Speedy Inaugural Card Is Ready For Greyhound Fans

(Continued From Page One) Tuesday and Wednesday night dogs that schooled last night will run tomorrow night.

Rules of the Florida State Racing Commission, under whose supervision the track will operate, provide that all greyhounds must be schooled at least twice over the track at which they are running before they may be entered in official races on which the public may wager in the pari-mutuel pools.

Racing Secretary Carl Coffman, who acted in a similar capacity at the Biscayne Kennel Club, showplace of Miami greyhound tracks, during their season just closed, has carded nine interesting events for tonight, headed by an inaugural foot race that will bring into view eight of the best greyhounds quartered at the track.

Headling the list is Traffic Trawler, which will probably go to the post in the betting on the strength of his schooling records at the Longwood track.

But there is plenty of stern competition in the field, particularly from Evans Dew and Cold Day, other youngsters that have shown a liking for this footing.

This will be the first trek for these dogs over the futurity route, which is slightly longer than a quarter mile. It is the longest distance the dogs will be asked to negotiate during the first week of the meeting.

First Count, a youngster that had his first racing at the Clay County Kennel Club, near Orange Park, has schooled sensationally for this event, and may be the one to upset the wisest boys. Other entrants in the inaugural include King Wild, Matchless Officer, Jess Ketchell, and Return Ticket.

More than $5,000 has been expended in making the track ready for first-class racing, and partners of the Sanford-Orange Kennel Club will have the advantage of betting on greyhounds that have shown consistent form throughout the season.

The inside type of mechanical lure, recognized as the best for true races, has been installed at the Longwood track and is expected to add new fans to the ever-increasing army of greyhound enthusiasts in Florida through its operation for these races.

Official entries by post position for tonight's races:

Rail Pension Act Assailed As Being Just A Blank Check

Harold M. Stephens, assistant attorney general, who Wednesday argued that Congress was entitled to "promote the efficiency and safety" of railroads, through such legislation as the pension act, returned to this theme in rebuttal.

"Congress sought to accomplish a social purpose," he said, "and used a reasonable means (the commerce clause) to reach the desired objective."

He said the purpose of the act, which he described as "a relief of superannuation and assurance of old age security," contrasted with aims of the roads own voluntary pension systems for "continuity of service and loyalty for one carrier."

Allen Doesn't Want Grange As Coach

DELAND, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Dr. W. S. Allen, president of John R. Stetson University, last night told a committee of college alumni a successor to H. R. McQuillan as athletic director and football coach will be named within a few days and left the impression with the alumni that their recommendation of Red Grange would not be followed.

The committee called to inform the president alumni wished Stetson would give the former Illinois star and professional player the job which McQuillan resigned to go to Texas Aggies, Dr. Allen said he had six men in mind and would announce his decision the first of the week. He left no doubt that Grange is not one of the six.

A project for giving work to unemployed youth in Sweden, similar to the Civilian Conservation Corps in the United States, has been announced by the Swedish government's unemployment commission.

The value of Mississippi's cotton crop this season is estimated by farm authorities at $74,340,000 in contrast to $77,800,000 last year.

CATER BUILDING

SENATE READY TO PUT OKEY ON RELIEF ACT

(Continued From Page One) only for public building projects. Immediately several senators who had backed the McCarran amendment indicated they would vote against it and for the Russell compromise.

The Georgia senator, who had previously tried unsuccessfully to bridge the differences over the bill, said he had every reason to believe it will be approved by the President if it is adopted.

Sen Long (D. La.), who earlier had arranged his colleagues for not arranging a "pair" vote for Senator Hattie Caraway (D. Ark.), all in a Washington hospital was absent when the bill came up.

The McCarran proposal would bind the administrators of the $1,200,000,000 work relief fund to pay the wage prevailing in the locality where the work is done. So strong has been the sentiment for it that the Administration, last week, took it to a vote in a couple of weeks ago, and the bill has been pending in the Senate since.

Mr. Roosevelt has opposed the bill because it would tend to increase the cost of work relief planned and make impossible the plan to transfer $500,000,000 from the debt to work.

Senator Wagner (D. N. Y.) said he was "reliably informed" that the President would accept the compromise and that he would vote for it.

Operation Schools Seen Directly Possible

See nothing but a breakdown in the Democratic system of public schools.

What caused the "school problem" and what underlying factors are involved that somehow keep the schools in the "active theater of politics"? These are questions that puzzle all. The boom that led to excessive bonding and the depression in a general manner answer these questions.

In 1930 the schools faced a financial crisis following the depression and breakdown of the ad valorem tax system. The 1931 legislature sought to meet the problem by appropriating $7,500,000 annually and adopting the instruction unit plan of distributing money. This plan provides for distribution by number of students and still obtains.

Although a definite sum was appropriated the money was not used. The result being the schools received $6,182,161 in 1932 and $5,182,499 in 1933. Last year from an appropriation of five and one-half millions, revenue actually collected and distributed amounted to $5,038,177.

Thus during the last three years the schools have lost in revenue more than three and one-half million dollars. Since it is estimated that 70 cents of every school dollar goes for salaries the loss fell largely upon the teachers, either in reduced salaries or shortened school terms or both.

The legislature will be called upon, therefore, not only to appropriate certain funds but to make certain that the sources will yield the revenue anticipated.

Under a seven and one-half million dollar program this should not be difficult this year.

Slightly more than five millions were realized last year of which more than four millions came from state taxes. This year the revenue yielded nearly $5,000,000 and should be better. The one mill constitutional tax netted slightly more than $400,000 and this total should tend to increase.

Richberg Proposes Modified NRA With 181 Codes Single Blanket Trade Agreement To Cover Small Industries

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13.—(AP)—The Administration, responding to a strong Congressional demand for a smaller and simpler NRA, yesterday proposed consolidation and elimination of codes that would reduce the agency's 731 codes to 181.

The plan was put forward by Donald H. Richberg, Administration spokesman, who said 537 of the codes could be dropped by bunching the great bulk of small industries under a single blanket trade agreement. But, he warned, there would be plenty of protest from those affected.

He followed this by the suggestion that the government "with draw from all compulsory action with reference to service trades, and said that by including the 13 major service trades in the code to be dropped that only 181 would be left. All these, he testified, would apply to business engaged in interstate commerce.

Much more aggressive than during previous sessions before the Senate finance committee, Richberg concluded his series of appearances as a witness in the Senate inquiry by telling newspapermen that NRA was not going to "fold up." He characterized some of Senator Borah's criticism of the codes as "silly."

The head of the national Emergency council at another time showed that 30 percent of the complaints against NRA came from "chiselers" and "sneak-shop operators."

Offering the plan for NRA simplification without recommendation, Richberg read a statement which suggested that in addition to abandonment of compulsory action with reference to service trades, that protection to labor and competitors in these industries be furnished on a voluntary basis, with state co-operation.

He proposed to do away with many small codes through consolidation with the appropriate larger codes; to eliminate overlapping, and to set up a "small industries" code to be effective as to any small industry only when the true representativeness of that industry subsists.

Richberg said that all codes covering less than 10,000 employees might go under this blanket agreement, which should be of a flexible nature, and might be amended by special agreements for particular industries.

During his testimony, and afterwards to newspapermen, Richberg reiterated emphatically that business and labor wanted NRA continued and would so left the committee.

"Don't think that NRA is going to hold up, because you will be surprised after these people come in," he told the reporters.

Richberg said Borah's charge that the steel code had raised prices as much as 800 percent was "perfectly silly."

"It's making a mountain out of a mole-hill," he said, adding that Borah's charge showed a lack of "mature judgment on the facts of industry."

Interest on the state... The sources that produced $5,000,000 last year... cause of improved conditions should exceed that total this year. There is not much of a gamble here.

Then in addition the governor is willing to divert the one-cent gasoline tax revenue which last year yielded $2,176,470. This revenue likewise is expected to increase so that the school financial program this year can be based upon a sound foundation.

This, of course, does not solve the school problem. The average annual salary per school teacher in the past has been approximately $200 for approximately 8,500 teachers. An increased appropriation will save the average but it still may fall short.

The proposed seven and one-half millions will provide a full eight months term for all elementary and high schools for approximately 500,000 school children. While the state perhaps may have solved the problem, at least it will be moving in the right direction.

When we get to the various county problems the picture is not so alluring.

A school system that had cost approximately 20 millions in 1927 was down to approximately 11 millions last year. These figures represent yearly operating expenses for the entire state and include state funds along with county appropriations.

One group holds that operating expenses should reach 15 millions to be on a "zoom" basis, a basis calculated upon the average daily cost per pupil enrolled. Others maintain $12 millions is sufficient. Whatever the figure, if the state appropriates seven and one-half millions the counties will be forced to raise the balance.

Regardless of the angle of approach the school problem will loom large at the 1935 meeting of the legislature. One thing is certain. Taxpayers will get what they pay for. The question is: How much can they pay?

Coughlin Claims "Manipulators" Out To Beat Him

Priest Raps Intolerance He Sees Used In Counter-Attack

DETROIT, Mar. 15.—A counter-attack based upon the "error of omission" has been launched by "the money changers" to drive the priest out of public affairs, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin asserted yesterday.

"By appealing to ignorance, thoughtlessness and religious bigotry the money changers, whom the priest of priests drove from the temple, are instituting their counter-attack."

"Social justice and economic liberty belong to Protestant, Jew, interdenominational and Catholic. Social justice must be born in America. Liberty must die from this program I shall not be diverted by any mis-applied biblical quotation relative to rendering to Caesar the things that are Caesar's. Even the devil can quote scripture for his purpose."

"The national union for social justice program was undertaken to advocate adoption of 16 fundamental truths of social justice. The movement independent of religion was addressed to all citizens, predominantly non-Catholic."

"Of late the fundamental concept of citizenship membership has been called into question. It has been indicated a party given at his altar, that a priestly sacrificer has permitted a citizen, citizen, this is a citizen of the nation."

"The priest professes to have with a statement that he was ready to leave. He has been broadcast last night. It also applied to the intention to write for a book he has published containing the names and addresses of those who have written to him. He has made references to them, but not their names."

Young corn, eggplant, peppers, squash, tomatoes, paprika, and beans were ahead of clean by the force of the wind and sand, with even large celery suffering in that it was pulled from the ground high enough for the roots to become damaged by the air.

Has Roosevelt Been Stopped? Capital Waiting For Answer

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)
WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—(AP)—So many things are involved in the legislative statement at Washington that there is wide disagreement just where the responsibility lies.

The theory advanced by Mr. Roosevelt's political foes is that the balance of public opinion has turned against him at last, and that this will be the end of his domination over Congress.

The President's friends ridicule that view. Many of them say re-entrenchment over patronage, distribution and other purely Administrative policies merely has resulted a temporary revolt.

There are those who put much responsibility on organized labor whose leaders were offended by the automobile trade settlement. The "wrecking-crew" amendment, adoption of which stopped the progress of the work relief bill, had labor's militant backing.

Still another idea speculated upon by politicians is that Mr. Roosevelt, who likes games, is just playing with Congress, that he is quite willing to go back and let the legislators quarrel and tear each other to pieces, believing that in due course they will demonstrate their inability to accomplish anything without his leadership.

Whichever of these theories may be correct, there is to dispute which of them is the most interesting. Any suggestion that the President is playing with Congress is a gross insult to the wisdom of his administration. The wider of possibilities should future events prove to be correct.

The legislative work of the session hardly can be said to have begun. Appropriation bills, carrying the routine program for financing the regular departments of the government, have had to

of the attention thus far. Not a single one of the major Administrative measures has been written into law.

That means that if Congress now definitely takes the ball away from the President, and takes it away in response to what is regarded as a majority reaction against the Roosevelt policies, the most urgent questions of public policy will be settled in a manner which might turn out to be exactly opposite to the trend of the past two years.

It means that the whole theory of the recovery program up to date may be superseded by a new and different theory.

It is interesting to speculate what a change it would mean if Congress should slip emergency spending to the house, refuse to re-enact those provisions of the NEA about which there has been such popular complaint, or do any or all of a score of other things which have been proposed from various quarters.

Of course no one speaks of such a development except as a bare possibility. With Mr. Roosevelt holding the veto power, Congress would have great difficulty, indeed, if it tried to take matters into its own hands. A series of compromises would be the natural expectation.

It may be that Washington will not have to wait long for the answer to a legislative puzzle which for the moment is baffling.

What the Senate has done to the big work relief bill is expected by partisans of all sides to prove a sort of trial balloon. What it is established definitely how the wind of popular favor is blowing the situation will be more clear.

BIG DAY ON THE WATERFRONT

An uncounted number of family names were on the Bremen's list when she docked in New York. Here some of the visitors are shown arriving. H. G. Wells (top left) predicted the next war would be a "world" one. Maria Kasprow (top right), daughter of the well-known Russian writer, said she would become a circus animal trainer. James and George Kasprow, president of Sweden's King Gustav and his wife, the marriage was left to "prayer" until he had sought for a direct descendant of the Russian Czar.

Children Asked To Save Parents From Auto Wreck Death

Seven Times As Many Adults Killed Last Year Than Children

TALLAHASSEE, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Asber Frank, state safety director, has appealed to Florida children to help save their parents from death in automobile accidents.

Dangers in traffic, Frank explained, have developed "in the past 30 years, and your parents were not taught anything about them in school because they did not exist."

With children getting instructions in school on guarding against traffic accidents, Frank said he decided to ask the youngsters to help educate the parents. Last year, he said, there were seven times as many adults killed in accidents as there were children.

In an open letter to "the children of Florida," Frank said: "The reason we are addressing this letter to you is that your parents will pay more attention to you than they will to a police officer. A motorcycle officer may warn your father that he is driving too fast or that he has violated some other traffic regulation, but in many cases the warning will have little effect. A traffic officer may warn your mother about crossing a street against a light, but she may be in a hurry and pay little attention to the officer. Your warning, however, will have a different effect. Your parents will listen to you because you are dear to them, and they will give thought to what it would mean if one of them was killed or if you were killed because of their carelessness. You know that the traffic regulations are intended to promote safety for all. Why not do your part in bringing that to the attention of your parents? Why not make it a rule to see to it that your parents are attending to what they are doing when they cross the streets, and that when your father or mother is driving a car that traffic laws are observed? "It is high time that you children give some thought to your parents' welfare so that through lack of education you may not suffer the loss of them through an automobile accident, as you know the daily problems of traffic accident prevention."

You Are The Final Judge Of WHAT A GOOD TIRE SHOULD DO!

Today's markets are flooded with all types and grades of tires. Some are just good, others better, but only a few reach the peak of perfection. After all it is the buyer, the great American Public, who determines which is the best. So naturally we are proud of the fact that more Firestones were sold throughout the nation during 1934 than any other make. To us this stamp of approval is the best recommendation we can offer.
