

GOOD PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR PRESS MEETING

Problems faced by newspaper publishers in daily conduct of business will be chief topics of discussion by members of the Florida Press Association at its meeting here April 17-19, according to the program, just made public by Secretary George E. Hosmer, of the Fort Myers Press. Mr. Hosmer himself will speak on plans for making the association more of a business organization.

Grosvenor Dawe, former editor of Nation's Business, who has recently taken up residence in Florida, will be the first speaker on the afternoon program of the first day's meeting.

The newspaper men will be welcomed to Cocoa by the mayor, and the response will be made by R. J. Holly, editor of Florida Trucker, Sanford.

The complete program follows: Thursday Morning, April 17. 10 a. m., Registration of members. Paying dues. Secretary Hosmer will be ready to greet all members at this time. 10:30 a. m., Address of welcome, Mayor of Cocoa. 10:40 a. m., Response by R. J. Holly, editor Florida Trucker, Sanford. 10:50 a. m., President's address, Ed. Taylor, of Miami Herald.

11:30 a. m., Question box. E. cryose is urged to ask questions about problems that are troubling them.

Thursday Afternoon. Luncheon. 2:00 p. m., Miss Call Binkley. 2:05 p. m., Address, "Public Service by Florida Newspapers," Grosvenor Dawe, former editor, Nation's Business. 2:30 p. m., "Are the National Editorial Association's Advertising Rates High Enough," Clayton C. Codrington, representing daily newspapers; Stanley Licht, representing weekly newspapers.

3:00 p. m., "Building a New Building—Some Advantages of Owning Your Building," R. H. Bag, Sanford Herald. Discussion. Round table discussion of newspaper problems. First taking up items in the Question Box of the morning. 7:30 p. m., Banquet. Speakers on behalf of association: Frank E. Steneman, Miami Herald; Herbert Felkel, St. Augustine Record; and Karl Lehmann, of Orange County Echoes.

Friday, April 18. 9:30 a. m., Announcements by secretary and by Cocoa committee. 9:40 a. m., Address, Emmett A. Discussion. 11:30 a. m., "How to Make This Association More of a Business Organization," George E. Hosmer, Fort Myers Press. Discussion. 12 noon, "The National Editorial Association," J. C. Lochner, Florida publisher.

Saturday, April 19. 9:40 a. m., Address, "How to Make the Most of Yourself," Homer Milton Baker. 9:30 a. m., Music. 10 a. m., "Why We Use the Franklin Price List," T. J. Appleyard, state printer, Tallahassee. Discussion. 10:30 a. m., "The Work of the Southeastern Master Printers' Association," E. P. Mickel, Nashville, Tenn. Discussion. 10:45 a. m., "Newspaper Building," William M. Glenn, Orlando Sentinel. 11 a. m., Reports of secretary, treasurer and committees. 11:30 a. m., Selection of place for next meeting. 11:45 a. m., Election of officers. 12 noon, Adjournment.

A federal reserve board study of practical methods of stabilizing international exchange and extension of the department of agriculture's service were decided upon by President Coolidge as farm relief steps.

NOT REALLY LOST

No article of value is really lost until after The Herald Wants have been called upon to restore it to the rightful owner. Pocketbooks, jewelry, apparel, personal possessions, things of intrinsic value and others that are prized because of their association, are often quickly returned, when temporarily lost, through Herald Wants. Herald Wants are the first thing to consult when something of value is lost or found. Herald Wants bring losers and finders together. To reach all the people effectively—leave your Want Ad at The Herald office. Phone us to send for it or phone it to the Want Ad Department.

With what pride we read our boys' papers this week! We find them a most ardent defender of the birds and really the best friends birds have. With boys as these growing up in our fair land of Florida, we are sure to win prominence by the largest number of reservations for birds. We enjoyed the essays of the girls, too. All hearts were in the right place we found.

Birds. Verna Dieter. Sixth Grade. Prize Winner. We know that a bird has a body, two wings, feathers, two feet and a beak. The bones are thin and hollow. The hollows are filled with warm air, which enables the birds to fly. As they are thin, the bones do not hold even the heaviest bird down. They are very light and his breast is the keel and to it are fastened the strong muscles used in flying. His tail feathers are hollow like the bones and are used as a ruder for guiding. The wings act as oars or sails. The tiny feathers are used as clothing.

Wading birds have partly webbed feet and long, strong bills. Scratching birds happen to have separate toes and sharp nails and sharp beaks. Perching birds have small feet and long toes. So we see that different birds differ quite a lot. Near my home is a small oak tree. In the tree there is the nest of a pair of turtle doves. Every morning I go to my father's field to get food. They spread their long tails and fly away on whistling wings. A friend of ours works hard in the field all day trying to prevent the growth of noxious weeds and believes this is the way to prevent this growth. If farmers would allow doves to stay in their fields, they would kill many weeds and save much labor.

The contents of 237 doves' stomachs showed that over 99 per cent of the contents were vegetable matter in the form of seeds. The principal food of doves are seeds of weeds, and these are eaten at all seasons of the year. In many sections of our country great numbers of these valuable birds are killed during certain seasons of the year. It is a question for the farmers to settle, whether they will allow anyone to kill on their land birds that yearly destroy tons of noxious plants.

Legend of Colorful Birds. Grade Six. Louise Fernald. A long time ago the Indians used to tell their children that when the leaves fell from the trees, the Great Spirit did not want them to die there so he would put wings on them and let them fly and they were called birds. The yellow leaves made yellow birds, the brown leaves made brown birds, and the red and scarlet leaves made red birds.

Some kinds of birds are the cardinal, the blue and red birds, the scarlet tanager, the wren, the mocking bird and the sparrow. The cardinal is of bright red color. He has a little tuft of feathers on the top of his head. Around his bill is black, and his bill is yellow. The birds come in the spring and begin to build their nests. The cardinals usually have three eggs in their nests. The eggs hatch out in about March, April or May. Some of the cardinals' habits are to get up high in a tree and sing, and they also take sun baths and pick their feathers. They always pick out a nice shady place in the swamps for their nests. They build their nests of pine needles, straw, thread and feathers. The reason why I like birds is because they sing so sweetly and they are so pretty. They also tell us when spring has come. The birds pour forth their souls in notes of rapture from a thousand throats.

PRESIDENT MONROE'S SON, AGE 108, WRITES LETTER TO HIS COUSIN, 99

By NEA Service.

Jacksonville, Florida
June 29, 1924

My Dear Cousin
I was glad to hear you both are feeling so much better, this bright New Year. We have had quite a cold spell here, but I think the cold is about

PART OF A LETTER WRITTEN BY MAJOR EDWARD JAMES MONROE (RIGHT), SON OF PRESIDENT MONROE, TO HIS COUSIN, GENERAL NELSON MONROE (LEFT.)

ARLINGTON, Mass., Mar. 31.—How's your handwriting? As good as this? Perhaps not. But don't worry. It may become so in time. For the writer of the above letter is more than 108 years old!

He is Major Edward James Monroe, son of President Monroe. And he is as steady in his old age as he is in his handwriting.

Born on July 4, 1815, in King George's county, Va., he has seen 25 presidents follow his father into office. He has kept his hand on the pulse of all big national events. And in all the years has not lost track of his relatives!

As witness this letter from his home in Jacksonville, Fla., to General Nelson Monroe, a cousin, here. The general is no longer a youngster himself, having celebrated his 99th birthday recently. But an active life has kept him young. While a student at the University of Pennsylvania, he enlisted as a private in the Mexican War. There in the Civil War he became a general.

But in all these years the two cousins have kept close touch on each other by writing.

With a new flourish in each letter. habits are to get up high in a tree and sing, and they also take sun baths and pick their feathers. They always pick out a nice shady place in the swamps for their nests. They build their nests of pine needles, straw, thread and feathers. The reason why I like birds is because they sing so sweetly and they are so pretty. They also tell us when spring has come. The birds pour forth their souls in notes of rapture from a thousand throats. The Quail and Mocking Bird. Sixth Grade. James Higgins. Our southland would be very lonely without our feathered

Florida. There are many birds in Florida. Among the most loved birds of our state is the mocking bird. The mocking bird is the great singer of the south. The bird mocks all the other birds, but it proves the song. Another good bird of the south is the quail. This bird is a great friend of the farmer. The quail is a field bird. It builds its nest on the ground. The birds of Florida are not protected as they should be. The quail is a very valuable bird to the farmer because it eats many insects that are the enemies of the farmer. We need not ask what would become of our forests if it were not for our feathered friends, because insects would come in and destroy all our trees. Bird reservations are tracts of land set aside for birds. They are usually located by a lake or where there is plenty of water. The people of Florida should protect the birds by making more reservations. Make your home a bird sanctuary. It will be the best investment you ever made. Protect the birds in this way.

CLEARWATER, Mar. 29.—Dr. and Mrs. Bethel McMullen a few days ago celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary within a few feet of the place where they went to housekeeping 50 years ago at Bay View. More than one hundred relatives and friends were present to honor the couple. Dr. McMullen passed his 78th birthday last December, and Mrs. McMullen is 70.

HOLLOWAY SELECTED

DAYTONA, Mar. 29.—"Bill" Holloway has been selected to pilot the local Florida League baseball team this season in succession to Guy Lacy, who was awarded to the Richmond (Virginia League) club by the National Association. Holloway is a native of Volusia county and began his baseball career at Mercer University, Macon, where he completed his education. He played semi-pro ball in Pennsylvania three seasons and later went to the Three I League, playing with Bloomington for two seasons.

Bits of Beauty Reveal The Glory of the Whole

VISITORS at Coral Gables are constantly meeting with joyful surprises in bits of beauty which greet the eye on every side—beauty of architectural detail, of azure sky. Or a delightful entrance fashioned in the style of the warm Mediterranean countries and breathing of their hospitality and. Sometimes it is a quiet rest-seat in a plaza invitingly offering itself to the visitor. Or a broad expanse of pine-fringed fairway against a background of azure sky.

There are thousands of these at Coral Gables. They enthrall one at every turn. Each appears to enter into friendly rivalry for first place in your regard. But you see so many of them that finally the knowledge is forced home upon you that they are not a matter of pure accident, nor here by chance, but that each and every one of them is part of a great and beautiful plan, and more, that each and all are linked together in a common bond of glory.

It is with Coral Gables just as it has been with Miami for many years. The visitor first comes with a perfectly natural desire to satisfy curiosity. He may come a second time to make certain that his over-joying estimate of beauty was not a matter of too fervid first impression. But he finally stays to enjoy the delights and pleasures which are here in unbounded measure, and which are not to be found anywhere else.

Come to Coral Gables tomorrow—or some day this week—with the special purpose of studying its advantages as a permanent home. Such a trip will be well worth while. Make your reservations at our local office for this free sightseeing trip.

THE BEST

IN SANFORD CELERY AS IN OTHER THINGS---

Whenever and wherever the BLUE GOOSE trademark meets the eye of produce handler, grocer or consumer it invariably indicates a product which is Uniformly the Best of its kind from its respective section.

Good advertising has thus interpreted the BLUE GOOSE trademark and fixed upon it a meaning that inspires confidence on the part of intending purchasers. This confidence accounts for their willingness to pay a premium for the product thus distinguished.

In the case of Sanford celery this is equally as true as with other products. The high average prices obtained for Sanford celery under the BLUE GOOSE trademark this season have been a source of gratification to us, and a source of substantial revenue to those growers for whom we sell.

One of the largest selling organizations of its kind in the world is keenly awaiting shipments of BLUE GOOSE celery from Sanford. Over 160 resident representatives in as many markets in the United States and Canada, reinforced by many traveling men, are alert to see that BLUE GOOSE celery sells to best advantage and that the interests of the growers are protected. They, likewise, have come to have the fullest confidence in the quality, grade and pack which the BLUE GOOSE invariably indicates on celery shipped from Sanford.

Our unceasing effort to maintain the very best grade and pack on Sanford celery under the BLUE GOOSE label is finding reward. From a great many markets this season we have received many compliments upon these features. When it is considered that these compliments included the paying of a premium for the celery thus distinguished their sincerity hardly may be questioned.

It is to those growers we serve, however, that a large part of our success in this direction undoubtedly is due. The genuine and hearty support which they have given to us in our work has done much to make our success possible; and we hardly can do less than to attempt to express in some small part our appreciation for their co-operation.

Even Bootleggers Believe in Advertising

The Bootleggers' News is the name of a new four page paper that has made its appearance. It is devoted exclusively to the interests of the rum smuggling and bootlegging world and officially announced that its publication was a violation of the Volstead act.

Prices of many varieties of liquors are given in the little paper but it does not say where the liquor consumer may secure his supply. The contents of the paper are noted on page one as "A comprehensive list of reliable liquors available at the time this paper went to press; also a concise report of the liquor situation at the twelve mile limit and ashore by faithful rum news reporters."

A copy of the bootleggers' paper has fallen into the hands of government men and an effort is being made. It is termed where and by whom the paper is printed in this thought probable that the publication is not a country.

Even the despised bootlegger believes in the value of keeping his product before the public. The little slow and a newspaper. Business is probably a little slow and these violators of the United States law are doing a little advertising in the hope that it can make bigger profits. At any rate they must be going after business.

Electing a Business Good.

An election is a bad year from a business standpoint. It seems to be a custom for the cry to go out every four years when a president is chosen, that business is bound to be tight. The cry is not always true. The cry is not always true. The cry is not always true.

Instead of 1924 being a bad year it is going to be a real breaker from a business standpoint. Washington's affairs don't seem to be effecting business conditions as they used to do. And now the big business men of the nation are predicting that this will be a much bigger year than 1923.

The American Railway Association is responsible for the statement that for the first seven weeks of this year the loading of revenue freight was 6,133,170 cars as compared with 5,905,877 for the same period of last year, and 1923 was considered as an extraordinary year. At this rate of increase the figures will be starting by the end of the year.

Business is on the up-grade. Everyone is commenting on how big an increase their particular line has made. Merchants are reporting great business, farmers good crops and good prices, real estate is moving rapidly and with big increases, building activities are unusually heavy all over the state, and in fact from all sides comes report of unexpected business gains.

There will be no hard times in 1924. Business is too good.

MORE IMPORTANT PRIMARIES and conventions are scheduled to be held this week. On Tuesday both the Democrats and Republicans hold primaries in New York and Wisconsin. On Wednesday the Connecticut Republican convention is held at Hartford and the Kansas Democratic convention is held at Hutchinson. On Thursday the Republicans of Maine hold a convention at Portland while on Saturday at Wenatchee the Washington Republican convention will be held.

WITH PUBLIC SENTIMENT nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed. Consequently, he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions possible to be executed.—Abraham Lincoln.

CONGRESSMEN ARE EXEMPT

A fact that is not generally known is that members of congress and United States senators are exempt from the payment of income taxes. This state of affairs may explain why our dear senators and congressmen in Washington are not at all worried over the extent of the levy made upon the people since that levy does not affect them personally through the medium of the pocket book.

The country is still rebellious over the income tax imposition and will continue to be because it has stiffed and is still stifling business, putting the brakes on energy, and initiative and acting as a general damper to every line of endeavor in which money is involved.

It is this condition of personal exemption which may be responsible for the incident related by the Jacksonville Journal in which a wage-earner wrote to a congressman, urging, as hundreds of thousands have done, reduction of the high surtax rates levied by the present iniquitous schedule.

"The question seems plausible on its face and yet anyone who stops to consider the matter for more than one minute will readily understand that the wage earner knew what he was talking about and that the congressman didn't. As a matter of fact the small wage earner is not at all interested in the reduction of the income tax rates on small incomes for he has no income tax directly. His income in most instances is so small as not to exceed his exemptions. But the small wage earner pays indirectly the high surtax rates on larger incomes. The manufacturer, the professional man, the corporation or public service concerns, pays it heavy income tax and adds that tax to the cost of price charged for goods or services. The consumer or the patron pays the tax in the end. This is a fact that no one will question when the analyzes the effect of taxation, and yet it is a fact a great many people overlook.

There can be no room for argument as to the blighting effect the present plan of paying for the hell on earth initiated by Kaiser Bill and his minions back in July, 1914, has had on our country, to say nothing of the other countries involved which have suffered far more than we. Of course the war debts will have to be paid and congress does not seem disposed to consider a sales tax or any other method of raising the money but that body should at least take the matter out of dirty politics and afford such immediate relief as may be possible."

MY FAVORITE STORIES

There is a gentleman connected with one of the allied industries of the dramatic profession who has a pretty wit and a mother-in-law. His sense of humor generally is admired and doubtless there are many worthy persons who like his mother-in-law, too, but among them he is not included. Whenever the old lady comes to town to see her daughter, the gentleman in question goes away from the flat and stays away from it until the visitor has departed. Such times, he lives at his club and communicates with his wife by telephone and with regret must tell it—finds solace for his solitude in a bootlegger's wares. In other words, he believes in advertising.

HERE IS a new radio idea. British broadcasters will install a microphone and very small transmitting set in each bird's nest, frequency modulated, and the frequency of the bird, "not born for death" will be heard all over England.

JUST FIFTY years ago, young Hart Peas Danke and his wife lived happily. He even wrote a song, to tell her that his affection would last forever. "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was the title of that song. You remember it will, if you're fifty. It's a pretty song, many have butchered it. It made money, and when prosperity came in one door, harmony flew out of the other. Danke and his wife separated. His son and daughter have quarreled about royalties on the song.

IN 1923 an old man was found dead, kneeling beside his bed in a Philadelphia lodging house. On an old copy of "Silver Threads" he had written this: "It's hard to grow old alone." That was Danke. She had died at 82, in a Brooklyn rooming house, where she lived alone.

CONSTRUCT YOUR OWN moral, and be sure to include this: It's better to put a good house and lot in your wife's name, or build up for her a respectable bank account that you can't touch, than to sing to her "Yes, my darling; you will be always young and fair to me."

TWO MORE investigations coming at Washington—the Emergency Bureau and the Aircraft Board will have their turn. One thing may be said for the aircraft gentlemen, they were thorough. The country got less for each dollar they spent than for any other dollar ever spent by anybody anywhere.

MR. AL JENNINGS, former bank robber, or train robber, offers to prove that "an oil deal" of $1,000,000 nominated Harding. That's a shock. Everybody thought George Harvey sat in a dark room at the Blackston Hotel, smoking black cigars, and did it all alone. What did Harvey do, if he did not nominate Harding?

"DO YOU believe in personal immortality? Shall we meet again, know each other, and identify ourselves in another world?" That question comes once a week, and you hardly know what to answer when you read of Theodore Fenton, buried last week in a suburb of Brooklyn.

THE DOORS WERE HEAVILY bolted and a half, five o'clock, was fed with a medicine dropper, buried in the coffin and smallest grave. Yet he was as much a personality as Dempsey, Atilla or George Washington. Will his mother meet and remember him, as he was when he died? He cannot identify himself, of course. If he is changed for the next life, how will he be changed? It is puzzling.

B. C. FORBES says that Europe is selling steel products here, for less than it costs to make them here. That result of high pressure development of steel production, all over Europe, was predicted in this column before the war ended.

WHAT WILL happen to the smaller American companies? United States Steel, the industrial giant, can sell at a profit for less than it costs competitors to manufacture. The big company hitherto has been content to take big profits and not squeeze the little man to the wall.

IF, HOWEVER, Europe comes under-selling, United States Steel will have to fight Europe, and forcing the little concern here. Unless new tariff rules save the situation, it will be a fine fight. With the eight-hour day, instead of twelve hours, and the American wage scale, Europe has a gigantic advantage.

A NEW arms parley is talked of. Well-meaning geese want to get this country into more trouble. Have we not read enough from Washington?

The idea is to cut down expenses for defense. But what have European expenses to do with ours? All of our people's armament is there, to defend the European continent. There is only this nation that body should at least take the matter out of dirty politics and afford such immediate relief as may be possible."

IN THE old days, before the war had brought England close to bankruptcy, Englishmen always demanded a navy not merely equal to that of any other European power, but a navy equal to the combined navies of any two other powers in the world.

THIS COUNTRY needs enough flyers, submarines and other weapons to defend the American continent against Europe or Asia, or both. And what our European friends can, or cannot afford, affords no concern to us. We do not make war, but we do not intend to have it brought here. Continued on Page 6

THE THREE RIVIERAS

BY JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES IN THE PALM BEACH POST

By John Temple Graves. On the southern coast of Europe, just where the Mediterranean arches its softest curve into France, with a center at Genoa, stretching eastward to the Italian Alps and running west and south through Mentone and Monaco, and Monte Carlo, and Cannes and Nice—there is an expanse of soft and beautiful country to which the old world people have given the name of The Riviera.

For a hundred years or more it has been the health resort of European people. From the frozen Norways and Sweden, and Denmark, from Russia, Steppes and Polish hills, from the chill of English winters, the grim, gray moors of Scotland, the cold of France and Germany, they have trooped by the thousands every year seeking a softer climate—in the milder health, and rich climate of this southern Riviera.

There was nothing else known to be like it anywhere, and Americans, growing rich with the wanderlust in their veins, have followed, as they always followed Europe, and trooped in monotonous thousands to the softness and the charm of Genoa, and Nice, and Cannes, and the glitter and pomp of Monte Carlo—the first great world's Riviera.

A few years after the "Forty-Niners" had found gold in California, those who found it, and those who followed the "Forty-Niners," found in California a climate richer than the gold for which they forded and swam and crossed a continent. Time came and that speedily, when this restful, less country, the fast-growing rich of the east and the south of the center, were making the Golden Gate of San Francisco the objective of every pleasure seeker's goal, and to Fresno and Santa Barbara, to Los Angeles and San Diego, they went trooping in multitudes to the new and greater Riviera of the west, greater than the old first Riviera of the Mediterranean shore.

And now in the lifetime of the present generation, within two brief, bright decades of American life, there has come to the world's acceptance—a new and greater resort—the third, the last, the greatest Riviera of them all—here on this eastern coast of a great American commonwealth which we long since named the Land of Flowers, there has been born in a night, as it were—born out of men's observation, out of the common consensus of human thought and speech, and judgment.

THEIR ANSWER

TAMPA TRIBUNE

The Democrats of Georgia, Missouri and North Dakota have given an answer to the efforts of the Republican leaders and their Democratic allies to block the nomination of William G. McAdoo by attempting to connect his name with the oil scandals. The verdict of the primaries of these states, was overwhelming for McAdoo. Wall Street, which is bitterly opposed to Mr. McAdoo, for more reasons than one, is lending its aid to the anti-McAdoo propaganda by publishing fake betting odds, inspired, of course, by the oil scandals. The former Secretary of the Treasury he defeated for the nomination. The Wall Street odds are four to one against the nomination and twelve to one against the election of McAdoo, while Mr. Underwood, who is the Wall Street preference for the Democratic nomination, provided John W. Davis, Morgan attorney, cannot land it, is given a one to three chance of the nomination and a one to nine chance of election. Mr. Coolidge, of course, is the overwhelming favorite in the Wall Street "book."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
"Lift up your eyes and look on the fields," indicates clearly a deep interest on the part of Him who made the appeal. There are multitudes who are not taking time to turn their eyes upon the field, and some of these may ask some very pertinent questions about this urgent appeal. Why should we take our eyes from social life, and look on the field? Why should we take our eyes from politics and look on the field? Why should we take our eyes from business and look on the field? In this study these and other questions must be considered with seriousness and candor.

Some Hints on Making Clothing Money Go Further

Do men take as good care of their clothes as women do of theirs? No, generally it is the women's job to take care of the men folk's wardrobes or else the clothes are often sadly neglected. And even more important than sewing on weak buttons or torn pockets is the education of the average man on the art of taking care of clothes so as to gain in appearance and save money.

EASY SETTLEMENT

The problem of needs is easily settled the principle of reciprocity, for what one has to sell the other wants to buy.

This is the great principle underlying Herald Want Ads and it has worked for years with such great success that this form of advertising has come to be very popular.

The needs of one are supplied by the needs of another. This process simply is the getting of the buyer and seller together and Herald Want Ads do this.

To reach all the people effectively leave your Want Ad at The Herald office. Phone us to send for it or phone it to the Want Ad Department.

Taking Care of the Man's Wardrobe

Some Hints on Making Clothing Money Go Further

Do men take as good care of their clothes as women do of theirs? No, generally it is the women's job to take care of the men folk's wardrobes or else the clothes are often sadly neglected. And even more important than sewing on weak buttons or torn pockets is the education of the average man on the art of taking care of clothes so as to gain in appearance and save money.

MIKE M'TIGUE WILL DEFEND HIS LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE AGAINST YOUNG STRIBLING, MACON SCHOOLBOY TONIGHT AT NEWARK IN 12-ROUND NO-DECISION BOUT

Light Heavyweights Will Settle Controversy of Long Standing. Two M'tigue's Met Last October When He Was a Draw

NEW YORK, Mar. 31.—An attempt to settle a controversy of long standing will be made tonight when Mike M'tigue of Ireland, will defend his light-heavyweight boxing title against Young Stribling of Macon and Atlanta, Ga., in a 12-round no-decision bout at Newark, N. J.

The two boxers met before in Columbus, Ga., last October, and conflicting decisions were reached as to who won the contest. M'tigue declared he was the winner and asserted he entered the ring with his right hand injured and virtually useless.

Stribling was just as insistent that he had won the bout. Both boxers were confident of victory tonight.

"I'll stop him inside of 10 rounds," M'tigue said. "It's the first time I ever boasted before a battle but there is more than ordinary ring rivalry between us. I fought him a draw before with one broken hand; what will I do with two mitts? I've trained for a knockout and I never was in better condition."

The 19-year-old Stribling, supported by "Ma" and "Pa" and his brother, had ideas exactly opposite to those expressed by the champion.

"I'll be light-heavyweight champion of the world after the bout," he stated, "and if M'tigue hadn't had his hand-picked referee at Columbus, I would be wearing the crown today. I out-knocked him then and I'll knock him out tonight."

Stribling must knock the champion out to take the title, unless Michael fails to respond to the bell at any round, or loses the bout on a foul.

Ring experts were inclined to give M'tigue a slight edge over his youthful antagonist, but admitted the possibility of a Stribling victory. M'tigue has been nursing his injured hand and has not fought since his October battle with the present challenger.

The latter has engaged in numerous short contests.

Among many boxing fans M'tigue was a slight favorite in the betting although it was reported that few wagers had been made because of the fact that the bout would be a no-decision affair.

The two boxers will enter the ring in the best of condition. M'tigue has trained harder, perhaps, than he ever has trained before and Stribling's many bouts in different parts of the country have kept his fighting class sharp.

He has worked under the careful supervision of "Pa" Stribling and "Ma" has watched his diet.

M'tigue has filled his camp with sparring partners of varying size and has practiced punching from every angle and every distance.

The bout is expected to attract an enormous crowd, many Stribling enthusiasts having come from southern points to watch the youthful boxer meet his old rival. Many who sat with the struggle in Georgia last fall are expected to be on hand.

WHEELER SAYS STATE REJECTS CHARGES MADE

"A competent prosecutor always will refuse to conduct such prosecutions, refuse to prosecute, and so far as you did so, it was with the sanction, approval and suggestion of the court, in furtherance of sound public policy and in vindication of your official oath and duty to yourself, to the court and to society."

Judge Bourquin said he made his statement "with no object but simple justice, honest, able prosecutor in a most trying period of our country's history."

In a later communication Judge

"Fingers!"
It's the turn of Pat Harrison, Mississippi senator, to grab and if Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania doesn't yell "Fingers!" Pat will win in "choosing up sides" for the first baseball game of the Washington season. Watching them are Senator Copeland of New York and Senator Volstead of Indiana.

Large Crowd to Georgia Rooters Journey To See Young Stribling Meet M'Tigue In Newark Ring

NEW YORK, Mar. 31.—A delegation of 500 boxing fans from Macon and Atlanta arrived here at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon prepared to root themselves hoarse in a desperate effort to bring Young Stribling, their idol, home a winner over Mike M'tigue when the two clash in a 12-round battle for the light-heavyweight championship of the world in Newark tonight. Mike M'tigue holds the title, and the only way Young Stribling can take it away from him is to knock the Irishman right out of the picture. Otherwise Mike's crown is safe. The scuffle is one of those no-decision fights.

Mr. J. Franklin Black, treasurer of the National Sportsmen's Club, which is sponsoring the battle, said Saturday that he was holding more than 500 reservations for persons who will come from below the Mason and Dixon line to see another war involving the north and south. Most of these sportsmen from the so-called sunny south are coming here convinced that Georgia's fighting school boy is going to prove to the world that he was robbed when Referee Harry Ertle called his last kiss with M'tigue a draw. That fight took place last October in Columbus, Ga.

It is reported that many members of the Ku Klux Klan will be among the audience on Monday night. They will root hard for Young Stribling, but they will be asked by the management to check their guns and carry crowns at the gate. Among others rooting hard for the Georgia youth will be Ma and Pa Stribling. Ma Stribling says that after her boy disposes of Mike M'tigue he will go right on and do the same thing to Jack Dempsey eventually.

Paul Berlenbach, the local middleweight who meets Harry Krohn in the 10-round semi-final to the M'tigue-Stribling affair, will join the Stribling camp today and will get the schoolboy box a strenuous workout. Ma and Pa Stribling would be wise to see that Mr. Berlenbach works under double wraps.

A news dispatch says that Berlenbach's purpose in boxing with Stribling is to put the finishing touches on the schoolboy. It is to be hoped that he don't take the thing seriously. He has put the finishing touches on many a good man. If we were Ma Stribling we'd keep our boy as far away from Mr. Berlenbach as possible. He's not safe company for a promising Georgia schoolboy.

Young Stribling went through a strenuous workout Saturday, covering five miles on the road, skipping rope, punching the bag, shadow boxing and winding up with lively sparring sessions with Young Ahern and Joe McCann.

Despite glowing reports from Young Stribling's training camp, M'tigue continued to be a slight favorite in the betting yesterday.

Ty Cobb Remains Baseball Idol of The Entire South

AUGUSTA, Ga., Mar. 31.—Died's admiration for Ty Cobb as warm now as when the Peach was the flying Georgian who thrilled hundreds of thousands of fans during the year he was at the peak of his career.

Though Cobb's legs have lost much of their suppleness and the splendor of his triumphs is considerably dimmed, he still is the idol of the South. No matter where the Georgian goes, he is synonymous with baseball. Hotel clerks declare a respite from all toil and labor will come crowded with worshippers who regard it an achievement of a lifetime if they but for an instant gaze upon the greatest player the national pastime ever produced.

Even Pullman porters stop work to peer into a car where the Peach might be seated, while dining car waiters scramble for the favor he could bestow on them by sitting at their tables.

Years of this idolatry has become irksome to Cobb, but he can not escape it down here, where the people work in the morning and reserve the afternoon and evening for excitement. From the region of the country south of the Mason-Dixon line there have come many great ball players, but to the people there is just one for whom they would, were the request made of them, sacrifice their most valued possessions for the friendship of this man.

Bourquin followed up his statement Wheeler upon his 1922 election predicting that his senate service "would rebound to your credit and to the people's benefit" and adding in a personal postscript, "appropos certain litigation of 1917 you were right that I would 'get you' and I was right that if they did, it would contribute to your future advancement."

Gator Captain Has Signed a Brooklyn Baseball Contract

GAINESVILLE, Mar. 31.—Captain Howard M. Bracken, of Deerfield, Fla., sensational young university of Florida third baseman, and regarded as the finest infielder to ever perform under the orange and blue, will report to the Brooklyn Nationals on June 1. It was officially announced and talked today in athletic circles.

"Howie" Bracken for three seasons has been the mainstay and the star of Florida university's baseball team, and his contract with the Robins will give him the long hoped for opportunity of seeing action in the major leagues. His army of friends on the Gator campus, who have followed his activities in recent years, are loud in their praise of the Gator pilot, and believe that his phenomenal playing will win for him a berth within Brooklyn's inner works.

It is authoritatively reported that Brooklyn was one of the strongest pitching staffs in the National League, but that her infield is slipping, with third base looming as Robinson's greatest source of worry. When "Howie" spent a week with the Robins down in Clearwater, late last month, he won wide press recognition, and was heralded as the equal in fielding of any man in the Brooklyn club.

Captain Bracken fields the "hot" corner with the natural ability that causes fans to marvel at his quickness and ease. He gobles them up with keen ability on either side of his position and throws on a dead line to first base, with an arm that is one of the most valuable assets—fast, accurate and with plenty of push.

At bat "Howie" is consistent, but not a topper of league records. Against Mercer here recently he poked one for four sacks that prevented "Gator" shutout and in a pinch he delivered nicely. Bracken can play

The basketball team of Bryn Mawr has gone through the season without a defeat being chalked against it. The players are (back row, left to right) Frances Jay, New York; Caroline Remok, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Sally McAdoo, Los Angeles, daughter of Wm. G. FORT MYERS, Mar. 29.—Harry Jaeger and Bert Decker have just completed a trip from Fort Lauderdale, on the East coast, to this city—a distance of 264 miles—in nine hours and 40 minutes. They traveled in a small sedan and came via Fort Pierce, Okeechobee City, Lakeport, Moore Haven, Citrus Center and LaBelle. That stretch of the road from Fort Pierce to Fort Myers, 164 miles, was covered in exactly six hours.

In the big leagues and fans are going to watch him after June 1 and see what "Big Robinson" does with the Florida celebrity.

DAUGHERTY NO HARD FEELINGS FOR PRESIDENT

Continued from page one. Ings are much hurt, but if they are hurt at all, it doesn't amount to anything.

"Now is the time for cool heads, considerate counsel and help by all."

As he handed the statement to the newspaper men Mr. Daugherty was asked what he had to say about the United States senate.

"Nothing," was the prompt reply. Earlier in the evening Mr. Daugherty intimated that he would have nothing much to say "because he wanted the country to settle down."

To Run for Delegate At Large. He intimated that he will not withdraw from the race for delegate at large in the Ohio primaries, despite the fact that this delegation to the Republican convention will undoubtedly be instructed for Coolidge.

When asked if he had given the matter of his candidacy a thought since his resignation, Mr. Daugherty said:

"That's right, I'm a candidate. Hadn't thought of that. I don't remember just what the law is, but I suppose it is too late for me to withdraw, if I wanted to. I have got to go out to Ohio pretty soon."

"I must remember about that. I've got some business out there—perfectly clean honorable business. It's sort of dangerous for a man to have business these days, you know."

GERMAN PAPER SAYS U. S. TRIED LURE BERGDOLL

Continued from page one. American Legion representatives in Germany were such documents are usually given to persons traveling abroad in the form of introductions to consular and diplomatic officers and designed primarily to make the tasks of the traveler easier. These letters are available at the request of any reputable organization. The Washington government had no other interest in the matter.

Friends of Bergdoll recently approached the war department with the outline of conditions under which they said he would return, but met with a flat rejection.

State and war department officials announced jointly 10 days ago that no agreement would be entered into with the draft evader and that the government had taken no part in steps to persuade him to return.

Mrs. John W. Musson Is Buried Yesterday

Funeral services for Mrs. John Musson, who died here very suddenly early Friday morning, were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home at Sixth Street and Palmetto Avenue. In charge of the services was Dr. W. J. Carpenter, pastor of the Methodist Church and of which denomination Mrs. Musson was a member.

Burial took place in the Sanford cemetery. Services at the cemetery were in charge of the local chapter of Eastern Star, of which Mrs. Musson was also a member. A large crowd of friends of Mrs. Musson and the family were present at the performance of the final rites before she was laid to rest. Many beautiful floral offerings were received by the family, evidencing the love and esteem with which Mrs. Musson was held by her many friends here.

HIRAM BACK FOR TOUR

(By The Associated Press) DETROIT, Mar. 31.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson came back to Michigan Monday for a final four-day speaking campaign in an effort to win the preference of Michigan voters in next Monday's presidential primary.

UNITED STATES HOLDS BALANCE FINANCE POWER

Great Influx of Gold Into This Country Gives America Responsibility of Shaping Future History of World Business Relations

(Eastern, Southern and Central Divisions)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—The United States has taken on a new responsibility in its relation to world economic affairs, in the opinion of the Federal Reserve Board which in its annual report made public Monday indicates a belief that increasingly greater influence on world economic progress will emanate from these shores.

The great influx of gold into the United States which now has four-tenths of the world monetary stock, the growing use of the American dollar with its gold standard as a trade basis, gradual expansion of American foreign trade, the adoption by many foreign interests of American trade and commercial policies—these and other reasons—are cited by the board as showing the responsibility that must be borne and accounted for by the leaders in the United States.

Since the federal reserve system is accepted as charting the business course at home, its correspondingly increased power and responsibility in the larger field is examined by the board in its report, and it has set itself to the task of explaining the peace-time functions of the system. It indicates a belief that the general conception of how the system can give full force and effect to its chartered powers of guiding commerce and industry is too limited and makes a definite move toward a policy of promulgating such information hereafter.

The year 1923 as a whole has provided a good perspective of post-war readjustment, and the board says that conditions that economic readjustment has proceeded rapidly, "and is now nearing completion." This condition, a near-peace-time basis, has caused the board to omit from its report the usual discussion of administrative matters and to turn its full attention to a discussion of the broader aspects of the workings of the reserve system.

"The year covered in this report," it says, "is of more than ordinary interest since it has afforded an opportunity for the Federal Reserve system to function under circumstances less influenced by conditions arising out of the war than any previous year. In the absence of those major disturbances which so profoundly affected business and credit conditions during the war and early post-war readjustments, federal reserve credit policies, in response to prevailing economic conditions and on the basis of earlier experience, have under gone a fuller development."

"The volume, character and occasion of rediscount operations and open market transactions of the Federal Reserve Bank, the extent and influence of gold movements upon the credit and currency situation, rate policy and the basic factors underlying general credit policy—these and other related matters that will be of continuous importance in the future have held an important place in the year 1923 in the functioning of the Federal Reserve banks and in the deliberations and decisions of its governing authorities."

WASH. NEWS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana, who is still hoping for the return of good five-cent cigars, is one of the few individuals in Washington who view the current governmental scandals constructively.

Tom always has been pretty much of a philosopher. The fact that he maintained his sense of humor through two terms as vice president should be sufficient proof of that. If additional evidence were needed, his present unpolitical views concerning the situation in the Department of Justice, as a result of the Daugherty-Burns administration now under the searchlight, should be ample.

The office of attorney general, Marshall suggests, should be attached to the judicial branch of the government, not the executive. As a cabinet job, it is too close to partisan politics, he thinks. Whereas it should be purely legal in character, unaffected by political changes, it has been made a cog in the partisan machinery of the administration in power.

"Today," Marshall says, "public opinion holds that the attorney general's office is a political annex to the administration. That was the view not only under the present administration but under Wilson and Harding. And the feeling that the office is political, not legal, is growing."

"In my opinion, the office ought to be taken out of the cabinet and made a part of the legal machinery of the government, with tenure of office having no relation to party rule."

THAT Senate investigating committees have been turning out "hot stuff" is doubtless due to the fact that where there is much smoke there is bound to be some add a greater concentration of smoke, in a given space, than normally fills the committee rooms, would be hard to imagine. Committee men, counsel, witnesses, reporters and operators all "light up" as soon as the chairman says for order and finds that committee the air is blue with the mingled fumes from cigars, pipes, cigarettes and heated language.

So far as observed, women spectators have not indulged. But they have been able to get thoroughly saturated, second-hand.

ON the first day Senator Henry F. Ashurst sat in at one of the hearings, he seemingly was not aware of the affinity between smoke and investigations.

Henry, used to the pure ozone of Arizona, frowned as he saw a spectator near the rear light a cigar. "Mr. Officer," he called to the policeman at the rear door. "Will you please see that that man, that spectator back there, who is smoking, puts out that cigar? He is vitiating what little air we have in here."

The officer complied. But within two minutes, Senator Moses of the committee, immediately at Ashurst's right, lighted a cigar. That was the signal for a general lighting up again. And Ashurst subsided without further protest.

WHEN the next issue of Noah Webster's dictionary goes to press, it may contain two new words coined to express definitions developed during our investigation of the epidemic of 1924. New additions to our language, now current in Washington, are:

"Explosive," meaning explosive disclosure, such as those in the recent Done and Daugherty investigations.

"Vanderlip," meaning to state a matter on hearsay evidence.

BUTTERFLY'S DANCE NOW ONE OF DEATH

MARY FRANCES SMITH WHOSE BUTTERFLY LIFE WAS SUDDENLY CLIPPED BY DEATH.

BY MILTON BRONNER.

NEA Service Staff Correspondent LONDON, March 31.—Attracted by the lure of long golden days in the French Riviera and Monte Carlo, Mary Frances Smith, 21, a pretty innocent butterfly, left the gloom of a London winter and found everything she desired, plus death.

It's the kind of story skillful novelists take for plots of their up-to-date fiction. Only in this case the book does not close upon the heroine's wedding and she doesn't live happily every after. Instead, she has an untimely grave.

Four years ago Mary Frances, as her friends knew her, was a happy school girl, with a turn for dancing. Her pretty face, her trim figure, her gracefulness, all helped to make her an entrancing picture. Her father, a successful riding master, was not anxious for his girl to take to a professional career, but Mary Frances pled so hard that he gave in.

She scored some minor successes here in London and then acquaintances in high places suggested a better field was down in Riviera. Thither came all the world's rich money aristocrats. They are bored and dull and they seek new amusements. Skilful dancers at the glided hotel places make good money.

So the London miss blossomed out suddenly as May Vivian, Michael Rinder, an exhibition dancer at one of the big Monte Carlo hotels, chose her as his professional partner and their dance was one of the hits of the past winter.

Enter now two more characters in this little drama of love and death—a young English nobleman, heir to a peerage, whose name has been suppressed, and Vincent Sirelio, a handsome olive-skinned young Italian.

One Shot Ended All. Tell was about May Vivian's age. He, too, was a dancer. He courted the girl, but he found the young nobleman was his rival. He begged the girl to marry him. She told him he was silly. He remained away from her and she thought things were over and done with.

The other night, as she was driving home with her dancing partner and another English girl, a man leaped on the running board of the car, drew his pistol and shot, killing Miss Vivian instantly. It was the end of her trail—and now the police are hunting for Sirelio who has disappeared from his usual haunts.
