.

Margaux Hemingway dead

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Margaux Hemingway, the model-turned-actress and troubled granddaughter of Ernest Hemingway, was found dead in her seaside apartment.

The death did not appear to be a suicide and there was no sign of forced entry or foul play, police said.

"At this point we're not sure what happened to her," coroner's spokesman Fred Corral said. An autopsy was expected tonight or Wednesday.

The 41-year-old Hemingway, who moved into the second-floor apartment a few weeks ago, had not been seen by friends or neighbors since Saturday. A friend, concerned that Hemingway hadn't returned her phone calls, climbed a ladder to peek through the window and saw the body on a bed.

Coroner's officials identified the body by information from relatives, identification Hemingway had on her and a description of recent dental work, Corral said.

Holiday fireworks? Yes!

SANFORD — There will be fireworks in Sanford for Independence Day. A donation by Seminole County helped bring the fund over the top.

The fireworks are expected to begin at 9:20 p.m., Wednesday, July 3rd. Rod Loyer, president of Promoting Sanford/Seminole, said they will be launched from the center of Fort Mellon Park. "By doing it in the center," he said, "it will allow us to have the 400 foot barricade around the entire area for the safety of the spectators."

The final goal was not only reached but exceeded when Seminole County donated $10,000 late last week. Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun said the motion was made to give the

Lon Howell

SANFORD — Two-term Sanford City Commissioner Lon Howell has decided to leave the political arena and concentrate more on his business. "My business is growing so rapidly," he said, "that I have got to put more time into it."

Howell had earlier indicated he would seek re-election, but admitted that he was weighing the matter closely.

Howell and his wife, Laura, established CellTel Inc., a cellular telephone business slightly less than a year and a half ago, and said the company is accomplishing the highest sales in the chain. "It's really a full time job," he said, "and I don't believe it would be possible to devote my full attention to both work and the commission at the same time."

Howell, 49, has been a resident of Sanford for 19 years. Prior to serving on the City Commission he was involved in the Planning and Zoning CASSELBERRY — Casselberry police say a person sought by them in an attempted murder case over a year ago has been located.

Marcell Henderson, 25, was located in Boston, Mass. He was booked in Boston on an armed robbery case, and was subsequently identified as being the subject of an active warrant issued in Seminole County.

At the time he was arrested,

Henderson had a loaded .357-caliber revolver with six hollow tip bullets, police said. He was apprehended after fleeing into backyards near 643 Morton St. in Boston, along with three other men suspected of robbing two men at gunpoint, police said.

Police discovered the Florida warrant on Thursday.

Henderson will be arraigned on the armed robbery charges and arrangements for extradition will be made with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, police said. "We are just waiting for him to be returned to Seminole County custody before we officially charge him," said Casselberry police Sgt. Greg Heppburn.

Heppburn said the case occurred in the middle of last year, when a man believed to be Henderson, shot

Clues sought in Lake Mary robbery

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — An armed robbery was reported early Sunday at the Steak and Shake Restaurant, 4326 Lake Mary Boulevard in Lake Mary. An undetermined amount of money was reportedly stolen.

According to Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, at approximately 3:30 a.m. Sunday, two suspects armed with handguns, walked into the restaurant. He said they forced two female employees behind the counter and demanded they hand over the money from the cash register. The employees reportedly complied.

McDonough said the suspects then ordered the employees to open the safe and give them that money. Afterward, they forced the two females and a third male employee into a walk-in cooler. None of them was injured.

There was no indication regarding how much money was taken from either the cash register or the safe.

Sheriff's deputies reportedly followed a suspicious vehicle into the nearby Rosehill Apartments in Sanford, when they said the driver matched one of the descriptions. The driver, however, ran from the vehicle after it was stopped and he was not apprehended.

McDonough said both suspects

Sanford Rotary Club taps mayor for highest honor to non-member

SANFORD — Sanford Mayor Bettye D. Smith was honored by the Sanford Rotary Club at noon Monday. The mayor was presented with the coveted George Touhy Four-Way Test Award for 1996, the highest honor bestowed by the club for a non-member.

In part, the presentation made during the Rotary luncheon, stated the following:

"Since becoming mayor in 1984, Bettye D. Smith has steered the City of Sanford on a course of enlightenment and progress. Her concept to change Sanford's image from a backwoods hamlet into a modern, forward-planning city continues to come true.

She presided over a city-wide beautification program that brought beautiful landscaped plantings along the city's main streets. She supported annual cleanup days and was seen to be hard at work collecting trash and debris.

She raised the city's expectations while tackling extremely difficult issues head on.

One of the most difficult issues that was solved under her reign was the city's wastewater disposal program.

Prior to becoming mayor and being ushered into office with a new City Commission, Sanford had been fighting the state and federal environmental agencies to continue dumping wastewater into Lake Monroe.

After many difficult twists and turns, Sanford implemented a reclaimed water system that allowed the city to continue to grow and prosper.

In a related matter, the city, through progressive leadership, mended fences with Seminole County through an innovative joint planning agreement that includes separate urban service agreements for

Students debate affirmative action

By PERRY PEAS
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas — Rodney Ellis, a black state senator and University of Texas law school graduate, says he's dismayed by a U.S. Supreme Court decision to leave intact a ban of race-based admissions at his alma mater.

"The Supreme Court has turned its back on thousands of minorities in Texas who are struggling to succeed in higher education and achieve the American dream," Ellis said.

Others, like David Rogers, disagreed. Rogers, who contends he couldn't pursue legal studies at the University of Texas because he's white, said he can't wait to re-apply to the law school.

"I love the law. I think intellectually and morally, it's a very interesting thing to do," said Rogers, who filed the lawsuit with three other whites who were denied admission.

In an action Monday that could affect hundreds of thousands of students applying to state-run schools in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, the high court let stand a lower court decision that the admissions policy discriminated against whites. The policy was meant to boost enrollment of blacks and Mexican-Americans.

The Supreme Court denied review on a ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans; two of the justices said the Texas case was not a proper vehicle to decide larger issues. The 5th Circuit ruling is binding law for Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and could also influence other courts nationwide.

Theodore Shaw of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund said the opinion "makes clear that the court is not endorsing the appeals court's radical view and that affirmative action, while still under siege, is alive."

Lino Graglia, a constitutional law professor at the University of Texas, said the decision "would seem to make it very dangerous for any school anywhere in the country to openly use race in admissions. Any school who does that is certainly in danger of being sued."

Since the 1996 class already has been admitted, University of Texas President Robert Berdahl said he expects that school will stop using race in admissions beginning with the 1997 class.

"We will try to achieve diversity, however, through more strenuous recruiting efforts and really trying to make certain this is a community that is open to and supportive of minority students," said Berdahl. Texas A&M also is looking at other methods of achieving diversity, said Leo Sayavedra, deputy chancellor for Texas A&M.

Mississippi Higher Education Commissioner Tom Layzell said officials there hadn't yet determined the decision's impact on the state's few remaining minority scholarship programs.

Louisiana's position also was not yet clear.

"On the face of it, it appears that today's court ruling could have serious implications for affirmative action programs in higher education," Louisiana State University Chancellor William Davis said.

More than 63 percent of the 400,563 students enrolled in Texas' 35 public universities in fall 1995 were white, figures from the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board show.

With a race-neutral policy, Rogers said he believes he'll have a good shot at law school admission.

"I'm not asking for set-asides for white people here," he said. "I'm asking that the university ... treat people equally without regard to the color of their skin."

FBI tapped colleges for info on Oswald attorney, records show

By MELISSA B. ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — College and university officials were tapped by the FBI in the early 1960s for information on Mark Lane, a lawyer retained by Lee Harvey Oswald's mother to clear her son's name, according to records released today.

The records are among a batch of 141 FBI documents and 33 CIA documents released by the Assassination Records Review Board, which is compiling a public record of President Kennedy's assassination. Some of the information has previously been released.

The FBI documents offer a glimpse of the bureau's extensive efforts to track Lane's public appearances in 1964, during the Warren Commission's investigation of the Nov. 23, 1963, assassination.

The bureau, which served as the commission's investigatory arm, relied on its own agents and a far-flung network of contacts to report back on speeches, lectures and debates involving Lane, a critic of the commission who had represented Marguerite Oswald, records showed.

It was unclear from the records whether the FBI was acting on its own or at the commission's behest.

Lane, who made numerous appearances on television, radio and college campuses, wanted to represent the deceased Oswald at the commission's hearings but was turned down. He laid out a case for Oswald's defense in his 1966 book, "Push to Judgment."

Lane did not immediately return a message left at his law office in Washington, D.C., Monday. His home telephone number is unpublished.

Jennifer Spencer, an FBI spokeswoman, said the bureau had no comment.

In some cases, such as an Oct. 9, 1964, debate between Lane and attorney Melvin Belli in San Francisco, the FBI dispatched its own agents to attend the event and report back, records showed. About 1,500 people attended the debate, which was billed "Is Oswald the Lone Assassin of the President?"

"He (Lane) stated that the Warren Commission believed only what it wanted to believe," the bureau's San Francisco office reported to then FBI director J. Edgar Hoover. The commission concluded that Oswald acted alone to assassinate Kennedy.

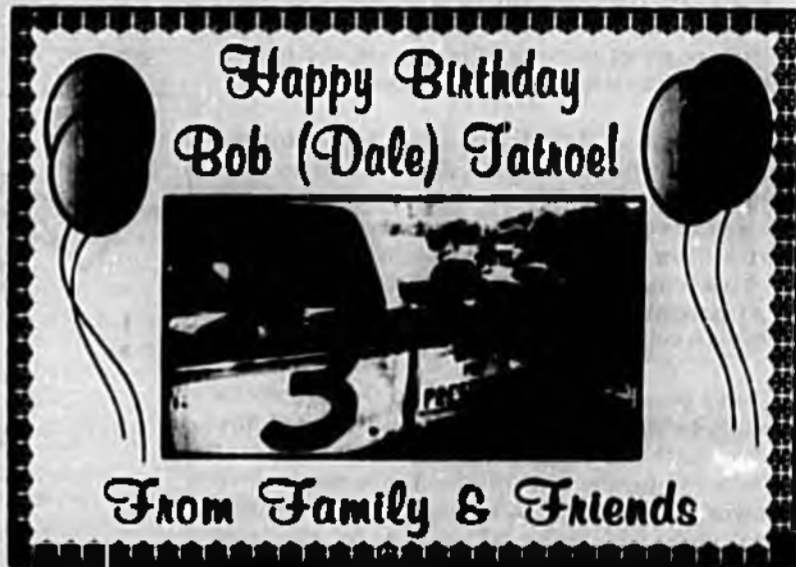

But the FBI was also concerned with obscure gatherings, records showed.

In one report to Hoover, dated

Feb. 5, 1964, a bureau agent gave a detailed account of a meeting of 13 people in Milwaukee, Wis., organized by a group known as Citizens for Peace and Disarmament. The discussion included future plans for an area appearance by Lane. Directory assistance had no listing for the group in the Milwaukee area.

In other cases, the FBI relied on college and university officials, including such high-ranking administrators as Robert E. Hill, who was then assistant dean of Brown University in Providence, R.I., records showed. Lane spoke at Brown on May 4, 1964.

In an interview with an FBI agent, "Dean Hill advised that his information was obtained from conversations with various members of the freshman class.

Despite mortgage rates, new home sales jump to 10-year high

By JOHN B. McGLANE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Despite the highest mortgage rates in a year, sales of new homes surged 7.5 percent in May to the highest level in 10 years.

But the activity was concentrated in the Midwest and South, where sales posted double-digit gains. They fell slightly in the Northeast and West.

The Commerce Department said today sales of single-family homes totaled 828,000 at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, the largest since 857,000 in April 1986. The advance was the steepest since an 8.8 percent jump last January.

Sales also topped the 700,000 mark for a fifth straight month for the first time since the period between November 1986 and April 1987.

Analysts, noting sharply higher mortgage rates, had expected sales to fall about 3.5 percent.

The report came as Federal Reserve policy-makers considered whether to raise interest rates to slow the economy and prevent any burst of inflation.

Sales in April totaled a revised 770,000 rate, down slightly from the original 778,000 estimate. Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 8.09 percent in May, up from 7.93 percent in April and 7.03 percent in January. It was the highest since rates averaged 8.32 percent in April 1986.

Analysts have attributed much of the buying momentum to consumers rushing to lock in on rates before they rose even higher.

But they also warned that at some point, the higher rates would curb sales. For every 1 percentage point increase in rates, 250,000 to 300,000 families are priced out of the market.

For instance, the monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7 percent interest rate is $666. Payment on the same loan with a 8 percent rate is $734 — a difference of $68.

For the first five months of the year, sales were 25.1 percent above those of the same period in 1986.

The seasonally adjusted estimate of new houses for sale at the end of May was 360,000, representing a supply of 5.2 months at the current sales rate. It was the smallest since a 5.1-month supply last February when the sales rate jumped 5.5 percent to 784,000.

The median price of a new home was $135,000 in May, down from $139,900 in April.

Fireworks

It's a done deal. Thanks to a great many private individuals, several prominent companies, the City of Sanford and Seminole County, there WILL be Independence Day fireworks in Sanford this year.

It was a close call. With time running out swiftly before the initial cash outlay had to be made, Rod Laver's figures showed less than half the amount needed had been obtained.

Then, at the last minute, Sunniland Corporation and Seminole County came through with enough money to fully pay for the event, with some even left over toward next year.

Now, mom and dad, grandma and grandpa, and all the young'uns can gather around Fort Mellon Park this Wednesday evening to see the big fireworks display. It's supposed to be better than last year, and that is saying a lot because many people last year expressed their pleasure at such an outstanding display of aerial colors and lights.

Don't expect it to be equal to the fireworks displays conducted at the multi-million dollar theme parks around Orlando. Don't expect it to last for hours and hours. It's a hometown fireworks display, and intended for people who want to enjoy fireworks in the old-fashioned way, sitting on a blanket on the ground, or standing shoulder to shoulder in the park.

There will be people coming around prior to the fireworks asking for donations. They are members of the "Bucket Brigade" and will be properly identified. Caution, don't donate to anyone else. Let's not make this a scam operation for everyone who wants to get a few extra bucks for drug or booze money.

The people of Sanford and the surrounding areas owe a great round of applause to the efforts of Rod Laver in undertaking this fund-raising drive. He is indeed helping to promote Sanford, and bring it ever further into the limelight of Central Florida.

Hearty thanks must also go to the county, city, and everyone who donated money to help bring this drive to fruition.

Rather than on the Fourth of July, Sanford's fireworks will be on Wednesday the third, beginning at approximately 9:20 p.m. Be at Fort Mellon Park, join in the event. And have a fantastic Fourth.

Multicultural myths about Jews

In June, on CNN, Minister Farrakhan, no longer smiling, lashed out at Jews, adding that he had no reason to apologize to them for what they are. Long before Farrakhan was named by Time magazine, also in June, as one of the 25 most influential Americans, I asked a friend, Bayard Rustin — a strategist for Martin Luther King — why there was such bitter anti-Semitism among some blacks.

"It's not theological," Bayard said. "You're not being accused of killing Christ."

He was concerned, but had no further answer. Recently, I read an analysis by Clarence Page — a continually illuminating syndicated black columnist — in the Forward, a lively New York Jewish weekly. Page cited James Baldwin, who wrote that "Blacks are anti-Semitic because they're anti-white." Moreover, says Page, "Baldwin explained that blacks have watched Jews assimilate into mainstream white America quite rapidly compared to black folks, and many of us feel left behind, resentful."

Obviously, nothing in the American experience compares in any way to the holocaust of the Middle Passage and the errors of slavery. But for Jews, there were certain badges of exclusion. As a child in Boston, a cradle of abolitionism,

It was foolish of me to go out alone after dark and become prey to violent, roving bands of Christian youngsters whose most satisfying sport was to break the faces of Jews. One boy on my street got an ice pick in his head and was never the same afterward. I received only a busted nose ("You Jewish, kid?") and a lot of blood on my clothes.

One of my more vivid boyhood memories is that of an old, bony Jew grabbed by his beard and thrown into the gutter by an invading hooligan — like the newsreels from Berlin.

Assimilation of Jews was not as rapid as James Baldwin thought. For a long time, there were areas of work largely closed to Jews — engineering, architecture, insurance companies, mainstream banks and corporate law firms. And there were jobs where Jews had to change their names because their own names were too Jewish. Some public schools and radio stations, for instance.

In a remarkable multi-dimensional April profile of Minister Farrakhan in The New Yorker, Henry Louis Gates tells of Farrakhan's speeches "in which he has talked about a centuries-old conspiracy of international bankers — with names like Rothschild and Warburg — who have captured control over the central banks in many countries and who incite wars to increase the indebtedness of others and maximize their own wealth.... Farrakhan really does believe that a cabal of Jews secretly controls the world."

Gates adds that Farrakhan also believes that "there is a small group of Jews who meet in a Park Avenue apartment or in Hollywood to plan the course of this nation."

Minister Farrakhan has cemented the Nation of Islam's hatred of Jews into deeply traditional white anti-Semitism. He has, at last, found a common ground with many whites.

I think I may have finally come to an understanding of black anti-Semitism.

Mum on chemical weapons

WASHINGTON — The recent announcement by the Pentagon that some U.S. soldiers in the Gulf War may have been exposed to chemical weapons left several observers shaking their heads with disbelief.

In a hastily called June 21 press conference, Pentagon spokesman Ken Bacon claimed that "new" information about the bombing of an Iraqi bunker prompted the sudden announcement. But a senior government official — and others who've been following the issue for years — claim the Pentagon has known about this for almost five years.

"The Pentagon has known about it since October of 1991," the senior official told us. "(The Pentagon) wanted to low-key (the announcement). The big questions are going to be: When did (the Pentagon) find out they had (the evidence), and how long did they have it? How come it wasn't put forward for the last five years?"

The new disclosure opens up many new questions, but it also caps off five years of excuses by the Pentagon that have ranged from dubious to bizarre.

Defense Department officials have steadfastly denied that exposure to chemical agents could be a cause for the mysterious Gulf War syndrome. When veterans first began complaining of unexplained symptoms, the Pentagon tried telling them it was all in their heads by blaming it on post-traumatic stress disorder. When that didn't work, the EOD began speculating on other possible causes including insect bites, bad food supplies, insecticides and oil-fire fumes.

At one point, and without any factual basis except the lessons learned 20 years earlier in Vietnam, officials offered up the "alcohol substitute" theory:

"No inquiry has been made on the extent of substance abuse (e.g. solvent sniffing, etc.) in a population that was abruptly deprived of alcohol," claims a 1994 Pentagon report reviewed by our associate Aaron Karp. "Some troops in the Vietnam War are known to have injured themselves by ingesting RDX, a plastic explosive, and a small number of individuals were bound to have experimented with these and other substances."

As we reported last week, the timing of the Pentagon's announcement has also raised eyebrows. In fact, the Pentagon came clean only after receiving an ultimatum from a special presidential commission investigating the mysterious symptoms.

A commission investigator discovered an October 1991 United Nations report buried in Pentagon files revealing that chemical weapons were probably present at the Kamitayah Ammunition Storage Depot, which was destroyed by air strikes in the days shortly following the cease-fire.

The commission threatened to release the information itself in early July if the Pentagon continued to stay silent. When we called Bacon the day before the announcement, he was still clinging to the official line that there is no evidence of chemical exposure in the Gulf.

Fearing the information would leak out, the Pentagon decided to pre-empt the media late on a Friday afternoon. "Your call was provocative," Bacon later admitted. "We decided with your call we should go ahead and announce it as soon as possible."

A day after Bacon told us this, however, Dr. Stephen Joseph, assistant secretary of Defense for Health Affairs, sang a different tune in testimony before Congress. At a House subcommittee hearing chaired by Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., Joseph strongly denied that possible press leaks had anything to do with the timing of the announcement.

Although Bacon admitted that the Pentagon had a report of the incident as early as 1991, he claimed it was lost in the shuffle. "We had a report, but we have a lot of papers," Bacon said. "... For whatever reason, the report resurfaced. I don't know where the report was from '91 to '95."

Yet some lawmakers who've reviewed the transcript don't believe the Pentagon was motivated by anything more than a desire to save face. "The guy (Bacon) was incoherent because he was faced with having to tell the truth," said Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va. "He was distinctly uncomfortable (at the press conference)... They've known all along. How could they possibly not have known all along?"

Brian Martin, a veteran who served in the battalion that detonated the bunkers, made a videotape of the bombings that he's been showing for years to anyone who was interested. Since the war, Martin has become seriously ill with several ailments, that his doctors trace to chemical exposure in the Gulf.

Martin says there is a good explanation for why the Pentagon claims no evidence exists of chemical exposure. "I knew every order given," Martin told us, "and no chemical detectors were used (during the detonations). They were never used during the ground war or during the cease-fire."

The new disclosure opens up many new questions.

The 'me-first' plea strikes out

It sounds like a teen movie, one of those high-school class-war stories that stars Molly Ringwald or Alicia Silverstone.

And, at first glance, it appears just as silly. At the Bayside High School in Queens, N.Y., two girls have been fighting over who should be the valedictorian. The young adversaries are right out of central casting: The New York Times describes one girl as "shy and quiet, a soprano in chorus," and the other as "the popular senior-class president and captain of the tennis team."

Lisa Camilleri, the soprano, was originally named valedictorian. But in the class' seventh semester, Paige Goodman, the class president, edged out her rival, finishing the term with a cumulative average that was .05 of point higher than Camilleri's.

The school principal told the two girls that Goodman would now be the valedictorian and Camilleri the salutatorian. When Camilleri protested, it was decided that the two students would be co-valedictorians.

But Goodman did not want to share the title. So she took her story to the press and her school to court.

"I'm senior-class president," Goodman explained to the New York Times. "I was junior-class president. Everyone knows me. I feel like I've been slapped in the face after I've done so much for this school."

After a tangle of hearings and appeals, Goodman lost her bid, and the two girls both delivered valedictory speeches at their graduation on June 25.

When I first read this story, I thought it was a great example of the self-importance and naivete of youth. Anyone who thinks that her high-school rank and grade-point average will have any meaning past graduation day is in for a big surprise. It wasn't even a college-admissions issue, as both girls had already gained acceptance at Ivy League schools, Camilleri to Barnard and Goodman to Cornell, where she says she plans to study international business.

But then I thought about the qualities illustrated here — fierce competitiveness, shameless self-promotion, and a complete lack of generosity.

Far from being naive, at least one teenager seems to have quite a grip on how the business world works.

Oh, I know. It doesn't have to be that way. One can succeed without stepping on other people, without usurping credit and twisting facts to suit selfish interests. It's possible to be kind and generous and also please the shareholders. But it's not easy.

And it should come as no surprise that young people have picked up on this. The message that it's commendable to look out for No. 1 is continually reinforced in our culture. Just a few weeks before the valedictorian controversy erupted, Goodman was named "Scholar-Athlete of the Week" in the Queens edition of Newsday. There she was praised for her academic and athletic prowess, and for her never-say-die dedication to winning. "When I don't like something," said Goodman in that story, "I'll make a fuss and fight extremely hard to get what I want for the benefit of the school."

Or, it appears, for the benefit of herself. Goodman slipped up this time. Her blatant me-first attitude has gained her widespread disapproval. But she's got plenty of time to polish her act. And when she does, she'll be a knockout.

I feel like I've been slapped in the face after I've done so much for this school.

money to the fireworks fund during last Tuesday's County Commission meeting. "The commissioners apparently thought it was an excellent idea," Rabun said, "and they voted unanimously on it." Rabun said there was no such item listed in the current agenda, but the commissioners instructed the county staff to obtain the money from other areas including the contingency reserves. Added to the $3,000 donation by the Sunnland Corporation Thursday, and the previous private donations, Layer said the total is comfortably over the $15,000 which had been determined to be the cost of the fireworks display. An additional donation from the City of Sanford, included assistance in supplying police officers, utility assistance and other requirements was said to be valued at approximately $3,500. Layer said that any amount obtained over that needed for this year's fireworks would be carried over as the start for next year. In addition, members of the Seminole County Sheriff's Youth Deputies have offered to be on hand during the fireworks display to act as the "Bucket Brigade" in collecting donations from persons attending the fireworks. Layer plans to be in a blue van near the Civic Center, at Seminole Blvd. and N. French Avenue, beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday, for any persons wishing to aid the bucket brigade. "We always need additional volunteers," he said. Money obtained by the bucket brigade and money obtained through the additional donations will be carried over to help finance the 1997 fireworks. Last year, the carryover amounted to approximately $1,600.

Auto safety groups want GM pickup truck deal scuttled

By CATHERINE O'BRIEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — General Motors Corp. has not kept its word on a deal to spend $51 million over five years on auto safety and research programs, two auto-safety groups claim. However, officials at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which oversees the agreement, said Monday they were pleased with the progress, despite GM officials' admissions that spending is behind schedule.

The auto-safety groups, Public Citizen and the Center for Auto Safety, want Attorney General Janet Reno to scuttle the deal with GM and renew the government's investigation of alleged defects in GM's C-K model pickup trucks. The groups say GM is behind on spending money on safety programs. GM agreed to the safety-program plan in 1994 in exchange for the government dropping its investigation and a proposed recall of the C-K model trucks built between 1973 and 1987. The agreement covers giving child-safety seats to low-income families, public safety education and fire safety research, among other projects. Critics claimed the truck's gas tanks were susceptible to fire in side-impact crashes because the tanks are mounted outside the protection of the frame. GM officials said they had hoped to commit or spend $14 million in the first year of the five-year agreement but instead had spent $10.5 million. Both NHTSA and GM officials acknowledged the agreement was taking longer to implement than they had originally planned, but attributed that to the logistics of such a large coordinated research and safety effort. "Judged by any measure, the agreement has been a major success and is working as envisioned," NHTSA deputy administrator Philip Recht said in a statement. "The GM-NHTSA settlement funds are being spent carefully on scientific safety research initiatives and on saving lives," said GM spokesman Ed Lechtzin. Between 4 million and 5 million of the trucks are still on the road. NHTSA officials say their accident data base shows 38 people have died since the settlement due to fire from crashes involving the C-K pickups — but that none were from side-impact crashes, which was the focus of the government investigation. As part of the agreement, Transportation Secretary Federico Pena withdrew his October 1994 statement that the trucks were an unreasonable risk. Pena argued that more lives could be saved if the company spent money on auto safety.

Commission and Historic Preservation Board. The last time Howell ran for election, he said there was a great deal of work still unfinished. He said he wanted to see the Seminole Towne Center mall come into reality, a reduction in crime, improved development in downtown Sanford and an increase in tax dollars coming into the city. Howell won the election by receiving 58.6 percent of the votes cast. "Most of that has been accomplished," Howell said this morning. "The mall is in full swing, we have historic district codes set in place, the airport is running smoothly, and there have been many other improvements to the city." Although he said he won't be campaigning to stay on the commission, Howell said he fully intends to keep in touch with what is going on in the city government area. "Even if I'm not on the commission," he said, "it's still my city, and I intend to watch over it as best I can." With Howell pulling out of the race, three candidates are presently campaigning for the District 1 commission seat: Ricky Shearer, Walt Padgett and Alfred DeLattibaudiere. Howell said for the time being, he will not endorse any of the other candidates. The election will not be held until December 3, with a runoff, if needed, scheduled on December 17.

potable water, wastewater, police and fire protection." The Rotary's Four-Way test is part of the Rotary creed, which asks each Rotarian, "Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will and better friendships? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?" Rotarian Jay Marder explained that the honor was named for the late George Touhy who represented the best in civic giving. Touhy had been a member of the club for over four decades. "George was devoted to the Sanford Rotary Club and was always one of the club's greatest assets," Marder said. "He is still referred to as 'Mr. Rotary.' As such, the Sanford Rotary Club has named the club's highest honor for a non-Rotarian after George."

In addition to explaining Mayor Smith's past, a list of her accomplishments and many "firsts" were also told to Rotarians at the meeting. The proclamation concluded, "The most important attribute of Bettye D. Smith in both her public and private life is her forthright manner and honesty in her dealings with others. She is always fair to all concerned. She constantly strives to build good will and better friendships, and she has never lost sight of the fourth principle of Rotary's Four-Way Test."

The airport is the nation's second busiest for international arrivals, topped only by New York's John F. Kennedy Airport. The court was modeled after a court set up last year at the border between San Ysidro, Calif., and Tijuana, Mexico, which curbed the number of illegal Mexicans entering the United States, Bergeron said.

AROUND THE NATION

Torch on 'Lap Around Florida'

COTTONDALE — The Olympic Torch began its "Lap around Florida" Monday, en route to the games in Atlanta.

A bicyclist from Alabama carrying the torch across the state line near the Panhandle hamlet of Campbellton rode into Cottondale, where the first Florida torch bearer, 13-year-old Alexis Gandy of Pensacola, picked up the relay.

The flame traveled to Panama City Beach for a celebration of fireworks and the dedicating of "Olympic Passage," a metal sculpture of a torch and flame that will be permanently displayed.

Nearly 1,000 Floridians will carry the torch during its nine days in the state.

After spending the night at Panama City Beach, the torch was to press on Tuesday toward Tallahassee and then Gainesville.

The relay will go down the West Coast through St. Petersburg and Sarasota, cross the Peninsula to Miami and then up the East Coast, including a jog through Orlando, before crossing into Georgia north of Jacksonville on July 9.

More Miami arrests

CORAL GABLES — Two University of Miami linebackers were arrested Monday for taking part in the assault of a track star.

James Burgess and Jeffrey Taylor surrendered to police and were ordered by a judge to wear electronic bracelets until the trial so authorities can monitor their movements.

The two men were arrested on one count of burglary with battery.

Burgess and Taylor teamed up with receiver Jammi German for the June 19 attack on track team captain Maxwell Voce.

Coach Butch Davis suspended German for the 1996 season, while Taylor and Burgess were suspended indefinitely.

The football program has been plagued by off-the-field troubles this month. Five players have already been suspended, and two players — Derrick Ham and Rick Perry — face criminal charges of beating up their girlfriends.

Astros 6, Marlins 2

HOUSTON — Mike Hampton (6-4) pitched a five-hitter, and the Houston Astros got their third straight complete game in a 6-2 victory over the Florida Marlins.

The Astros, who have won seven of nine, managed five hits and three runs — one earned — off NL ERA leader Kevin Brown (7-6) in seven innings. The right-hander struck out seven and walked one and lowered his ERA to 1.85.

The Astros went ahead 2-0 in the third on an error, a groundout, an RBI single by Hampton, a single by Biggio, a walk to Jeff Bagwell and Derek Bell's RBI infield single.

The Marlins tied it 2-2 on Gary Sheffield's two-run homer in the fourth. Sheffield's 24th homer also scored Greg Colbrunn, who walked.

John Cangelosi tripled down the right-field line with one out in the fifth and scored on Craig Biggio's sacrifice fly to give Houston a 3-2 lead.

Sean Berry's three-run homer off reliever Terry Mathews in the eighth, after two consecutive strike outs with runners on first and second, accounted for Houston's final runs.

Sunniland's patience helps D&D widen lead

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — M.T. Muggs pulled off a major win in the opening game of the evening Monday night then saw his pitching falter in the nightcap and D & D took advantage to clinch at least a tie for the championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Spring Co-Ed Slowpitch Softball League at Pinehurst Park.

Five consecutive two out walks had allowed M.T. Muggs to score two runs in the top of the seventh inning and upset D & D 4-3 and close to within a game of the league leaders.

D & D then bounced back with a 17-6 victory over Sunniland Corporation in the second game.

But M.T. Muggs lost its opportunity to stay close to the league lead as Sunniland took advantage of 18 walks in the second inning, and 28 for the game, to score 16 runs and then for good measure used six more walks in the sixth inning to plate seven runs in a 29-16 triumph.

Denny Miller opened the Sunniland second with a triple and the next seven Sunniland batters walked before a fly out. After that out, the next 11 batters walked.

Volunteer of the Week

She's been Girlscouting 40 years

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

Girlscouting has been important to Elaine Kostival since childhood. When she recently earned her 40-year pin, in part for her 12 years as a "girl member" herself, she was honored for the other 28 years of volunteer service to the organization and the lives of the children whose lives she has touched.

Her initial involvement stemmed from interest in the group from her granddaughter. With years of fond memories to reinforce the desire Kostival launched back into her love of the Juliet Lowe girls and began as a Brownie leader with her granddaughter by her side.

Over the years as she watched her tiny relative grow and be promoted from brownie, to junior and then cadet and senior, Kostival was also following the progress with love and attention for her and the other girls active in weekly meetings, camping trips, various outings, cookie and calendar sales.

"My granddaughter is now a senior scout," said Kostival. "I feel proud and a little teary-eyed when she moved to a senior. It was wonderful watching her grow and working with all the girls over the years."

In fact, children is what Kostival loves the most. She can't seem to get enough of them even to gaining employment surrounding herself with the moldable charmers.

As an employee with the Elaine Kostival receives her 40-year Girl Scout pin from Minnie Mouse.

Seminole County School System for over 25 years, she works as a bus driver and has been a member of the Bus Drivers Association for the same amount of time.

Kostival admitted that her dual roles as bus driver and scout leader fills her days with activity. The flurry of business does add frustration at times but as a whole, children can give hours of joy and happiness to those spending time with them.

For those interested in scouting, Kostival recommends numerous training sessions.

"There is an introduction to scouting class that lasts about one hour," she said. "For beginners, Daisys is a good place to start. There are three other classes such as leadership training, basic troop camping and first aid and CPR."

Areas from Savannah, Georgia, the birthplace of Juliet Lowe, founder of girl scouting, the Mystery Theatre, bike trips, camping trips and overnights at the church, were only a few of the memories Kostival has of the years in scouting. "I hope I've helped some of the girls," she said. "I've just enjoyed camping and doing things with the girls so much."

Kostival has been a resident of Sanford for 35 years. She has two children, Debra and Rickie and eight grandchildren.

Formerly a member for many years at Grace Methodist Church in Sanford, she has now attended First United Methodist Church in Sanford for three years.

Cross-pollination necessary for summer squash to fruit

Summer squash is a very popular garden vegetable grown in Florida. It is easy to grow and it will produce abundant fruits in a relatively short time. As a general rule, the summer types usually grow on a bush while winter types grow on vines. Planting time for summer squash in Central Florida is during the months of February and March or August and September and for winter squash, February and March. Because we receive many calls concerning some problems on cucurbits, let me present the problems and their solutions for your information.

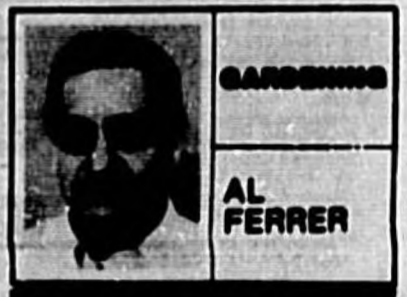

Poor pollination: In squash and related plants such as cucumber, melon, and watermelon, the male and female flowers are separated. For pollination to occur, the pollen from the male flowers have to reach the ovary of the female flower; the process is normally carried out by insects, mostly bees. If the bee population is low or inactive because of environmental factors such as heavy rains, hot or cold temperatures, the fertilization process will not occur or will be insufficient for normal development of the fruits. In squash, flowers either fail to develop or they may fall off, the immature fruit fails to enlarge, and will turn brown and shrivel starting from the blossom end. To control this problem, it is necessary to make sure that there will be enough bees visiting the squash flowers by planting flowers that attract bees around the garden and by using pesticides that are not poisonous to bees. Manual pollination may be necessary if normal pollination does not occur.

Powdery mildew: The symptoms of this disease appear as a white dust on the leaves with the appearance of talcum powder. This talc-like powder is made out of the fungus body and the spores it produces. Infected leaves become yellow, and later turn brown. The disease is favored by heavy plant growth, moderate temperatures, dew and low light. In Florida, it can become severe during the winter and spring. The disease can be controlled with preventive fungicide applications.

Downy mildew: The symptoms of the disease first appear on the leaves as small yellow areas which will later turn brown to black in color. A downy whitish fungal growth can be seen on the underside of the lesions. As effective leaf area is reduced by the disease, yields and quality are reduced. The plants could be killed completely by the disease if control meaures are not taken before or immediately after the disease appears. Weekly fungicide applications are necessary to control this disease in the field.

Nematodes: All cucurbits are very susceptible to rootknot nematode damage. Above ground symptoms of nematode infection include stunted plants, leaf chlorosis, and wilting. Roots will have abnormal growths or galls. To control this problem, avoid planting squash in areas where this problem is known to occur. There is no chemical that can be used to control this problem.

Dinner guest switch seems proper

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were recently invited to a wedding, and we promptly returned our RSVP indicating we would be attending the wedding and dinner.

At the last minute, my husband found out he would not be able to make it to the dinner. Since I did not feel comfortable going alone, and knowing that two meals had been paid for, I brought my 24-year-old daughter in his place. Our friends who were hosting the reception were most gracious about it. My daughter left shortly after the meal when my husband arrived.

Was this proper etiquette? I'm sure other families have found themselves in similar situations. C.L., MINNEAPOLIS would have done as much for me. Now she's no longer speaking to me. Was I obligated to buy the book, even though I didn't want it? What are your thoughts on this, Abby? POETIC JUSTICE, PLEASE

DEAR POETIC JUSTICE: Sarah was taking advantage of all of you. You were under no obligation to purchase the book, and neither were your co-workers. Many employees have policies against interoffice soliciting to protect employees from such awkward situations.

DEAR C.L.: Your question was not addressed in any of the etiquette books I consulted; however, I do not think you committed a breach of etiquette. Because your RSVP indicated that two individuals would attend the dinner and your daughter is an adult, your hosts did not have to make any adjustments in order to accommodate her. A further courtesy would have been to telephone the hosts (if they were reachable) and let them know your change in plans.

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago at work, while on our coffee break, "Sarah" mentioned to me and three other women that her nephew had published a book of poems in some kind of fancy script writing. The nephew was asking $15 for the book. Sarah said she knew we could all afford it. I told her I just wasn't interested in poetry and knew it would end up cluttering my home.

Later, Sarah came by my desk and loudly informed me that when I didn't purchase the book, the other three women also turned it down. She said that because we were such

Spotting symptoms of prostate cancer

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: About a year ago you ran a column on the symptoms of prostate cancer. Since I had similar symptoms, I saw my doctor and found I had an elevated PSA reading. There was a hard spot on one side of my prostate that ultimately revealed cancer cells. I had the gland removed, the cancer had not yet reached the lymph glands, and there is no evidence of a need for future treatment. I really owe my thanks to you for this column. I'm truly fortunate I took the time to read what you had to say.

DEAR READER: As your generous compliments attest, prostate cancer is a serious concern for men in their late middle age and beyond. In the past, physicians suspected such a disorder if they felt an irregular, overly firm or nodular prostate gland on rectal examination. Now the diagnosis has been refined by a series of tests.

The Prostate Specific Antigen blood test is usually elevated in the presence of prostate cancer. Thus, it may confirm the doctor's suspicion. If the PSA is high, urologists ordinarily proceed to an ultrasound test with biopsy. If this next level of testing is abnormal, the physician and the patient have a tough decision to make: drug therapy or surgery, each of which has its own advantages and disadvantages.

You evidently were extremely fortunate that, at the time of diagnosis, your prostate cancer had not spread to the lymph glands, an ominous complication.

Men over 50 should have rectal examinations as a part of any routine evaluation. Men with symptoms of prostate disease — for example, difficulty with (or frequency of) urination — should be examined by urologists.

There is ongoing disagreement in the medical community about whether the PSA test should be performed routinely on all men over 50, whether or not they have symptoms of a prostate disorder, because the test is not 100 percent predictive. I take a moderate approach by ordering the test, on a case-by-case basis, every one to five years on older men.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've used expensive creams for years to fade brown spots from the backs of my hands. Then I read about a new cream with fruit acids and considered trying lemon. Well, by golly, it works. I apply a slice from a fresh lemon daily to the spots, leave it on and don't rinse, use the rest in lemonade and find that even my false teeth are whiter. Why is it that we're too soon old and too late smart, as my grandma would say?

DEAR READER: Your grandmother was, indeed, wise. Lemon juice contains a mild bleaching compound. Congratulations on finding a cheap and easy method for treating brown "age spots." I should add that this technique doesn't work for everyone, however.

Standard therapy includes products, such as Renova cream, that are available by prescription.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Eighteen months ago I had prostate surgery. I was subsequently given antibiotics that caused a yeast infection in my mouth. Expensive — $10 a pill — medication and many other approaches have been tried, to no avail. Yogurt, buttermilk and lysine tablets haven't worked. Do you have any advice to rid me of the infection?

DEAR READER: Yeast infections in the mouth often occur as a result of antibiotic therapy. The mouth (and vagina, too) is populated by yeasts and bacteria that exist in a delicate, competitive balance.

When antibiotics disrupt this balance (by destroying large numbers of bacteria), the yeasts are free to multiply, and may cause severe irritation that is difficult to cure.

In my practice, I have successfully treated such yeast infections with a prescription product called Nystatin Swish-and-Swallow, a liquid anti-yeast compound that is used as a mouthwash and then swallowed. Ask your doctor about this.

The magic of bridge

By Phillip Alder

Do you feel bridge is an art or a science? I believe it's a beautiful blend of both. Also, how do you think the debate is colored if we agree with the French physiologist Claude Bernard, who claimed "Art is Science and Science is Art"? Does this mean that declarer-play is an art but defense a science? Discuss! I think today's deal is delightful because it shows that at times tricks seem to come from nowhere. What is your estimate of the result in two spades doubled by South?

The bidding wasn't an art or a science. Many players I know would have responded one spade with that East hand, but with only four points he made a disciplined pass. Now South might have balanced with one no-trump, which shows about 11-14 points. Instead, he overcalled one spade. West might have doubled or bid two diamonds, but strangely passed. North should have passed, but made what he called a tactical raise to two spades. When this returned to West, he inconsistently doubled. If he wasn't strong enough to act over one spade, how could he make a call over two spades? Nevertheless, East was happy to pass.

Declarer appears to have seven losers: four spades and three hearts. But here's what happened: South won the first trick with dummy's diamond ace, ruffed a diamond in hand, played a club to dummy's queen and ruffed another diamond in hand. Now came the spade ace, the club ace-king and a club ruff in the dummy. That was the first eight tricks in, so South contentedly conceded the rest.
