

Germany, Recovering From Ravages Of World Conflicts, Well Worth Seeing

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Nine years after war's ravages, West Germany is a sobering study in contrast. The land's beauty and the people's industry are shining on the ravages, but it may take an entire decade before life returns to normal.

Yet good and bad, Germany is worth seeing. Like other Americans, we were struck by "round-the-clock" activity from Hamburg to Munich. The jackhammer and raveler's sound the dominant note. Construction crews are out from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., and later.

But except in Bavaria, where easy-going friendliness is a way of life, the tourist shouldn't count on an enthusiastic reception. Courteous, efficient and cool sums up most of the hotelmen, restaurateurs and tradesmen we met north of Munich.

While most cafes will be good there may be others like the one in Florschheim where the waitress brought us stale bread. When we asked for fresh, she tried to put out a fresh loaf but she had no other. But the smirk she shot a German gentleman at the next table gave her away.

Statekeepers were generally friendly but not too tolerant of our awkward stabs at their language. Finally, the man behind the counter would ask, "Do you speak English?" putting a quick and to the point linguistic ring after all, we had to eat.

Prices are reasonable. Some of the best cherries we've ever tasted were brought by the roadside. On plums (14 cents) for a huge bag, plus beer for Papa, came to only $4 for five in Munich.

And roads are good. The splendid system of autosigns is being steadily improved. Roadside free trucks are painted white to guide night drivers. A typical example of Teutonic thoroughness: four men painting one tree.

The good life is on its way back. On a Saturday night, our first in Germany, we walked along Hamburg's beautiful Lake Alster. We had a gaily lighted excursion launch, and strolled with young couples on the bank, with the delight of our three girls.

"Sure are a lot of lovers in Germany," smirked Marilyn. The nation's recovery was visible in the heavy Sunday traffic between Hamburg and Hameln. That was the day we found out about German competitiveness. Four out of five times we tried to pass a German car, the driver would spot our British license plates and speed up.

"Most German drivers have not gotten their first cars," an American friend explained later. Hameln, the Pied Piper's town, afforded a nice picnic place by the Weser. The only rates we found were made of bread or marzipan. We bought one of each, ate the marzipan and saved the baked bread for a rainy day.

That evening in Wuppertal we ate at an outdoor cafe. Ruins gaped across the street, but the cafe was crowded with well-dressed, well-fed customers. Overhead sailed Wuppertal's famed monorail system.

We took a ride on the eight-mile-long hanging trolley over the Wupper River and found it fast and pleasant.

The first half of our trip had been through the British zone. After a week in the zone, we were able to take leave cleared in Hamburg and Cologne. But the weeks' work had been removed. The French zone was something of a surprise. Mainz, we chose a hotel on the river. It was one of three buildings standing in a block, the rest were in ruins. The view was equally appalling for several blocks.

Mainz families are still living in cellars and first floors of bombed-out buildings. Many are not happy, yet we heard a boy standing in a rubble pile, singing and rattle more or less out of control. That night a jazz band led in a piano playing for dancers in the ballroom of a ruined hotel.

In the American zone, Frankfurt and Munich are almost with one exception. Modern glass and concrete buildings are replacing bombed-out buildings. But enough old buildings and cathedrals remain to keep the ancient flavor.

Moultain Men Trying For Feats Instead Of Funerals Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lark-battered rifles in the hands of mountain men will speak up right shortly North Carolina today with family pride as much an issue as on some more ominous shooting occasions in the past.

This time, though, they're aiming for feats instead of funerals. And when the blackpowder smoke clears from Fire Top Mountain along about sundown, the best mountain-style marksmen in the state, Otakechese Shook will have nothing but full quarters of prize beef to carry home.

Flat land foreigners can get into this competition but they have no chance of winning. Shooting will be done with the ancient muzzle loader—bawg rifles, stranger—

Carlson of Johnston said "The government should have some sort of program to keep cattle on the range, or a flooded market will result."

Winter ranges in southeastern Wyoming already are nearly grazed off. In mid-summer, W. L. Chapman, state agriculture commissioner, said ranges are brown and two weeks ago "we've not had any relief in appreciable measure."

J. E. Barleson, Farmers Home Administration supervisor for Blaine, Mason and Llano counties in the central Texas hill country, said: "Twenty-two people have come into my office since Monday inquiring about the program. Only two of them submitted applications for hay after reading the requirements. Most of them are disappointed in the limited extent of the program."

Yangtze River Is At Record Height

TOKYO (AP)—The mighty Yangtze River, already at a record height, surged several inches nearer the top of sodden dikes near the Wuhan area today, helping radio announcers.

The broadcast said the river is more than seven feet above the level at which it broke through the dikes at Wuhan in the devastating flood of 1931.

Part of the extensive dike system surrounding Wuhan is more than 98 feet high, the broadcast said.

Admiral Estimates

Russian ground strength in the Far East has been estimated at 35 combat divisions by a high-ranking officer on the staff of Gen. John E. Hull, Far East commander.

Callaghan, the first skipper of the famed battleship Missouri, is a veteran of both world wars. He was in charge of the Military Sea Transportation Service during the Korean War.

His present command includes the U. S. 7th Fleet, made up of destroyers, cruisers and aircraft carriers, but presently no battleships. The 7th Fleet is charged with preventing a Chinese-led invasion of Formosa, Chinese Nationalist redoubt.

Callaghan also is in charge of the Amphibious Force, West Pacific, made up of attack transports, cargo ships and landing craft. He also is in command of fleet activities in the Navy yards at Yokosuka and Sasebo, Japan, and Inchon and Pusan in Korea.

Although there are no battleships in the Far East at present, there are four aircraft carriers—the Boxer, Philippine Sea, Yorktown and Hornet. The latter three are doing service with the 1st Fleet in the South Pacific. The Boxer has been in Yokosuka undergoing routine repairs to the flight deck.

Asked about the chances the Russians would have in getting aircraft carriers into the Pacific in case of war, Callaghan smiled. "I would certainly hate to be in command of a Russian naval force trying to come around the Cape of Good Hope," he said.

There were no surface actions in the Korean War. United Nations warships roamed the coasts at will, hammering shore batteries and sending carrier based planes deep into Korea in support of ground troops. Many Communist mines were encountered, however.

Russian submarines, Callaghan said, were operating from bases around Vladivostok and to the north.

"The weather would be against them operating from these northern bases during much of the year."

He said that any submarine force could only keep one third of its strength in operation because of that one third the Russians

Armas Requested To Oust Partners

GUATEMALA (AP)—Leading Guatemalan petitioned junta President Carlos Castillo Armas last night to oust his two partners on the governing group and take over the government alone.

The petition was presented during a rally of 25,000 persons demonstrating in front of the national palace after the suppression of a two-day rebellion by dissident units at an army base.

Sponsors of the petition said if the rest of the junta did not quit in favor of Castillo Armas, they would call a general strike.

Oil Company Men Indicate Industry In Iran To Reopen

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Representatives of eight big Western oil companies and the Iranian government announced broad agreement today to restart Iran's frozen oil industry. They said they hoped to begin shipping at least some of the oil again in about two months.

Under the agreement announced simultaneously in Tehran and London, the eight companies as a consortium will operate the vast Abadan refinery and the surrounding oil fields. They will buy the oil output from Iran and will sell the production abroad. Iran will retain title to the fields and the refining facilities.

Settlement of the three-year diplomatic battle was announced in a joint statement by Iranian Finance Minister Ali Amin and Howard Page of Standard Oil of New Jersey, chairman of the negotiators for the companies.

Their statement did not detail the rate of payment to Iran but informed sources said it was virtually the same 50-50 split that holds elsewhere in the Middle East.

Amin and Page estimated that Iran, through direct oil revenue and taxes, would get 420 million dollars during the first three years of the arrangement. The estimate for the third year, more than 100 million, is larger than Iran's pre-nationalization oil revenue.

The agreement will run for three years, with provisions for three 5-year extensions.

The eight companies making the consortium are Britain's Anglo-Iranian, which developed and operated Iran's industry until ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh nationalized its holdings in 1951; Standard of New Jersey; Standard of California, the Texas Co., Gulf Oil Co., and Socomev, all American; Royal Dutch/Shell and Compagnie Francaise de Petroles.

Crude seizures were produced by the Iran Age (500 B. C. to 100 A. D.) says the National Geographic Society.

Two Employees Of State Comm. Are Dismissed

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Two headquarters employees of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission have been fired but there has been no explanation of their dismissal.

Discharged were Fish Management Director Barry O. Freeman and Public Information Director Jack Shoemaker.

Shoemaker said Commission Director Charles W. Pace told him he had 30 minutes to hand in his resignation or be dismissed.

Car Is Stolen With Youngster Asleep In Back

ALLENTOWN (AP)—A four-year-old boy was sleeping in the back seat of a car when it was stolen from its parking place in front of a supermarket last night.

Mrs. Albert Parker, 35-year-old machinist's wife and mother of missing youngster, found the car when she left the keys in the ignition of the car when she went to the supermarket on Union Blvd.

The car belongs to the boy's aunt, Mrs. Margaret Haas of Bethlehem, police said.

Mrs. Parker returned 25 minutes later to find another car in place of the black 1948 Pontiac sedan she was driving. She and Mrs. Haas searched both sides of Union Blvd., when they returned from their shopping tour, but failed to find the car.

Dismissal Of Protests By Reds Shrugged Off

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist China's double dismissal of American protests was shrugged off by top U. S. officials today as a gesture which could not erase the record made against the Reds.

Protest notes were sent to Peiping through the British government over a week ago to register anger at the killing of three Americans in a British airliner shot down by Communist fighters July 23 off Red-held Hainan Island.

Daring Rescue Is Action Highlight In Duval Blaze

JACKSONVILLE (AP)—The courageous rescue of two boys from a flame-seared shed and damage to a suburban furniture firm yesterday underlined the menace in a woodlands fire that has swept over 6,000 acres of scrublands east of the city.

A fire crew told of the rescue of the two boys by Edgar A. Cowart, a city fireman working on his day off as a volunteer in the week-long battle against the woods fire.

The flames were completely surrounding the building and roared to 80 feet high, one of the volunteers, Robert H. Zier, reported. "You could hear the boys screaming in there. Cowart put his hands over his face and plunged right in there without a moment's hesitation."

Zier said he established a hose and played a stream of water on Cowart as he ran about 40 feet through the flaming brush to the shed and back with the boys.

The boys, about 10 and 12, were not seriously hurt. No one got their names. They had been carrying drinking water to the fire crew when the flames turned with the wind and whipped toward the crew. Everyone but the boys ran for a highway 200 yards away. The boys sought shelter in the tin shed within minutes it was encircled by flames.

One shift of the wind drove the flames to Maron and Sons Furniture Co. on Beach Blvd. When the fire was put out, the damage to a city fire company, damage was estimated at $3,000.

Smoke blackened forest rangers and volunteers continued their day and night struggle to contain the woods fire.

"Except for the weather, the situation is looking up," John Johnson of Tallahassee, chief of the Florida Forest Service's Fire Control Division, reported late last night. "But it's a potential powder keg. We don't know at what minute it will get away from us."

Fire fighters had plenty of troubles. They had to contend with record August heat yesterday. The thermometer reached 102, the hottest it has ever been in August and only three degrees short of the all-time high.

They were heckled, too, by a series of lesser blazes breaking out in other sections of the county. Fire crews had to be taken off the main battle to fight the others before they became dangerous.

Two sprang up on Little Talbot Island to the northeast, two near U. S. 90 south of the city, one southeast and late last night another south west.

McCarthy States Has List Of Officers Who Were Active In Peress' Discharge

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today a secret Army report names 30 officers, five of them generals, as having "active" roles in granting an honorable discharge to Maj. Irving Peress.

Peress is the New York dentist whose career as a reserve Army officer came under investigation by McCarthy last year. Peress declined to answer questions from McCarthy as to whether he had ever had substantive connection with Peress.

During the McCarthy Army hearings, McCarthy reportedly referred to the case and demanded to know who was responsible for the discharge of Peress.

McCarthy announced that he had fellow members of his Senate investigation committee, had broken the seal on an envelope containing an Army report on the case which had been submitted by the Pentagon during the McCarthy Army hearings.

McCarthy said the list gave the names of "a full general and two major generals, two brigadier generals, three colonels, two lieutenant colonels, and a major" in addition to others of lower rank. He said some of them will be called before him as witnesses for questioning under oath.

McCarthy said that "after all this time," the report "doesn't show who was at fault" in promoting and discharging Peress.

The implication is that they all were at fault," he said.

Sinful Phenix City Made 'Ghost Town' By National Guard

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP)—The gunman who murdered time-fighter Albert L. Patterson on the fateful night of June 18 is still a wanted fugitive, despite seven weeks of the greatest manhunt in Alabama history.

But the three shots fired into Patterson's body have exploded again and again in an unrelenting war on vice and racketeering that has made this storied city of sin a virtual ghost town.

The brightly lit cafes and honky-tonks where catwalk soldiers from nearby Ft. Benning Ga., spent millions of dollars a year on gambling, prostitution and other lurid trades have been closed outright or put on short rations.

Their liquor and beer licenses have been suspended. Many of the gaudy night spots have been padlocked by routing National Guardsmen who found hundreds of slot machines, lottery tickets, crooked dice and lethal hypodermic needles and vials which gave evidence of narcotics traffic.

The troops have taken over all law enforcement functions in Phenix City and most of Russell County, stripping the civilians police of even the right to carry guns. That was done under an unprecedented limited martial law proclaimed by Gov. Gordon Persons.

Except for police duties, however, other city officials, including the courts, were left untouched by military rule.

In almost daily arrests, the steel-helmeted troops and reinforced other local law enforcement agencies have brought more than 50 persons into custody, including two public officials, two civilian deputy sheriffs and one of the reputed vice lords.

Other gambling big shots have been called in for questioning. Phenix City's Mayor, Elmer Reese was arrested on charges of willful neglect of duty because of the gambling which went on.

Circuit Solicitor Arch. Ferrrell, the county's ousted criminal prosecutor, was jailed for drunkenness, fined $100 for drunk driving and his driver's license suspended.

Hiroshima Holds Observance Of A-Bomb Burst 9 Years Ago

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP)—The bells of Hiroshima tolled today for the awful hour of nine years ago. It was 8:15 a. m. when the first atomic bomb ever loosed in warfare burst with frightful fury over Hiroshima.

It was 8:15 a. m. today when massed sirens screamed their protest to the memory. Then the church bells of Hiroshima rang out, calling the Japanese of this city to prayer.

Mayor Shinzo Hamai, who lived through that day, presided as thousands of citizens gathered in the center of the city for a memorial service.

He prayed that "there will be no more war, and no more human beings atomized." He had been lucky on that day. He was three miles away from the center of the blast.

Now the scars of the bomb are gone, except for the gnarled skeleton of steel which was all that was left of Memorial Hall.

The rebuilt homes are timely and the streets are rutted, but the city seems to be on its feet again, mentally and materially. Only 90,000 out of the population of 350,000 were here on that day. The rest are newcomers to this commercial town. They don't know.

Kiyochi Tsuchida, member of the city council remembers. He was only 1,000 yards from the blast center and his body is scarred by burns.

"I saw the great flash," he recalled. "The next moment I was blown several yards. I staggered back and thought I saw a second wave—a heat wave—which set fire to my shirt. I ripped off the burning shirt and ran to my home. 'The house was flattened and my wife was crying help, help' from under the debris was injured and could not lift heavy beams and pillars that lined her down. I looked around helplessly.

"I saw only dead bodies strewn around. I had to leave my diving suit because the gas spreading. Her voice still rings in my ears."

Prof. Konae Jatanabe of Hiroshima University was also only 1,000 yards away but escaped with out a scratch.

"I was in the library when the bomb exploded," he said. "Perhaps the bookshelves me. I ran into the hall after the explosion and saw little groups of colleagues dead, their skulls spattered."

Watanabe found his wife and son unharmed in the suburbs, although their home was knocked down.

$4,881,000 Given Indians By Gov't As Suit Settlement

NOTICE was given by the Attorney General's office that a federal law suit to prevent a five million dollar wind fall from turning the Menominee Indian Reservation into a salesmen's merry-go-round has been settled.

The money, totaling $4,881,000, is part of a $5 million dollar trust fund set up four years ago after the tribe won a lawsuit charging the government with mismanagement of the fund.

First payment was provided for a legislation liberating the Indians from government control and supervision by 1950.

The majority of the Indians received their checks Tuesday and payments will be completed by Saturday.

What happens when sudden wealth hits an Indian reservation? A young man in the area has over a room in clothing and household furnishing purchases.

The Henry Fontenelle, assistant supervisor of the reservation, says "it's too early to tell."

A spokesman for an auto firm says that although this is the largest lump sum the Indians have ever received, "they've been working steadily at their family business a long time and they're accustomed to money."

However, state, county and local police want the Menominees to have time to make their own decisions on how to spend their new wealth without any pressure from salesmen. So an old federal law barring peddlers and solicitors from Indian reservations without a license is being enforced again.

NEW COUNTY HOSPITAL—Primary work on the Seminole Memorial Hospital on E. Second St. is well under way. Work on the structure is being done by the Armstrong Construction Company, Palm Beach. It was contemplated by the hospital board of trustees to increase the capacity of the building to 100 beds, according to E. J. Thompson Sr., architect, but the plan was abandoned as not being feasible, and the structure will have a 75-bed capacity as originally planned. The hospital will have three floors and will be finished approximately in June. (Staff Photo)

TURBINE FOUNDATION—Work is shown underway on a giant foundation for a turbine at the Enterprise plant of the Florida Power Corp. Concrete was being poured yesterday in the foundation form, with the assistance of cranes, which lifted buckets of concrete, and the Sherman Concrete and Pipe Co., which set up a large batching plant on the site and used large batchers to mix and provide the material. Work on the extension being built at the plant is being done by the Mills and Jones construction company, St. Petersburg. (Staff Photo)

Simul Phenix City

(Continued From Page One) relieved of duty, also is under indictment along with two others on charges of vote manipulation in an effort to defeat the anti-vice crusade of Patterson in the June 1 Democratic primary runoff election.

Patterson, promising to rid Phenix City of organized vice and lawlessness, was nominated for attorney general of Alabama but was assassinated before he could take office.

Indicted with Ferrell were the state's highest legal officer, Atty. Gen. S. Garrett, and Lamar Reid, chairman of the Jefferson County (Birmingham) Democratic Executive Committee, who resigned following the indictment.

Garrett recently was seriously injured in a car wreck and now is in a Waynesboro, Miss., hospital with a broken neck.

Gambling czar Godwin Davis, mother of those arrested in the mushrooming vice cleanup in Phenix City, spent six days in jail before he could raise bond of $22,000 on 44 gambling charges. His lawfully influencing voters in the recent primary.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Albert Fuller, whose hair for wide-brimmed hats and ornate pistols made him almost a legendary figure in Phenix City, was charged with violating Alabama's election laws by unlawfully influencing voters in the recent primary.

Another deputy, Aaron Smith, was arrested later on similar charges.

The grand jury which indicted Ferrell, Garrett and Reid on the vote tampering charges in Birmingham said in its final report that the campaign of Patterson's runoff opponent, Lee Porter of Gadsden, was "financed almost in its entirety by the Phenix City racketeers."

That conclusion came after the elder Davis told the jurors he and his pals gave Porter $22,000 to run for office. In its final report the grand jury told what he knew but was slain a few hours after he made that known.

An emergency grand jury has been called back into session at Phenix City Monday to start hearing testimony about the racket, which flourished before Patterson's death, and to prosecute the killers if he is found.

The jury was empaneled after Gov. Persons forced the resignations of the old jury Commission and a special judge threw out the entire jury box as fresh names would be available.

Testing Lotion For Poison Ivy

CINCINNATI (AP)—A new lotion to stop itching from poison ivy in a few hours is being tested with good results at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine.

Dr. Leon Goldman, head of the dermatology department, said based on experiments on severe cases can be cleared up within a few days instead of the two weeks generally needed.

Treatment, however, should begin as soon as possible after contact for quick results, he told a newsmen.

"When the poison ivy gets bad, special treatments also are needed," Dr. Goldman said.

Mid-West and had "noticed the roads were a whole lot wider than ours—a whole lot better road." He pointed out that Nevada and Arizona, which have small populations, still have good roads.
Speaking relative to road-building in Florida, he said "Something is being done. I can't quite figure it out."
Col. H. C. Woods of the Greater Orlando Co. said that at a recent beautification meeting at Daytona Beach, it was remarked that "all gas taxes supposed to be used on highways are not used on highways... part goes into the general fund." He said more money should go into roads.
During the discussion, Caraway remarked that a divided highway was being considered.
Finally, it was decided that the delegation should contact the SHD to consider running a center line survey on the highway, using County engineers and an engineer from the SRD.

Judge Carlton Welcomed Here

Vassar B. Carlton, new judge of the ninth judicial circuit, was formally welcomed to Seminole County today by the Seminole County Bar Association at Carlton's initial session at the Court House.
Carlton is the Democratic nominee-elect for the Circuit Court post and was appointed by Acting Governor Charles Johns to complete the term of M. B. Smith, who recently retired.
The magistrate was welcomed in a brief speech by Fred H. Wilson, president of the local association of law men. O. P. Herndon, clerk of the Circuit Court, also promised Judge Carlton his full cooperation and in behalf of the people of Seminole County extended his wishes for success in the position.

Marines Landed On Guadalcanal 12 Years Ago

Aug. 7 is a date veteran Marines will never forget.
It was 12 years ago, Aug. 7, 1942, that hard-charging Leathernecks landed on Guadalcanal to wrest the initiative from the Japanese and take the first offensive action by U. S. Forces on World War II.
News of the Marines landing on this enemy real estate acted like a shot in the arm to the American public. Until then, America and her allies had been fighting a defensive war in the Pacific. A sort of one-sided struggle in which outnumbered American defenders were crushed by overwhelming Japanese Forces. "Too little too late" were screaming newspaper headlines describing the situation. Then came Guadalcanal and the beginning of the end of the Japanese dream of conquest.
Throughout the campaign, life was returned to its bare fundamentals—stay alive and kill Japs. It was a strange kind of war with primitive enemies of jungle rot, malaria and typhoid and always the deadly sniper. Lessons learned during the trench warfare of World War I were useless to even veteran Marines. It was a new kind of war. The only formula for survival against a cunning foe was in the ways of jungle fighting. But the Marines were good students—they learned from the Japanese and went on to teach them one of the bitterest lessons of World War II with the capture of Guadalcanal.
Anniversaries come and go. Some are observed with fanfare some with quiet reflection. And on Aug. 7, many brave men will remember their buddies in a forgotten lumber in a steaming jungle where monkey chatter and jet birds' roar.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Housing Space, Needs Increase At Uoif Campus

GAINESVILLE—Although additional housing space has been made available to the University of Florida campus through the completion of Broward Hall, new women's dormitory, there also has been an accompanying increase over last year in the number of applications for single facilities for the fall semester according to information released recently by the University's office of the director of housing.
According to the office, the present housing situation for men students in dormitories on the campus is "fairly tight" and the ability to assign space to students applying after July will probably be dependent upon cancellations from previous assignments.
In regard to the facilities available on campus for women students, there is still some dormitory space which has not been assigned, but the office adds that applications are coming in steadily and urges all undergraduate women planning to attend the University this fall to submit their applications for housing as soon as possible.

The office further reports that information on the number of apartments on campus for married veterans and their families which will be available at the end of the summer session could be fairly exact shortly, and office plans to send fall semester assignment notifications to applicants for these facilities during the first half of August.
As to off-campus rental facilities, the office reports that the normal amount of space is available but students wishing to take such accommodations should come to the office to see the requirements and should do so before the end of August.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
As yet, Mrs. Bran had not brought up the subject which had written the main reason for this week-end invitation. Perhaps she was waiting for an appropriate time—and until her young guest was acclimated and ease. Or again, she may have decided to postpone any discussion until she had decided how deserving the clinic, and its representatives, might be.
Cynthia was just as glad to have a little time to. She had determined to put the clinic—and wait—out of her mind. So far, she had succeeded. She felt as though she had shed one layer of her life to put on a fresher, newer one. Almost like the renewal of spring, as Norman had said.
The big colonial house, although tucked away from the main line of traffic, was not without other guests. People kept dropping in, sometimes at the cocktail and tea hour, or again during the day, lingering on into the evening for bridge or chess or a game of ping-pong in the large recreation room on the third floor, which Norman told her had been his and Jim's playroom when they were boys.
"Your family may live in the country," Cynthia remarked, "but I can't see how they would ever have a chance to be lonely. They have so many neighbors and friends."
"Dad draws people like a magnet," Norman said. "And everyone admires my mother. They know what a remarkable person she is. For it's Mom who runs things. Dad retired quite a few years ago. He doesn't want a new one to know it, but a heart condition made him take life easier. Her friends do know this—even if he thinks they don't—and that's another reason they stop by to chat and get his opinion and advice and keep his mind off himself."
"It's so different from the farm where I grew up," Cynthia admitted this as being her reason for finding Pleasantridge quite gay in contrast. Yet it was not a surface gaiety; it was genuine and warm. Everything, in spite of being so well organized, was kept on a simple scale.

"Oh, Mom does lots of actual hard labor herself," Norman bragged, when Cynthia explained something of this contrast with the farm in Indiana, where work began at daylight and lasted until it became too dark to continue the many chores. "You ought to see her in overalls helping bring a calf into the world, or personally tending a new-born mare when one of the animals comes down with some virus. Mom takes great pride in her livestock. She has experimented with the development of a rare new breed. There are a cross between the best characteristics of the stocky English Shorthorn and the humpbacked Indian Brahman."
Norman pointed out one exceptionally fine bull yearling, deep-chested, cherry-red in color, with its odd, yet distinguishing, small hump. He told Cynthia that it had won several prizes, was worth at least twelve thousand dollars.
She was properly impressed though she confessed she preferred the ordinary city, apartment-dwelling calves. She could not imagine Norman's mother assisting at the birth of one or wearing overalls of blue denim. Yet she was a little bit that Elizabeth Brandt would still maintain that cynically.
Cynthia had an opportunity to wear her new blue-green dress. There was a more formal party Saturday evening, with about sixty invited guests. She did not have to wonder if the dress was appropriate and becoming—Norman's eyes told her that. And she must have measured up to Mrs. Brandt's standards of approval and passed whatever tests her hostess might have had in mind. For after the last guest had departed, Mrs. Brandt explained that they had been invited for the express purpose of meeting Cynthia.
"Oh, dear, I'm just as glad I didn't know that!" Cynthia felt the warm color flooding her face. She hoped that these friends and neighbors had not been asked in to give Norman's new girl the once-over, as Ros would call it.

Alexander Smallens Has Seen Show Over 3,000 Times

HOLLYWOOD — How would you like to see the same show over 3,000 times?
Sounds like an ordeal, doesn't it? Yet here is a man who has done just that, and still looks forward to another night's performance.

He is Alexander Smallens, a tall, thin, hawk-nosed man who seems to talk with a faint English accent, although he was born in Russia and educated in this country. He is devoted to "Porgy and Bess." Because of this devotion he is by far the world's champion in the marathon conducting of a musical work.

"How can you do it?" asked an amazed fellow conductor, Dimitri Mitropoulos, some months ago. "It would drive me crazy to conduct Beethoven's Ninth 30 times. Yet you have probably conducted 'Porgy and Bess' 250 times."
"It's 2,800," Smallens corrected. "How is it possible?" exclaimed the New York Philharmonic leader.

"Very simple. Each time I enter the pit, I approach the music as though I have never done it before. I transport myself to Catfish Row until 11:30 in the evening."
I found Smallens relaxing at his hotel between performances here and asked him more about his record-breaking love affair with "Porgy and Bess." He said it has been 20 years ago. He had just conducted the premiere of Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts" in New York. George Gershwin, who had been a casual friend, rushed backstage with enthusiasm.

"Alex, I'm writing a grand opera, and I stand you to conduct it," said the composer. Three days later, he played the score for Smallens, who "fell in love with it."
He conducted the first performance at the Colony Theater in Boston on Oct. 19, 1935. The drama critics liked the show, the music writers not so. "Porgy and Bess" was not a smashing success. Playing 16 weeks in New York and in London, Smallens went back to his symphonic and operatic conducting.

In 1940 he was appearing in Washington, D. C., when he received a call from producer Cheryl Crawford, who wanted to revive the opera at a Majestic, N. J. summer theater and proceed to Broadway if it went well. Smallens agreed, but suggested junking the sung dialogue.

The new gimmick worked, and "Porgy" prospered for three years, including 37 weeks in New York. In 1952 it was revived by producer Robert Breen and sent to Europe by the State Department.

"It was the greatest ambassador to Europe the United States has ever had," said Smallens. "We played Vienna, London, Paris and Berlin, and the reception was overwhelming. It was sent as counter-attack to the Communist propaganda about the treatment of minorities in this country."
The State Department figured the Europeans would be impressed to see an opera written by a Jew and sung by negroes. And they were!

Woman Who Sews Knows That Styles Pay Big Dividends

Women who sew report that the toughest part of any sewing project is in the fitting.

Now a pattern innovation makes correct fit almost automatic. Even a beginning seamstress can make clothes to her exact measurements if she takes the time to make pattern adjustments before cutting into the fabric.

The new and to proper fit consists of rulers with inch measurements taped right on the pattern at points where adjustments usually are necessary in waist and skirt length. To shorten, fold on the printed line and pin in place. To lengthen, cut along dotted line around the necessary amount, using the inch rulers for guidance, and insert an extra piece of tissue paper, using celophane tape to hold the pieces together.

Since very few women are exact pattern sizes, here are some tips from local sewing centers experts on pattern adjustment.

First go over your pattern pieces with a warm iron, to remove the creases. Then pin in any tucks, darts or pleats before measuring. Finally, compare the measurements of the pattern with your own measurements, and adjust by pinning up or letting out.

When adjustments are completed, try on the pattern, before your mirror. If it fits properly, release darts and tucks and lay out the pattern on your fabric. If you have a dress form made to your own measurements, much time is saved in fitting and assembling.

When a recipe calls for blanching a fruit or vegetable it means that the food should be preheated in boiling water or steam. Blanching is helpful in removing the skins from tomatoes and peaches.

Mrs. Clara Jobe and two daughters, the Misses Mona and Frances Jobe have gone to Macon, Ga. where they will make their future home. Mrs. Jobe has been ill for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cordell left today for the mountains of North Carolina where they will spend their vacation. Enroute they will visit with Mrs. Clara Jobe and family in Macon, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Grantham have returned from Clearwater Beach where they visited with their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Simons and children.

Miss Patti Witte will return home tomorrow after spending several days at New Smyrna Beach as the guest of Miss Mary Roy Spruiell.

Miss Wanda Hall returned to Sanford today after spending two weeks at the Good Counsel summer camp at Inverness.

John Fite, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Fite of Celery Ave., returned from home Wednesday from Davidson College, Davidson, N. C. where he has been engaged in a program of psychological research sponsored by the Social Science Research Council of Washington, D. C. He plans to visit in Florida for one month before returning to Davidson for his senior year.

Light cream is sometimes called coffee or table cream. It is a cream that usually contains about 20 per cent milk fat.

Adding a quarter cup of confectionery sugar to a cup of cream that is to be whipped, gives the amount of sweetness that is generally liked. And adding a dash of salt will point up the sweetness.

Tip for new cooks: when a recipe directs you to simmer (not boil) a ham or a smoked tongue remember to keep the heat adjusted so that bubbles form slowly and collapse below the surface of the cooking liquid.

Early Fall Wedding Planned By Joyce Jones, Gerald Covington

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Videl Jones of this City announce the engagement of their daughter, Joyce Annette, to Gerald Fowler Covington, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Covington, also of Sanford.

The bride-elect was graduated from Seminoles High School with the class of 1951 where she was active in many activities. She served as a cheerleader and was chosen one of the six most outstanding girls in the senior class. Miss Jones is a member of the First Baptist Church of Sanford.

Mr. Covington was graduated in 1952 from Seminoles High School and attended Emory University at Valdosta, Ga. and the Washington Conservatory of Music in Washington, D. C. He is now employed at the Hotel Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Colo. and during the winter, season, at the Mount Plymouth Hotel. The groom-elect is also a member of the First Baptist Church.

The wedding will be an event of early fall and complete plans will be announced at a later date.

Give your chicken salad a party air, add slivered toasted almonds just before serving. If you want to do some of your preparation ahead, you may cook the chicken the day before your party, cut it up and mix it with French dressing. Refrigerate the marinated chicken at once. Then mix with other ingredients for the salad just before serving.

Pineapple Ice Cream Buffet Style

PINEAPPLE ice cream topped with fresh or canned pineapple and chocolate sauce ends a meal with fruit-flavored refreshment. For eye-catching display at buffet, scoop the ice cream into a chilled bowl and serve a la mode with cake.

Prepackaged in pint and half-gallon cartons, pineapple ice cream is widely distributed during September and October. This sunny-oriental ice cream can be purchased while one is selecting the cake to go with it as many food stores now carry chocolate and white cake layers and angel food. With a serving of prepackaged pineapple ice cream, the cake needs no frosting.

A smaller scale of the buffet arrangement could be made for four at the bridge table, letting each player help himself to a portion of ice cream and cake.

Pineapple Ice Cream Buffet
10-inch Chiffon or Angel Food cake
1 cup chocolate
1/2 cup pineapple
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water

Pineapple Sauce
1 cup fresh cut fruit
1/2 cup pineapple
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water

Combine sugar, water and mint. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Boil 1 minute; remove from heat. Add lemon juice; pour over shredded pineapple. Chill; remove mist. Yield: Approximately 1 1/2 cups.

DROP US A LINE

In answer to many requests that All Florida devote space to a "Letters to the Editor" column, this is an invitation to those who have expressed interest, and for all of our other readers, to "hit us where we live."

We are anxious to know what you think of our writers, the looks of our magazine and to learn how we can improve our efforts to please you, our readers.

Too, we want to know what additional features our readers may want, or what type of feature we now use that may not have appeal.

The editors are far from infallible in the matter of selecting material that will please the majority of our readers. But, with your help and advice, we can come closer to that editorial utopia we are constantly striving to attain.

So, give us the benefit of your advice and suggestions. We will endeavor to print all letters addressed to the editor, if they are signed with the author's name and address. Publication of the name will be withheld on request.

FOLDAWAY GARDEN CHAIR & SETTEE

By DONALD R. BRANN

To produce this folding chair, you need only a slight acquaintance with hammer and saw. You get a full size pattern, trace the pattern parts on lumber, saw and assemble. It's as simple as that—and just as inexpensive.

You might like an ensemble for your patio—then build the matching foldaway settee. They're both fresh-air favorites because they can be jacked into small storage spots when the rains come.

But don't think this furniture is only popular for the outdoors. Homemakers are making more and more pieces to decorate and serve sunporches, playrooms, dens and TV centers. They are rugged enough to stand the most violent scuffling in your boys' room, too, they might be finished to match the bunk beds here.

Two chairs and a settee make a nice grouping for a terrace or lawn. When extra company arrives for that picnic supper or steak barbecue, fold them up and carry them where you need them.

Form-fitting and comfortable, this furniture is made in the popular "slats" style. And it's a cinch to make. Once the pattern is outlined on the lumber, you merely saw each piece and put it together in the exact position indicated on the pattern, which shows where to drill holes, what size screws and bolts to use.

The finish is a matter of choice. With the help of a paint sprayer, this final step can be done quickly and with a professional look. For use in places where the furniture is not exposed to the weather, a natural finish is attractive and blends well with other furniture.

Send 25c for Foldaway Chair Pattern No. 36 and 35 cents for Foldaway Settee Pattern No. 35 to Pattern Dept., All Florida Magazine, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y. (Allow two weeks for delivery.)

FISHING ODDITIES

FISHERMEN have the reputation—and they seem to glory in it—of being the tellers of the world's tallest tales. Except in Florida, that is, for here truth can be stranger than fishing fiction.

Perhaps the biggest fish story from Florida was the 1912 capture off Miami of a whale-sized specimen still subject to argument as to identity, a feat previously recorded in the All Florida Magazine.

But scarcely a day passes without some unusual incident making news in Florida fishing circles.

Consider the case of Jimmy Branch who went fishing near his Palm Beach home. Standing along the shore, he watched a school of snook chase mullet. Suddenly, a few feet in front of him, two greedy snook lunged at the same bait. The fish with the larger mouth won—he all but swallowed the head of the slightly smaller snook, and, hopelessly entangled, they thrashed in the water until Branch calmly waded in, grabbed the two-in-one catch barehanded, tossed them ashore and went home with 18 pounds of snook.

Then there have been several instances to match the experience of George Blabon II and John O. Manning of Palm Beach. They were in a small cruiser off Juno Beach and, while trolling, hooked a sailfish on light tackle on a tiny fresh water reel. The leaping sailfish soon had stripped most of the line off the reel, and the anglers turned the boat on a course parallel to the fish, hurriedly trying to regain some of the line before renewing the battle. Evidently the sailfish associated the boat with the predicament, turned sharply, charged the boat and hit with such force that six inches of bill was driven through the 3/4-inch planking just below the water-line. The stunned sailfish floated to the surface, soon showed signs of reviving and was released while the anglers hurried homeward in a leaky boat, requiring an extraction job on the broken bill and a new plank in the hull.

And for a ply on words, how about a bass catching a tuna? That's nothing unusual for George Bass of Palm Beach is a big game fisherman who has held half a dozen world records, plus that many more to the credit of his wife, using varying sizes of tackle fishing for tarpon, amberjack, sailfish, dolphin, marlin and tuna, from Florida to Bimini.

The saltwater fishermen along the coasts and the fresh water anglers in the streams and lakes all over the state have ample proof of fishing oddities in Florida. They don't have to tell Tall Tales about Florida fishing.

It was a tough fight, mom, but I won. That would be a fitting line, but in this case it took three men to haul in this 500-pound jewfish caught off Stuart. The only way the fishermen could move their seven-footer was to hire a truck and crane.

Their parents wouldn't believe the youngsters who went home with a tale of a fish with legs—so a photographer got proof and here it is. This oddity was unearthed in a muddy-bottomed drainage ditch in South Florida. It's known as a water dog.

Jimmy Branch with his two-in-one snook catch. Jimmy says it's easier this way.

A Bass caught a tuna. Here, George Bass, of Palm Beach, shows the result of a trip off Bimini during the tuna season. The 180-pound tuna was three times larger than the Bass who caught it—and, says Mr. Bass, Mr. Tuna was plenty tough.

CAREER WOMAN

This picture could well be entitled "Career Woman at Work" and it would fit the full life that pretty Mrs. Charlotte Joh, of Clearwater, has built for herself. Since gaining some fame several years ago as winner of a "Mrs. Florida" beauty contest, Charlotte has become one of the state's leading TV lady master of ceremonies on a St. Petersburg station. She won that spot in a contest in which she gained a lead over nine competitors by more than six votes to one and, since then, her program has become so popular that it has been boosted from a half hour to a full hour.

This picture, too, could be entitled "Career Woman at Work." In fact, pictured with Charlotte Joh are five careers in one. With a TV career well on the way, Charlotte finds time to answer the demands made on a beauty contest winner, keep her house going, do some outstanding clothes making for herself, friends and family—and take care of her five beautiful children.

All work and no play makes a dull family life, according to Charlotte. So, despite the rigors of a life devoted to "doing things," Charlotte finds time to play with her five youngsters in the yard of their Clearwater home while her husband, Lee, flies lighter jet planes for the Air Force. In her "spare" time, Charlotte plans to study ballet dancing and singing. Just incidentally, Charlotte recently was selected St. Petersburg's "Orchid Queen." It's plain to see why she keeps winning beauty contests.

LITTLE PET

By P. W. DU MEZ

There aren't many six year old city girls who ever have a fawn for a pet even for a few weeks, so little Linda Allen of DeLand has had a unique experience.

Her father, C. E. Allen of 517 E. Plymouth Ave., DeLand, recently was blasting stumps in the area between Ormond Beach and Bunnell when he came across a fawn lying in the brush, too weak from hunger to move. What happened to the doe, mother of the fawn, can only be conjectured.

Not knowing the state law forbids picking up of young deer, he loaded the starving creature in his truck and took it home.

Little Linda found her old nursing bottle, her mother fixed up a "formula" of fresh milk and they fed the baby. By next day it was trying to stagger around.

The second day it was able to get around well, and for two weeks Linda was the envy of the neighborhood.

Her happiness didn't last, however, for the law is the law, and state game wardens, hearing of her pet through stories in the DeLand Sun News, came to take it away. After long pleading by Linda and her mother, they left it until a ruling could come from Tallahassee. Linda's prayers each night were that she could keep her "baby."

Tallahassee ruled, however, that no exceptions could be made for anyone, so after two weeks, during which half the parents in DeLand called at the Allen home and had pictures of children taken with the fawn, it was taken away to become part of the state's travelling game exhibits.

Linda hated to see it go, and her only compensation was the fact the conservation men agreed to keep on feeding "baby" from her bottle.

Just to prove "baby" was more real than her dolls, little Linda Allen put her new pet in the Joll buggie and a stroll around her home in DeLand created a sensation—and some jealousy among the other girls, too. Home was never like this, according to "baby."

Never was a baby deer so well cared for as this tiny little fawnling which Linda Allen of DeLand had for a pet for two short weeks. Conservation agents, obeying a state law which forbids keeping deer as pets, took "baby" away from Linda—but not before "baby" learned to drink from a bottle.

Linda Allen isn't so large, but the lost and starving fawn her father found in the woods, not far from their DeLand home, was even smaller—and a lot more helpless. Linda couldn't keep her little pet, but while she and "baby" were together they had a lot of fun. Linda says "baby" was a lot more fun than dolls and, too, "baby" really drank milk from a bottle.

PRIVATE FISHIN' HOLE

(For Kids Only)

By ROSEMARY YOUNG

PRIZES, pop, candy, and popsicles, plus worms, poles, hooks, fish and mud—all add up to a day of excitement and fun for Florida youngsters when a fishathon is held.

It's a special day just for kids, when tiny tots, barely able to hoist a cane pole, on up to "veterans" of 12 to 15 have the run of a lake, pond or stream marked "private—for kids only."

At the recent day-long fishathon at Clermont, the local Lions Club supplied everything but the mud—refreshments, prizes, equipment and, yes, even the fish. The fish caught from Center Lake, near the city hall, were descendants of bass and bream with which the lake was stocked four years ago. For the first year, fishing was restricted to children only, but following a series of fertilizer treatments by the Lions, the abundance of fish led to the opening of the lake to all age groups.

On Fishathon Day, some 450 young Waltonians lined the banks awaiting the fire siren to signal the opening of competition for prizes. The youngsters were required to register, and received three tickets entitling them to a bottle of pop, candy bar and popsicle. Cane poles and worms also were issued to each contestant.

The ingenuity of the beginners created an amusing sight. There was no problem involved in what to do with the refreshments, but the fish and the bait were not so easily stowed away. Paper cups, shoes and pockets were the most popular receptacles. Worms were conveniently kept in pants pockets, shirt pockets seemed ideal for small bream, and shoes proved to be the best bet for storing larger bream and bass.

Thirty-five prizes were awarded for the best catches in the various categories of the contest, including rods, reels, lures and other sports equipment.

Jane Seaver caught this bass a few seconds after the opening whistle blew to start the contest.

String of bream caught by Terry Harris.

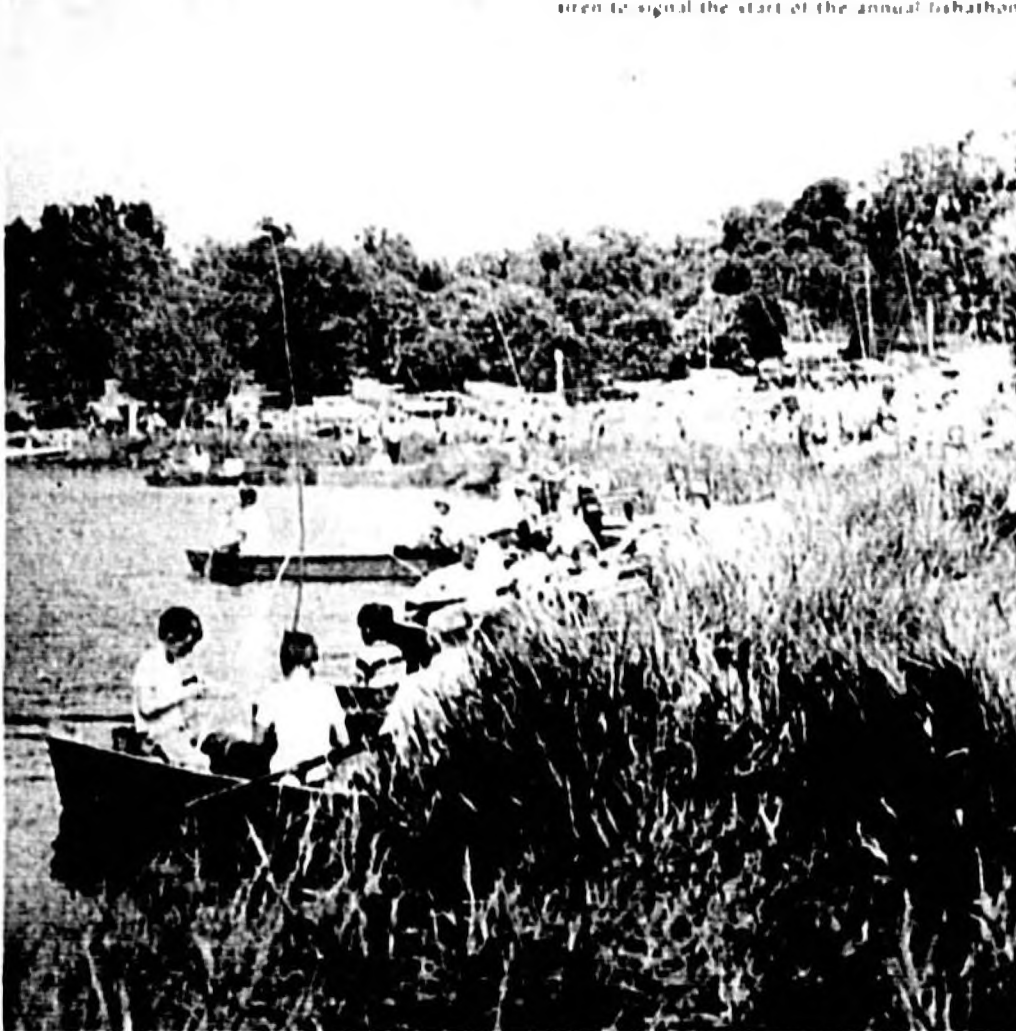

It's times like this when a fish won't come off a hook that girls are inclined to wonder if fishing isn't more for the men.

It sometimes takes concentration to conquer the wriggling worm

More than 400 children line the shore of Center Lake near the Clermont city hall waiting for the firemen to signal the start of the annual fishathon

HANDICRAFTS CAPTURE CHRISTMAS IN SUMMER FOR DAY CAMP KIDS

By PAULA CLARK

Simple handicrafts that keep little hands busy are proving a star attraction at the YMCA summer day camp in Coral Gables, where youngsters are making Christmas gifts and ornaments this summer.

The techniques that turn empty milk cartons and used bottle caps into cottages and Christmas bells can easily be borrowed by harassed mothers with stay-at-home kiddies, according to Mrs. Homer Kimbrell, director of the day camp.

Any day this summer will find the craft director, her assistant and kiddies up to their elbows in aluminum foil, empty milk cartons and bottle caps provided by the Dairy Council of South Florida, a non-profit educational institution.

The handicraft classes are housed in a small building on the grounds of St. Theresa School, where Mrs. R. C. Simmons, craft director, and her assistant, Mrs. J. French Koger, are turning odds and ends into toys and ornaments.

Nancy Coleman, one of the campers at the Coral Gables YMCA summer day camp, proudly displays belt made from milk bottle caps and beads.

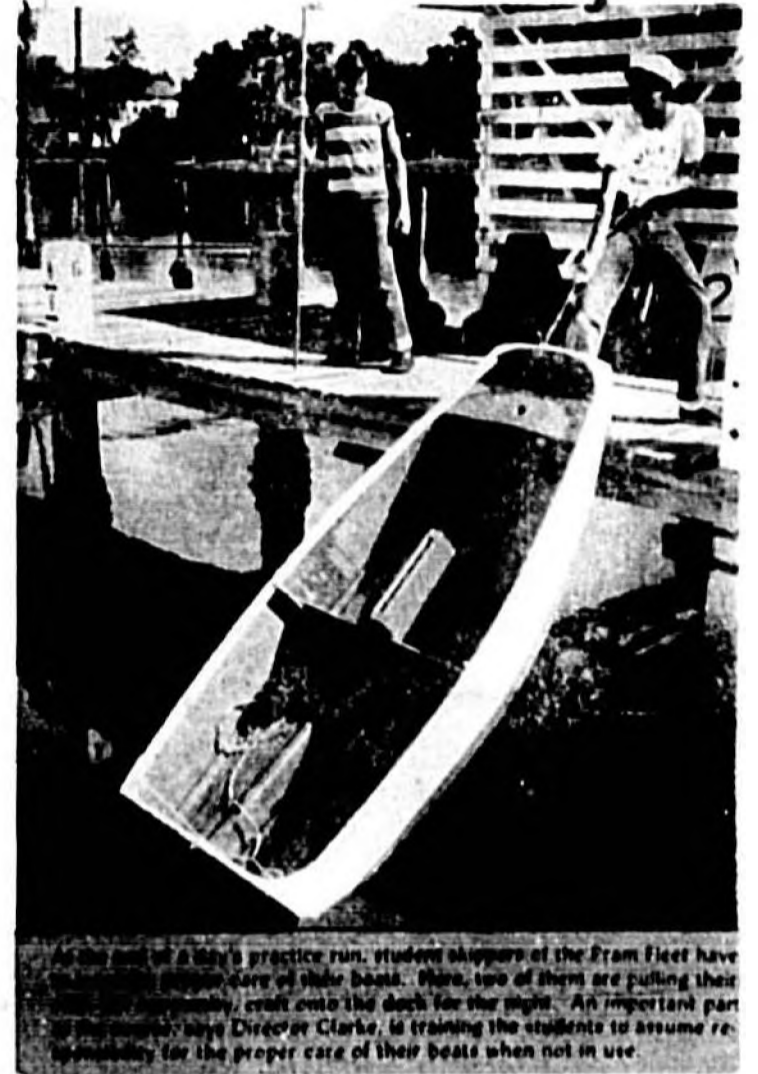

Three colored nylon twist is coiled on cap beginning an outer rim and working toward center. It is held fast by a light coating of cement brushed on the cap.

Counselor Jackie Simmons, 17, models belt for Suzanne Miller and Ellen Green.

SARASOTA'S SKIPPER SCHOOL

KIDS EARN THEIR "SALT" HERE

By BILL COPELAND and ROBERT FORD

CHILD welfare agencies seeking to halt juvenile delinquency through child guidance programs might take a cue from the Optimist Club of Sarasota. The Optimists have solved the problem for at least 350 youngsters in the past five years by letting the kids "chart their own course." The charting is done in scaled-down sailing vessels called "prams" and the course is limited to the sheltered waters of Sarasota Bay; but, a young man with his hand on the tiller and a ship at his command is a young man learning leadership, self reliance, sportsmanship, navigation and a good many other things.

The Sarasota Pram Fleet was organized in 1949 and has been growing as rapidly as new canvas can be spread to the bay breezes. The Optimists finance the fleet, with various Sarasota merchants sponsoring one pram each at $70. Instructions are provided by the Sarasota Sailing Squadron.

Any youngster between the ages of 8 and 15 can "sign on" with the Pram Fleet, if he or she can swim. The only fee is $1 per year. Current enrollment is 89 members.

Charlie Clarke, adult director of the Pram Fleet, says,

"It's remarkable what this training does for the youngsters. It makes them independent. Instructions are given first and then they are off on their own ability. They sail in all kinds of weather."

And they sail so expertly that the Fleet has won two international championships and one national championship.

For traveling around Florida to participate in special events and competitions, the Sarasota Pram Fleet has its own trailer; a compact unit carrying 10 prams and full equipment. Each year, the Fleet schedules several over-night camping trips.

Pram skippers are taught to respect and maintain their crafts, as well as to enjoy them. While they enjoy recreation and gain experience, they learn basic navigation which will stand them in good in the days ahead when they move up to larger crafts and join in the many year-around sailing events which have made the area a boatman's mecca.

Members of the Sarasota Pram Fleet will tell you that + juvenile delinquency is for landlubbers. They're sailing straight and true!

After "ground school," these young skippers graduate to the quiet waters near shore where they will practice until they become full fledged skippers ready for fast sailing in the deeper waters of Sarasota Bay. They are ready to join former "graduates" to become members in good standing of the Pram Fleet of nearly 90 "skippers" who have brought the Fleet two international and one national championship.

ALLIGATORS!

By JOHN R. HABERMAN

William Barram, the naturalist, had a pleasant visit at the lower trading post of Spalding and Company on the St. Johns. But by the middle of May, 1774, he was ready to travel again. He set out once more in his tiny sailboat, this time accompanied by some of the traders in their larger boat. They were bound for the second or upper trading post on the great river.

On the morning of the second day they entered "the little ocean of Lake George." Hardly had they entered it when the wind began to blow and they were forced to camp on a large island in the lake.

On this island there were extensive remains of a prehistoric Indian town. "On the site of this ancient town," Barram wrote, "stands a very pompous Indian mound, or conical pyramid of earth, from which runs in a straight line a grand avenue or Indian highway, through a magnificent grove of magnolias, live oaks, palms, and orange trees."

However, the only inhabitants Barram and his companions found on the island were "deer, turkeys, bears, wolves, wildcats, squirrels, raccoons, and opossums." The bears were attracted by the wild oranges. They were gluttonously fond of them.

They had no difficulty waking up early the next morning. "As the approach of day the deaf voice of the alligators shook the lake and resounded along the neighboring coasts." Soon they were on their way again, in pleasant weather.

On this trip the traders employed a method of fishing which Barram thought peculiar. They used a long reed pole with a short strong line and a treble hook made by fastening three ordinary hooks back to back. The hooks were covered with "white hair of a deer's tail, shreds of a red garter, and some parti-coloured feathers." The tuft thus formed was called a "bob."

They'd bob the lure along the surface of the water, and the giant bass (called trout) would dash out from under the lily pads, fighting mad. Then would ensue a struggle between man and fish. Sometimes the fish won by breaking the pole. Otherwise they'd horse him into the boat.

Barram and a companion also went hunting. And game was plentiful, to say the least. Barram stalked a flock of turkeys while his companion went after a deer. About that time a big wildcat joined in the hunt after the turkeys. Barram was on the point of shooting the wildcat when his companion nearby shot the deer. Frightened by the shot, the cat bounded off, while the turkeys flew away. It was a case of too much game all at one time. But when Barram returned to camp he found that the other already had all the meat needed, on the fire and cooking for supper.

Another day's sailing brought them to Spalding's upper trading post, where Barram spent several weeks. Then he started out again, still upriver, on what was to prove his most dangerous adventure. He had an Indian guide with him at the beginning, but before the first day was out the Indian decided that he didn't like the job. So Barram put him ashore, and he ran off into the forest with a wild war whoop. Barram never saw him again.

Barram sailed on then alone. The second night out he camped by a little cove on one side of a promontory that formed a curve in the river. The little peninsula was almost entirely covered by a wild orange grove.

He quickly found that the place was far from the peaceful spot he had anticipated. The water all around was full of alligators. Towards evening they began to fight and rear at each other. It was then time for Barram to catch some fish for supper, for the sun was almost set. But he found that the alligators had gathered all around his little harbor.

Nevertheless, he was determined to get some fish from a nearby lagoon, for he was hungry. So he got a stout club, shoved off in the boat and, as he described it, "penetrated the first line of those which surrounded my harbor." The big saurians let him out, for the present unmolested, but several of the largest followed the boat as he paddled furiously towards the lagoon.

Barram got halfway to his destination. Then the 'gators attacked. They came at him from all sides, rushing at the boat and trying to upset it.

In his own words: "My situation was now precarious to the last degree: two very large ones attacked me closely at the same instant, rushing up with their heads and part of their bodies above water, roaring terribly and belching floods of water over me. They struck their jaws together so close to my ears as almost to stun me, and I expected every moment to be dragged out of the boat and instantly devoured."

The naturalist laid about him with his club to such effect that he was able to drive the alligators off momentarily. He then made for the shore, and by keeping close to the land in shallow water he was able to elude them long enough to reach the lagoon. There, while the big 'gators lay in wait outside, he caught enough fish for supper. He was able to get back to camp only by keeping close along the shore.

As soon as he beached his boat Barram ran for his gun. He returned just in time to find a large alligator trying to get into the boat to get at the fish. A shot in the head put an end to that fellow. But even that was not the last of it.

Barram was scaling the fish near the water's edge when he saw another alligator swimming towards him in the clear water. The 'gator was very close. Barram stepped back just in time to escape the sudden sweep of the monster's tail, which brushed several of the fish into the water. Barram could just as easily have joined them had he not been on the alert.

All members of the family enjoy the distinctive, appetizing taste of the Avocado Pear. The Avocado, or Alligator Pear, when discovered by early Spanish explorers, was a principal food of the natives of tropic America.

It is one of a genus of plants of the family Lauraceae and is the only species of this order cultivated for its fruit. The flowers are green, about half an inch across. The fruit, in size and shape, resembles a large pear, is either brown or green in color and dissolves like butter on the tongue.

Like many other fruits, avocados are firm when picked and soften later. To tell when it is at its "eating best," hold fruit between cupped hands and press gently. If it "gives" (feels soft), it is ready to serve. Buy "soft" to serve the same day or "firm" to serve in two or three days. Keep in a cool place, but not below 40 degrees. Firm avocados will soften normally at room temperature, but when the temperature is above 80 degrees they soften rapidly.

Whether you serve avocados in salads, as a spread on toast or with "something special" recipes, it's a sure way to please the family appetite. Because avocados are both satisfying and easy to prepare, mothers like to serve them often at mealtime, or as a between-meal snack.

The principal energy value of avocado pears comes from their highly digestible fruit oil. They are low in carbohydrates and, for fruits, high in protein. Their nine vitamins and 14 minerals make the avocado an outstanding food value. One-half of a four-inch avocado pear provides approximately 100 calories.

The quickest, easiest way to serve avocados is in the skin, with your favorite dressing. Serve avocado half-shell when in a hurry, when entertaining guests or when just plain hungry. They are always appetizing. Just cut the avocado into halves, lengthwise, and twist slightly to pull apart. Remove seed — but not the skin. Fill cavity with your favorite dressing. Serve in shell on salad greens with wedges of lime or lemon to bring out the flavor. Make a tart French dressing with lemon juice, and season with dry mustard and paprika—it's delicious in an avocado half-shell.

Mayonnaise, in its many variations, or Thousand Island dressing are also very tasty with avocado pears. Lemon juice, Tabasco or Worcestershire sauce, curry or chili powder, minced parsley, onion or chopped tomato or cucumber, are extras you can add.

Serving avocados filled with anything from cheese to seafood is another sure way to win compliments. These salads are easily varied to suit the family taste. Try the fruit filling on our cookbook page, or draw up your own filling. An avocado pear salad gives a lift to any meal and sliced avocados combine temptingly with any fruits or vegetables. Sliced, halved, quartered, diced, cut as balls, or mashed as a dressing for other fruits and vegetables, avocados add zest and sparkle to any salad.

Have you been looking for a new sandwich spread? What a spread you can make with mashed avocado! It's easy, too. Mash the soft fruit with a fork, add your favorite seasoning, toss in a dash of imagination—and you become the queen of sandwich makers—or a hustler famous for avocado spreads. Try seasoning with salt and lemon juice and vary it with cottage or cream cheese, chopped green pepper, or minced fish or crumbled crisp bacon. Mashed avocado is also wonderful when heaped into pieces of celery.

Main dishes of distinction, hot or cold, just come naturally when you combine avocados with chicken, fish, eggs, cheese or leftover meats. You don't have to be an epicure to appreciate a meal built around avocados. We know you will want to try the Avocado Veal Aspic on our cookbook page for something new and different.

Whether preparing a fruit appetizer or seafood cocktail, the addition of avocado pear to either will be a pleasing combination.

Pineapple, halved seeded grapes, cubed apple, peach or pear, and any of the melons or berries are good companions for avocado in fruit cups. Avocado combines perfectly with crab, lobster, tuna, minced clams,ysters, or any other fish or seafood into countless tempting cocktails.

For a great energy food and one that is economical to serve all around the table, the Avocado Pear is the answer.

Household Hint: To cut a pie into five even portions, cut a "Y" in the pie, then cut the two large side pieces exactly in half.

Recipe of The Week

Grapefruit Marmalade

2 large Florida grapefruit
Water
Sugar (about 5 cups)

Cut Florida grapefruit peel in six lengthwise sections. Remove peel, cut into thin strips. Cover peel with water, boil five minutes. Drain, repeat process twice. Dice pulp, discarding core and seeds. Combine diced pulp with drained peel, measure. Add twice that amount of water, bring to a boil and cook 30 minutes. Measure, add an equal amount of sugar for each cup of pulp. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until thick and clear about 25 minutes, or until jelly test is reached. Stir frequently to prevent scorching. Cool mixture about five minutes, pour into hot sterilized glasses. Seal with hot paraffin immediately. Yield: 10 six-ounce glasses.

All Florida Cookbook

Avocado Fruit Filling

Macerate one cup halved grapefruit or orange sections and one cup cornichons in a dressing made of equal parts lemon or lime juice and honey. Fill avocado halves with fruit mixture. Serves four.

Avocado Dressing

Stir into ½ cup mashed or sieved avocado pear, ½ teaspoon salt, one tablespoon lemon juice, few drops Tabasco sauce and three tablespoons mayonnaise. Add chopped parsley or grated onion for extra flavor. Use as usual dressing for head lettuce, shredded cabbage, salad greens, sliced tomatoes, cucumbers, citrus fruits, cold salads, cold artichokes and cauliflower.

Avocado Veal Aspic

Summer until tender in water to cover, two pounds veal shoulder and chicken bone with bay leaf, one tablespoon salt and one tablespoon vinegar. Cool, chop in a food processor. Boil stock down to 2 cups. Add one envelope plain gelatin softened in two tablespoons cold water, dissolve. Season to taste with grated onion, salt and pepper. Cold fold in veal, one cup diced celery and one cup diced avocado. Place avocado slices in bottom of loaf pan, fill with mixture and chill until firm. Serves eight to ten.

Avocado Omelet

Beat yolks and white of four eggs separately. Blend ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup cold water, black pepper and egg yolks into whites. Cook two to three minutes in one tablespoon melted butter in heavy frying pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Spread with avocado sauce, fold over and top with more sauce.

Avocado Sauce

Stir ½ cup grated American cheese into one cup hot, medium-thick white sauce. When cheese is melted fold in one cup diced avocado pear. Serve at once. Serves four.

Avocado in Molded Salads

Dissolve one package lemon-flavored gelatine in 1½ cups hot water. Blend in three tablespoons lemon juice, cool until slightly thickened. Stir in one of the following combinations and chill until firm: ½ cup each sliced avocado and prepared shrimp; one cup grapefruit sections and ½ cup avocado slices; ½ cup each canned fruit cocktail and avocado slices.

A FLORIDA DREAM COMES TRUE

By GEORGE RICKEY

POINCIANA GARDENS, one of Florida's newest home site developments, is the brain child of A. E. "Abe" Sirota. It grew from a simple observation. Mr. Sirota, thinking of the day when he would retire from business, wanted to find a reasonably priced home site that would be conducive to a pleasant and active life. As the idea grew, he found that there were thousands of people who shared his dream. Mr. Sirota has the restless mind and energy which refuses to let good ideas wither on the vine.

Mr. Sirota has been visiting Florida since 1922 and has watched the state grow. "Frankly," says Mr. Sirota, "I was strictly a tourist until I came down to see my son in 1950. Merton (Merton) was a captain, stationed at MacDill Airforce Base, and he saw changes taking place that a visitor would not notice, or would take for granted."

Captain Sirota felt that there was lots of room for improvement in his own living conditions. He also believed that the economic changes that he had observed promised a great future for industry and business in Florida. "Dad, I'll bet you could find spots down here where you could build your own home inexpensively and combine a sound investment with a really pleasant life." Mr. Sirota thought that his son was right and after some investigation, felt sure that he was.

The Sirotas decided to go ahead with their plans to build and invited a few friends and members of the family to join them on a cooperative basis. The idea proved so popular that in no time they were thinking in terms of 40 or 50 homes.

A closely held stock company was formed, and an investigation of sites was begun.

The Gomez property had everything! Located on U. S. Highway No. 1, 25 miles north of Palm Beach and eight miles south of Stuart, the property has an unlimited potential for economic growth and recreational activity. A tract of this size could be planned as a model community of approximately 5,000 homes with facilities that could not have been incorporated in the original modest development.

The land is being improved with wide gracefully curved roads, electricity, and a sewerage system; also planned for Poinciana Gardens is a recreation park, bathing beach, fishing pier, and a shopping center. Lots are being sold every day, but perhaps the best indication that the Sirotas have made "a dream come true," lies in the offer that they have received from the whole Gomez tract, and the fact that other land in the Gomez area is being snapped up for further home site developments.

Mr. Sirota, who holds patents on a unique oil burner and an extruded aluminum baseboard, has other irons in the fire. His son, Merton, is a graduate chemist and has developed several chemicals with tremendous commercial possibilities.

Research and development have shown one chemical, in particular, to be an extremely effective fungicide, insecticide and bactericide. The most dramatic demonstration of the chemical's potency was its use in stamping out an epidemic of ringworm that had infected the scalps of 1,300 Sault St. Marie school children in 1950. Many national magazines and newspapers, including Life and Time, carried the story and showed pictures of tots studying and playing in white protective skull caps.

Since 1950, further studies have indicated that variations of the basic active ingredient in Bacticide are extremely effective in reducing the bacteria in sewerage, in the treatment of various animal diseases of the skin, and in preventing the formation of mold on leather and textiles, to mention a few of this powerful chemical's known uses.

The finishing touches are being put on one of the new, modern homes being built in one of Florida's newest home site developments, Poinciana Gardens at Gomez. Landscape Architect Howard McCormick (kneeling) is working under the watchful eyes of A. E. "Abe" Sirota, founder of the project, and his son, Merton, whose two daughters are ready to give the woman's view on granddaddy's "dream come true."

Now, Mr. Sirota is combining enthusiasm for Florida and its future with his enthusiasm for his chemical products and their future. The first two chemical products to be offered to the public will be introduced in Florida. Mildu-Kill prevents the formation of mold on leather, and Milduperse prevents mold from attacking textiles. Both will be sold for use in the home.

Another dream is forming in Mr. Sirota's mind. He pictures the day when his chemical interests, National Sales, will have its own plant in Florida, employing people, like himself, who want to enjoy Florida living at its best.

Mr. Sirota still lives in New Jersey, but he finds that more and more of his thoughts and time are being spent on Florida. He's sold on the state and its future—and more important, he's selling others on Florida's potential for work and play. If optimism, enthusiasm, imagination and old-fashioned perspiration are the ingredients of Florida's tremendous growth, Mr. Sirota will be a very successful "native son."

Along with development of Poinciana Gardens, "Abe" Sirota plans to introduce in Florida for the first time a new type of chemical designed to eliminate mold and mildew on leathers and textiles. Mrs. Merton Sirota, his daughter-in-law, and her two youngsters are shown testing the new product in front of their new home in Poinciana Gardens.

Dreams do come true, but it takes a lot of money, work and imagination to reach that end, according to "Abe" Sirota (left) who, with son, Merton, has made his fondest dream a fact. The map shows some of the development of Poinciana Gardens, the 1,880-acre tract of land, near Stuart, which the Sirotas have changed from a wilderness to the site of a model community that eventually will contain 5,000 homes, a recreation park, bathing beaches, fishing pier and the most modern of facilities for easy Florida living.

FLORIDA'S blood bankers have taken a tip from the bankers of money! In a move designed to extend blood bank protection to the state's most remote areas, the Florida Association of Blood Banks has established a blood "clearing house" and rare blood registry in Jacksonville. The clearing house functions like its financial counterpart, handling the transfer of blood credits between member banks, and making available to patients in the city blood which has been deposited to their credit in another. By special arrangement, transfers can be made to, or from, any blood bank in the country.

Equally important is the new "Rare Blood Registry." Member banks of the association advise the clearing house when unusual or hard-to-get blood types are available, and the clearing house, in turn, may order the blood rushed to the bedside of a patient in another part of Florida.

These unique developments in blood banking originated—we must say it—in California, and Florida is the only other state to adopt them so far. As pointed out by Executive Secretary Dorothy C. Smith, of Jacksonville, the new services emphasize the phenomenal growth of the Florida Association, a group formed in 1947 to expand blood bank facilities and insure high standards of operation. The Association now includes a regional, community and hospital blood banks, a by-stander network which reaches the smallest Florida town.

Although the clearing house has been in operation since January of this year, it has already cleared thousands of pints of blood, and credits over $100,000 to the blood banks as far away as Miami. The cost of a pint of blood is 35 cents each. Originally financed by contributions from members of the Association, the clearing house is now well on the way to being self-supporting. Thanks to an interlocking system of fees paid to member banks, needless apart from the actual cost of blood, the clearing house in individual cases, the public pays nothing.

FROCKS 'N FRILLS

By PAULA CLARK
All Florida Fashion Editor

PARIS, France—La Haute Couture continues to set the trend for the world of fashion—but how does the average Frenchwoman dress? "Average" is a misleading term, of course. In this case, "average" refers to the middle class working girl, who may be a clerk at "Au Printemps," fashionable department store, the wife of a white-collar worker, a secretary in government services.

You'll see her walking along the Avenue de l'Opera in her trim dark suit or dark cotton topped with a bright jacket. You'll find her wearing simple black pumps—often without hose, because the working girl faces a serious financial problem in the city of light.

They'll be looking hopefully into the shop windows featuring gay cottons for "les vacances" (vacation) but mentally adding their budgets.

The average working girl here does well to manage a winter outfit, summer dress, coat and shoes on a year-round basis. But she'll brighten the same old navy suit with a gay flower or scarf or a fetching bonnet.

Lovely hand-embroidered blouses and beautiful evening bags seem to be the greatest bargains for Americans in Paris—outside of perfume, of course. Bikini swimsuits for men and American swimsuits for women occupy featured spots in the shop windows. French shoppers, however, show greatest interest in "American gadgets" (that's what the sign says)—meaning electric refrigerators.

Sari-clad Indian women and female students in plain woolen slacks elbow American tourists in the Louvre. I still haven't figured out how the scarlet caste mark is applied between the eyebrows of the Hindu lady in the pink sari. In the streets, men in knickerbockers and berets pedal bicycles furiously through the whirling traffic.

In the fashionable bar of the Ritz Hotel, women in beautifully tailored suits and mink stoles drink aperitifs and champagne cocktails.

Frenchwomen say that it is difficult to tell American women tourists from native Parisians these days. "They dress more quietly," is the consensus. Perhaps it's the weather. The calendar says it's summer but the thermometer fluctuates between 50 and 60.

While fashionables shop in the boutiques of the Place Vendôme and the Rue de la Paix, little shop girls haunt the open air markets sandwiched into tiny alleys (they can't be more than 10 feet wide) between the main streets. You can buy everything from shoes to costume jewelry at these outdoor "boutiques." On the main streets, hawkers and pitchmen set up stands with cellulose sponges, enticing looking chocolates and too vivid lemonade. American sailors buy the same sleazy silk pillow tops we've seen in Goose Bay, Labrador and Miami Beach.

Three large Navy vessels, currently in port, have poured large complements of youngsters into Paris. I've seen them in the Louvre, Notre Dame, and the Ritz—always with cameras.

Truly, Paris can be all things to all people—if you approach it with an open mind. If this column fails to show up next week you'll know I'm lost in the Louvre. It spreads over 40 acres! Au revoir!

FLORIDA FACTS

Fish Fancies

Man's imagination seems limitless in seeking religious symbols in the works of nature. In Florida, such symbols are found in countless numbers in flowers and rocks, in the atmospheric actions, and, yes, even in the skeleton of a fish.

A Florida ichthyologist is credited with having found several of these physical characteristics that some call symbols, in the Gattropsal catfish or "Sail-Cat," and resulted in it being referred to as the "Fish with the Crucifix Cross."

You have to hunt for the image because it is on the underside of the skull, where the Christ on the cross, with the halo and crown of thorns, is easily traced.
The same ichthyologist heard a faint rattling sound in the skull of the fish and discovered two little loose bones, which he described as the "Devil's Dice," like those Roman soldiers cast when gambling for the Savior's garments.

The Gattropsal catfish, he found, had even more symbols.
The sharp pointed bone of the dorsal fin was the Roman soldier's spear, and then the six ribs on each side became representatives of the 12 apostles.

Mounted skeletons of the "Crucifix fish" are found in curio shops on the Florida keys.

How to Give Quick Relief to Scratching Dogs

The Upsala Community Presbyterian Church, Lake Mary, recently was named as a third place winner in Florida in the list of state winners in the Town and Country Church Development Program, which is sponsored by Emory University in Georgia and the Sears Foundation. The Upsala Church of the South went to the Prospect Presbyterian Church, Mooreville, N. C.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced examinations for medical officer $3,940 to $1,000 a year, and for patent adviser, $3,110 to $2,910 a year.

Miss Virginia Chapman, W. First St., a Methodist missionary in Cuba, is in Evanston, Ill., attending the Chicago Ecumenical Institute, at the center located at Garrett Biblical Institute and Seminary-Western Theological Seminary. She is on furlough but will return in September to her work at the student center in Havana. At the sessions in Evanston, clergy and lay members of American churches are to have the opportunity to meet with leaders of the World Council of Churches in classrooms and informal groups. These programs are being carried out in Chicago area, for two periods of a week each. The church dignitary whom Miss Chapman is having the opportunity to meet in Evanston for the second assembly of the World Council of Churches, which opens next Sunday for two weeks. Leaders of 161 churches from half a hundred countries are attending, worshipping and working together in common interests.

British Officials Leave For Visits In Commie Capitals

LONDON (AP)—Former Prime Minister Clement Attlee, leftist Aneurin Bevan and six other British laborites took off today for visits in Moscow and Peking which they said they hoped would improve relations between the West and the Red regime.

"We hope," Bevan, "to try to help the Chinese revolution from being driven into isolation as the Russian revolution was."

He was asked if he thought there was any danger of this happening.

"Yes," replied the outspoken Laborite. "I do."

"The danger," he said, "is coming from elements in the United States who don't understand the situation."

Attlee, answering other questions from reporters, said there should be no reason in the United States for anyone to think that this trip should have any effect on the Labor party's feeling toward America.

Referring to the recent Red Chinese attack on a British airline, Attlee said: "Just because you recognize a country does not mean you approve everything it does."

Asked if he thought there was a desire for peace in China, Bevan said: "We hope to find this."

Attlee emphasized that he and the seven other members of the party were not members of the government.

LIVESTOCK SALES REPORTED WINTER HAVEN

Reports received the past week in the office of L. H. Lewis, director of State markets from 18 livestock sales centers total 7,739 head of cattle and calves and 3,008 hogs and pigs sold with gross returns given by 13 markets totaling $270,150.

Since the previous week at 17 markets totaled 6,358 cattle and calves and 2,805 hogs and pigs with gross returns given by 11 markets totaling $157,822.90.

Totals given a year ago by 13 markets show the sale of 6,598 cattle and calves and 4,793 hogs and pigs with gross returns given by 6 markets of $171,237.60.

Sioux Is Miss Indian America At Gathering Of Over 40 Tribes

SHEKIDAN, Wyo. (AP)—Mary Louise Defender, a Sioux maiden from Fort Yates, N.D., last night was named Miss Indian America.

Burnersup were Mary A. Tutley, Cherokee tribe, Tulsa, Okla.; Kay Price, Navajo, Gallup, N.M.; and Annie Grace Strangue Oel, Northern Cheyenne, Blirney, Mont.

Selection of Miss Defender from 14 candidates was announced at the concluding program of All American Indian Days, which saw more than 40 tribes gathered here for two days of sports contests, dance exhibitions and pageantry.

Senators Question TVA Board Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's nominee to the Tennessee Valley Authority board said today he doesn't consider the agency "creeping socialism," and that he believes TVA should build steam-power plants to meet power needs in the valley.

Brig. Gen. Herbert D. Vogel, division Army engineer at Dallas, Tex., was questioned for almost three hours by members of the Senate Public Works Committee and senators from the TVA area.

The committee headed by Sen. Martin (R-Pa.) must pass on the nomination of Vogel to the $15,000 a year board post vacated last May.

Eisenhower in a June 1950 news conference cited the TVA as an example of "creeping socialism," but said at the same time that he is not out to destroy the agency.

There is an annual fight in Congress over TVA requests for funds to build steam plants to supplement its water power facilities, with opponents contending such power should be furnished by private enterprise.

Vogel, trading man in conversative business attire, gave prompt answers to a long series of questions fired at him by the senators. He is due for Army retirement Aug. 24, and would take over his TVA duties at that time if he is confirmed.

The committee hearing was recessed today before the senators finished questioning Vogel.

Sen. Tom (D-Tenn.), an ardent supporter of TVA and its plan to build new steam plants to meet power needs in the valley, told a reporter, "I'm favorably impressed with General Vogel."

Sen. Cooper (R-Ky.), only Republican senator from the TVA area, told newsmen "I'm for him (Vogel)."

3 Balkan Nations Sign Military Pact

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (AP)—Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece signed a military pact today aimed at weeding Balkan wars against aggressor Russia by her communist satellites.

The historic move implements the Balkan friendship treaty President Marshall Tito's government signed in 1953 with her two neighbors who are members of the North Atlantic Alliance and bring Communist Yugoslavia a step closer to the Western orbit.

It also links Yugoslavia indirectly with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, although she is no NATO member.

Cautiously worded, the pact pledges the three countries allegiance to the United Nations and protects Greek and Turkish obligations to NATO without committing Yugoslavia to a direct part in that security program.

At the same time, however, the new treaty clearly aimed at arranging military collective insurance against the threat of communist aggression, and was another step by Yugoslavia toward closer collaboration with the West.

In pooling armed forces of the three nations that may total more than one million men, the alliance bolsters one of the soft spots in Western Europe's defenses.

Services Tomorrow For Mrs. Minarik

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Holy Cross Episcopal Church for Mrs. M. Minarik, 63, who died at her home, 1314 Park Ave., Saturday morning.

Born in Longwood, Mrs. Minarik had made her home in Sanford for the past 32 years. She was a member of Holy Cross Church and a past president of the Women's Auxiliary. She was active in all phases of church work. She was also a member of the auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

She is survived by the husband of Sanford; two sons, John W. Minarik of Sanford and Dr. Harry J. Minarik of Salem, Va.; and three grandchildren, Ann Harry Jo Jr. and Michael Robert of Salem.

The Rev. H. Lytton Zimmerman will officiate at the services and burial will follow in Lake View Cemetery.

HD Agent Making 4-H Club Visits

Myrtle Wilson, Seminole County Home Demonstration agent, visited 4-H clubs at Lake Mary this afternoon to begin a busy week of 4-H activity. Miss Wilson will meet with Sanford 4-H members tomorrow morning and the Paola group tomorrow afternoon.

Wednesday the agent will visit individual members of the Lake Monroe club and Thursday travel to Fern Park to join the Clear Lake club members. Friday morning Miss Wilson will present a home demonstration on sewing-machine cleaning at the home of Mrs. Robert C. Whitmore, 708 Magnolia Ave., Sanford.

One Hurt, 2 Pinched, Mule Dead

Mishap Frees Animals; Cause 2nd Accident

The person was injured and two were arrested about 15 miles west of Sanford in a series of events involving two automobile accidents and several mules, one now dead.

According to Trooper R. D. Harrison of the Florida Highway Patrol, John T. Boone, 29, Negro, Jacksonville, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Boone, and another unidentified Negro, were going east on State Road 415 (Celery Ave.) in a 1949 Ford coupe about 5:30 p. m. Saturday when it left the road on the right side of the road for 100 feet. Harrison said crossed over the other side of the road, going 63 feet west through a fence at the Chase and Co. property and went 150 feet further in a pasture.

Boone made the remark Harrison said that they should get out of there before the patrol arrived.

Also making an exit from the pasture were about 15 mules. Boone later was arrested with his wife and charged with reckless driving, willful and wanton driving and driving with a bad license. He posted a $500 bond with the sheriff's office last night.

Meanwhile the mules went astray.

At about 11:30 p. m. John Will Anderson, 35, Negro, 702 Hickory Ave., encountered some of the straying animals on State Road 415 at Geneva Ave. with bad results, about two miles east of the city.

His attempts to dodge the animals were unsuccessful. He struck one killing it. The mule went over the front of the car, smashing the right front of the car and the top of the car. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Anderson got shattered glass in his eyes and suffered lacerations on his hand. His eyes will be all right, according to his attending physician, Harrison said. Anderson was arrested for failure to stop at a red light.

The owner of the dead mule was William Leifer, Chase and Co. representative. The mule was estimated at $250.

At 11:30 p. m. a 1949 Ford coupe was stopped at 11:30 p. m. yesterday just west of State Road 415 near Sikes Ave. for the mule. About 300 Negroes were watching the scene. The department gave a bounty for the animal.

Stolen Car Is Recovered

A car owned by Mrs. J. E. Grady, 2018 Park Ave., which was stolen Aug. 3, has been recovered, according to Police Chief Roy Williams.

The vehicle was found at the gate parking lot of the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station, which was being guarded by shore patrolmen Ben Engstrom and L. A. Garrett.

Engstrom and Garrett made a search of the lot on the suggestion of G. C. Fellows, police desk sergeant Saturday. Mrs. Grady now happily has possession of the automobile again. Chief Williams said.

Defective Pen Starts Events That Lead To Airman's Death

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—A pen that wouldn't write set off a bizarre chain of circumstances here yesterday that led to a shooting spree, a police chase and the death by drowning of an airman.

Police said Pfc. Melvin I. Gerbitz of Ft. Bragg, N. C., wrote in a local restaurant when one of the two—it hadn't been determined which one—became angry because his fountain pen wouldn't write.

He handed the pen to his companion, told him to hold it at arm's length, pulled out a pistol and shot the pen in bits.

The restaurant owner called police. The airman hopped in a car and sped away. Police gave chase. At a bridge across the Dan River near town, the airman's car smashed into an embankment. The two crawled out of the car and tried to swim the river.

Gerbitz didn't remove his uniform. He drowned a third of the way across.

Wife Turns Her Husband Over To Cops

MIAMI (AP)—Two Miami detectives today how a mother turned her "thieving husband" over to police so she could give her three children "an honest and decent life."

Detectives W. J. Krajewski and W. W. Watson identified the mother as Mrs. Lois Brown, 37, and her husband as Albert, 40. The father was booked on charges of burglarizing the Motrell Poultry Co.

A typewriter, electric drill and electric razor recovered after his arrest were identified as having come from the poultry company, the detectives reported.

The officers were called by Mrs. Brown yesterday afternoon. He brought them in anyhow and she called police," said the officers.

Mrs. Brown said she believed her husband is suffering from kleptomania.

"He's sick," she said. "I've known him to steal 10 cents worth of five books with $100 in his pockets. He just can't leave other people's things alone."

"I've had a hard time making up my mind to turn him in but this is the only way to get out of this mess. I only have 20 cents in my pocket today and my babies don't have any breakfast, but I'm going to give them a decent life."

"I've always worked and I'll make out for myself and the children some way. I'm thinking about my children. I want them to have an honest and decent life."

Her children are 3, 4 and 7 years old.

Report May Delay Senate

Vote Planned On Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—At least six major issues remain to be disposed of in the six working days left before the late Saturday target time for the windup of this Congress.

Even if all are cleared up, the Senate may not adjourn but instead take a recess to come back later to act upon a report from the special six-man committee set up to study a conservative aimed at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The six major legislative issues still unresolved are farm, foreign and social security. The farm, anti-subversive measures and atomic energy. To these a bill to revise the Atomic Energy Act appeared to carry the ch of that of a delay in adjournment.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.) predicted overwhelming House approval some time today of a compromise bill to allow this country to share some atomic weapons technology with allies and to allow private industry to enter the atomic power field.

But Senate opponents claimed growing strength in a move to reject proposed patent provisions and send the measure back for a second attempt to adjust Senate-House differences.

Senate action is scheduled later in the week. Before the bill passed their original debate extended over two weeks and required 109 hours of floor time.

After three full days of debate, the Senate arranged to begin voting today on new farm legislation in which the principal issue is whether to continue to subsidize support on five basic crops or shift to the flexible system the Eisenhower administration is advocating. A final vote may be delayed until tomorrow.

Scheduled for Senate consideration next are bills to finance the foreign and program for the current year, to expand the social security fund and increase benefits, and to raise temporarily the legal debt limit from 275 billion dollars to 281 billion. All three of the bills have passed the House but conference will be needed to iron out differences.

What action will be taken on President Eisenhower's anti-subversive program is in doubt. A conservative international group has been organized to provide for granting immunity from federal prosecution to anti-subversives claiming the right to work in a guaranteed amount of unemployment benefits. The Senate may act also on a House approved bill to provide the health quality for peacetime spying.

30 Are Killed In Plane Crash On Azores Isle

TERCEIRA ISLAND, Azores (AP)—A Colombian Constellation crashed and burned here early today, killing all 31 passengers and its crew of 9. The bodies burned to ashes.

The plane was unable to make a scheduled landing at the Azores main international airport at Ponta Maria because of thick fog. It made its way here and landed at Terceira's Lagens Air Field.

The plane took off again at 1:32 a. m. 10:37 p. m. EST, Sunday for Honolulu. A minute or two later it crashed in the Caldeira da Agulha Hills about 2 1/2 miles north of the airfield and burst into flames.

Apparently falling to gain altitude, it had struck Mt. Ilheus Ferreira about 100 feet from the summit.

Rescue parties rushed to the scene but found the craft destroyed and all persons aboard dead. The remains were taken to a local chapel for a funeral mass.

Barajas officials identified the dead pilot as Octavio Zolunga and the co-pilot as Carlos Beck, both of Colombia. Most of the crew members and passengers were Spaniards of Colombian birth.

The airliner left Hamburg yesterday morning. It stopped at Frankfurt, Paris and Lisbon.

Man, 33, Says Killed Mother Because 'Possessed With Devil'

DETROIT (AP)—A 33-year-old man who told police he beat and kicked his mother to death last night "because she was possessed of the Devil" was held as a police prisoner today in a hospital mental ward.

Clinton Green told Detective David Harris that he assaulted his mother, Mrs. Alice Green, 70, of Vico, Ky., as she lay in bed "because she was possessed of the Devil and the Bible says the only thing to do is to beat the Devil out of them."

Mrs. Green was visiting her son, his wife and two children.

She died shortly after admittance to Receiving Hospital with a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Green's wife Olive Louis, 21, told police her husband pulled his

Emergency Grand Jury Opens At Phenix City This Morning

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP)—The brutal underworld here "is on the run," an emergency grand jury was told this morning, and now is the time to strike it down forever "with every arm and power of the law."

The storm remarks of Special Judge Walter B. Jones came just before the hand-picked Russell County Grand Jury went into secret session to discover, if possible, who killed A. L. Patterson and root out the fantastic factors that led to his death.

The 18 jurors then retired with Special Solicitor George C. Johnson Jr., who called the investigation body back into session after a recess since July 21.

Judge Jones called the Phenix City situation a "harvest of hell and tragedy" that has helped put away many "lifeless bodies under the ground."

Fear has gripped the community, he said, "but the show is now on the other foot. Those who stand for law and decency here need have no fear. The underworld is never going to rule this town again."

The grand jury today climaxed more than seven weeks of the most intensive investigation in Alabama history, highlighted almost daily by action-packed developments that in many instances have cast suspicion on high state officials.

Some 125 witnesses have been served with almost 3,000 subpoenas to give evidence which might help Russell County of a criminal colony that has proven time and again it will stop at nothing.

Patterson's murder last June 18 pointed off an explosion of outrage that the gamblers and vice lords didn't anticipate. The Patterson, who was gunned down in an alley a few days after receiving the Democratic nomination for attorney general, may yet accomplish in death what he had sworn to do had he lived to take office.

There will be no cut-back in civilian personnel at the Sanford Naval Air Station for this quarter of the federal fiscal year, according to an announcement by Capt. J. E. Vase Jr., commanding officer.

It had been rumored that as much as 40 per cent of the civilian workers at the station would be laid off.
