Final touches are being put on the Senior Citizens' Multipurpose Center at Secret Lake Park in Casselberry. Costing about $317,000, the structure will open the latter part of August with activities and services for Seminole County seniors. Ac-

ording to the city's figures, the county has 18,500 citizens 60 or older. Leona Cadenhead, the city's grants coordinator, said the building will comfortably hold about 300 people at full capacity.

Casselberry Moves Up Date To Open Seniors' Complex

Doors to the Senior Citizens' Multipurpose Center will open to Seminole County seniors in August rather than the first of September, a Casselberry official said today.

"We plan for the center to officially open in late August, although senior clubs and organizations won't be able to start scheduling activities until the first of September," said Leona Cadenhead, grants coordinator for the project.

Finishing touches are now being put on the Secret Lake Park structure where social and recreational activities will be planned daily for the county's over-60 population.

According to Cadenhead, there are more than 18,500 senior citizens in the county.

Inspectors from the State of Florida Building Division are expected at the center during the beginning of August to make sure the center is "handicapped accessible," as required by a 1973 federal law.

This Rehabilitation Act, explained Cadenhead, requires that wheel chairs, ramps, handrails, toilets, and other devices be installed for the handicapped.

The law further requires that the structure open its doors for occupancy 30 days after the building passes inspection.

When construction is completed, said Cadenhead, the building will be handicapped-accessible, but most of the wheelchair ramps had not been put in by Friday.

A Saturday afternoon open house will be scheduled immediately after state approval. The total cost of the structure is $317,000.

Additional plans are in the making to build a small pavilion on the lake which will also officially open during ceremonies for the center.

The screened-in structure will comfortably accommodate 20 persons for small private luncheons and informal parties, although its capacity is 300. Although senior organizations and clubs will have scheduling priorities, other groups will be able to rent the pavilion at a minimal fee.

In addition to exercise and craft activities, the multipurpose center will house a daily congregate meals program which will serve hot lunches to 80 seniors; provide legal and employment counseling services; and engage in mental health group counseling.

Vans will transport seniors to and from the center, she said.

A stove and dishwasher were donated to the center and have already been installed. Officials are presently seeking additional donations of kitchen supplies and utensils for the seniors' meal program.

'People Were Sick To Death...'

New, Tough Juvenile Law Inevitable, Say Judges

By BRITT SMITH
 Herald Staff Writer

It may have been a bit of an overreaction, Seminole judges say, but a get-tough revision of the state's juvenile justice code which went into effect last week was inevitable.

Everyone was fed up with kiddie criminals. The problem seemed to be epidemic—a little thief or killer gets caught, slapped on the wrist and told not to do it again. The very next day, he or she is back on the street thumbing a nose at the law as if nothing had happened.

"People were sick to death of the juvenile crime situation," said Seminole County Juvenile Judge Vernon Mize Jr. "People were scared. They felt there was too much leniency and downright coddling of the juvenile defendants. Under pressure, the legislature responded."

What lawmakers came up with in the closing days of the 1981 legislative session was a measure which will make it easier to lock up youngsters accused of major crimes or repeated minor offenses.

The new law will let judges and prosecutors rather than counselors from the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) decide whether a suspected mugger, thief, or gunman is to be jailed without bail pending trial.

Many expect that to mean that more and more kids will wind up behind bars. That, in turn, means "we're going to need some place to put them," according to Seminole's Family Court Judge Dominick Salfi. "It could take two years to build the needed facilities. But what are we going to do with them until then?"

It has been projected that jailing more young criminals will cost the taxpayers $10 million, but Salfi figures the price tag to "run more like $25 million."

In addition to making it easier to jail young offenders, the law also provides for the prosecution as adults of 15-year-olds charged with a felony or two misdemeanors. Also, the names and addresses of offenders over 15 could be published if their crimes would be a felony if committed by an adult. Current juvenile law protects the identity of the accused.

"Public embarrassment is a good deterrent to crime," Mize said. "At the very least, it's an additional way of punishing. I'm glad we've finally broken through this fictitious veil protecting young offenders."

Salfi said the new juvenile legislation was prompted in large part by complaints from police officers and others that juveniles arrested for serious crimes are often back out on the streets even before the paperwork is completed.

"It was a bit of an overreaction to the juvenile code which stated very specifically when a child could be held," Salfi said. "Unfortunately, a kid could assault a cop, steal a car, or be using hard drugs and the court could not have him detained because those crimes were not included in the detention criteria. We judges had no choice. It was very frustrating, especially if that kid went out and committed another crime or look off."

That loophole in the law "came about because detention facilities were overcrowded and a way was needed to decrease the load," he said. It worked... too well. "We were letting some bad kids walk who should have been held."

"Now we've gone the other way and

12 British Cities Engulfed In Rioting

LONDON (UPI) — Urban riots engulfed a dozen British cities and thousands of youths rampaged through London early today smashing windows, looting stores and hurling firebombs and bricks at police in the eighth and most violent night of riots in Britain.

The veneer of civilization is very thin," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said as her government threatened to call out the army to crush the riots in major cities including Liverpool, Sheffield, Birmingham, Nottingham and Newcastle upon Tyne.

Mrs. Thatcher called the riots "terrorism, criminal looting and thuggery."

Mobs of youths rampaged through more than a dozen London districts, smashing store windows and scooping up jewelry, liquor and clothing before torching the stores with gasoline bombs in what police called "mindless vandalism."

In the Stoke-Newtoning area of London, youths hurled gasoline bombs at police and stoned a local police station.

Helmeted riot police battled the rioters with dogs and tear gas and arrested 337 people in London before the violence subsided in the early hours, Scotland Yard said today. The police said 43 officers were injured, including one who underwent emergency surgery with a fractured skull.

There was a lot of looting tonight everywhere," a police spokesman said. The riots began Friday in the black suburb Brixton and quickly spread to Southall, Woolwich, Fulham, Stoke-Newtoning, Deptford, Balham and Nottinghams.

Smashing windows and mob violence also were reported in the London districts of Harlesden, Batterssea, Clapham, Streatham, Chiswick and Acton.

Window-smashing groves and mob brahms with police also were reported in the cities of Liverpool, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Nottingham, Preston, Hull, Ellamere, Newcastle upon Tyne, Smeethwick and St. Helens. Nearly 100 were arrested and 14 policemen were

The Saddest Of The Sad

ELGIN, Texas (UPI) — A pregnant woman whose husband won't take her out and another woman whose son left her to live with his father are the winners of the National Sad Day competition.

The competition, a spoof run by Elgin radio station KELG, solicited letters from people who thought they had the saddest lives anyone could live. The winners will be treated to a Saturday night out in nearby Austin, compliments of the station.

"The reason I am sad is because for some reason my husband thinks just because I'm pregnant that I shouldn't go anywhere," Mrs. Howard's letter read. "I'm lucky if I can get him to take me out to eat on a Saturday night."

Mrs. Davenport said she had a son who, when he was 10 and she decided to remarry, went to live with his father.

"Finally last September (at age 14), he called and asked if he could come back to live with us. I was so happy... but he only stayed nine months and now he's gone back to his father because he missed him so much."

Survey On Property Taxes Generates Varied Comments

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

"People on fixed incomes have to tighten their belts to make do with what they have..."

"The library system is a frill we can do without..."

"I am opposed to the county spending money on public transportation..."

"I have to be in favor of the increase in judges because their work load is so heavy..."

"I do not favor any increased taxes..."

Big (Sheriff) John (Polk) has to learn to do with less..."

"Until we get consolidated county government, we need... (five protection)..."

These were among the comments made by persons responding to a questionnaire concerning property taxes sent by County Commission Chairman Bob Sturm to homeowners and other groups and published in the Evening Herald July 3.

Response to the questionnaire began trickling into the courthouse county commission office this week. Sixteen responses had been received as the weekend approached.

The questionnaire lists 13 areas of county government and asks respondents whether they are willing to have their property taxes increased for any of those services. In addition, simple questions are asked about whether they are willing to pay more taxes for more services.

The tally of the ballots showed only two areas—road improvement and fire protection—where a majority was willing to pay more taxes. The response was 7-3 for road improvements and 10-4 for fire protection.

The vote for more money for the court system was a 7-7 tie, two did not vote on that question.

The response for more money on other services was as follows:

County parks, no, 11-3; public transportation, no, 11-4; library, no, 10-4; sheriff's department, no, 7-3; animal control, no, 9-4; supervisor of elections, no, 11-3; property appraiser, no, 11-3; tax collector, no, 11-2; clerk of circuit court, no, 10-1; state attorney, no, 9-2.

Those in addition who checked the boxes on whether they are willing to pay more taxes for more services was no, 6-3.

Most interesting were the letters sent by a number of respondents explaining their votes.

One person wrote, regarding the sheriff's department: "I have some personal knowledge of the way that agency is operated. The answer is not a larger budget calling for increased taxes. I would prefer to see an investigation into the use of department vehicles and fuel; the quality of personnel being promoted to supervisor; the amount of productive time spent by those supervisors; department morale; the qualifications of those in the non-enforcement positions at staff level. We aren't getting our money's worth now."

Another wrote: "Let's roll back the tax burden. In those cases where it is possible make the users of government services pay for them. For example I would favor a significant increase in animal control. The service now is unsatisfactory when controlling loose dogs. Increase the tax price and make the fine much heavier for those who let their animals loose. Use those increased funds to provide more animal control officers."

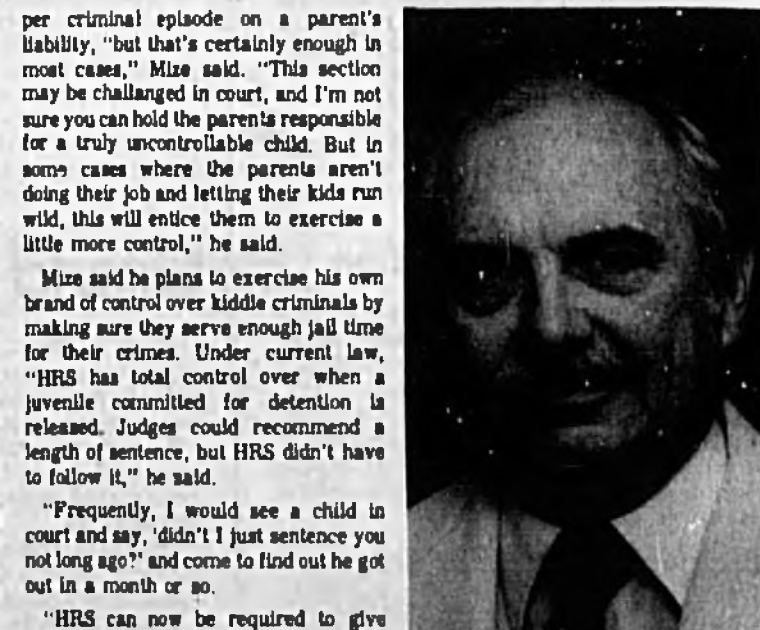

A Casselberry woman wrote: "People on fixed incomes have to tighten their belts to make do with what they have, so I see no reason for these services not to do the same. The increases in taxes will first be allocated to higher salaries for the administration which I believe is highly overpaid; as the saying goes, the more you have the more you want. Inflation is no excuse as an increase is one of the causes of inflation. The departments are over-organized and are really not doing what they were originally set out to be and do."

A Longwood couple wrote: "The sheriff's request plus all of the needs of other county services causes us to think that the Board of Commissioners should have a long-range planning group for county services. We seem to have enough demographic, economic and social data, or could get it, to look down the road. We are not sure how much is done along this aspect. But we seem to be bumping along from one year to another with the Board of Commissioners trying to hold the line on tax increases. While your efforts are deeply appreciated, there will be a time when the citizens must 'bite the bullet' and pay for what is needed..."

A Sanford senior commented on each of the 13 services listed on the questionnaire. Among his responses were: Parks are our heritage. In another generation the only place where we will be able to see a tree will be a park. Roads are the lifeblood of our economy. Public transportation is a boondoggle. The library is a frill we can do without. We are rich enough to buy our own books and exchange them.

"Old Sheriff Hobby left the door open and looked the other way. The escapees never returned to Seminole. We never had a full jail. Animals... are the innocent victims of man's greediness. (The judges) are a pampered bunch of cry babies. Let them work a 56-hour week. (The clerk of the circuit court See SURVEY, Page 1A

PEOPLE IN BRIEF

Letter Written By Reagan Shows His 'Hollywood' Side

Movie actor Ronald Reagan was worried in 1950 that he was slipping into a rut playing "the boy next door," according to a letter to be auctioned in New York next month. Reagan's letter told a script writer, "You have a good story there and it should make a good picture but I feel it is too much of the thing I personally must break away from. . . . My career started to slip into a 'boy next door' and 'nice fellow' type of thing. . . . For that reason I honestly must say 'no'. . . . It wouldn't work out." Autograph dealer Charles Hamilton estimates the future president's letter will bring $300 to $400 at the Aug. 6 auction.

Man Charged In Murders

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — A 47-year-old man with a police record of assault, robbery and housebreaking was arrested Friday night in the slayings a week ago of five people, one of them an 8-year-old girl gunned down in a cornfield. Burke County Sheriff Gregory Coursey identified the man as Hill Rivers, arrested at an Augusta mobile home park following a police stakeout. Rivers was jailed without bond. Coursey said he would be charged with five counts of murder and one count of kidnapping later today. The sheriff said a woman identified as Rivers' common-in-law wife was also being held for questioning and as a witness.

Singer's Condition Worsens

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Singer Jerry Lee Lewis, suffering from stomach ailments, worsened from serious to critical condition today, a Methodist South Hospital spokesman said. Spokesman Mark Sherman said doctors operated again on Lewis Friday to drain abscesses that developed in his digestive tract. Lewis was admitted to Methodist South Hospital June 30 for a perforated stomach and required surgery at that time. Sherman refused to disclose the circumstances surrounding how the singer's stomach was punctured.

Flynn Children File Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The children of Errol Flynn have filed a $25 million libel suit against author Charles Higham, charging that his book on their father "besmirched" the family by asserting that the famous movie star was a homosexual and Nazi sympathizer. Attorney Melvin Belli filed suit in San Francisco Superior Court Friday, asking for money on behalf of Rory and Deirdre Flynn. They charged Higham with libel in his book "Errol Flynn, the Untold Story." Belli said the law against relatives of a deceased person suing for libel should be ignored in this case because the family was "besmirched" as much as Flynn by the allegations.

Pope Meets With Primate

ROME (UPI)—Pope John Paul II, bedridden with periodic fevers from a bout of viral infection, has met with the new primate of Poland and prepared a major handwritten message to the Polish people, his doctors said today.

Connecticut Police Bracing For Klan Rally

MERIDEN, Conn. (UPI) — Police braced for "the worst" and said they feared today's Ku-Klux-Klan rally and a counterdemonstration could turn into a repeat of last March's bloody clashes involving Klansmen. Connecticut Klansmen said the latest rally was called to protest authorities' failure to seek arrest warrants for anti-Klan demonstrators responsible for the violence at the March rally. There were two disturbance arrests during the rally.

The Storrs chapter of the International Committee Against Racism announced it would stage a counter demonstration. State police said members of the self-avowed violent anti-racist organization make up the largest group of demonstrators who tossed bricks and lumber at Klansmen in the March 21 rally. "We are urging all anti-racist people to join us," said the committee's chairman, Tobias Schwartz, a UConn biology professor. "I think the lessons of Nazi Germany are clear — you cannot ignore this vermin."

The Klan also planned to distribute membership literature on Sunday in four surrounding communities, among them Cheshire and Naugatuck. Acting Meriden Police Chief George Caffrey said Friday the city's entire force, including a 35-member SWAT team, would be available along with a contingent of state troopers on standby two miles away. "We've tried to discourage it," Caffrey said Friday. "Failing that, we're ready for the worst situation." State police spokesman John McCleod said the nearby State Police Academy will be set up as a command post and "We're prepared to help in any way if needed." Police departments from 18 surrounding communities also were prepared to assist if violence erupted at the noon rally, said Caffrey. The March rally broke into violence when two dozen hooded and white-robed Klan members marching downtown were pelted with rocks and bricks by upward of 200 anti-racist demonstrators. Five Klan members and 20 police officers who tried to quell the disturbance were injured.

Prince Charles Has Everything But A Last Name

LONDON (UPI) — For the British, who live surrounded by Lord This, Lady That and Duke and Duchess Thus and Such, the July 29 wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer stirs barely the slightest interest in royal family names. The British know Charles does not have a surname. There are, however, the colonials — Americans whose curiosity about things Anglo-Saxon rekindles cyclically with royal births, weddings and deaths. The burden of satisfying this curiosity falls, almost singularly, upon the officially delighted but admittedly weary Debrett's Peerage Ltd., genealogists extraordinary since 1769. "We get all of that every day, a thousand times a day," said Harold Brooks-Baker, managing director of Debrett's, to a question about Prince Charles's last name. "From America?" "Of course. From the moment they wake up over there." Any peculiar problems? "This question about last names is something people never seem to understand. Members of royal families do not have last names. They only have house names." Today, tomorrow, most days from now until the wedding and again when Charles and Diana produce children, Brooks-Baker or another Debrett's employee will answer the phone or open the mail and face the same inquiry: What is Charles's name? Debrett's Peerage, that Bible of royal and noble protocol, lists his "styles" this way: "His Royal Highness Prince Charles Philip Arthur George, Knight of the Garter, Knight Commander of the Order of Bath, Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall and Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, and Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland." But that is not his name. He is Charles, Prince of Wales. By noon on July 29, his bride will be Diana, Princess of Wales. He is not Charles Windsor, although he is of the House of Windsor. In 1917 King George V acted to restrict royal names, or "princely styles," to members of the immediate royal family and in doing so bumped others of his relatives forever into the realm of Smiths and Joneses. George created for those just outside the elite group the English name Windsor. He might have preferred Hanover, the German house to which his family belonged, but Britain was at war with Germany at the time. Those entitled to be called royal highness retain single names.

For example, the Duke of Kent, cousin of the queen, is a royal highness and signs "Edward." His first-born son and heir, who will succeed to the royal dukedom, is listed in Debrett's as George Philip Nicholas, Earl of St. Andrews. He signs "St. Andrews" now and will sign "George" when he becomes Duke of Kent. His younger brother, who is not and barring accidents will not be a royal highness, is Lord Nicholas Charles Edward Jonathan Windsor. All clear? No? Harold Brooks-Baker, Debrett's Peerage, 23 Mossop St. London, says, "We are delighted to help any one in any part of the world."

Democracy Movement In China Is Threatened

PEKING (UPI) — Glancing at his wife and his crude mimeograph machine, the softspoken magazine editor once told a visitor, "She will not understand if they arrest me for something she cannot think is bad." That was in late 1979, when authorities were starting to put curbs on China's brief flirtation with free speech. Seventeen months later, the knock on the door finally came. Xu Wenli, a 44-year-old railway electrician who edited one of the most sought-after magazines of the democracy movement, was taken from his home in April by public security officers.

And at least 18 others involved in the publication of similar magazines, laboriously handwritten and printed in private homes, have been taken into custody recently, according to their sympathizers. The democracy movement appears to be in its death throes, or at least heading into a long hiatus. Dissident publications have disappeared. Even establishment writers have been told they should not stray beyond strict confines laid down by the Communist Party.

Those detained were some of the mainstays of the loosely linked movement calling for more civil rights and closer supervision of the government by the people in the unlikely environment of a socialist state. The fate of half a dozen or more other prominent figures in the movement was unknown. The timing of the police swoops in major cities across China coincided with a deadline reportedly set by the party to silence all dissent by last month to pave the way for the plenary session held June 27-29.

Griffin Drives In Seven Runs In Victory

Nationals Survive Five Home Runs, 13-12

By BENTON WOOD
Herald Sports Writer

The Sanford American all-stars played home run derby Friday night. All told, they belted five melons out of the park.

On this night, however, the Sanford Nationals would be the ones to hit the jackpot. First baseman Andy Griffin went 3-for-4 with a first-inning grand slam and seven runs batted in as they cashed in a 13-12 win over the Americans in the Little Major League Sub-District

All-star Tournament at Fort Mellon Park.

The National League's victory forced a championship matchup between the two Sanford all-star squads Saturday morning for the championship.

A seven-run first inning gave the Nationals a lead it never lost. Left fielder J.D. Paul drew a bases-loaded walk for the first run before Griffin blasted a high fastball deep over the right-field fence for a quick 5-0 advantage. A pair of two-out, unearned runs accounted for the early seven-run bulge.

"He hadn't been hitting lately," winning coach Sid Griffin said of son Andy. "So we had some batting practice before the game. He got some confidence and that was the difference."

Griffin put the Nationals ahead 8-0 in the top of the second with an RBI double. The Americans broke the ice in the bottom half of the inning when Gregg Pond hit a solo homer off winning pitcher Willie McCloud.

McCloud was touched for six more tallies in the third to close the National league lead to 8-7. A two-run homer by Steve Warren and a three-run Reginald Bellamy blast were the big blows in the inning.

The Nationals answered back in the fourth, though. With two runners in scoring position, "Handy Andy" rapped his third consecutive hit giving his squad a three-run edge. McCloud reached on a fielders' choice and came around to score the third run of the inning on a Leonard Lucas single and a pair of American errors.

McCloud carried a 13-7 lead to the mound in the bottom of the fifth when third baseman Keith Denton started a three-run inning for the Americans with his third round-tripper of the tourney. An error and three consecutive singles produced the other runs.

A two-run shot by Pond in the sixth, his second home-run of the night, closed the National lead to one.

Bellamy got into scoring position after a single to left and an error, but he was stranded on base as McCloud struck out Tommie Mitchell and got leadoff hitter Darris Littles to pop out.

Even with 12 hits, 12 runs and five homers, the Americans had a "sub-par" night at the plate. They had averaged 20 runs and 21 hits in their three tournament wins.

"I'll tell you what, that's a hittin' ballclub," Griffin exclaimed. "Everyone they've got hits the ball."

Jeff Blake and Craig Dixon had two hits apiece for the winners with J.D. Paul picking up a pair of RBIs.

On the other side of the coin league home-run champ Eddie Korgan was hitless in four trips to the plate for the Americans. The bottom of the order tried to pick up the slack with Pond and Bellamy — the seventh and eighth batters in the lineup — belting three homers and driving in six runs between them.

On-deck hitter Jeff Blake (right) watches umpire Bob Hartman signal Debose "safe." The Nationals survived a late American rally to win, 13-12. The two teams decided the championship Saturday morning. See Monday's Herald for complete results.

Players, Owners Inch Closer To Strike Settlement

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett's proposal basically was accepted by the ball players and if the owners go along with it, the 30-day-old baseball strike could be settled by the end of the weekend.

Moffett made what he admitted was "a last resort in an exceptional situation." It proved to be exceptional because it brought the sides together Friday for two sessions totaling seven hours and is bringing them back for another session today at 11 a.m. EDT.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, appeared disappointed by the owners' response. "They came back with another proposal they said was addressing the mediator's proposal," said Miller, "but they made some adjustments in numbers and a backward adjustment."

Moffett's proposal, delivered to the players with more than 12 years of credited service and players older than 35 cannot be premier players. There would be no re-entry draft for premier players, who would be eligible to negotiate with any number of clubs. A maximum of 12 players would be considered premier free agents in one season. The reentry draft would continue unchanged for all other players.

The plan calls for the major league teams to be divided into three categories: A for the top nine; B for the middle 8; and C for the bottom nine on the basis of win-loss records in the previous two years.

If a player signs with an A club and the losing club is in Group C, the signing club may protect 24 players and the losing club may select an unprotected player. The club receiving professional player compensation would pay the club providing the player $200,000.

Falcons On Time For Championship

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI) — Leeman Bennett had a five-year timetable to build an NFL power when he took the Atlanta Falcons job but that goal was reached a year ahead of schedule.

Low Angeles and perhaps Dallas. Even Philadelphia and Oakland (last year's Super Bowl teams), they are both good teams but there are several good teams.

That leaves the Super Bowl as the primary objective when Falcon rookies and free agents start reporting to training camp Monday to defend their first NFC Western Division title.

The Falcons, 12-4 in 1980, have to be rated among the league's finest. Bartkowski has matured into one of the top quarterbacks and running backs William Andrews and Lynn Cain are rated the best one-two punch in the league.

"I think the feeling around the league now is that we're a pretty good football team," said the ever cautious Bennett. "I hope that we don't forget that we've got to go prove it every Sunday."

The young offensive line, led by all-pro tackle Mike Kenn, began to come together last season. And the revamped defense sparked under a 3-4 alignment that utilized the speed of a talented young linebacking corps.

The Falcons need only to look back a couple of seasons to see what over-confidence can bring. The club surprised everyone in 1978 — Bennett's second season — with a string of last-minute victories to finish 9-7 and earn a wild-card playoff spot.

The weak link was the defensive secondary and that's where the Falcons concentrated in the draft, taking Florida State's Bobby Butler in the first round and Georgia's Scott Woerner in the third.

But the 1979 team collapsed to a 6-10 season and Bennett says it expected things to happen too easily. He wants to be sure this year's team doesn't fall into that trap.

Butler is small at 5-11, 170, but very quick.

Quarterback Steve Bartkowski, coming off his finest season ever, says there is no way the Falcons will fall back.

"No question I would rather have a guy who was 6-2, 205, but he played well at a major college against major opponents so I don't see any reason why he shouldn't come in here and play well," said Bennett. "He's as big as the corners we've been playing with for a number of years."

"I think we made believers of a lot of people," said Bartkowski. "We know what kind of a team we can be. There's no way we can slip back."

Bennett is almost as enthusiastic about cornerback Earl Jones, a second-year player out of Norfolk State who was drafted in the third round last year but played little. Jones, 6-4, 178, sparked in a mini-camp a few weeks ago.

"I certainly hope and feel like we've learned from that experience and that same intangible won't creep back in on our football team," added Bennett.

"It looks like Jones has grown up a lot and has begun to accept the responsibility of playing his position well," said Bennett. "He has got good size. He can run with almost any receiver in the league."

"We're a better team, there is no question about that. But there is not that much difference between the teams in the league right now.

"You don't have the dominating team like you did at one time with Pittsburgh,

BASEBALL'S GUITAR MAN

For those unsuspecting few that thought Sanford National outfielder J.D. Paul was just another home run hitter, well, take another look. This man has talent. At the left, J.D. turns his baseball bat into a guitar and serenades the crowd during a dull moment. And quite fittingly, (below) J.D. tips his batting helmet to the admiring throng after his solo performance.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Motorists Warned To Avoid Miami Area Where Man Killed

MIAMI (UPI)—Plain clothes police attempting to break up a gun battle in downtown Miami killed one of the three black participants Friday night, touching off sporadic rock and bottle throwing.

For several hours afterward, officers advised motorists to avoid a segment of the downtown area from Flagler Street northward to 20th and from Northeast 2nd Avenue westward to Northwest 7th Avenue. That section includes the city's federal building and its Greyhound bus station as well as many downtown stores.

A police spokesman said the two gunmen who fled and evaded capture were black Latins. The dead man was a black American, Thaddeus D. Jackson, 26.

Fires Near Under Control

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI)—Fire officials say they are making headway against the Crane Swamp fire and two other major blazes in Volusia and Flagler counties.

Rain showers this week have helped keep the fires from spreading beyond the 40,000 acres they have consumed in recent weeks, said Gene Morse, spokesman for the Division of Forestry.

He said the situation is more stable today than it has been all week, but there is always the danger of flare-ups triggered by underground muck-fires.

Jogging 'Flasher' Sought

CORAL GABLES, (UPI)—Police in Coral Gables think the jogger "Flasher" and the jogger "fondler" are the same person and they want to find him before he commits a more violent type of sex crime.

There have been six or seven attacks reported to police in this fashionable Miami suburb.

In three of them, the jogger "sexually exposed himself," said Dennis Koronkiewicz, Coral Gables police spokesman.

In the other cases, Koronkiewicz said, a young Latin man has run up to the women and fondled their breasts.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's edition of the Evening Herald that Conan Paddy Shane, a 24-year-old Milland man who was in Seminole Circuit Court last week seeking return of a shotgun used in an assault on a state trooper last year, is a convicted felon.

Shane has been charged with misdemeanors, but never convicted of a felony. The Herald regrets the error.

Hijacked Passengers Took Their Experience In Stride

MIAMI (UPI)—The passengers on Eastern Airlines Flight 71 seemed to take their hijacking to Cuba by two men wielding flaming Molotov cocktails all in stride, and one said the skyjacking made his honeymoon "something different."

The two Hispanic men, traveling apparently with their wives and children, hijacked the Lockheed 101 Tristar jumbo jet with 192 people aboard and forced it to fly to Havana Friday.

Once there, the hijackers — along with two women, one of whom was pregnant, and four children — got off the jetliner which then flew back to Miami.

No one aboard was injured in the first successful hijacking of a U.S. airliner this year.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Washington, noting two hijackers were returned by Cuba after the last successful hijacking last September, said he hoped Havana would turn the latest hijackers over to U.S.

authorities for prosecution.

FBI spokesman Jim Freeman said the hijackers had at least three makeshift Molotov cocktails and may have had as many as six.

The plane left Chicago's O'Hare International Airport at 8:30 a.m. EDT bound for Miami and San Juan, Puerto Rico. The hijacking occurred at 12:31 p.m. EDT when the aircraft was 30 miles northwest of Miami.

Black History Teacher Seeks Clues To The Past

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—Dr. James Eaton spends his weekends rummaging through barns, cellars and libraries carefully collecting clues to a black history he fears may soon be lost.

Eaton, a black history professor at Florida A&M, is looking for records and papers that were lost, discarded or misplaced when many black schools closed during the integration of the late 1960s.

Curator of the Florida Black Archives, Eaton was recently awarded an $8,000 federal grant by the National Historic Publications and Record Commission to collect the scattered chronicles for preservation.

"When we integrated, we up and forgot all of the records. Until we recapture the records, we can't even prove we exist," Eaton said, thumbing through a thick photograph album with pictures of composer-singer Ray Charles, tennis great Althea Gibson and Olympic Gold Medalist Jesse Owens.

The Record Commission will give Eaton another $60,000 to $70,000 to preserve the history on microfilm if he is successful in obtaining enough material by an Aug. 1, 1981, deadline.

Eaton spends his weekends "digging through cow barns, the cellars of old buildings and prowling through libraries" around Florida looking for yearbooks, photographs, trophies, guest lists of college programs and school newspapers — anything that will link him to the past.

In addition to the transcripts, Eaton has amassed what he calls "one of the best menageries of 'coon art' anywhere" — paintings and ceramic pieces that depict blacks as "grinning, senseless ... the white man's whipping boy."

His search is confined to Florida now, but Eaton said he would like to travel throughout the Southeast because "black people, whether it be in Florida, Mississippi or Arkansas, all had ties."

"The black college presidents would all come together once or twice a year and conspire on how to exist against the white system," Eaton said.

"I have found in my letters where a president from Florida would write to someone up in Alabama or Arkansas and ask how they got money for a new stadium or a new building. We all felt like we were being mistreated so we all stuck together."

Eaton, who has been working in the archives since 1978 and teaching since 1981, said the South lost a great deal when the schools were integrated.

"Everyone seems to think we made so much progress and such great strides since integration — which is true — but we also have paid a tremendous price for it," he said.

"There are things already in my collection that will shock you in terms of how far advanced we were in the 1930s and 1940s and 1950s," said Eaton. "To be in a room where Booker T. Washington walked and talked, or to know that in 1931 Martin Anderson came right here and performed in Tremendous."

Eaton said young blacks aren't encouraged to participate in many institutions and much of the uniqueness that was the mark of black culture is gone — "or has become a watered down shadow of its former self."

When integration swept the south, Eaton said many black teachers and principals were dismissed or transferred to less influential positions. As a result, Eaton said black students learn less "because we don't have the dedicated black teachers."

"We've got more Ph.D.'s than we've ever had before and we've got people that are highly educated, and that's great," Eaton said. "But we are in for some terrific problems because we have not preserved the history or the records."

"How do you answer to yourself when you don't know where you've been or who you are?" Eaton asked.

"You don't destroy one person's culture in place of someone else's. You build on what you have. Black people need to realize this so they can start trying to rebuild their past, and you can only do this through the records."

Local Government Officials To Draft Sales Tax Measure

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—An ad hoc committee of local government officials will meet with representatives of the governor's office next week to begin drafting a local option half-cent sales tax bill.

The committee was requested by Gov. Bob Graham following a meeting Thursday with a group of mayors and sheriffs who agreed to support Graham's idea of letting local governments levy an additional half penny sales tax to take care of inflationary costs of personnel and purchases.

The alternative, the officials say, is to hike property taxes or reduce services.

The governor also asked the committee to recommend whether the need is critical enough to justify a special session before the Legislature meets in January.

Graham asked the mayors, sheriffs and county commissioners to appoint two representatives each to serve with a representative of the governor's office on an ad hoc committee to draft a bill, including a formula to which all could agree, for distribution of the revenue.

Ray Sittig, director of the League of Cities, suggested the governor call a special session to coincide with the Aug. 31-Sept. 4 meeting of house committees in Tallahassee.

The money is needed before city budgets go into effect Oct. 1.

But Sittig said Graham made no commitment to call a session.

Greg Farmer, Graham's liaison with local governments, said Graham met separately with Sittig and 10 mayors and then with Sheriff's Association President Robert A. Butterworth of Broward County and association attorney John Madigan.

He met with county commissioners last week and has also discussed local government needs with key legislators about the chance for approval of a bill authorizing cities and counties to levy the extra sales tax.

Sittig said all the mayors agreed to the need for the money.

Cities and counties face substantial increases in property taxes or serious reductions in services if another revenue source is not provided," he said.

If you're looking to fulfill an ideal love relationship that's bound to last and last, then there's only one answer: Get married!

Why, ministers and judges and wedding photographers are simply swamped with the matrimonial trend that is seemingly sweeping Central Florida.

And from what the figures show at the Seminole County marriage license office, it's quite a bit more than just a periodic craze of summer wedding fever.

Significantly more than 100 couples per month these last four months have applied for marriage licenses county-wide. Applications numbered 121 in March; 140 in April; 123 in May; and 150 for the month of June.

And as if that isn't enough, the county divorce rate is consistently running less than 50 percent of the marriage license applications.

On the average, 62.5 divorces were filed over the last four months. When you consider that the marriage license average over the same period of time is 134, you can't help but know that marriage is in and divorce is out.

And for whatever reasons may be cited, it all adds up to a refreshing change of pace... good news!

Joanne Mize, a local marriage and family counselor, has her own ideas about why marriage is winning out.

"When two people come for counseling in their marriage relationship," she said, "there is a certain desire to save the marriage. And people are finding out that counseling should be the channel preceding the divorce court."

Dr. William Hill, who specializes in marriage counseling at his Winter Park office, agreed with Ms. Mize. "In my 15 years of practice," he said, "almost 100 percent of the time, a marriage can be saved when both parties come in for counseling."

But many people are skeptical about seeking the counseling services of professionals. After all, they've tried to work out their own problems and haven't been able to.

It's hard to believe a stranger could help them put things back together, Dr. Hill said.

Why do people go to marriage counselors? No matter which problems afflict the home and threaten a marriage's security, one sure difficulty always exists.

A breakdown in communication has occurred at some point. This results in more specific problems, the professionals say.

Lack of communication surfaces in the physical relationship, the management of finances, discipline of the children, or a combination of these conditions.

Married people seem to be realizing that one basic truth exists for their relationship to work: preserving a nurturing home life must come before either's individual need for self-fulfillment whether it's with a profession, a hobby or some other activity.

Despite what many assume about divorces, a very small percentage is directly caused by an affair, said Ms. Mize.

"I've seen hundreds of marriages survive affairs," she said. At the point that people seek counseling, they are usually in what Ms. Mize calls a detachment stage.

"They're confused about what's happening in the relationship—feelings are ambivalent. And more often than not, only one partner wants out."

And even that's not definite, she says. One day he or she thinks divorce is the answer, but it becomes a different story overnight.

However, the important thing is both partners seek help for the relationship. They want to make a go of it... and they do!

"Approximately 20 percent of Florida divorces, one psychologist said, should never happen," Ms. Mize added. "The partner in these cases never mean for the actual legal process to come about."

"Sometimes just filing seems like the only way to get the spouses's attention or it appears to be the perfect means for re-opening severed lines of communication. They only mean to file.

"But the process is so quick and simple in this state that all of a sudden, you're divorced. It's done," the counselor said.

But at least for Seminole, marriage is still getting twice the action of divorce, according to county statistics. And from where a lot of people stand, that is not half bad!

In Peace Corps

Fern Park Nurse Wears Many Hats

In spite of a schedule that would exhaust many, a Peace Corps volunteer from Fern Park, in Honduras claims, "I believe I am going to learn more and take home more with me than I will be able to teach or leave behind. But that is part of being a Peace Corps volunteer."

When Ellen S. Geiger, 28, first went to Honduras last year, she didn't have an assignment. Her husband, John, also a Peace Corps volunteer, served in an engineering program there.

However, Mrs. Geiger quickly assumed a very busy program. Morning, she serves as a registered nurse in a public health clinic in Tegucigalpa, the capital, and afternoons, she teaches at a blind school.

Two afternoons a week, she gave swimming and track and field lessons for handicapped children practicing for the Special Olympics. Saturdays, she and her husband help out at an orphanage — gardening, cleaning play areas, playing games with the children and "generally just supplying companionship," she reports.

She hopes that the "Honduran Special Olympics will serve to enlighten and alert the public to the fact that handicapped children do exist and are capable of learning and functioning within the limitations imposed by their handicaps and do not need to be 'hidden away,'" she said.

Mrs. Geiger is well prepared for her Honduran assignment. She received a bachelor's degree in special education at Florida State University, Tallahassee, in 1974, specializing in education of the visually handicapped, and a bachelor's degree in nursing at the University of Florida in Gainesville in 1979.

Prior to entering the Peace Corps with her husband in March, 1980, she was a staff nurse at a Gainesville hospital and a teacher of the visually handicapped at a school in Jacksonville.

At the blind school, Mrs. Geiger is focusing her efforts in two areas: Advance braille skills and student mobility. She explains, "The kids are not taught advanced skills, yet these skills are necessary to read what few books the school has in Spanish braille." In addition to teaching students mobility — the ability to function independently and to travel with a cane — she is putting together a mobility program which she hopes a Honduran will continue for the young students and the adult blind when she leaves the country.

Mrs. Geiger adds, "hopefully some of these kids will have a chance to go onto 'colegio' or high school after finishing at blind school." She believes that the mobility program, "together with a rehabilitation and vocational training center being constructed near the city, and greater public awareness, employment opportunities will increase and begging by the blind will decrease" in Honduras.

Ellen S. Geiger, left, and her husband, John, are both volunteers in the Peace Corps in Honduras. Among the services she performs is teaching at a blind school. One area that a Peace Corps volunteer must adjust to, she points out, 'is what impact you are actually going to make in your two years here. Things move slower here. Goals and expectations must be lowered to be realistic.'

In their spare time, the Geigers jog with Honduran runners, visit with Honduran friends, play volleyball or bird watch. "We hope to spot the beautiful and rare quetzal before we leave Central America," she states.

"Something that really amazes me is that this different world exists only 2 1/2 hours from Florida by plane," she comments. "I have not personally found it difficult to adjust, however. I have experienced no anti-Americanism, with the exception of a few newspaper articles, and people are generally very warm, hospitable and willing to become friends."

Mrs. Geiger says she enjoys riding in the crowded van-like buses that hold up to 25 people, "but I hate taxis," she notes. "I can't get used to their constant honking to let you know they are available. I still look to see if it's someone I know when I'm honked at or else I immediately feel like I'm doing something wrong. It can be so unnerving."

One area that a Peace Corps volunteer must adjust to, she points out, "is what impact you are actually going to make in your two years here. Things move slower here. Goals and expectations must be lowered to be realistic."

"I know I am not going to 'revolutionize' the blind school and make it comparable to what I've seen in the United States. My mobility program never get off the ground or end up more basic than I envisioned, and that no matter what I teach at the health clinic, people are still going to hold on to their own

'FRIENDS' AT GROUND BREAKING

Miss Stockstill Honored At Pre-Nuptial Party

Mrs. Tom (Mary Lou) McDonald and her daughter, Martha, were co-hostesses at their Loch Arbor home at a linen and lingerie shower honoring Miss Bonnie Stockstill prior to her marriage to Michael Good of Sanford.

A daisy and strawberry theme was used in the decor. Mary Lou made an arrangement of daisies for the centerpiece on the refreshment table. Cindy McDonald poured the punch from a silver bowl.

The guest list included: Mrs. Robert (Kris) Stockstill, mother of the bride, Fernandina Beach; Mrs. Fred (Eloise) Good, mother of the bridegroom, Sanford; Mrs. Dorothy Zuelch, grandmother of the bridegroom, Sanford and Mrs. Wilson Stockstill, grandmother of the bride, Sidney, Ohio.

Also: Judy Good Lively and Sue Good Harrell, sisters of the bridegroom; Lynn Sargent, maid of honor, and Mrs. Juanita Sargent, Georgetown, Ky.; and the following bridesmaids: Mary Dressel, Coral Gables; Patti Graganella, Tallahassee; Rosanna Hoff, Key Biscayne; Becky Baumgartner, Tallahassee; Cindy Marrs, Callahan; and Debby Sikes, Plant City.

Also: Mrs. Gregory (Karen) Futch, Tallahassee; Mrs. John (Mary Ann) Pierce, Bette Pierce, Mrs. Herbert (Carolyn) Stenstrom, Sharyn Stenstrom, Mrs. John (Wanny) Mercer, Margie Mercer, Mrs. Jack (Mimi) Greene, Jackie Greene, Mrs. William (Nancy) Rape, Mrs. B.D. Lake, Mrs. James Nader, Lisa Barker, Tina Porzig, and Meg Newman, all of Sanford, and Cindy Simpson, Georgetown.

The Kiwanis Club of Sanford held Ladies Day Wednesday when members honored the past Roberta Gatchel "women of the year" and saluted Ada Reiley as this year's winner of the coveted community service award.

I speak for the women of the year alumnae in welcoming the most deserving Ada to the select group of 12 women.

The Kiwanis Club members and leaders have no modesty when it comes to crowing about their own. After several enthusiastic reports, a former woman of the year, Val Colbert, whispered, "Makes you want to join, doesn't it?" Delegates to the Kiwanis International 66th Annual Convention held in New Orleans from June 28-July 1 were W.H. (Jack) Weible and Art Maheu who were accompanied by their wives, Irene Weible and Lois Maheu.

Also attending from the Sanford club were Phil Roche and his wife and son. Phil is a trustee of the Kiwanis District of Florida.

An injured foot Irene received when she "stepped on a bad spot in the sidewalk" in New Orleans, according to Jack, resulted in a broken foot bone and Irene in a cast.

Jack said some 5,000 delegates attended the convention which attracted more than 18,000 individuals. He mentioned several speakers including former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, who is also a former U.S. Trade Representative in the Carter Cabinet.

Other interesting speakers included Nancy Dickerson, TV commentator and producer, Eva Gabor and Bob Hope.

The Kiwanis Decency Award went to the Osmond family of TV fame, Jack said.

All of the major meetings were held in New Orleans Superdome. Jack marveled at the vast arena. "I was amazed at the size of the thing," he said. "It is fabulous. It holds 80,000 and we looked like a drop in the bucket."

Evelyn Bales and a former Sanfordite Attorney Doris Housholder of Daytona Beach, have returned from a three-week trip that took them to London, Moscow and Leningrad. More on this later.

Emy Bill, chairman of the Social Department of the Woman's Club of Sanford, was hostess to a coffee at the Holiday Inn, to make plans for the club's forthcoming season.

One of the many projects the department plans is to sponsor bridge instruction classes and to have a snack lunch.

Emy's committee includes Lucille Stone, Evelyn Bolton, Carolyn Cornelius, Hazel Kratzmar and Cathy Wesley.

And now, let's hear it for an outstanding fellow.

Congratulations to W. Garnett White, who has been made a Paul Harris Fellow, the highest award presented to any Rotarian, according to M.L. "Sonny" Raborn.

The fellows who receive this award are honored for outstanding community service. In 1946, Rotary International implemented a great idea—a Paul Harris Fellowship to deserving individuals in the name of the Rotary Foundation's educational program.

Past Rotary Paul Harris Fellows are: Reid Brodie Jr., Bill Bush, J.S. "Red" Cleveland, Don Jones, Ralph Larson, Tom McDonald, John Mercer and George Touhy.

As the season ended for the Sanford Rotary Club (noon), Pete Knowles presented the Rotarian of the Year Award to Reginald Howe.

New club directors are: Bill Jacobs, Jerry McClelland, Ken McIntosh and John Mercer.

Officers for the new year are: Jack Horner, president; Ken Sandon, president-elect; Bill Jacobs, secretary; Stanley Potter, assistant secretary; Harold Brooks, treasurer; and Steve McMahon, Sergeant-at-arms.

beliefs about health and illness.

"I must try to be content with small achievements," she says. "It's hard to change an ingrained attitude, but one of the main reasons I'm here is to experience life in another culture and become as much a part of that culture as I can. This has and will continue to require adjustments on my part, but if I didn't feel willing to make them I wouldn't be here."

The daughter of Tom and Jeanne Slovenkay of Winter Park, Mrs. Geiger lives at 114 E. Wind Lane in Fern Park. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor society, and Sigma Theta Tau National Nursing Honor Society.

The Geigers, who will complete their Peace Corps service in November, 1982, are two of about 225 volunteers serving in education, agriculture, nursing, nutrition and forestry programs in Honduras. About 6,000 Peace Corps volunteers serve in 62 developing countries around the world.

The Peace Corps is an independent agency within ACTION, the federal volunteer service agency. Celebrating its 20th anniversary, the Peace Corps has had more than 80,000 volunteers serving in 85 Third World nations.

Other ACTION programs include Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent Program, Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), Seniors Companion Program and University Year for ACTION.

The Church... THE HOPE OF OUR COMMUNITY, OUR NATION!

And Behold... It Was Very Good

Not long ago I was driving home along the parkway, depressed and worried by many problems. The day was bleak and gloomy. Huge clouds boiled and churned above dark, forbidding mountains. Even the foliage hung limp and still.

Suddenly the clouds parted and a ray of sun streaked through. In that fleeting moment the landscape became beautiful... grayness transformed into mauves, deep blues and lively greens. It was like watching Creation. For the first time in a long time, I thought of God. And I prayed as I had been taught long ago.

That was a turning point. Since then God and worship have once more become a part of my life and my problems have disappeared in a way I never dreamed possible.

God's goodness is always present. Go to your place of worship and learn the truths that can transform your life.

game contract. Declarer, of course, with only two spades and those four aces (150 honors) quickly passed three no trump.

West automatically opened the heart queen. If spades held 3-3, South would easily make his game with five spade tricks and five tricks in aces and kings in the other suits. Declarer won the opening lead in his hand with the ace, preserving dummy's important heart entry. A 3-3 spade division occurs only about one time in three so declarer thought about ways of improving his line of play.

Finally, it occurred to declarer. At the possible expense of an overtrick, South saw an additional line of play. At trick two he cashed the spade ace and then he played the queen of spades and calmly overtook with North's king! When East's jack fell, it was an easy matter for declarer to force out West's 10 of spades. After West returned a heart to North's king, South cashed dummy's two good spades and made his nine tricks. South only needed four spade tricks to make his game. By overtaking his spade honor, declarer still had the 3-3 spade break going for him while adding the additional chance of the 10 or jack doubleton in East's hand.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sautz

North-South had no trouble reaching game on today's hand. North's three heart bid is the Jacoby transfer which shows at least five spades and forces South to bid three spades. South dutifully bid three spades and North converted to three no trump, giving declarer the option of either

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL For Sunday, July 12, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 July 12, 1981

A new residence may be among the major changes in your lifestyle this coming year. It will be a more suitable place for you. Start shopping early if you are now seeking a change of location.

CANCER (June 21-July 11) Try to spend substantial time today in the fresh air and sunshine. Yard work should prove to be a fun task even if you normally don't employ it. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birthdate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Competitive involvements which are fun, rather than being serious, will be the ones you should shine at today. The odds are with you in a friendly golf or tennis match.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're usually rather cautious when it comes to gambling on things which could cost you money. Today, however, your judgment regarding calculated risks might be profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A positive attitude can work wonders for you today especially in situations where the stakes are large. Don't let size intimidate you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) New life may be breathed into a situation today on which you were almost ready to give up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In situations where you go out of your way to truly be of service today, your helpful efforts will not be readily forgotten. Rewards come later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to get some physical exercise if you've been lounging around too much this week. A team sport offers both fun and proper exertion.

For Monday, July 13, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 July 13, 1981

This coming year may not be without its problems and difficulties to overcome, but if you keep your nose to the grindstone and don't lose heart everything will work out to your benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let any problem that occurs today get out of hand by dwelling on it. Busy yourself with a labor of love until the storm moves on. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One who lacks your compassion and kindness may try to convince you that what you believe is wrong. Don't let anyone deter you from doing what you want to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're right to give most people the benefit of the doubt, but today, before accepting a deal from one you know little about, ask to see both sides of the ledger.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) There is very little that cannot be accomplished by diplomatic handling of persons who are upsetting your apperant. You're the master of this art. Use it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although your aims will be honorable today, there's a chance someone may try to twist what you are doing in order to use it against you. Take care!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If someone is attempting to stir up trouble for you today, nip things in the bud. Go to those who matter and tell your side of the story. You have the facts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't get involved if you see a rift developing between two associates today. You could end up being the fall guy after they patch up their differences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone on whom you were depending for an important job might let you down today. However, a forgiving heart could turn this person into a valuable future ally.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be the nice sweet person you truly are to everyone today, even to those who don't deserve your kindness. Then no one will be able to hurt you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even if your mate behaves unreasonably today, you'd be wise to respond with kindness and love. No fire can kindle when smothered with this kind of treatment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Those close to your heart will know how to soothe any pains you suffer today from the acts of co-workers. Embrace your loved one and you'll forget the wrongdoers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because you wouldn't take advantage of anyone, it may be difficult for you to believe someone else could. Beware of being too vulnerable today.
