NOTICE OF

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION HEARING DOCKET NO. 71627-EU

The Florida Public Service Commission has scheduled a public hearing on the Petition of Florida Power & Light Company to increase its rates and charges for the sale of electricity so as to produce additional gross annual operating revenues of approximately $85 million. This means that residential customers, who paid an average of $18.03 per month last year, would have paid $20.79 per month under the proposed rates.

The hearing will begin at:

9:30 a. m., Monday, May 8, 1972

DuPont Plaza Hotel Miami, Florida

Monday, May 8 will be solely devoted to presentation by the Company of testimony and exhibits in support of its Petition.

At the outset of the hearing on Tuesday, May 9, and at the same time each day following for the duration of the hearing, the public will be afforded an opportunity to be heard regarding the rates and services of the Company. The remaining time each day shall be devoted to the presentation of the Company's direct case until completed. Principal cross examination of the Company's witnesses will be deferred until a subsequent hearing date to be scheduled for that purpose.

Members of the public who are not able to attend the hearing but who wish to record their views on this matter may write to the Florida Public Service Commission, Tariff Department, 700 South Adams Street, Tallahassee, Florida.

'A Lot Of People Really Did Care'

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) - Charges were dismissed Monday against three teen-agers arrested for mowing lawns without a permit, but the boys said they would buy the $2.50 credentials before they go into business again. "A lot of people really cared what happened," said a smiling Pershing "Kip" Williams Jr., after Municipal Judge George Pallotto dismissed the charges against him and two other 17-year-olds, Rick Sigler and Danny Walters. The courtroom was crowded with friends and spectators when Judge Pallotto smissed the case and also ordered police to expunge all record of the arrests. The youths, all from Miami, drove to this nearby Broward County community April 12 and went door-to-door, offering to mow lawns to pick up pocket money. A police cruiser pulled up next to Williams' mower-laden car, and an officer asked if the boys had purchased city identification cards required of door-todoor solicitors. When they said "no," the patrolmen placed them AROUND under arrest. They were taken to the police station where they were photographed and fingerprinted before being released on $55 bond each five hours later. Police defended the arrests, saying the youths were "in one of our better neighborhoods" and that "door-to-door solicitation is an excellent cover for potential burglars."

City Councilmen said the police failed to use proper judgment in making the arrests and ordered an investigation of the incident.

The arrests gained national publicity, and young Williams said a man in Seattle, Wash., wrote him and asked, "What kind of a city is Hollywood, Fla?" The youths' attorney argued that the city or-Two weeks ago, we broke the dinance only required identification cards for doorstory with the anticipated to-door salesmen and said nothing about door-to-

The only major event on a leisurely schedule today was a walk in deep space, 200,000 miles from home, by Thomas K. Assistant Public Defender Gerald Rutberg is to confer with the defendant and Mitchelly allowed to 'phone his parents There was the usual complaint of not being allowed calls from the jail. The youth told the court he had notd not spoken to his mother in three weeks.

Lastly, the first case upon the docket, that of William Southward, charged on a two-count information with manslaughter by operation of an automobile y while intoxicated and man slaughter by culpable negligence, was deferred until later on the docket due to attorney Norris Woolfork III and the defendant not being present.

They later appeared and entered a not guilty plea. The of June 5. Woolfork said he was involved in other trials that Woolfork could go to trial on

Senate Blocks

Release

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, was blocked today when he tried to place what was described as a secret document on the Vietnam war in the Congressional Record.

Acting Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin, of Michigan, objected to Gravel's unanimous consent request at the start of today's Senate session.

Griffin said it would be "very unfortunate if the senator from Alaska takes it on himself to be the sole judge of the declassification of highly sensitive papers."

Gravel said that the document came into his possession some time ago and that after carefully evaluating it he was satified it contained no military information that would jeopardize the safety of the nation.

Young And Duke: Men On The Moon

The scientists and geologists may owe a lot to those boyant (literally and figuratively) moon walkers John M. Young and Charles M. Duke, Jr., but everyone is in their dcbt for the very human and very welcome display of the spirit of man, American variety, which they presented. For here were two experts who refused to be bound by their expertise. Here were two explorers whose approach to the unknown territory was very reminiscent of those Mountain Men whose exploits at the turn of the century brightened the darkness of "beyond the Missouri."

True the astronauts were enacting a drama which had been written by the hand of human experts and translated by the pushbutton world of the computers.

Time after time when some of the more wordy commentators would encourage direful speculations, it would be these lunar travelers, whose words would spread that healing and soothing balm which only the right words at the right time uttered by the right people can afford.

Both Young and Duke embodied the kind of enthusiasm which seems to have been overlaid to an unhappy depth by too many crises in the sobering Sixties and the challenging Seventies.

The longer their adventures continued, either hopping along on the slopes of the lunar highlands or riding on the luna rover, the more at ease they became physically - despite the fruit juice in helmet affair - and the more this unbelievable travel tale bespoke an asset which man has that far exceeds his ability to perform physically or plan scientifically.

This is, of course, the freedom of the inner man when allowed to escape. It was visible when both astronauts saluted the American flag on the surface of the moon and did so with all the dignity this deserved from commissioned armed forces officers and yet with all the pride and joy that all Americans should feel.

Rabbit hopping down the slope of Stone Mountain or riding the rover over the too stony Surrey Ridge these explorers were as much at home as the Mountain Men were when first they glimpsed the Tetons or wondered at the beauty of the Yellowstone where geysers spouted, waterfalls abounded and nature had painted a landscape far apart from the plains, the heartland of America.

Earthbound watchers could find a real

Maybe so, but if it became real to the people all over the world who were seeing this American style exploration for the first time, then Messrs. Young and Duke must take the bow.

Congress Bracing To Oppose War

By HELEN FULLER WASHINGTON ---- This week has changed the muted tone of Congress's reaction to intensive American bombing and South Vietnam losses in the current ohslaught of the North Vietnamese This week marks a new offensive in the Senate against the Administration's conduct of the war, the strongest Senate drive to change the course in two years.

Congress is ready for bear because their constituents are giving all the signs of feeling "It's time for a change." The action will come on signal of Senate Majority Mike Mansfield of Montana who has left for a three-week visit to China. Before departing, Mansfield held a private session with conservative Senate Whip Robert Byrd of West Virginia, authorizing him to lead in putting through a Democratic Amendment declaring the US policy shall be to with-draw all American forces from Indochina within four months ---before election day, if passed soon.

Byrd, who will presumably lead the fight for the Mansfield amendments to the big Defense, State, and Aid appropriations, has usually been counted a Nixon man on foreign policy. But he has also been critical of Vietnam and voted for Mansfield's End-the-War amendments last year. He will be an unwelcome force against Nixon in this critical showdown that will gain momentum.

Meanwhile this week the Caucus of the Democratic Party has attracted unusual attenuon. As a rule this body attracts no attention at all. Just now the Senate committees involved in foreign affairs are most deferential. Instead of holding meetings of their own to cut down attendance at Caucus sessions, standing committees are specifying that their meetings will stand adjourned during caucuses.

The probable result will be to put new life into the Caucus and greater opposition to Nixon's Asian policy in Senate and House. Secretary of State William Rogers made an opportune appearance before the Foreign Relations Committee pleading for his budget. Committee chairman William Fulbright took that occasion to open inquiry on Nixon's Vietnamization program.

Both supporters and critics are working on full-scale debating speeches to deliver on the floor. The public galleries at the Capitol will be crammed when these fireworks are bursting. In last week's sessions the House for the first time appeared about to join with the Senate in opposition to the Administration stand in Vietnam. That will make new trouble for Mr. Nixon.

There is nothing new about unrest in Congress on foreign affairs. But when Nixon reorens the Vietnam issue without asking or getting Congressional approval even his croniest of cronies take a hurt view.

One Man's Opinion Space Is Costly, But We Learn

By DON OAKLEY

Once again millions of Americans sit on the edges of their chairs watching a space spectacular being presented live and in color right in their homes.

Well, perhaps they don't lean so far forward any more. The target site is different and more photogenic, some aspects of the astronauts' assignment are new, but a moon landing is now pretty much old hat. We know that the men of Apollo 16 can do it. We are confident they will complete their mission successfully and return safely to earth. And such is our fickleness that when it is over, when our fingers are uncrossed and Apollo 16 is a turned page in the history of space exploration, many of us will again take up that old refrain, "Why spend so many billions on space when there are so many unsolved problems on earth? The question is pretty much rhetorical as far as the Apollo program is concerned. Only one more flight in the series remains. After that, manned exploration of the moon-by this country, at least-will cease, for how many vears no one can say.

The question will again become a live issue, however, as the nation cranks up Skylab, the program to send men into earth orbit for extended periods via reusable space shuttles.

There is no one good answer to the question, but the following quotations may provide part of an answer. "The suggestion of an either/or choice between technological and social advances ignores the fact that without a technology base we will not have the capability to address ourselves effectively to any national problem," says J. F. Clayton, general manager of Bendix Aerospace Systems Division.

He points out that the task of going to the moon required a government, industry and university team which at its peak involved organizing 400,000 people, hundreds of universities and 20,000 separate industrial companies to a common goal.

The project was done in public and in full view of the world. It was done without a military objective and it was done within the cost and schedule set for it 10 years earlier. These management techniques are available to the country if ever we again decide to use them on what we now consider almost impossible tasks, says Clayton. Aerospace writer James J. Haggerty has also spoken about the boost to technology given by the Apollo program:

"So extraordinary were the demands for performance and reliability needed to land men on the moon that the Apollo team had to compress several decades of normal technological development into less than one. Advances in aerospace technology were not, by themselves, sufficient for the task; it became necessary to force progress in virtually every scientific and technological discipline. Finally, a passage from "Earthbound Astronauts," a book about the builders of Apollo-Saturn by Beirne Lay

"Still struggling as we are in the Dark Ages of an understanding of human motivations (including our motivation for sending men to the moon), we can learn at least two lessons from our space program-the miracle that can result from the unemotional approach to a massive problem, and the paramount importance of proceeding step by step instead of plunging, as we have, into remedies for some of our social ills.

"Man has been given fresh grounds for confidence that he may yet achieve other 'impossibilities.' even create an environment on earth of dignity for all men, if only he can learn, as has the space pioneer, to keep his cool. This is the legacy of Apollo.

McGovern Could Turn the Tables! By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Here's a plausible script, not of his making but of mine, by which Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota might be brought reasonably close to the 1972 Democratic presi-

My most recent canvass of the 50 states shows McGovern with a presently indicated delegate potential of 490¹/₂ votes. That includes delegates he already has locked up, and many others which informed appraisers say he is reasonably sure of, at a minimum. A candidate this year needs 1509 votes, one more than half the convention total of 3016, to be nominated at Miami Beach in July Where could McGovern get enough more strength to bring himself within range?

First off, he has a good chance to win big in Massachu-setts, since rival Sen. Edmund Muskie clearly is downplaying that April 25 primary in favor of another the same day against Sen. Hubert Humphrey in Pennsylvania

Should McGovern pick up three-quarters of the 102 Massachusetts votes (not impossible), he would advance 20 votes or so over present indications. Let's assume he doesn't go beyond very modest expectations in the Pennsylvania test and the one a week later in Ohio. Those are largely Muskie-Humphrey struggles. Two weeks after Massachusetts, however, McGovern runs in the Nebraska primary, where he is now leading and still building against a fading Muskie. The delegate haul there is small, but a third primary victory at that stage in time would impart good momentum to the Mc-Govern campaign for the later, bigger tests.

ruling Monday that allows the Agriculture Department to continue using the pesticide in fire ant control programs, at least until the next court hearing on a suit by Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner. Conner had sought a temporary injunction to prohibit the Department of Pollution Control from requiring him to get a permit to dump Mirex out of airplanes onto infested lands. The motion was denied by the judge. But Willis got attorneys for the Pollution Control and the Agriculture departments to agree that the agencies would not resume their Mirex feud until the next court hearing, probably in about three weeks.

Robert Chastain, Agriculture attorney, said his agency would not press for a non-interference injunction "if the department assures us they will not take any attempt to stop us while the legal proceedings are pending."

The case could become a major test of environmental agencies' regulatory power over pesticide use. Chastain said "There is no field study which

Miss Frances Jarrell, D. W. Mahurin Exchange Vows In Double Ring Rites

Miss Frances Louise Jarrell, aughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wiley Jarrell, 2010 Oak Ave. Sanford and Daniel Walter Mahurin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Compton Luck Mahurin, 2911 East Pine St., Urlando, were united in Holy Matrimony, April 8, 1972 at 4 p.m. in First United thodist Church, Sanford.

Rev. Julius Byers was of ficiating clergyman at the double ring, candelight ceremony. Roger Harris, organis;, presented appropriate nuptial selections and acompanied soloist, Scott Harris,

Church decorations included two baskets of white glads, carnations and baby's breath flanking the altar with a hackground of potted palms throughout the wedding setting. A pair of regular size and a large arch candelabra with white Cathedral tapers cast a soft glow at the altar. Family pews were marked with sprigs of foliage and white satin ribbon

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory silk organza. Venise lace and pale pink satin ibbon highlighted the sheer yoke, empire waist and cuffs of the long, full sleeves. The same lace and ribbon enhanced the front and hem of the A-line shirt and sweep of the watteau train.

Her yell of ivory silk illusion was held by a camelot cap of venise lace and accented with tiny seed pearls. She carried an Edwardian bouquet of Tiara and pink roses, stephanotis and carried a Victorian hand Jarrell and Mrs. Albert Ayers daisies, baby's breath and fern.

I was a divorcee with preschool children, and now I am happily remarried to a wonderful man who is doing an excellent job with his ready-made family. I have been bugged to death by my ex-mother-in-law who "misses" her grandchildren. She sends them cards and gifts for their birthdays and holidays, so they won't forget her. I always send her a brief but to-the-point thank you. I wish she'd stop sending them things! As yet she hasn't asked to visit the children. [we live in

HAPPILY REMARRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: When one loses a mate [whether by divorce or death] if there are children, the biological grandparents remain grandparents forever. Circumstances differ. but it would seem unnecessarily cruel to deny grandparents he right to see their grandchildren. In some states [California] such a right has been written into the law.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine died last year, leaving two little girls who went to live with an aunt. Last Christmas I sent a check payable to the aunt in a Christmas card addressed to the girls. I told the girls to give the check to their aunt to cash, and she would give them the money to buy themselves something for Christ-

I received the cancelled check. However, last week I heard from the girls [in response to my letter asking them what they had bought with my Christmas money] and they wrote that the aunt had never given them the money. Should I ask the aunt for an explanation, or just forget

DEAR POLLY-Terry wrote that the magnetic catch on her new breadbox has lost its oomph. I was in the same situation. DEAR POLLY-If you find it necessary to hang things on the back of a bathroom or bedroom door but you can see them through the crack when the door is open or back against the wall, lightly nail a piece of 34- or 1/2-inch round along the back edge of the door from hinge to hinge. 10A-The Sanford Herald Tuesday, April 25, 1972 Advance In District Play

The upcoming FISHATHON sponsored by Radio Station WHOO will use Hiley's Fish Camp as head quarters and weigh station according to information released by Ray Beal, station announcer. Prizes will be awarded for the largest fish of each species entered from any body of fresh water in the area. A special award will also be made to the FAMILY entering the largest number of fish. The contest is open to any sports fishermen and dates set are May 13 to May 20.

USING a live worm and fishing for bream Robert Stricklin of Ocoee was surprised by this five and three-fourths pound bass in his fishing trip on the Wekiva River near the Wekiva River Haven.

Some fine catches should be posted if the fish continue to cooperate during the fishathon week as they have for the past few days. A few of the many catches listed for Lake Jessup included 69 bluegills for Cannon and Josie Ezell of Apopka, 30 bream and catfish for Dallas Pitts and Bob DeMoss of Orlando. Ward Curtis and party landed 30 bluegills and shellcrackers on a Saturday outing. "Catfish, shellcrackers and pan fish are plentiful for those who have the patience to wait for them," Hiley reported. They are not on the beds but are getting ready to move onto them. Most of the half-day trips are producing 30 to 40 per boat, with the all day anglers taking as many as 55 to 60.

Shad fishing is over for this season; the roe shad have just about completed their spawning, and according to the dictates of Nature, are dying. Bob King, Marina Isle Fish Camp, says that bluegills and shellcrackers are the best bet, with crickets for bait. School bass are striking in most of the favorite spots along the river and catfish are still filling stringers for the cane polers, mussels the bait. Charles Merritt and Mr. McNeil plugged the sandbar at the west end of Lake Harney on Monday and Tuesday, landing limits of school sized bass both days. Merritt said they were hitting on anything thrown at them. Donald Spivey tried Snake Creek for an hour after the thunder storm Sunday evaning, found a few striking, and landed three of them. Fly fishing around the Marina Isle section is also paying off with bream and bass striking popping bugs.

produced some nice strings of Bass lately according to Paul Johnson of the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp. Specs, bream and cats are still hitting good in that area.

At Wekiva River Haven Camp, George Cheney told of a 5% pound bass falling for a live worm to Robert Stricklin Saturday, Stricklin and his father came over from Ocoee to get a mess of Wekiva River catfish, got the catfish, and the bass for a bonus. Vic Hawkins used live shiners to land four bass on a Tuesday trip, with a nine pounder, a six pounder and two smaller ones putting the weight on his stringer. Redbreast bream are on the beds and some large ones are being caught according to Cheney. Fly fishing is good now in this area, but catfish are still the hottest item with boats getting 12 to 40 per party of the one to three pounders.

DeLand visitors to Camp Seminole, J. C. Smith and Walter West, landed six bass (two to four pounds) on a recent trip, whole Chris Peterson landed a pair of them in the same size range using shiners. Worms accounted for 15 small bass and panfish for Henry Russell. John Hill and wife, Dottie, took bass of five and six pounds, with Dottie getting the larger one, as usual.

Panfish, cats and redbreast are hitting so well that Ottis Faulk, camp manager, doesn't count 'em - just puts them on the scale. Bernan Garman used mussells for bait and landed over 20 pounds. Eddie Shedd had 20 pounds, while his father, Jack Shedd, took some 30 pounds.

The bright glow in the sky toward the East Coast each night is probably due to the many gasoline lanterns hanging over the Intra-coastal Waterway. Shrimp dipping season is here and hundreds of people are taking advantage of it to put a few pounds of the tasty morsels in their freezers. The Indian Mound, Oakhill and Turtle Mound sections of the river looks like the great white way with the many boats and lights strung out along the channel. Crabbing is also good with some catches of a couple of bushels per boat being reported. Wayne Brady of the Fishin' Hole Tackle Shop in Daytona reported too that many crabs are being taken in the St. Johns River above DeLand. "Bridge fishing is rather slow, just a few drum biting," said Brady. All the piers, with the exception of Main Street Pier in Daytona, reported the water too dirty for any good fishing, but Merle Keller at Main Street said the school of weekfish which has blessed anglers there for three weeks, is still handing around. There are a few pompano and lots of whiting, thrown in the variety. The weekfish are hitting anything, Sea Hawk Plugs, cut bait or live shrimp, it doesn't seem to matter, said Keller.

Ocean fishing has tapered off for the party boats out of Inlet Harbor as the tremendous school of king mackerel moved further north. A few are still hanging ground, Spanish mackerel are showing u p in small doses, snapper fishingjust fair. However, passengers aboard the "Snow White 2," Capt. Al Kline, are bringing in a goodly number of amberines (small amberjacks).

Every year several members of the Halifax Sports Fishing Club put up money for an impromptu sailfish contest based on the first one caught for the season. Sunday, Marty Johnson, Art Sullivan and Dick Folsom, took off for the Gulfstream (40 miles out) to try for the jackpot. They connected. Marty landed the first one, two hours later, Folsom landed the second and Sullivan missed a strike. One sail a day is good for these parts, but three hooked and two of them landed is most unusual. The only catch to the contest is that the winner has to use the jack-pot to put on a feed for the other participants. Sailfish should be working their way closer in shore soon and indications are that this should be an excellent summer

The second wahoo of the season came in aboard the "Black Duck," Captain Don Welch, on Friday, a five foot, one inch speciman. Another "open to the public" fishing contest will take place May 13-14. This is the Halitax Sports Fishing Club's annual bottom fish tourney, with Dan's Boathouse in New Scryrna being headquarters and weighing station. Prizes will be awarded for the largest snapper and largest grouper caught in the ocean; the largest sheepshead and drum landed inside the inlet. A children's division is scheduled for this affair also, LET'S GO FISHING!

Girl Hits Teacher, Faces Court Action

By BILL SCOTT

A 17-year-old girl, a senior at Seminole High School, is awaiting sentencing in municipal court today after pleading guilty to striking a high school teacher. A 13-year-old Lakeview Middle School girl was treated at Seminole Memorial Hospital for injuries sustained in trying to fend off the unwanted advances made by a seventh grader.

The older girl, who would have graduated in six weeks, was expelled by the School Board Tuesday for the remainder of this term after she admitted hitting an English teacher, when she was not allowed to go to the bathroom.

The 12th-grader appeared with her parents at a public hearing conducted by the board and, according to Seminole High School assistant principal Richard Evans, admitted striking Kay Lee, teacher, after being refused permission to leave the room. Mrs. Lee told the board assault and battery charges had been filed against the student. Upon Herald investigation it was determined the student already had entered a guilty plea and is expected to receive sentencing today from Sanford Municipal Judge Roger Berry.
