BRIEFS

Fatality reported on I-4

SANFORD — The Florida Highway Patrol investigated a motor vehicle accident with at least one fatality this morning. A flat-bed semi tractor-trailer reportedly overturned at approximately 8:30 this morning, on Interstate 4 near the S.R. 46 exit.

Seminole County Firefighters responded when it was reported the vehicle had caught fire. It was not immediately known if the fire caused the accident or was a result of the accident.

In addition to the one fatality, fire investigators said three persons were airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center, suffering from burns.

There was no immediate indication whether the three were in the semi, or in another vehicle, as the investigation was still in progress by 10:30 this morning.

The FHP did not have an immediate identity of the victim, the number of vehicles involved, or any charges which may be filed.

Couple awarded $2.2 million

SANFORD — A Massachusetts couple has received a $2.2 million judgment against the former owners of an Oviedo bar as the result of a traffic accident almost five years ago.

Thelma and Frank Toletti sued the former owners of the Black Hammock Fish Camp's bait and tackle shop bar, Helen Younger and Kenneth Carroll. The couple were going out with friends in May of 1989 when their car was hit head on by a vehicle driven by Dennis Eugene Harrell. Harrell, who had been at the bar, crossed the center line of State Road 434 about a mile west of Oviedo and struck the Toletti vehicle head-on. Frank Toletti, who was driving, suffered severe head injuries and his wife's thigh was shattered. Younger and Carroll sold the entire fish camp in late 1989.

The couple sued the former bar owners under a 1991 state supreme court ruling that bars could be liable for damages caused by drunk drivers, if bar staffers know people are alcoholics and serve them anyway.

Harrell pleaded guilty to DUI and was placed on five years probation, ordered to pay the victims $2,000. He went to substance abuse counseling and driving school. His license was suspended but he was allowed to drive to work.

Charter Review to meet tonight

LAKE MARY — The second in a series of three public hearings on proposed changes to the Seminole County Charter will be held tonight at City Hall at the corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road. The hearing begins at 7 p.m.

Members of the Charter Review Commission will take testimony on term limits for county officers, including commissioners and "constitutional" officers. They will also take testimony on the election of commissioners solely from within their districts, commission involvement in department head job reviews and whether the county attorney should serve under the county manager or county commissioners.

Cities may begin regulating customers' basic fees

By NICK PFEIFAUPT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Local cities may soon be regulating the basic fees cable television companies charge subscribers.

In the past few days, Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth has sent suggestions to cities served by singular cable companies, urging them to declare the companies a monopoly.

"It's a very complicated process," Sanford Finance Director Carolyn Small said this morning. "If a city becomes involved in this, it would have the authority to regulate the charges for cable TV, but only for the basic services."

Small has just received the report from Butterworth's office, recommending all cities investigate the possibility of regulating the cable companies serving their area.

"But that is only for the basic channels," she added. "Anything beyond that is regulated by the FCC."

OVIDEO — A teacher loved by students and administrators alike was honored this morning as the Seminole County Teacher of the Year.

Greg Register, a product of the Seminole County school system and a graduate of Seminole High School, was Oviedo High School's choice for the top teacher in the county.

"We just think he is a superior teacher," said Karen Coleman, an assistant principal at Oviedo. "We're very lucky to have him."

Register, 29, arrived at Oviedo two years ago from Seminole High School where he taught for several years.

As the invading army of family members, school board administrators, teachers, students, cheerleaders and the media tumbled into his classroom bearing balloons, plants and flowers, Register let out a hoot.

"Ohm'gosh," he said. "Look at all these people."

While he said he had hoped to be named teacher of the year and knew that he was one of the 10 finalists, he said he was truly surprised when the large group stormed into

Proposed headquarters unveiled

SANFORD — Safety and appropriate offices were the topic of conversation at yesterday's school board work session where the district's proposed new headquarter facility was on the agenda.

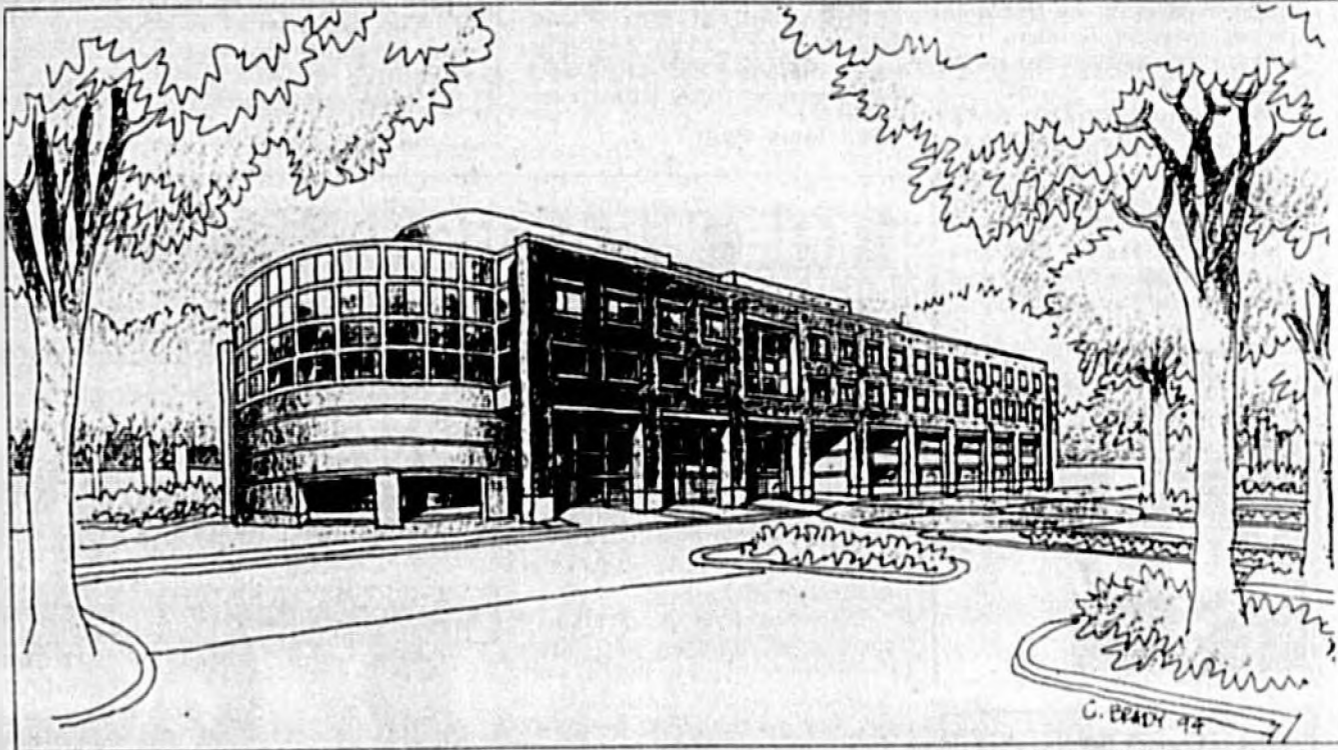

The architects who have designed the proposed four story facility that district officials plan to construct, made a presentation based on criteria presented to them by the district staff.

While the architects focused their attention on items like the board meeting auditorium, the board work area, training rooms and offices for the superintendent and the district staff, the board was eager to discuss security measures and bathroom facilities.

On the heels of the shooting of the superintendent of schools in Lee County by a disgruntled ex-employee, board members were concerned for their own safety and that of Supt. Paul Hagerty.

The board asked about card and key access to much of the building and limiting public access to the superintendent and the executive directors.

SANFORD — The superintendent of Seminole County schools is safe in his office, but district security personnel are looking at ways to make him and others even safer.

"We're looking at the security situation all over the district," George Proechel, director of security for the district, said. "Not just here (at the school district headquarters in Sanford), but even at the schools and every place in the district."

Proechel is presently working on a district-wide security plan in response to calls for greater security after the murder of the Lee County superintendent in his Fort Meyers office by a disgruntled ex-employee. Operation Rescue leader steps down

DALLAS — With an outspoken anti-abortion leader's resignation, Operation Rescue National is moving to Texas amid an adverse court ruling and criticism of its clinic blockades.

The Rev. Keith Tucci said Tuesday it is time to relinquish leadership of Operation Rescue National after four years at the helm.

Tucci said his decision was made before the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last month that protesters who block access to abortion clinics or conspire to stop women from having abortions may be sued as racketeers.

The 37-year-old activist's resignation came despite many international demands from countries faced with a "frontal assault on pro-life laws," he said.

Twice, Tucci has faced racketeering charges that were dropped for lack of merit. He said the ruling wasn't a factor in his leaving and the group remains strong.

"I think we have more grassroots support and more church support than we've ever had," said Tucci.

However, the president of Dallas-based Texans United for Life questioned the timing. Bill Price said he views the move as a "sign of the disintegration of Operation Rescue."

Home Shopping settles suits

ST. PETERSBURG — Home Shopping Network Inc. has agreed to pay between $13 million and $16 million to settle several lawsuits stemming from allegations of financial improprieties, the company has announced.

Most of the allegations made by shareholders against the St. Petersburg-based video retailer accuse top executives of personally profiting at the expense of corporate earnings.

Home Shopping looks forward to being "free from the financial impact of the lawsuits and the uncertainties they represented," Gerald F. Hogan, the company's president and chief executive, said Tuesday in a prepared statement.

Part of the complex settlement includes a $4.5 million payment to cancel or acquire a software licensing agreement that yielded a percentage of profits to a company owned by Richard Speer, son of Home Shopping's former chairman, Roy M. Speer.

Shareholders claimed the younger Speer profited from a deal that would not have been made with an unrelated third party.

Roy Speer, who resigned from Home Shopping last August, will pay $2 million to Home Shopping as part of the settlement in that case. He also will pay $1-million toward a $9.6-million settlement fund.

LAKE MARY — Life, some people have said, is just a video waiting to happen.

For one group of Lake Mary High School students, the video they have produced has focused it's lens on a serious side of life.

"It's not just a fun thing to do in class," said Beth Anthony, who teaches television production courses at Lake Mary High School. "These students live, eat, breathe and think video for most of the year."

And it has paid off.

Ten students who wrote, directed, produced and starred in a video made for the Florida Film Competition that was sponsored by Universal Studios and JVC, were honored with a $10,000 grant and other prizes for their first place finish in the contest.

"They worked so hard on this," she said. "I'm very proud of them."

Last year, a Lake Mary team comprised of many of the same students who were involved in this year's production, took third place honors in last year's competition.

The film, "From Across the Gray Land," deals with two friends who are contemplating suicide and the different ways in which they deal with their feelings.

One young person in the film does commit suicide while the other takes a "spiritual journey between heaven and hell."

The serious subject is one the students wanted to tackle.

"They felt very strongly about this," Anthony said. "This is a subject they wanted to take on."

Anthony said the students in the Television II and III classes are eligible to be considered to work on the team. She said she hand picks the students who will work on the film.

"It's worked pretty well, I think," Anthony said. "We've done well."

production beginning last summer.

"They created a preliminary piece that was due in October that helped them qualify for the final competition which they won," Anthony said. "It's been a hard road."

Most of the award-winning film was shot on the back lots at Universal Studios, though several scenes were shot locally.

The Longwood Fire Department helped the students with their expertise and a few brief on-camera appearances.

"They were invaluable to us," Anthony said.

In addition to earning $10,000 for the film department at Lake Mary High School, each member of the team got a Universal Studios satin jacket, studio caps and annual passes to the theme park.

Anthony said about $5,000 of the prize money has already been spent for the purchase of some state-of-the-art editing equipment. The rest will be put aside and possibly used to enhance the production of next year's entry.

"We are all very excited," she said.

Boot camp is hope to end juvenile cycle of crime

By PAT LEISHER

BRADENTON — At 16, Steve Green had 32 charges against him, including armed burglary. He had been in and out of juvenile detention programs. None helped.

Then a judge shipped him to boot camp.

"They took my name, my clothes and my hair and told me this was the way it was going to be, and by the time I got out I would know right from wrong," said Green.

"I knew something was going to change somewhere. I didn't have any choice. You could just feel it."

Manatee County Sheriff Charlie Wells said the 16-week military-style program has some unique aspects in the treatment of repeat juvenile offenders.

"We're writing the book on it," he said.

Law enforcement keeps jurisdiction and can send teens back through the program, more than once if necessary.

The theory is to get their attention and win their trust before trying to change attitudes and eventually, behavior.

"At first I figured it would be easy, piece of cake, like the other programs. You go in do your time, get out and do what you were doing before," Green said. "I never saw such discipline. When they said something, you did it."

The juvenile boot camp is only 10 months old and there are no statistics yet on how well it works. The yearlong program includes "after care," an eight-month followup where strict guidelines are eased, teens work toward goals and go home at night.

Already, Green's father sees a difference.

"I'm proud of him," said William Green, who has four other children. "Boot camp was the greatest thing that ever

Governor opens '94 session with appeal to fight crime

By BRENT KALLESTAD

TALLAHASSEE — A bipartisan effort is needed to find effective solutions to the legislature's top priority this spring: Florida's crime problem, Gov. Lawton Chiles said.

"I will join you in being tough, and I ask you to join me in seeking honest answers," Chiles told lawmakers Tuesday in his annual State of the State speech that kicks off the 60-day session.

In a 39-minute talk, Chiles said political differences need to be put aside if lawmakers hope to dent a crime problem that has grown particularly worrisome among young people and threatened the state's $30 billion tourism industry.

"The explosion of violence and the injury and anguish it is causing require diligence to find a solution," Chiles said.

The governor interrupted his talk for a moment of silence in honor of Lee County School Superintendent James Adams, shot to death Monday by a former teacher who then killed himself.

Chiles asked lawmakers to come up with ways to pay for 14,000 more prison beds for next year and 33,000 spaces in the next five years.

He called for a lifetime sentence for anyone convicted of three violent crimes.

"They should not live among us. Three strikes and you're in," said Chiles, echoing the stance of a growing number of political leaders, including President Clinton in his State of the Union address.

Kids involved in crime will be treated more harshly, beginning with military-style training at community-based boot camps, said Chiles.

House passes ban on campaign contributions during regular session

By ADAM YEKOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Members of the Florida House will no longer take campaign contributions during regular legislative sessions, ending a long tradition of filling election accounts while they debated new laws.

"It's sending a message to Floridians that while we are here in session we're here to do the people's work," said Rules Committee Chairman Peter Rudy Wallace, D-St. Petersburg.

"We're not here to advance our own re-election campaign objectives," he said.

The House approved a rule change 111-6 Tuesday to prohibit members from accepting or soliciting contributions to their campaigns or a political party while they meet in session. Six Republican representatives were opposed; two other GOP members did not vote.

Wallace, who is slated to become House speaker next year and sponsored the ban, said it would help erase the perception lawmakers are filling their campaign coffers while they are voting on laws during the session.

But Rep. Jim King, R-Jacksonville, who voted against the measure, argued the rule would only lead to more image problems for the Legislature.

"Just before some legislative session, some reporter is going to start writing about the fact that there was a feeding frenzy five minutes before the start of a legislative session, people are out there collecting their checks," King said.

"The concept that you're trying to send out here is that when you take a contribution, you're taking a bribe," he said.

The House defeated an amendment by Rep. Miguel DeGrandy, R-Miami, that would have prohibited representatives from accepting contributions from the day they are elected until the end of the second regular session — or about 17 months.

Chiles' speech: Echoes of Martinez

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — You had to look more than once at the governor asking for more prison beds without raising taxes, a smaller Department of Education and a phaseout of a welfare program for needy mothers and children.

That was indeed Democrat Lawton Chiles, although the speech sounded a lot like his Republican predecessor.

The first-term governor Tuesday asked for policies to be moved aside in 1994 for the good of the state, and then delivered the speech that sounded a whole lot like former Gov. Bob Martinez.

In his first State of the State in 1987, Martinez attempted to slice away from the bureaucracy to pay for classroom needs.

"Let's not throw hundreds of millions of dollars at a bloated and inefficient education bureaucracy in the forlorn hope that most of it will trickle down into the classroom,"

Martinez said.

"We owe the taxpayers the commitment that every possible tax dollar for education goes to the classroom and not to increase the bureaucracy," Chiles offered Tuesday.

The growing crime problem also haunted Martinez.

"Our highest duty is to justice," he said in his 1988 State of the State. "Protecting the safety and well-being of the people of this state."

Chiles echoed that Tuesday, noting that public safety remains No. 1 on the minds of voters and politicians: "The most urgent priority facing us this session is protecting our people."

And Chiles, like Martinez, wants to use bonds to help the state meet its needs.

Martinez sought a $2.4 billion bonding program in 1989 to pay for new roads while Chiles wants to put a mortgage on the Florida prison system.

"I think you could have taken that speech and given it to any one of the governor candidates running on the Republican side and they would have been fairly comfortable with most of those comments," said House Republican Leader Sandra Mortham, R-Largo.

But Democrats rallied around the governor's speech.

"Do they (Republicans) think he's encroaching upon their hallowed ground?" asked Senate President Pat Thomas, D-Quincy.

"The last time I checked most Floridians are against crime and for education and health care," said State Rep. Ron Saunders, a Key West Democrat who is leaving the Legislature to seek his party's nomination for secretary of state.

"I don't think those are issues that belong to any party," Saunders said.

"If dealing with the problems is political, then I guess it was political," said Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay.

Driver: 4 wrecks, 2 arrests, 15 charges in 1 day

By The Associated Press

ORANGE CITY — He was a one-man wrecking crew in his teal Chevy pickup, racking up 15 charges, four accidents and two arrests — all within eight hours.

Edward J. MacMillan, 32, of Orlando, was arrested a second time late Monday, accused of fleeing from his crumpled 1993 pickup following its fourth collision of the day in and around this Volusia County community.

The listful of citations that pulled officer Patrick Adam out of MacMillan's vehicle told the story of the day's earlier events.

At 10:33 a.m., Volusia County deputy sheriffs cited MacMillan for improper passing and failure to produce proof of insurance. A half-hour later, a Florida Highway Patrol trooper cited him for leaving the scene of an accident.

At 11:33 a.m., MacMillan was arrested by deputies and charged with driving with a tag that was expired for more than four months and driving with a suspended license. He posted a $600 bond on those charges and was released at 2:28 p.m.

At 5:15 p.m., MacMillan's pickup slammed into the car of Leah Fancher, 47, as she was turning onto Blue Springs Avenue from U.S. Highway 17-92. The pickup headed south on U.S. 17-92 and slammed into a car in front of a pizza restaurant. The driver of that car, Albert Taylor, 22, gave chase as the pickup drove off, said Cpl. Pat Morrissey of the FHP.

The pickup then collided with a car driven by Elsie Boatright, 57, in front of Emmaus Lutheran Church in Orange City. Mrs. Boatright was taken to West Volusia Memorial Hospital. Two passengers were uninjured.

MacMillan drove his pickup behind the church and fled across the street to the parking lot of the pizza restaurant, where officer Adam arrested him.

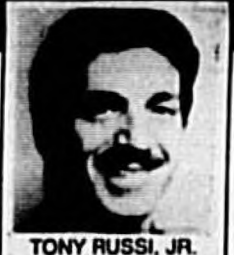

Greg Molinari of M & K Wrecker Service was only mildly surprised when he arrived on the scene later.

"I just towed this truck this morning," Molinari said. "He just picked it up out of our compound at about quarter to five."

For those who learn

There are a few parents who apparently don't seem to care about their children's education. For a moment, let's look at the majority who do care.

We have some exceptional children, and our school system is helping to mold them into outstanding adults.

Consider for a moment, a group of ten students at Lake Mary High School.

Through a joint effort, they created an outstanding video production. In competition, it won a $10,000 grant for their school. The teacher and school supported them all the way. It may not have been accomplished however, without backup and encouragement from their parents.

The students have proven they are capable of handling a difficult assignment, and will undoubtedly carry this type of accomplishment into later life.

Very few successful people of today were without help and guidance during school years.

We commend the Lake Mary students, their parents and teachers. What they are doing is working, and is worthy of recognition.

...and those who yearn

It is an unfortunate situation when some parents refuse to promote and support their youngsters in improving their education. Urge them as we may, they seem content to let the children fend for themselves.

In cases such as these, other persons must take it upon themselves to step in. Individual teachers often go overboard in helping those without parental push. Other family members, friends and neighbors must play a part in the educational process.

In discussions with school-age youngsters, stress the importance of education. Talk about the economic level of adults who once dropped out of school, in comparison to those who completed high school, junior college or a university.

In most situations, the higher the education, the more money can be earned in a lifetime. Naturally, there are exceptions, but this is a fact of life for many people.

Some parents may believe when their own youngsters graduate, they are through with the school system. Wrong. These may not be their youngsters, but they are fellow human beings, deserving the guidance and protection of us all.

Whether you have children or not, lend support to the efforts of education.

Clinton on crime, welfare: no strikes

Did President Clinton play a trick on us in the State of the Union address? He sounded tough on social issues, and it is said that "he has stolen the Republican trump cards of crime and welfare."

I wish he had. I hope he does. He still might. But he hasn't yet.

Consider crime. Clinton ran on crime. He promised 100,000 community policemen, boot camps, drug rehabilitation and gun control. He still favors all that.

But the "tough on crime" litmus test has changed. It now involves "the Triple-I" issues: Incarceration, Imprisonment and Incapacitation.

That's the root of the most important part of the Senate-passed crime bill. It takes the form of new regional federal prisons to incarcerate violent convicts currently in state prisons, and at no new expense to the states. The states, however, can only participate by enacting parole laws that keep violent criminals imprisoned for at least 85 percent of their term, instead of the current standard of 35 percent.

Clinton paid lip service to more incarceration by endorsing the "Three Strikes and You're Out" provision, a mostly baloney idea that has swept the country, peddled by liberals and conservatives alike. The president said: "... those who commit crimes should be punished. And those who commit crimes should be told, when you commit a third violent crime, you will be put away, and put away for good. Three strikes and you are out."

Sounds great. But figure it out. As it stands now, a young thug gets convicted of a violent crime, serves a couple of years, and gets paroled. Then he's on the street again, thugging. Then he's caught, and is convicted, for a longer stretch. He's paroled again, and once more a predator at large. Caught for a third violent crime, he likely gets a substantial sentence. By the time he's out, he's probably 35-40 years old.

"Three strikes" says that thug would stay in prison for life. But why? Not many geriatrics commit violent crime. For that matter, the violent crime rate among 40-year-old ex-cons is also low. Violence is a young man's racket.

So too with welfare. Clinton said, "We'll say to teenagers, if you have a child out of wedlock, we will no longer give you a check to set up a separate household."

Sounds great. But doesn't Clinton know that most teenagers with out-of-wedlock babies do not set up separate households? They stay with their mothers, who are often on welfare, and the now-extended welfare household receives an extra payment for the new baby. Clinton's statement is almost irrelevant.

But the Republican proposal calls for no additional welfare money for a new out-of-wedlock baby. The difference is stark. The Clinton proposal yields an incentive for a first child in a new generation of a welfare family. The Republican proposal is a disincentive. Again, depend on it. Republicans will make their case public.

I wish he had. I hope he does. He still might. But he hasn't yet.

Olympics: Let the ads begin

Just when you thought the kudzo-like plot of the Nancy and Tonya story couldn't grow any thicker or faster, along comes a sturdy little subplot. Outside the rinks and the courts, there are visible sprouts of another rivalry, between Reebok and Nike.

Ever since Nike's president put up $25,000 for the defense of Harding, tongues have been wagging. Are the folks at Nike really anteing up for truth and justice? Or are they trying to stick it to Reebok? Since Reebok has Nancy to endorse their goods, does Nike want to endorse Tonya as an opponent?

This is a subplot that only a cynic could love. But the wholesale transformation of athletes into actors vying for the starring role in ads has made cynicism obsolete.

It is taken as a given in this sorry tale that the real gold Tonya and Nancy are going for is the big fat pot of endorsement money. Even Tonya openly and misguidedly shared her Olympic fantasy saying, "There are little dollar signs spinning around my head."

Now, amateur analysts pin Harding's supposed bitterness on the way she was "denied" endorsements. They say this as if successful athletes were entitled to take their rightful place in the realm of the 30-second ad world.

In the other camp, Kerrigan trackers declare that she's a winner before she gets on the Norwegian ice. Why? Because her agent's phone hasn't stopped ringing with offers.

Well, I wasn't around in 1907 when Ty Cobb first pitched Coca-Cola. I can't remember the champions that Wheaties was the breakfast of. I can barely remember Joe Namath in his partyhose. But I am aware that Michael Jordan made $28 million last year — roughly eight times his outrageous basketball salary — for selling. So, I'm not naive about sports and ads.

But I am struck anew by the way everything—entertainment, sports, even politics—seems to have merged together into one infomercial. And by the way we accept it all.

In the movies, every soft drink that appears now is duly labeled as if it were—and it is—a paid ad. On television, kids' programs may be little more than commercials for the products that star in them. At tennis matches and golf tournaments, players clad in products swinging products compete for cups named after products.

In Hollywood, actress Candice Bergen goes from Murphy Brown to Sprint. In Orlando, athlete Shaquille O'Neal goes from the Magic to Pepsi. Meanwhile, Susan Power starts out with an ad and ends up a best-selling "author." It's a small world in which victory goes to the one with the highest Q rating.

The only time we seem to notice the subtle merchandising of everyone is when politicians such as Geraldine Ferraro and Dan Quayle move from selling themselves in campaign ads to selling Pepsi and potato chips. Or when Kathleen Sullivan "violates" the standards of a news profession that dumped her by pushing Weight Watchers.

The speed with which this has happened among athletes is record-breaking. And, yes, depressing. Even Nova Lanktree, who brokers sports figures for commercials, remembers when athletes "used to be called heroes or legends." Now, she says, they are called stars. They share this firmament with entertainers, all twinkling for ad dollars.

How long ago was it when we complained that Soviet athletes were supported by the state? They pledged allegiance to socialism. Our own are supported by sneakers, colas and hamburgers. They pledge allegiance to consumerism.

The real winners and losers become those who do and don't have the right stuff. The stuff to be successful at sales.

Tonya loyalists are absolutely right in noting that women who win endorsements fit a too narrow, pretty, feminine, Dorothy Hamill, Chris Evert and yes, Nancy Kerrigan mold. No tough girls need apply.

But when all is said and done—soon, I hope—the sorriest spectacle is not just Tonya vs. Nancy, or Nike vs. Reebok. It's the grand-slam takeover by companies who award the real gold medals. In this world every accomplishment has the same value: a market value. What you can do is only worth what you can sell.

Any day now, the cameras will move from this seamy drama to the glamorous one at Lillehammer. Light the torch high. Welcome to the XVIIIth Olympiad—the ultimate infomercial. Let the ads begin.

This is a subplot that only a cynic could love.

Campaign finance reformers need reforming

WASHINGTON — Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., portrays himself as the pope of political reform on Capitol Hill. But even this crusader has never let his piety stand in the way of a good party.

In the spring of 1991, Boren was beginning his third term in the Senate after routing his Republican opponent with more than 83 percent of the vote. After a cake-walk campaign, Boren had more than $158,000 left over in his campaign coffers.

Over the first six months of 1991, Boren's campaign spent $106,939 of that money on everything from party hats to paintings, all paid for by contributors to the senator's campaign coffers.

It's unknown how many of those contributors were invited to Boren's 50th birthday bash. But according to Federal Election Commission records, they footed the bill. Included among the expenses listed in Boren's 1991 mid-year report to the FEC are $2,480.71 spent on photos of Boren's 50th birthday party, $350 for videotaping the party, and $107.91 for party hats in the senator's honor.

None of Boren's expenses violated any laws or regulations, even though the FEC prohibits campaign funds for personal use. As rules governing campaign contributors have tightened over the years, lawmakers have retained wide latitude to spend their campaign dollars largely as they please. Candidates have used their campaign funds to pay for home mortgages, country club fees and vacations.

Boren's case merits attention because much of his political career has been built attacking the current campaign finance system, often self-righteously. He rejects money from political action committees, but critics say that's only because he can afford to. Independent oil producers and royalty holders in Oklahoma tend to give individually.

Last summer, Boren was instrumental in passing the Senate's version of campaign finance reform, which will be reconciled with a House version later this session.

Several of Boren's expenditures suggest that like many of his colleagues, the line between political and personal funds gets very fuzzy.

Shortly following his 1990 re-election campaign, for example, Boren spent considerable amounts of campaign cash decorating his Washington, D.C., office and conference room. Listed among his campaign expenses for the first half of 1991 is $6,115 for artwork from the Oklahoma Indian Art Gallery, $1,500 for an "original Indian painting for Washington conference room," and $4,495 for an "illuminated globe for senator's Washington office." Although his salary is more than four times the national median, Boren even charged his campaign for $1,200 worth of drapes and a $89.35 brass trash can.

A Boren spokesman told us the expenses are justified because there is no charge to the taxpayers. "As a matter of state pride, Sen. Boren uses non-taxpayer funds to make his office into a gallery to showcase outstanding Oklahoma works of art. In fact, every visitor to Sen. Boren's office receives a brochure to highlight the works of art in the office." He added that all the pieces will be donated to Oklahoma museums and university libraries when Boren leaves office. Boren's office didn't comment on whether the Oklahoma museums would also receive the birthday hats.

But even this crusader has never let his piety stand in the way of a good party.

Police say notices were placed in newspapers and through local high schools by Dodd seeking travel interns or receptionists.

A Lake Mary High School student reported to her jobs advisor a man running a travel agency asked her during a January interview if she would model revealing clothing and about her measurements.

The travel service had job notices posted at Lake Brantley High School in Altamonte Springs as well.

Sgt. Jay Miller said Longwood police confiscated two video cameras from the site and will try to match names on the applications found in the office to photographs and tapes. Miller said that videotaping a person who is not aware of the action is not illegal, but secretly recording a voice is illegal.

"We've got so many videos to go through," he said. "It will take time because we're a small department."

Miller said Dodd basically operated as a ticket broker, not an actual travel agent. When he received an order, Dodd contacted a travel agency to obtain the tickets, then sold them to the customer after adding his fees to the cost.

According to records in Longwood City Hall, Dodd applied for an occupational license on Nov. 11 under the name of A.W.O.L. Marketing stating his business was a marketing and the administrative office for an employee incentives business. He did not have a license under Travel Service Network, city clerk Geri Zambri said this morning. The license was issued to Dodd Dec. 9.

Miller urged anyone who had even interviewed at Dodd's office to contact police at 260-3404.

Miller said video cameras were set to record the women as they changed clothes if they agreed to pose for still photographs. A video camera was even set up to record the unsuspecting females from the waist down as they sat at an interviewing table. "If you even applied for a job," Miller said, "and you were wearing a skirt, the lower half of your body is on film."

A teacher in the Lake Mary jobs program who did not want her name used, said the school checks out businesses offering jobs to students before they are allowed to interview.

The students are generally good about reporting problems to the advisors. The teacher said one business manager was fired after a student charged sexual harassment.

wandering around this building any more than they have to," explained Jeanne Morris.

Vice Chairman Sandy Robinson echoed that sentiment, with apologies.

"I'm sorry to have to feel this way, but I do," she said.

In order to preclude the need to call for a break in the meeting in order to take care of "personal business" the board requested their own restroom.

They said going to relieve themselves could also be "very uncomfortable" when members of a hostile audience accompanied them to a public restroom.

Board member Larry Strickler, becoming annoyed with the conversation, asked if the district would be providing "those seat covers" for the board toilet.

Snapping back, fellow board member Nancy Warren said, "You're the one who leaves the meeting three or four times to go to the bathroom."

For security and accessibility to the board and to one another's offices, the superintendent, his secretary, the clerk of the board (who also performs some secretarial duties for the superintendent) and the board workroom will all be placed on the fourth floor. The original architectural schematic had called for the board workroom to be on the first floor with the superintendent and board support personnel to be on the fourth floor.

Offices, such as food service, social services and Title I programs, that are currently scattered in ancillary buildings around Sanford will be moved into the new offices.

"We don't need to have 20 buildings scattered all over the district," Strickler said.

Architects and school district staff said that the building is designed to accommodate growth of the district and the staff.

"We are prepared for the growth and the changes that are going to come to this district," Diane Kramer, executive director of facilities planning, said. "This building will grow with us."

The proposed building will be constructed on land the district already owns on the extension of Lake Mary Boulevard in extreme southern Sanford.

The district staff will direct the architects to include the private restroom for the board.

Architects told the board they hope to have the plans in place and bids completed by July and believe construction will begin soon after.

The present building has been declared to have "sick building syndrome." Rampant growth of fungi in the air systems and on the walls and ceilings of the building cause many employees to suffer with respiratory disorders as a result of working in the facility.

The district and Seminole County government had held discussions about building a joint facility on the lakefront in Sanford, but it was decided that separate facilities would be the better course of action.

County

home Huntington Lakes subdivision on farmland south of Chapman Road in southeast Seminole County. Furlong opposed the proposal after hearing complaints from residents of the nearby Huntington subdivision about flooding in their neighborhoods.

County staff reported about 90 percent of the 119-acre site has a high water table or mucky soils and about 55 percent is flood-prone. Developer Larry White proposed to keep 55 acres of the property vacant for drainage retention, recreation and other open space uses. Staff reported the project could meet environmental construction standards.

Commissioners unanimously approved a five-room bed and breakfast for Alan Fulmer north of the Baldwin-Fairchild Funeral Home on CR 46-A. The former residence is located in the path of the county's future westbound CR 46-A lanes.

County engineers say the southern edge of the 4.8-acre Fulmer property will be needed for the widening project. Under questioning from commissioners, Fulmer said the loss of a portion of his land would not affect the business.

Commissioners also unanimously approved payment for Hugh Harling's defense against an ethics complaint brought by Furlong in 1990 before his election to the board. County Attorney Bob McMillan said Harling, as a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee in 1987, was a public officer and was entitled to reimbursement because he was cleared of the allegations.

Furlong charged Harling, a development engineer, violated state ethics laws by voting as a 1987 Citizens Advisory Committee member to recommend land use changes for property owned by Malcolm and Charles Clayton. Furlong complained Harling provided services for the Claytons so his vote represented a conflict of interest and Harling had not filed a state-required conflict statement.

The Florida Commission on Ethics in 1991 found cause to believe a violation had occurred and turned the matter over to a hearing officer. The state hearing officer decided there was no conflict because Harling didn't have a contract with the Claytons to perform services on their property. The officer did find there were discussions between the Claytons and his staff regarding the property during the time Harling was considering his vote and subsequently billed the Claytons for those staff services.

Ethics commissioners accepted the order last September.

his classroom.

"Some of the kids said they saw a news van outside earlier so they started talking about this, but I really was surprised," he said.

Friends and admirers applauded and called out to him. The cheerleaders hopped atop tables and chairs to shout their praises.

"I was his principal," Wayne Epps, Oviedo principal said. "I handed him his diploma when he graduated from high school in 1982."

Epps said he hired Register as a part time coach when he was still in college at the University of Central Florida.

"When he graduated I hired him right off," Epps said. "I knew he'd make an excellent teacher."

After graduation from UCF, Register earned his master's degree in Educational Leadership from Nova University.

Epps said that Register has worked for him except for one year when Epps first transferred to Oviedo.

"And when he called to tell me he wanted to transfer out here, I hired him as quick as I could," Epps said. "I knew he was one of the best and I wanted him on my staff."

The classroom is brightly decorated with mathematical equations and words of encouragement for the students.

The "Rock of Readiness" is located by the front door of the classroom. The rock is from Pythagoras' School of Mathematics in Greece. Each student must touch the rock when they enter the classroom so they are reminded to leave all their distractions outside and focus on the materials at hand.

This morning, however, the distractions stormed into the classroom with the "Fanfare" from the movie Rocky blaring from a portable stereo and the lesson on units and sets had to be put on hold for a few moments.

In addition to his duties as a math teacher, he has been the head freshman football coach, the girls softball coach and will coach the boys baseball team this year. He has also served as faculty sponsor for the school's chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Add to those duties the responsibility he now has of representing the teaching profession in the area.

"The hardest part is representing the teachers of Seminole County," he said. "I promise that I'll do the best that I can. I really enjoy what I'm doing and I hope it shows in my work."

Those who work with him say that it does. He left for work this morning before 5:30 a.m. and probably won't get home before 8 p.m., his wife Vicky said. He devotes most of his waking hours to his students.

"But what is so phenomenal about him is that he calls teach all students at all levels," Colmen said.

Last year, he taught a class of 52 students who were considered to have serious problems learning math. All of the students had failed to pass the math portion of a standardized test (HSCT) at least two times. Fifty of those students passed the math section on their first try after working with Register for eight weeks.

"The skill level of the students were from fourth grade on up and the biggest hurdle was self-confidence," Register said.

Epps said the students are impressed with his dedication to them.

"Every morning at 6:30 you can find him up in his classroom tutoring students," Epps said. "He will be there for them."

Register said he doesn't believe there is any secret to his teaching success.

"There is not some great hidden secret as to what makes a teacher outstanding or a formula that you simply plug in for the variables and you become a good teacher," he said. "The three main ideas I try to keep in my classroom at all times are motivation, respect and involvement."

Register said he tries to "grab the students when they enter the room and keep them involved until a lesson is over."

Also named as finalist in the teacher of the year competition were Ronald Judy, a kindergarten teacher at English Edgely Elementary School in Winter Park and Terry Cook, a Skills for Adolescence teacher at Lakeview Middle School in Sanford.

Cable

continued. Cablevision, which services this area, would not be allowed to raise prices on the basic channels unless it was approved by the city.

Cities obtain a franchise fee from cable companies that operate in their areas.

Lake Mary Finance Director Randy Knight said his city has not gone through the process as of this time. "We have received a report from the City Attorney just this week," he commented.

"It indicates the Attorney General wants the city to look into this, and I expect it's something we will be doing in the near future."

As of the end of January, systems had been certified for 7,500 of the nation's 33,000 cabled communities. Commission officials said the revenue freeze also extends the time for the remaining communities to act.

Neither Jeff Walker, manager of TCI Cable which serves the Lake Mary area, or Jim Rozier of Cablevision, which serves Sanford, could be reached for comments on what the city regulations might mean to local area subscribers.

There was also no comment from cable officials regarding increases in cable fees levied against customers during the past year.

Rate regulation cannot be enforced until local communities have received FCC certification that the local cable company operates as a monopoly and thereby is covered by the new law.

It's up to the local authority to enforce the section of the law governing charges for basic service — the package of channels comprising local broadcasters and government and public access cable channels.

The FCC enforces the section of the law that dictates how much a company can charge for channels beyond basic service. But the commission will not take any action until it gets subscriber complaints.

Meanwhile, the government freeze on cable TV revenues including and beyond the basic channel level is being extended for three months while officials review the prices Americans pay for cable service.

Cable revenues were frozen last year while a new law regulating the industry was being implemented. The Federal Communication Commission announced Tuesday that the freeze is being extended to May 15.

Originally the revenue freeze was imposed to give local communities time to participate in the cable regulation process.

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

All youths have at least two prior felonies, excluding murder and rape. Many have 30 or more charges.

"They come in mad at the world. The attitude is 'everybody's done something wrong to me,'" said Lt. Jim Cogway who has been with the program since the beginning. "What happens is they become kids again."

Early each morning, the so-called "recruits" begin a 17-hour day, marching like soldiers in an open field. A guard barks orders in their face. Part of calisthenics training is an obstacle course where platoons scale ropes and master barriers.

Their heads are shaved. Bunks must be made a certain way. No dust on the sills in their 8-foot by 10-foot rooms. Boots must be polished. Foot lockers have to pass inspection. Answers must be followed by "sir."

There is no direct access to the superintendent's office that might leave the superintendent vulnerable to angry members of the public. To gain access to the superintendent, one must pass the receptionist in the lobby and pass one of his secretaries.

There are two doors into and out of the superintendent's office. A secretary sits outside each entrance.

"I think there's always room for improvement and that's what we're working on," Proechel said. "But I don't think there's a problem right now."

DEATHS

THOMAS DeLOAS FOWLER
Thomas DeLoas Fowler, 78, Shomate Drive, Longwood, died Monday, Feb. 7, 1994, at South Seminole Hospital, Longwood. Born March 7, 1915, in Leavenworth, Kan., he moved to Central Florida in 1976. Report: Total synthesis of taxol

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The cancer drug taxol, which until now has been extracted from the bark of a scarce tree, can be made synthetically with common chemicals, a Florida State University chemist has discovered.

"It's a scientific research breakthrough," researcher Robert Holton said Tuesday. "It may also be important for cancer patients — but in years to come."

The taxol now used comes from the Pacific yew in old-growth forests home to the endangered spotted owl, according to Saul Schepartz, who oversees treatment research at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md.

But an alternative method using the twigs and needles of similar plants has been perfected and should be approved sometime this year, Schepartz said.

That method, discovered by Holton nearly three years ago, involves about four different chemical reactions. It's known as semi-synthesis.

Total synthesis — the laboratory production of taxol from common chemicals — involves some 40 different chemical reactions and takes about two weeks, Holton said.

Schepartz called the breakthrough "significant," estimating at least a dozen labs nationally had been working on taxol synthesis.

"There's intense interest in it," he said.

Holton's team synthesized the drug last month and got word Monday that the Journal of the American Chemical Society would publish articles about the process.

"We did it," Holton said. "It's like climbing to the top of a mountain that's never been climbed before."

Holton's achievement "may enable researchers to devise more effective, less-toxic drugs of the taxol class and could thus have a significant effect on cancer treatment," said Samuel Broder, director of the National Cancer Institute.

Broder has called taxol the most important cancer drug in 15 years.

It has shown the most promise in the treatment of ovarian and breast cancers in women who have not responded to treatment with other drugs. It also has shown promise in early trials against certain lung cancers.

It takes the bark of about three full-grown trees to produce enough taxol to treat one cancer patient.

Lawsuits to protect the owl habitat have brought logging to a virtual halt on national forests in the Northwest, where most of the yews are found.

Cancer drug at a glance

Some key developments in study of taxol:

- Late 1960s, taxol is first isolated and purified from the Pacific yew tree.

- 1971, the molecular structure of taxol is identified.

- Early 1980s, National Cancer Institute begins research on potential side effects of taxol and what doses of the drug would make effective treatments.

- May 1991, Florida State University chemist Robert Holton got a patent for the semi-synthesis of taxol. The process involves combining two chemical components of taxol. One can be prepared easily in the lab by chemical synthesis. The other comes from the leaves of the English yew, a plant related to the Pacific yew.

- 1991, NCI signs five-year cooperative research and development agreement with Bristol-Myers Squibb Co., making it the commercial developer of taxol.

- December 1992, Food and Drug Administration approves use of taxol to treat ovarian cancer in women who have not responded to other treatments.

- February 1993, Florida State announces that Holton has achieved total synthesis of taxol.

Simple technique would get very elderly to check for cancer

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Joyce Guillory looked at the gnarled fingers of an 85-year-old woman and knew there was no way she could perform the traditional self-examination to see if her breast cancer had returned.

So the Atlanta researcher found a way for the woman to check herself for lumps despite arthritis, loss of feeling in her fingers and poor vision: using magnifying mirrors and her palms.

"It is most important that we not give up on this age group just because they're not able to follow the basic guidelines for breast exams," said Ms. Guillory, who is fighting the killer among elderly black women, the population most at risk.

Breast cancer strikes 183,000 U.S. women a year and kills 46,000 of them. Black women are 20 percent less likely than whites to get it, but far more likely to die — because they're generally not diagnosed as early.

And while the risk increases with age, the chances of women getting annual mammograms and checking for lumps every month drops drastically with age. In fact, 83.5 percent of black women over 75 — those most at risk of death from breast cancer — have never had a mammogram.

Now the American Association of Retired Persons is trying to reverse those statistics, looking for innovations like Ms. Guillory's that will help the elderly gain more control over their health.

"The idea of a way to get them performing breast self-exam is a terrific one," said the AARP's Lisa Rubenstein.

It's also a very simple one: Just adapt the American Cancer Society's guidelines so women with severe arthritis, little eyesight and loss of feeling in their fingertips can perform it.

Ms. Guillory, a professor at Morehouse School of Medicine, wanted to see if black women had specific problems. But her study, to be published in this spring's Journal of Women and Aging, found physical problems that transcend race keep women from properly examining their breasts.

NATO moves toward ultimatum to Serbs

By PAUL AMES
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Caught between the desire to end the suffering of Sarajevo and the fear of being dragged into a war, NATO's ambassadors met today to decide whether to issue an ultimatum to Bosnian Serbs.

The United States and France are pushing a proposal under which Sarajevo's besiegers would be ordered to remove their more than 500 heavy guns from within 13 miles of the downtown. If they don't comply, NATO would launch air strikes.

The debate comes five days after a mortar attack on Sarajevo's central market killed 68 people and wounded 200. The attack horrified the world and highlighted Western inability to take a forceful stance against the carnage.

"It is time to act," NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner said as he entered alliance headquarters today. There have been "enough words."

After two hours of talks, a senior NATO diplomat said the U.S.-French plan had broad backing. "I heard nobody speak against the proposal for a fixed deadline," he told reporters during a break in the discussions.

Under the plan, a NATO source said, the Serbs would get a week to 10 days to comply, or face allied bombing runs. Officials in allied capitals also considered a similar British proposal on Tuesday.

"Both speak in terms of an ultimatum and a period of between seven and 10 days to comply," said the NATO source, who asked not to be named.

Any air strikes would be the first offensive military action by the alliance in its 44-year history.

Officials in Washington said the possible actions also call for a more aggressive effort to reach a settlement in Bosnia.

The NATO meeting comes in response to a request from U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali for authority to call air strikes against artillery around Sarajevo because of Saturday's mortar attack.

Bosnia's Muslim-led government charges the shell fired into a crowded marketplace was launched by Serbs on the hills overlooking Sarajevo. Bosnian Serb leaders deny that.

The latest allied discussions also touch on how extensive any bombing runs should be and possible targets, such as artillery positions, command and control communications facilities, and communications lines.

The alliance may use some 70 war planes from France, the Netherlands, Turkey, Britain and the United States. Based at southern European air bases, they now enforce a no-fly zone over Bosnia.

At a meeting Monday, the 12 European Union foreign ministers were again divided over air strikes and passed the issue along to the NATO alliance, bringing the United States and Canada into the debate.

Canada has opposed air strikes, arguing these could imperil the 2,000 Canadian U.N. soldiers in the region and encourage Serbs to block delivery of humanitarian aid.

In public remarks ahead of today's meeting, other allies continued to stress their opposition to air strikes, notably Greece.

"Since everyone is beating the drums of war, we should show some calm," government spokesman Evangelos Venizelos said in Athens Tuesday.

French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe, however, hinted that France may withdraw its peacekeeping contingent if NATO fails to act. France has been threatening since December to remove its soldiers unless the conflict shows signs of resolution.

"If the alliance is incapable of making a decision, we will ask ourselves if we can continue to uselessly expose our soldiers," Juppe said on French television Tuesday. France is the largest contributor to the U.N. peacekeeping force in the former Yugoslavia, with some 6,000 troops.

NATO nations are Belgium, Britain, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey and the United States.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Bucs hire three coaches

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers filled three coaching staff openings, hiring former NFL players Ken Clarke and Johnnie Lynn and longtime college assistant David Culley.

Clarke, a 14-year player who spent most of his career with the Philadelphia Eagles, will coach the defensive line. Lynn, a cornerback and safety for the New York Jets for eight seasons, joins the team as the defensive backs coach after seven years at the University of Arizona.

Culley was hired to work with Tampa Bay's wide receivers after spending the last three seasons as an assistant at Texas A&M.

Miami hammers FIU

CORAL GABLES — Danny Buxbaum and Mat Erwin hit home runs in a four-run first inning as Miami beat Florida International 11-4 Tuesday.

Ricky Gama added a two-run homer and Bruce Thompson three RBIs for Miami (5-0).

Fernando Ruiz pitched two innings in relief of starter Toby Dollar to earn his first win.

Starter Shane Farnsworth gave up six earned runs on six hits in 1-2-3 innings for the loss.

Jason McNally was 2-for-3 with a homer and a double for Florida International (2-2).

AROUND THE NATION

Jones warns Jags off Johnson

IRVING, Texas — Dallas owner Jerry Jones said Tuesday that the new Jacksonville franchise could be severely penalized if it tries to hire away Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson.

The Florida Times-Union said the Jaguars met with Johnson last week in Miami and the coach expressed interest in joining the expansion organization.

"If Jacksonville contacts him, it's very much against the rules and the club could be subject to severe penalty," Jones said.

"We've had absolutely no contact with Jimmy Johnson — personally, by phone or by contacts," Jaguars owner Wayne Weaver said from his office in Connecticut. "There is no truth whatsoever to the story."

The Times-Union stood by its story.

St. John's knocks off 'Canes

NEW YORK — Reserve guard Sergio Luyk scored all the points in an 11-2 second-half run to lead St. John's to a 78-63 victory over Miami.

Miami has yet to win in 25 road games since joining the Big East.

The Redmen (10-10, 4-7) won their second straight game after having lost eight of nine. The loss was the ninth in a row for the Hurricanes (7-12, 0-11).

Shawnelle Scott led St. John's with 18 points, while Charles Minlend had 12 points and nine rebounds. Jamal Johnson had 22 points for Miami and Steve Edwards added 10.

The snowstorm that hit the New York area during the day kept an announced sellout crowd of 6,008 to about 1,500 and was responsible for sporadic electrical problems during the game.

Missippi St. blasts Fla. Tech

STARKVILLE, Miss. — Darryl Wilson scored 17 points and Erick Dampier added 16 as Mississippi State defeated Florida Tech 85-61.

Bubba Wilson scored 13 points for Mississippi State while Marcus Grant and Russell Walters added 12 and 10, respectively. Tech's Howard White led all scorers with 18 points.

Trainers 'assist' in Ram victory

By TONY DeBORNIER
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — Jody de Bruin scored two goals and goalkeeper Greg Velho posted his 20th shutout, but the biggest contribution to Lake Mary's 3-0 win over Jacksonville-Fletcher in the 5A-Region II boys' soccer championship game may have been made by two non-players.

"I have to pay tribute to Roger (Mosure) and Brenda (Welch)," said Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle. "They have to get an assist for this win."

Mosure and Welch, Lake Mary's athletic trainers, were credited by McCorkle for getting Brandon Woods ready to play Tuesday night, just four days after suffering what was feared might be a season-ending ankle injury in the Rams' district championship match with Lake Brantley last Friday.

"I didn't find out that he was going to play until this afternoon," McCorkle said. "He's the leader, the soul, of our defense."

On Tuesday night, Woods turned in a play that may have sealed the fate of the Senators just 25 minutes into the match.

With Rams holding a 1-0 lead on de Bruin's first goal of the game (and the 50th of his career), Fletcher's Pat Skrzydel rifled a shot that beat Velho but was cleared off the line by Woods.

That was the only real chance the Senators had on offense as Lake Mary outshot the visitors 29-5 and had a 4-2 advantage in corner kicks.

Shortly after Woods' "save" of Skrzydel's shot, Ace Delaney further dashed the Senators' hopes when he capped a flurry in front of the Fletcher net by knocking home the rebound of a Tony Bazile shot that a Fletcher defender had cleared off the line at 27:45.

de Bruin completed the scoring with a well-taken free kick at 53:39 of the second half, bending a shot over a wall of Senator defenders into the upper right hand corner of the net.

Fletcher when he scored on this play in the second half. But the goal was disallowed because of a foul and the Rams settled for a 3-0 win.

the shutout, his outstanding play in the air took the Senators out of their game as he repeatedly leaped to snare or parry Fletcher throw-ins or crosses from the wing.

said McCorkle. "We saw them (the Senators) play once before and we had a good scouting report on them. They came in and played exactly the way we expected them to. We felt like we knew them inside and out."

In the Senators' 3-2 penalty kick win over Tallahassee-Lincoln in the 5A-District 3 championship game, one goal came off a long throw in and the other was created by a corner kick.

Lake Mary (26-2-3) advances to the 5A-Section I championship game, which will be played at Pensacola-Washington Friday night. Washington (20-8) defeated highly regarded Orange Park 2-1 for the 5A-Region I title Tuesday night.

"It was a good, solid effort by the whole team."

Arrow Force spotty in beating Gateway

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — On the surface, everything looked good for the Seminole High School boys' basketball team Tuesday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

By beating Kissimmee-Gateway, 76-64, Arrow Force II improved to 22-6 with their 11th straight win (and 12th in 13 games) and clinched the top seed in next week's 4A-District 6 tournament at St. Cloud.

But looks can be deceiving, because Seminole coach Bob Traina was not pleased with his team's play.

"This was not the kind of effort I wanted going into games with Lake Brantley and Oviedo," said Traina. "It was a comedy of errors out there. It'll be interesting to see how we come back tomorrow."

Arrow Force II dominated the third quarter and took a 22-point lead, 62-38, early in the fourth period. But missed layups, turnovers and an 11-for-16 shooting performance by Gateway allowed the visitors to get as close as 11, 62-51, with 4:35 remaining.

Pacing the winners were Eric Roberts (18 points, five rebounds, eight assists), Reggie Holloway (14 points, eight rebounds), Brad Traina (12 points, five rebounds, four assists), and Ray Perkins (10 points).

Ray Picaro led Gateway (7-18) with 22 points. Seminole will be at home again tonight, hosting Lake Brantley in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest.

Hospitalized son spurs Russell to OB 100 win

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
 Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Three-time Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (FASCAR) champion David Russell edged teammate Pete Orr at the checkers to win the Orange Blossom 100 for Late Models last Saturday, Feb. 5, at New Smyrna Speedway.

"I really needed this win tonight," said an emotional Russell in victory lane. "My son, Timmy, is still in the hospital. When I visited him today, he said he would like me to win, if not me, then Pete."

"I knew in my heart I had to win this race for Timmy," Russell, who set the evening's fourth-fastest qualifying time, started the race from the eighth position by virtue of the draw.

One by one, Russell started to pick the cars off. By lap 11, he had moved up two positions. Four laps later, he was in fourth place. By lap 35, he was challenging Orr for the No. 1 spot. Taking advantage of a restart, Russell powered around Orr on lap 42 to take the lead.

The race had four lead changes and nine caution periods with Russell and Orr swapping the key positions between them.

"David just had more power than me on the restarts," said Orr, a three-time winner of the Orange Blossom. "He's running a real good Boyd motor. I blew my engine last week and I have to thank David Debelius for letting me run his engine tonight."

With 15 laps to the checkers, Russell took control and, despite repeated challenges from Orr, went on to notch his first-ever Blossom win.

"We raced our plan and it paid off," said Russell. "I wanted to run a good, steady race and stay out of trouble so I could make a run at the end. Pete (Orr) raced me hard, but I was determined that this race wasn't going to get away from me."

Orr, the evening's top qualifier, finished second ahead of David Rogers, Eddie Gainey, and Ronnie Burkett.

"The car just wasn't right tonight," said Rogers, a three-time New Smyrna Speedway Late Model champion. "We sure didn't have a third-place car tonight, but we finished third. Everything considered, I'm pleased."

Several out-of-state drivers and first-time visitors, preparing for the upcoming Speedweeks series, were a part of the 28-car field that took the flag for the 22nd annual Orange Blossom.

One such pilot was Gainey, who races out of Lake City's Columbia Motor Speedway. "This is a great track with some real friendly people," said Gainey. "I have to thank Pete (Orr) for taking me around the track during hot laps. It helped a lot to get a feel of the track."

The race took 55 minutes to complete. For his winning effort, Russell picked up $3,000.

Other feature event winners were Barbara Pierce (Sportsman), Allen Rhodes (Limited Late Models), Kenny Heckle (Modifieds), Bob Filler (Bombers), Bobby Sears (Mini-Stocks), Tim Nicholas (Run-A-Bouts), and Debbie Santo (Four-Cylinder Enduro).

Smith leaves Bombers with wire-to-wire win

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — John Smith's last run in the Bomber division was a good one as he led every lap on his way to winning the feature event last Friday, Feb. 4, at Orlando Speedworld.

In victory lane, Smith told the crowd he would be moving into the Florida Modified division after speedweeks.

Glen Castro gave Smith a good run but settled for second ahead of Bobby Stevens, John Castro, and Glen Cordell.

The Late Model race was a wild affair as pole sitter Gary Balough led until being black flagged for a smoking engine. Following a restart, new front runners Ricky Wood and Ronnie Burkett tangled, sending both to the rear of the field.

Rick Marshall took the point and held off all comers until Burkett charged back through the field to reclaim the lead late in the 25-lap event and go on to win his first Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing event of 1994.

Wood came back to finish second in front of Marshall, Tufty Hester, and Michigan pilot Scott Baker.

Former Speedworld Modified champion Glen Carter took over the point in the Limited Late Model main event when Paul Colgan's car lost power. Carter led the rest of the way for his first victory in the division.

Trailing Carter were Michael Williams, Timmy Todd, Andy Saffioti, and Mike Todd.

Paul Colgan led all the way to win his fourth Sportsman event of the year. Finishing second through fifth were Jerry Smith, Jeff Rule, Rick Johns, and Bill Loomis.

The wreck-strewn Modified feature went to Ed Meredith. He was followed by John Lovelady, Jimmy Crowe Jr., Wayne Parker, and Greg Hughes.

Other feature event winners were Bobby Sears (Mini-Stocks), Carl Peters (Run-A-Bouts), and Dennis Archinal (Mini-Bombers).

Why is illness called 'walking' pneumonia?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there such a thing as walking pneumonia? If so, what treatment do you recommend?

DEAR READER: Anyone walking around with pneumonia has walking pneumonia. Therefore, the condition is common. In most cases, walking pneumonia is relatively mild: cough, malaise, fatigue, and low-grade fever are the only symptoms. Once this mild form of pneumonia progresses -- as it usually does -- patients become sicker and take to their beds, or are hospitalized. I suppose that, technically speaking, any pneumonia is -- in its initial phase -- "walking" pneumonia. The distinction is simply a matter of degree.

Pneumonias of any type are usually treated with antibiotics; once treated, they are no longer contagious.

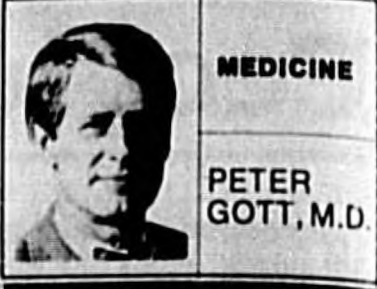

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently had an abnormal Pap that read "HPV change" in my cells. Six weeks later during a colposcopy exam, my gynecologist indicated I looked normal and healthy. Is it possible my first Pap was over-read? If not, does it mean that some day I will acquire genital warts?

DEAR READER: The Human Papilloma Virus causes venereal warts and low-grade inflammation in the female reproductive tract; cellular changes caused by the virus can often be detected in the Pap smear. On these occasions, further examinations -- such as you had -- are necessary to confirm the diagnosis and determine its extent. The problem with HPV is that it is associated with an increased incidence of cervical cancer.

Therefore, your gynecologist provided customary care. The initial Pap test may have been misread or the virus infection may be inapparent at this time. In this latter instance, further diagnosis and treatment would be necessary to protect you and your sexual partner from further health problems.

You must follow your gynecologist's advice about appropriate supervision and monitoring. For example, he may ask you to have repeat Pap tests every three to six months until he is satisfied that no HPV infection exists.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Gary Player works very hard on his golf game. When he was practicing bunker shots and getting every one within a couple of feet of the hole, a spectator observed, "Gee, are you ever lucky!" Gary looked up and replied, "Yes, and the more I practice, the luckier I get."

When playing a bridge hand, we should try to make the contract without requiring any luck -- especially without needing any successful fineses.

In today's deal, when the spades fall to break 2-2, it looks as though declarer needs the club finesse to make his slam. However, as you can see, it is losing. So South went one down, right? Wrong! He saw there was another possibility to make the slam. The club finesse could wait.

After West's weak two-bid,

South's balancing double and North's cautious three clubs. South rebid three spades. As this showed a very strong hand, North cue-bid four hearts to signify a good raise to four spades. South needed no further encouragement.

After winning the first trick with dummy's heart ace, declarer made a farsighted play: he ruffed dummy's heart two in his hand. Then he drew two rounds of trumps, getting the bad news. South continued with a diamond to dummy's queen and ruffed the last heart in his hand. Next, he cashed the club ace and A-K of diamonds. With his preparations complete, South exited with a trump to East's jack.

East had to lead a club into dummy's K-J tenace. But if he had had a diamond left, declarer would have ruffed and tried the club finesse.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Feb. 10, 1994

In the year ahead you might revive an old project that came close to being a winner, but stumbled near the finish line. This time you'll know how to circumvent the obstacles that tripped you up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Two important objectives might not be accomplished today if you fail to plan for all the contingencies. Analyze matters from both a best and worst case scenario. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today if you are indifferent, there's a possibility you might repeat an old, painful past mistake. Don't ignore signals from your memory bank.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involvements in joint endeavors have good potential at this time, but they might also embody some high risks. Before jumping in, know what you're doing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might not get the optimum support you desire today, but the assistance you garner should be ample for enabling you to do something you can't pull off unaided.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today if you hope to be effective and productive, you must first have a useful game plan to guide you over the rough spots. If this is missing up front, success could be missing down the line.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be prepared today to deal with unexpected developments. They could occur just when it looks like everything is running as smooth as silk.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tenacity and determination are essential requirements today if you want to get the type of end results for which you're hoping. Grab hold and don't let go.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although you're fond of doing things in a methodical manner, today you might have to allow lots of room for revision. Adjustments will be necessary, even if it's not what you wanted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might not chalk up any big victories today in areas that pertain to your financial well being, but you're also not likely to lose any ground either. You're in a holding pattern.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to appease your ambitious inclinations today, you might be a bit thoughtless regarding others. Don't let your sense of urgency override your social graces.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be afraid to ask questions today about things you don't understand, but when it comes to the application, include your own instincts along with what you were told.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before getting involved with friends in a new endeavor at this time, double check the cost and time factors yourself, so that there aren't any surprises at a later date.

Southern cooking

Just like Mamma's with half the effort

By JERI WATERS
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Bill Williams knows why some of the country's best athletes — Carl Lewis, Lawrence Taylor, Bo Jackson — were born in the South.

The secret, he swears, was their mommas' Southern cooking. "Now, you know all they did was sit there and eat corn bread and greens."

But Southern dishes such as collard greens, turnip and mustard greens, pinto beans, black-eyed peas and candied sweet potatoes can take hours of preparation. And people today just aren't willing to emulate the long hours their mothers toiled in the kitchen, said Williams.

Hence Williams' Glory Foods — a pioneering national line of canned and packaged Southern cuisine, named after the movie "Glory," which dramatized the Massachusetts 54th Regiment of the Civil War's first black unit.

The concept: Remove the drudgery from preparing some of the more popular Southern dishes, attracting those with little patience.

Greens, a tough, leafy vegetable, can take five hours to clean and cook. But a can of seasoned Glory greens takes only 15 minutes to heat. Dried pinto beans bought at the supermarket must soak in water for several hours before they're ready to cook. A can of heat-and-eat Glory beans takes minutes to warm.

Williams, who is black, grew up in the city but was fed a diet rich in Southern tradition.

He always wondered why no one had come up with a quick way to prepare some of his favorite dishes and why supermarkets lacked an ethnic food section specializing in the "down-home" fare common in many black homes.

So the restaurant owner parlayed his 20-plus years of experience in food service and founded Glory Foods with three former co-workers.

A few recipes from the kitchens of Glory Foods:

Corabread Stuffing

1/2 teaspoon rubbed sage
1 pack (6 cups) coarsely crumbled corn bread
1 cup chopped celery
2 beaten eggs
1/2 cup chopped onions
1-3 cup mayonnaise/salad dressing

chopped cooked giblets
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 cup chicken broth

In saucepan, cook the celery and onion in chicken broth until tender, about 5 minutes. Do not drain. In large bowl, combine eggs, mayonnaise, poultry seasoning, sage, salt and giblets thoroughly. On heavy foil, form stuffing into oval loaf. Seal foil. Place on baking sheet. Bake in 400-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until hot. Serves eight to 10.

Country Style Vegetables

1/2 can mixed greens
2-3rds cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 can okra
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup chopped celery
3 chicken bouillon cubes
2 cups chopped fresh tomatoes
1 can corn

Place the water in a large saucepan and bring to a boil. Add the onion, garlic bouillon cubes and celery. Cook for five minutes. Add the tomato sauce, chopped tomatoes, okra and corn. Cover and cook for 20 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serves four.

Candied Yams Arkansas Style

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup water
4 tablespoons butter
1 large can sweet potatoes
1/2 cup sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Drain can of sweet potatoes in a single layer in large iron skillet. Sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon of the nutmeg. In a saucepan, bring the water to a gentle boil, then add the sugar. Boil gently. Add the butter, vanilla extract and remaining nutmeg. Spoon half the mixture over the sweet potatoes and simmer slowly on top of the stove for five minutes.

Baste with the remaining syrup and simmer until the sweet potatoes absorb most of the syrup, about 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and let stand until ready to serve. Serves 4.

Sexy writing assignment gives chance for licentious license

DEAR ABBY: I challenge your advice to "On the Spot," the 60-year-old journalism student whose professor asked him to write an essay on the first time he made love.

If he doesn't parlay this opportunity into an "A," he doesn't deserve to write for the local newspaper.

As a 60-year-old retired college professor and aspiring writer, I would advise "On the Spot" to create an essay that would shock, dazzle and leave Miss Overactive Libido in a sweat, clamoring for the sequel. I would also show it to my wife so she, too, could enjoy a laugh.

If questioned regarding the truthfulness of the story, he should reply: "Of course it's true; if you don't believe me, ask my wife. She was there!" (When I wrote it, that is!)

ACREATIVE WRITER IN L.A.
DEAR CREATIVE WRITER:
Meet a Floridian with a cute sense of humor:

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column about a teacher who asked her students to write an essay on the first time they made love. A pupil — a 60-year-old male — told her it was so long ago, he could hardly remember the first time. Well, my grandson, who is not 15, asked me the same question when he was 9 years old.

ADVICE

My reply: "Rusty, I am so old, I can't even remember the last time."

HAROLD T. JACOBS,
BONITA SPRINGS, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem that may seem trivial, but on a daily basis the situation is annoying. At our place of employment we have an employees' break room where many of us eat lunch. It is a short lunch break for most of us, so we like to have some pleasant conversation and enjoy our lunches. Most of us bring our lunch.

We have a woman with whom we work who talks incessantly about food. No matter what we bring, when we heat it in the microwave she says, "Mmmm, that smells good. What do you have today?" Frequently, she asks for details concerning what is in the food. Abby, this is absolutely every item we bring!

Some of us have even stopped going to the break room or stopped eating lunch. We hate to be rude and not answer her, but she is actually rude to continually ask us about every detail of our food. Please do not use our names or city. Just sign us...

FED UP IN THE BREAK ROOM

DEAR FED UP: For you and your co-workers to stop going to the break room (or eating lunch) for this reason is childish. Why don't you simply tell this woman that you find her incessant talk about food irritating, and to please curb it?

DEAR ABBY: Did you make any New Year's resolutions for 1994?

NOBY IN FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.

DEAR NOBY: No. Last year I made only one: I resolved to make no more New Year's resolutions.

Academy Awards

'Schindler's List' gets 12 nominations

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

HEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — "Schindler's List," Steven Spielberg's searing Holocaust drama of death and salvation, captured a leading 12 nominations today for the 66th Academy Awards, including best picture and director.

"The Piano" and "The Remains of the Day" earned eight nominations each, including best picture. The other best picture nominees were "The Fugitive" and "In The Name of the Father."

Best actor nominees were Daniel Day-Lewis for "In The Name of the Father," Laurence Fishburne in "What's Love Got to Do With It," Tom Hanks in "Philadelphia," Anthony Hopkins in "The Remains of the Day" and Liam Neeson in "Schindler's List."

The actress nominations were Angela Bassett in "What's Love Got to Do With It," Stockard Channing in "Six Degrees of Separation," Holly Hunter in "The Piano," Emma Thompson in "The Remains of the Day" and Debra Winger in "Shadowlands." Jane Campion became only the second woman to be nominated for best director for "The Piano." In addition to Spielberg, she faces Jim Sheridan for "In The Name of the Father," James Ivory for "The Remains of the Day" and Robert Altman for "Short Cuts."

Miss Thompson and Miss Hunter were each nominated for supporting actress, the first time in academy history two performers have received two nominations in the same year.

Miss Hunter was nominated in the supporting category for "The Firm" and Miss Thompson for "In The Name of the Father." Also nominated were Anna Paquin for "The Piano," Rosie Perez in "Fearless" and Winona Ryder in "The Age of Innocence."

Miss Paquin, at age 11, is the youngest performer to receive a nomination since Justin Henry, 8, was nominated in 1979 for "Kramer vs. Kramer."

Leonardo DiCaprio was nominated for best supporting actor for "What's Eating Gilbert Grape," joining Ralph Fiennes in "Schindler's List" and Tommy Lee Jones in "The Fugitive." John Malkovich in "In The Line of Fire" and Pete Postlethwaite in "In The Name of the Father." Spielberg, the most popular director in Hollywood history, received his fourth nomination for directing — but he has yet to win.

In 1986 he received an honorary Oscar but has been snubbed for such hits as "E.T. — The Extra-Terrestrial" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Among films with multiple nominations, "The Fugitive" earned seven, as did "In The Name of the Father." "The Age of Innocence" collected five nominations, tying it with "Philadelphia."

The awards will be presented March 21 with actress Whoopi Goldberg as host.

Selected for original screenplay were "Dave," "In The Line of Fire," "Philadelphia," "The Piano" and "Sleepless in Seattle."

Adapted screenplay nominees were "The Age of Innocence," "In The Name of the Father," "The Remains of the Day," "Schindler's List" and "Shadowslands."

Discovery aims experiment at small, whizzing targets

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — NASA expects the ejection of six metalballs from the shuttle Discovery to give space debris experts better methods of tracking thousands of small items whizzing around the Earth.

The spheres, ranging from two to six inches in diameter, were to be sprung one at a time from a canister in the rear of the shuttle cargo bay today for a test of ground radar stations in Massachusetts and Florida.

Debris trackers hope to follow the balls as they shoot out of Discovery and orbit the Earth, eventually incinerating on contact with the atmosphere.

Radar can determine the size of larger space junk, such as dead satellites and spent rocket bodies, but officials want to calibrate the ground stations so the same thing can be done with small targets.

Hundreds of thousands of such objects — anything from pieces of old spacecraft to tiny meteorites — are always circling the globe at an average speed of 17,500 mph.

Cosmonaut Sergei Krikalev, the first Russian aboard a U.S. shuttle, and his five astronaut crewmates were awakened today with some traditional Russian dance songs.

"In the spirit of international cooperation, we picked that selection for you," Mission Control's

Nancy Sherlock told Krikalev.

"Thank you very much," Krikalev replied after a greeting in Russian.

The history-making cosmonaut finally got through to Mars — Mars, Pa., that is — on Tuesday after trying for two days via ham radio.

"It was just like an amazing sensation, just talking to them," said Julia Dawson, a sixth-grader at Mars Area Middle School.

She and five other students asked Krikalev about the differences between the American and Russian space equipment and how he was chosen for the mission. Krikalev had visited the school in 1989.

The crew today resumed medical experiments supported by both the United States and Russia. They also planned to release a satellite built by the University of Bremen in Germany. The 19-inch cylindrical craft will study atomic oxygen, space dust and heat exchange.

Discovery, launched Feb. 3, is to land Friday in Florida.
