Seminole Escapes Worst Of Storms

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Tornado-spawning thunderstorms rumbled across Central Florida Wednesday dropping 1.59 inches of rain on the Sanford area and generating gusts of wind up to 43 mph.

The brunt of the storms raked communities south and west of Seminole County and bore down on Orange County where wind gusts of 62 mph were recorded and 0.48 inches of rain fell, according to records kept at the Orlando International Airport.

The Sanford area readings were recorded at the Sanford Airport tower.

No serious accidents or storm damage was reported by police agencies in Seminole County though there was a 10 to 15 minute power outage in the Tusawilla area of Winter Springs caused by a downed tree. No injuries were reported in Orange County.

During the afternoon tempest two tornadoes were reported in Orange County, one in Orlo Vista and a second in Zellwood. The sightings were not confirmed by authorities.

Residents of Orlo Vista reported spying a funnel cloud touch down twice around 2 p.m. and firefighters estimated it did about $10,000 worth of damage to several home and duplexes then did as much damage to a citrus company about two miles away. Some home were reported damaged by falling trees and tree limbs.

At the citrus company about 15 cars and trucks were damaged when the shed they were

Voter OK Needed For Bonds

School Board Aims To Raise $100 Million

The Seminole County School Board may be going to the voters in a special election in October seeking approval for a 20-year, $100 million bond issue to renovate and expand Seminole public schools.

The board at its meeting Wednesday approved a concept whereby the money from the bond issue would be invested and the interest from those investments would be used to help pay off the bond issue.

Carey Ferrell, assistant superintendent of finance, suggested the concept and School Superintendent Robert Hughes recommended its approval.

The board voted unanimously to authorize the preparation of a formal plan of financing and the drafting of a formal resolution for adoption at its July 15 meeting.

Hughes said after adoption the plan and resolution would be advertised, a bond referendum election would be scheduled for sometime in October and approval would be sought from the state Department of Education for the program.

Ferrell said, for example, the tax-exempt bonds might sell at an interest rate of about 9 percent, while the school board might be able to reinvest the money and realize an interest rate of 10 percent. The money realized through the difference in interest rates could be used to help pay off the bonds.

The money from the bonds themselves would be used, Hughes said, to finance the projects listed in the school board's four-year capital improvement program. That program, he said, lists the older elementary schools, middle schools and high schools for renovation and expansion. As an example he pointed to Casselberry Elementary School, one of the projects. He said while the Casselberry School has room for 565 students, after renovations there will be room for 787. The capacity of Lake Brantley, Lake Howell and Seminole high schools would be expanded to 2,400 students each.

The bond issue would require an increase in taxes, Hughes said. The amount is not known.

To provide funds for capital improvement projects such as the construction of the new Greenwood Lakes Middle School

Jail Inmate Tries Escape

A Seminole County jail inmate who allegedly tried to dig through a cell wall using a metal table top to chip away concrete has been charged with attempted escape.

Another inmate reportedly tipped jail guards to a reputed escape attempt plan involving three inmates. Only one has been charged, but two others are under investigation and charges are pending, sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

Two guards reported to Seminole County sheriff's investigator Greg Futch that they found signs of an escape attempt at about 1 a.m. Tuesday

Father, Son Unaware Of 2nd Hijacking

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Two Americans who boarded a Middle East Airlines flight to Cyprus after their Jordanian airliner was hijacked and blown up on a Beirut runway were unaware their second flight had been hijacked until it landed.

American University of Beirut official Landry Slade and his son were hostages after the first hijacking. Their second flight was hijacked five minutes after it took off by a man armed with a hand grenade.

"It was an unusual experience, to put it mildly," Slade said today in London, a stopover on his way to New York. "However, we did not know that we had been hijacked for a second time. Nobody saw the hijacker go into the cockpit and we only found out when we got to Cyprus."

All 80 passengers — including the Slades — left the plane without incident and without any knowledge that anything was wrong.

But the hijacker held five crew members hostage and demanded to be allowed to board a Jordanian jet bound for Amman, airport officials in Cyprus said.

A short time later, the man left the plane, dropped his hand grenade on the tarmac and freed his five hostages. He was then flown to Amman, where security agents quickly led him away.

Prince Hassan met the Jordanian airliner at Amman's Queen Alia International Airport and denounced the hijacking incidents as attempts to undermine Jordanian-Palestinian cooperation in regional peace efforts.

The first hijacking ended Wednesday, 30 hours after it began, when the five Shillites who seized a Jordanian airliner freed 67 hostages at Beirut International Airport blew up the jet and fled.

The Shillites who commandeered the plane demanded that all Palestinian guerrillas be ousted from Beirut, where Palestinians and Shillites have been battling for control of three refugee camps.

Cypriot Acting Communications Minister Andreas Pappasolomonos said the second hijacker, a 25-year-old Lebanese citizen, acted "in retaliation" for Shillite hijacking of the Jordanian plane.

King Hussein's brother, Prince Hassan, met the Jordanian airliner — which also carried eight security guards and the crew of the hijacked Jordanian plane.

Hassan linked the attempted hijacking at Larnaca and the blowing up of the Jordanian airliner in Beirut to "violence aimed at threatening" cooperation between Jordan and the mainstream Palestine Liberation Organization under Yasser Arafat.

Permits Not Obtained Before Built

County Tells Homeowners To Tear Down Fences

Seminole County property owners in the Amberwood subdivision off Dike Road, who failed to get county permits for yard fences before they were constructed nearly a year ago, now must tear them down.

Bruce Shapin of Lot 40 and Richard N. Hoaji of lot 39, both on Sugarwood Circle in the development off Dike Road, tried but failed to get county commissioners to override a decision from the county Board of Adjustment refusing variances to let the fences remain.

Shapin said if his fence were set back from the property line the 25 feet required by the county code $15,000 worth of landscaping would be destroyed and four trees would have to be moved.

He insisted that the fence poses no visual obstruction to motorists.

Mrs. Hoaji added that the fences do not detract from the beauty of the development and "drivers who remain on the right side of the road have no problem" with the view being restricted by the fence.

A real hazard on the streets in the subdivision is created by Lake Howell High School students leaving their cars parked on the streets, Mrs. Hoaji said.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen said she has been trying to work with the school to stop the young people from parking in Amberwood.

Vaughn Shaw, president of the Amberwood Homeowners Association, said if either of the families had bothered to ask the association before constructing the fences they would have been told the fences could not be built at the lot lines.

He said the hardships both Mrs. Hoaji and Shapin were using in their request for variances were self-created. Shaw said if the two families were allowed to keep their fences as built, others would do the same and spoil the beauty of the development.

Mrs. Christensen's motion to overturn the Board of Adjustment died for lack of a second. A motion by Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, seconded by Commissioner Fred Streetman to deny the request was adopted on a 3-1 vote. Commission Chairman Bob Sturm voted with Kirchhoff and Streetman to deny. Mrs. Christensen voted against the denial.

In other business Tuesday night, the county commission:

- Granted a change in zoning from very light industrial to commercial to permit construction of a veterinary clinic on four acres on the north side of state Road 426, west of Prison Road. Richard Parker, a veterinarian, requested the change.

- Approved a change in zoning from agriculture to residential professional on a one-half acre parcel on the southeast corner of Lake Howell Road and Meadow Avenue. The existing dwelling is to be converted for a general business office.
- Granted the city of Altamonte Springs the right to rezone a 1.4 acre annexed parcel on Montgomery Road, 600 feet south of state Road 434, from residential professional to office professional zoning. Bob Shaker of Redwood Development Corp. said a two-story building will be constructed at the site.

Reagan Wins Aid For Contras

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, in a sharp reversal of his fortunes of two months ago, now has a set of congressional votes allowing him to renew aid to rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

He may owe real thanks for the victories to Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, who Reagan denounced last week as "the little dictator."

The House voted 248-184 Wednesday for $27 million in non-lethal aid for the Contras, a day after the Senate passed a $38 million package.

Reagan Wednesday said the House had taken "an historic vote to support democracy and liberty in Central America."

At a state dinner for Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi later Wednesday night, Reagan quipped to reporters: "Well I thought the bulk of both houses of Congress showed great intelligence."

But in Managua, Nicaraguan government radio interrupted its regular program to blast the House vote, saying it will bring "more massacres, more suffering" to the nation.

On April 23, the Senate reluctantly gave Reagan $14 million for the Contras. A day later, the House voted 303-123 against any aid for the Contras. Reagan's policy toward Nicaragua was in shreds.

Days later, Ortega went to Moscow seeking economic assistance. Reagan imposed a total trade embargo on Nicaragua May 1, but the tide for aid to the Contras already was turning. Even House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, who opposes all aid, conceded some House Democrats were "embarrassed" by Ortega's trip.

Wednesday, House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois was grateful to Ortega.

"The phrase 'fly now, pay later,' has taken on a deeper, richer meaning," Michel said, virtually gloating in House defect from the beauty of the development and "drivers who remain on the right side of the road have no problem" with the view being restricted by the fence.

A real hazard on the streets in the subdivision is created by Lake Howell High School students leaving their cars parked on the streets, Mrs. Hoaji said.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen said she has been trying to work with the school to stop the young people from parking in Amberwood.

Vaughn Shaw, president of the Amberwood Homeowners Association, said if either of the families had bothered to ask the association before constructing the fences they would have been told the fences could not be built at the lot lines.

Collector's Plate Heralds Return Of Historic Clock

A Sanford ceramic shop is having a "gold plate special" on limited edition plates commemorating the facelift of the city's downtown area and the scheduled reinstallation of the historic Clock.

T.J. Ceramics, at 226 E. First St., has ordered 1,000 of the china plates, which have a gold drawing of the Clock and the downtown area on the face and the inscription, "Downtown Sanford Restoration, 1985," on the bottom. The plates are 7 1/2 inches in diameter and are trimmed in 24 carat gold, according to Tracy Schneider, co-owner of the shop.

The plates sell for $20 and have been going like hotcakes, Ms. Schneider said. So far, about 250 have been sold. Most of them were sold before they came from the factory, she said.

Ms. Schneider said she got the idea after reading a story in the Evening Herald about Joe and Stella Oritt's attempts to bring the Clock back to the downtown area. She said many of her customers talk about the old timepiece and how much of a landmark it was for the city.

"Everybody talks about that clock. The old timers talk about meeting at the Clock and what use to go on under the Clock," Ms. Schneider said.

Coupled with her customers' interest was the desire to make a contribution to the community which has accepted her and her partner, Joyce Cox, with open arms, she said.

"Sanford is such an ideal community. The merchants down here are super nice and have just helped us and welcomed us," she said. Ms. Schneider and Ms. Cox opened the shop two years ago, she said. Ms. Schneider is from Longwood.

Ms. Schneider designed the plate from a picture of the clock that appeared in the newspaper story and her own photographs of the newly refurbished downtown area.

She took the design to an artist, who created a gold overlay for the plates. The overlays and gold-trimmed plates are sent to the shop separately and then fired in its ceramic ovens.

Ms. Schneider said she had planned to buy only 250 but the demand has been so overwhelming that she decided to order 1,000. Each plate has a number — the lower the number, the more valuable the plate in the future, she said.

The Clock is scheduled to be reinstalled at Magnolia Avenue and First Street Tuesday or Wednesday, according to E.C. Harper, president of Sanford Electric Co., which is restoring the timepiece. It will be assembled at the site but will not be turned on until a dedication ceremony is held sometime after July 4, he said.

The city commission agreed in March to provide the space, electrical hookup and labor to install and maintain the Clock. The Oritts are paying for new parts for the Clock.

The Clock was taken down in 1981 after it was deemed a hazard to traffic in the downtown area.

IN BRIEF

Union Leaders Attack Reagan's Tax Reform Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland says President Reagan's tax reform proposal shortchanges the average American who would lose crucial deductions while the wealthy would retain many of their tax breaks.

Kirkland and other labor leaders told the House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday they like the concept of tax reform, but oppose several parts of Reagan's plan.

Specifically, the unions attacked provisions that would partially tax employee health benefits, tax unemployment and workers compensation and drop the deduction for state and local taxes.

Kirkland complained the plan "does not add up to the major overhaul needed to establish fairness and end the preferential treatment given wealthy individuals, stock and real estate speculators, oil and gas developers and corporations."

Case Against School Staff Rattled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A prosecutor says the child molestation case against seven former McMartin Pre-School staff members remains strong despite the dismissal of three-fourths of the charges.

"It's too early yet to play games with numbers," Deputy District Attorney Lael Rubin told reporters Wednesday after Municipal Court Judge Aviva Bobb dismissed most of the 207 counts charged to the seven defendants.

"Wait until the preliminary hearing is over," Rubin said. "By then, this case will not have been decimated as some people say it has been. There is still a strong case on which we intend to proceed to trial and I think that's what is important for people to understand at this point."

Bobb began dismissing counts Tuesday in a startling chain of events that began with her ruling to not allow the 41 alleged young victims to testify via closed circuit television.

Prosecutors said many of the alleged victims would not testify, and rested their case after calling 13 young witnesses. The defense also rested, without calling any witnesses, and began moving for dismissal of the charges.

The judge began ruling on the counts individually, throwing out those that prosecutors failed to support with "evidence that any public offense has been committed."

Accused Spy Denied Bail

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — A member of an alleged family-and-friend spy ring has been told bail is out of the question, and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says if the four men accused of espionage are convicted, they should be shot.

An FBI agent testified Wednesday that Arthur Walker, 50, a retired Navy lieutenant commander, confessed to working with his brother John in a spy ring believed to be one of the most damaging security breaches in 30 years.

The testimony persuaded U.S. Magistrate Gilbert Swink to deny bond and pass the evidence to a federal grand jury.

Weinberger, in an interview in Washington with wire service reporters, said Wednesday the suspected spies "should be shot" if convicted but added, "I suppose hanging is the preferred method."

Charged with espionage in the massive operation are John and Arthur Walker; John's son Michael, 22, a sailor last assigned to the nuclear powered aircraft carrier Nimitz; and Jerry Whitworth, 45, also a retired Navy officer who has been described as Walker's "best friend." If convicted, the men face life in prison.

Gandhi: India Friend Of U.S., Soviets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi says his nation will maintain its policy of non-alignment and does not believe its friendship with the United States "must be at the cost" of ties with the Soviet Union.

Gandhi, 40, made it clear in meetings with Reagan Wednesday that there would be no change in India's refusal to ally itself officially with either superpower, despite President Reagan's urging that the world's largest democracy should take a tougher stand against the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Gandhi was expected to express the same view today when he addressed a joint session of Congress.

In his welcoming remarks upon Gandhi's arrival at the White House Wednesday and at a glittering state dinner later, Reagan said, "India and the United States have enormous strengths on which we can draw in seeking to improve our relations."

In his dinner toast, Reagan said, "We're ultimately so similar and yet like family members we find it hard to communicate."

The president, 74, then joked, "I'm happy to report that although a few years (in age) separate us, we hit it off. ... I predict great things ahead."

For his part, Gandhi told Reagan, "We both are rather outspoken people but being candid with each other is a measure of the stability of our relationship."

"It is one of the reasons why in spite of some differences in policies and particulars, a firm people-to-people relationship endures between us," he said.

Gandhi, who succeeded his mother Indira as prime minister when she was assassinated Oct. 31, arrived Tuesday for a five-day visit to Washington under extraordinary security.

About 1,000 chanting Sikhs and other demonstrators protested Gandhi's visit and could be heard during the red-carpet welcome at the White House.

India's tolerance of the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan has been one of the sticking points in

Rajiv Gandhi

Judge Allows Firms To Keep Selling Milk-Culture Kits

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — The lawyer for a Nevada firm selling bacteria culture-growing kits to thousands of people in Florida and around the country says the firm can ignore a Kansas securities commissioner's order against selling kits outside of Kansas.

Although it appeared Tuesday that a district judge had upheld all of a cease-and-desist order against Culture Farms Inc., Lawrence, and Activator Supply Co., Pahump, Nev., that was not the case the next day.

At the end of an hour-long hearing late Wednesday it appeared the only part of the order left standing firm was that prohibiting sale of the "activator kits" in Kansas.

The companies are involved in the growing of milk-based bacteria cultures for use in Cleopatra's Secret cosmetics.

Securities Commissioner John Wurth has accused them of selling unregistered securities and conducting a "Ponzi" scheme, a type of fraudulent pyramid sales scheme.

The state contends the companies make their money from sale of activator kits, and not from sale of cosmetics. Evidence presented to a hearing examiner indicated all but a small percentage of grown cultures bought from consumers were recycled into new activator kits.

The Florida comptroller's office filed charges of selling unregistered securities, misrepresentation and fraud against the two companies in Orange Circuit Court in April.

Wurth Monday ordered the firms to stop selling activator kits to consumers, and to stop buying grown cultures if they are merely to be recycled into new activator kits. In a brief order Tuesday, Shawnee County District Judge James Buchele apparently upheld Wurth's ruling.

However, at the request of the firms, Buchele Wednesday clarified his earlier order.

Saying it was what he meant to say in the first place, Buchele declared that Culture Farms and Activator Supply may not sell activator kits to the public either in or out of the state of Kansas, pending a full hearing June 25. He stayed the effects of the remainder of Wurth's order.

However, immediately after the court hearing, Topeka lawyer John Frieden, representing Activator Supply, whittled down Wurth's order even further.

Frieden contended the judge and the securities commissioner have no jurisdiction outside the state of Kansas, meaning the kits can continue to be sold outside the state. He said it would be business as usual for Activator Supply, which he said will continue to sell kits from its location in Nevada.

In modifying his order, Buchele declared that halting sale of activators to the public would serve to protect the public interest, pending outcome of the full hearing.

However, he prevented Wurth from halting production of activator kits from grown cultures by Culture Farms, or the shipment of the kits to Activator Supply, which sells them to the public.

Lawyers for Wurth, Larry Christ and Craig Stanciloff, argued that it was necessary to prevent Culture Farms from providing additional activator kits to Activator Supply, in order to halt further sales of kits to consumers outside the state.

Clash Ends Baptists' Cease-Fire

DALLAS (UPI) — The cease-fire in the war between fundamentalists and moderates in the Southern Baptist Convention lasted a mere eight hours before falling apart amid charges of ballot-stuffing and questionable political tactics.

The three-day meeting ends today with action on a number of generally non-controversial resolutions and reports.

Fighting between the bitterly divided sides erupted Wednesday over a moderate-backed plan by the Rev. James Slatton of Richmond, Va.

His proposal substituted Baptist state presidents and Women's Missionary Union state presidents for the fundamentalist-attacked "committee on boards." That panel nominates members of the boards of trustees that run the church's six seminaries and 20 national program agencies.

The committee on boards has emerged as one of the primary battlegrounds in the struggle between moderates and fundamentalists.

Marrying For Money A Booming Business

MIAMI (UPI) — A 24-year-old woman has wed men from four countries in less than two years for $4,500, just one of dozens of south Florida people finding that money and marriage go together, according to a report published today.

The Miami Herald examined 50,000 weddings in Dade County and found that more than 50 citizens have been involved in about 175 suspect marriages since January 1983.

For immigrants or refugees, marrying a U.S. citizen neatly clears the way to living and working in this country. A valid marriage qualifies an immigrant for permanent residence. If granted that status, an immigrant who stays married for two years can live and work in the United States indefinitely.

Maritza Santos told The Herald she was paid $1,500 for two weddings and $750 for two more as part of a marriage-fraud ring. She said she has married four men from Honduras, El Salvador, Venezuela and Bolivia.

Public Barred From Hearings

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — The Fourth District Court of Appeal restricted public access to pretrial proceedings in criminal cases, ruling that spectators may not attend deposition hearings unless a judge is present.

The appeal court also ruled Wednesday that depositions are not public documents unless they have been transcribed and filed with a court clerk.

The rulings arise out of a 1983 civil case filed by Palm Beach Newspapers Inc. and Miami Herald Publishing Co., which unsuccessfully tried to send reporters to the deposition hearing of Linda Aurilio. Aurilio was a federally-protected witness who testified about organized gambling and police corruption in south Florida. Lawyers for the newspapers argued that it is in the public interest to open up the proceedings.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers in the Aurilio case said pre-trial publicity could prejudice potential jurors in any future trials that resulted from Aurilio's sworn statement. Palm Beach Circuit Judge Richard Burk ordered the deposition hearings closed and the newspapers appealed his decision.

Casselberry Man Accused Of Assaulting 13-Year-Old Girl

A 23-year-old Casselberry man was being held today in lieu of $8,000 bond, charged with lewd and lascivious indecent assault on a 13-year-old Casselberry girl.

The girl reported to Casselberry police that the incident occurred at a convenience store at 1489 Lake Drive, Casselberry, at about 9 p.m. Wednesday. The suspect asked her to go home with beer with him and allegedly touched her on the breast with his fingers, a police report said.

The girl and her father reported the incident to police and the man was arrested at the store at about 9:06 p.m. He was also charged on a Pinellas County warrant, and will be held for that county.

Russell Seymour Thompkins, of 1413 Huntington Drive, has been charged in the case.

AUTO ASSAULT

An Oviedo man has been charged by Winter Springs police with four counts of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle.

According to a police report, a man terrorized the occupants of a car as they rode along Tuskawilla Road in Winter Springs at about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. He allegedly rammed the car with his pickup truck and forced the car, driven by A. Lovel, off the road. Her vehicle hit a telephone pole. An infant riding in a car seat suffered a cut lip and received a bump on the head, the report said.

The suspect reportedly continued to pursue the car, which was occupied by four persons. Ms. Lovel turned off Tuskawilla Road and into the first driveway on Forest Circle Drive where she went into the home and asked for help, the report said.

The victims were not identified in the police report and no reason for the alleged attack was given. Although the driver of the car, the infant and the suspect have the same last name, police did not report if they are related.

The suspect was located by police at 837 Beachwood Drive, Winter Springs. Robert James Lovel, 21, of 490 N. Central Ave., was arrested at 8:45 p.m. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

Quarter-Ton Rapist Gets Parole

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Joseph "Jo-Jo" Giorgianni, the quarter-ton rapist who was briefly spared a prison sentence because of his bulk will be paroled in December.

His release from prison in 1980 drew letters of outrage from around the nation that persisted until Superior Court Judge Richard Barlow reversed himself, reinstating the original 15-year sentence.

Giorgianni, convicted along with Clarence Sindora of a 1978 sexual attack on a 14-year-old girl at Giorgianni's restaurant, was released from prison after spending about a week behind bars after his lawyers argued that his obesity would make prison life impossible for him.

Giorgianni weighed 575 pounds at his conviction, and now weighs 450 pounds. His lawyers said.

High School Ring Pawned For $17.50 Nets Sanford Man 2-Year Prison Term

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford man found guilty of dealing in stolen property following the pawning of a high school class ring which had been removed from the ashtray of a car he was working on has been sentenced to 2 years in prison.

Eugene Anderson, 22, of 104 McKay Blvd., was sentenced by Seminole Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. Anderson was convicted by jury May 17 and could have received up to 5 years.

During his trial, Anderson said he took the Bishop Moore High School ring by mistake and then pawned it when no one claimed it.

According to court records, a man took his car to Willett Toyota, south of Sanford on U.S. Highway 17-92, to have it repaired. He left the car there Jan. 2 and picked it up Jan. 18.

When the man got his car back, a 1983 class ring he left in the ashtray was missing.

On Jan. 22, the ring was pawned in Sanford and the seller, an employee of the dealership at the time, used his driver's license for identification. He sold the ring for $17.50. The usual value of such a ring is $80, a school official said.

Anderson said during his trial that he vacuumed several cars and found the ring when he emptied the vacuum cleaner. When on one claimed the ring, he sold it.

In other court action:

—Dexter Robinson, 27, of 1601 W. 13th Place, Sanford, arrested March 9 on a charge of possession of cocaine, has pleaded guilty to possession of a controlled substance. He could receive up to a year in the county jail when sentenced by semi-retired Circuit Judge Volie Williams Aug. 12.

—Brenda Patterson, 25, of 2701 W. 22nd St., Sanford, arrested Oct. 19 on a charge of shoplifting at the Altamonte Mall, Altamonte Springs, was sentenced by Circuit Judge Robert H. He could receive up to 15 years when sentenced Aug. 12 by Williams.

—Evelyn Rivera Rembert, of 1816 Lincoln Court, Sanford, arrested Jan. 18 for shoplifting at Penney's, 1180 State St., Sanford, has pleaded no contest to the charge. She could receive up to a year in the county jail when sentenced Aug. 12 by Williams.

—Duemestri Esquilante Lamar, 21, of 851 W. Clanton Ave., Winter Park, arrested Dec. 6 on a charge of grand theft of an automobile, pleaded no contest to a lesser charge of petty theft. He was sentenced to 3 months probation by Williams.

Doctor Gets Sympathy From County In Confusion Over Nursery, Paving

The plight of Dr. Kwan Ming Kwun, in being unable to meet Seminole County requirements for the paving of a road after his contractor built him a flower nursery off McNeil Road without first getting a building permit, got some sympathy from county commissioners. But not too much.

While commissioners waived the usual requirement of paving some 807 feet to Bear Lake Road, the nearest paved road, they did require that he pave a portion of the road nearest his building.

Commissioner Fred Streetman asked that Kwun also commit to paying his share for paving the entire street when it is done at an unspecified future date.

And County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff added that Kwun must donate 15 feet off his property's 833-foot frontage to give the street a 35-foot right-of-way on his side of the road.

When properties on the other side of the street are developed they also will have to donate 15 feet for right-of-way, Commission Chairman Bob Sturm pointed out. In this fashion the road ultimately will have a 70-foot right-of-way, sufficient in size to not only pave, but also to provide drainage.

Attorney J. Mason Williams III and engineer Phil Hollis, representing Kwun, said although county records show a 50-foot right-of-way for McNeil, surveys showed it is only 40 feet wide.

Hollis said this is not sufficient to build a road 25 feet wide which meets county requirements and still provide for drainage unless Kwun would allow all drainage from the street to pour onto his property.

Williams said he met with nearby property owners and none were willing to donate land for expanding the right-of-way nor money to help pay for the paving. One owner, who has horses on his property, is totally opposed to any paving there.

Public Works Director Larry Sellers said when plans for the project were brought to his office last fall, they showed a 50-foot right-of-way. Hollis said the figure was taken from county records and used, even though it was known to be wrong, so his client could get on with his plans. Hollis said Sellers' department was notified at the time that Kwun intended to take the issue to the county commission.

Williams also noted that his client spent more than $100,000 on improvements of his property before he knew that the building permit had not been obtained.

Williams and Hollis said their client indicated to them that he thought the nursery builder had the proper county permits.

This Plan Is Preposterous

Unlike other times when the arrival of a Middle Eastern leader in Washington was big news, the visit of Jordan's King Hussein recently was not much of a stir. This suggests the Middle East is on the international back burner despite the mindless bloodletting in the Iran-Iraq war and in the Lebanese civil strife. The oil flows out of the Persian Gulf and that's what counts.

In such a situation, the status quo on the Palestinian question tends to harden. The Jordanians and Palestinians, perceiving that time is not on their side, are trying to break the deadlock and start some momentum toward a settlement. The difficulty is that they want to do this on their terms.

The plan King Hussein brought to Washington calls for negotiations between a mixed Palestinian-Jordanian delegation and Israel under the auspices of the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, which is to say the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain, and France.

His hope is that this international conference would ratify an agreement reached in February between King Hussein and Yasir Arafat, chairman of the Palestinian Liberation Organization. This called for Israel's withdrawal from territory it occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. An integral part of the pact would be the creation of a Palestinian nation loosely confederated with Jordan.

Quite properly, the Reagan administration welcomed the king's initiative but turned down any Middle East talks that would bring in the Soviet Union. It set forth some conditions that the Soviets will hardly even consider: Resume diplomatic relations with Israel, ease restrictions on Jewish emigration, cease anti-Semitic propaganda and halt arms shipments to Iran and to Lebanese militia groups.

It is a measure of Middle Eastern irrationality that the Arabs could expect the Reagan administration to entertain such a preposterous plan.

Labor leaders in Israel have suggested that they are open to a Palestinian entity on the West Bank that would be loosely affiliated with Jordan. But the Jordanians and Palestinians will have to deal with Israel directly just as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat did if there is to be a settlement. They are wrong in their insistence that the United States do this for them and wring most of the concessions from Israel.

Native Americans

Each year, a quarter of a million parties — Indians or tribal governments — rely on the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs to collect $146 million on royalties from oil leases on Indian lands. For many Indians, the money is all that stands between them and poverty, but for years, the checks, if they come at all, have been late or short.

The Interior Department admits the problem is serious, but attributes it to the cumbersome collection processes, short staffs and bureaucratic slippage.

But at a congressional hearing on the problem, Rep. Glenn English of Oklahoma suggested that more than simple bungling might be behind the delays. "There are substantial amounts of money involved here, and, if it's not being paid to the Indians, it can only be accruing to the agency. It may have gone to the point that it may need a grand jury."

Backing up that view is a series of audits conducted by the Oklahoma Corporation Commission. So far, the agency has looked into nearly 90 cases, and in nearly every case it has found problems, ranging from overdue royalties to outright deception in the BIA's response to queries from Indians puzzled by missing royalty payments.

The suffering and cruelty that this nation has inflicted on Native Americans have yet to end. It is time to bring this shameful behavior to a halt.

BERRY'S WORLD

Shipping Rule Hurts Food-Aid Effort

WASHINGTON — A lot of attention has been paid to the U.S. trade deficit and to famine-relief efforts overseas, but too little attention has been paid to an obscure law that has made solving these problems more difficult.

Buried in the federal lawbooks is the 1954 Cargo Preference Act, which requires that at least 50 percent of government-generated cargo must be shipped overseas on U.S.-flag vessels. This not only drives up the cost of shipping food for the world's hungry, but also makes U.S. farm products much less competitive around the world.

Iowa Rep. Jim Leach, whose state's hard-pressed farmers are especially hurt by this law, says the cargo-preference law adds $1.78 to the cost of every bushel of soybeans and $1.53 to the cost of each bushel of corn exported from our shores.

The American public has enthusiastically supported emergency government assistance to drought-stricken Ethiopia, Sudan and neighboring African countries. Thus far, the United States has budgeted nearly $600 million in food commodities for Africa.

But what the public doesn't know, says the American Soybean Association, is "that millions of dollars of the money which supposedly is being spent on U.S. food aid is, in fact, being used to subsidize a few U.S. shipping firms to carry half of these commodities, at rates far above world shipping rates, on U.S. flag vessels."

This year, for instance, the Agriculture Department will shell out an estimated $155 million in subsidies to the U.S. merchant fleet out of money allocated to the Food for Peace program alone.

"This is enough money to provide 1 pound of wheat per day for one year, free of charge, to over 4.9 million people in Africa," the soybean growers told Congress last month.

U.S.-flag ships frequently charge rates that are from 120 percent to 250 percent higher than those of foreign-flag ships carrying the same cargo on the same voyage. The American taxpayer foots the bill for the difference.

The soybean growers, among other farm commodity producers, are not the only ones to have raised a stink about these built-in shipping subsidies.

The Grace Commission, in its landmark report on waste and inefficiency in government, proposed eliminating cargo preference for all non-military shipments — estimating that this will save taxpayers more than $1 billion over the next five years.

How did this costly and harmful law get on the books?

It got there, says Leach, because of "the political and financial influence of a lobby — the maritime unions — whose sole purpose appears to be to protect, if not expand, cargo-preference subsidies."

In the last two years, the nation's three major maritime unions spent an average of about $4,600 per member of Congress to make sure that cargo preference stays on the books — and, thus far, they've been successful.

Nevertheless, some courageous members of Congress are fighting to get rid of this preference. Among them, in addition to Leach, are Reps. Doug Bereuter, R-Neb.; Rep. Ed Madigan, R-Ill.; and Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla. Their legislation would exempt all food aid and commercial farm exports from cargo preference.

If you think, as I do, that every dime of America's humanitarian food-assistance dollar should be feeding the hungry, and if you feel that the future of America's farmers depends on competitive farm exports — then write your lawmakers and urge them to scratch cargo preference from the lawbooks.

"Cargo preference," says Leach, "makes a victim of the farm producer just as surely as the Ethiopian child. It should be overturned."

Wealthy Senate Members

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Admittance to the Senate, often described as the country's most exclusive club, is by the whim of voters who inhabit the 50 states.

The club does not discriminate on the basis of sex, race or religion — but the voters do. Among the 100 members, there are no blacks or Hispanics, only two women and one of Oriental descent.

And, on the basis of financial disclosure forms released recently, a personal fortune is not a prerequisite of membership — although the club most assuredly has its rich, very rich and very, very rich members.

Exactly how wealthy some of them are is hidden by a formula which defies an accurate total. For instance, an asset worth millions need only be put in a category listed as "more than $250,000."

But, at least a hint can be drawn from the amount of outside income — outside the $75,100 salary — that a senator lists, although this also represents the rock bottom of the riches they annually draw.

Not surprisingly, the richest man in the Senate — based on this statistic — is Sen. Claiborne Pell, a liberal Rhode Island Democrat of the Newport, R.I., Pells. The flow listed from this old-line aristocracy money is $1.1 million in 1984.

Some of America's other hereditary wealth is also represented in the club.

There are: Sens. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va. (Rockefeller); Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. (Kennedy); Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn. (Squibb); Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo. (Ralston Purina); Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa. (Heinz 57 Varieties).

But surprisingly, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, certainly a self-made man, comes in as No. 2, after Pell, in the matter of outside income. After returning from space, Glenn plunged into business and obviously did very well. He listed $769,903 in outside income.

By this criteria, Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., is the Senate's poorest man. He did, last year, make his Senate salary and picked up $21,780 in speaking engagements.

But there is another, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., who may be up against it even more. He has no outside income and his liabilities are $10,000 higher than his assets.

Only one other senator, Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., lists no outside income, but she has assets of at least a quarter of a million.

Spoiling The Pageant

A fascinating flap has broken out in the wake of the International Youth Year Conference held April 6-9 in Kingston, Jamaica. Inadvertently, it may tell us more about the shape of things to come than all of this year's addresses by heads of state put together.

The United Nations, being incapable of doing anything more useful, had proclaimed 1985 "International Youth Year." This naturally pleased the Russians (who no doubt instigated the resolution), and they promptly set about planning its observance at a conference to be held in Moscow in late July, under the auspices of their Soviet-controlled World Federation of Democratic Youth. Susceptible youngsters from all over the world have been invited to take expenses-paid junkets to this mass brainwashing.

Entirely to their credit, the Reagan administration and the West German government decided not to take this Russian propaganda stunt lying down. Accepting the offer of Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga to play host, an International Youth Year Conference was scheduled for Kingston, Jamaica, over the Easter weekend. Some 1,100 young people from every continent and a hundred nations attended.

What happened at the conference depends to some extent on whom you talk to. On certain basics, there is agreement. The conference was keynoted by Vladimir Bukovsky, an expatriate Russian dissident, who spoke eloquently of the dangers posed by Soviet imperialism in Afghanistan and Central America.

There were delegations of Afghan freedom-fighters and Nicaraguan contras. On the other hand, the conference's final product, the "Kingston Statement," did not contain a single condemnation of either the Soviet Union or communism.

The final explosion came over the management of future such conferences. The socialists were in control, and they successfully beat back an effort to provide for elections to the secretariat, so they will remain in control. That prompted a walkout by about a tenth of the delegates, including most of the American and European and all of the Central and South American conservatives.

It is important to understand what is going on here. Ever since World War II, the West's answer to Soviet propaganda initiatives has been to push forward the West's own democratic socialists, who subscribe to virtually every item of the communist agenda except domestic totalitarianism and, internationally, subservience to Moscow. In God's good time there has now arrived on this monotonous scene a relatively small and poorly organized, but scrappy, knowledgeable and articulate group of youthful conservatives who disagree with communism lock, stock and barrel. They spoiled the social democratic pageant scheduled for Kingston the way a skunk spoils a garden party.

But they are a formidable new "presence in the room" — the first really fresh development on the international youth scene in many years.

Teaching Kids How To Slim

By Janice Kalmar

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ellen Knobbe used to make a mad dash to the kitchen after school, stocking up on fattening goodies she could nibble while watching television until dinner time.

Now when the 14-year-old goes into the kitchen after school she reaches for an apple. Or better yet, she skips her afternoon snack altogether and heads for the tennis courts.

Matt Sharpe, 11, of New Haven, Mo., never liked the way he looked. At 5 feet tall and 187 pounds, Matt was — in his words — "fat."

"Everybody teased me," said Matt, who is a much happier boy now that he has dropped 27 pounds in 10 weeks. "I couldn't do a lot of things my friends could. I really didn't like myself very much."

Ellen and Matt are just two of 16 children who have completed the first 10-week "Body Shop" program offered by Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital.

The program, which was developed by Methodist Hospital in Minneapolis, is designed to help overweight children 8 to 18 learn weight control and avoid fat diets that may be dangerous to growth and health. Its cost is $150.

"It's a behavior modification process," said Mickey Fellows, the program's coordinator.

"The best thing that comes out of the program is that the children leave knowing being overweight is their problem — before it was everybody else's problem," said Fellows. "It was the parent that brought the food into the house, or the parent that nagged at them."

Fellows, who is a registered nurse, said the Body Shop teaches children they must take control of their weight problem.

In one part, a dietician teaches the kids to be conscious of what they are eating.

For example, at one session the children learned that even though they are on a diet, they can still go out to fast-food restaurants with their friends.

"I know if I do go to say, McDonalds, I have to compensate for what I've eaten at other meals," said Ellen.

In the second segment, "Time Out For Me," a psychologist counsels the children on the various problems an overweight child will encounter.

Finally there is the physical fitness element of the program. Therapist Terry Kunkel lectures about the various parts of the body and what exercises are most beneficial.

Moment Of Truth For U.S.-India Relations

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's visit gives the Reagan administration a unique opportunity to improve relations between the world's two largest democracies. But the president's men must discard some long-cherished misconceptions about India if a solid relationship is to be achieved.

First and foremost, President Reagan must realize that Gandhi offers the hand of friendship as an equal, not as a client. Like his grandfather, Jawaharlal Nehru, and his mother, Indira Gandhi, he is a dedicated nationalist for whom India's interests are always paramount. Gandhi is determined not to play second fiddle to either the United States or the Soviet Union.

For all the political differences between the two countries, Indians and Americans are remarkably alike: Irreverent, self-critical, harboring a healthy distrust of big government. And Gandhi's economic reforms and tax cuts have drawn unabashed admiration from members of the Reagan administration.

The only serious point of difference is in geopolitics: U.S. global strategy often collides head-on with India's regional ambitions. With 740 million people, the world's third largest standing army and 10th largest industrial output, self-sufficient in food and boasting a successful space program and a rapidly growing high-technology sector, India wants to be South Asia's superpower.

In pursuit of this goal, India has proclaimed its own version of the Monroe Doctrine: Neither the Soviet Union nor the United States should "colonize" the region with military bases and arms supplies that threaten the existing strategic balance in the subcontinent.

Unfortunately, ever since the 1950s, Washington has provided sophisticated weapons to a succession of Pakistani dictators, whose armies have turned their American-made arms against India in three wars.

Realists in the Reagan administration don't expect Gandhi to break precipitously with the Soviet Union, any more than he expects the United States suddenly to ditch Pakistan. But diplomats in both countries agree that the "Pakistan problem" must be solved before any real improvement in U.S.-Indian relations can occur.

There are some pro-India voices in the administration, arguing that in the long run India will be a better and more dependable ally than the shaky military dictatorship in Pakistan. They warn that Pakistan's President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq could go the way of the shah of Iran.

Gandhi is willing to live with the U.S.-Pakistan security arrangement under which arms supplies will continue through 1986. But he wants to know what direction U.S. policy will take after that. He also wants to know how tough a stance the United States is prepared to take against the production of a Pakistani nuclear bomb. The future of U.S.-Indian relations hinges on the answer to these questions.

Astros Offset Power Shortage With Contact Hitters, Defense

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Although the Altamonte Little League National Division champion Astros don't have the offensive power of past teams, they do have many of the same characteristics as the great Altamonte teams of the past.

The Astros, who defeated the Dodgers in the playoffs for the league title, have a solid defensive team, good, consistent hitters and they don't make mental mistakes.

Manager Duke Pleicones will take his Astros into battle Saturday night at 7 against Maitland in the Top Team Tournament at the Deltona Little League/Charles Paulus Field. Altamonte National is in the Division II bracket of the tourney as is the American League entry, the Tigers. If both win their first two games, the two Altamonte teams will meet in the winner's bracket final.

The Astros compiled a 14-6 record during the regular season and clinched a playoff berth by winning the first half. The Dodgers came back to win the second half to set up a best of 3 series.

The Astros won the first game but the Dodgers evened it up by winning the second. In game three, Andy Spolski broke a 3-3 tie with a three-run homer in the fourth inning and Chris Pleicones shut the Dodgers down the rest of the way as the Astros won the league title with a 6-3 victory. It was the second year in a row the Astros have won the league crown.

Spolski will be on the mound Saturday night when the Astros battle Maitland. "Andy's a hard thrower," Pleicones said. "If he's on, he's tough."

The infield around Spolski includes Scott Davis at first base, Dave Robison at second, Chris Pleicones at short, Alfie Cornell at third and Rich Schou is the catcher.

The outfielders include Mark Bowen, Jay Kane, Chris Wiemer, Mark Pleicones and Kyle Eshlman.

Chris Pleicones will also see action on the mound in the tournament. "Chris doesn't overpower the hitters but has a good breaking ball and change up," Pleicones said. "And both kids (Spolski and Pleicones) throw strikes."

Offensively, Chris Pleicones was the league's leading hitter and the only one to hit over .500 with a .528 average that included two home runs. Spolski was second in the league with a .438 average and three homers. Other leading hitters for the Astros include Mark Pleicones (.300) and Robison (.271). Robison was the only other player to hit a homer.

"We don't have much power but we've got some good hitters," Pleicones said. "The pitching is strong and we're a good little defensive club. We don't make mental errors and we don't give away games."

Pleicones said he expects a tough battle from Maitland Saturday.

Successful manager in the Altamonte Springs Little League American Division, the Tigers go into Top Team Tournament play looking to keep their hot streak going.

The Tigers, managed by Mike Morro with assistant Pablo Abreu, open Top Team play Saturday morning at 10 against Southwest Volusia at the Deltona Little League/Charles Paulus Field.

With six players that hit over .350 during the regular season and a solid pitching staff, the Tigers roared to an 18-2 record. The Tigers also have power in the lineup with six players who hit one or more homers.

Terry Brown was the team's leading hitter with an impressive .540 average. Other top hitters for the Tigers include John Jump (.480), Chuck Lamb (.475), Kevin Morro (.435), Chris Koepke (.350) and Doug Harris (.350). Brown was also one of the top power hitters in the league with six homers. Morro and Koepke hit three round trippers each.

"We're generally a good all-around team," Morro said. "We have a lot of power and some good pitching. The defense has been solid, too."

Elvis, Mildred Clark's hound dog, can't take it any more. He walked away from a Braves game in the fourth inning because he was fed up with the futility.

Bad News Braves? Even Bored Hound Dog Walks Away

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Mildred Clark says her dog Elvis isn't nothing but a hound dog. "The guy I got him from said he was part beagle and part hunting dog," she says. "Heck, I told him he ain't nothing but a hound dog."

But even hound dogs get tired of the Atlanta Braves.

A week ago, when the Braves were doing a National League West Division Impression of the Seattle Mariners, Elvis (see photo) was perched in his customary position — in front of the television watching the Atlanta Braves and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ah, the Pirates. That's the team from Pittsburgh which is doing an N.L. East Division Impression of the Mariners. Yes, the Pirates, as in last-place Pirates. Even the most pessimistic Atlanta fan would grudgingly admit that the Braves were at least a 50-50 bet to beat the Buccos...even on the Braves worst day.

The game was moving along in typical Atlanta fashion. The Braves fell behind early. Never fear, though, Jose "Hard Luck" DeLeon was on the mound for Pittsburgh. DeLeon had a marvelous 0-7 record with a 5.55 earned run average prior to the game.

It was a perfect setting, Mildred, Elvis and the Braves. Certainly, this was the night that the Braves would shake out of their doldrums. With this faithful and patient company in front of the screen, how could they not?

That faithful patience, however, came to an end a few innings later. Elvis, a faithful Atlanta follower for more years than Mildred could remember, had suffered through the first three innings diligently.

When the fourth arrived, though, it apparently became too much. "He just stood up, shrugged his shoulders and walked into the other room," says Mildred, who was quite taken back at the retreat.

"Now, the Braves have been playing pretty bad," she admits. "But when a dog gets up and leaves the room on them, that really tells you something about Atlanta."

Sounds like a duet: Elvis and the Braves silently singing the blues.

Indoor Club Goes Outdoors

Tom Emanski's indoor baseball school went outdoors this week. The Central Florida Baseball Club, cons. ahead of its time in hitting technique, moved to the Eastmonte Recreation Center for a weeklong clinic.

"We had 100 openings," said Emanski. "And we sold out right away. We had 30 more on a waiting list. Heck, we probably could have registered 200 kids."

Emanski's school stresses individualized instruction. He limits his groups to 10 per instructor. Some of his teachers include Earl Battey, former Minnesota Twins slugger and Doug Holmquist, New York Yankees coach. For this week's clinic, he also brought over Pete Dunn and his Stetson staff, Bishop Moore's Mike Smith and other respected coaches from around the state.

A Pittsburgh Pirates scout, Emanski knows his stuff when it comes to hitting. He counts Lake Howell's Ed Taubensee and Altamonte Little National League Tiger Terry Brown among his disciples. Taubensee played on Altamonte's Senior League All-Stars last summer. He batted .360 for Lake Howell this year. Brown was the hitting star who led manager Mike Morro's club to the National title. "We've got seven or eight Tigers that come here," he said proudly.

Emanski said three things are prevalent in a good hitter — hand speed, body control and rotation. "We teach the reality method," he said Wednesday. "When you stride, the hips, shoulders, head and eyes all must be level. The hands need to be behind the back foot."

"The backside has to push the front side around. That rotation is very important."

Emanski said a lot of a young player's problem could begin with the stance. "You see a lot of younger guys reach out and make sure they can touch the outside part of home plate," he said. "That's the worst thing you can do. With normal extension, the ball would hit you and break your hands."

He said most good hitters are a foot to a foot and one-half off the plate. "You have to stride and rotate toward the ball," Emanski said. "And, keep your shoulder down. A low shoulder adds a foot and one-half to your swing."

The Central Florida Baseball Club is also expanding, according to Emanski. It has moved across from the L3 500 Go-Kart Track on Highway U.S. 17/92 in Fern Park.

"We have 6,000 square feet now compared to 3,700 before," said Emanski. "We'll have three new batting cages open each night. We're attempting to make it more of a club situation."

Cost for instruction is $10. Call 339-2690 for info.

Juniors Try Again

Wednesday's Sanford Junior League first half playoff between Moose and Kiwanis was postponed due to heavy rains. Moose and Kiwanis will meet again tonight, weather permitting, at 6 at Chase Park with the winner advancing to the league championship series.

Tuesday's games in the Sanford Little American League were also rained out.

Legislation To Halt Moves Runs Into Stiff Opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to restrict professional sports teams from moving to other cities is running into opposition in Congress with critics complaining the proposals would hinder free enterprise.

The Senate Judiciary Committee heard criticism Wednesday about three bills that provide conditions under which teams could relocate.

Congress has tried to regulate team moves since the Raiders of the National Football League left Oakland for Los Angeles in 1982 and kicked off a fierce court battle that resulted in a $50 million antitrust judgment against the league.

Last year, the NFL Colts left Baltimore in the middle of the night for Indianapolis, leaving fans fuming.

Congress now hopes to offer the sports leagues certain antitrust exemptions in exchange for power to restrict sudden or strongly opposed team moves.

California State Sen. William Campbell, testifying for the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission, said public interest is best served by free enterprise and the proposed bills are "insidious" measures that would prevent independent businessmen from deciding where they do business.

But the National Basketball Association supported the most comprehensive of the three bills, the Professional Sports Community Protection Act, saying it affirmed the leagues' right to approve franchise relocation.

That bill, sponsored by Sens. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., John Danforth, R-Mo., and Alan Dixon

win, lose & DREW and Paul Simon, D-Ill., has passed the Commerce Committee.

Less comprehensive bills on team relocation were sponsored by Sens. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

In the House, Reps. Fortney

"Pete" Stark, D-Calif., and Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., who represent the Oakland and Baltimore areas that lost their jobs, are pushing similar legislation.

Famous, Not-So-Famous Line Up For U.S. Open's 1st Round

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — America's No. 1 golf event begins today with 156 famous and not-so-famous players lining up to take their swings at one of the most challenging plots of ground the sport has to offer.

And although some well-known figures will likely emerge for discussion before the week is out, the host course for the 85th U.S. Open will probably give up the spotlight grudgingly.

"I don't know who you would say is the favorite this week," said two-time Masters champion Seve Ballesteros. "I think the favorite is the golf course."

The 6,996-yard, par-70 Oakland Hills Country Club course has been given almost unanimous praise by the Open competitors because of the fairness with which the United States Golf Association has prepared it.

But because of the severe undulations in the greens, the course has also been described as overwhelmingly difficult.

"It is the toughest course we play the U.S. Open championship on," said 1982 Open winner Tom Watson. "We will see a lot of scores in the 80s. I think there will be some scores in the 90s."

"I think even par (280) will win the golf tournament."

"I'm glad we don't have the rough here that we had for the Open at Oakmont (two years ago). If we did, we would have some scores in the 100s this week."

Mild weather and gradually clearing skies were in today's forecast after two days of chilly temperatures and occasional downpours.

Golf

The final practice rounds were played Wednesday in cool temperatures and with the wind making it seem even cooler.

"It's cold and it's tough out there," said 1985 leading money winner Curtis Strange following his last preparatory trip around the course. "It is long and it is very demanding."

"You are never going to have a straight putt. I really didn't remember how tough this golf course was. I played here in 1979 (at the PGA championship won by David Graham) and I can understand why I don't remember. I must have tried to forget all about it."

Watson is one of a dozen former Open champions in the field, and the man who has won the title a record sharing four times feels that experience is still the key to winning this event.

"The difficulty of this golf course will eliminate a lot of players who are not used to demonstrating patience," said Jack Nicklaus, who will be taking part in his 29th Open and who is the only player in the field who played in the tournament when it was last conducted at Oakland Hills in 1961.

"There are a lot of good players. But a lot of them are not used to playing with patience. If you make a mistake here, you have to tell yourself that you will just bide your time and try to make up for it when the opportunity presents itself."

"But some people try to be aggressive right away when they make a mistake and that gets them in more trouble and, zoom, the score goes right up."

NOTEBOOK

U.S. Open Notebook
BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — Tom Watson received a trophy Wednesday after being voted Player of the Year for 1984 by the Golf Writers Association of America.

Watson, winner of three tournaments last year and runner-up in both the Masters and British Open, won the award in a close vote with Mark O'Meara and Denis Watson.

Acknowledging the tight race for the award, Tom Watson said, "There's a lot of party on the tour. I feel it will make the tour better."

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — United States Golf Association president James Hand said Wednesday that while thought had been given to changing the format for U.S. Open playoffs, there would be no alteration in the USGA's current format.

Pathologists Hope Tests Confirm Mengele's ID

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Scientists piecing together a skeleton believed to be that of Nazi Josef Mengele hoped fingerprints from wartime documents might help determine whether a man who drowned six years ago was the infamous death camp doctor.

Police sources said they expected to get results today from initial tests matching Mengele's fingerprints taken from wartime records against impressions found on objects they believe the dead man handled before he drowned in 1979.

At the city morgue, forensic pathologists also hoped to confirm what looked like a pelvic fracture in the skeleton, which would link it with a motorcycle injury Mengele suffered in 1944.

Mengele, known as the "Angel of Death," is held responsible for the slaughter of about 400,000 prisoners, mostly Jews, at the Auschwitz concentration camp in Poland and of performing cruel medical experiments on the inmates.

Agca Testifies As 'Jesus'

ROME (UPI) — Mehmet Ali Agca, the Turkish terrorist who shot the pope, said in court today that a fugitive Italian financier has held a Vatican schoolgirl captive for two years to try to force Agca's release from prison.

Agca, also reiterating his claim to be Jesus Christ, linked two of Italy's most notorious criminal cases to the 1981 plot to kill Pope John Paul II.

The state's star witness returned to court after testifying Wednesday that he traveled to Tunisia on Bulgarian orders to assassinate Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and Maltese Prime Minister Dom Mintoff before he shot the pope in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981.

In testimony today, Agca told the court trying four Turks and three Bulgarians accused of plotting the 1981 attempted assassination of John Paul that the kidnapping of Emanuela Orlandi on June 22, 1983, was arranged by Italian financier Licio Gelli.

The second tornado reportedly flicked down around 6 p.m. and damaged one building at a farm in Zellwood before retreating into the boiling blue-black clouds.

The afternoon storms snapped several powerlines in Orlando, according to officials, and at least two lightning strikes causing minor damage were reported. About 2,000 Florida

Power Corporation customers made-do without electricity for two hours and some power was not expected to be restored to a few homes damaged in the storms until today, according to Tracy Smith, spokesman for FPC.

Elsewhere, the storms sent one man to the hospital after he was zapped by lightning and rain-laden winds may have forced a pilot to crash land a small plane on a swampy island near Ponce Inlet.

Everett Terry, 65, of 31 Fairway Circle, New Smyrna Beach, was in guarded condition today in intensive care at Fish Memorial Hospital in New Smyrna Beach following the lightning strike.

According to authorities he was golfing on the municipal golf course in that oceanside town when he was struck.

A Daytona Beach pilot, Tom Petsinger, 27, was more seriously injured than first reported when the bad weather may have forced his "banner plane" down on Channel Island near Ponce Inlet.

Jeff Krone, officer of the day at the Coast Guard Station at Ponce Inlet, said the plane, which was towing an advertising banner, went down around 3 p.m. at about the same time a 60-mph squall screamed through the area.

Petsinger was in intensive surgical care today in serious condition at Halifax Hospital, Daytona Beach. He was originally listed as having only cuts and a broken arm. The nature of his injuries was not available.

Similar weather conditions which could cause afternoon thunderstorms are predicted for today through Saturday, according to the weather bureau.

"It's basically the summer weather pattern, thunderstorms in the afternoon," the spokesman said.

Futch questioned the inmate who made the escape allegations and examined the suspect's cell, which the prisoner reportedly ordered another inmate to move out of before the escape attempt, the report said.

Futch reported a metal table in the cell had been removed from its floor anchors and the corners of the table appeared to have been damaged as if they had been used to chip away concrete from around a window in the cell. There was also a 12-inch circle of damage to the wall beside the window and chips of concrete were on the floor.

David Thomas Miller, 21, of Center Road, Sanford, was charged in the attempted escape at 2:44 p.m. Wednesday. He had been initially jailed on March 8, charged with two counts of failure to appear in court on charges of driving without a license, violation of probation and bad check charges. He was also being held on a South Carolina fugitive warrant. Spolski said.

bate. After the April 24 vote, conservative Democrats joined Republicans to fashion the $27 million aid package, which also allows the CIA to share intelligence with the Contras.

Other Democrats, led by Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, wanted to deny military assistance to the rebels.

By then, Reagan had abandoned the idea of military assistance and to secure non-lethal aid as food, clothing, medicine, agreed it could not be dispensed by the CIA or Defense Department.

Reagan indicated that he would not insist that aid be funneled through the CIA. "I'm going to leave that to the conference" committee that will try to negotiate a compromise package, he said.

He said he expected the final figure would be between $27 million and $32 million.

Although the CIA may not distribute the aid, the House defeated 232-196 another Democratic goal — extending a law banning the CIA from offering help to any group for the purpose of overthrowing the Nicaraguan government.

and the expansion of Oviedo High School, the board for the past several years has been levying a special tax of between $1.50 and $2 per $1,000 assessed valuation for these projects. That tax will continue, Hughes said.

Ferrell told the school board Wednesday that the expansion projects must be done and there are only two alternatives for raising the money. The first, he said, would be to float a bond issue, under the concept he suggested, or to triple the special capital improvement tax. The board decided to take the first route, if approved by the voters.

Payments on the new bond issue would not be necessary for the first 10 years.

Ferrell said the total principal and interest to be paid over the 20 years would be $403.8 million. But he added $219 million of that would come from interest earned from the investment of the funds. After deducting earnings from interest, the board would have to pay back principal and interest of $184,103,201.

Terese Gray, T.E. Vincent Repeat Vows

Terese Ren Gray and Thomas Edward Vincent were married May 18, at 2 p.m., in All Saints Episcopal Church, Enterprise. Father Cecil Radcliff performed the traditional double ring ceremony followed by communion.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Charles Gray Sr., 37 Dirksen Drive, DeBary. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Vincent Sr., 112 Maple Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown fashioned along the empire silhouette with tiers of lace forming the full skirt, caplet sleeves and graceful train that cascaded into a full cathedral sweep. Her tiered veil of imported illusion was held by a fitted crown. She carried a cascading bridal bouquet of white and red roses interspersed with natural greenery. Wanda E. Hittell of Sanford attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a rustic red gown with an overlay of lace extending to diamond points from the fitted bodice and carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

Richard Hittell of Sanford served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were John C. Gray Jr. and Lee Jerome Gray, brothers of the bride, DeBary.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their Gemini Springs Farm, DeBary.

Following a wedding trip to Marathon Key, Coral Lagoon Resort, the newlyweds are making their home in Sanford where the bridegroom is employed as a photographer by The Evening Herald.

This Key Does Not Open Door To Romance

DEAR ABBY: For six months I have been deeply in love with a woman, and she with me. We've made some long-range tentative plans and were building a great relationship until I learned that she still has a key to her former boyfriend's apartment.

I told her that I did not feel comfortable knowing that she has this one remaining tie to him, but she assured me that she loved me, has no use for this man's key, and would return it to him as soon as possible.

Twice I asked her if she had returned the key, and both times she said she had tried but he refused to accept it, saying he wants her to have it in case she wants to return to him. Should I ask her a third time if she was successful in getting him to accept the key?

NOT OK IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NOT OK: Don't ask her. If she wanted to reassure you, she could throw the key away or mail it to him. You may be "building a great relationship," but don't invest any more energy in construction until you check the foundation.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it so hard to get a letter to you? Once in a blue moon I see your address when you advertise a booklet on how to have a lovely wedding or what every teen-ager ought to know about sex and drugs. But is that the same address a person should use to send in a problem? Does all your mail go to the same place?

If I want a personal reply, what address should I use? If I want my question answered in your column, where should I send it? Must I sign my name if I want my letter answered in your column?

I think you should print this information because a lot of other people might also like to know.

FAITHFUL READER

DEAR READER: Space does not permit me to publish every letter I receive, but you do not have to sign your name in order to have your letter answered in the column. However, if you want a personal reply, you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Some editors prefer that all Dear Abby mail be addressed to their newspaper, after which it is forwarded to me unopened. Since this obviously delays delivery, I recommend that readers who want a speedier reply write: Dear Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

DEAR ABBY: While shopping in a grocery store yesterday with my 5-year-old daughter, a friendly stranger joked around with her for a few minutes. After we moved up the aisle, he came up to us again and proceeded to hand her some coins. I asked him not to, explaining that although I'm sure he meant well, I was trying to teach my child not to talk to strangers or accept any gifts from them. He understood and walked away, but I know his feelings were hurt.

Please, Abby, let people know that we parents are trying to protect our children from strangers who might do them harm, so please, no more offers of money or candy.

CONCERNED MOM

DEAR CONCERNED: How sad that we must teach our children that all strangers are potential threats to their safety. But, unfortunately, in these crazy times, it's imperative. Thank you for a timely reminder.

Reader Worries: Can Sex Become Addicting?

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Please don't think this is a silly question. A friend showed me an article that claimed people can get addicted to sex. Is this true? I love sex — I even masturbate three times a day — and I'm worried. Any advice?

DEAR READER — Most, but not all, diuretics cause potassium depletion. Your doctor or pharmacist can advise you if the one you are taking is a potassium-waster.

DEAR READER — "Addiction" is a poor term to use in explaining people's desire for sexual gratification. The word implies a physical dependency that, by and large, more properly describes a person's need for a chemical compound.

Depending on the amount of diuretic you use, high-potassium foods may supply enough of the mineral to satisfy your needs. However, modern diuretics are powerful and you may be excreting more potassium than

I think a better expression would be "compulsion." This refers to repetitive behavioral patterns that people engage in trying to meet inner needs.

Doctors have traditionally believed that only they and the church are valid determiners of what is "normal" sexual behavior. If the Kinsey Report and the work by Masters and Johnson had cultural value, it was surely the revelation that "normal" sexual activity encompasses an astounding variety of responses.

I doubt that many practicing physicians today would have the nerve to define sexuality in narrow terms. However, some points are worth emphasizing.

Sex that exploits another person is not good sex, nor is sex that is dangerous or harmful to others. If people "use" sex, that attitude can be counterproductive. Sometimes people use orgasmic release as a way to cope with anxiety. Such anxiety is more appropriately handled by addressing its cause, rather than using sex as a temporary respite.

You may have begun to suspect that your masturbation is taking on the qualities of a compulsion. If so, you might consider whether you want to be a victim of your own behavior. I suspect that you would feel better about yourself if you expended more energy in growth-promoting activities at work, at school or with your friends. If that fails, try cold showers.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it always necessary to take a potassium supplement while taking diuretics to control blood pressure? Is it enough to eat foods that contain high potassium levels?

you are able to replace from your diet. Taking potassium pills (or liquid) is a good way to prevent potassium deficiency. A simple blood test will indicate if you are potassium-depleted; your doctor will probably want to order one at periodic intervals.

attempts to ruff. He will then cash his other high trump, and once again declarer bites the dust.

We've all seen hands where it is a mistake to play too many rounds of trumps. This deal is unusual in that even one trump is too many to play.

Sure, South was unlucky to catch all three opposing trumps in the East hand. But he will always be able to score 10 tricks if he doesn't touch the heart suit.

After winning the ace of clubs, declarer blithely played a heart. East won the trick and had two ways to defeat the contract. If he continues with his high heart and another, declarer can gather only nine tricks.

He can play the spade ace and ruff a spade, come back to his hand with the diamond ace, and ruff another spade. That will be overruffed, but East can't beat the contract.

Should he continue instead with a second club, then eventually he will be able to overruff the third spade as declarer

Declarer does not really give up on overtricks by playing this way. If by some chance the spade king appears on the third round of that suit, he can return to his hand and then risk playing a trump.

What's Wrong With The Press?

Does Anyone Out There Really Give A Damn?

By Joan Hanner
 UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) - John Chancellor has put together "A Portrait of the Press, Warts and All," that suffers from one of the common problems of journalism - the difficulty of telling a complicated story in limited space or time.

Chancellor calls the program, to air on NBC, channel 2, Saturday 10-11 p.m., a personal essay on the problems and perplexities of the press. By calling it a personal essay, Chancellor gets to discuss what he wants, rather than attempting to cover the field.

This allows him to lump together print press and broadcast journalism, although the problems - and the criticisms - of the two kinds of journalism vary greatly.

"News is a chronicle of conflict and of change," Chancellor says. "Much of it is not attractive, and that sometimes rubs people the wrong way. But polls show that some people like the press, while most people frankly don't give much of a damn about it. A majority thinks it does the job reasonably well."

Most of Chancellor's program discusses not what an insider sees as the problems of the profession, but rather whether public perceptions are valid.

First there's a clip of "The China Syndrome" - "hard-hitting journalism." Then comes "All The President's Men" - "Watergate journalism." From there it's downhill to "The Right Stuff" and "boorish journalism," and "Absence of Malice" and "bad journalism."

All of those images are true, of course, in different times and places.

Chancellor discusses the charges of press "arrogance," but it isn't clear who is being called arrogant - television, radio, newspapers, news

John Chancellor discusses the problems and questions the validity of the public's perception of the news media magazine, all of the above. Is it reporters covering stories, editors making decisions, or the vague, hostile "they" that haunts so much of American life?

Reporters are correctly perceived as invading people's privacy. That's how it has always been. In the glory days of Chicago journalism when reporters still wore hats they could stick their press cards in, they mercilessly pursued the victims of private tragedy as well as the perpetrators of public corruption.

Chancellor reveals what has always amazed reporters - people want to talk to the press, because they feel their stories might help others or just because they need to talk to someone impersonal.

Chancellor winds up urging newspeople to pay more attention to the craft of journalism and he cites an old saying in Chicago journalism: "You say your mother loves you. Check it out."

Optimism Alone Won't Cure Cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — Psychological factors do not play a role in recovering from severe cancer, although a positive attitude will improve the patient's quality of life, researchers announced today.

Researchers at the University of Pennsylvania compared psychological and social factors with longevity in 359 cancer patients. They found no relationship between the two.

"It would be a wonderful magic bullet if you could tell patients to laugh a lot, think well, maintain a hopeful spirit and they would be cured," said Barrie R. Casaleth, director of psychosocial programs at the University of Pennsylvania Cancer Center. "Unfortunately, that does not happen to be the case."

They found factors such as job satisfaction, social ties, marital history and hopelessness had no effect on how long a patient lives or whether he suffers a relapse.

"The biology of the disease appears to predominate and to override the potential influence of life-style and psychosocial variables once the disease process is established," said the report in the New England Journal of Medicine.

"We're seeing, particularly in the cancer field, a lot of people who believe that if people reduce stress and eat properly they can cure cancer," Casaleth said. "If they don't recover it's because they failed to think and eat properly."

"It imposes major guilt on the patient," she said.

The belief that overall attitude can influence recovery from severe cancer probably came from two factors, the researchers concluded. A number of studies have been published in the past few decades showing a relationship between psychosocial factors and the cause or course of malignant disease. However, a review of the literature showed those studies were contradictory and not well conducted.

The second reason for the belief in various studies of healthy people, which show a significant relationship between mental health and longevity.
